RAILROAD STRIKE CALLED —MAY BE Averted

Indications point strongly to a railroad strike of perhaps the greatest and most far-reaching effect of any labor disturbance that has ever come to America. It is indeed a serious situation, and the strong arm of government should be extended to prevent its culmination, in the interest of all the people. Do not understand this to mean that the brotherhoods are to be restrained more than the operators. In fact, from all the average reader can learn of the facts the operators are the aggressors. Not so much, perhaps, against the men they employ as against the public, which includes their employees.

It is, or should be the public's fight—the government's if you please. The act of 1920, creating the United States railroad labor board, was considered most constructive legislation. It seems to have collapsed. Under its rule, the wages of train men were increased about 22 per cent, and later under its rule these wages were reduced about 12 per cent. This was supposed to be followed by a reduction of freight and passenger rates. That has not come, but should be made effective. The operators are demanding another wage reduction, but when it is put squarely up to them by the labor board to make wage reduction conditioned upon immediate freight and passenger rate reduction, they flatly refuse. Thus do they defy the government and the men in their employ—and thus do they lose all claim for protection from the evils that will be sure to follow in the wake of a great railroad strike.

In our opinion, there should be no strike. The government should protect the railroad employees from wrongs by the operators, as it has tried to protect the roads from loss by granting them great concessions—which may have been an unwise thing to do. The government also has as its supreme duty the task of protecting the people of all classes from suffering from the evils bound to follow if the operators and trainmen and other railroad employees tie up the commerce of the world, at least so far as it relates to the citizens of this country. The government should learn what is just to all, and enforce justice.

The government having permitted a monopoly to be created by private capital is not in any manner obligated to insure that monopoly a dividend. Uncle Sam does not guarantee the farmer a profit. It does not assure the merchant any dividends. The railroads should not be immune from suffering a loss if they so manage their business as to invite disaster. The telephone companies and the express companies have asked and been granted rates that were intended to prevent loss—yet neither of these concerns are noted for recklessly dissipating their incomes for the pay of their employees. The telephone people have been asking increased rates with one side of their mouth, and with the other side offering to take the people's money for stock guaranteeing a nine percent dividend. The two do not go well together.

The forces back of the rail executives are not only refusing to treat with their employees, but are seeking to take from the people—the government—a billion of other dollars for the theoretical inefficiency of labor during the time the government was taking care of the roads during the war, and other shallow pretenses. The executives, obeying the policy of the rail directors, apparently invite open strife by such selfish tactics.

An exchange truly says:

A Moses is needed to lead men out of the wilderness of doubt, mistrust, greed and confusion. If the government offers the opportunity, the brotherhood leaders should give and take. To be sure, they have before them the example of leaders and organizers of trusts and combines of capital. But they should avoid the mistakes of the unscrupulous who brought upon themselves the Sherman anti-trust law, and other regulatory measures as well as the disfavor of the public.

The officers of the brotherhoods have great authority. Skillful use of this power means victory to their forces. Let patience guide their counsel. Today's newspapers announce that presidents of middle western railroads have cruelly rejected the proposal of the railroad labor board public group that freight rates be reduced immediately, as a possible means of averting a general rail-

FUNERAL SERVICES OF IRVAN B. LYONS AT LAUREL

On Friday evening October 14th the body of Irvan B. Lyons, who made the supreme sacrifice during the World War, arrived in Laurel, accompanied by military escort. Private Robert Hunt of Fort Crook, Omaha.

The Laurel Legionaires were present and escorted the body to the Legion Hall, where it lay in state awaiting final rites.

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 about one thousand people gathered at the M. E. church to pay final tribute to the departed one. It was the largest military funeral ever held in Laurel, more than one hundred exservice men being in attendance.

Relatives from a distance who attended were Miss Josie Kernen from Malvern, Iowa and John W. Thayer from Oakland, Iowa. The latter often met the deceased at Camp Cody during their military service there.

The church was appropriately decorated and several beautiful floral offerings were in evidence.

Rev. H. Bliss, the pastor, conducted the services, assisted by the choir. He gave a very able discourse using as a text John 17: 19, his subject being "For Others."

Rev. G. A. Both of Winnebago was elected president of the Nebraska Endeavor for the next year.

Mrs. Morris is president of this northeast district of the order. She says that the good things she saw and heard were well worth the time and expense of the week.

A LITTLE BARN BLAZE

Friday forenoon the firemen were called to the northwest part of town, a barn on the H. Isom place being in flames.

The structure was too much of a shell and the contents so combusible and the distance so great that the building and contents could not be saved, but the boys gave ample protection to adjoining buildings. The place is occupied by C. H. Peterson and family, and they lost a load of two of cobs and some coal and a few things that had been stored in the shed, but the total loss was small and we fail to learn whether or not it was insured.

The cause of the fire is a mystery.

It was first reported that a small boy and matches caused it, but that does not seem to have been, for the small boy in question was outside the barn watching an airplane that had been maneuvering about that part of the country, and the doors were all closed, and said doors were cumbrous for so small a lad to close.

But the same little fellow was in a dangerous position just the same. His mother, Mrs. Peterson fearing for the child ran to the barn, opened a door and was driven back by the flame, for she feared the boy might be with-

in. But he was soon found fast to a wire fence very near the barn, his clothes having caught so as to hold him there when he climbed up to see the bird man circle. His mother quickly released him, else this story would have been tragedy.

FREE MOVIE AT THE CRYSTAL

Through the generosity of manager E. E. Galley there will be no admission charged to see a good picture at the Crystal on Monday evening, Oct. 21st.

