WAYNE FIREMEN IN ANNUAL MEETING TUESDAY

Tuesday evening the Wayne volunteer firemen met for their annual election of officers, and complimented and approved the action of the old officers in the highest and most complimentary manner—they re-elected them. They are as follows:

Chief.....Martin Ringer
Assistant Chief.....P. L. Mabbot
Foremen.....

Lynn McClure and Carl Bengston Secretary.....Fred Benshoof
Treasurer.....W. O. Hanssen

The Wayne department for fire fighting is efficient now, compared to what it was ten years ago. Then it consisted of two hose carts and a hook and ladder truck, and an inadequate supply of hose that was not sure to hold much pressure. The organization was not very active, for they had no proper place for meeting. Headquarters for the firemen and the council was in an iron building on leased ground—just sheet iron on a frame with a little room enclosed in one end to be used for meetings of both firemen and the city council. Of its value one may judge from the fact that when the present city hall was completed and ready for occupancy the old structure was sold at auction to the highest bidder, and brought the total of $25, and as one fireman remarked, the buyer was the loser, and well knew it before he had the building wrecked and disposed of.

Today the firemen have a comfortable well-furnished room for their meetings, and the equipment consists of the old carts, the hook and ladder, a chemical and two trucks loaded with the necessary material for fighting fire, and when the whistle starts the boys out they are at the scene of the fire anywhere in the city within five minutes.

THE ANNUAL RAILROAD INSPECTION NOW ON

Tuesday a special train carrying the officials and their assistants and stenographers and their special men was thru Wayne several times. They are making the annual official inspection to see the condition of everything from track to station, from water-tank to handcar—to check up on conditions of all repair work ordered, and determine what is most needed in the way of repair. They were over the line from here to Norfolk, to Bloomfield and return, and then east from here.

Three cars were with them besides a baggage car, and the officials in the party were W. A. Trenholm, vice president; J. J. O'Neill, general manager; F. R. Perchin, general superintendent; C. E. Blundell, superintendent of this division; J. M. O'Brien, general inspector; Geo. Boyce, superintendent of telegraph, and E. J. Carland, freight and passenger division agent of Omaha.

THE NEW PARTY MAY BE DIVIDED

According to a letter in today's World Herald, from W. J. Taylor, there is a move on foot to call another meeting of the signers of the call for the new or progressive party, at Grand Island. It seems that quite a number who went into the new party because they believed there was and is a work for such an organization, do not think the proposed fusion move with the democrats or any other party is the proper way to get results, and so it is proposed to call a meeting not later than the 15th or 16th of this month. Those interested may learn the movement by watching the daily papers.

The body found in the Missouri near Macy is believed to be that of a deputy sheriff from York county, who disappeared six years ago, while supposed to be coming home with a prisoner from Montana. The prisoner was later killed in a gun battle with officers in Michigan. John Affebach of York was the missing man, and the theory is that he was murdered by his prisoner and the body sunk in the Yellowstone river near its junction with the Missouri.

Mrs. Marian McRae, who has been making an extended stay with her son-in-law at the C. M. Madden home left this morning for Rapid, North Dakota, and after a visit there will go to Ekalaka, Montana, where she will make her home with her daughter Mrs. Scott. She was accompanied as far as Sioux City by Mrs. Clyde Oman.

BASE BALL FOR WAYNE THIS SEASON

At the meeting called for the purpose of getting a baseball organization under way, at the community building Monday night, the attendance was good, and an executive committee was named to secure pledges of funds, for the purpose of paying legitimate expenses, and a committee of three was named to become the responsible head of the organization. E. D. Bichel, Wm. Jenkins and C. H. Christenson; and a committee under their direction has been busy for one day soliciting and report that not less than $1,200 is pledged, and the territory not near covered yet.

One of those interested in the sport tells us that we may assure the people of a real team. That there are now three residents here who have won their spurs in league organizations, who will be a part of the team, and that if necessary a battery will become Wayne residents. Besides there are any number of the boys who are noted for playing a good game in any of several positions.

The committee on grounds are not yet ready to report which of several desirable places will be selected. The first game is not yet scheduled, and will not be until there has been a little time for practice, so that they may enter the season with hope of winning the first game, as well as a lot of others.

Play ball. Lend your support to the boys. Have an interest in it and see to that it is run right.

DEATH OF HENRY GARDNER

Henry Gardner, who for ten years or more was a resident of Wayne and vicinity, who went last fall to visit his son and daughter and a brother and sister in western Oregon, was taken ill of pneumonia, while visiting at the home of his sister in Portland, and lived but a few hours dying at the home of the sister February 22, 1922, at the age of 78 years and 12 days. We have but little of his life history, except that he was born in Indiana, and gradually immigrated west, and made his home at Wayne, for a number of years, moving to Emerson about 1916, when he was united in marriage to Mrs. who survives him.

A son and daughter in Oregon a sister and a brother are also living in that state, and part of them were at his funeral, which was held there, and where burial was had. Wayne people will remember Mr. Gardner as an industrious citizen, and a worthy one. During his stay at Emerson he had charge of the city pump plant for a number of years, until failing health incident to his advancing years made it necessary for him to retire from active work.

CHANGING THIS WEEK

When the Orr & Orr Co. locked their store doors Saturday night it was not to open them again for retail trade in this place where for the past 16 years they have been identified with retail merchandising. Monday morning the store was closed for invoicing, and when it shall again be open for trade it will be under the direction and ownership of L. G. Larson from Mitchell, South Dakota, and Russell L. Larson of Randolph, who is to become the manager of the business here, while the father, L. G. Larson will return to Randolph and again assume charge of their business at that place. Their home paper speaks of them as splendid citizens and efficient business men.

When asked Wednesday as to their opening here, they were not far enough along with the work of invoice to state when, but we are told that the work is progressing rapidly, so it is reasonable to expect that it will not be long until the store will again be open to the public.

OMAHA'S BUSINESS SECTION MENACED BY EARLY BLAZE

Omaha, Nebraska, May 3.—Fanned by a stiff breeze that drove billows of dense smoke upon the firemen, hindering their efforts, and sent showers of burning embers through the air, menacing nearby structures, fire early today destroyed a three-story brick building in the heart of the downtown business section. Loss from the fire, origin of which has not been determined, is estimated at $200,000.

The fire was discovered at 3 o'clock in the basement of the Buehler Brothers' meat market at 1707 Douglas street and quickly spread to the second and third stories occupied by a barber supply firm. The steady outpouring of smoke was a shield behind which the flames gained headway before firemen from virtually every station in the city and using all available apparatus brought it under control at 4 o'clock.

Two firemen were slightly injured by broken glass. They are E. Bloomer and Clarence Brewer, both of whom were removed to hospitals and later to their homes.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE"

This is the title of three-act comedy which is to be presented by the pupils of the Wayne high school at the community house Tuesday evening, May 16th. It is said to be one of the cleverest plays ever presented in New York. It has been considered good enough to be considered a winning attraction on the chautauqua platform—a clever plot and clean comedy. There is no fiction in the play—the parts taken have all been taken from facts proven in the business world. One familiar with the play says that it is one which every business man should see—implying that he might profit from seeing the same and heeding its lessons.

The play will be presented by the pupils of the school, and coached by the superintendent, and the fact that the cast is made up of young folks you know should add a local interest to the event. The proceeds, too go to home benefit, the athletic association being enriched by the earnings of the evening.

We have been given the following brief list of the cast, and comment: Harold Preston working with Henry Ley in the parts of Rodney Martin and Andrew Peale are doing excellent work. Veneta Kopp as the French girl has a role for which she is well adapted and which she does well. Phyllis Lewis as Mary the clever office girl, is all that the occasion demands. Paul Crossland takes the part of Cyrus Martin, the soap king, and wears the crown well. It is possible that we may give you some other items of the coming play next week, for "it pays to advertise."

