ENGULF DEMOCRATS

Returns From All Parts of Country Show Great Reversal of Sentiment

WE YIELD TO THE VERDICT

Election reports began to arrive at Wayne shortly after the polls closed Tuesday evening, and they all had the same trend—pointing toward a republican victory in no uncertain manner. We have the unofficial returns for this county for inspection, that you may know how your neighbors voted, and thus have a sample of what was going on over most of the rest of the country. Below we give briefly the results recorded to date, and each day seems to bring new territory to the republican camp. They are to have complete domination over the national and many state governments as soon as the time comes for those elected to be inducted into office.

Republicans claim a gain of no less than 16 in the senate.

The lower house of congress will have a possible majority of 100.

But few democrats are elected to seats in either branch of the state legislature of Nebraska.

Every Nebraska congressional district will be represented by a republican in Washington. Our one senator will be the only representative who have in democratic side of the combined Nebraska delegation at Washington.

Governor McKelvie is re-elected; but his vote is about 30,000 less than that of the presidential candidate. Morehead is defeated by about 20,000, according to late claims. Candidate Wray is coming along about 35,000 behind Morehead.

Congressman Evans is re-elected, and Candidates Rice and Weekes are running near even for second place.

Otto Ulrich is the winning candidate for a seat in the state senate from this district, which adds one more to their republican majority.

Matzen is leading in fight for state superintendent.

Morrissey was re-elected supreme justice.

George A. Day wins for supreme judge.

Judges Welch and Allen are reported winners in this judicial district.

The primary is to stay in Nebraska, according to referendum returns.

Champ Clark was defeated as congressman from Missouri.

Both sides are claiming victory in North Dakota, but the republican, which is the nonpartisan, seem to make the stoutest claim.

To sum it up briefly the republicans have most everything in sight, and to the victors will belong the spoils and also will come the responsibilities.

The public certainly should not and does not fail to appreciate the efficiency of the election boards of this county and our doubly efficient County Clerk, Chas. W. Reynolds, in getting most complete and accurate returns to the public. Within two hours after the polls closed, Clerk Reynolds had a report on every precinct, which is practically correct. The official canvass may make a few corrections, but nothing that will change a result.

McEACHEN HOG SALE

Below we give a list of the purchasers and prices paid at the Geo. McEachen hog sale last Saturday, and it was a bargain day for the breeders and farmers who attended; for to purchase young boars and gilts of a herd that produces 34,000 boars near related to those of this offering at the prices paid give the purchaser opportunity to grow splendid individuals by proper mating and good care. Such a sale is a distinctive benefit to the community, for it infuses the best of blood into the farm herds, at a very nominal cost, and one may almost consider Mr. McEachen a benefactor to the farmer. A GREAT DRESS SALE

Lady readers will be glad to learn of the great dress offering to be made by Mrs. Jeffries, who has a buyer Friday and Saturday of this week in New York City seeing that she gets a share of the good bargains, which are being offered there during these days. A shipment of 300 dresses are due to arrive here for these two days. These are real $35 to $40 values, but they will come so that $25 will pay for a choice of most any dress in the offering. We are not assured that these low prices will continue, said the lady, but we are sure we have this consignment at a price that will spell a saving over a short time ago.

I am also making a special 20 percent discount of all lines in stock, just at the season, and want the people to get advantage of the saving.

I also am receiving a nice little bunch of tricotlet and tricotline dresses, made to sell at $40 to $45 each, which go on sale these days at the $25 price. Remember that it is Mrs. Jeffries who is putting this opportunity for saving before the ladies of this community.—It.

RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP

DRIVE AT WAYNE

Tuesday was the day fixed upon by these in charge of the membership drive for the Red Cross, and it was decided to have a member of the committee at each polling place in the city during the voting hours and give all who desired a membership an opportunity to join. Mrs. E. W. Huse, as county president had charge of the work, and was ably assisted by Mr. Lackey, who selected volunteers to do gaud duty an hour at a time, or until their successor arrived. Mrs. Lackey wished to express her appreciation of the generous aid given by other members, and also by the public.

The result by wards is First ward $88; Second ward $80; third ward, $122, making a total of $290 and that number of members. The drive for the remainder of the county was not made, as we understand it, and some one or more in each precinct should be interested to take the matter in charge and see that those who desire may join for the coming year.

Next week is the time officially designated for the drive and much publicity matter, has been sent out for the use of newspapers willing to aid, but for some reason no release has been received at this office at least for its publication—nor have we seen much of it in our exchanges, an indication that we are not the only ones. We also received a bunch of advertising proofs with an invitation to ask the business men of Wayne to contribute to publicity, which we did not do. We are willing to aid in our humble way to the cause, but we do not want to ask our merchants to put up good money to us, to induce their patrons to give. The Red Cross is a great and good organization and all are glad that its stress of work is now much less than during the war; but the organization should be kept alive and prosperous, for it may be needed at any time—cyclone, earthquake, an epidemic, great railroad wrecks and fires may make special work for it at any time.

THE FARMER

Those who believe much good (or any) can come out of the board of trade manipulation of farm prices have another guess to take.

You may accept the word of the United States secretary of agriculture as the opinion of a man, who, having made farming and farm prices his life study, is qualified to speak upon the subject.

"Whenever a business man does anything toward making the agriculture of his section more profitable to the farmer," says Meredith, "he does something which will help his own business, because there is not in the United States any business center that could continue to prosper independently of the farming communities surrounding it."

By the same token: If one takes the profit out of production on the farms he hurts his own business.

You cannot expect the farmer to buy liberally of your shoes, machines, clothing, if you make it impossible for him to grow food at a profit.

In other words, you can't squeeze all the profit out of the farmer's products this fall and expect to sell him any of your goods next winter. It can't be done.

