WAYNE CENSUS FIGURES SHOW BACKWARD GROWTH

The first of the week City Clerk Horney received official census figures from Washington, showing the population of Wayne county, Wayne and the various precincts and villages of the county, not only for 1920, but also for 1910 and 1900. These figures show that we had some better counters in those days than we seem to have had this year. It is possible that Wayne was overcounted then, and also that some may have been missed this time in the county. "Figures don't lie, but liars figure" sometimes.

In the nine and one half years the writer has been a resident of Wayne there has been practically one new residence built each month, or fully 100 residences added to the city's housing capacity. When we came it was hard work to find a house in which to live—it is more difficult today than then, so when you read the comparative figures you may pass upon their past and present. In 1900, we are told that college students were counted as Wayne people. It is said that they were not so counted in 1910, nor were they enumerated here this time. Here is the nose count.

THE SUBSCRIPTION STATEMENT

Last week, and again this week, we are presenting the readers with a blank subscription statement for their convenience in remitting for the Democrat. A number heeded the call in the last paper, and seem to prefer to figure out their own account rather than have a statement sent direct. We hope to perfect the plan so that it may become a regular feature, so that our readers will be able to answer for themselves, at any time the question so often asked, "How does my subscription account stand?"

We want to make as easy as possible for the readers to keep this paper coming regularly to their homes and make subscription collections as easy as possible. The name tag should show the date to which your paper is paid, and we are accepting subscriptions at the $1.50 rate now as far in advance as January 1922.

The Convention was called to order at 2 o'clock and the most interesting and helpful meeting was held, that it has ever been our privilege to attend. Mrs. G. W. Fortner, presiding.

A duet by Margaret Marshall and Wilma Francis was much enjoyed. Mrs. G. Garwood read a very able paper on "Our Opportunity." In her usual delightful way Mrs. Lutgen sang a solo, and gave a musical reading, "When Honey Sings the Old Time Songs," accompanied by Mrs. Boyce. Motion pictures were discussed in a very interesting manner by Mrs. Mines. A solo by Miss Eunice Linn was greatly enjoyed. An especially fine number was the solo, "Whispering Hope," by Mrs. Drullinger, accompanied by her husband with clarinet, and son with cornet. Miss Nellie Winget gave a delightful reading, and Mrs. Fetterolf gave a fine solo. Miss Winget favored us with music on the piano.

A vote of thanks to the Carroll ladies was given for the royal entertainment given us.

All joined in repeating the Lord's Prayer, and adjourned to meet next year at Wayne.

GETTING INFORMATION

Otis Stringer, of this place, had a question and some comment in the Sioux City Tribune Saturday evening, asking why we are now advocating a league of nations, when such a thing was not mentioned when war was declared, and asked explanation. The Tribune explained in a two column account of the President's message to congress at the time war was declared, showing plainly that in the message asking congress to act the very idea of the league of nations to insure permanent peace was urged. In fact, the idea of aiding in a war and a peace which would end wars and the burden of great navies and big armies was the reason given for presenting the case to congress, tho there was ample reason other than that under the unwritten laws as well as the written laws of nations to warrant our entry into the war. In fact, President Wilson was more criticized for not acting earlier than for acting when he did in the matter. We are sorry not to be able to give the question and reply in full, but it is too long for the average country paper to handle in justice to other matter. We hope that many people will find a copy of the Tribune and read the editorial page, for it may be answering many more people than Mr. Stringer.

CAR BURGLAR CAPTURED AT WAKEFIELD

A special sluth of the "Omaha" captured one of two men who were taking merchandise from a freight car at Wakefield the other night, and the prisoner is in jail at Ponca, in default of about $5,000 bail. His pal made his escape; but they left about $700 worth of goods with which they were about ready to pull out when captured.

ATKINSON-MITCHELL

Friday, October 1st, 1920, at the county court room by Judge J. M. Cherry, James Mitchell, a machinist at Demming, New Mexico, and Miss Carrie Atkinson of Wakefield, adopted daughter of Mrs. Wm. Harrison, were united in marriage. They will make their home at Demming, New Mexico.

CARROLL EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN BEGINS OCTOBER 17TH

There are symptoms of a real old fashioned revival now in sight at Carroll. Those who have watched the evidences of spiritual awakenings as they approached communities and know the indications of a revival believe that real indications are in sight. The study of all the talk on the streets and in different circles in and out of town as scrutinized by observers is very encouraging in many ways.

Evangelist Sikes who has been hustling for some time to create interest and to inform the people over the wide territory about the coming of the Harrington party is very much pleased with the results so far. The delay of the Evangelist for three weeks had a double effect on the work. It gave the workers more time to prepare the building and remodel it for use and to obtain if necessary an experienced tabernacle man to help with the task. It also increased the curiosity and gave more time for discussion of the whole matter by the people of the vicinity.

There are now about ninety of the singers of Carroll and vicinity who have signed the volunteers list to help with the big chorus choir and about one hundred more will be secured it is expected judging from those left in the community of Carroll and vicinity adjacent who are considered good singers.

Saturday night Evangelist Harrington wired the Carroll people that he would be ready to begin the great campaign on Sunday-October 17th and there was much rejoicing on the part of all interested.

"MECCA FOR PEP"

The people of Wayne may be wondering what is the meaning of the groups of girls marching along the highways near Wayne in the early evenings. Following, from the Goldenrod, is the explanation:

"Tuesday evening marked the first meeting of the 'Mecca for Pep' and athletic organization for girls. At six-thirty a group of enthusiasts met in the gymnasium for the purpose of completing details concerning the organization of the club.

"Miss Potts, director of physical education for girls, presided and read the constitution which had been previously submitted by a committee. It was decided that a monogram be designed and presented to each girl earning two hundred points in athletics; for each additional two hundred points earned a bar will be given. As the organization grows, it may be found feasible to present sweaters after a letter and bars have been earned. The activities for which points will be given are:

- Swimming.....100 points
- Hiking.....100 points
- Tennis.....50 points
- Volley ball.....50 points
- Skating.....50 points
- Basket ball.....50 points

"An additional fifty points will be given those participating in the final 'long hike'."

"An election of officers resulted in the following:
Tillie Solfermoser.....President
Netha Wright.....Vice President
Gladys Biermann.....Secretary
Mabel Kneeland.....Treasurer
Grace Johnson.....Hiking Manager
Eileen Burns.....Tennis Manager
Alice Lewis.....Basket Ball Manager
Mary House.....Volley Ball Manager
Mabel Britell.....Exhibition and May Pete
Bernice Clayton.....Advertising Manager
Margaret Ferrin.....Promie Manager

"On the first Tuesday evening of each month from six-thirty to eight, the members of 'Mecca for Pep' will gather in the gymnasium for a frolic."

Every girl in the school eligible to membership in this club and urged to take part in the activities. Organized groups of girls are taking extended hikes, averaging about four miles, each evening of the week and, as they become accustomed to the exercise the distance will be increased.

LOOKABILL-PIPPITT

Wednesday, October 6th, 1920, at the county court room, by Judge J. M. Cherry, Ernest G. Pippitt, a farmer eight miles south of Randolph, in Pierce county, and a son of Mrs. Mary Pippitt, and Miss Pearl Lookabill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Lookabill, of Randolph, were united in marriage. Miss Lookabill was a graduate from the Randolph high school. They were accompanied by the bride's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hansen. They will go to home keeping immediately.

