

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE AT WAYNE IS COMING

Next Tuesday promises to be the biggest day in the matter of the number of people here, in the history of Wayne. All signs point that way. Just the weather man is the one in whose hands the number in a large measure depends. So far as we know there is no other big celebration within fifty miles of Wayne, and if roads continue good, a half hundred miles is a short joy ride in these days of gas wagons. The Legion boys have set their plans to entertain a record breaking crowd.

The parade, the music, the speaker, the preparation for picnic dinners, the base ball and boxing bouts all appeal. Then there is the free pavement dance, the athletic sports and the fireworks, all tend to make a busy day for one and all.

The flying circus will be a revelation to many. The bird men do great stunts.

A special train is to come from Bloomfield, bringing boosters for their ball team and people from all along the line, and we suppose that plans will be made if not yet complete to hold the train until the close of the program, probably about 11 o'clock. The regular morning train is due here in good time for an all-day session, and it will need some extra coaches.

A COMEDY IN COURT

Last Friday Charles Arkill and Herold Bonta who were placed under arrest a few nights before and charged with illegal possession and conveying liquor, had their hearing, and were acquitted by "a jury of their peers," as one said. The evidence was considered rather convincing, as the officers who arrested them saw them breaking the bottles of booze over the side of the car, and presented parts of the bottles in evidence. But they had no portion of the liquor to present in evidence—but knew from the smell of that spilled on the car that it was what is called whisky in these days of moonshine. Another witness also testified in effect to the same thing. The jury, it is said at first stood half for conviction and half against. Just as the judge was about to discharge the jury that another trial might be held, the jurors who had favored conviction voted "not guilty" a verdict in which the jury evidently did not believe; for their foreman asked the county judge to reprimand the prisoners and tell them what kind of a place they were headed for. If innocent, as the jury said, for what should they be reprimanded? If guilty, why acquit them? Things don't track.

WAYNE FIREMEN BUY PULMOTOR

The Wayne firemen did not think they had done their full duty to the community and to themselves without taking advantage of every safety contrivance possible to prevent loss of life in their dangerous occupation. So they procured a pulmotor for the use of the community.

With it, the chances of life to one overcome with smoke and gas are much increased. Also to one nearly drowned. By the use of this artificial breathing machine life is often saved where it would otherwise be impossible. In certain cases of sickness patients may be kept alive for a time, until nature can rally and resume its normal function. In some cases of pneumonia, which physicians tell is simply drowning in the discharge of fluid into the lungs, the pulmotor has been known to be the means of restoring health. It is a valued possession for the community.

FEDERAL OFFICERS AND STATE OFFICIALS TO VISIT WAYNE

Since Wayne is to have the big celebration in this part of Nebraska the 4th of July, and all want the day to be spent in peaceful pursuit of pleasure, it is hoped that bootleggers will not yield to the temptation to try to do business here. In order that there be as little as possible of this illegal business an invitation has been extended to both federal and state sluths to mingle with the crowds here that day; and it is hoped that any who try to violate the law may have a ride to Omaha for trial before the federal court. The wise ones will probably remain away.

ASH-STEPHENS

A quiet home wedding was solemnized Wednesday, June 28, 1922, at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Ash when their daughter Grace was given in marriage to Mr. Phillip H. Stephens, at high noon, Rev. Fenton Jones of the first Presbyterian church of this city performing the ceremony. Only relatives were present to witness the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens have gone for a short auto trip, and later they will drive to Colorado, where they will spend some time at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stephens of Crook, Colorado, and spend some time in sight-seeing in the Centennial state.

The bride is a well-known and deservedly popular young lady in this her home community. She is a graduate of the Wayne high school and also from the Wayne State Normal, and is a successful teacher, having taught in Wayne county and at Wakefield. For the past two years she has been one of the teachers at Tekamah.

Mr. Stephens is a graduate of the State University, and a member of the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. He was at one time county agent in Hamilton county, and later in Dakota county. The past three years he has taught in the Tekamah high school, a Smith-Hughes instructor. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stephens have positions for coming year in the Tekamah school.

HOWELL SPEAKS HERE TONIGHT

According to a timecard of the Howell schedule, he will speak at Wayne this evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Howell is one of the republican candidates for the nomination for senator from this state. It is said that he is a progressive—and is also charged that quite a part of his talks are devoted to the interesting subject of wireless communication. Well, if he is a truly progressive, and means it, it seems as tho the "wireless" from Iowa would tell him to do as he did Brookhart in Iowa. Preach that policy without regard to the administration—even if it have the same party label as the candidate is wearing. The people are in no mood for "pussyfooting" and the election returns in Nebraska after July 18th, will show as they did in Iowa, that the people are weary of supporting those who try to carry drink on both shoulders.

MELVIN VINCENT FINN

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Finn of Carroll died at their home the morning of Sunday, June 25 at the age of 7 months. Melvin had suffered for three weeks of whooping cough, when it developed symptoms similar to pneumonia, and all efforts to carry the little one past the crisis were without avail. The funeral service was from the St. Mary's church at Wayne Tuesday morning at 10:30, conducted by Rev. Wm. Kearns, and burial was in Greenwood cemetery. A large number of relatives and friends of the bereaved parents followed the little body to its resting place.