Saturday is another opportunity for farmer and breeder to purchase young Duroc boars, when Fred Sandahl puts a bunch of forty fine young animals up at the Wayne pavilion. His stock is good in breeding and individually, as many of the readers know. If you want a good top for your Duroc herd, come and look at his offering Saturday.

It is a splendid time to make a start in pure bred swine, if you are not now in the game. No farmer can get too much pure bred stock—not too good stuff to be the most profitable, compared with inferior bred animals.

He does not say what the articles were; but they were used for food. Compared with last week fourteen articles advanced in price; thirty declined and thirty-two remained unchanged. The advance was slight and was mostly on farm products, in fact, except tin all were from the farm.

THE CLIMAX OF LIVE STOCK SHOWS

Now that the State Fair circuit has been completed and the live stock shows of lesser magnitude announced for the current season have terminated with success in every instance, the industry is preparing for the greatest event of the year—the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago during the first week of December. After such a successful display season of domestic animal life in every section of the United States, magnitude and interest are assured at this event.

The live stock industry is now recuperating after the stress of war period depletion all over the world, the international character of the Chicago event giving it trans-Atlantic and antipodean importance. An unusually large representation is promised by Great Britain, France, Italy, Canada, Argentina, Australia and other countries—all potential markets for purebred cattle, hogs and sheep produced in the United States. Feeding problems will be elucidated and the new feature inaugurated last year under the auspices of the Chicago Board of Trade—a grain and hay exhibit—will be on a vastly greater scale. All the breeds will be represented in the arena, the entire aggregation constituting the greatest assemblage of pure-bred live stock ever assembled for competitive purposes.

Novelties have been provided for the evening entertainment, which has always been a popular feature of the Exposition.

PROSPERITY

Gibson Gardner, author of "A New Robinson Crusoe," just published, visits a mythical island village. He sees homes of the inhabitants and—

"In every home I entered I beheld great numbers of children, and, indeed, other evidences of prosperity."

Do you get that? "Other evidences of prosperity?" Is that the way you look upon children, especially upon the children of others?

What, pray, is prosperity if it isn't the possession of something you hold dear?

Those who translate prosperity in terms of dollars, mansions, automobiles, acres, stocks and bonds, may be right. To them that is prosperity.

But those who translate it in terms of children are right too. And who, save the crabbed bachelor, the greedy miser, the envious glutton will refuse to admit that these human evidences of prosperity are the best of all? Further, this prosperity is not only the stepping-stone to heaven for those now living, but is the very foundation stone to posterity.

SPIRITUAL SIDE OF AGRICULTURE

There is mystery, profound and unfathomable, in the soil and its processes. This is the anchor that will hold men in their devotion and service to it, as the mystery and grandeur of creation hold men in devotion and service to the Great Author. Men find in modern agriculture a challenge to great learning ability, and skill of high order. The soil is the Mecca of their desire, a desire that is soul fed.

The soil, the earth, is holy. It is the cradle in which God rocks His children, soothed and comforted by the music of created things—a thousand -living birds, rushing, tumbling streams, rustling leaves, and the countless contributions of members of Nature's choir that swell their voices into a world chorus, grand and harmonious.—Ex.

MUCH RANCH STOCK ENROLLED IN BETTER-SIRES CAMPAIGN

In the Western range states all kinds of sires—bulls especially—are receiving scrutiny by live-stock owners. There is increasing evidence that good purebred males have wide influence on the quality of young stock and on the returns from stock-raising operations.

One day recently the United States Department of Agriculture enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement several ranchmen, each of whom had more than 1,000 head of live stock. One flock of sheep contained 250 purebred ewes and 3,450 crossbred ewes, the sires being all purebred. A cattle raiser who enrolled in the campaign the same day notified the department: "I have disposed of two grade Hereford bulls recently, having decided to run nothing but purebred sires." This remark is typical of the progress of the movement in Montana.

FIRST, BE GOOD NEIGHBORS

A dozen Minnesota towns are to be the experimental lots in the inauguration of a significant movement for community services.

In other words, the field, which up to this time has generally been confined to service to agriculture, is to be enlarged and the community as a whole given helpful leadership. To aid the individual in his difficulties will be merely incidental, for the real aim is to aid the community in developing a broader outlook and in doing bigger things for itself—in a word, to make the town and its environs a better place to live in.

There is a great opportunity in this work to do big things. That it will be resultful can be confidently expected, for the enterprise is to go forward with the co-operation of a number of thoroughly equipped state agencies with the University of Minnesota taking the chief responsibility. This is dependable leadership for the university in previous experiments has successfully tested the methods which now are to be tried out on a larger scope.

Communities have their maladies; intelligently directed community service will help powerfully in curing them. In one place it may be poor schools, in another bad roads or inadequate marketing facilities. Or it may be a more deeply rooted trouble such as narrow business jealousies or a total want of the get-together spirit. In every town, at that, a preponderant majority deprecates the things that hold it back and if approached in the right way will co-operate in doing the things that will help it to go forward.

The cultivation of community team work is the first and really the most essential help that the projected service will undertake. It is nothing less than guiding the community to know itself. It is in short, promoting neighborliness. When people are good neighbors in broader sense of that term, they have made their community capable of the kind of development along other lines that is worth while.

GOLDEN IS WINNER OF O'NEILL GOLF HONORS

O'Neill, Nebraska, October 27.—J. P. Golden, of O'Neill, added another to his large collection of trophies Sunday by defeating James A. Donohoe for the championship of the O'Neill Golf club, six up, in a thirty-six hole contest. Golden's lead was obtained on the first nine holes and his opponent never was able to overcome it. This is the first time that Golden, who has held the north Nebraska and the Holt county championship, ever has won the O'Neill championship. The match was the final one of the late summer golf tournament, after which the sixteen low scores, contested for the championship.