All who attend may give whatever they see fit for the relief of the starving in the Near East. The pictures on the screen will be the regular film and will not in any manner feature the situation in the affected lands.

strike; their answer being the statement that the unions want a strike "for the purpose of nullifying the transportation act creating the labor board." This has only a semblance of truth in it.

The suspicion that the rail executives, obeying the orders of their superiors, are trying to force a strike already is widespread. This sort of action tends to confirm it. The executives will hang themselves if the brotherhood chiefs avoid hasty action. Let them place their cases before the rail labor board and the public. Justice must prevail.

STATE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR MEET AT BEATRICE

Mrs. Ivor Morris of Carroll was a delegate to the state meeting of the Nebraska Christian Endeavor, which was held at Beatrice last week. She stopped at Omaha a day or two on the way home and saw some things of interest there. At Omaha she was privileged to attend a banquet attended by the Omaha C. E. Union, at which more than 250 plates were laid. The program in charge of the toastmaster was excellent, several national workers being among the speakers—some who had been at the state convention.

At the state convention, Mrs. Morris tells us that no better meeting of the state organization has been held. The theme of the work this all was "Building for Christ." Among the national workers who were present and helped make the program of much interest were C. C. Hamilton and C. P. Gates, both from Boston. Mr. Hamilton is field secretary of the United Christian Endeavor societies of America, and Mr. Gates is their general secretary.

D. G. Walker of Chicago was also one who helped make the meeting a success.

Rev. G. A. Both of Winnebago was elected president of the Nebraska Endeavor for the next year.

Mrs. Morris is president of this northeast district of the order. She says that the good things she saw and heard were well worth the time and expense of the week.

A PLAY HOUSE FOR WAYNE PEOPLE

A movement is well under way to make some decided improvement in the old opera house, which is now owned by the Woman's club. The plan as now about to commence includes laying a new floor, leveling the floor of the audience room, which now has fully one half set on an incline for simply seating purposes.

This will make a room which may be used for basketball and other indoor sports.

The high school team are anxiously waiting to use it for their games, of which they are to be no less than eight here during the season, if we understand the schedule properly.

Then a lot of the business men have learned to play during the summer months at the golf links, and they find that is good for them, and they are behind the movement that they may have a place for some recreation during winter months.

It is planned to change the entrance to the southwest corner now used as a ticket office. Next north of that will be a cloak room, and then a ladies rest room. These are to be so planned that a little later when the building is extended to the street, they may become a part of the auditorium room and the added space utilized for the cloak and rest room.

It will greatly improve the house for community uses of many kinds.

WOMAN'S CLUB MET

The Woman's Club held their regular meeting last Saturday in the Science building at the State Normal.

Prof. Chinm first demonstrated some principles that led up to recent investigations by Einstein, giving demonstrations showing that energy, in the form of heat, light, electricity,

etc. is transferred over an invisible medium, that it may be transferred without heating the medium that transfers it. Professor Britton gave an excellent paper on the Einstein theory of Relativity, which he shortened somewhat because of lack of time. We were told that the fourth dimension is time and that all four of the dimensions—direction, motion space and time are not real but are relative, and related to each other.

The ladies greatly enjoyed the de-mension and lecture, and a vote of thanks was given Professors Chinm and Britton.

Down in Mexico City they have issued an order exempting new buildings from taxation for a time, in order to encourage building. In this land we sock on the tax, and then wonder why people don't commit the offense of building and walk up to the treasurer and pay their annual fine. No wonder we hesitate to recognize the Mexican government as it is—some of us might want their good laws adopted.

We see a few corn huskers coming in these days—but many of them do not seem anxious to work at the 3-1 cent price offered and many farmers do not seem very keen to hire, especially at a higher price, fearing that they will take chances on being able to gather most of the crop themselves before time to plant again. At least that is the way one of the travelling huskers talked to us Monday morning. He had been out looking for work or at least looking to learn conditions as one finds them when bumping up against the real farmer who has corn in the field.

Rev. B. P. Richardson, formerly pastor of the Baptist church at this place but now pastor of the church of that faith at Hastings, came over from Norfolk Thursday afternoon to greet a few Wayne friends. He came to Norfolk to attend the state association meeting, and wanted to see what this good town looked like with its paved streets instead of the mud ones we thought good enough when he was here. He is loyal to his home town, and praises it as freely as a newspaper man does his home town. From other sources than our conversation with the preacher, we learn that his work there is effective and progressive. That he is liked as well by the citizens of the place as he seems to like his field. His ambition to be of service to the community appears to be as great now as it was when a pastor here. He has built a strong church at Hastings, and the Sunday school fills the house to overflowing. Hastings will have to compete with other and larger places if they hope to keep this pastor, for others are calling for him.

Chet Hunter was out from Sioux City Sunday and Monday, coming out to visit his brother Lon Hunter and have a bit of a visit with his nephew Captain Richard G. Hunter before he left for the Hawaiian Islands. Mr. Hunter also met many friends of other days, for he formerly lived here.

Miss Lillian Meyerhoff came Friday from Washington, D. C., where she has been employed by the government for two years in the war risk department. After a visit of a few days here with relatives and friends she will go to Omaha to continue her work with the government in the internal revenue department, says the Villisca, (Iowa) Review. Miss Meyerhoff has numerous Wayne friends who will be glad to hear that she is again in Nebraska. She spent part of one winter at Wayne before the war.

T. J. Knopp returned a week or ten days ago from a visit at his old home near Nodaway, Iowa, where he visited his brother-in-law, George Carpenter. The writer well knew Mr. Carpenter twenty years ago, more or less, when he was young in the poultry business—growing a fine bunch of purebred birds, marketing the eggs for breeding purposes at wholesale. We were glad to learn that he had succeeded in the business and is still growing purebred birds, and on a larger scale than in other years. We are glad for the sake of the old friend, and also because it is another evidence that the chicken will pay a dividend if given proper care.