Mrs. J. J. Paulsen and daughter, Augusta, went Sioux City on business this morning.

BOUND OVER FOR AUTOMOBILE STEALING

Monday was a busy day at the county court, when George Darnell and Harry Davis, both of Winside, were brought to answer to the charge of stealing a Dort car belonging to W. G. Morrow, of the same place, which was taken October 2nd. The young men were arrested at Norfolk. Many witnesses and spectators from Winside were present; and when the judge had heard the evidence, he bound the lads over to the district court, fixing the bond at $1,000 each, which has been provided by their friends, or at least assurance is given that it will be furnished today.

ANDREWS-LINGREN

There was a pretty wedding at Hotel Boyd Wednesday afternoon, October 5, 1920, when Mr. Paul Ernest Lingren and Miss Anna May Andrews, were united in marriage, Rev. Wm. Kilburn, of the Methodist church, officiating.

Only relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom were present when the ceremony was performed in the private parlors of the Boyd. Then came an elaborate six-course dinner in the private dining room, which was prettily decorated in pink and white carnations. A handsome wedding cake was the centerpiece on a very prettily decorated table, and the menu was complete in every detail.

The wedding march was played by Miss Madalene Bohmert, who also furnished music while the guests partook of the dinner.

Following the repast the bride and groom disappeared, and have not since been heard from; but it was known that a short wedding trip was planned, so no search was made.

The groom came to Wayne a few months ago, purchasing the Wayne bakery, and during his stay here has won a host of friends who will congratulate him upon his return. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Andrews, of Altona, a most pleasing young lady, who has won many friends during her short stay at Wayne. They are soon to be at home at Wayne.

THE DODGE BROS. PRICES NOT TO BE REDUCED

Official confirmation of press dispatches from Detroit, announcing that there would be no reduction in the price of Dodge Brothers Motor Cars, has been received by B. W. Wright the Dodge Brothers dealer in this city. A telegram from C. W. Matheson, acting general sales manager to the local dealer, reads:

"Dodge Brothers policy has ever been to give full value for the price asked. There will be no reduction in the present prices of Dodge Brothers motor cars. Newspaper reports to the contrary are absolutely untrue."

"Dodge Brothers announcement was no surprise to us," said B. W. Wright. "In fact it is only a substantiation of Dodge Brothers business principles. At no time have they ever demanded an excess amount for their product. As in the past, they will continue in the future to demand a fair return for their efforts."

"The mere fact that the demand for Dodge Brothers motor cars is still greater than the supply, despite the great expansion program at the factory, has absolutely nothing to do with the decision to continue the present prices. In marketing their car Dodge Brothers have never made a point of price and will never sacrifice the quality of their product to enter price competition."

A PLEASURE FOR THE LADIES

The ladies, young and old always find pleasure in visiting a store well filled with the latest and best of wearing apparel. There seems to be an attraction in the pretty things, hats, dresses, coats, suits, waists, and even in the many pretty designs, knits and weaves of the sweaters and underwear. There is satisfaction for the shopper to be found at the Mrs. Jeffries store for women and children, where all of these goods and others are to be found. Mothers will be especially interested just now in inspecting the new stock of child coats which are now just on display in full assortment for the little folks to those of school age.—adv.-07-16.

Mrs. W. R. Martin, from Enola, spent Saturday and Sunday here, with her daughter, Mrs. E. H. Dotson. She was accompanied by a friend of Mrs. Dotson, Mrs. Eloise Linn, of the same place.

Dress making pays, take a course at the Keister Sewing School, conducted by Sibyl Dixon. Up stairs over State Bank.—adv.-S-20-2t.

THAT ANTI-NON-PARTISAN POLITICAL TALK

As announced, Friday evening Frank E. Parker, from North Dakota, held the stage center at the Wayne opera-house. County-Chairman, F. S. Berry, of the republican county central committee presided, and Congressman Evans, the republican candidate for re-election to congress was the other occupant of the stage. The house was well filled, with a few women scattered through to give dignity to the occasion—added dignity, we mean. In introducing the speaker the chairman assured the audience that this was not a republican meeting, but an anti-league gathering and he said that the American Legion members were active workers for the meeting, and they are to be complimented on their work as ushers, a great help to often neglected at political meetings.

Quite a number of the members of the league in this county were present to hear their party principles crucified. Both chairman and speaker declared for free speech and denounced its suppression.

It was our misfortune not to be able to attend the meeting from the first, but have made careful inquiry from a number who were present, and from all we can learn the speaker offered no remedy for a condition which has made the organization of the non-partisan league so easy, for back of the movement must have been a spirit of dissatisfaction with some conditions as they now exist. He first established to his own satisfaction at least, that the league leaders and high-up organizers are socialists—yes socialists. Then he intimated that socialism is bad—and from that to worse. Then from being a bad socialist to being an I. W. W. was but a short step, and then another short step and he had you in the midst of Russia with its most rotten government conditions—and then came North Dakota, still another step worse off than the people of down-trodden Russia. Of course this was all easy, having a bunch of socialists to begin with and Nebraska-people should be warned before it is too late not to put these fanatics in power in this state. It is said that right here in Wayne county are no less than 600 league members—and perhaps 700 hundred. They have invaded the primaries of the different counties and senatorial districts and placed men on the ballot as republican or democratic nominees, and propose, if possible to elect enough of them to control the legislature.—Then what will they do?

It is possible that they might enact a lot of laws as they did in our sister state, laws that the people would approve of in a referendum vote. That, of course, will depend upon how depraved the people become in the meantime. They may do as they did in that northern state, pass a bunch of laws, which after the voters have placed their approval on, even the supreme court of the United States might approve.

According to his story the people of North Dakota are composed of three classes: rascals, fools and patriots like the speaker trying to save the dear people from their own folly and their alleged knavish leaders. But if what the speaker said was even partially true, the leaders of the movement are rather able fellows. They have enacted their scheme into laws so skillfully that the people are willing to approve them, and are therefore entitled to live under these laws until they wish to change them. More than that, they have so closely kept within the limits prescribed by the constitution of the state that the greatest jurists of our land have said they are valid laws. We call that a pretty smooth job for crooks.

Now as it is said that the same elements of this state are trying to put similar laws in force here, let us refer to the program of North Dakota and learn, if that be true, what it is that we might expect. Here are the measures:

- Bank of North Dakota.
- Mill and Elevator association.
- Home Builders association.
- Economic Administration of State Industries.
- Taxation and State Finance (a law changing in some respects the burden of taxation from improvements and personal property to land values)
- Workmans Compensation law.
- State bonding of Public Officials.
- State Insurance—both fire and hail.
- Guarantee of Bank Deposits—(we have it and like it in Nebraska.)
- Department of Immigration.
- Grain Grading law.
- A Dairy Association Law.
- A Feed and Seed Bond Act.
- And some other laws regarding different phases under these general

FARM MOVEMENTS AND MOVES COMING

J. M. Roberts has purchased the J. C. Forbes quarter section just north of Wayne, to take possession next March. The consideration was $362.50 per acre, which indicates that land prices are not sliding back in this vicinity, especially when one considers that Mr. Forbes had offered the place for less money not many months ago.