ENGINEER CONKLIN, DEAD.
KNOWN IN WAYNE COUNTY

Of the great wreck on the Burlington road near Stanton, Iowa, Monday morning in which Engineer Conklin was one who lost his life the account of the tragedy says:

Engineer Conklin's hand was still upon the throttle of his engine when his body was reached in the mass of wreckage of his engine. He is given credit by railroad men and others who were at the scene of the wreck, for proving a real hero and undoubtedly saved the lives of many of the passengers on No. 1. He had set the brakes and died almost the next instant.

The wreck is remarkable in some respects. The three trains were together almost the same instant. Hardly had No. 10 hit the extra freight in the rear, than No. 1, westbound, came along. There was but one car in the path of No. 1, a heavily loaded wheat car which had been thrown over on the westbound track by the impact of No. 10 and the freight. This car was thrown 150 feet and near it was found the body of the unknown man who had been riding the rods of No. 1.

Engineer Kindall's unfamiliarity with the block system on this division is said to have been responsible for the wreck. It is said he passed two boards and one flag. One baggage car and two passenger coaches were burned and all the baggage and express matter destroyed. That no passengers were killed is remarkable. The freight was backing down when it was hit by No. 10.

A quarter of a century ago, Engineer Charles Conklin was a visitor in Wayne county, if not a resident here, for he had won the love of a Wayne county girl, Miss Annie McGuire, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire, of Wakefield, but at that time farmers of Leslie precinct. They were married at Pleasant Valley church, May 26th, 1895, Rev. D. W. McGregor, recently pastor at Wayne, at that time was in charge at this church, performed the ceremony. The wife and one son, a lad of about fourteen years survive him. The funeral and burial will be at Red Oak, Iowa, their former home, Friday, and Mr. and Mrs. McGuire went Wednesday to be with their daughter during these sad hours, tho' Mrs. McGuire is not in the best of health and was not advised to go by her doctor.

It was a very peculiar wreck, a freight and two fast passenger trains trying to occupy the same space at the same time. Trains Nos. 1 and 10 on the Burlington are fast trains carrying from 14 to 17 coaches each as usual trains, and to have such an accident, burn a number of coaches and escape with the loss of but three lives; and practically no one of the thousand others even seriously injured is remarkable. No doubt much of this credit is due to the fact that Engineer Conklin did his full duty.

FORMER NEBRASKAN DEAD
West Point, October 30.—The death is announced of Emiel Heller, former clerk of the district court of Cuming county and one of the pioneer settlers of this vicinity. Mr. Heller was sixty-two years old. For the past twenty-eight years he has been a resident on the Pacific coast, his death occurring at Arcadia, California. He is survived by his widow and three children. Mr. Heller was the brother of former County Surveyor and City Engineer, G. A. Heller.

Mr. Heller was well known by many in this place, and only a few weeks ago he was visiting here, and seemed to feel that his health was much improved.

The members of St. Mary's Guild meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Gaertner for a social time. Today being the forty-ninth anniversary of their marriage the parish planned a little surprise for Mr. and Mrs. Gaertner. A luncheon will be served at 6 o'clock. The men will be present and will present them with a large flashlight.

REPORT OF WAYNE COUNTY PUPILS AT STATE FAIR

(From Wayne County Teacher)

Following are the reports of the two boys, Art Anderson, of District 74, living near Hoskins, and Charles Jiranek, of District 23, southwest of Wayne, who attended the Boys' Encampment at the State Fair in September.

I enjoyed my trip to Lincoln very much and wouldn't mind going again. I enjoyed the trip because I saw so many things and did a little of everything.

Dear Miss Sewell:—

At 6:30 o'clock in the morning we had to have our tents cleaned and straightened up ready for inspection. At 7:00 o'clock we went to the mess hall and had breakfast. After breakfast we all lined up to wash our dishes and put them away. At 8:00 o'clock we went to the Lecture hall. Each morning we had four lectures. By the time all four lectures were over it would be about 10:30 o'clock.

By eleven o'clock we had to be ready for dinner. After we had washed our dishes we had about an hour's time to play volley ball. At one o'clock we had to be over at the grandstand to watch the show or go somewhere else on the fair grounds. At five o'clock we returned to camp for supper. After we had put away our dishes we had about two hours of spare time. During that time we played volley ball. By seven o'clock we had to be at the grandstand to watch a lecture. By nine or nine thirty o'clock we had to be back at camp for a camp fire. While the fire was burning we would have a lecture. After the fire was over we could go up to the grounds if we wished or could go to bed. We had to be in bed by eleven o'clock. This was our daily routine.

One afternoon half of us went on an excursion. The people of the International Truck Company took us in two trucks. That afternoon we saw the State Penitentiary. They took us through and we saw all the prisoners. Some were working and some were members of a band. When we were on the way to camp we drove past the Orphan's Home. Coming from the prison we went out to the State Farm. There they had experiment stations of all kinds. We saw the work shops, the blacksmith shops, where the boys are taught to do blacksmithing and to make things out of wood. Then we went to the place where all makes of tractors are tested by pulling on different things, as another tractor or a separator.

Between the tractor they are testing and the one that is being pulled they have a certain kind of a meter, which tells the pulling strength in horse power.

We went through another building appointed January, 1920, to fill vacancy.

ificate. Your vote is earnestly solicited. Election November 2, 1920. where the boys are taught to be auto mechanics. There they have engines from all makes of autos that the boys are to take apart and put back together.

By this time it was four o'clock. Then we went through the Y. M. C. A. building. There they showed us the swimming pool and all the apparatus they had. By the time they had shown us the Y. M. C. A. building it was time to go to camp to get supper. After supper we did as usual.

One forenoon they took us on another excursion, this time on the fair grounds, where we saw all kinds of tractors and threshing machines.

The last building we went through on the fair grounds was the building where they were showing fruits, vegetables, cooking, school work, and art work. By the time we were through the whole building it was time to go get our dinner. After dinner we went to the grandstand to usher.

