A copy of the Pioneer-Review from Philip, South Dakota, tells that in a joke the editor referred to "Buffalo George", a noted cattle rustler" was about due to be after a bunch of cattle in those parts, and like an echo, the city papers of Mitchell and Sioux City had the noted thief out plying his vocation. Up till that time the fellow was supposed to be a fugitive from justice in South America or some other port, and he may be there yet for all we know. But it seems that there had been some cattle losses about that time, and it was taken for granted that it must be the old leader.

J. J. Ahorn left Sunday afternoon for a few days on the Chicago market. He tells us that this is to be the week for seeing and buying anything wanted in the shoe line, at that city, where all of the big factories are to have representatives and showings of everything that is to enter into the shoe trade for the coming season. Mr. Ahorn says it will be the most opportune time to learn conditions in that particular line of business—that in another sense it is a most particular line of merchandising—for not only will the factory representatives be there, but the dealers from all country tributary to Chicago.

We notice by a city paper that they have found what may prove to be deposit of gold which will pay for working, up in the northwest corner of Illinois. Gold was found from 40 to 60 feet below the surface when digging wells; and they have also found gold in the craws of the ducks grown in that vicinity. The writer has washed gold about 70 miles from this find, over in north-eastern Iowa, but they never found the precious metal in quantities that payed. While there was water to "pan" with, a man could gather about 50 cents worth a day; but the water did not last except a few weeks in the spring.

The point made by state tax commissioner Osborne that cities should pay state taxes on their public utilities is of the first importance. This time has come, as he suggests, when all property used for profit will be obliged to bear its fair share of the burdens of government. The fact that cities and towns may now engage in business enterprises paying taxes neither upon the property, its earnings or the bonds based upon it, is the strongest argument in favor of giving the tax free privilege to loans made for agricultural purposes by the federal farm loan banks. So long as the cities are permitted to enjoy untaxed loans and untaxed property it will be impossible to withdraw the same privilege from farm lands. If a fair balance could be struck between the cities and the country, each being obliged to carry its fair share of the load, the present system might go on without challenge. But no scientific adjustment of the burden is possible. Every time a tax free security is issued a greater burden is thrown upon the people who pay taxes. The only proper course is a change which will be away with tax exemptions. Commissioner Osborne is on the right track.—State Journal.

C. H. Jeffrey from Bloomfield was here Tuesday on his way home, and we gathered from his conversation that he had been selling a car of cattle on the city market, and had been in when they were a bit higher than they started out the first of this week, when there appeared to be more cattle than money. Mr. Jeffrey is a brother of the Jeffrey men northwest of Wayne, Alex and Roy, and he will soon be a neighbor of theirs as he purchased from A. C. Dean a year or so ago the Mellick farm two miles north and two miles west of this place, and will move here shortly. He is already beginning to clean up the farm stuff that he will not need here, preparatory to the move. He expressed the opinion that he could do as well financially there as here; but said it was the school that made the change desirable. There are others here because of the school, and still more will come.

IS OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM ADEQUATE?

(From The Goldenrod)

In view of the vast amount of public discussion now taking place in regard to public education the following article written by Professor J. G. W. Lewis is both timely and appropriate:

When Martin Luther began his celebrated revolt against the Church he nailed upon the door of the church at Wittenburg, ninety-five theses or propositions which he was willing to defend against all comers.

Could not someone be found in Nebraska to nail upon the school house door and assume the defense of some such propositions as these?

1. That the cost element of education is not to be computed without reference to the economic and social cost of ignorance. Assuming that there is a sort of inverse ratio between the extension of education and the increase of dependent, defective and criminal classes, it seems wise as a general thing to spend money for preventive rather than for remedial agencies. It seems that the discussion over school matters should be directed toward the efficiency side first.

2. That in the school system generally, there is a tendency to place greater emphasis upon "credits" than upon real attainment.

Colleges and universities in many instances have discarded their requirements of entrance examinations and rely upon the more or less elaborate inspection of school equipment and teaching personnel to determine the fitness of the high school graduate for college work. Certain equipment courses and teaching force confer certain "credit points" upon all graduates of a given high school.

The sins of omission and commission of the individual student are assessed by kindly and proud local authorities and covered by the saving grace of "credit points" earned by the general equipment of the student's particular high school. Will "credit points" rather than wisdom tend to become the measure of value whether the student expects to attend a university or not?

3. That the report as to the popular and local control over the school system is greatly exaggerated. In theory the control is popular and local. "But," as Bix would probably say, "is it really so?"

In the first place, usually very little opportunity is offered to the people for any effective discussion of school matters and expression of opinion. They do not vote on taxes or any other detail except the selection of a school board. Even the board leans heavily upon the superintendent as its choice for counsel and guidance.

But above all else there is the overpowering consideration for each little village or city that it must maintain a school of such a standard of grades, courses of study and equipment as to admit its graduates to a university or to any one of an association of colleges and universities without examination and with certain "credit points".