LD COLLEGE RESTAURANT NEW

S. B. Whitmore from Orchard has purchased the old college restaurant building, and is to wreck the building and use the material in the construction of a new residence he expects to build at Wayne in the near future. He has let a contract to Claud Ferrel for the construction of a new building for the restaurant. The plans for the building specify a tile block building 34x60 feet, with basement beneath half of it, and the contract price is a little over $3,000 without furnace or plumbing. Beyond a doubt there is need of such a building and field for such business near the college, and we are glad it is soon to be under way.

It is also reported that Mr. W. is to build a large new residence for his home folks and perhaps a few roomers.

STANTON YOUTH MAKES OWN RADIO OUTFIT

Hugh Bowman, son of Frank Bowman, and a freshman in the high school, 16 years old, has built his own radiophone complete and it works, too. He lives in the country but attends the local high school.

Having lots of ambition and ingenuity, but little money, he built his own apparatus. An audion bulb and the necessary wire is all that he has had to buy. He has made the rest.

His home made set is just as efficient as any that cost twenty times as much. On Sunday last, the only time that he is at his home in the country, where he has his set installed, he caught a man speaking in Omaha and several other radio stations.

Speaking of Bowman here today a friend said: "He doesn't use cigrarets. His mind is too full of things worth while for such foolishness. He is withal a clean chap. Call him a man, for he is not that that term implies except in years and experience. He is just the boy that you would wish for a son and as the future husband of your daughter when that time comes. You would like him whether he ever made a radio outfit or not. But he made it, nevertheless, and he is a fine fellow to boot."

"Not so long ago, considering the achievements of the last century, many were asking themselves, what next? Will the present century, be able to keep the pace set by the last? Yes, and set a new one. Watch these Hugh Bowmans. It is such as they who are the pacemakers. They are on the way. They don't get their inspiration from a cigaret nor indulge in doubtful dissipation. They have a worthy aim and are altogether too busy to sidestep."—Norfolk Daily News.

J. C. Worth and family have moved here from Fairfield, Iowa, and are occupying the Chas. Madden residence. Mr. Worth is a representative of the Farm Journal of Philadelphia, and was sent to this territory to work in the interest of that publication. He stated that he picked his location for headquarters wholly from the map, as he had never heard of our little city that he remembered of until assigned to this territory. That may perhaps be as much the fault of Wayne as of Mr. Worth. It is the belief of some that Wayne, in common with a lot of Nebraska towns, does not make a big enough noise about its possibilities, and the opportunities it affords. From the map it might have been just as easy for Mr. Worth to have put his pin down on Emerson, Wakefield, Laurel or Randolph as Wayne, for they all appear much alike so far as railroad maps look. He is, however, much pleased with his selection, and the rich farming country of this part of Nebraska. Incidentally, he remarked that he would have need of a half-dozen men in his territory this season.

Friday evening is the regular meeting of the "Yeomen," and they say to tell 'em that there will be a good time, as usual. Two weeks from that night will be another open session, and it is said that an orator of other days is booked for a part on the program at that time, unless he is unable to "come back."

A Belden man claims that he got 21 eggs a day from 19 hens. Well, we quote an Ohio hen story in another place that might explain this one. The paper telling the story intimates that the owner of the hens might have stolen some of the eggs; but the Ohio version is more simple, and easily understood.
According to the Stanton Register, a farm tract of 193 1/2 acres a mile east of that place sold for $3,800, and the purchaser planned to build a house thereon. But that was in 1899, or 23 years ago. The same paper that told of this sale spoke of great ranches in Stanton and Colfax counties, where now there is nothing but farms. Another item tells that the editor of that day that he "had 'em", for on entering his office one morning he saw a green snake with beady eyes and a forked red tongue coiled about his ink bottle. After he recovered from the shock, and rubbed his eyes and made a hurried mental invoice of what he had been drinking the night before, he discovered that it was a freak cucumber which one of his friends had found in the garden, and fixed up a bit to look more like the real thing than before, and sent it in with his compliments to the editor.

MUNSING WEAR

Yes, indeed, now that it's warmer you will be checking up on your Summer supply of undergarments. We checked up on our hot season stock of Munsingwear early enough so we are all ready to provide exactly what you need now.

Most men prefer Munsingwear because they know how splendidly it is made and how well it wears. But some don't know as much about the Munsingwear Woven Fabric Athletic Styles as they do about Munsingwear Knit Union Suits.

If you are one of the latter class, come in today and let us show you what "genuine satisfaction" means when you buy Summer underwear.

Prices certainly are reasonable for such fine merchandise as Munsingwear.

War is again to be started. This time on illiteracy. It is estimated that about one in six of the adult population of this country is not able to read or write. The coming crusade hopes to reduce this number to a minimum in the next ten years. Well, they can help a lot—but it will take longer than ten years for some of the illiterates to die off. Just keep any new ones from growing into the ranks of adults who can neither read or write, and the question is soon settled. Twenty years will make a great difference in the ratio of illiterates.
It has been decreed by a court that a Jewsharp is not a musical instrument. The court may so hold, but as the writer remembers his grandfather whanging away on one of those instruments, back in the days when none of the homes had a phonograph, not one in a hundred had an organ, piano or violin or accordion, the Jewsharp was a musical instrument, and grandfather was a musician. At any rate it made a noise, and while it may not pass as very classic music today, it was good enough to dance by in those days—but the musician could not call off and play at the same time.

Friday will be an unlucky day for rats, if the plans carry to exterminate them—and not even leave a pair to start from. But then, there will be some old, cunning rats that will not bite on their poisoned dope with which the place is to be strewn.

You Should Know EXACTLY Which Grade of Motor Oil to Use

IT sometimes happens that an unusual operating condition in a given make of motor makes advisable the use of a grade of motor oil which would not have been used had the motorist used ordinary methods of selection or followed casual advice.

The matter of finding precisely the right lubricants for your motor—for everybody's motor—seemed so necessary to this company that our experts examined the entire field of automotive equipment; testing, checking and re-testing, until a chart of specifications was evolved which makes it impossible for you to go wrong.

This chart, called the Polarine Chart, is printed in the Red Crown Road Map, which has been mailed to every Nebraska motorist. If you have not received it, write direct to the company. A brief glance at the chart will tell you which grade of Polarine you should use. Follow the specifications consistently and much of the overhauling, replacement of worn or broken parts, burned out bearings and other expensive and unnecessary repair jobs will be eliminated.

Polarine Oil is made in four grades—medium light, medium heavy, heavy, and extra heavy—but only one quality. Get the proper grade for your car—at the same place you buy clean-burning, scientifically balanced Red Crown Gasoline.

An exchange published up on the Burlington tells that it is proposed to put a ban on track peddling, in the interest of safety. The claim is made that it is dangerous to permit goods to be sold from the cars, and also that the portable elevators by means of which grain may be loaded into the cars without paying tribute to the elevator may be ordered discontinued. Well, the railroads should be made to provide some conveniences for the people who pay the freight. They might put in a spur where the danger of being bumped and hurt would be reduced to the minimum. We cannot have two railroads to every town, but we should have a government regulation which would make the one railroad do that which they would be glad to do, if they had opposition which would compel them to do such things to retain their business.

MILTON JAMES, PENDER, DIES
Milton James, for the past twenty-six years a citizen of Thurston county, died at his Pender home last week at the age of 68 years. He was a good citizen, interested in the cause of education, and was instrumental in his early days in that vicinity in establishing the first public school on the Indian reservation bordering near Pender. He was also one of the prime movers in having religious services conducted on the reservation. He was also a member of the Masonic lodge and the Modern Woodmen at Pender. The funeral services from the Presbyterian church last week Sunday were largely attended.