Mr. Roberts has been farming in this Mr. Roberts has been farming in this vicinity on different farms for the past ten or more years, and has made good, being a large and successful feeder during much of that time. He is now on the Wier land, which has been sold to the Beckman boys, Fred and John, some time ago. Gus Hanson, who has also been farming Wier land, will we are told, close out this fall as soon as his crops are gathered and marketed, and go to California for the winter. Mr. Hanson has also been a successful farmer and feeder, and will be missed from the community if he shall decide to leave and remain away.

A REPORT FROM GRANDMA FOX

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rispen and daughter Blanche drove to Randolph Sunday to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fox where Mrs. Maria Fox makes her home. "Grandma Fox," as all of the pioneers of this part of Nebraska know her, is now 93 years of age, and in full possession of all of her faculties except that her sight has nearly gone, is a remarkable old lady. Mrs. Rispen tells us that to her she seems more like a grandmother than did her own good grandmother, because in her childhood days, she was so much with her. It is now more than a year since Mrs. Fox visited at Wayne, where she finds a welcome in every home when she can come, but her home folks do not want her to take the risk of a trip so far; perhaps they are jealous, and want her all to themselves. At any rate the people who knew her so well in pioneer days will be glad to learn that she is enjoying good health and a good home in her old age.

WEBB RICE TO SPEAK AT WAYNE SATURDAY

At the city hall Saturday evening at 8:00 o'clock, Webb Rice, of Norfolk, democratic nominee for congress from this Third congressional district, is to speak on the issues. The hall should certainly be filled, for any man who can capture a congressional nomination must certainly have some ideas well worth the time of those who are seeking to know all that is possible of the political situation, to go and listen. This will be the opening speech of the democratic campaign this season.

Cream, eggs, poultry bought by Fortner.—adv

The Democrat was glad to have this speaker come and give us his view of the situation; but we would have been better pleased had he offered some constructive remedy as well as criticize the experiments which the people of that state are undertaking in the interests of eradicating evils as they see them.

One well-informed, conservative member of the audience says that speakers talk was criticism of the league, its program and its leaders and that it seemed to show some prejudice against the acts of the last legislature of North Dakota. We hope that measures of that legislature may be tried honestly and their real worth to the people determined. It may be the cheap way for Nebraska to learn what is good and what not in their program. The eyes of all students of economic questions are on North Dakota, and they should have the truth.

Perhaps prices are falling. We read in our exchanges of some special discount sales. We have no means at present of knowing how genuine are the discounts. They might be like one we recently heard of, tho the incident is somewhat older than our knowledge of the transaction. It happened that a patron went into a store for a garment and selected one that pleased except as to price—but did not purchase then, and when the sale was not to be made the customer was asked to come in a few days later when a lot of goods were to be put on sale at special prices. Returning at that time, the identical garment was found, for the prospective purchaser had taken the stock number and other marks for identification—and was surprised to learn that the special sale price was greater than had been the regular price. No, that did not happen at Wayne, but it happened that one known at this place came near being the victim. We cannot always tell how near things are to what they are supposed to be, but we do hope that prices are falling a little, and that the decline is genuine.

Cream, eggs, poultry bought by Fortner.—adv.

Miss Edith Stocking spent Saturday visiting at Wakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Mat Engelhart and children, of Emerson, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hargan and family, east of this place.

The American Legion post at Winside, at its meeting last week unanimously voted that from this time forward it should be known as Reed Post No. 252, in honor of Roy Reed, the first Winside boy to lose his life in battle. It is a fitting tribute to the lad who made the supreme sacrifice, and the post should always be so conducted as to be a credit to those who can be members in memory only.

At Wausa they have an Athletic Booster club, and Friday evening they are to have an opening of their new quarters. The item about it falls to make very clear just what sort of a place they are to open, but one gets the impression that it is to be a sort of headquarters for all, old or young, women or children, citizen or stranger. It might be a good thing, and give the men of the place a chance to spend their evenings away from home.

Henry Hollman and wife, from just northeast of town, accompanied by two of their little ones drove to Wisner Saturday to spend Sunday with his brother, near that place. Last Thursday Mr. Hollman and his son, Henry, returned from a visit at the home of his brother, in Oklahoma. Miss Anna Hollman, from Oklahoma, came some time ago with her uncle near Wisner to visit this north country and her relatives here. When she was ready to go home the uncle and cousin accompanied her to visit her father, whom Mr. Hollman had not seen since his marriage about thirty years before. Mr. Hollman also volunteered the information that in the entire trip he saw no country that made a better showing as a farm country than right here close to home. And a neighbor standing at his elbow added: "I traveled 10,000 miles in search of a better farming district than this, and came back satisfied to spend the rest of my farming days in this vicinity."

Hudson and Essex Cars

Return to Bedrock Prices

Reduced $200 to $450

Thousands have planned to buy Hudson and Essex cars this Fall. For five years the Super-Six has been the world's largest selling fine car. In eighteen months Essex sales made an unmatched record. What must now be the demand for them at these bedrock prices? But labor and material shortages in early summer had forced reductions in schedules for Fall and Winter. And now the return to normal in prices assures such an immediate increase in sales that a scarcity of Hudson and Essex cars seems certain.

Choose your car now. Learn how the price reduction increases its attractiveness. And remember that in either Hudson or Essex you obtain exclusive motors—for they are patented.

You can save $200 to $450 on the car and model of your choice. Act promptly if you want delivery this Fall.

The American Legion post at Winside, at its meeting last week unanimously voted that from this time forward it should be known as Reed Post No. 252, in honor of Roy Reed, the first Winside boy to lose his life in battle. At Wausa they have an Athletic Booster club, and Friday evening they are to have an opening of their new quarters. It might be a good thing, and give the men of the place a chance to spend their evenings away from home.

Henry Hollman and wife, from just northeast of town, accompanied by two of their little ones drove to Wisner Saturday to spend Sunday with his brother, near that place. Last Thursday Mr. Hollman and his son, Henry, returned from a visit at the home of his brother, in Oklahoma. Miss Anna Hollman, from Oklahoma, came some time ago with her uncle near Wisner to visit this north country and her relatives here. When she was ready to go home the uncle and cousin accompanied her to visit her father, whom Mr. Hollman had not seen since his marriage about thirty years before. Mr. Hollman also volunteered the information that in the entire trip he saw no country that made a better showing as a farm country than right here close to home. And a neighbor standing at his elbow added: "I traveled 10,000 miles in search of a better farming district than this, and came back satisfied to spend the rest of my farming days in this vicinity."

Most farmers who own motor trucks think they show a profit. The ton truck was the most popular, and bad roads the greatest drawback to contend with.

O. E. Milburn, wife and children are here from Springfield, Colorado, to visit at the home of her father, James Rennick and family. They have been in southeastern Colorado for about six years and like it well there. It was a cattle country when they first went there, but is being developed these later days as a grain growing country. Although they are more than 80 miles from a railroad he tells us that with their naturally hard, dry roads they have a line of trucks for hauling so that their wheat haul of 80 miles does not seem so bad. They have trucks that roll off with a five-ton load. They have a large mill at their railway station, and that absorbs their grain, so that the car shortage has not bothered them; but he expressed the opinion that hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat rotted in great piles in Kansas last season because they could not get it moved to market. It seems a shame that for want of adequate railroad efficiency the people of one part of the country should suffer for bread while wheat is rotting in the fields where it was grown. Some day we may hope to use water transportation where it may be developed, and leave the railroads and their rolling stock free to work where most needed.