In other words, standards are fixed by authorities very indirectly if at all responsible to the people. The people have a choice so hedged about with conditions that only one decision is feasible.

4. That there has been such an "enrichment of the course of study", particularly in the rural schools and to some extent in the higher schools, that not enough attention can be paid to the fundamentals necessary for a continued self-education throughout life. There is such a thing as getting so many things to educate with and to educate in, that we cannot educate at all.

5. That the commercialized, semi-professionalized, over-emphasized system of school athletics absorbs a greatly disproportionate amount of the attention of students and school people generally. It would seem that one slogan of those who would secure more real efficiency in our schools should be "more of athletics for the many; less for the few. Athletics for physical development and recreation; not for heavy schedules and state or district championships."

flat. Some of them are cut fine for the cigarettes.

This plant contains poison called nicotine which is poisonous to our system.

The paper is also poisonous. The tobacco is wrapped in a special paper. You should not smoke until you are twenty one years old if you smoke at all, because it weakens your heart and the brain may not do so well.

There is a poison in every tobacco leaf. If you put some on a dog's tongue it would kill him instantly.

When it is heated, this poison turns to gas. This gas then is taken in with the smoke. It is drawn deep into the lungs where the oxygen is and the red corpuscles.

It robs the red corpuscles of the oxygen. The poison is bad for the ear, liver, throat and the neurons of the heart.

Instead of getting pure oxygen it gets the poison.

They are usually worried or troubled when they smoke. It weakens the heart and the brain does not do so well.

In Havana five out of six use tobacco. There are only six bright students out of two thousand, three hundred, thirty six cigarette smokers. Ten were average, and the rest were poor. The ones who did smoke, their average was much less than those who didn't smoke.

This is one of the records:
Twelve years: Smokers, seventy four per cent; non smokers, eighty seven per cent.
Thirteen years: Smokers, seventy five per cent; non smokers, ninety one per cent.
Fourteen years: Smokers, seventy two per cent; non smokers, eighty eight per cent.
Fifteen years: Smokers, seventy four per cent; non smokers, eighty five per cent.
Sixteen years: Smokers, seventy three per cent; non smokers, eighty nine per cent.
Seventeen years: Smokers, sixty seven per cent; non smokers, eighty six per cent.

It affects the young people more than the older people.

Mr. Cobb the baseball player does not use cigarettes or tobacco.

The football teams and baseball teams never use tobacco. In the large colleges, the boys who are on the football and baseball teams, and those who are training for running are never allowed to use tobacco because it weakens the nerves so they can't control themselves.

In large races they have to be quick and steady and can control themselves.

This shows what cigarettes do to the human system.

Tot Bartels, Second
The cigarette is very injurious especially to young people.

It stunts the growth and development of the youth and injures the heart so that it flutters or palpitates and there are often pains in this part of the body. It also injures the stomach.

When leaves are heated a gas is formed which mixes with the smoke. This is inhaled through the tubes which lead to the lungs. When this gas and smoke is drawn into the lungs it affects the tender lining and makes breathing hard.

The tissues also get covered with floods of poison namely nicotine. This poison goes into the blood and is carried to the brain and the smoker has head aches, mental weariness, and is slow in thinking. It causes unclear thoughts. They do not remember well and are never bright in school work and it makes the smoker irritable and impatient.

A well-known physician has said that he never saw a boy who started to smoke at the age of sixteen and kept up the habit until twenty-seven

EFFECT OF CIGARETTES ON THE HUMAN SYSTEM

About six weeks ago the ladies of the W. C. T. U. offered prizes to the pupils of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the city schools for the best compositions on the above subject, and the productions were first submitted to the teachers of the different grades, who submitted about fifteen of the essays to the judges named to pass upon their relative merits. After much deliberation—it seemed like—the judges reported Miss Dorothy Loomis first, Tot Bartels second and Charles Keyser third. Below we give the winning papers:

that wasn't a physical wreck.

The cigarette robs the blood of the oxygen it needs and steals the moral fabrics.

For an example to show what harm the cigarette does place a drop of this poison upon a dog's tongue. It will die instantly. Then if so little poison will kill a dog, think of the effect upon the body of the cigarette smoker.

In another instance a smoker went to his physician. The physician asked him how many cigarettes he smoked a day.

"Oh, about thirty," was the reply.

The physician then asked, "and you don't blame them for your run-down condition?"

"No," it is caused from hard work," said the smoker.

"We shall see," said the physician taking a leech in his fingers and placing it upon the young man's arm. The leech worked eagerly, but all of a sudden it fell to the floor dead.

"That's what your impure blood did to the leech," said the physician.

"Oh! I don't believe it was a healthy leech to start with."

"We shall prove it," said the physician, taking two more leeches (a small one and a large one) and again placed them upon the boys arm.

"Well if these die too I'll cut down smoking from thirty to ten cigarettes a day," and even as he spoke the smallest fell to the floor dead and the larger soon followed.

"See," said the physician, "it is the poison in your blood."

"Well you are right," agreed the patient.