WHAT NEIGHBOR TOWNS ARE DOING

At Emerson they have ordered $5,000 worth of fire fighting equipment—an engine equipped with 1,000 feet of hose, a pump to re-enforce the city pressure when needed. They have also mounted their chemical on a motor truck, and feel that they are thus equipped to get to a fire very promptly and when there be equipped so that they can do efficient work. They expect their equipment next month, and are talking of having a jollification when the day arrives. Another thing that Emerson people are looking to as an offset for their $5,000 investment is a lower insurance rate. We hope they get that, for that should follow as a natural result, but we doubt if they get it. Wayne risk from fire has been reduced by better fighting equipment, by the elimination of some old fire-trap buildings, by a large paved district which makes it possible at most any time to get into action against a fire in very short time after it is discovered—and yet the insurance seems to cost as much or more than before.

Emerson people feel that they have had their full share of grief in the matter of needing hospital attention, as no less than five of their citizens have been cared for in Sioux City hospitals. They should learn to look this way, when in need of a hospital. Wayne has one that is said to be as good as the best, and those who must be at such a place are loud in praise of the care they receive.

Over at Pender, when they cannot stand the conditions longer they move away or commit suicide.

Clyde Lake of Emerson, who is one of the republican candidates for the nomination as sheriff in Dakota county, has been arrested for operating a still. Not only arrested, but convicted and fined $1,000 and sentenced to six months in jail, finishing up on a bread and water diet. If the judge had left him out, and he could have continued business he might have gotten the nomination, if he would have been liberal with the hootch.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE AT PENDER

Last week Pender patrons of the city school voted on the question of issuing $100,000 bonds for a new school building, and it carried by a vote of 285 to 137. No school was held election day and the pupils were out parading the street with banners and placards asking that the voters provide them a new school home.

The Times gives a cut of the proposed building, with plans of the floors from basement up. According to these plans Pender is to have a fine modern school building. Now will come the selection of the site, and a number are proposed. Some want the building on the hill where it will "show off". Others want it in down town district. One man says west of the park as a compromise location between town and hill locations. The question of disposing of the old building and the old site will also have to be settled.

A writer in Scribner's magazine declares that it now costs from five to ten dollars for every game played on the typical golf course. One who rides for thirty or forty miles out from New York, pays the customary green fees or a regular membership, engages a skilled caddy who will sulk unless he receives a liberal tip in addition to a generous fee, and indulges in a round or two of refreshments after the game is over, may find very little left out of a ten dollar bill when he reaches his home. But that is not real American golf. Men who carry their own bags and are content with a drink of pure water at the nineteenth hole are able to get along comfortably for about one-tenth of the figure that seems to be common around the metropolis. A sharp education has taken place this spring in the cost of balls and other equipment. A little more sense in other expenditures can be introduced generally to the great benefit of the game. The future of golf in this country depends largely on whether it can be made an economical and democratic institution. It is a wonderful game for boys and young men, and it would be a piece of national folly to keep them off the links by a tradition of extravagance.—State Journal.

According to late news reports the president is puzzled by the proposed bonus legislation—so are the ex-service men. Another account says that the president will not approve the bill as it is being drafted with the proposed senate changes from the house bill. Thus the soldier lad waits for his proper reward.

A news item states that the people of this country spend annually one hundred million dollars for buttons, and that in addition to that our button makers have contributed $16,000,000 worth of buttons to the people of other countries—at so much per button, of course. We wonder if the button and the button manufacturer are properly "protected" by the proposed tariff law.

A few years ago the party in power was ruptured because of too many would-be leaders. Today it seems to lack leaders—and it is simply drifting. Nor has the hour appeared to bring out a leader for the minority party who is able to make a showing against the special interests that appear to be in the saddle at Washington. The republicans need a leader, and so too do the people.

Coming back to Nebraska. That is what we saw the other day. A father and two daughters who had gone west to grow up with the country. They left this part of Nebraska three years ago with two car loads of stock and machinery and household goods. They bought a farm, and tried two crops. One dried out—the other hailed out; and their pile had all petered out. They brought back in two trunks all they had to begin over again with, in what looks to them like God's country. They were near their journey end at Wayne. Yet they were perhaps no harder hit, but from a different angle, than many a farmer and renter in all parts of this state, when the money power elected to deflate the currency. Uncle Sam should not delegate the money control to Wall street men.

BULL MOOSE GHOST COMES TO LIFE IN INDIANA ELECTION

The latest returns from Indiana states that the managers of the Senator New campaign admit his defeat by approximately 20,000 majority. The news dispatches following from the Wednesday papers indicate the significance of this defeat to the party in power. They show that the contest within the party was really whether or not the republicans of Indiana approve the course of congress and the president in the first 14 months of their administration. They do not get the o. k. of their own party: Indianapolis, Indiana, May 2 (United Press)—Rain threatened over Indianapolis today as the final mad scramble for votes began in the most spectacular primary battle in Hoosier history. Half a million voters went to the polls to decide whether a vote of confidence should be given President Harding by nominating his close friend and loyal supporter, Harry S. New, as republican candidate for United States Senator. New stands for re-nomination on the basis of the administration's record.

The old republican-bull moose fight came to bat in the Indiana primary elections again today. Ex-Senator Albert J. Beveridge, chairman of the progressive convention in Chicago, and always identified with the progressive element in Indiana politics, is seeking the toga of Senator Harry S. New, standpatter. President Harding's policies are at stake. Senator New has received the president's passive, if not active support in the race. They are close personal and political friends and were colleagues in the senate before the general elections in November, 1920, which swept Harding into the White House.

Beveridge's declarations indicate if he goes through the primary unscathed and is victorious in the general election next November, he will play the role of the proverbial bull in the china shop. His policies in many respects are divergent to those of Senator New, although Beveridge has professed loyalty to Harding. New stands on his record and squarely on the activities of congress as now indicated. Beveridge advocates a reform in national tax laws to remove burdensome taxes from legitimate business, reduction in railroad rates, passage of the soldier bonus, repeal of the Sherman and Adamson laws, and disbandment of senatorial "blobs."

TREASON IN WEST VIRGINIA
The following from the New York World evidently disqualifies the World editor and staff from being accepted to serve on a jury in the treason trials now being carried on in West Virginia. The World does not seem to recognize the fact that it is the miners of the union who are on trial, not the operators and the corporation officials who are back of the prosecution or persecution. The World should be more discriminating.

Seven hundred and fifty miners and union officials are on trial in West Virginia for treason, conspiracy, murder and on other charges growing out of the attempted march through Logan county into Mingo last September. The indictments were prepared in Logan county, but it was obvious that no miner could get anything resembling justice in a county owned from top to bottom by the operators, and therefore the defendants were granted a change of venue which transferred the cases to Jefferson county, at the eastern tip of the state.

Jefferson county is largely populated by farmers; the juries will be farmer juries. Let us hope they will see the humor of indictments for treason and conspiracy drawn up against miners by the operators of a county which those operators govern like a feudal earldom in the years before King John. The men who overthrew the republican form of government in Logan county, who control the sheriff of the county and pay his deputies, who habitually employ intimidation and violence to prevent the spread of unionism, who have wiped out freedom of speech and of assembly in their territory and who frankly admit these facts on the witness stand are charging treason against the miners who tried to march across Logan in protest against the tyranny that existed and still exists there.

While they are on the subject of treason the courts of West Virginia should ask who was first guilty in Logan county of treason against the state and federal government and to the constitution of the United States, which guarantees liberties abrogated in that county by the operators. The operators have taken over government throughout the county; they are the government. If there has been treason on the part of the miners it was treason against the operators. If there has been rebellion it was rebellion against usurpation and the autocracy of corporations whose gunmen are no less gunmen for wearing the deputy sheriff's shield.