The second day of the fair they had horse races and auto races. They had five races. They were as follows: Two Essex cars, one Monroe, one Chevrolet, the other one I couldn't see what make it was. When they were racing, the one I didn't know the name of had an accident. While they were on the five mile race on a half mile track, this car began to skid on the sixth round. The driver lost control of it and ran through the fence. His car threw him away over the fence. I didn't see what became of his car because it had raised too much dust. One of the Essex cars had the front wheel almost broken. I didn't see how it happened, but I think it ran into the one that had started to skid. After that they had several more races and the two Essex cars took most of the prizes.

On the same afternoon a man named Harry McLaughlin, the world's greatest stunt aviator, did all kinds of stunts on and between two aeroplanes. He could climb from one plane to the other while they were going at full speed. One plane had a rope ladder hanging from the axle of the wheels. He would get out on the upper wing of the lower plane and wait until the other plane with the ladder attached to it was right above him. He took hold of the ladder and swung himself from the lower plane and was on the upper one. In order to get back on the other one he would climb to the bottom of the ladder and wait until the lower plane was directly beneath him. The space between him and the lower plane was about fifteen or twenty feet. He then let go of the ladder and dropped to the lower one. He crawled out on the tail and stood up. He could hang from the plane by his toes and again by his knees. He had a mouth piece hanging from the ladder. This stunt aviator could hang from the ladder by his teeth. He walked between the wings as if they were made of wood.

Some places of interest that I visited were: The State Penitentiary, the building where all kinds of auto's were shown, the exhibition of tractors and threshing machines, the State Farm, and the building where all kinds of vegetables, fruits, cooking and grains were shown.

I feel that I derived a great deal of benefit from the trip, as I saw the southern part of the state, how level it was, and saw everything that is raised in the state of Nebraska. We saw all the shows and fireworks that we wanted to see for the next four years, besides we saw all the shows and races for nothing. All that cost us anything was our board, other incidental expenses and the shows belonging to the Carnival Company. I am thankful that I had the opportunity of going because I saw everything I wanted to see.

My brother, Emmett, asked me how it was and I told him it was worth a gusher until about three o'clock. Then I was for and so he wants me to tell you that he would like to go next year, if he could. Some other boy can have my place of going next year and get to see what I saw. If you cannot get anyone else to go in my place, I wouldn't mind going again. I will close this letter for this time wishing you good luck and best wishes.

Yours Respectfully,

Art Anderson.

Second Letter:—

The State Fair of Lincoln was very prosperous this year, had a good attendance from all over the State of Nebraska and also from many other states, whom Nebraskans gave a hearty welcome.

This was my first year to attend the State Fair, and all was new to me. There were two young men chosen from each county, by the county superintendent. The State paid all of our expenses except our board and this was nothing compared to what we learned while there. All of the counties could not get boys, as some thought that they might have a hard time. But this was not the case, the boys went down there to learn and be the boys ahead. We stayed there five days and got to see everything; the three-ring circuses, automobile races, horse races and all of the state's exhibits. We had four lectures every day except Monday, we had three. After the end of the lecture any boy could ask any questions he wanted on the subject. The men that talked were men from large departments, as men from the University State Farm, Lincoln Auto and Tractor School, and also Governor McKelvie, who gave us boys a fine talk. We also had camp fire talks and songs, these were fine also, if not spoken too late in the evening. The other lectures were, as follows:

Some days we had to usher at the grand stand while other times the International Harvester people gave us a ride over the city in their trucks. We visited the University, State Farm and the State Penitentiary. The State Penitentiary surely has a splendid band.

Andy Anderson, who was from the Y. M. C. A., of Lincoln, was our physical instructor. He surely was a jolly fellow. We had exercise before breakfast, which enlarged our appetites. He also taught us boys some songs, as: Beautiful Ohio, Mickie, In Old Indiana, and many other latest songs. Also some that were very comical.

Our camp was located on the west side of the entrance to the State Fair. It is located at this place every year. There were some one hundred and fifty six boys in this camp. There were twelve bunks or tents, each having the same number of boys. Our bunk, which was No. twelve, won the volley ball game of the twelve bunks, and this got credit for the volley ball champions of the boy's encampment in 1920.

McLaughlin the daring aeroplane acrobat was also very interesting. One afternoon, when he was at his darling stunts the planes collided, which resulted in broken wheels of one.

Art and Machinery took most of my interest and I can say that I learned more about them than I expected. The farm animals were also very interesting.

I am very much pleased to say that I am satisfied with what I carried away from the State Fair in those five days. I wouldn't mind going next year again.

When the parting day came I was wishing I could stay there another week.

Another item I almost forgot was the acquaintance with head men of large concerns.

OUTLINE IN CIVICS FOR WAYNE COUNTY SCHOOLS

By Professor J. G. W. Lewis.

The work in civics in the rural schools should be correlated as closely as possible with U. S. history. Most history texts have the United States Constitution in the back of the book and some, especially Montgomery's, have the Constitution well outlined and supplied with notes. Hardly any other work in civics will be found more profitable in the long run, than study of the Constitution itself.

It is suggested therefore that the United States Constitution and the Nebraska Constitution be studied as a beginning of the civics work and that they be kept constantly in mind during the year.

1. Constitutions and Constitution Making.

1. Review the history of the making of the United States Constitution.

2. Outline briefly but carefully the Constitution of the United States using the topics as indicated in Montgomery's history. Note how many main articles and their titles, how many amendments and what each is about. Have the pupil study the outline much and commit to memory some of the main parts of the Constitution.

3. When the pupil meets some important event in history that pertains to government, let him see what part of the Constitution it refers to. Make a note of it on the outline of the Constitution. It may be necessary to enlarge and make over the outline several times, it will do the pupil good. For example: Suppose the pupil reads about the "tariff", this belongs under the power of congress "to lay and collect taxes." Look for such topics every day.