Still another time a naval officer examined four hundred and twelve boys and, only fourteen were accepted. The others were not taken because of weak hearts in most cases due to cigarette smoking.

Charles Keyser, Third
Cigarettes harm the user physically, mentally and morally.

A coach always forbids his team to use cigarettes during training, because they would make the player short-winded.

They harm boys in a way that we do not see, like heart rate or blood pressure. The tobacco heart is a disease familiar to physicians.

Cigarettes stunt boys growth and shorten their lives. Insurance companies when insuring life ask the question, "Does he smoke cigarettes?"

The younger the boy the more harmful the effect of the cigarette upon him.

Tobacco has no use in the body. It contains no food value and is not a stimulant.

Cigarettes dull the mind and deaden the nerves. People who use them lose control of their muscles and cannot throw a ball or shoot a gun as straight as others who do not use it.

Tests by scientists show that smoking reduces the accuracy fifteen per cent.

A man never knows that he is in any danger until it is too late.

The user makes himself unpleasant to others by his yellow fingers and tobacco smell.

Boys use cigarettes more than any other form of tobacco because they may be bought cheaper.

Smoking may get boys into bad company or give them a bad reputation.

It is an expensive habit. The cigarette was introduced into this country only fifty years ago but the use of them has so increased that we now smoke to the average about fifty billion a year. This is an increase of almost one thousand per cent since the last ten years.

This year the government tax on tobacco is expected to yield over one hundred million dollars.

In 1900, Mr. Nemoto of Japan put a bill to the Japanese House of Representatives to keep all youths under twenty years old from smoking cigarettes. He said that if Japan was to have a stronger nation than any in Europe or America she must make her children into strong men or women. He put his bill through and it has made Japan a stronger nation.

BUILDING FOR BIGGER BUSINESS

George Patterson, who has been building up a trade in growing and selling S. C. White Leghorns—the mature birds, the chickens the eggs and the fries from those that do not come up to his standard of excellence to sell for breeders or to keep for producing eggs for market, is now building a house and incubator and a brooder house. His incubator will be constructed to practically fill a basement with five foot walls, 16x32 feet. Above this and the same size will be the brooder house where the little chicks will be run for a few days, until ready for shipment or if to be kept for some other pens.

His incubator is to be heated by water, with hard coal as the fuel, and it is to have a capacity for 3,600 eggs at once. The hatching and shipping of baby chickens has become a great business, and Mr. Patterson has been following it in a smaller way for two or three years, and is now fitting to meet a growing demand. He has an advertisement in this issue of the paper which invites the home people to patronize the home grower. If he is growing the kind of birds you want, no good reason why you should not do so, for then you get birds that are perfectly acclimated. If they are good enough to sell to fanciers on the open market they are perhaps as good as you could get by sending away, and the loss of shipping would naturally be less if birds bought close to home come to you.

STEALING BEEF BY THE QUARTER

According to the story we see in a city paper, our friend Bur Cunningham of Bloomfield, has been visited by some pilfering person who took a quarter of beef from his premises, and then had the insolence to send back a piece of the leg bone and ask Bur when he would have another quarter hanging in that back shed? We will bet that should the thief be found and proven guilty, he would cease to wonder about the next quarter. He would be sent where hard times and hard winters would not make it seem necessary for him to steal—for they would board him there, and he would be lucky if he got any beef, too—but he might get a little soup, made from the same kind of a bone as he returned to Cunningham. If one must steal for a living it should not be from an old soldier—and we will bet too, that had the thief been in dire need, and come to Mr. Cunningham for help he would have gotten a fair division of the meat from Mr. Cunningham's wood house; but it was not fair to Mr. C. to take it all.

DEATH OF J. B. KILLINGER OF CARROLL

Last week Thursday death came to J. B. Killinger of near Carroll, at the age of 80 years, 7 months and 17 days. His funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon by Rev. Dr. Luther, pastor of the Methodist church. He was for about seventeen years a resident of Wayne county, coming here from Iowa. He is survived by five sons and two daughters, and all were present at the funeral except one daughter, who had been with him until a few days before his death, when she was called to her home in Kansas, and had not time to return for the funeral, having but just reached her home as word came of the death.

The children are William of Portis, Kansas; Mrs. Mary Slack of Iowa, Kansas; Mrs. Hattie Silkett of Downs, Kansas; Samuel of Carson, Iowa; Jehn of Lenox, Iowa; Ben of Seneca, South Dakota, and James at the home at Carroll, and G. W. of Inman, in this state. His wife died four years ago.

While on their way home after the funeral, G. W. Killinger and wife stopped at Wayne, and spent the time between trains with their former neighbors, G. W. Hughes and wife, in the west part of the city.

ABOUT SMART PEOPLE

There is a well told tale to the effect that efficiency means to be able to buy from a Jew and sell to a Scotchman at a profit. Note the following: "Hey Papa," says little Ikey at the restaurant table, "there's a fly in my soup." "Well, Ikey," says vapa, "eat the soup till you come to the fly. Then call the waiter, an he'll give you another full bowl of soup."