Pupils who drop out of school before the year is over cannot expect to be promoted to the next grade for the next year. They should be held every time in the grade where they were the year before until they have completed the work of the one or two months in the course of study that they missed at the end of the year before.

THE NEBRASKA TAX REFORM CLUB CONSTITUTION

Preamble

Nebraska taxpayers will remember those historic words uttered by an ex-president more than forty years ago. "We are confronted today by a condition, and not a theory." This condition today, exactly relates to the taxpayers of Nebraska. Theories must stand aside for facts. Federal taxes have increased eight times since 1913. State taxes have increased seven times since 1917. The public indebtedness has increased in eight years from $50 per capita to more than $300 for every man, woman, and child in the country. State taxes have increased in Nebraska in the last fourteen years more than 500%, while the valuation of property has increased only 81%. The cost of our state government in 1918 reached the enormous sum of $9,751,366, but it mounted in 1920 to the appalling sum of $22,637,781. We have demanded more money for public boards. We have multiplied the activities of government. We have doubled public salaries. We have suddenly awakened to the stubborn fact that bonds, mortgages, and high salaries must be paid in taxes.

This is only a part of the story. War's reconstruction brought lowered prices of farm products and labor. The panic closed the doors of many banks and brought to the farmers and laborers of this state the greatest distress they have ever experienced. The homes of the people are in jeopardy. Many of their families are in want.

The cry of distress went up for relief while the 1920 legislation was in session. The answer of that legislature to those cries of distress is found in the bill passed by that legislature known as Senate file No. 65—a new revenue law. While the people so much needed relief from their burdens, the legislature passed that Senate file 65 which exempted from taxation more than a billion five hundred million dollars of the best property in Nebraska.

Under the old law if a man had a $20,000 farm it was taxed at $20,000. Under the new law if a man had $20,000 in cash, in bank, in stocks in any corporation, chattel mortgages outside the state, the tax on these splendid securities, owned largely by the money lenders, is taxed at just 25% of its actual value, and the other 75% is absolutely exempted by this law from taxation. Seventy-five per cent of all these properties amount in the aggregate to more than $1,500,000,000 and the story of exemption is not yet told. Nebraska has $509,000,000 of real estate mortgages that have been exempted from taxation for more than seven years. Just when will the commercial interests ask us to exempt the balance?

The slogan of the Nebraska tax reform club must be "The right to the protection of government can come only through the support of government. There is no room in Nebraska for a Tax Dodger."

That unjust law must be repealed, and in its stead a law must be enacted that will bring to the taxpayers of Nebraska the realization of our slogan.

To this end we invite every man and woman who believes in justice and equality before the law, without regard to past political affiliations to join the Nebraska taxpayers in this effort to reduce both taxes and expenses and to write a revenue law upon our statutes that will assure exact justice to every taxpayer in the state.

Constitution ARTICLE I

The name of this association shall be "THE NEBRASKA TAX REFORM CLUB".

ARTICLE II Objects

The object of this association is to unite the overburdened taxpayers of Nebraska in the election of a Governor, state officials, and legislators pledged to a reduction of the tax burdens of the state without qualification or equivocation, and to bring the cost of government within the reach of the reasonable incomes of the people.

ARTICLE III Membership

The membership of this organization shall be open to every voter in Nebraska, man and woman alike who wants honest and efficient revenue laws, and the strictest economy in the administration of the affairs of state.

ARTICLE IV Officers

The officers of this association shall consist of a president, secretary, and treasurer whose duties shall be the same as devolve similar officers in similar associations, and their term of office shall continue for at least one year.

ARTICLE V Central Organization Head

The chairman of the Progressive party of Nebraska shall be the official head of the Nebraska Tax Reform Club, and he shall appoint not less than six assistants either men or women from groups of organized farmers and laborers as he may see proper. The chairman and his assistants shall so organize and conduct the campaign as to have an official head for PUBLICITY, for MEMBERSHIP, and for FINANCE, and for any other function that may be needed for bringing the organization into complete efficiency and harmony.

SENIORS ENTERTAIN JUNIORS AT ANNUAL BANQUET

(From The Goldenrod)

The gymnasium, magically transformed into a spacious, gaily decorated ship, was the scene of irrefragable jollity Saturday evening, April 22, when the seniors very capably entertained the juniors. The insistent ringing of a bell summoned the merrymakers from dancing. Cautiously they made their way up the doubtful gang-plank, traversed the upper-deck two by two, and haltingly descended to the banquet room below via the spiral stairway. Grace Mead's violin replaced the bell's metallic beat and furnished agreeable music during the confusion of finding places. Miss Mead pleasantly filled the lull between courses with more music.

At last even the laggards found their places. "Hunt" called out greetings to the juniors and everyone was seated. Apparently untroubled by seasickness each did his share in disposing of the following appetizing menu:

- Fruit Cocktail
- Veal Loaf with Tomato Sauce
- Mashed Potatoes
- Gravy
- Head Lettuce with Thousand Island Dressing
- Parkhouse Rolls
- Jam
- Ice Cream
- Angel Cake
- Coffee
- Mints

Feeble witticisms, gay conversation, school gossip and endless chatter made the evening one of pure enjoyment.

Between courses the guests had an opportunity to scan with appreciative eye the decorations of the ship. Senior class colors, junior class colors and school banners were bravely displayed from the ceiling. White roses, white sweet peas and lanterns of gold and purple decorated the tables, which were arranged in the form of a huge "W". The nut cups were dainty life-boats of purple and gold.

Skipper Rundell as Master of Ceremonies, spun many a sea yarn and kept the passengers continuously mirthful. The toast of Captain Conn dealt with "Orders" and was followed by Stoker Thomas, alias Melvin Thomas, president of the senior class, and his flattering remarks about "The crew". "Mates" was the subject of Second Mate Talbot's toast and well did she expound it. Commander Piper from long experience dilated upon the dread meaning of "Lights Out"; Midshipman Jones guided the good ship "Wayne" safely through enveloping "storms" without loss of life or limb. Steward Bowen relieved Midshipman Jones of his responsibility and amid gales of laughter took the ship farther on its way into unknown and mysterious life. "Buoys" and boys (a few girls, too) were wittily and learnedly discussed by Lieutenant Fulton, and Pilot Hunter started everyone upon "Other Voyages."

Before sailing out upon the first journey, which was to the salon of the ship, an undignified raid was made upon the tables. The raiders annexed souvenirs which were legitimately theirs and some that were otherwise. Satisfied with their trophies the dismantled banquet hall was vacated and the banqueters streamed below deck.

All too quickly did the minutes fly. At a discreet hour adieus were said, souvenirs collected and merrymaking ceased. Juniors expressed delight over the pleasant evening which was due to the efforts of the seniors. To the girls who did the serving a vote of thanks is due for their faithful work.

EVERY LITTLE WEEK HAS A MOVEMENT OF ITS OWN

(From The Goldenrod)

While everyone has been so earnestly discussing fads during the past winter and spring such as goloshes, bobbed hair and smoking, probably one little fad which lately has gained considerable momentum has almost been overlooked in the "Great Maelstrom of Discussion" namely, that of some little movement for every week.

Perhaps to a certain extent national weeks such as "Music Week", "Poetry Week", "Pay your Debtors week", etc. do attract people's attention for the moment to the purposes involved in these various movements, yet we often wonder just how lasting and valuable the results of such movements are and just how large a scope beyond the personal satisfaction of the instigators the benefits of these national weeks involve. It seems to us that everyone could render a much more valuable service to himself and to his fellowmen by judicious participation in these movements during every week in the year instead of waiting for someone to institute a particular time for carrying out the idea.