4. Get a copy of the new Constitution of Nebraska as amended recently. Outline it briefly and watch for current events to illustrate the main parts.

II. Systematic Study of State Examination Questions both Teachers' and Eighth Grade Lists.

1. Let each pupil send 15 cents to the Jones Book Store, Wayne, Nebraska, for a copy of Civics Questions prepared by me from state examination lists.

2. Try to have each pupil ready to answer one hundred of the questions from the above lists as indicated below.

Section I, Numbers 1, 3, 4, 5 and 7. Section II, Numbers 1, 2, 4, 5, 8, 10 and 12.

Section III, Numbers 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11 and 12.

Section IV, A, Numbers 1, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 13, 17, 19, 20, 21 and 23.

B, Numbers 1, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 12 and 14.

C, Numbers 1, 3, 6, 8 and 10.

D, Numbers 4, 5 and 6.

E, Numbers 1, 2 and 5.

Section V, A, Numbers 1, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, 10, 12, 14, 15 and 17.

B, Numbers 4, 5, 10, 12, 15 and 18.

Section VI, Numbers 4, 7 and 9.

Section VII, Numbers 1, 3, 7 and 8.

Section VIII, Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, 9 and 13.

Section IX, Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 13.

Section X, All of the questions.

Section XI, Numbers 2 and 5.

Section XII, Numbers 2, 3 and 4.

Magruder's Civics, Published by Allyn & Bacon, Chicago, Illinois, is probably as good a text book for the teachers as any they can get.

"A PEBBLE IN THE STREAM"

(From The Goldenrod)

It is during that period of relaxation following the noon hour when those who can spare the time and energy have already wended their way down that familiar line in search of the materialistic sustenance which is necessary to everyday life. The halls are deserted. Students loiter here and there over the campus and nobody seems to be going anywhere in particular. From somewhere floats what might be strains of beautiful harmonies, as though a myriad of soloists were vying with each other. Sunshine was never brighter, and an atmosphere of peace and contentment is prevalent on the "hill".

In the library, as elsewhere, everything is quiet and restful. Perhaps here and there may be seen an individual studiously bent or idly browsing through the magazines and newspapers. The attendant is maintaining an ever watchful eye over all that happens within her domain. Suddenly the door opens, admitting a glimpse of the beautiful world of doors, plus two individuals who limberly approach the desk and engage in low tones, endeavoring to make known their presence to the attendant. At this point a door to the rear opens, and with the possible idea that here may be newly arrived students in quest of textbooks, and to be in keeping with the general air of hospitality so well known to every one on the "hill", another figure appears and advances to a position slightly to the rear of the desk. Simultaneously, the most distinguished of the newcomers sidesteps, a la Chaplin, to a position wherefrom he may engage himself in casually glancing over the headlines of the morning newspapers while his comrade maintains the position of "aristocracy" and proceeds to defy all the rules of order peculiar to this particular sanctum. He seats himself upon the floor, scratches his ear, yawns, and makes himself generally comfortable, while a whispered conference takes place behind the desk. At this moment, a door somewhere slams violently, and the individual resting upon the floor, manifests his resentment of the shock to his auditory system by giving vent to his injured feelings in a series of wild barks and howls!

The atmosphere is tense; rising temperature is noted; horror and astonishment are apparent in every countenance. After one frightened glance at the Powers Behind the Throne, the aforesaid spokesman of the invaders, beckons frantically to his companion, and together, in the confusion, they make their exit. A bell in the distance rings, magazines and newspapers are hastily replaced; books are gathered together; there is a sound scraping chairs, slight(?) shuffling of feet; the outside door again opens and closes and once more all is quiet in the library. Nothing remains but a memory of the nocturnal "social call" of the Dog and His Master.

SCOURING RUSHES

The histology class is preparing material for slides with which to study the structure of the scouring rush, or horse-tail, an abundance of specimens having been found by Professor Petersen on a recent trip to the Elkhorn River near Pilger.

These plants, like the ferns, have two entirely different forms,—the one coming from spores being quite unlike the one which produced the spores. They, in turn, produce egg cells, which, when fertilized, produce the spore-bearing plant again. Most of the specimens found had already produced others of the spore-bearing kind.

Though the scouring rush is common and produces an abundance of spores, the sporelings develop under very favorable conditions only, and while difficult to grow in cultures, they are seldom found growing naturally.

BURNING BRIDGES

(Des Moines Register, Republican)

Nothing is more interesting to study than the spirit in which men stand for things. Unfortunately the proponents of good causes are so often mealy mouthed and timid, while those who are going the wrong way are bold and challenging.

What could better illustrate the situation than the present attitude of Taft and Lowell of the old league to enforce peace, and Borah and Johnson of the Irreconcilables. Taft and Lowell toured the country in a spectacular way when everybody seemed to be for American intervention to keep the world in order. But where are they now that the acid test has come?

In his last speech Borah, after denouncing any and all international cooperation, said:

"From his eighteen months in the senate, Senator Harding knows my views. If he accepts them then we are in perfect accord."

In what spirit will that be met by the men who for four years have been urging that we do something? Will they also burn their bridges? Or will they begin to hem and haw and then politely step out of the way?

When the debate began everybody was for the league, but we wanted to safeguard a few points in our interest here at home—that is everybody but Borah, Reed and Johnson. Borah and Reed are Irishmen and, if we are not mistaken, Johnson also. Borah and Reed and Johnson by burning their bridges and fighting as though they meant it have so changed things about that now everybody apologizes if he says he is for any league of any sort.

What has become of that mighty band of sentiment-makers that traveled the whole United States and held great conferences? Where are they now that the real test has come, when the cause needs fighters? Tom Paine spoke in his day of "sunshine" patriots. We have in our common speech "fair-weather" advocates.

At least this is to be said for Borah, Reed and Johnson—they fight as though they meant it, and they fight when the fighting is to be done. These three men may alone turn the whole United States away from the greatest thing that has ever come to the American people to do.