That is similar to the story of the insurance at a restaurant. One breaking the shell of what had been an egg called attention of his partner to the find, and received this advice: "Ate it and be quick, you lad you, or they will charge you for egg and fowl both."

BREEDER OF
Single Comb White Leghorns
Hatching Eggs and Baby Chix in Season

WAYNE, NEBRASKA
Route 3

Greeting:

To our many friends and customers who are now breeding Single Comb White Leghorns.

The White Leghorn of course needs no introduction. Wherever pure bred fowls are known, the White Leghorn is kept and valued for the fine white eggs that it lays in such large numbers.

On the range of the farm she picks up most of her living. She stands confinement well and does not get too fat to be a prolific layer. Where all the feed is supplied, the White Leghorn hen eats 10 pounds of feed per hen per year less than the heavy breeds.

Some people think the Leghorn is not good for winter eggs, but this is a mistake. Give them the right kind of care and they just can't keep from laying.

The stock eggs and chix that I shall sell this season are from a flock that has been mated and bred for egg production, and standard requirements as well.

My foundation was represented by some of the foremost breeders of this country, and I wish to say that I can furnish chix or eggs from three of the best matings to be found anywhere in this part of the country.

Pen I. Will consist of such birds as first young pen at Sioux City, 1921, with good 5 point combs, red eyes, white earlobes, backs of proper length and breadth, good full tall well spread carried at proper angle. If you want stock that will be credit to your yards you will do well to order from this pen.

Pen II. These birds are of good type and color. Have the capacity to produce eggs in large numbers, large lopped combs, and are always working. These birds have not been shown but bred solely for egg production.

Pen III. The males in this pen are good color, well shaped birds large size. The females are large framed birds and have the real 200 egg capacity. They are a vigorous lot of winter layers when eggs bring best prices.

My Guarantee

I will guarantee all stock to be pure bred. All hatching eggs to average 85% fertility through February, March and April, 90% the balance of the season, and safe delivery of the number ordered either chix or eggs; providing an examination is made at the office and with agents signature of condition.

Price List

The New State, the organ of the new party in this state, says that if the legislature when convened by the governor shall pass the gasoline tax law, it will be by petition referred to the people in a referendum for their approval or rejection.

Cough up for your auto license, is the order now—then if the Governor has his way you will have to dig for the gasoline tax. In some counties the order is out to begin next Monday to take in the cars that do not have the 1922 number fore and aft.

The farm organizations of Nebraska have been having a great week at Lincoln, and in addition to discussing the best methods of farming they devoted considerable time and discussion to the question of eliminating the parasite who is farming the farmer and the consumer.

Now that the local telephone manager is round making his regular monthly collection, and the war tax is off, so far as Uncle Sam is concerned, and he is collecting it just the same, some of the patrons are waking up.

The Bloomfield people—farmers and business men have organized to beat the coal combine by burning corn this winter. In that manner they keep their money circulating at home.

It is a good thing, for the trees were becoming too thick in places, and the thinning will remove a shade which was too dense for other vegetation to thrive.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

F. S. Berry is looking after legal business at Omaha this week.

Don't fail to see Elwin Strong at the Opera House Tuesday January 17.—adv.

Miss Katherine Paulsen went to Sioux City this morning to spend a couple of days visiting with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Strahan went to Omaha this morning to spend a few days visiting.

The Ford plant has resumed work in all departments after being shut down for inventory and repairs for about one month.

Mrs. Chelse Thompson, who has been visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ellan Ahern, returned to her home at Carroll Wednesday morning.

At the pavilion sale here Saturday the Chris Kramer stock is to be sold by the guardian, Irving H. Bahde, who is also cashier of the Altona bank.

Mrs. Waller of Randolph passed through Wayne Monday afternoon on her way to Omaha where she will visit her mother who is in the hospital.

Plans are being matured for the paving of 30 miles of country road in Douglas county during 1922. It is estimated that the cost will be about $1,000,000.

A. A. Wallert was out from Council Bluffs the first of the week, driving over from that city. He seems to rather like Wayne—at any rate he keeps visiting us, and no one is sorry.

C. Clasen was over from Norfolk last Friday for a short stay. He is still selling Yeomen insurance in this district, and is now soliciting membership at Neligh.

To stamp out tuberculosis among animals in Douglas county, secretary Stryker of the Omaha Live Stock exchange, has urged on the county commissioners the destruction of all infected cattle.

At Wakefield the electric people not only declared a dividend, but cut the price of light and power to practically pre-war rates. The light price was reduced three cents, from 18 to 15 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Dunlap, who have been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rimel, his brother, left Monday afternoon for Rochester. Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap are from Stillwater, Oklahoma.

A nephew from Texas, who has been working in Iowa and Nebraska this fall, was here Sunday on his way to visit at the home of his uncle, Fred Jarvis and family at Carroll. As there was no Sunday train from this point the young man voted that the 12 mile walk would be good exercise, and so he started, hoping to be picked up by some passing car.