Columbia Graphonolas at reduced prices now. G. A. Bohnert, Wayne. Some of the people from the towns along the M. & O. between Emerson and Omaha are making complaint before the railway commission against the discontinuance of trains Nos. 7 and 8 between those two points. The Omaha merchants object, and some other partons of the road in such towns as Blair and Tekamah. The railroad people brought figures to show that to maintain those trains was to incur a loss of practically $50,000 a year. Well, the road should give good service, and at a rate that will bring patronage enough to pay. If that cannot be done, at a reasonable rate, it is possible that the people of the community do not need the trains as badly as they imagine they do. Of course it was a great thing for the Omaha merchant, to give people all along the line a day in Omaha.

Luther Mason came from Tamworth, New Hampshire to visit for a time, and perhaps spend the winter here. His desire is to live in the west, but some business interests keep him in the east much of the time. He is making headquarters at Lon Hunter's, with whom he tells us he worked seven years. He reports that in his New Hampshire community they do not appear to feel the money stringency yet as they do here, and explained that they have not been dependent upon some one or two crops to market as in the west, and that if some of these crops are low makes the price to them a little less—but not so much he says, for there is the freight and the middleman to settle with. Corn meal at one time settled with. Corn meal he says, now sells there at $1.80 a 100 and flour $1.00 the barrel. Meal at one time was $5 per 100 when the corn was selling out here at about $1.60 the bushel. Of course about that time we were paying from four to six cents the pound at retail for meal—but we do not know what it sold at per 100 in quantity. He thinks dry goods and merchandise generally sells for less there than here—but one great difference lies in the fact that the people there as a rule do not try to produce from the farm for market so much as they try to provide for their own needs in these lines. Potatoes were a good crop with them this year, and one man raised 1,600 bushels, which is much for that community.

(Emerson Enterprise)
The good roads meeting called for Emerson by Wm. Kay of Wakefield, president of the Dixon county Good Roads association, for October 6, convened in the opera house with fully one hundred representatives from various sections of Dakota county, Wayne county and Dixon county, etc.

Mr. Kay called this meeting to order and after the minutes of the June meeting were read by the secretary, and approved, the object of the call was explained in a few brief words by President Kay. "To get better roads from Emerson to the Washington highway, through Dakota county."

The president also stated Emerson or himself were not favoring either Hubbard or Homer, what was wanted, is a maintained road through Dakota county. Several subjects pertaining to good roads were discussed.

The final action of the meeting was to appoint three persons from this section of Dakota county to meet with the county commissioners and see if there could not be some method of having the roads dragged. The chair appointed John M. Lissner as Chairman, Peter Kautz of Homer, and George Simmons.

The meeting then adjourned and repaired to the English Lutheran church where the ladies of the Aid served a three course banquet.

After the good things to eat had been disposed of Wm. Kay introduced Rev. Orr of Wakefield, who presided as toastmaster for the evening. Rev. Orr, if nothing else is a toastmaster second to none, his native Scotch wit being in evidence throughout the evening. Wm. Kay was called upon for a few remarks and the object of the organization was explained by him.

Judge Warner of Sioux City, after being introduced, took up the subject of good roads, and delivered a very interesting talk.

Mr. Adams of the Sioux City Chambers of Commerce was next invited to make a few remarks and he assured all patrons of the G. H. highway that Sioux City would be glad to co-operate with them in any manner that would be to the mutual benefit of Northeast Nebraska and Sioux City.

C. A. Kingsbury, county attorney of Dixon county, followed and expressed his views at some length. He claims that the taxation from automobiles, together with the general road taxes furnishes a large sum of money which ordinarily would be sufficient for the maintenance of the highways.

Attorney Davis of Wayne delivered a few remarks after which Fred Berry, who has always been a favorite in Emerson was introduced and took issue with Mr. Kingsbury in regard to government control.

The Enterprise is informed that a concentrated effort will be made in the future to build roads that will be of such nature that four and five ton trucks can be used at all times thus making it possible to not only compete with the railroads in transportation of live stock, grain, etc., but passenger traffic can be handled at a much lower figure than charged by rail road corporations. With the flying machine as carriers of mail and the automobile as carriers of commercial commodities the Enterprise predicts that within the next decade the majority of intersecting railroads throughout the United States will be abandoned and the right of way used to produce food-stuffs.

THURSTON HAS DISASTROUS BLAZE.

The town of Thurston was visited by a disastrous fire Tuesday morning of last week at about 1 o'clock, and the buildings of the Thurston State Bank, Gregory & Cooper hardware and implement, and the A. V. Swanson pool hall were completely destroyed. It is thought that the fire originated from a defective chimney in the pool hall.

When the fire was discovered it was under such headway that nothing could be done to save the building from burning, as Thurston is without adequate fire protection.

The loss is estimated at $18,000 by the Pender Republican.

How You Should Figure Your Oil Costs

Automotive engineers and garage men agree that improper lubrication causes 90% of all engine troubles. So when you figure oil costs, add practically all repair and overhauling costs to what you pay for oil.

Plenty of oil is important. So is replacing old oil with fresh oil. But no matter how much oil you use or how often you renew it, you can't prevent engine wear and tear unless the oil maintains correct body.

Polarine provides a cushioning film that protects against wear and keeps down friction-load. In the cylinders Polarine forms a gas-tight and fuel-tight seal that insures full compression and maximum power.