This matter was very cleverly commented on in an April issue of the Kansas City Star:

Everybody will rejoice at the success of the movement to secure President Harding's approval of a "Be Kind to Animals Week."—The president's letter to the Humane association in which he heartily indorses the project will set at rest the fears of those who had taken the pessimistic view that he might denounce kindness to animals.

The project can now go forward with every prospect of success. The week of April 24 has been fixed, and the date will be extensively advertised so that nobody will make the mistake of being kind to animals out of season. That date was selected, it is understood, as it was the only one that would not conflict with other weeks already set aside for particular purposes. The National Bureau for the Identification and Codification of What to Do and When Weeks has not, we understand, completed its work, and until its report has been published there may be some unavoidable confusion in the celebration of these national weeks.

The association that is promoting "Be Kind to Animals Week" will issue special instructions before the date set. It is believed that persons who desire to observe the week, but have no animals to be kind to, will be permitted to be kind to each other, if they can produce the necessary proof that this is the best they can do.

GOATS' MILK CHEESE IS HAILED AS ELIXIR

Let the famed interstitial goat gland give way to Norwegian goat milk cheese as an elixir of life.

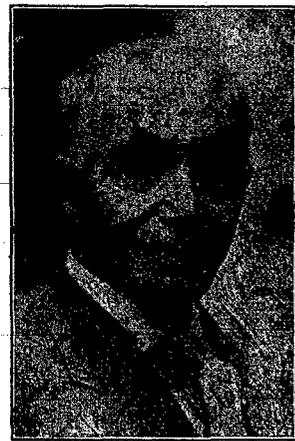

Thin and sickly people, the aged, undernourished and tubercular people, according to O. Kavil, representing the Norwegian department of Agriculture, Bergen, Norway, will find health and vitality in goat milk cheese.

"It is too bad," said Kavil, "Americans do not eat cheese every day. Here one seldom finds cheese of any kind on the table, let alone goat cheese.

"And the result: Americans have too many ailments. They must consult their physician too often. They die too early.

"But in Norway every home has cheese on the table twice a day. It aids their digestion, whips up their appetite and makes the men strong and the women plump. There, too, the people do not die until around the century mark. In fact, Norway has a lower death rate than any country in the world and cheese—goat cheese—deserves the credit."

Nebraska farmers, who grow sheep appear to have got the knack of pooling their wool for market. This has been done by counties in the past, and now a plan is afoot to make the pool a statewide affair. At their coming meeting the wool men will be tempted, no doubt, to hurrah for the proposed new wool tariff. Wool is one agricultural product which we do not produce in sufficient quantity to supply the home market. An import duty on wool has the effect, accordingly, of increasing the price of wool to the producer. Unfortunately for agriculture as a whole, this increases the price of clothing to all farmers not engaged in sheep raising. An added evil is the fact that by the time the higher priced wool has gone thru the several hands which carry it to the consumer the latter will have paid as a result of the duty two or three times what the farmer gets out of it. A wool subsidy cannot be so pyramided and so would be preferable to a wool tariff. Unfortunately the subsidy is politically inexpedient because it cannot be camouflaged. The cost of the tariff, on the other hand, is buried in the price of the article. The consumer will not be skilled in tracing the high cost to its cause, its discontent will have no direct political consequences.—State Journal.

SAYS OIL STRATA IN NEBRASKA FAR BELOW All Efforts So Far To Find Oil And Gas In State Have Proven Futile

The same general series of rocks that are producing oil and gas in Wyoming and Kansas also outcrop and underlie portions of Nebraska, but from approximately 75 deep wells that have been drilled in the state the results have been negative so far as obtaining oil and gas in paying quantities, declared E. F. Schramm, professor of geology at the University of Nebraska, in an address before the convention of the Nebraska academy of science, recently.

The large number of oil and gas fields discovered in Wyoming and Kansas, some of which are in the proximity of the Nebraska state lines, have stimulated prospecting in the state, Prof. Schramm stated, but outside of a small amount of gas found in a number of shallow wells drilled at Crawford and McCook, and a showing of oil in the Pierce shale in a Sioux county well and a test northeast of Chadron, the attempts to find oil or gas in paying quantities in Nebraska have been fruitless.

Some Good Formations

The Pennsylvania series of rocks, from which Kansas obtains most of its production, outcrop and underlie southeastern Nebraska, exposing good formations, shales and limestones, while the cretaceous formations outcrop along the Missouri and Niobrara rivers in the northwestern part of the state and also along the Republican river in the southern part and in the extreme northwestern corner of the state in Dawes county," asserted Prof. Schramm.

"A large number of the deep wells that have been drilled for the purpose of testing the sub-surface formations for oil and gas have been located blindly, and with little or no knowledge of the underlying structure," the speaker continued. "Of the approximately seventy-five wells drilled, they varied in depth from 500 to 5,700 feet, although hundreds of comparatively shallow wells varying from 100 to 500 feet also have been drilled. In none, however, has oil or gas been encountered in paying quantities.

"There are a number of localities in southeastern Nebraska that contain structures favorable for the accumulation of oil and gas. Approximately thirty deep wells have been drilled in this section with negative results, the deepest of which was drilled at Nebraska City to a depth of 2,862 feet. Two wells drilled near Table Rock and one at DuBois encountered Ingeous rock, which proves that the sub-surface granite ridge that crosses eastern Kansas extends into Nebraska. The deep wells drilled into the Pennsylvanian formations in this part of the state indicate that oil and gas is not likely to be found in commercial quantities.

Results Unfavorable

"The structures located in the northwestern and south-central parts of Nebraska also have been prospected with unfavorable results.

"The anticline prominently exposed west of Cambridge brings the underlying Graneros and Carlile formations close to the surface. These two formations carry most of the rich oil-bearing sands of Wyoming, but two or three deep wells drilled near the axis of the structure failed to show favorable indications.

"One of the most pronounced structures is located northeast of Chadron. To date, four wells have been drilled, in one of which a small amount of oil was found in the Dakota formation.

"Another well recently drilled in Sioux county on the Agate anticline went to 3,300 feet and was abandoned before the formations known to be oil bearing were reached.

"Few deep wells have been drilled in the sand hill region, but the unfavorable tests made to the east and west of this region would indicate similar results probably would prevail in this region, since it is underlain by the same formations."

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE CONDENSED

Eight million dollars are invested in the fox fur growing industry. A survey tells that at least 500 ranches are engaging in the business. Other fur bearing animals are also being grown in partial captivity, but the fox growing leads them all.

The department recommends a later cutting of alfalfa than is frequently the practice among growers. The cutting has found to be better if the cutting is deferred until the plant is in full bloom—rather than when the bloom is just beginning to show nicely.

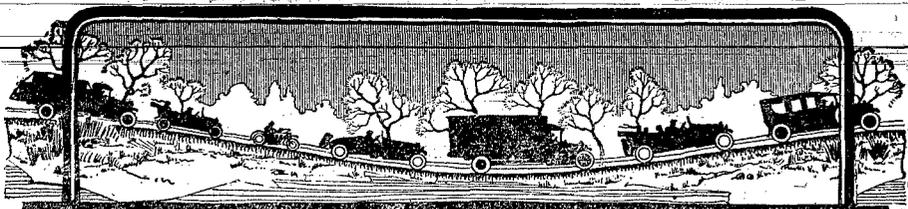

The bird-counting work of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, which was seriously decreased during the period of the war, is now being taken up more energetically, with the aid of many voluntary observers. Any interested persons who are familiar with the birds of their respective localities can contribute data in connection with this survey, which will extend over a number of years. The information which this study will furnish concerns not only the total bird population of the United States but also its fluctuations from year to year, and the effect of the present State and Federal laws on the increase of game and insectivorous birds.

Instructions for properly making a bird count will be sent, with report blanks, to anyone, upon application to the Bureau of Biological Survey. Officials hope that counts will be continued on all lands where they have been previously made. It is especially desired to obtain series of counts indicating bird life on the plains, the deserts, and in the southern and western states.