Misses Mary and Anna Knecht, left Wednesday for Carroll, where they will visit with friends.

Mrs. Jeffries is getting busy the coming week to repaper and paint her millinery shop and store for women.

Following the holiday vacation, the Omaha schools re-opened with an attendance of 30,000 pupils. In high school alone there were 2,700 registrations.

R. H. Kuhrtz went to Omaha the first of the week, and from there he planned to visit his old home at Cherokee, Iowa, as a matter of business and to visit with old neighbors.

Miss Alice Harte, who attends the Normal, left Monday afternoon for her home at Hubbard, where she spent a couple of days visiting home folks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Auker and Mrs. Oscar Jonson were at Des Moines the first of the week to attend the funeral of a sister-in-law, Mrs. Thos. Nettleton, who died at that city.

The J. J. Ahern store is being brightened up this week—the painter and the paper hanger are musing things up temporarily, hoping to make it much better when they finish.

Marian and Marjorie Noakes came from Sholes Wednesday morning to spend a few days visiting at the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Noakes. Mr. and Mrs. George Noakes went on to Sioux City.

Railroad officials express the belief that the recent cut in freight rates on farm and range products will mean a saving of $1,000,000 to Nebraska farmers during the next year.

Rev. Gehrke, pastor of the church northeast of Wayne, was in town with a neighbor the first of the week and complaining that "Lizzie" had gone on a strike, after faithfully pulling him miles enough to circumnavigate the globe.

Mrs. Kal Rockwell and little son, who spent about three weeks visiting with her folks at Weepingwater, returned home Monday evening. She was accompanied by her husband's father, J. Rockwell, of Manly, who will spend the winter at the home of his son, F. B. Rockwell.

O. B. Haas is again at Wayne, and waiting for his goods to come from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to again be a citizen of this place, on the Wood Jones farm west of Wayne. A. A. Wollert, who is to again move to Wayne, and will occupy what is known as the Briggs farm three miles south of Wayne.

J. M. Skiles from Des Moines, who has been spending several weeks here with his brother Robert Skiles, left Monday afternoon for Ft. Des Moines, where he makes his headquarters. Robert says that J. M. was simply out on parole, and his brother did not deny the charge, and said that if he reported on time at headquarters he might some day get another leave of absence, and come and swap army stories of the days of '61 to '65 with Wayne men who were in service during those troublous days.

Howard Whalen came out from Omaha the first of the week, and is now getting the Whittier building in shape for his opening business again at Wayne. He will be in the building recently vacated by Williams & Pelenk, and is planning to open bakery and confections. Mr. and Mrs. Whalen were in that business at Wayne about ten years ago, and have since lived and labored at different places, Fremont, Stanton and Omaha. Mrs. Whalen is expected next week to join her husband here, and after a few weeks getting equipment and fixtures in shape they will tell of their opening.

The Fort Pierre Times, South Dakota of course, told of the killing of the buffalo at the Phillip ranch near that place, when more than fifty of the herd of about 800 were killed and shipped out for holiday-meats to be used by people who had learned to relish the meat in other days when they were pioneering in the west; and those who did not know what buffalo meat was like. Usually one generous helping is ample for the person who was not accustomed to eat in the pioneer days; and we wonder if it seemed quite as good for the "old timer" as it used to when he had nothing better to eat in the meat line. The ones who had eaten of it before had the advantage of knowing what part of the carcass was best—and they all asked for a cut from the hump over the front shoulders. The top of the buffalo is not the same as that of a corned short-horn or white-face.

The Retail Merchants' conference will be held in Omaha January 24-26. Otto Schnieder of Winside was a Wayne visitor between trains this morning.

Miss Anna Miller, who was visiting at the Ray Perdue home, returned to her home at Winside this morning.

W. C. Fox is carrying one arm in a sling. He fell while cranking a car, struck on the elbow on a concrete floor, and fractured a bone, slightly.

Mrs. S. C. Lutgen, who has been visiting with her son at Auburn, came to Wayne today and will visit at the home of her son, Dr. S. A. Lutgen.

The son of John Rosaker from near Sholes was at the Wayne hospital to have a toe amputated, after it had been practically shot off by the accidental discharge of a shot gun, while out hunting.

E. R. Rogers of Scottsbluffs, but for a number of years a student and later instructor at the Wayne Normal, came this week from his home town to visit a few days with friends here. He was when at Wayne a member of the Normal male quartet. He is on his way to Lincoln where he will attend the meeting of the agents and managers of the Midwest Life Insurance Company.

Mrs. E. Finley from Norfolk was here last Friday evening, and attended the meeting of the Yeomen, for which order she is a district deputy. She was asked to make a 30-day campaign for new members for the home-stead of that order at Wayne, and came Wednesday to begin the work. She tells us that the Yeomen have gotten out a new certificate that contains all of the desirable features of any life insurance, and also some good ones not incorporated in other insurance concerns—and the price and terms of payment are also said to be very pleasing, especially in these times of financial depression.