ARE YOU COMING TO WAYNE?

We hope so—hope you will come often. First come for your celebration dress, ladies, for my stock is most complete for dress from foot to crown. After the shoes, you may select plain or fancy hose. The popular Campbell and other shades, and different qualities. Then there is an assortment of fancy skirts and dainty waists in popular weaves, and unique trimmings says Mrs. Jeffries.

One of the real attractive bargains is to be found in those pretty ginghams and organdie dresses. Quality fine the plaids pretty and in different colors, and the price $3.00 each looks like a return to prewar prices. Something a little better—dresser at least, may be found in the dotted Swiss, which are on sale from $5.50 up. There is also a very complete line of dresses of Canton-crepe and other popular goods.

They if you have not yet purchased your summer bonnet, I can certainly please you, and at a right price.

Wayne invites you to come here to celebrate as well as to purchase, best place for both.—adv.

Work on numerous floats is going forward, and beyond a doubt there will be some good ones. By the way, the committee wants every float and decorated auto to park at the courthouse square before 12 o'clock, so that all may move on time, for the day is crowded too full of events to let one thing hold another back.

GOVERNMENT FIGHTS TUBERCULOSIS IN CATTLE

Dr. T. T. Tobias and family drove up from Lincoln the first of the week to visit relatives and friends here, and remained several days. The Doctor, who is now a part of the state force in the department of Animal Industry of the department of agriculture, and is very busy putting forward the work to tuberculosis testing of milch cows, and they doing a great work. Mr. Tobias was here assisting his deputy, who is organizing this county for the work. They had a good meeting at Carroll Monday or Tuesday evening, and beyond a doubt the entire county will be organized by precincts, and the cows tested—or perhaps we should say the cattle, for while the cows are the more important beyond a doubt the effort is to eliminate the disease from the entire herd.

Dr. Tobias left us a report of the work in Clay county, which is too late for use in this issue, but which will appear next week. The testing is only for those who volunteer and co-operate with those in charge of the work. The cost is practically all paid by the federal and state government. Of the condemned animals the government, state and national bear each one third of the loss, and the owner one third. The loss is comparatively little as most of the condemned cows are still fit for food, and unless it happen to be a thorbred is often worth almost as much for the block as a milch cow. We hope to give the full report next week.

TO VISIT PALESTINE

Wednesday afternoon Rev. W. O. Jones of the Welch church west of Carroll, left for a visit to the old world. His plans include a stop in his native land, Wales, and then a trip to the Holy Land, where he expects to find and see things of deep interest to him, and that will be a great aid to him. He was accompanied as far as Cleveland, Ohio, by his daughter, Miss Frances. At that city he will be joined by his father and mother-in-law who will make the trip with him.

The editor asked about the costs of such a trip in these days, and was told that they were, of course not all known, and could not be until home, but that the cheapest boat passage for the round trip from sailing port in America and return was $600, and then decided to wait a while before taking chances of being seasick.

SCHOOL BOARD ELECT CONRAD JACOBSON SUPERINTENDENT

At a meeting of the school board last Saturday the board tendered the position of superintendent of the Wayne City school, to Conrad Jacobson of Ponca, and he has accepted. Mr. Jacobson is a graduate of the state school at this place, a member of 1914. Later he graduated from the university, and has been a successful teacher for the past five or six years. He was superintendent of the school at Ponca last year, and again elected for the coming year.

There are yet several vacancies in the grades to be filled, as well as the manual training department not yet definitely settled.

A PORTABLE GRAPHONOLA FOR PICNIC MUSIC

That is the latest improvement announced by A. G. Bohnert of this city, who sells all styles of Graphonolas as well as the latest records for any machine. The advantage of this new machine is that it packs into a case and may be carried without danger of injury. They are popular for parties and picnics.

Mr. Bohnert also has the latest song records in Swede, German and other foreign languages. It is a treat to many to hear the best songs in their mother tongue. He asks people to call at his place and hear these records played.—adv.

A VOLUNTEER REST ROOM

Claude Mitchell of the Wayne Monument Works asks that we tell all of the people that the front room and office of their place of business will be open as a "rest room" for all who care to come there July 4th. Seats will be arranged for the comfort of visitors. Toilet and other conveniences will be at the disposal of the guests of Wayne that day. We hope that others will follow this example, and they doubtless will.—

WAYNE CATTLE SHIPMENTS HEAVY

Monday was a busy day at the stockyards here. Early in the morning fat cattle were entering the yards here, coming to avoid the heat of later in the day. Every pen at the yards was full, and several cars were corralled in nearby yards. In this shipment were many well-finished animals, 1500 pounds and better. Thirteen loads started to Chicago, four for Omaha and one to Sioux City. The cattle were all sent in by their farmer-feeder owners, tho two of the shipper were buyers as well as feeders, and they sent only from their own feed yards this time. The list follows:

To Chicago—Fred Walker, 3 cars; Kay Brothers, 2 cars; Oscar Homan, 2 cars; Fred Wacker, 3 cars; Aug. Raber, 1 car; and Andrew Stamm 2 cars.

To Omaha—Eph Beckenhauer, 1; Oscar Reinhardt, 2; and H. W. Bergt, 1.