Polarine is made in four grades—light, medium heavy, heavy and extra heavy—but only one quality. Get the proper grade for your car next time by referring to Polarine chart at our Service Stations or dealers—and you will start cutting down motoring costs.

Now we hear that there is objections raised in Wisconsin, and perhaps other eastern states because of the high price of football admission tickets. Take off the tariff.

The K. K. K. is now trying to clear itself of the charge of trying to beat the government out of the income tax on $30,000,000, perhaps they think it is worth that much to Uncle Sam to have them aid in governing. If so they should file a counter-claim.

This is a hard world. The government has commenced suits to recover income tax from protesters who are said to have tried to evade the tax as long ago as 1915. And Uncle Sam is now trying to clear itself of the charge of trying to beat the government out of the income tax on $30,000,000, perhaps they think it is worth that much to Uncle Sam to have them aid in governing. If so they should file a counter-claim.

Where Your Tax Dollar Goes Biggest Slices Are for Past and Future Wars

From The Commoner

In an article in the current issue of the Credit Monthly, New York City, John Whyte, Ph. D., director Research Department National Association of Credit Men, calls attention to a chart which makes a startling presentation of governmental expenditures for the year 1920. This chart appeared in the current issue of the annuals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, over the name of Edward B. Rosa, Ph. D., Bureau of Standards, Washington. Mr. Whyte says:

"Business men everywhere are talking about the necessity of economy and are quite rightly calling upon the government to set an example. But apparently all of them do not appreciate the fact that if the strictest economy were practiced in the legislative executive and judicial departments and in the research and public work development of the federal government, there would be no appreciable difference in the burden of taxation. The item for research, education, development, etc., was $67,368,774 in 1920, about one per cent of the total expenditure. If suddenly congress were to abolish all research and educational work done by the Departments of Agriculture, Interior, Commerce, etc., the average taxpayer would not notice any difference in his tax burden."

"A study of the chart herewith shows expenditures can be cut where they will be felt in expenditures for the army and navy. The importance of this fact is receiving world-wide recognition and the government of all the countries are scrutinizing, as they have not done before this large item of government costs. It will be one of the chief themes for discussion in the conference on the limitation of armaments which President Harding, with such statesmenlike vision has called for November 11 at Washington."

This figure represents the total net expense for 1920 and in addition, the sum of $10,918,1723 which is the surplus of total net tax revenue or total net expenses applied to the reduction of the Public Debt. This item is included with the current expense items shown in the figure in order to show the disposition of the entire amount collected by taxation.

The percentage distribution of the expenditures is as follows:

| Primary Governmental Functions | Research, Education, Development | Public Works-New Construction | Army and Navy | Pensions (5.8), Interest (16.3), Debt Reduction (19.1), and Recent War Obligations (23.7) | Total |
| 15% | 15% | 15% | 15% | 15% | 100% |

There is perhaps one commendable thing to credit to the present administration, if the charge of Senator Elkins of West Virginia be true. They have been all too slow to change office holders to please the hungry fellows who have been in politics for the past eight years simply that they might get office. It is termed a political stringency that is as bad as the financial stringency from which most of us are suffering.

It is right proper to honor the soldier dead who gave so much to the cause of humanity—but it would be far more consistent to do so if we were giving proper recognition to those who took the chance of being a dead hero, but who are now in need of recognition and reward for their service. They should have died if they wanted homage due them.

It is now none too soon for every one who favors disarmament to stand up and say so loud and clear. Might say, as did our colonial fathers—no more tax for war preparation. The Democrat is ready to support men who are in favor of cutting out all tax for military and naval equipment. Of course President Harding don't seem to dare to say that much. He had better if he hopes to go back.

The presidents of a number of the middle-west roads are asserting that if the proposed strike takes place, it will be a strike against the government. Perhaps these presidents are ready to set up the claim that the railroads are the government. A lot of us have suspicioned that such was the case, but we hated to admit it. We may have to, since the road officials claim it.

The people are becoming really anxious about the strike situation. They may need to be. The latest reports indicate that the strike clouds show some indication of clearing. Perhaps they will. In fact, if such a strike cannot be lawfully averted congress should see that it may be legally done before they adjourn. Members of the great farm federations are now in the game seeking to avert a strike.

The civilized world felt outraged when Germany disregarded the rights of Belgium in order to fight France. It was this act which caused England to fight. The French army, fought over this neutral land, and its people suffered more than those of the contending armies, in many respects. The Belgium army was sent to resist invasion and swallowed up by the hosts of the contending Germans. So the great masses of the people of this country will feel toward the contending road operators and the men they are going into battle with. The rights of the people, upon whom both parties depend for support are to be invaded and trampled down as were the rights of an independent and neutral country when Germany elected to fight France. If we have government, now is the time when it should show its power to protect the people.

WHAT WOMEN WANT
The first Nebraska legislature elected by women's votes did not grasp the point of view of their women constituents. This fact appears from the discussions at the annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. at Columbus. The legislators had difficulty to understand or appreciate the demand of the women for legislation protecting childhood, as found in the proposals of the children's code. The women's point of view concerning

THE EMERGENCY TARIFF

Now is the time for western farmers to fix in their minds an enlightening experience with agriculture tariffs. They are reminded of it by the approaching expiration of the emergency tariff law. When congress met in the early spring, it will be remembered, it was represented that American agriculture could not survive unless congress came quickly to its rescue with a tariff on agriculture products. A general tariff law could not be enacted quickly enough to save the farmers, so an "emergency tariff" was enacted. The western farmers were saved from the ruinous competition of foreign corn and wheat and milk by tariffs on those products. In expectation of shortly afterward including these provisions in a permanent tariff act, congress limited this "emergency" act to six months. The six months are up, and a permanent tariff still in the dim future and congress must consider quick re-enactment of the emergency tariff in order to keep the farmers saved.