It is reported that Wm. Rennick has sold one of his farms near the south edge of the county, but we did not learn consideration, or who purchased the place.

W. H. Gildersleeve came home from the western part of the state last week, bringing with him seven car loads of feeders for his farms in this vicinity.

Miss Florence Rohwer came home from Sioux City last week and is now at home with her father, recovering from the effects of a most serious appendix operation. It was a serious case, and it will be a number of months yet before she will be able to return to her regular work.

Geo. A. Smith and wife returned to Omaha Monday, after a week or two rest at his home here. He is under treatment at Omaha, and slowly improving as the weeks go by—but it seems slow. His is a head trouble of amy origin, and has caused much suffering.

Preventative measures against grain dust explosions have been discovered or invented which it is hoped will lessen the loss of such disasters. In 1919 grain dust explosions caused 80 deaths and loss of $7,000,000 property.

The once displaced muskrat is now said to find a place as a delicacy on the tables of the rich. Under government direction the marsh lands of Maryland have been converted into farms for propagating these fur-bearing animals, and have a market valuation of from $30 to $40 per acre. Their pelt is becoming valuable as furs become scarce and hard to get. When a lad, we felt rich when we could get 15 cents for a rat hide—and the carcass was not looked at, except that now and then a lad would collect the perfumery for market, and render his room more desired than his company until that portion of the perfumery which he invariably carried with him had become diluted by the passing breezes, or wafted away, and those who associated with him in the home and school had become accustomed to the peculiar perfume.

Mrs. L. B. Palmer, of Hubbard, was visiting her former Wayne friends Tuesday between trains. While here she said that she had read with some interest our item some weeks ago to the effect that too many of the teachers of today were regarding their contract as a scrap of paper. She knew of an incident in which the shoe was on the other foot. A Nebraska teacher had been engaged, and was under contract with a board in another state, when less than a week before time for her to leave for the year school work the board sent word that she must agree without additional pay to give instructions evenings to a number of one of the classes of the year before who had failed to pass, else the young folks would not enter school for the year. This she declined to do—so the breaking of contract is not always on the part of the teacher. The teacher personally knew that at least a part of those who failed to pass the year before had neglected to attend school during a part of the year. She had conducted the examinations—but there, as in Nebraska, the county superintendent looked after the marking of the papers.

Now comes the news that a conservative Illinois farmer's organization volunteered to check up the car situation on all railroads in that state for a week as to just how many empty cars were on sidetracks in the various towns—just how many had been kept moving freight and how many had been standing idle. This farmer's organization has made its report, and if investigation was along thorough lines their finding is interesting. The committee states they found there was no car shortage at all, but that the railroads had failed to keep their empties in circulation. If true it points to inefficient management of the railroads in private hands. The Democrat has been convinced for years there has been too apparent an arrangement whereby the shipment of freight is dictated and influenced by the big packers and the grain terminal fellows. In other words that the car situation is managed by the railroads in cooperation and in sympathy with the market manipulators and Big Business. If true there is only one way to escape all this sort of business—by government ownership of the railroads.—Hastings Democrat.

J. G. Chambers, of Wisner, on his farm south of Wayne has made a start to reduce the high cost of living. With some neighbors, they agreed to plant a bit of cane and make sorghum. As a result of purchasing a good but small equipment they worked up their crop in good shape, and Mr. Chambers had about 75 gallons of excellent sorghum, as we know from putting it to a test.

Last Friday Mrs. Claude Mitchell returned from Rochester, where she had been for ten days or two weeks passing examination by the specialists of that great hospital. They reported that they could discover no trouble which they thought would not yield to treatment and a long period of rest. They are furnishing a treatment, and she seems to be proving the correctness of their diagnosis and the benefit of their treatment in improved appearance. Her many friends will be glad to know that she is improving with hope of being restored to health.

Vote for RE-ELECTION of

CHIEF JUSTICE

Andrew M. Morrissey

"The political parties have made no nominations for Chief Justice. The Chief Justice is not elected as a party candidate, but his name will be found with other Judicial Candidates, and school officers on a separate ballot. "We favor the re-election of Chief Justice Morrissey because we believe in the law designed to take the courts out of politics and to elect Judges because of their qualifications. "Six years ago when he became Chief Justice the court was about three years behind. Today the court is as nearly up with its work as it is practicable for a supreme court to be. Credit for this is not wholly due to the Chief Justice, but other members of the court who have contributed to this result give full credit to Chief Justice Morrissey for his share in its accomplishment. "He has executive ability that gets results. He enjoys the friendship and co-operation of his associates. He has the respect and confidence of the lawyers who have business in the Supreme Court. He has helped to clear away many technicalities of the law. Law-breakers have been brought to justice and honest men enjoy the protection of the courts. "If you are in doubt about how to vote on Chief Justice, ask your District Judge."—Lincoln Tribune.

The season is at hand for cutting down working forces along the railroad the carpenter crew and two bridge crews that have been operating in this vicinity during the summer have been given a winter vacation—or a chance to find a change of work. division. Robert and Emmett Porth and Oke Swift and Chalmer Hastings have gone west. They drove to Akron, Colorado, to visit friends and relatives near that place, and will probably seek work in a beet sugar factory in that part of the state for a time.

The Norfolk Press is not hardly fair to its political opponent—it is poor taste to count the audience at a political meeting—unless there are too many to count, and then to tell that there was "nearly forty" present at his Norfolk meeting.

Now comes the report that the labor supply is becoming equal to the demand and a little more. There is demand enough for labor when conditions are such that the laboring man is willing to do an honest day work for honest day pay. There is too much pay asked now for results accomplished. The man who is paying for the work cannot afford to pay so much for so little, cannot pass it on to the next fellow, and cannot carry the burden alone.

What do you know about it? Harding is now blaming President Wilson for scrapping the League. Well, when Adam ate the apple he laid the blame on Eve, and so it has ever been. Wilson made the league as much as any of the hundreds of diplomats and statesmen who gathered for the delicate task of changing the world policy of centuries for a new policy. A policy of open diplomacy—a policy which should give the people who are called upon to bear the burden of a war if it come, some chance to settle differences without war.

Candidate Harding is pledging that if elected he will never barter the independence of America to foreign powers. Good. But so many of us think he has already promised it to the corporations and money bags of the world, that we are not willing to put him in place of power. Every thing connected with the manipulations of the delegates who nominated him looks as the Penrose, as the special spokesman of big interests worked the wires. Some who were delegates to the convention openly repudiate the work done there.

A friend at our elbow suggests that we ask the women voters to try to figure out what influence was hidden, and why, that caused ten republican members of the Tennessee legislature to vote against giving women the franchise—and then join in a filibuster to break a quorum and thus stop the reform, while Harding was shouting himself hoarse in an apparent effort to have the amendment ratified? Did Harding and his backers shout this from the house-top and secretly issued different orders to republican members of that body?

We read of price reduction these days, and it is welcome news to most of us, and we go to store expectantly. We find a slight reduction in some things—but we must wait patiently as we can for the promised reduction to reach us. Most of us fail to understand that these big concerns are announcing prices for next season delivery. They are not now, in most cases, selling from any stock on hand at greatly reduced price; and in some lines the price of goods in stock is even advancing, because there is not enough to supply. The local merchant may be trusted to begin a reduction to his patrons just as soon as it is possible to do so—he has competition, and must of necessity meet you fairly; the most of them do not need the pressure of competition to do the right thing.