W. Carlson sent one car to Sioux City, making a total of 13 cars of fat cattle out in one day.

The trains from the west and also from the branch all carried large consignments of cattle, so if all parts are running them out as from this part of Nebraska, there will be big receipts of cattle this week.

SOCIAL NOTES

The Winners of the Early Hour Card club will be given a 2 course dinner at the country club Friday evening by the losers. The evening will be spent in playing 500 the game will be played at eight tables.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will assemble at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Miner this afternoon. A picnic supper will be served.

The Friwohe camp fire girls gave a picnic supper at the park Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Opal Thompson's 17th birthday.

The Wayne Womens club will have a Kensington Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the community house. The first part of the afternoon will be devoted to a business session. After which the remainder of the afternoon will be spent in Kensington and games. All women of the community are cordially invited. Refreshments will be served. Committee in charge Mrs. Clyde Oman, Mrs. R. B. Judson, Mrs. A. A. Welch, Mrs. F. S. Berry, Mrs. J. J. Ahern, and Mrs. E. E. Lackey.

Miss Fannell Senter will entertain in honor of Miss Kathryn Strickland at the Country club this evening. The evening will be spent in dancing.

The P. E. O. members held a picnic Wednesday at the country club, and a happy time is reported from all who attended.

C. W. BRYAN ACCEPTS NOMINATION

Last Saturday Charles W. Bryan entered the race for the democratic nomination as governor of Nebraska. He hops right onto a progressive platform. He says that he stands for a business administration. That he believes in letting the officers do the work, and thus curtailing a great deal of expense. There is no good in the code law, as he can see, and it should go. He has shown some of his methods of handling corporations in his administration of the fuel question at Lincoln, while a member of the city commission. He might do as well as governor—at any rate he he could not be worse than we now have.

F. M. GRIFFITH FALLS FROM CHERRY TREE

Tuesday, while harvesting cherries from the trees on his lot just north of the Methodist church, F. M. Griffith fell from the tree, and sustained quite serious injuries, it was feared.

The first once-over revealed a dislocated shoulder, a broken collar bone and rib or two cracked. He was taken to the Wayne hospital, and x-ray confirmed all of the above, and also showed a total of five ribs broken. So he is under the care of the physician and nurses of that place. In time of need, a hospital is a fine thing for a community.

WEBER-SMITH

Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Catholic church of this city, Miss Mary E. Weber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weber became the bride of Mr. Joseph E. Smith son of Mr. M. Smith of Hubbard, Nebraska, Rev. Father Kearns officiating.

Promptly at nine o'clock the wedding party consisting of the bride and her father, Miss Christine Weber bridesmaid, Miss Mary Heeney, maid of honor, Marcella Weber and Clara Belle Swanberg flower girls, Mary Alice Strahan ring bearer marched up the aisle to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding march played by Miss Margaret Macauley of Clearwater. They were met in the sanctuary by the groom and his brother, Francis Smith.

The ring ceremony was followed by a solemn Nuptial High School.

The bride was dressed in a white satin gown trimmed in old lace, she wore a wreath and veil and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaid and maid of honor were in orchid and pink organdie with hats to match. The little girls of the party were charming in ruffled dresses of white.

After Mass a four course dinner was served to sixty guests, at the Weber home.

The bride is a graduate of the Wayne high school and Normal. She has taught in several of the surrounding towns, where her ability and sterling worth are much appreciated.

The groom attended school both in Hubbard and Spaulding.

After a short wedding trip the happy couple will be at home to their friends on a farm north of Hubbard.

Out of town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Swanberg of Pender, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stubbs of Omaha, Mrs. A. Vogel and daughter Marlon of Sioux City, Mr. M. Smith and daughter Katherine, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith and daughter Margaret, Mr. H. Cain, Mr. J. Sherlock, Miss Benetta Heeney, all of Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Connor of Sioux City, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heeney of Emerson, and Felix Hinder of Omaha.

NEAR CYCLONE HITS IN LESLIE PRECINCT

While Wayne was having a splendid shower Monday evening a small cyclone developed southeast of Wakefield along the county line between Wayne and Thurston counties. It uprooted apple trees on the C. W. McGuire farm and on the E. McGuire farm which corners with his brothers, but is in Thurston county, the barn was badly wrecked, one end being nearly blown in. The McGuires sought refuge in a cave. Heavy rain and some hail accompanied the wind. Off to the northeast of Wakefield hail is reported to have done much damage.

MYERS-FOX

Thursday, June 22, 1922, at Sioux City Iowa, by Rev. Hoon at the First Methodist church, Miss Gladys V. Myers and Mr. Earl E. Fox both of this city were united in marriage. Both bride and groom are well known in this city, where they have resided for a number of years. They will be at home in Wayne after July 4th. All wish them a life of happiness.

HOUSE AND LOT FOR SALE

Choice location, 9-room house, modern except furnace, which may be installed if desired. Midway between college and business section. Lot 75 by 150 feet. A real home for one who wants to take advantage of Wayne schools for a few years. For particulars, call at Democrat office.—adv.

BASEBALL SUNDAY

At the Wayne grounds Sunday, Winside is scheduled to meet Wayne. This one of the few teams that has defeated Wayne, and whether or not they can do it again is to be determined Sunday. It means a good game.