LETTERS OF A CORN FED
No. 1
(From The Goldenrod)
Wayne, Nebraska
January 6, 1922

Dear Maw:
Arrived here Tuesday. They sure stek you in this town, Maw. Why a guy charged me for a ride up to skule, and he asked me to get in himself. Now, what does taxi mean?

I heard a fellow talking in the main building and from the way he talked I knew he was President Conn. He was very nice and helped me fill out my program. Here it is: Cam-pus-try; Spoonology, Spelling, Domes-tic Science and Bluffology. I went over to the Jim where they play ping-pong. A fellow tried to tell me it was basketball but I knew better. There are two fellows who do nothing but run around and holler for the ball. The game seems to be to throw it to them when they want it. One of them had a whistle, they called the other fellow Pat, but he looks like a Norwégian to me. I can't see why everybody wants the ball for, all they do is let loose of it again.

Lots of the fellows don't know anything about the school, some of them told me to take Spoonology in Terrace Hall but I know better, they take it in the dining hall.
Your loving son
Al Falfa

P. S. The man I thought was Prexy turned out to be Red Johnson, but he sure knows a lot just the same.

Y. W. C. A.
The New Year was fittingly begun with a simple little candle lighting service held in the callistheneum. A quaint story, "The Abbess of the Glowing Light" was told by the President, a solo sung by Velma Burnham and the girls all lighted their candles. The scene was pretty and impressive.

Y. M. C. A.
About thirty Y. M. C. A. boys met in the gymnasium Wednesday evening and enjoyed a snappy game of indoor baseball, which lasted an hour. They then filed through the kitchen and were given a pteous helping of rolls, wainers and cocoa, which were enjoyed in the callistheneum around a long table. After the refreshments were over Professor Bowen related several anecdotes and the meeting was concluded with a short address in which Mr. Bowen said that the Y. M. is a useful institution in improving the moral tone of society and in producing leaders. This is an organization worthy of pride and every boy in school should be a member.

The W Club met Tuesday evening and elected the following officers: Melvin Thomas, president; Marlon Barber, vice-president; Dale Miller, secretary-treasurer. The club consists of men who have earned their Cattle Sell Steady At Mondays Average Loss.

FRESH 15-25c HOG BREAK

Liberal Runs all Around—Lambs Open Slow but Develop Strength—New Top of $11.65.

Union Stock Yards, Omaha, January 11, 1922. On a considerably smaller run of cattle, about 4,800 head, fat cattle sold generally steady at Monday's average decline. There was a healthy demand for good kinds, the plain classes were slow. Feeders were active at steady rates.

Quotations on Cattle:—Good to choice beefs, $7.00@7.60; fair to good beefs, $6.00@6.85; common to fair beefs, $5.00@5.90; fair to good yearlings, $6.00@7.25; common to fair yearlings, $5.00@6.00; choice to good heifers, $5.75@6.50; fair to good heifers, $4.25@5.00; choice to prime cows, $4.75@5.25; good to choice cows, $4.00@4.60; fair to good cows, $3.40@4.00; cutters, $2.50@3.25; canners, $1.50@2.25; beef and butcher bulls, $3.75@5.00; bologna bulls, $3.50@4.00; veal calves, $4.50@8.75; good to choice feeders, $6.00@6.50; fair to good feeders, $5.50@6.00; common to fair feeders, $5.50@6.00; common to fair feeders, $4.75@5.50; good to choice stockers, $6.25@6.85; fair to good stockers, $5.75@6.25; common to fair stockers, $5.00@5.60; stock heifers, $4.00@5.25; stock cows, $3.00@4.00; stock calves, $4.50@7.25.

Hogs Break Again.

Hog receipts were the largest today of the current season, about 16,000 head, and with heavy rain at other points the market showed a further decline of 10@25c. Best lights sold at $7.40 and bulk moved at $6.75@7.10.

Lambs Steady to Strong.

Trade in sheep and lambs opened slow Tuesday when receipts increased to 11,600 head but the undertone of the market was firm and sales were generally steady to strong. Top lambs reached a new high mark of $11.65.

Quotations on sheep and lambs:—Fat lambs, good to choice, $11.00@11.65; fat lambs, fair to good, $10.50@11.00; feeder lambs, good to choice, $9.50@10.25; feeder lambs, fair to good, $9.00@9.50; cull lambs, $8.25@8.75; fat yearlings, $8.00@8.50; fat wethers, $4.50@5.25; fat ewes, $5.25@6.00; feeder ewes, $3.50@5.00; cull ewes, $1.00@2.50.

Moonshiner Advertises His Wares.

North Carolina has a moonshiner who believes in advertising his wares. Revenue officers in Asheville recently came across a bottle with a unique label, which they sent to Commissioner Blair, himself a North Carolinian. This label was the advertisement of the moonshiner and it reads as follows:

"Pure mountain horn liker. Bottled in a barn. Made in the backwoods of the Mountains of Western North Carolina by an old-time blockader, that don't give a damn for laws and prohibition. Retailed on the Asheville market by all the high-class bootleggers for five bones per pint and is worth every cent of it. Guaranteed to be strong enough to make you drunk as the devil in ten minutes and mean enough to make a baby bullfrog spit in a whale's face. Shake well and get ready to have a fit before drinking."