WEBER PREDICTIONS

Will Weber sends from Dunning this hopeful weather prediction: "Fair from October 3rd to November 3rd," and then adds that will enable a lot of our paying work to go forward. He might have added that the stormy time is not to come until after election.

"Corn is immense up here this fall—had two killing frosts, September 20th and 30th; ice 3/4th inch thick, but we saved a wagon load of watermelons, so come up. We are all well, and Harold and wife will move to Florence, Nebraska, this week." W. H. Weber.

MRS. J. B. FELBER DIES SUDDENLY FRIDAY P. M.

(Laurel Advocate)

Mrs. J. B. Felber died at 5:30 Friday evening, following an illness of several months. Lately she had been feeling better, was up and about and able to enjoy an occasional auto ride. Wednesday morning she was not feeling as well as usual and gradually failed from that on, though relatives did not realize the nearness of the end until she told them about two o'clock Friday afternoon that she was about to leave them.

The funeral was held from the home Monday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. W. O. Harper, of the Presbyterian church, officiating and the choir of that church furnishing the music. The bearers were B. J. Hoile, Thos. Berge, J. R. Durrie, Clarence Brogden, B. J. Evers and D. D. Coburn. Interment was made in the Laurel cemetery.

Always a home body, more so the last few years as her strength grew less, Mrs. Felber occupied a unique place in the community. Just how it was that few knowing her intimately all held the kindest of feelings for her would be hard to tell—yet they did. Everybody liked Mrs. Felber. Can it be that in her quiet, unobtrusive way she liked everybody and thereby attracted only kindly feelings? She was the most faithful of wives and the fondest of mothers.

All of the children, with the exception of Mrs. Young, were present at the funeral.

The following is the obituary read by the pastor:

"Anna Marie Ott was born in Switzerland April 27, 1851, and died at her home in Laurel, Nebraska, September 24, 1920, aged 69 years, 4 months and 27 days. She was married to Jacob B. Felber, November 17, 1874. In order to better their condition Mr. Felber came to America in 1878, settling at St. Helena, Nebraska. Two years later he was able to send for his family and together they endured the poverty and hardships of life in a pioneer country. They lived at St. Helena till 1901 and since then at Laurel, Nebraska.

"Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Felber, three in Switzerland and four in this country. Of these, a daughter, Elsie, died in Switzerland. The other six survive. They are Mrs. H. H. Young, of Chalk Buttes, Montana; H. J. Felber, of Wayne, Nebraska; Mrs. L. H. Field, of Lane, South Dakota; Mrs. J. V. Harper, of Belden, Nebraska; A. D. Felber and Miss Bertha Felber, of Laurel, Nebraska. In addition to the husband and children there are eighteen grandchildren."

"The deceased was confirmed in the German Reformed Church at the usual age."

ENTERTAINING PLAY TONIGHT

The girls of the "Ann of Ava" West Minister Guild will present a little play on Thursday evening, October 7th, at 8 o'clock, at the Presbyterian church. No admittance will be charged, but a free will offering will be received. The story of the play is as follows:

"Tired of Missions"

The girls of a missionary class decide that they are tired of missions, and think their help is not needed any longer. By getting a peep behind the scenes on several mission fields, they become convinced that the work abroad suffers when the friends at home get "tired" helping.

Does the dairy cow pay is a question answered in the affirmative by the college of agriculture at Lincoln. Katy Gerben holds third place in world history for continuous-milk production. In seven milk periods she produced 115,125 pounds of milk containing nearly two and a quarter tons of butter fat (4,400 pounds). What this one cow produced in food product exclusive of the calves she bore is equal to 47 steers, each weighing 1,400 pounds, and after she has contributed the equal of all of these steers to the food supply, we still have the cow left to go on producing, or if she must go to the block, the equal of a small steer in quantity if not in quality of meat. If more farmers would select their best milk cows, properly care for them and market the product foods might be more plentiful and the man with the milking pail and stool far richer.

Rev. Wm. Kilburn, of the Methodist church informs us that he hopes to have Congressman Evans speak at the church next week Sunday evening. We believe it will be a good thing, and wish that all churches might invite candidates and political speakers to use their churches and their congregations. It might have the effect of elevating the plane of politics—and more than that, give some church-going people a new conception of the responsibilities of citizenship—and a broader view of life in general and christianity in particular. Our non-partisan friends use the "day of rest" holding picnics and speeches on that day when people come for miles round and learn of economic questions. Most of these picnics are great orderly gatherings of people who visit, listen to speeches, eat a picnic dinner if they come far, and go home wiser and none the worse for having attended a peaceful assembly. We would be glad if the pastor would offer the use of his church for the two remaining Sunday evenings to the opposing candidates, Mr. Rice and Mrs. Weekes. It would be an innovation, and truly helpful.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawey, of Winside, were business visitors here Wednesday.

Those having rooms to rent please phone Drs. Lewis & Lewis, Phone Ash 491—adv.—07-21.

Mr. and Mrs. Rundell returned Friday from Knoxville, Iowa. They had car trouble and left their car at Tekama and came home on train.

Pete Hinkle and wife went to Slou City this morning, where Mr. H. will enter a hospital for treatment for hernia. Pete has a friend in every pupil of our city schools and many who have been pupils during the long term he has acted as janitor, and all hope that he is soon restored to his usual health, as he doubtless will be.

This week closes the engagement for the season of the Walter Savidge players, and there are yet three evenings when opportunity will be had to hear these great entertainers. The plays for three remaining nights, like the three already given, are good, well presented, and full of interest. The weather man has been kind to Walter this time.

Joe Ellenberg and Jens Thompson caught the evening passenger west Tuesday by taking chances on being pulled for speeding, and went to the vicinity of Chadron for a car or two of shoats. That extra mile round to get into town from the south just now was what they had forgotten to allow for when figuring on making the train.

Mrs. Sam Temple, who has been living at Lincoln for a number of years, making a home for those of the family in the schools there much of the time, came the first of the week to join Mr. Temple in a home here. They have moved into the Mrs. Auker house just vacated by Horace Theobald and family, who are this week taking possession of their new home on Douglas street.

Rogers, from Lusk, Wyoming, and Mrs. J. T. Case, from Merville, Iowa, have also been with her at the home place, and one of the ladies is yet there, Mrs. Case, however returned home last week. Mrs. Van Norman reports that Fred is well, and that the crop condition around Windom is excellent.

At last-base ball, the great national game, has gotten so rotten that it has broken out—and now what place is there left for a true sport? If he wants to gamble on the board, the deal is fixed; if he wants to wager on a horse race the jockey has been bribed; and should he want to be a sport when attending a ball game he may be playing for a "sucker" by one who knows just how the game is fixed. Gambling is mostly rotten, in what ever form it appear. The Democrat was once offered a sure thing on base ball betting. That is, the fellow who knew after the game closed how it was, would wire the result and let us bet on a sure thing, to be decided when the evening paper came an hour or two later. We never accepted the generous offer of a chance to rob our neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Jacobs came home Friday from near Portland, Maine, where they spent the summer months among friends and scenes of their younger days. Mr. Jacobs tells us that human nature is much the same east or west, and that it takes all kinds of people to make a community. He saw people working for great wages and some saving and others spending as fast as Saturday night came. It was his opinion that prices were falling in many lines. One big cotton factory, it was reported were to cut prices one-third the first of this month; but they were not going to cut wages any at present at least, and as one workman said, they did not need to, for they had made many millions during and since the war. They had a very pleasing summer, and both himself and wife came home on good health.