IT IS EASY

A patron of this office informs us that he saved $5.00, which to him was as good as earning it by a 50c adv in the Democrat. That points the way to wealth.

BASEBALL THIS AFTERNOON

Ponca ball players are here for a game this afternoon, and it is said that they came fixed to win, or make a hard fight.

RESSIVENESS A QUESTION OF COMPARISON, OFTEN

A letter from Glen Gildersleeve who has been teaching music during the past school year in the Rochester, New York public schools, gives a bit of opinion on economic questions, but not necessarily for the publication. He then adds, that it has been his good fortune to be selected for a scholarship under Mr. Surette, the head of the music education department of Harvard this summer. He will also have conducting under Mr. Davidson, the director of musical clubs of the university. After this he expects to be home for vacation in August.

Referring to his work in the Rochester schools, he says it has been a successful year, and that he is to return again next year. It is a fine system in which to work. A donation of more than 500 orchestral instruments for use in the public school by Mr. Eastman has given music work a great impetus. Free lessons are given to any child who rents one of these instruments or has one of his own. There are fifty special music teachers in the system who do nothing else.

Then he refers to the story of the tax reduction in this county, and cutting-down school expense, and wonders what the people out here would think of paying for this kind of educational work in the east.

THE WIRELESS ON A TRUCK

Last evening, Prof. Chinn, Ben Carhart and others who are much interested in the wireless were seeking to fix it so that the truck and car drivers may have music or instruction from headquarters by wireless. A truck was equipped for the experiment, and while they did not get everything in shape to travel and test it at the same time, they heard Willis Fleetwood in a concert at Sioux City, and also received communication from Omaha. That proves that the idea will work, can be made to work.

LONGNECKER-TOWNSEND

Waldo Townsend and Miss Evelyn Longnecker were married Wednesday at Hartington by Rev. Willard of the Congregational church. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Jake Eby, relatives of the groom, and Mrs. Wm. Longnecker, the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Eby also witnessed the marriage of Waldo's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Townsend. Waldo was born in Randolph and has always lived here where he has been popular with the younger set. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Longnecker, southeast of Randolph and for the past year has taught school near Wause. She was a student at the Wayne Normal. The young couple will live in Randolph.—Randolph Times.

DOCTORS AT COLERIDGE

Doctors from five counties met at Coleridge last Tuesday afternoon for a convention, the meeting being an annual affair for the medical men of Cedar, Dixon, Dakota, Wayne and Thurston counties. About thirty doctors were in attendance.

The entire afternoon was devoted to talks and discussions by the doctors on various phases of their profession. Most of the talks were along technical lines, some of them being cases which had come under the personal observation of the man who delivered the address. Dr. A. C. Cook of Randolph, Dr. L. Stark of Hartington, Dr. J. J. Killan, of Wakefield, and Dr. F. G. Dewey, of Coleridge, all had places on the program.—Cedar County.—(Hartington)—News.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Bralnard were called to Omaha Tuesday or Wednesday to visit their son Don, who is at a hospital there; and it is reported that an operation of some kind, was that to be necessary. The last word received was that he was getting along nicely—but as we go to press we have not been able to find any who have received later reports than last evening.

Mrs. Emma Durin, who has been cared for several months at the A. F. Gossard home, is reported to be very low, and as her condition is due to internal cancer, there is no hope that she will survive the week out.

The last report from Mrs. Winegar in a hospital at Sioux City is that she is up and about the hospital, and may soon be able to return home.

WAS ABOUT TO BE THROWN OUT, BODILY

W. E. Baker hitched up his ford early Sunday morning and left town and his cobbling bench behind, and went to see the sights. He landed at Gross in Boyd county, rather hungry, and picked out a likely looking place for a bite to eat, after first consulting the editor of the place as to the best place to get a meal gratis. He was at first inclined to grumble a bit about the quality of the butter, and the coffee was not just what he had been used to, and in fact, he made some objections that he was informed quite plainly that "beggars should not be choosers." As he was about to be fired out, his aunt, an old lady of some 80 summers entered the room, and having had his fun, and carried a joke far enough by that time, he greeted her with a "Hello, Aunt Hannah," don't you think your daughter ought to make better butter than this?" Then Aunt Hannah, studied out who he was, his crutch helping to furnish the clue. They were relatives he had not before seen for forty years, and he went to pay them a visit and incidentally learn whether or not they were as hospitable as they used to be. He then admitted that butter and coffee were the best ever. When it was time that he must start home he was asked to come again, and urged to stay longer—but he had a soul—or sole to look after here at Wayne

MISSION FEST SUNDAY AT THEOPOLIS CHURCH

The rain of Sunday greatly reduced the attendance at the special services held at the church southwest of Wayne over which the Rev. Fischer presides as pastor; but those not so far away but that they could attend enjoyed a very profitable service. Rev. A. Woth from Steward delivered a sermon in the morning and the afternoon sermon was by Rev. Geo. Duesning from Tilden. The congregation spent social hours at dinner and supper, having provided refreshments for more than were present. Of course the fund for the extension of both home and foreign missions was less than otherwise would have been; and beyond a doubt it will be materially increased as the week goes by, for many who were prevented from attending had the good of cause at heart and will contribute. The members of the Salem congregation could not many of them be present, but they will beyond a doubt contribute their quota.