When the emergency tariff on wheat was enacted, wheat was selling in the local Nebraska market at about a dollar and a quarter a bushel. Corn was bringing close to fifty per cent higher than now. Wheat is now in the neighborhood of ninety cents. Corn is below a quarter for the old crop and below twenty cents in most Nebraska communities, for the new crop.

That's how the emergency tariff has saved the farmers. Under it farm prices have taken a most disastrous further fall. It has helped some farmers. The California lemon growers are enabled by it to charge the Nebraska farmer a little more for his lemons. But that doesn't greatly comfort Nebraska whose farm prices under present conditions are no more affected for the better by tariffs on corn and wheat than by cyclones in the moon.

Surely this experience will make the western farmers a little more immune to the kind of tariff pancombe they have been victim to in the past. As long as western farmers can be satisfied when they ask for bread, with the bread pills of emergency tariffs, so long they may expect to get the worst of it in the field of political-economic bargaining. If the farmers of the grain states were aware they would wire their congressmen—no, write them; a telegram to Washington costs about five bushels of corn—that the farmers of the west will consider the re-enactment of the "emergency" farmer tariff an insult to farmer intelligence, says the republican State Journal.

CLIMATE TO PLEASE

It having been demonstrated that climate is the great attraction of California, we have been trying to have our weather man give Nebraska a more agreeable climate for particular people during the fall months. Thus far the effort has been reasonably successful, not only at Wayne but thru the Missouri valley region generally. Our exchanges tell of apple trees in bloom, flowers blooming and all that. Near Allen the lilacs and snowball bushes are in bloom. Cannas in places remain untouched by frost. Beans, a most sensitive plant, have come thru untouched—for the editor and family partook of green beans from the home garden, gathered Thursday last. If it is climate that is wanted, why leave Wayne?

LOOK FOR WING AND LEG BAND ON DUCKS

Duck hunters in this region are asked to examine carefully all ducks they kill this season, for both wing and leg bands. Wing bands will be found on the right wing close to the body, and leg bands on the right leg. One thousand Saskatchewan ducks have been tagged for the purpose of ascertaining their migration routes to their winter home in the south. These bands bear the notation, "Manitoba Trading Co., St. Paul, Minn." Report the date of kills, variety of ducks and locality. It is expected that enough birds will be found bearing the marks to form a basis for some interesting data.

THE CAMELS.

"It always strikes folks as funny," said Sophia Camel, "that we look our best in the winter time and not in the summer time, when the zoo is filled with people and when so many come to ride us."

"But we don't care about our looks. We have our family ways. And one of our family ways is to molt our hair after the long winter is over."

"We can't change our ways to suit people, even if we would like to change them."

"We can't, indeed," said Sally Camel. "And though they may think it a pity we don't dress up in the summer time they will have to take us as they find us and be satisfied."

"That is so," said Sophia Camel.

"I've been giving so many rides today," said Sally. "Truly I didn't know there were so many children in the world as came to the zoo today. Out in the desert there weren't lots and lots of children as there are here."

"I never saw so many as I saw today," said Sophia. "Never in all my camel life."

"Well," said Sally, "perhaps we may have forgotten. We have been here other summers and there may have been as many children here, and we may have given as many rides, too."

"But of course we aren't so tremendously bright and so we may have forgotten."

"We aren't supposed to be so bright. And why should we make the effort when it isn't expected of us?"

"Why, indeed?" asked Sophia.

"Besides it would be a great effort to be very bright, a great, great effort, indeed," said Sally. "I'm sure it would take all of my time and attention if I tried to be bright."

"I wouldn't have the time for chewing that I now have, and I wouldn't be able to move my mouth from side to side as I do now."

"I enjoy chewing and moving my mouth from side to side. Those are harmless amusements."

"But if I had to make the effort of being bright, I'd have to think of being bright, and I'd not be able to spend all that time enjoying myself as I do now."

"Besides," Sally continued, "we do our work. We give rides to the children and they like it."

"We do our work, it is true," said Sophia.

"The other children would not care for us any more if we were any brighter," Sally continued.

"That is," she said, "they wouldn't care for us any more than they do now if we were any brighter. They like us as we are, and as we are, we will remain."

"It's too bad, perhaps, that we don't look our best in the summer time, but we can't help that."

"The children wouldn't like us if we knew geography and history and arithmetic."

"They're having their vacations now, and they are perfectly willing to forget about geography and history and arithmetic for the time being."

"They'd rather have us give them rides than do anything else. That is what they like to have us do."

"Of course," said Sophia, "and we shouldn't make any effort when it isn't expected of us and it wouldn't be appreciated, anyway."

"Well," said Sally, "I think I'll have a rest, for I've taken many children for rides today, and I feel like I need a good rest."

"So do I," said Sophia. "I feel like having a good rest, too. I most certainly feel like having a pleasant sleep."

"I hope you will have a pleasant sleep," said Sally, "and I trust your dreams will be pleasant camel dreams."

"I wish the same to you," said Sophia. "And I hope that you, too, will have pleasant dreams."

"Good night," said Sally Camel.

"Good night," said Sophia Camel.

"Sleep tight," said Sally Camel.

"Don't let the mosquitoes bite," said Sophia Camel, with a camel smile.

Wanted to Be Sure.

"Edwin, you greedy boy," said a mother to her small four-year-old son.

"You've eaten every cooky there was on the plate, and I told you to take but one."

"Yes, I know you did, mamma," re-piled the little fellow, "but there were three on the plate, and I didn't know which one you meant, so I just had to eat 'em all to be sure I'd get the right one."