HEALTH DRIVES PROVE SUCCESS

Red Cross Centers Are Teaching Public How to Keep in Condition.

Realizing the importance of combating and preventing diseases this winter, the American Red Cross Health centers are centering their efforts on health campaigns in the various states of the central division.

The health center is of even greater service to the well than the sick, for by means of health education it prevents diseases and conducts its health campaigns to meet local needs. A Red Cross health center may be only a room with a volunteer or paid lay worker in charge, yet it can be a most important factor in the prevention of diseases and the promotion of health in the community. The health center work has advanced so rapidly during the last year it now is a part of the civic welfare organization in the majority of towns.

For the coming health campaigns in the states, particular attention is being paid to the small community and to the outlying districts. The influence of the chapter's headquarters is being considerably increased or extended throughout the county by the establishment of small branch health centers in the more remote sections.

Volunteers Aid Work.

In most cases these branch centers are being placed entirely under volunteer management and the exhibits, demonstrations, lectures and the like of the main health service are being repeated at each of the branches.

In reports from many chapters it is found that the health center director is resourceful to the extent that she does not wait until people call individually at the health center for information. She will stimulate constant demand for health information and provoke inquiry. In this way she reaches many who otherwise would be neglected. In still other counties where trained workers are not available at this time, some women have stepped in and organized the work and carried it on until they have received assistance.

The Red Cross health center is governed by business principles, applies business methods, and, in its more simple form, can be established and conducted by lay people.

Uses Business Methods.

It proceeds upon the demonstrated fact that health is a commodity that can be bought and sold like brooms and soap. Therefore, it establishes itself in a storeroom in the principal business section of the community. It displays its goods in the form of attractive health exhibits in its show windows. It advertises constantly, and extensively. And it uses every business and social device to attract customers.

The Red Cross health center is of service to the sick in that it obtains reliable and complete information about existing clinics, hospitals, sanatoria and other institutions for the sick and the defective; about available nurses, both trained and practical; about when to consult a physician and why to shun the quack and his nostrums.

The central division has thirty-three health centers in operation. Many of them also conduct medical clinics, but the one chief, outstanding feature of the American Red Cross health center is its health education service which teaches well people to keep well.

RED CROSS ALWAYS READY IN DISASTER

The Red Cross is always prepared. When disaster hits a community this organization can be depended upon to follow right at its heels with help for the stricken people.

Red Cross relief is always forthcoming—food, clothing, shelter and funds; doctors, nurses and special workers with long experience in handling similar. No matter what the disaster may be—fire, flood, earthquake, explosion, bad wreck or tornado—the Red Cross is always able to cope with the situation.

During the last year there was an average of four disasters a month in the United States. One hundred and fifty communities in twenty-seven states suffered. The largest and most destructive of these were the tidal wave at Corpus Christi, Tex., and tornadoes in Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

In these events of horror, 850 persons were killed, 1,500 were injured, 18,000 were made homeless, about 80,000 families needed help, the property loss was nearly $100,000,000 and almost $1,000,000 in relief funds, not including emergency supplies, was expended.

To the sufferers from all disasters during the year the American Red Cross sent $120,000 worth of supplies, 110 Red Cross nurses and seven special relief trains. To meet the needs of the stricken, the organization set up ten relief stations, operated thirty food canteens and as many emergency hospitals. One hundred and twenty-five Red Cross chapters gave disaster relief service.

If disaster ever strikes this town or county, the citizens can be absolutely sure the Red Cross will be on hand to help them in every way.

RED CROSS HELPS FORMER SOLDIERS

Many Thousands Are Given Aid Since Leaving Uncle Sam's Service.

When the millions of youths who composed America's war-time army checked in their packs, fingered their discharge fondly and hustled away from camp to return to the joys of civilian pursuit, many of them thought the American Red Cross had ceased to be an important function in their lives.

It had furnished them with entertainment and other enjoyment and aid while in camp, but the great majority had never felt the need of the Red Cross before entering the service and they reasoned they would not need its assistance now that they were out of it again.

Since that time many thousands have learned to know otherwise. The Red Cross was their friend in the service and they naturally turned to it when trouble and complications beset them in civilian life.

Nearly a Million Aided.

Through the Home Service Section, which has taken up the task of caring for the soldier and sailors after they leave the service, and their families and dependents, nearly a million men have been given assistance of various kinds. This consists principally of financial aid, finding jobs, obtaining back pay, allotments and compensation.

The states in the central division are beginning to realize some idea of the volume of information work being carried on by the Civilian Relief, a part of the Home Service department. From 1,500 to 2,000 cases are handled from each state almost every month.

The Red Cross does not confine its activities to service men only. It also takes care of his family. In a little town in Nebraska recently a certain soldier stationed at the Alcatraz barracks for discipline was granted clemency and his term reduced. But he had become so dependent that he threatened to take his life.

Found Family Destitute.

The Red Cross investigated the condition of his family and found they were in destitute circumstances and that his mother was ill. Moreover, it was found that he had been absent without leave to go to her. Upon presentation of the facts in the case the sentence was commuted and the Red Cross is helping the family to get on its feet.

The fact that all the returned bodies of dead soldiers are given a military funeral may be partly attributed to the Civilian Relief bureau. While the organization does not attend to the funeral directly, it gives instructions through the American Legion and where the family is financially unable to take care of the matter, the Red Cross comes to the assistance and offers relief.

Public health hospitals are filled with ex-soldiers whom the Civilian Relief service is taking care of. A large percentage of these are suffering with tuberculosis and shell shock.

Helps Get Compensation.

Great service has been rendered by the Red Cross in mental cases in identifying those who have appeared in state hospitals for the insane, and helping them secure compensation due from the Bureau of War Risk Insurance.