NEIHARDT CLUB BANQUET

Second Annual Meeting Held at Fort Calhoun, Nebraska

(From The Goldenrod)
 Should my soul find incarnation
 In this finite flesh again,
 Should I, by some slow translation,
 Sit at meat with supermen,
 Then there'll flash a vision aureate—
 That Utopian afternoon
 When I heard Nebraska's laureate
 Read his epic in Calhoun.

Helen Geneva Masters.
 The above lines were prompted by attendance of the writer on the second annual meeting at Calhoun, Nebraska, of the Neihardt Club. Members from Wayne who were present were John Blievernicht, president of the club, Julius T. House, chairman of the executive committee, and R. C. Anderson. The day, June 17, was perfect for motoring and some forty sat down to the two o'clock dinner under the huge maple trees planted by the early settlers of this historic place, for be it known that this old town is near the site of Fort Atkinson, erected in 1818 and it is just one hundred years since the first keelboat of the American Fur Company went up the Missouri carrying the "Three Friends" whose doom a song remembers.

The chief event, was, of course, the reading by the poet of lines from "The Song of the Indian Wars." Long evening shadows were falling in the little city park when he had completed the reading and the spell that held his hearers was broken. Many crowded about the bard to congratulate him and many also said that this last epic piece was destined to surpass all his previous work and add greatly to a fame already great.

Others on the program were Judge Vinsonhaier of Omaha, Mrs. Minier of Oakland, Principal Masters of Omaha, President Blievernicht, W. O. Jones, editor-in-chief of the Nebraska State Journal and Chancellor Avery. Mrs. Elva Brockway the curator was to have had a part in the program but in her necessary absence, her paper was read by J. T. House. Reverend Mr. Patterson of Walthill, a singer and composer of music, sang some of Neihardt's lyrics, the music of which was the work of Mr. Patterson. Mrs. C. A. Millar of North Bend president.

The next meeting of the club will be held not in June, but in August, and will be at the forks of the Grand river, where one hundred years ago next summer Hugh Glass suffered his terrible wound and from which point he made the famous crawl, the account of which occupies the third section of the poem that bears the name of that intrepid hunter and fighter.

PENMANSHIP AWARDS

Professor Martin received thirteen Palmer Penmanship certificates last week. The students who were awarded the certificates for last semester's work were: Carrie Coventry, Inman; Neba Patterson, Wayne; Ella Smith, Pender; Vivian Cressy, Hartington; Ethel Davis, Lyons; Ednae Morrison, Crofton; Elsie Williams, Royal; Carrie Bartlett, Jordan; South Dakota; Martha B. Hrens, Scribner; Vivian Servine, Laurel; Louise Lamb, Dixon; Floia Hoagland, Long Pine; Hazel Thibault, Naper.

Professor Martin is to be congratulated upon his excellent work in view of the fact that not one of the copies which he sent in for the approval of the Palmer Company was rejected.

LOCALS
 (From the Goldenrod)

Mr. and Mrs. William Canning of Clifton, Arizona, who were graduates from the College in 1917 are spending the summer in Wayne with Mrs. Canning's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Strickland. Mr. Canning is attending the College.

Miss Marsaline Lewis, '19, who taught the past year at Tucson, Arizona, returned home recently for her vacation. Miss Lewis with her sister, Miss Katherine Lewis, came from Tucson by way of the Grand Canyon.

Leroy Owen, who was a junior in the college in 1916-17, graduated from the law school of the University of Chicago last week. He is now in New York City where he is attending the summer session at Columbia University.

Miss Ertel Stonebaker, '16, who taught in Sioux City the past year, sailed from Montreal on the S. S. Tunisian, on June 17 for Europe where she will spend the summer traveling with the Morningside Travel Club. There are 26 members in the party whose itinerary will include Scotland, England, Belgium, Holland, Germany, the battlefields, Austria, Italy, Switzerland, France, and attendance at the Passion Play at Oberammergau.

Miss Amy Culbertson, '17, is attending the University of California at Berkeley this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper Ellis of Auburn, Nebraska are planning a motor trip to Wyoming in July. Mr. Ellis graduated from the Normal in 1917.

E. R. Rogers and George Wilcox were called to Inman last week in response to word of the death of their father, E. W. Wilcox.

Miss Dorothy Hitchcock, who is an instructor of music in the Elver Falls State Normal School, Wisconsin, and who was a junior in the College in 1920-21, visited friends on the Hill during the week of Homecoming. Miss Hitchcock took a very active part in all the musical activities of the school while she was a student here.

Miss Nina Scott, who was a junior in the Normal in 1920, was married on June 14 to Mr. Linn E. Robertson of Allendale, Missouri. The former has been teaching in the Hartington schools.

"Of, By and For the People"

HAS LIVED IN THE THIRD DISTRICT 51 YEARS

To the Democratic Voters of Wayne County:

I have filed as democrat candidate for the office of sheriff subject to your decision at the primaries July 18th.

I am a native of Wayne county, and have never before been a candidate for office. Was born on a farm east of Wayne, and at the age of four years moved with my parents to a farm five miles northwest of Carroll, where they still reside. I have been a Wayne county farmer until last spring, when I moved to Carroll.