TO FORE IN AERO INDUSTRY

Nebraska and Iowa May Become Center of Aviation.

Western Iowa and eastern Nebraska will in all probability become the center of the aviation industry in America as a direct result of the first International Aero Congress to be held in Omaha, November 3-5, 1921.

The manufacturers of aircraft, who have been generally located in the east and on the west coast, will be shown the wonderful possibilities of the middle west in aviation. Instead of the small fields of the east, they will see the landing possibilities of the big fields of Iowa and Nebraska.

FREAKS OF AIR AT CONGRESS

All Sorts of Creations to Be Exhibited at November Reunion of Aviators in Omaha.

All sorts of queer creations of the air will be on exhibit at the first International Aero Congress at Omaha, November 3-5, 1921, according to officials of the Aero Club of Omaha, who are in charge.

A. E. Bellor of Ogden, Utah, inventor of a type of dirigible with three cigar shaped bags, with motors at the sides, and a deck for passengers underneath, says his craft may be shown, according to word received by the club.

Another inventor from Montana plans to bring his plane, supposed to be the smallest made. It has a total wing spread of twelve feet, and is about the height of the inventor.

A new type of craft, capable of landing on water like a duck or on land, and which is supposed to make flying on America's waterways possible, may be shown if finished in time.

America has hundreds of inventors of air craft, some of them possible and many merely freaks. Visitors at the show will see some things that were only dreamed of a few years ago.

AIR MEET A REVELATION.

Spectacle Scheduled at Omaha, November 3-5 Greatest in U. S. History.

Those who attend the International Aero Congress at Omaha, November 3-5, will see one of the biggest air spectacles ever shown in this country. Next to the famous spectacle staged by the Royal Air Force at Hendon, England, this summer, it is the greatest in the world.

A wooden model of a French village, two blocks in length, with the village church in the center, will be placed on the flying field. In the village square, scores of peasants are dancing with the Americans who have come to help defeat the Huns.

It is evening. All at once the drone of a Mercedes is heard overhead. The peasants hide in their houses, all lights are extinguished. The drone grows louder.

Joe had taken a great interest in the plans Walter had drawn for the new house. When the latter decided to go to the city he wanted to arrange for the care of his little charge with a neighbor.

"No, Uncle Walter; no, positively!" asserted Joe. "I've planned it all out. Let me stay here, only leave old Dobbins and the wagon. I can't do much real work, but I can drive, and I'll pick up enough odd jobs about town to keep me comfortably and sometimes to put aside for that famous new house you're going to build. See if I don't!"

Walter agreed to this, but with some reluctance and misgivings.

Daytimes Joe drove down to the depot and waited around for a chance to haul a trunk or carry a valise or package in the old wagon. Then he started in on what he called his "grand idea!"

Every week he wrote to Walter in the city. Three times a week he drove around to see Mercy. She had no time to visit him, for she had to slave hard to please her narrow-minded, complaining sister.

An American ace, who has downed a score of Huns, is in the village. He takes off in his airplane, and rises to meet the Hun. Before he can reach him, the German bombs the village, destroying part of it.

The fight in the air that follows; the reception of the American after he returns; the battle in the clouds, all go to make a wonderful spectacle that is new for this part of the world. It will be recognized by any former soldier who attends.

Walter was puzzled at the gayety and suppressed excitement of little Joe as the latter met him at the depot with old Dobbins and the wagon.

"I had hoped when I came back here," he told his companion, "that I would surely have earned and saved enough to provide a neat home nest for Mercy and the old folks. Instead of that I have less than three hundred dollars, a mere beginning. Why, what's that?"

Well might Walter stare! The old place looked like a lumber yard.

"It's the result of my grand idea!" cried Joe proudly. "You know they are doing a lot of tearing down and rebuilding in the new factory town of Blairsville, eight miles away. What you see yonder is waste stuff thrown away—nails that they let drop to the ground, stone, brick and lumber that the wrecking company crews bury or burn up. And, say, Uncle Walter! there's enough bricks—I've counted them—to build as fine a house as was ever put up in Riverdale!"

"You blessed little fellow!" said Mercy, when an hour later she knew that the new house was a certainty, and tears of joy fell upon the bright golden head as she kissed Joe gratefully.

The big men of the air game are expected to attend. The Aero Club of America has promised to send six or seven speakers, who are authorities on aviation, to address public meetings of the bird men.

And there will be plenty of opportunity to play "African golf" and the other pastimes that helped to occupy the idle hours for the flyers, according to S. D. Day, chairman of the entertainment committee.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY

Frank Sederstrom wants us to tell the people that there are too many loafers in Wayne—too many retired farmers. We advised Frank to set as good an example to the others as he could by being industrious. We hope he will heed our advice and induce others to follow it. Now Frank may not have been wise in saying what he did, and we may be foolish to print it, but a newspaper is to a certain extent a vehicle for carrying news and opinions. This may be a little of both.

R. R. Smith tells us that he thinks we have not been quite fair to the head of the administration; and we offered to let him have space to defend the president. Then he said that might not do much good—and we admitted that perhaps our criticism had not been especially harmful. We like to have people with views and opinions on public and economic questions express them. We furnish any reasonable amount of space for such communications.

Last week we told a few farmer opinions that were not very optimistic. But in talking with some others later, they told us that they had splendid corn crops to harvest. One farmer said he had 120 acres that he believed would yield at least 60 bushels per acre.