In the federal board's various offices in the central division, the Red Cross worker, acting with the Home Service section, makes necessary loans to the men, arranges suitable living conditions, helps collect evidence and supply facts to the board, assists in "appealing cases" and settles various personal difficulties for the men. The workers also follow up and aid all men who discontinue training.

PERSHING'S TRIBUTE TO THE RED CROSS

"It gives me real pleasure to pledge my hearty support to the American Red Cross. While the opportunity for its greatest service comes during times of war, and its achievements during the late World war have been unparalleled, yet there is and perhaps there always will be a vital need for the humanitarian work which it renders.

"The present and former service men can never forget the Red Cross, not only for what it did for them during the war, but for what it is doing now in the army camps and posts and wherever needed in assisting the ex-service men throughout the country. The value of the American Red Cross as a peace time organization can hardly be over-estimated, and we owe it our loyal support and active cooperation.

"JOHN J. PERSHING, General.

FIRST AID WORK IS BEING PUSHED

Two phases of the Red Cross work that are being pushed under the peace program of the organization are first aid and life saving—two principals with which every person should have at least the fundamentals, for there is no tellings at what time they will prove of vital need.

In the central division, in particular, is this work being carried on extensively and intensively. More chapters have taken up this line of work and the number of schools which have adopted courses in first aid is increasing with considerable rapidity.

During the last few months the Bureau of first aid has been instrumental in introducing courses in the normal schools in each of the states, with the result that several hundred teachers now are prepared to act as instructors. In several instances enough interest has been aroused in the normal schools to have work continued throughout the year.

Swimming Activities Grow.

Swimming activities have been exceptionally well carried on, particularly at Muskegon, Mich., where, under the auspices of the Chicago chapter, more than 400 boys were taught swimming, life saving and elementary first aid under expert instructors.

Ludington, Mich., also employed a permanent teacher for swimming and life saving and reports excellent attendance in the classes. Many applications have been received from chapters throughout the division for the use of a swimming teacher, but, unfortunately, up to the present time there have not been enough teachers to meet the demands.

Milwaukee Chapter Busy.

Milwaukee chapter has carried on an exceptionally active campaign, both in first aid and life saving work, and reports a large number of graduates. This chapter also has pushed the advanced work in the instruction of first aid and has pupils at present awaiting their medals, which have been issued to them from Washington.

Many private institutions which have no connection whatever with the Red Cross have been ordering first aid supplies through the division office. These institutions undoubtedly, in a very short time, will be brought under the jurisdiction of the Red Cross chapters.

SIMS EXPRESSES WARM TRIBUTE TO RED CROSS

"Government officials can make no expenditures, even for the relief of suffering and in aid of our disabled heroes, in the many urgent cases that have not been foreseen and provided for by law; and often the necessarily cumbersome machinery of government departments renders prompt action difficult if not impossible.

"The Red Cross can and will perform these essential services promptly and efficiently to the extent rendered possible by public support. It has demonstrated its efficiency both in the great war and in peace, and deserves the support of all who have the health and welfare of our people at heart.

"WILLIAM S. SIMS, "Admiral."

RED CROSS HELPS SOLDIERS IN CAMP

Life in any military or naval camp at present, especially in the hospitals, would be considerably dull were it not for the Red Cross. It is the same ever-helping Red Cross these veterans, sick or well, find serving them, now, even though two whole years have elapsed since the war ended.

One of the principal features of its work is the entertainments it arranges. Each night in every theater or hut in camp, a movie show is given, with a full vaudeville show as an added attraction at least once a week.

In the hospital wards where the patients are too ill to leave their beds, these shows are staged here for them. The convalescent houses and huts of the Red Cross are the enlisted men's clubhouse. In them are held not only the shows, but frequent parties as well, just as was done when most of America's young manhood was frequenting such places. Excursion trips for the wounded, too, are furnished by the Red Cross. Athletic equipment of almost every description can be had at every camp for the asking.

The work of the Military Relief service in the Central Division at present is confined to the five camps in this section—Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Camp Grant, Ill.; Ft. Des Moines, Ia.; Camp Custer, Mich., and Ft. Sheridan, Ill.

Thousands of the wounded, sick and well soldiers and sailors in these camps swear by the Red Cross—not any more stanchly, however, than the many other thousands still in the service and the millions who have left it. They have the Red Cross to thank for many pleasant hours and attentions they would not enjoy had the organization demobilized its army of military workers and let the memory of the men still in the hospitals and camps slip from its mind.

Health is the second blessing that we mortals are capable of—a blessing that money can not buy.—Isaak Walton.

THE PARABLE OF THE GREAT NOISE

(From the Goldenrod)

And a great host came unto East to make happy the one married man in that place whose wife was separated from him from the first unto the seventh day of each week. And he was very lonesome. The procession moved along as one man, in as joyous a phalanx as the one which entered Rome on that far-famed day when Pompey had conquered the pirates, but the conquered goods in this case were all the dust pans, collar buttons, "akes", suspenders and other musical instruments which West boasted.

And behold, when they came within sight of East, they broke rank in order that they might the more exuberantly deliver up all their pent-up enthusiasm unto the occupant of golden-haired fame. And lo, the thunder of their joy rose above the noise of the congested city and woke the inhabitants of a field not many miles hence. (And the city has since been called Wake-field.)

And the culprit they had travelled this whole block to make happy arose from his cot in desperation, for he had become immersed in a reference text entitled "How to make One Matrimonial Dollar Take the Place of Three." And he wished not to tear himself therefrom. But the tumult which raged without was greater than that which competed within, so he spoke unto them, saying:

"Oh, ye men of West, why come ye here at this hour?"

And they joyfully yelled, "Eats! Eats!"

And the Married One understood them not, but, after casting about for light, finally answered them:

"Oh, ye mean sustenance which is of the college type; I can satisfy ye all."

And they rudely curtailed his noble speech saying: "You tell 'em! You're on!"