The label has been added to the internal revenue bureau's museum.—Exchange.

Live Wedding Presents.

Lord Morton has revived old traditions of Scotch chieftainship, writes a correspondent, by his practical and patriarchal gift of a flock of sheep to his son on his marriage. Such wedding gifts must have been common enough when the Douglas chiefs ruled with a high hand in territories where there was little actual money. The ancestor of Lord Morton was second chief of the Douglas clan, and the greatness of this family began with the acquisition of wide lands in the fourteenth century, culminating in the fourth earl, the great Regent of Scotland, too great for safety, for he was assassinated and executed. But the Morton earls soon recovered from this blow and, 50 years later, the seventh earl was one of the richest and most powerful men in the kingdom.

Coal or Water?

A new French estimate of the world's water power resources credits the United States with 30,000,000 available horsepower; Canada with 25,000,000; Norway with 5,000,000; Sweden with 6,760,000; Austro-Hungary district with 8,760,000; Italy and Spain with about 5,000,000 each; Germany with only 1,500,000; and England with 1,000,000, have a surplus of capacity.

A Posthumous Laudation

By CLAIRE SMITH
Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

Charles Cogswell, president of half a dozen corporations and a man to be reckoned with in Wall street, came out of his club at half past two.

"Heigho!" he sighed. "When a man gets to be forty-five his troubles multiply." And he fell to thinking how hardly fate used him.

As he stepped into the street a newsboy ran into him, yelling at the top of his voice. He picked himself up and thrust a paper under Mr. Cogswell's nose.

"Suicide of a millionaire!" he yelled; and there, sure enough, was the announcement, in big, black lettering. Mr. Cogswell bought a copy, and the next minute was staggering back against the wall of the club. The suicide was that of himself.

When he had recovered a little he read as follows:

"Mr. Charles Cogswell, president of the United Realty and Union corporation, and a well-known figure on the street, shot himself in the temple at half past one o'clock this afternoon, in a lodging house on the Bowery. Although he had dressed himself in shabby clothes and destroyed all evidences of his identity, Mr. Cogswell's features were too well known for his death to remain long unknown.

Cogswell knew the man—a double of his, strikingly alike even to the gait and gesture.

"Suppose I were dead," he thought. "Would the world be better off or worse?"

If he were dead, wiped out, no longer a factor in the affairs of men, what would it mean to the world that he had known? What did his life mean? His death meant release and money to his wife; to his musician son it meant the inheritance of which he was to have been deprived. His partner, Prentice, and he had always been at loggerheads, and nine times out of ten Prentice had been right in his views. Cogswell tried to think of one person whom his life benefited, but could not do so.

Then why should he not be dead? He could lay hands upon ten thousand dollars. It was growing dark, when starting up from a reverie, he discovered that he was standing in front of his house on Madison avenue. He crept up to his den at the top of the house. As he reached the last story he saw a figure coming toward him, followed by another, and shrank back into a closet just as they came round the bend in the passage. They were two serving maids, and, as they paused, he heard one of them say:

"Why are you taking on so, Mary? He wasn't no good, for all I've heard tell of him. Didn't he drive that good wife of his out of his house and spoil her life for her?"

"I can't help it," sniffed the other. "He mayn't have been a good man, but he saved my brother's life."

When they had disappeared he went down the steps with a firmer tread. Nevertheless, outside the drawing room door he paused and listened. Prentice, his partner, was speaking.

"I tell you, Mrs. Cogswell," he was saying, "Charles was a good man, and I know that a warm heart beat under the affectation of selfishness. I could tell you stories—"

"Oh, I know he was," his wife sobbed. "It is I who have been at fault. Oh, Charles, if you could only know, if you could only come back to me!"

Another voice took up the parable. Cogswell started and clenched his fists in bitter remorse. The voice was that of his son.

"I know father meant to do well by me," he said. "You know, mother, he believed that a man should shift for himself, to develop independence of character. That's why he left me to worry along as best I could. God bless him! He was one of the finest men that ever lived."

The voices died away, and it seemed to Cogswell as though he had already come to the new birth that he desired. Why should he go away and sink his identity when his life lay here? No, the real life was in his accustomed place, with life's struggle still before him, enemies to overcome, faults to be atoned for, all the battle to be fought out over again in the accustomed battlefield. He hesitated a moment; then softly opened the door.

Doctor Lowell Press Censor.

President A. Lawrence Loyell of Harvard university, in asking newspaper men not to report a recent address by Viscount James Bryce at the Harvard union, used his own censorship.

Just before he introduced the distinguished British publicist, Doctor Lowell leaned over to the press tables and told the reporters it was Lord Bryce's wish that none of his remarks be published, inasmuch as it was to be an intimate talk to the undergraduates.

The newspaper men did not print the address.—Cambridge (Mass.) Dispatch in the New York Tribune.