I ask the support of my friends, and if elected to the office, pledge myself to faithfully perform the duties as sheriff of Wayne county.

WAYNE MARKET REPORTS

Following are the market prices quoted us up to the time of going to press Thursday:

Corn	.42
Oats	.30
Hens	.15
Roosters	.06
Eggs	.15
Butter Fat	.31
Cattle	$5.00 to $8.00
Hogs	$8.00 to $9.50

It is the opinion expressed in a fashion magazine that it costs $250 per year to dress a girl properly. From their appearance these days there are very few who are permitted that much dress allowance.

Ouch! That paying tax notice, and the interest. What a slap at the fellows in first paying district, who are on the 20-year plan would all vote for the Henry Ford idea of paying permanent public improvements by the issue of a legal-tender currency to be retired the same as bonds are. To save the interest would be more than to save the principal. The credit of a community should be cared for by the government at a very small cost, rather than by the "divisible government" at so much per annum in interest. Under a plan that would relieve burdensome interest charges, public improvements could and would multiply; and they are needed, too; furnishing employment for thousands. If Uncle Sam is going to let his credit be used free of interest it should be as free to the masses as the classes.

THE BROOKHART PLATFORM

Over in Iowa, now that Col. Brookhart is assured of the nomination for the U. S. Senate, it is said that there is a move on foot to build a standpat platform for him to make the race on. At any rate, here is a brief form of the platform which Mr. Brookhart wants to make the next race on, as it proved a winner last time:

First—Repeat the transportation act; provide by legislative enactment that railroad values shall not exceed the market values of the securities, thus pumping out $7,000,000,000 of water; stop the capitalizing of unearned increment, which amounts to about $300,000,000 a year; stop graft in the furnishing of railroad supplies by subsidiary companies; define the reasonable or adequate return so it will not exceed the interest rate on the bonded portion of the capital.

Second—The arbitrary restriction of agricultural credit in 1920 by the Federal Reserve bank was a credit, or money, strike that did the farmers more damage than all the industry strikes in the history of the country. Farm products were deflated nearly $8,000,000,000 and more than $500,000,000 in Iowa alone. The whole credit system, including the Federal Reserve bank, is built upon the foundation of deposits. The depositors are entitled to control it. The farmers furnish 40 per cent, of all primary deposits, the laboring people 25 per cent. They are entitled to a like proportion of the Federal Reserve board.

Third—The co-operative program of both the farmers and the laboring people, including co-operative control of production, credit and marketing.

Fourth—An adequate soldiers' bonus to be paid by a tax on war profits and excess profits. Opposed the sales tax.

Fifth—I demanded the protection of motherhood and children by giving them their economic rights.

Sixth—The Newberry case should be reopened, as was the Lorimer case, and the Senate purged of this corruption.

Seventh—Opposed ship subsidies on the same ground as railroad guarantees.

Eighth—Named the predatory blocs and opposed them, promised to support the farmer bloc, the labor bloc, the soldiers bloc, the mothers' bloc, and the business bloc that co-operate with them.

Ninth—Supported integrity of the primary, asked the people to nominate their candidate by direct vote and to drive the nonpartisan league of Wall street from the state.

NINETEEN WOLF PUPS CAUGHT IN TWO DENS

Bryan and Lal Jordan, sons of Dell Jordan, 11 miles north of Randolph, say that when telling a wolf story, a real good one might be told. These boys about a month ago dug out two coyote dens. In one of these there were 10 pups and in the second den there were 9, a total of 19 pups in two dens. The first den of ten were killed and the second batch of nine were given to neighbors as pets. Mr. Jordan has one of them on his place and the little fellow is playful and tame, but Dell tries to keep him away from the chickens. The coyote is kept tied in the yard. Cedar County pays no bounty on coyotes, but the boys did just as much real service to the farmers as though there had been a bounty.—Randolph Times.

"BY DAD" GOLDIE VERY OPTIMISTIC

Dear Old Democrat: 'Bout time old "By Dad" was squaring up for a year's subscription, or he'll be in that same class of humans that I used to cuss about—newspaper dead-beats.

Well, time does fly. Here it is eleven years and over since we left the good old city of Wayne—over half the time that good and popular citizen, now deceased, and myself, agreed that we might put in twenty years in California before shuffling off this "Mortal coil." Well, poor Dan didn't stay long—another instance where the "good die, young," and the bad pennies remain. I often think of one evening in December, 1910, when I walked into Harrington's House of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, and confidentially informed Mr. Harrington that I had sold out and was soon going to California. What was my astonishment to have Dan tell me that he had done likewise. Therefore the felicitation that we might live in this sunny clime for a decade at least.

But the old saying "life is not what it is cracked up to be," holds good even in this delightful state. We have just as much selfishness, crookedness and crime, as well as more divorces and flappers than any other state in the union. Human ideals that only include the gathering of riches and satisfying of the cravings of the flesh, only lead to disappointment, death and a blank space that may be filled by inserting a toothpick. To wit: for eleven years we have been waiting to see this old burg by the sea raise millions of dollars, and now that our hopes are being realized there is nothing in it but ashes. More joy in pursuit than possession was never more definitely demonstrated.