The height of the breeding season should be chosen for this work. In any locality the count should be made as soon as the birds are well settled on their nesting grounds, but not until after the end of the migration season. What is wanted is to learn how many pairs of birds actually nest within the selected areas. Birds that visit the area only for feeding purposes must not be counted. The best time to make the count is early in the morning when male birds are usually in full song, and each may safely be taken to represent a breeding pair. A 40- to 80-acre tract should be selected, representing average farm conditions without an undue amount of woodland or orchard. Information is desired in detail as to the character of the land surveyed. The bureau hopes that many persons interested in bird life will make one or more counts this season.

Moleskins are valuable when sold thru pools. In Washington and Oregon the boys and girls of the communities trap them, and get quite a revenue from them when properly marketed by co-operative work. To us it looks as tho the mole is so small that it would take the product of a county to form any considerable amount of surface. Besides getting a little revenue from the skin, the community from which they are taken is freed from a pest.

Model poultry houses on courthouse squares is a new means of demonstrating improved poultry practices. These houses are built according to blue prints furnished by extension workers employed cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. They are designed to be ideal for farm use, and are furnished with the proper equipment. The houses are built economically so that farmers may copy them, and are located on courthouse squares where county farm demonstration

THE INVERTED PYRAMID

Col. Smith W. Brookhart, one of the six republican candidates for the vacant seat in the United States senate from Iowa, has some very well defined ideas of what is the trouble with things in general in an economic way, but we did not see that he proposed any remedy in his speech before the commercial club of Iowa City recently, as reported in the Iowa Homestead, except "organization." He said that it is up to the farmers and the laboring people to organize, unite and stick and work together against the organized money power. We wish that we might give his talk in full as reported, and may perhaps do so another week.

He places the blame for the bump given the farmer and labor to a premeditated move to skin them, and they did it. He told of the wealth of Iowa farm interests, listed at 80 billions, and of credit allotted to them by the federal reserve was only 36 millions. One bank in Chicago was allotted 80 million dollars and one in New-York had an allotment of 145 millions.

While they set up the plea that no more credits could be given for lack of funds, later developments show, said the speaker, that there were at that time more than 1,200 million dollars available.

Some railroads are said to be defying the government rail labor board, and the employees are asking that the charters of such roads as violate their agreement be revoked and that the government assume the management of the roads.

FREE HIGH SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Pupils desiring to take advantage of the free high school attendance law must file written application with the county superintendent before the second Monday in June. These applications must be received every year. All who finish the eighth grade this year will be mailed application blanks which they must have filled out and properly signed and return. All others must see to it that they secure the necessary blanks from the superintendent of the school where they are attending or from this office.

Those who attended the high school last year will not be entitled to high school privileges for the ensuing year without making new application. Application may be made at any time within the forty day limit immediately preceding the annual meeting the second Monday in June. A diploma does not entitle the holder to free high school privileges, but application must be made on blanks procurable at this office.

TRANSFERS

Application for transfer must be made before the annual meeting. Quite often newcomers, especially if they be from other states, do not know the laws of our state and the matter is not attended to until too late. In case land is transferred from one district to another and the person so transferred removes, the land goes back to the original district.

The new tenant on the land must take out new transfer papers. This is not generally understood by school boards, the general opinion being that "once transferred, always transferred." School boards should notify all such newcomers that this is necessary and have them file the proper papers. Blanks for this purpose may be obtained from this office. To be transferred, a family must live at least a mile and a half from the school house in their own district and nearer to the school house in the adjoining district. Any one transferred to the district has a right to vote in that district on all school matters except that of issuing bonds.

GOLD SEALS

Pupils having received Gold Seals for an additional year's attendance are: Loretta Wacker, Elsie Fleer and Leona Schneider of Winside, Helen Davis of Carroll, Keith Reed of District 42, Alfred Krause of District 3, LaVerne Krause of Hoskins, Laura Puls of District 85, Dora Beuthien of District 31, Lillian Coon of District 81, and Helen Maas of District 86.

EIGHTH GRADE EXAMINATIONS

One hundred ninety six pupils took the examinations this year. The examinations will be held in the different towns again Thursday and Friday, May 4 and 5.

Pupils should take them at the same place that they did before and must be sure to use the same number. If they do not they will probably have trouble in getting their grades.

The program for the subjects and the rules governing the examinations will be exactly the same as in the April examinations.

THURSDAY
Forenoon: Grammar, English Composition, Writing
Afternoon: History, Physics, Physiology, Drawing

FRIDAY
Forenoon: Mental Arithmetic, Arithmetic, Bookkeeping
Afternoon: Orthography, Reading, Geography, Agriculture

Pupils who passed in all subjects are not to retake any. Papers will not be graded.

Those who failed in eight or more subjects are evidently not ready for the examinations and probably should not write again this year.

Pupils should take over again enough subjects to make sure of an average of 75 but should not take over those in which they have a grade of 80 or above.

They may keep the highest grade no matter when earned.

Pupils taking the examinations need not be marked absent.

It will be necessary for those who pass to come to the promotion exercises to get their diplomas. The diplomas will not be sent to them. The exercises will be held sometime around the last of May or first of June.

83 pupils passed in all subjects in this first examinations, 113 did not pass.

Following are the names of those who passed. The first forty had never taken any subject in any previous year.

FROM THE MONTH'S LETTERS

District 3. We gave our box social and program March 31st to a large crowd. The sale of the boxes amounted to $22.95. Next morning we photographed the pupils in their costumes of the previous evening. Ira George, teacher.

District 14. We had a little Easter party on Good Friday. Irene Spahr, teacher.

District 56. The pupils of my school gave me a birthday surprise a week ago Thursday. With the help of their parents they planned the refreshments and entertainment. It was surprising how well the little folks kept the secret. They enjoyed surprising their teacher as she had many times during the year given them surprises. Lauretta M. Whitney, teacher.

District 48. All of our purchases from the proceeds of the box social have arrived and are in use. Our proceeds were $20. We bought a new wire waste paper basket, one small and one large see-saw, a field base ball, two bats, one large and one small, one catcher's mitt and one pitcher's mitt. Marguerite Keeney, teacher.

District 53. A program and box social were given at our school Friday, April 20. The pupils with the assistance of others gave a most enjoyable program. A very large crowd was present.

ent. Proceeds of the social were $32.90, and will be used for books and supplies. Elsie Sydow, teacher.

District 75. We cleaned the yard and planted trees April 21. You are invited to visit school and to attend a reception given for the mothers of the pupils on Wednesday, April 26, 1:30 P. M. District 75. Frances Spahr, teacher.

District 26. We had a little party for the pupils last Friday afternoon from 2:30 to 4:00. Mrs. Robinson let me take them down to her home and she hid the Easter eggs for me, and we certainly enjoyed the hunt. I tried to have all Easter games and stunts and lunch. The pupils enjoyed it all immensely. Amanda Koerner, teacher.

District 54. Our school enjoyed a weinie roast last Monday afternoon. Mrs. A. J. Lynch assisted in entertaining the children. We played games after the roast and had a jolly time. Mary Pawelski, teacher.

District 46. We have three new desks and new black boards which are fine although they are not slate. Gladys Richards, teacher.

District 49. A play entitled "The Little Savage" and a box social were given Friday evening, March 17. It being St. Patrick's Day most of the boxes were green. The school house was packed, and people standing outside looking in through the windows. Proceeds amounted to $28.40. Ella Strate, teacher.

District 63. We gave a pie supper last November on the 10th. Had a lengthy program of about two hours. The night was stormy but a fairly large crowd attended. We took in $12.80. This was used to purchase construction paper, crayon, drawing and writing paper, besides a box of blocks showing the square, cone, rectangle, etc. Think we have enough left to buy new sash curtains. Annie Frink, teacher.