Still another farmer said that he had been farming a place that had not been farmed much before—and that 35 bushels of corn had been the big crop of record for the place. He had been experimenting with some of the poorest ridges on the place. Sowed oats and sweet clover. Harvested the oats and the clover grew until time to plow for planting the next spring. Turned the crop, perhaps six to eight inches high, under and planted corn. If that crop does not return more than 50 bushels of good corn per acre this year, he is going to be disappointed—that's all.

BOYS AND GIRLS.
Buster Brown is a dog who has only three legs. He lost his other leg while dragging a little boy out of the way of the train.

Several children were playing on the track and did not hear the train coming. But Buster Brown heard it and began to bark with all his might.

The children all scampered off the track but one little boy who slipped and fell.

Buster dashed across the track, catching the child by the clothing, and dragged him out of harm's way.

The little fellow was safe but as the engine passed it cut off one of the dog's hind legs.

Poor Buster bore it bravely.

Everybody petted him, and after the wound healed he didn't seem to mind the loss of his leg so very much.

He likes to play with the children and can catch a ball almost as well as a boy.

Wanted—A Boy.
Wanted—A boy you can tie to.
A boy that is trusty and true.
A boy that is good to old people
And kind to the little ones, too.

A boy that is nice to the home folks,
And pleasant to sister and brother.
A boy who will try when things go awry.

To be helpful to father and mother.

WITH THE WAYNE CHURCHES

First Baptist Church
(Robert H. Pratt, S. T. M. Minister)

The pastor will visit in Butte, Montana this Sunday as announced from the pulpit last Sunday morning. During his absence Mr. S. X. Cross will preach for him both morning and evening. All the regular services of the church will be held as usual. We hope to have our new hymn books for use Sunday night. They will surely be here for Sunday week. These are the books used successfully in the Sunday meetings and we should have a great song service Sunday evening. The pastor asks that during his absence the members be especially loyal to all the services. Cheer the heart of Brother Cross by having the pews well filled at all services.

THE WAR IS OVER

The following dispatch from Washington, telling of the senate ratification of the treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary. Perhaps the United States and Germany may now be eligible for membership in the League of Nations, and then Mexico might follow our example and come into the fold:

The senate ratified the treaty of peace with Germany with the reservations reported by the foreign relations committee. The vote was sixty-six for ratification to twenty against, or eight more than the necessary two-thirds majority.

Fourteen democratic senators voted in favor of ratification and two republican senators, Borah of Idaho and LaFollette of Wisconsin, voted against it. A third republican senator Norris of Nebraska, who was absent on account of sickness, was paired against the treaty.

Soon afterwards the senate ratified the peace treaty with Austria by the same vote.

Another and similar peace treaty with Hungary also was ratified, completing the administration's immediate peace program with the former central powers.

The fourteen democratic supporters of the treaty were Aspinwall, Broussard, Dial, Fletcher, Gerry, Kendrick, Owen, Pomerene, Ransdell, Shields, Trammell, Underwood, Walsh, Massachusetts. Two other democrats Smith of South Carolina and Hitchcock, Nebraska, were paired in favor of ratification. Other republicans were paired for ratification and other democrats against.

MEN AND FREE ARMY LIFE
The natural dislike of the men of our nation for military service has been freshly illustrated in a peculiar manner. The new appropriation bill, which was passed only a few weeks ago, reduced the size of our standing army by about seven-five thousand men and provided that this number should be dismissed before October 1.

The men did not wait to be discharged. Instead, applications for dismissal began to come in so rapidly that the full reduction was accomplished before the end of August. This haste to get out of the army is more notable because of the difficult conditions which they will have to face outside. In the army, they were at least assured of an income and the necessities of life.

The above taken from news reports indicates how unpopular is the army in time of peace, and all know it is still less safe or desirable in time of war. This should be a hint for the disarmament conference, if it desires to do the popular thing.

WHERE, INDUFED? ASK SUNDAY

Joseph and Isaac went to hear Billy Sunday preach and after the service, as they were going home, Joseph said: "Well, Isaac, vat you t'ink of him?" "I don't like him," said Isaac. "Too much hell." It was hell, hell, hell all the time. And I don't believe there is any hell, Joseph."

"No hell," asked Joseph in amazement.

"No," answered his friend.

"Well, then, Isaac," said Joseph, "if there is no hell, where is business gone?"

"How old are you, Marjorie?"

"I'm five and mother says if I'm good an' eats lots of oatmeal, I'll be six next birthday."

WAYNE 7-MIDLAND 0

(From The Goldenrod)

The Wayne Wildcats went to Fremont October 7 and debated the question "Has Midland the Better Football Team?" Wayne upheld the negative and emerged with the satisfactory end of a 7 to 0 score. The Normal machine received some very tough treatment and was penalized fifty yards for speeding—but was still going strong when the whistle blew.

Wayne lost the toss, and kicked off strong against a strong wind. Midland returned the ball to the 50-yard line and on the next play reeled off a twenty-five yard end run. Wayne held and Midland missed a 25-yard drop-kick on their last down. Wayne made their downs once. Surber carried to Midland's 45-yard line on a pass but was laid out when tackled. Dale Miller took his end. Wayne punted. The rest of the quarter was mainly a punting duel. Midland was favored by the wind and the ball was in Wayne territory most of the time. The quarter was up with Wayne's ball in the middle of the field.

Wayne took a decided brace and in the second quarter was evenly contested in mid-field. The quarter was distinguished by open play. Several forward passes were tied and both sides fumbled freely. The whistle blew as it was Midland's ball on the 50-yard line.

At the beginning of the second half "Little Pete" ran the kick-off back to the 50-yard line. Midland held and Wayne lost the ball 10 downs. The Lutherans made their yardage four times which, coupled with a five-yard penalty took them to Wayne's 5-yard line. Wayne held and punted out of danger. Austin intercepted a pass on the 40-yard line. Wayne completed a short pass from Renwick to Muhm and then began to hammer the line. The ball was carried to the 18-yard line by the end of the quarter.