More Women Study Medicine.

The number of women in England, who choose medicine as a career has increased greatly. Many have just entered for the five years' course of hard study required. At Charing Cross Hospital Medical school the two sexes are about equal in number; London Hospital school has one-fifth women students, and St. Mary's school two-fifths.

Economy rides on U.S. Tires

If you could get together all the car owners you know, you'd probably find that their tire experiences had been much the same.

Most of them have taken their fling at "job lots," "discontinued lines" and "surplus stocks." Soon or late, nearly all settled back on quality first as the one sound assurance of tire value.

As soon as a man forgets the cut-price tag, and comes to the dealer who concentrates on a full, completely sized stock of U. S. Tires—he learns what it means to get fresh, live tires—not once in a while but every time.

Not merely in the big cities, but in his own home town.

Not merely for the heavy car, but for the medium and light-weight car—a full selection of size, tread and type.

Your U. S. Tire dealer can give you this service because of the service he gets from his neighboring U. S. Factory Branch. There are 92 of these Branches. Each gets its share of U. S. Tires, so that the dealer is always supplied with fresh, live stock.

U. S. Tires sell as fast as they are made. There is no over production. No surplus piled up waiting for a "market."

Wherever you buy a U. S. Tire—you buy a tire of current production, as full of life and value as the day it left the makers.

HARD TIMES PARTY (From The Goldenrod)

The theory that life is just one lonesome thing after another was given a staggering blow for the knock-out count of ten by the Hard Times Party staged the week before Christmas. We trust that none of those present will ever again advance the theory that schooling is one percentage round of ineffable ennui for the party certainly disproved that pessimistic contention. The hypothesis that love is one fool thing after another like quantity was proved by Euclidian logic.

Those present included the Seniors. Incidentally the Juniors were present—that is, all except those who through the meanest parsimony and nigardliness (such as going without breakfast and refraining from the luxury of soap) had hoarded up the price of carfare home. These latter were excused on the ground that they were suffering from homesickness and an insatiable longing for sweet paternal scenes. The Seniors were, as always true, the life and spirit of the party. The reason for the other classes not being present was that the lower classmen in the presence of the Dignified Ones shrivel to insignificance and nonentity. Hence their exclusion was an act of mercy and gift of grace bestowed by the Seniors.

The party was in keeping with the spirit of the times. The costumes worn bespoke the financial stress and strain rife at the present time. If some suggested hard times, some others suggested financial panic and even national catastrophe. In fact all exuded an atmosphere of penury and desolation. Patched pantaloons, precariously supported by gaiters; threadbare shirts calling aloud for help; redundant whiskers of luxurious growth; domes covered with thick, matted thatch and exposed portions of the form divine suggesting a long-standing antipathy to water and allied cleansing agencies, were all manifest among the hero and hobo element of the party. The girls were rendered hideous by pigtails, the hair being pulled back skin-tight over pericranium; by shoes really sensible; by cowardly hose of the running variety; by Mother Hubbard dresses of high-neck design, etc. Cosmetics were conspicuous by their absence. Indeed, identification was often impossible so efficacious was the disguise or rather lack of customary disguise.

The party was unique in that drop the handkerchief was not played. hilarity, jest, and youthful jollity reigned and loquacity ran rampant. Even those of inherent dignity and noble bearing, the heritage from forbearers generations remote, forgot these virtues in the informality of the revelry.

The prizes of the evening for the best costumes were won by Red and Irish who had just arrived that evening via hoof and bumpers from their respective as well as respectable villages of Anselmo and Opportunity—both starting with capital letters. Red, so called by reason of his ruddy complexion when around the ladies, received a small can of lubricating oil which is now the rage as a hair dressing. Irish became the recipient of a complete set of hand engraved, infold celluloid collar buttons made by Tiffany & Company of Shoes.

The latter part of the program was devoted to Santa Claus. This part was especially enjoyed by those who have not as yet been disillusioned as to the reality of that jolly fellow. The part of Santa Claus was admirably filled, almost to overflowing, might say, by local talent. It is our good fortune to have among us this year one to whom nature has been kind in designing him to fill the role alluded to. He meets every specification—rotundity, corpulency, a jocund cackle and a heart of unalloyed gold. Useful gifts ranging in value from less than nothing to 2½ Russian kopecks were dispensed in profusion. That there was ever any romance in Santa's sweet young life came as a surprise to us and possibly to others. Such is true however, for did you not notice how he reserved one present until a certain flaxon-haired damsel fled by and then with a most enaming smile bestowed it on her? As a clue we might mention that the present was a candy bar.

Considerable ado was created when it was discovered that two bricks of ice cream had been stolen from the larders. Our school detective, Sharklock Holmes, is working on the case (also a case of home brew) and claims he has several ingenious clues. Suspicion naturally falls on the faculty where it belongs beyond all peradventure of a doubt. However, if any of the students are guilty, general amnesty and pardon will be granted and no questions asked if the ice cream is returned intact to the Pettit Chien Club Rooms.