COMMENTS ON THE EIGHTH GRADE EXAMINATIONS

In the sixth question in arithmetic where some of the decimal numbers were to be written in words only about five or six pupils in the county wrote them correctly. They did not seem to know that the names of orders of decimals end in ths. How did you write them? How were they taught in your school?

If pupils had known how to put their problems down with some sort of a decent analysis they would have received higher grades.

The analysis of the five mental problems was not good. One child had 3 lb. 4 oz. of butter at 32c per lb. as costing $16.64.

We had some answers that we could not read, couldn't make them out, on account of poor writing. They counted as a zero.

Some pupils did not leave a line between questions.

We took off something where punctuation marks in headings of letters and in other places where needed were omitted.

Some pupils used abbreviations such as gov., rep., and agri., instead of words in writing out their answers. We deducted for this.

In English Composition one child had written ten sentences containing words given in the question but had not placed a period or a question mark after a single one. We took off two.

We found many abbreviations with no periods after them. We deducted for this.

In the drawing only two or three pupils gave the names of the rainbow colors in their order.

On one paper we found a drawing of a watermelon and a banana. We couldn't have told which was which, for they were of the same size and looked alike, only the child had remembered to write the name below each drawing.

Very few pupils answered correctly the last question in Civics. It was Name five Nebraska state executive offices.

In the sixth question in grammar it asked the pupils to name the parts of speech and give an example of each. It didn't ask for sentences. A good many wrote sentences but neglected to underline the words. We deducted for this.

There were very, very few good letters written in answer to questions in different subjects. Eighth graders should know how to write a letter correctly. They seem to forget for one thing that any punctuation marks are necessary. We found many places where a child would end one sentence and begin another on the same line but there were no periods or capitals to show where one ended and the other began. It would be necessary to read it over a time or two to try to figure out what the pupil was trying to say.

In history the questions frequently missed by the pupils were the ones on the "Spoils System", Civil Service, Missouri Compromise, Monroe Doctrine, "Squatter Sovereignty". When you studied it did you get and learn with the help of your teacher some definite facts about the subject something like the following: Missouri Compromise. I Time, 1820. Under Monroe's Administration. II Statement. Missouri shall be admitted as a slave state, but no state west of the Mississippi or north of the southern boundary line of Missouri (36 degrees 30 minutes North Latitude) shall be admitted as a slave state. (This was at the time of the debate on the extension of slavery west of the Mississippi River.) III Results. The slavery question was not again agitated in Congress for nearly thirty years. For the Monroe Doctrine, did you learn in class and put it down thus on your paper, The Monroe Doctrine is "America for Americans" or did you learn something like the following?

I Time 1823. Mexico and several South American countries had declared themselves republics, independent of Spain. The Czar of Russia and the European kings looked with a jealous eye on republics. We suspected that these rulers had promised to help the king of Spain to force the new American nations to bow their heads again under the old despotic yoke from which they had just freed themselves. President Monroe cried, "Hands off!"

II Statement. The United States will not interfere in the affairs of the Old World, neither will she permit the powers of the Old World to subdue any portion of the American Continent.

III Result. No foreign nation has since gained a permanent foothold in the New World.

HOW A FOREIGNER MAY BECOME A CITIZEN

He must make application before a clerk of the court stating that he wishes to become a citizen of the United States and he must renounce allegiance to the home country from which he comes. He must then be 18 years of age.

He must give his full name, age, occupation, the name of country from which he came, the name of the ship in which he crossed the ocean, and where he lives at the time. He then gets his first papers.

After two years he can get his second papers provided he has lived continuously in the United States for the preceding five years, at least the last year of which must have been spent in the state in which the application is filed.

He must be a person of good moral character. When he gets his second papers he must be over 21 years of age.

He must take to the court with him two friends who are citizens as witnesses that they have a personal knowledge of and will testify as to his having lived five years continuously in the United States and also as to his good moral character.

The applicant must be able to speak the English language unless physically unable to do so or unless he has a homestead on or public lands. The petition must be signed by the applicant in his own hand writing and among other things, if he has children, show the name, date and place of birth, and residence of each child living when the petition is filed, including all over the age of 21 years.

OF GENERAL INTEREST

District No. 63 reports no absences at all during the seventh month. Ten pupils are enrolled. Violet Meng is the teacher.

Mrs. Eva Erven who taught in Dist. 18 resigned her position on account of ill health. Miss Madeline Stanton will complete the school year.

WHY GOOD MEN QUIT

Go today into the Treasury department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, or into any other establishment of the government doing important technical work, and they will tell you that their chief difficulty is to retain competent employees in the supervisory and technical positions. Their turnover is abnormally high in these positions.

Every day men leave the service to accept private employment at materially increased salaries, so that the departments are continuously going through a process of selecting and training executives and technical employees, only to lose them, as they become really valuable, on account of the inadequacy of their compensation.

The second factor which contributes to the present ineffectiveness of the government as a business establishment is found in the improper organization of the executive branch of the government for effective service. You are familiar, at least in a general way, with the defects of the present administrative machinery.

You know for example, that the Interior department now has jurisdiction over a great number of bureaus of a miscellaneous character that have nothing to do with each other or with the functions which the Interior department was originally established to perform.

You know that many agencies have been located in the Treasury department, the great fiscal department of the government, which are purely non-fiscal in character, such as the coast guard, the public health service, the supervising architect's office and the bureau of war risk insurance.

You know that the great bulk of the civil public works of the government are executed under the supervision of the War department, although the bureau of public roads is located in the Department of Agriculture, and the reclamation service in the Department of the Interior.

You know, furthermore, of the independent existence outside the jurisdiction of any of the great executive departments of some 40-odd boards, commissions, offices and bureaus. These are merely examples of a condition that would require volumes to describe fully, but it is generally known that the executive branch of the government is at the present time illogically and uneconomically organized in many important particulars.

It should be remembered, however, that even with an ideal personnel and a perfect organization it is doubtful if the high degree of economy and efficiency that characterizes private business can ever be attained in the government offices. This is so because economies made by government officials are not transformed into dividends for themselves as they are in private business.

There is an impression in congress and throughout the country that men of great ability are not found in government service; that the salaries are not sufficient to attract and hold them. On the contrary, there are a great many people of distinguished ability in the government service. One is more and more impressed by that fact, especially since the war sent to Washington so many men of large means and famous names with whom the government employees could be compared. The comparison was time and again to the advantage of the government employee. But the salaries are not the attraction; it is the work itself. This is well understood by some eminent observers of public life. Secretary of State Hughes declared himself as follows before the advisory committees of the war risk insurance bureau:

It has been my experience that with the higher officers, the officers of greater institutions, where efficiency is rewarded by public representation while the field is a limited one because of the great opportunity to men of ability—it is still entirely possible to draw to the public service men of the desire to render public service and the number of men who are available for that purpose, while relatively small, is still sufficient if the appointing officer wants men of that class. In order to obtain them, however, he must give a free field. He must not interfere as to political action to control administration tendencies and must permit them to be given the reward which a well-conducted office of importance must give to its incumbent in the public estimation.

Now the difficulty increases when you pass those heads that get the credit and come to the technical expert who has got to do the regular work and upon whose efficiency the operation of the department finally depends. These men are little known. The public hasn't time even to learn their names. They are interested in work to a degree of being willing to make sacrifices.

There is active competition for men of brains and great ability of that sort, and the government will never be served unless it pays the price for those men. Now I think that is a plain situation. You may be able to get a director in the bureau of war risk insurance for $5,000 a year, or for nothing at all, but you cannot get an actuary. You cannot get insurance men. You cannot get superintendents. That would be my judgment.