I began this letter thinking there might be some of my old acquaintances in Nebraska who would like to profit a little by my experiences in California. If I were an up-to-the-scratch promoter and booster would be sending them some publicity stuff, but having no personal designs to make a profit, and a sincere wish to do my former friends a good turn, will only say that from my honest and best deductions there is now the most magnificent opportunity to make big money that has ever been offered mankind since Adam raised Cain.

To begin with, I wonder if there isn't some live and rattling good newspaper man in your part of the country who would like to find the best field in the United States for a daily paper? There is assuredly such an opening right at this minute. We have one weekly, the old plant I formerly owned, but it comes far from filling the aperture. Since selling such "good will" am eliminated from the field, or at least feel that I am. Would like to be interested in such an adventure, and with the correct combination could make the fur fly. Real estate is advancing like dope in a thermometer when you set the instrument out in a Nebraska sun in July. There are at present hundreds of new houses being built and half a dozen business blocks, with scores more planned for the immediate future. To sum it all up in a sentence there is enough big business around the Los Angeles harbor at Wilmington to support a city of a hundred thousand people or more, while we probably have less than six thousand. No resident of the middle-west can have any conception of how cities in California grow fast. Some of your citizens who have been making annual visits to Long Beach of recent years, can confirm this statement. But Long Beach, Los Angeles, nor no other municipality in Southern California has ever had the wonderful, certain, enormous prosperity that Wilmington is now just beginning to experience. I look with all complacency upon property here going from $100 per front foot to $1000 in one or two years. It has advanced the past three months to double and treble previous prices.

Little over three months ago I received a commission for selling one brick block at $21,000, that has more recently changed hands at $45,000. Residence lots that were going begging a year ago at $700 or $800, are now hard to find at $1500, and many blocks of homesites will cost the newcomer a year from now at least three times above figures. I am unable to state even approximately what the new public and private improvements for the year will be, in this city, but it would be no wild guess to say they will run into many millions of dollars—probably anywhere from fifty to a hundred million.

But for fear the editors of the Democrat will throw this optimistic epistle in the waste basket, will only add—come on out here and see for yourselves. Anywhere from five to ten or twenty thousand dollars invested in Wilmington now, will make the investor wealthy for his or her earthly estate. And if you can't come, send me your ducats and the local banks will endorse the investment. Was in San Diego last week and "passed the buck" with our old friend Dr. Liesenring. Doc has been going strong in realty down there, but San Diego is the quietest place on the coast at present. It may be news to the old timers of thirty years ago in Wayne to learn that Grace Hay, a former teacher in the schools back there, is now the wife of Dr. Little, Jr., formerly of Bloomfield. I am told that this is the second matrimonial venture for each of them. They have a suite of rooms at the Hotel Grant. Prof. and Mrs. Davies are enjoying fine health. Professor is giving some music lessons and also has charge of the Presbyterian church choir. He has waited so long to buy a home here, and the waiting has panned out so poorly, that he can't now "savey" the game. By the time some of the local oil wells come in, I am afraid the professor will have to admit that he has passed up the best of his life. And by the way, oil leases now cover about all the territory surrounding Wilmington and with big producing wells at Signal Hill on the east, and Torrance just to the west, there is little question but that the intervening territory, that has shown all signs of oil, will bring in a flood of the black wealth.

As an instance of how we do things in California; only two years ago the district here voted $7,000,000 for new school houses and equipment. This month it was found necessary to vote $17,400,000 bonds, to keep up with the increase in school demands.

What has become of my old associates Charley Martin, Sam Davies and Berry? All old men now, I presume, with grey hair covering the little gray matter they used to boast of. Would like to take a jaunt back to Wayne; about the first time ever felt such inclination, and from the Democrat I am advised it might now be safe for me to do so.

Until that time comes may you all farewell and live long. Very sincerely yours, W. F. GOLDIE. Wilmington, California.

WISCONSIN HAS ONE-FOURTH OF COW TESTING ASSOCIATION

The 115 cow-testing associations in Wisconsin, kept in operation with the assistance of county agents and specialists employed cooperatively by the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural College, equals almost one-fourth of all the associations of the country. Twelve of these associations have been organized since December 1, 1921, and the membership in the State now numbers about 3,300 farmers owning 55,000 cows.

The aims of the associations have been to weed out unprofitable cows and to feed the animals balanced rations for maximum milk production. Records of the associations show the value of highgrade cows and purebred sires. Last year 335 purebred bulls were purchased by the associations and 33 scrub bulls replaced by purebreds in 59 associations.

The new and interesting game called in Cedar county, "filling for sheriff" has ended with 16 players in the game. The second stage is now on entitled "landing the nomination." The real test comes in the second spasm. Give Gus Hyers and his man

"What's in a Name? A rose would smell as sweet by any other."

But a name becomes a trademark of great value if it speaks of QUALITY, and means QUALITY.

hunters a little time and they will do the business. It took a little time to get the Omaha manacle man, but he was captured finally and very likely will stay captured for the rest of his life. Never in the history of the state have so many serious crimes been charged to one man as are alleged to have been committed by Fred Brown.—Randolph Times.

There is no scarcity of congressional candidates in the Third district this year. Among them are Frank O'Gara of Hartington, who has filed for the democratic nomination; M. Havens of Norfolk, Robert Evans of Dakota City and Oswald Byron of Walthill, republican candidates, John Havkost of Hooper, M. F. Hall of Neligh and Edgar Howard of Columbus for the progressive nomination.