Wayne continued its rush in the last quarter as far as the 2-yard line where Midland held for two downs. Renwick drove over for a touch down on the last down. Captain Armour kicked goal.

Midland opened up a desperate attempt to score and toward the end of the quarter rushed the ball down the field by passes, end runs and smashes to Wayne's 10-yard line, and bit off tackle for four more yards. Wayne threw them back on an attempted end run. On their last down Renwick blocked a pass in the safety zone. The game ended with the ball in Midland's possession on the 50-yard-line.

Wayne started the game with the following line-up:

F. Peterson—r. e.

P. Rickabaugh—r. t.

P. Peterson—r. g.

Austin—Center.

Thomas—I. g

Prescott—I. t.

Surber—I. e.

Capt. Armour—fullback

Dale Miller—r. h.

Muhm—I. h.

Renwick—Quarterback

Substitutes

Dale Miller for Surber.

Jones for Dale Miller.

McConnell for Austin.

Myers for Muhm.

Austin for F. Peterson.

COMMERCIAL CLUB NOTES

(From The Goldenrod)

The Commercial club held its first meeting on Monday evening. Twenty-eight persons were present and the prospects are bright for double that number as soon as the programs start. The Constitution and By-Laws were read and discussed. Officers were elected as follows: Leslie Rundell, President; Agnes Kell, Vice President; Elsie Lerner, Secretary; Dale Rickabaugh, Treasurer, and Donald Frisbie, Reporter. After the election of officers President Rundell gave a short talk in which he asked for the cooperation of officers and members. He said he would appoint a program committee in a few days to draft a type program. The program promises to be of a kind that will be very helpful to all who take part. Why not join? Students who are taking one or more subjects in the commercial department are eligible. See if you are one.

AFTER SCHOOL

(By Strickland Gilligan)

When home from school's long day he drifts
And to my gaze his fresh face lifts,
I read the tale of all the joys
And sorrows that are every boy's—
I knew them once. I feel them yet,
Through later living's deeper fret,
But still I hold him close, and say
"Son, tell me all about your day."

RADIO WORK

The radio club has been reorganized for the season 1921 and 1922. Officers:—Director, Prof. I. H. Brittell; President, Erwin W. Gould, of Norfolk; Operator, Earl H. Schroer, Wayne High School; Secretary, Prof. Chas. R. Chin.

There are about forty of the old membership left representing about eighteen towns. New members will soon carry the club beyond its membership of last year.

The Wayne station will resume its daily schedule of sending Monday, October 17. The sending station is reaching out beyond the expectations of those in charge. Reports of reception of the sending station have been received from: Emerson Squires, Wheaton, Illinois. Homer Fitch, Yankton College. Clarence Ward, Carroll, Nebraska. Maurice Yearly, Fort Worth, Texas. Jack Whitney, Eagle Grove, Iowa. Connie Britnell, West Bend, Wis. Steward Johnson, Oakland, Neb.

All stations report good tone and medium pitch. This is very satisfactory to the Wayne station.

John G. Nethardt, the Nebraska poet, will be presented to Des Moines lovers of poetry by the Iowa Press and Authors Club at its mid-year dinner, when the club members will entertain guests in February. He has been requested to read "The Song of Three Friends" which was awarded the first prize by the Poetry Society of America in 1919. Other well known writers and illustrators to be presented by the club are Honore Willard, until recently managing editor of the Delineator; Miles Winter, illustrator of children's stories, and three writers, Edgar Guest, Thornton Burgess and Roy Snell.

JOKES

This happened about ten years ago: Little Frances Burnham was intently studying a picture of a bee hive surrounded by bees. Suddenly she asked, "Mother, why don't the bees sting people when they take away the honey?"

"Oh, they use masks," explained mother.

"Well, it must be lots of work to mask all those bees," remarked Frances.

The curious one: "Catching the measles, Ede? There's a red spot on your cheek."

Ede: "No, I guess it's only a 'skeeter' bite."

Red Cross Trains

147 Blind Vets

In Useful Work

Training designed to fit them for the battle of life was taken by 147 blind ex-service men at the Red Cross Institute for the Blind, near Baltimore, Md., during the fiscal year 1920-1921, according to the report of the Institute for that period.

Of this number, 19 have gone on to other institutions, in almost every case to institutions where those having sight are receiving advanced education. The blind ex-service men who have entered such institutions are provided with special text-books in Braille, reading which they were taught at the Red Cross Institute.

Twelve men have passed from the Institute to successfully carry on some occupation or business for which they were fitted by special training. A few have withdrawn from the Institute because of poor physical condition, 14 are receiving further "training on the job" and 87 are still in training.

Red Cross Plans

$6,000,000 Effort

To Save Children

Medical care and clothing for thousands of children in Central and Eastern Europe are outlined as the activities of the American Red Cross in Europe for the current year, says a statement on the eve of the Annual Roll Call of the organization. These activities, supplemental to the feeding operations of the European Relief Council of which Herbert Hoover is chairman, are designed to provide the most adequate and balanced relief within the resources of private philanthropy.

Through the establishment of child welfare stations in the centers of population of those countries where adequate medical care is not now obtainable, the American Red Cross plans to provide the medical assistance needed to restore these children to a normally healthy life. The sum of $6,000,000 has been made available for this work.

Self-respect is of little value to the individual unless it teaches him to respect the rights of others. And the lack of this virtue implies the non-existence of culture and common sense as well as a deficiency in the materials of character building.