HOWARD'S DARKY STORIES

Columbus Editor Tells Incidents of Trip Through Southland

Edgar Howard in Columbus Daily Telegram: Constantly during my travels in the far South I have been reminded of a story told to me several years ago by Senator Charley Thomas, of Colorado, to illustrate the natural love of the average Southern darkey for big words, and also the natural mania of the negro for gambling. The story said that three wealthy colored cotton farmers and three colored college professors met one night and started a poker game. None of them had any money on his person, but it was agreed that the credit of each was good with the others for any amount. Along toward morning they got tangled up in a big jack pot. The betting was furious. One farmer raised the pot a hundred thousand dollars. Another raised it a million dollars. One of the college professors raised it a billion dollars. Another college teacher raised it a trillion dollars. It was now up to the next negro farmer at the left. It was a big pot. He wanted the money. Long he scratched his head and read the ceiling, and then he threw down his cards in disgust saying to the college man: "Take the pot, you educated nigger you all overplayed my vocabulary." He didn't know what came next after trillion in figures.

One night a few weeks ago I was in Tippah county, Mississippi. I had told a company of gentlemen the Charley Thomas story about the poker game, and then Editor Anderson went to his files in search of a big words story. He found it in form of a prayer which had been spoken by a negro preacher in his town. It ran as follows:

"O Lawd, give the servant this mornin' the eyes of the eagle and the wisdom of the owl, connect his soul with the gospel telephone in the central skies, luminate his brow with the

Yesterday I hired a big, black fellow to wheel me over the fine walks at Palm Beach in a chair car. He was an artist in the use of big words. Over on millionaire avenue he told me the inside history of many of the millionaire households. Stopping in front of one magnificent palace, my guide said: "Here resides Mr. M. and his family in winter time. In summer time his property is habitated only by his columbines." I asked my guide what he meant by "columbines," and he replied: "Same like King Solomon had."

POULTRY FEEDING

At this season of the year the most important poultry problem is the feeding of baby chicks. In all of the work which is done by Extension Specialists the question which is most often asked is: "What is the matter with my baby chicks?" First of all it must be understood that proper feeding and care last year may not be giving good results this year. At least this is the story which is most often told in describing chick losses. Upon close investigation it is nearly always found that some one essential operation is omitted. Chick troubles can be generally traced to one of seven causes: 1. Weak or diseased parent stock. 2. Improper care of hatching-eggs. 3. Improper incubation. 4. Faulty brooding. 5. Poor ventilation. 6. Faulty feeding. 7. Lack of sufficient exercise.

During the past three months, especial emphasis has been placed upon the feeding, care, and selection of breeding stock. The early life and development of the breeding stock is a very important prerequisite to their selection. Chicks which are stunted through insufficient or faulty food or from many other causes will continue to show the effect when mature. Hatching eggs are very hard to care for under general farm conditions. Very frequently the poultry raiser will keep his eggs in a poorly ventilated, too cold, or a too hot room. It is best to keep hatching-eggs in an airy room with a temperature ranging between 45 degrees and 70 degrees by the common thermometer. These temperatures will insure neither chilling nor partial incubation. The question frequently arises as to how long hatching-eggs can be safely held before incubation. Poultry authorities pretty generally agree that the sooner the egg is incubated, after it is laid, the better the hatch is liable to be. This one thing is usually the controlling factor in the low hatching per cent of eggs which are shipped great distances. It is best not to hold eggs more than ten days, however, cases are known where reasonably good hatches have occurred when the eggs have been held as long as fifteen days. It is a good practice to dip the eggs in alcohol or a three per cent solution of some good stock dip after the dirt has been removed from the shell with the same solution. This will kill any disease germs that may be present on the shell without injuring the hatchability of the egg.

HOW ABOUT THIS?

Washington, D. C., April 29.—When the Arms Conference gathered in Washington, as provided by the Democratic Congress and President in the Naval Act of 1916, revamped by the Boyah Resolution, President Harding said: "In soberest reflection, the world's hundreds of millions who pay in peace and die in war wish their statesmen to turn the expenditures for destruction into means of construction, aimed at a higher state for those who live and follow after." A noble sentiment, endorsed by everyone who had no personal pocketbook to fill through a big army or navy, and would have entitled the President to the credit due for its utterance, if events had shown that he meant it. When the Naval Bill was reported to the House it provided for 67,000 men to handle our diminished navy, and Chairman Kelly demonstrated that the number was sufficient. Then came Nick Longworth with a letter from Harding asking that the number of men be increased by 19,000 and the House, with Harding's words at the Arms Conference still ringing in its ears, voted the increase! What is the result? It is that the naval expenditures for the next fiscal year, instead of being decreased from $410,000,000, the figures for the present year, will run about ten millions higher. This is due partly to the increase in personnel above Chairman Kelly's figures, and partly to "authorized" expenditures, not actually appropriated in the bill, amounting to about $67,000,000. This is a peculiar legislative device used to make larger funds available while showing "economies" in the bill.

OF INTEREST TO TEACHERS

(From The Wayne County Teacher)
Do your eighth graders know the song, "America, The Beautiful"? If not please have them learn it. I want that to be the class song at the promotion exercises this year.

Ask your girls not to get expensive new dresses for that day. It is not necessary.

Are any of your pupils capable of furnishing music of any kind for the exercises? If so, please let me know.

Pupils must come to get their diplomas. They will not be sent. If they are worth having, they are worth coming after. Once in while some pupil does not attend the exercises. Will you please try to see that yours are here? It is worth while to them.

We wondered why some of the pupils had ever been recommended by their teachers to take the examinations.

Have you been following the course of study carefully and covering the work outlined this year, or has it been sort of a "stuffing" process for all grades?

A few teachers still send me the white monthly reports at other times than for sending in the quarterly examination grades. I have spoken of this a time or two in this paper. I asked for the white ones only four times a year, to be sent in containing the grades after each quarterly examination.

On the cards sent in containing the names of pupils recommended for the examinations, some of the teachers did not check the names of those they felt quite sure would pass as we had asked them to do, so we took it that they felt their pupils would not pass.

Can you understand why so many of the pupils in the examinations failed to begin sentences with capital letters, and failed to put a period after sentences and abbreviations, punctuation marks of any kind in the letters that they wrote?

Do you know of any reason why a teacher shouldn't do as good work during the last two or three months of school as he or she did during the first part of the year? Even if one does not expect to stay in that district he needs the recommendation of doing good work the whole year through.

EVOLUTION

Says Bryan, "I don't like the shape of all things in creation; I know the anthroidal ape is none of my relation."

"A thousand books upon the shelves With doctrines strange pursue man, Men may make monkeys of themselves But monkeys are not human."

"But one man can disturb my calm— The evolution teacher. I know I am descended from No anthropoidal creature."

"I must, as anyone can see, Maintain my reputation; The Chimpanzee may look like me, But we are no relation."

"From all the birds that wing the air, From lamb, and ram, and lion, Man is a separate affair."

Says William Jennings Bryan. An image of the Great Divine, Man stands earth's glories drinking. That's been the very thought of mine Since first I fell to thinking.

We have been torn apart, indeed, On many points, an oodle, But on this point we are agreed— We'll stand no monkey doodle.

My ancestors across the sea I know were coarse and clannish, But none, as it occurs to me, Were quite orangoutangish.

They had the human from divine, Which ill-deserves our roasting, But there were kith and kin of mine Of whom I do no boasting.

Some went thru life with records fair, Some went in strong for sinning, But none of them, as I'm aware, Were apes at the beginning.

The subject really is too vast— But let me say at parting, Man may become a beast at last, But he's not one at starting.

Man has, to start with, let me tell, A moral constitution, Which he may batter all to shreds— And that means evolution.

A species, he stands quite unique Among created forces. Thus might I argue for a week, Nor bankrupt my resources.