Concerning Prices

Prices in some lines of goods have gone down. We are marking our prices down to correspond. We are not waiting to buy the lower priced goods before we reduce the selling price to you but are making the cut right now on the goods we have in stock.

You can depend on us for the rock bottom price on any goods you need to buy—we will not be undersold by any concern anywhere.

What Goods Are Getting Cheaper

Merchandise made of silk, cotton and wool have been priced downwards. Articles in which the material is the principal cost are reduced the most; articles in which labor is the greatest cost do not show so great a reduction. For instance the cost of muslins, calicoes, percales, shirtings and gingham is mostly in the materials and prices have gone down considerable; on the other hand the cost of shoes, dresses waists etc. is mostly in the making and prices are not much lower because labor still demands the same high wages.

The new prices are thought to be as low as can be expected for a long time and we believe we can all go ahead now and buy our needs in winter goods with a feeling that we are at the bottom of the market.

You can depend on us to sell you your needs in good, quality Dry Goods, Shoes and Groceries as cheap as they can be bought anywhere.

Ahern's

ONE OF OUR CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES ANSWERS

(Marie Weekes)

Congressman Evans addressed three questions to me during his address here recently. Although not in the city at that time and hearing of these questions only through a couple of men who attended, I will try to answer them. Up to date, Mr. Evans has not answered any of the questions I put to him. Why?

Mr. Evans wanted to know if I were elected, if I would take orders from anyone outside of Nebraska. No, Mr. Evans, I would feel that I had fulfilled my duty when I had faithfully represented the people of my district and my state. Owing nothing to the Wall street owners of the railroads, I could and would vote gladly for the repeal of the Esch-Cummins law and its guaranteed return of 5 1/2 percent on the "aggregate value" of the roads. Having never received any political support from the National Security League I am free to tell the people that it is backed by the Morgans, Duponts and the rest of the international war makers and profiteers. Are you equally independent in this matter, Mr. Evans? Will you tell us about the question you answered two years ago which was issued by that infamous Security League? Will you tell us why you wanted to see the farmers engaged in co-operative enterprises prosecuted under the anti-trust laws? Will you tell us why you were so willing to vote for the anti-strike clause in the Esch-Cummins bill?

Mr. Evans wants to know if I would vote for the Plumb plan. I favor public ownership of the railroads, Mr. Evans, and the Plumb plan seems to me a much more fair and satisfactory settlement of the railroad problem than the Esch-Cummins law which you voted for.

Mr. Evans wants to know if I believe in the soviet form of government. Frankly, Mr. Evans, I did not know that the Russian politics had any part in this third district camaign, but if you are really seeking information I am glad to tell you that if the Russian people want soviet government, I favor their having just that thing. The soviet to the Russian is what the home is to the American. The soviet represents the group. Russian thought goes by groups, not by individuals as in America. Russia is made up of thousands of small villages. These villages live, think and work in groups. The soviet represents the group. Oh, yes, Mr. Evans, I favor the soviet form of government for Russia but I am opposed to the Wall street soviet and its grip of monopoly on all the necessities of life for Americans—a grip that can never be broken until the Esch-Cummins law and its attendant excessive tolls on the producers and consumers are wiped away. You voted for that Esch-Cummins act, Mr. Evans, and I am not surprised that you prefer to discuss Russian politics than to explain that vote to your constituency.

GETTING AT SOURCE OF WARS

From the Independent News

There is a persistent contention in some quarters that the League of Nations is a guarantor of war rather than an insurer of peace. Let us try to see how it would work. It has been said, and seems probable, that if the League of Nations had been in existence Germany would not have dared to go to war. But we may go further back than that. The trouble out of which the horror grew began, as may be remembered—though many seem to have forgotten it—with a quarrel between Serbia and Austria-Hungary. Sir Edward Grey, as he then was, labored assiduously to bring about arbitration, and the question when finally sifted down was one peculiarly fit to be arbitrated. What would have happened if there had been a league?

The process would have been simple enough. Serbia would have laid her case before it, expressed her willingness to arbitrate, and bound herself to accept the award. The league would then have asked Austria-Hungary to come into court, and if she had refused, she would have subjected herself to all the penalties laid down in the league covenant, and the whole world would have been arrayed against her. Facing this situation, even the German government would have refused to back up Austria-Hungary, much less incite her to war. There would have been arbitration of the original dispute. And as a result not one "American boy" would have been sent abroad to fight. Without the league 2,000,000 of our boys were sent, and many thousands of them who sleep in foreign graves, because there was no League of Nations, would today be alive.

WHAT WAYNE MISSED

Capt. Oswald Ryan, of Indiana, who is traveling around the country at so much per, and helping to deplete the republican $15,000,000 campaign fund, had the distinction of opening the g. o. p. campaign at Pender Friday night. The best asset the speaker possesses is the title of "Captain." As a campaign speaker he is a light weight. He complains about expenses of the war. That is a complaint heard after all wars—and if the league of nations is "scrapped" we will hear it again. The captain is fearful regarding the league of nations and is afraid we will lose our sovereignty. Well, such republicans as former President Taft, Mr. Root, Mr. Wickersham, and scores of others who have some exceptional good ideas on international law, don't agree with the Captain. He brought in the old fake contention that our boys might be sent to Southern Europe. No sane man believes that because the American representatives in the league would object, and the congress of the United States wouldn't stand for it. About 70 people listened to the Captain earn his share of the $15,000,000 campaign fund—Pender Times.

And the Captain failed to get his dates and hour of service on straight as to Wayne, and the above is to tell what we missed.

GET THE MONEY

So many people say that they would not give $18 or any other sum to join a political party, and accuse those soliciting membership on that basis of being grafters or parasites. Yet here is a bit of testimony brought out in the senatorial investigation of the republican campaign fund methods, and it shows that the republican money gatherers are not working for fun, and that when a man contributes to their fund, a part of his donation goes to pay the fellow liberally for asking him for the sum contributed. "Mr. Frederick Courtenay Barber, one of Chairman Hays' money diggers, testified before the Senate investigation in Chicago, referring to his contract with the Republican National Committee: "I make contracts with my clients to raise a given amount at a certain time for a definite fee. In this instance I have taken the very reduced compensation of $600 a week and expenses."

If $31,200 a year and expenses is "very reduced compensation," what is un-reduced compensation to a Republican money digger?"

II

More people own automobiles today than ever thought of owning a horse and buggy in the old days.

That's because the cost of motoring has been brought within reach of the average citizen's pocketbook.

We look upon it as part of our job to keep it there. If it weren't for the trade of the man with the medium priced car there wouldn't be much in this tire business for us.

III

The less a man has to spend on motoring, the more important it is that his tires should be of first quality.

Any tire is not good enough for the small car owner. He wants a tire that will give him just as much for his money in the small size as the big car man gets for his money in the large size.