And again he spoke unto them thus: "Travel ye, then, to the south until ye come to the place marked

"Gem" and moor ye your barks there until ye are satisfied."

And they went their way making merry and singing. And many jealous glances were cast upon them from behind the enshrouded windows of North, Kingsbury and Terrace. But they heeded them not. And behold, when they entered the gate at the Gem, the doorkeeper became afraid, for the hungry ones devoured all the frozen ozone and pastry which was there arrayed. And when they had unencumbered themselves of their great hunger the Married One went to the gate-keeper and delivered unto him all his gold, yea, much fine gold. And his disciples commended him with loud yells and nerve dissecting shrieks. But the purse of the Radiant One was slim for a fortnight after. And happiness dwelt among the West and East tribes that night.

WHY SHE CHANGED HER MIND

A young lady received a letter containing the precious questions in the Modern Novel course. She wiped her hands on her apron, her blue eyes shining expectantly, and flinging a stray lock back from her forehead, eagerly scanned the typewritten pages. "Maw, ain't it purty?" she cried out in glee. Maw hastily bade her daughter to "quit readin'" that there paper and git to work."

The following day brought "The Virginian." The girl fingered the pages lovingly and every spare moment when she was not sewing, baking, sweeping, or keeping company with her best beau, was spent in devouring the book. But even then, it took her fully two weeks to finish it. She next turped to the questions. "I can't see no sense to any of them questions except the one about why The Virginian and Molly couldn't get married. That's easy enough. I guess I'll answer it and nothin' else."

Her paper was duly mailed, with all rites and ceremony. It was, of course, a grammatical impossibility and all the other kinds of impossibilities from beginning to end, but in a few days came one of Doctor House's fatherly letters beginning with "My Dear Child". As she read it through, her eyes grew larger and larger and her heart beat faster and faster. "Maw, ain't this a grand letter?" That night the lamp burned until the "wee sma' hours", while a young girl bent a flushed face over a paper and ink-stained fingers moved a pen painstakingly. A dictionary that some enterprising agent had by some means sold to the head of the house lay open on the table.

Weeks and months went by. One night when "Best Beau" called he was startled by the excited voice of his girl saying, "I'm going to Wayne Normal next fall. Ain't I glad, glad, glad!" He left rather earlier than usual and muttered as he left, "I guess you be gittin' too high-falutin' for me." The girl did not care—she slept with her last letter, a statement of five hours credit, under her pillow.

CHAPEL EXERCISES

Friday: Because of Mr. Hunter's non-appearance at chapel Mr. Lackey led the singing.

Doctor House gave his definition of a prophet as one who bets on the future without putting up any money. Since he has nothing to lose, he assumed the character of oracle and made several prophesies, chief among which were these: The United States will enter the League; Harding will be elected president; we shall have a longer era of peace than we have had at any one time since the fall of the Roman Empire. All that now remains is to see whether or not time will see these prophesies fulfilled.

Monday: Miss Pierce said that the topic of her talk was "The Instability of Women in Politics." However, she did not cling very closely to this rather unpleasant topic, but talked about art in everyday life. The need for industrial training in America was emphasized. Among the great Nebraskans who have achieved fame in the world of sculpturing, painting and cartooning she cited Gutzon and Solon Borglum, Clara Briggs, Robert Gilder and Launton Parker. Her statement that "Art is not a frill to sew on the garment of utility" brought home to her audience the importance of art instruction in the public schools.

Wednesday: President Conn urged the need of preparation on the part of students in general for intelligent voting. Twenty-five percent of the men in the army were illiterates and they represented about one-fourth of the enfranchised population of our country at that time, he stated. We, as students, can do no less than to become informed and better educated in the science of government.

A TRUE INCIDENT

Edward is a curly headed little fellow of three and a half, but already has developed an amazing ability for losing himself. Neighbors and strangers alike are constantly accosted with the question, "Have you seen Edward?" Yesterday, as usual, he disappeared. When an exhaustive search failed to find him, the mother became frantic and neighbors were called in to help.

While on her way to an afternoon Kensington, a society lady heard of the lost child. Eager to tell the news, she entered her friend's house, but stopped on the threshold transfixed with astonishment. There in the center of the room was what appeared to be a whirling mass of chubby arms and legs which gradually emerged into a flushed, triumphant, small boy.

The lady snatched at the child. "What is your name, dear?" "What does your mother call you?" she asked. "Oh," said the child with a surprised air of indifference, "My mama always calls me home." "Then," said the lady, "you must be Edward."

"ARE YOU GAME?"

Have you e'er felt a tinge of revulsion, my friend, When someone remarked, "You're not game!" And then did you try to prove that you were And your truer motives main?

Has anyone ever asked you to break A rule, when you knew it was wrong? And what did you do? Did you firmly refuse Or move along with the throng?

Did you stay after "taps" and expect to find That your worth had suffered no more Than if you'd demurred and then refused To be led by Weakness' lore?

A class in Journalism has been added to the department of English at the Wayne State Normal this semester, which, under the instruction of Doctor House, is proving to be a decided success.

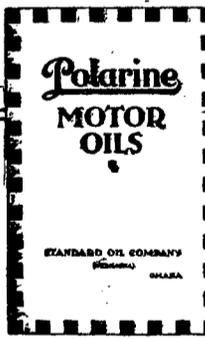

The purpose of the class is to acquire as much knowledge of journalism as possible, and to this end, the columns of the daily and weekly papers are scanned for new ideas in editorial and new material. Epigrammatic phrases, rhetorical devices and head lines are discussed and the relative value of news items commented upon.

The material for the "Goldenrod" is, in the main, prepared by this class, and an interesting project is also under way to supply material from the Normal to various local papers which will no doubt tend to increase the interest of local communitites in Northeast Nebraska's leading educational institution. The class, though small in number, is very enthusiastic and promises to achieve valuable results for the school.