IV

In thinking over what kind of tires we would represent in this community we tried to put ourselves in the place of the car owner. And we believe we hit it exactly when we selected U. S. Tires.

The Hour of Atonement

By PERCIVAL DEANE

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Fate had dealt Warren Dale an unfriendly blow and the effects of the same lingered to harrow and discourage. Just past his majority; he had left his native village for a busy, bustling county seat with a thousand dollars he had carefully saved. His thought had been to start in business in a limited way, but he soon found that amount of capital insufficient.

By mischance he got acquainted with a genial, friendly-looking young man who called himself Martin Bearce, and who was a stock salesman for a concern promoting an oil company. Bearce soon succeeded in persuading Dale that he could get him some of the stock at a bargain price, guaranteed its resale within sixty days at a profit of fully 100 per cent, and Dale handed out the money and took a temporary job in a fruit store, awaiting the promised riches.

One morning the newspaper contained an account of the failure of the oil company and the disappearance of its exploiters. The suave, fascinating stock salesman was a hoodoo long remembered by Dale with emotions of bitterness and resentment, but as time went on he tried to take his loss less severely, although his bright, ambitious dreams were dissipated. He plodded on indifferently for a year and then returned to Arden, got his old position and settled down to a humdrum existence, persuaded that the gifts of fortune were not for him.

Then came compensation. During his absence a young lady named Norma Layton had come to Arden and had become an employee in its one millinery establishment. What attracted Dale to her was her subdued, almost sorrowful nature, somewhat in accordance with his own. It was apparent that she had known trouble. At the home she found with an old widow lady she acted reserved and serious, as though seeking its loneliness to hide from the world at large.

Dale got acquainted with Miss Layton and their relations were friendly and pleasant. She never alluded to her past and Dale suppressed his one business experiment. He had saved quite a sum of money and was assured of permanency of employment.

"I shall never find a woman more suited to me temperamentally," he soliloquized, "and she seems to be glad when I come to see her. Dare I tell her that I love her?"

Once under the influence of love and its promptings every impulse was toward learning his fate. It was a lovely summer evening when he reached the cottage home of Mrs. Willis, to be informed that Miss Layton was somewhere in the garden, and Dale went thither in quest of her.

He heard voices among some dense shrubbery. The tones of Norma were clearly recognizable and Dale started as he caught the echoes of the voice of a man. It, too, caused him to thrill, conjecture and utter a subdued exclamation.

"Martin Bearce!" he breathed, and then he uttered a groan. The man had gathered Norma in his arms and kissed her. He handed her some papers. She clung to him for a moment in a frenzied way. Then as he leaped the fence and disappeared, Norma went toward the house and Dale could see tears in her eyes and hear her low sobs.

His heart was crushed, a cruel destiny seemed to pursue him relentlessly. The same person who had robbed him of his little means had now purloined his sweetheart, for what could be the meaning of those kisses and caresses except that they were lovers? For a few moments hatred and jealousy rankled in the soul of Dale and spurred him on to pursue and apprehend the swindling Bearce. Then, comprehending that to injure him, unworthy as he was, might crush Norma, he bowed his head and tried to subdue the sorrow and despair that had overwhelmed him.

The next morning Dale learned that Miss Layton had resigned her position at the millinery shop and was about to leave Arden. He himself could not confine himself to his working duty that day, distracted with the events of the evening previous. He wandered about the village aimlessly until afternoon, and was seated in its little park gloomily meditating, when the seat beside him was suddenly filled and Norma, pale and trembling, extended an envelope.

"This is yours, Mr. Dale," she said simply. "It contains with interest the money Martin Bearce got from you two years ago. Spare me the humiliation and grief of going into his remissness in detail. He has repented his acts while a tool for clever swindlers, and last evening brought me the money he has made by hard work to repay all those he induced to invest in the oil company."

"But why do you appear as his intermediary?" questioned the amazed Dale. "Because he is my brother," came the low-toned response. "I am going away."

"Then I will follow you, if the path leads to the ends of the earth!" exclaimed Dale spontaneously. "I came last evening to tell you how I loved you."

"No, no—my brother—"
"Is fortunate in having a sister, the memory of whose great goodness probably turned him from his wayward course. My darling, we will not forget him, for he has atoned, but for rest from your sorrow come to me—to me, who will give you all of a life's devotion."

DESERT HERO KNOWN TO FEW

Dog That, With Its Master, Was Savior of Many Lives, Well Cared For in Its Old Age.

Rufus, the dog hero of the desert, who has saved many lives, is ending his declining days in a dog sanatorium at Pasadena, Cal., where he is well cared for. The end of the dog is not far off, says Our Dumb Animals in a recent issue. He is spent and feeble after his many long and weary journeys over the burning and blinding sands with his pioneer master. He will no doubt soon fall asleep.

Lou Westcott Beck and Rufus were intrepid pioneers in a life-saving project that received scanty support and tardy recognition. Together they fared forth on their mission of mercy, Beck carrying signboards and cans of paint, Rufus laden with saddlebags of restoratives and poison antidote. While the man set up the guideposts, or painted the water signs, the dog succored many a prospector who otherwise would have died miserably from delirium of thirst or the venom of snake bites.

The work of these two great benefactors is over. Beck died in July, 1917, and since then the government has appropriated one hundred thousand dollars to carry on the project that he and his devoted dog started.

Rufus will be well provided for by a veterinarian who was a personal friend of Beck's. The old dog's years of hardships, of life-saving service on the desolate wastes, are not without their reward. His many friends who used to see him on the streets and pat him with approval as he started out on his desert trips will not forget him in his old age.

ENCOURAGE BIRDS TO NEST

Only Through Them Can the Many Insect Pests Be Kept Within the Bounds of Safety.

Of all the ways of ridding our gardens, parks and farms of the insect pests that destroy fruit, grain, and even trees, none is so effective as the encouragement of birds. Most birds are naturally insect eaters, and it is really amazing to count the number of beetles, bugs, caterpillars and grubs that a small bird will devour in a day.

Andre Godard, a French naturalist, remarks in a recent number of La Nature (Paris) that agricultural plagues invariably follow the disappearance of birds, and he notes that the forests of Hungary were saved by the placing of many artificial nests to attract the feathered enemies of the grubs that were destroying the trees.

It is true that a few birds eat fruit and grain, but even these prefer insects, and it is probably true in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred that the bird which seems to be eating the fruit is really pecking at an insect inside it.

Many Film Pictures Per Second.

Taking motion pictures at the rate of some 15,000 a second with a camera and lens, is the recent achievement of a French scientist. High-speed photography is not new, but heretofore has depended upon electric-spark shadows, without lenses, and lacking sufficient illumination for clear definition. The mechanism of the camera consists of an aluminum reel, electrically driven at 3,000 r. p. m. and winding film at 164 feet a second. At this rate pictures 2 inches high are made about 10,000 times a second, larger and smaller surfaces being exposed at respectively slower and faster speeds, says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine in an article carrying a full-page illustration.

The illuminant is a stream of high-tension electric sparks with a frequency of about 80,000 a second, produced at the focal point of a concave reflector, and kept from flaming by a current of air.

Nippon Honors Her Soldiers.

On a hill near Port Arthur, China, there looms a grand memorial tower, and just back of it are buried, in unmarked trenches, the bodies of 22,000 of the bravest soldiers of Nippon, says the Detroit Free Press. It is a shrine for every loyal Japanese. On the side of another hill he buried all that is mortal of 15,000 Russians, and there also a monument has been reared. These were the men who died during the siege of Port Arthur, which commenced 15 years ago and continued for almost a year. Although Port Arthur was given back to China by the Japanese it remains for all practical purposes a stronghold of Nippon, and it is today more Japanese in character than Chinese, and is likely to remain so unless Japan is forced to relinquish the city by another war.

William Jason Knows.

William Jason Tucker, four-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. E. T. Tucker of Columbus, was out riding with his parents and sister Sunday night, and an unusually large number of fireflies were seen along the country roads. His sister, age six, asked what caused the light in the fireflies. While her mother was trying to explain, William Jason remarked scornfully: "Why, Emily Margaret, anybody ought to know that. It's because they have headlights in their stomachs." Indianapolis News.

By GENEVIEVE ULMER

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Why, Nellie, you are a confirmed window shopper! Here I have my arms full of bundles, and outside of a spool of thread you have not bought a single thing."

"Because the spool of thread was all I needed," replied Mrs. Nellie Wharton cheerily.

Elsie Brandt, her married sister, looked thoughtful and unsatisfied. She had come to the city from the home of her husband and mother at Cleston, visiting Nellie for the first time since her marriage. Elsie had been somewhat disappointed to find the bride of a year living in a cheap, modest three-room flat, palpably economical-in-household outlay, her husband a traveling salesman from home most of the time, and, although she had joined her guest in making the rounds of the stores and had looked at and admired the contents of the display windows, Nellie had made one insignificant purchase.

"And look at the dream of a skirt, Nellie!" enthused Elsie. "Marked low, too. Why don't you buy it? Your dress looks positively shabby and I do believe it is one you had before the wedding."

"That is true, Elsie," responded Nellie, "but it will have to do for a spell yet. You see, Ronald and I are living on a settled basis of expenditure, and I have to be careful."

When Elsie Brandt went home she aired her suppressed grievances fully. Nellie had not told her much about her own domestic affairs, appeared happy as a lark, but Elsie was impressed with the idea that Ronald was either a poor provider or earning very little money.

"I declare! about all Nellie has is the commonest dress goods, but I noticed in a wardrobe some fancy shirts of her husband that must have cost a lot."

"Calico wife, silk husband, eh?" suggested her mother.

"Come to think of it, I fancy you have hit the nail on the head," observed Elsie's husband. "I happened across Ronald Wharton in Belleville last week. He was rolling by in a de luxe automobile in charge of a liveried chauffeur. Dressed up to the nines. Actually he was a sort of fashion-plate—a pink of perfection as to attire and make-up. I won't say foppish, Ronald is tasteful and knows how to wear good clothes, but doesn't stint himself, that is sure."

Uncommunicative Nellie might have enlightened her carping relatives had she been present. The fact was that her husband was following a rather particular line of business calling for neatness, precision and effect. He was no poseur, but he appreciated and valued the influence of personal impressions. Ronald was traveling for a publishing concern putting out high class sets of books, and catered only to families of fashion and wealth. Whenever he made a town, as the saying is, he followed selected social leaders. His immaculate attire and naturally gentlemanly ways won recognition.

Just after he married Nellie the business house he had been with for many years removed to distant headquarters and he looked about for a new connection.

"It means putting a thousand miles between ourselves and your family folk," he told Nellie, "if I go with them. To break into a new line will be experimental, but I believe I have an offer worth working out."

He told Nellie all about the book selling proposition. It would take about all the ready cash he had to equip himself rightly and stand traveling expenses for 60 days ahead. The commissions tendered were very generous, and if he met with any pretentious measure of success there was an assurance of an income treble that he had received in his old position.

Heart and soul wise, prudent, calculating Nellie entered into the proposition of the hour. She scaled down household expenses to a narrow minimum. She declared she was outfitted completely as to attire for a full year ahead. If sister Elsie had been with Nellie when she assisted her husband in getting ready for the road, she would have been fairly appalled. Handsome of face and well built, brisk of manner and naturally graceful of poise, her adorable better half indeed knew how to wear good clothes, and Nellie insisted on his providing himself with the very best.

It was six months after her first visit to the city that Elsie wrote her sister that both she and her mother had arranged to spend a week with her.

"I have made over two of my old gowns," Elsie told her mother. "They will fill in some of the dreariness of Nellie's wardrobe."
"Yes, poor child! and I am going to cheer her up with a present of fifty dollars for a winter coat," added Mrs. Dubois.

Ronald was at home in a new and larger flat when the visitors arrived, spruce, jolly, delightfully habited as usual, which Mrs. Dubois secretly resented until Nellie burst into the room to welcome her.

Elsie stared at the marvel of elegance and luxury. The reward of economy, sacrifice and patience had come richly to those two, and when the story of the same came out Elsie realized that there was no further need of Nellie continuing to be "a window shopper!"

SOCIAL NOTES

A Reception to Teachers.
One of the very happy social events of the week was held at the opera house Saturday afternoon, when the members of the Woman's club gave a reception for the college and public school teachers, giving those who are new in Wayne, as well as those who have remained with us, an assurance of hearty support and co-operation in their work.

Autumn leaves and flowers made of the room a pretty place, and the occasion reflected much credit upon the committee in charge, and the spirit of fraternity exhibited should be an incentive for the army of teachers to do their best work for the community. The following ladies were in charge, Mesdames C. W. Hiscox, Huse, H. B. Craven, Perry, Philbo, D. J. Cavanaugh, Phillips, Welch, and Bollen. Misses Faith Philbo, Edith Huse and Bessie Hiscox assisted the committee in serving the refreshments consisting of tea and cakes.

The program consisted of an address of welcome by Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis, president of the organization; piano solo, Mrs. Jas. Miller; two musical readings by Mrs. Lutgen, accompanied by Mrs. Beaman; a vocal solo by Mrs. T. T. Jones, accompanied by Mrs. Miller; violin solo by Mary House, accompanied by Mrs. House.

It is the purpose of the club to make the reception of teachers an annual affair of the organization, and it certainly is a very happy thing for those who come strangers to our city to be given a hearty welcome and an opportunity to become acquainted with the people of the community they have elected to serve for at least one school year.

The Monday Club held its first meeting of the year October 4th at the home of Mrs. Welch, when the Talk about California—the editor was out in his berry patch this morning picking fine ripe strawberries for breakfast. And still there are more coming on, developing perfect berries. Why go to Florida?

Will Haywood and about 90 other I. W. W. fellows lost in their appeal, and must go to prison. When a fellow can't clear himself with all the chances offered in this country, he is certainly entitled to a place in prison.

With print paper more than four times the price of three years ago, it is not possible to extend subscription credit long, and if each one will fill out the above blank they may know how much to remit without taking their time to come to the office, or our time to send a statement or collector.

If possible to do so, we prefer to retain the subscription price at $1.50 per year, but if paper prices do not come down we shall have to advance the price with the new year. But on this plan, those who respond now may secure the $1.50 rate until January 1, 1922—fifteen months in advance of this date. Kindly give this a moment attention now, and if in your opinion, the record is not correct, and we think there is one or two not carrying the proper credit, speak up your voice.

Respectfully yours,
Gardner & Wade