In the case of Howard and O'Gara each may be a candidate on both the democratic and progressive tickets, friends having filed for both on these tickets. O'Gara's progressive ticket is not complete and Howard has not yet accepted the democratic filing. They have five days to complete the filing. Mr. Oswald, the Walthill candidate for the republican nomination is a stranger to us but we are told his platform is even more progressive than that of the progressives. In Edgar Howard's case petitions were circulated for him for governor, lieutenant governor, U. S. senator, congressman and railway commissioner. He refused to consider anything but the congressional filing Norfolk Press.

SAMUELSON-RICHTER

Sunday, June 25, 1922, at the parsonage of the English Lutheran church by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Fetterolf, Mr. Fred Richter of Sioux City and Miss Nettie Samuelson, of Wakefield were married. Miss Samuelson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August Samuelson of Wakefield, and has often visited here with her sister, Mrs. Ralph Clark and other relatives and friends. She was also a student at the Normal school here for several terms. The groom is employed in Sioux City, where they will make their home. They were accompanied to Wayne by Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford Anderson.

BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

Wayne, Nebraska, June 22nd 1922. Board of Equalization met as per adjournment. All members present. Minutes of meeting held June 13th, 1922, read and approved.

Board proceeded to an examination of the assessment for Wayne County as returned by the precincts and County Assessor.

On motion Board hereby fixes the last date for filing protests against any assessment as July 3rd, 1922.

All protests will be disposed of on July 10th, 1922, and the county clerk is ordered to notify all parties that have filed protests, that hearing will be had on July 10th, 1922.

No further business completed. Whereupon Board adjourned to July 3rd, 1922.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Wm. Hennsey of Carroll was a passenger to Omaha this morning.

D. W. Noakes went to Sholes last evening for a few days on his farm near that place.

Mrs. Hilda Anderson and little ones and Miss Frances Fox were visitors at Wakefield Wednesday.

Edward Horn from Norfolk was a passenger thru Wayne this morning, on his way for a visit at Spirit Lake, Iowa.

If you are not married yet, young lady, remember that Mrs. Jeffries makes a specialty of wedding gowns—adv.

Miss Josephine Schriener of St. Paul, who has been visiting at the home of sister in Denver, stopped off at Sioux City, Monday while on her way home, and was there met by Rollie W. Ley and brought to Wayne for a visit at the Ley homes, her cousins.

Mrs. Lydia Dixon, who has been spending a month here at the homes of her daughters, Mrs. Fred Blair and Mrs. Keyser, returned to her Omaha home Monday. She was accompanied on the home trip by her grandson, Master Charles Keyser, who will visit there a few days, but is expecting to reach Wayne in time for the celebration next Tuesday.

Mrs. Mellor left the first of the week to spend two or three months visiting her sister at Colorado Springs, Colorado.

Plans are being matured for the erection of a 15 story, modern hotel building in Omaha, costing more than $2,000,000.

James Steele was a visitor at Winside Wednesday, looking after the interests of his campaign for the nomination as county treasurer.

Rev. Duensing and wife from Tilden were guests at the home of Rev. Fischer and family, southwest of Wayne from Saturday until Monday. They came by car.

Mrs. Ivor Morris was a Wayne visitor Wednesday. She tells us that the C. E. convention at Randolph was the largest in the history of the organization in this district. Mrs. Morris was re-elected president, as a reward for her excellent work during the past year.

Mrs. R. S. Taylor, who has been visiting at Conway, Iowa, stopped here this week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Clark Bannister, while on her way to her home at Dorsey. She left Wednesday evening to visit at the home of a son at Page, and then on to her home.

Mrs. Cooper from the western part of the state, who has been visiting for several weeks at the Dan McManigal home, and with friends at Winside, left Tuesday evening for Hamill, South Dakota, where she plans to remain some weeks visiting with two sisters and a brother.

"Cheer Up" took in over $300 at their two shows last week, and after expenses were paid as per contract there was about $220 to split 50-50 with the promoter. It was a splendid production, and some received real training. Thus the Womans club has added more than another $100 to their fund for the building.

The report comes from Carroll that Mr. Jones of that place has resigned as a candidate for the nomination of county treasurer. We did not learn why. If he could have had the united support of all the Jones of the precinct he certainly should have stood some show. That leaves the contest wholly between Wayne candidates.

Howell Reese from Carroll was here Wednesday evening on his way home from Omaha, where he had been with a car of cattle from his feed lots. He said there was better cattle on the market than he took in, but he was satisfied with the 9c price he received for his offering, which had been on feed but a short time.

This is but one of the big plans for OUR CHAUTAUQUA. Buy a ticket. It begins July 8.—adv.

Osmond F. Bryon of Walthill is looking the political filed over to see whether or not the republicans of the district want to name a progressive candidate to carry their fight to the people in November for a verdict. He is decidedly against the administration, tho he is a republican. He says that he believes with Brookhart of Iowa, that republicans must be progressive or the people will not have them in congress. Mr. Bryon was a caller at the office Wednesday afternoon. He favors a lot of things that look good to the people, and we hope that none but progressive candidates carry the primary in July, where the office has anything to do with the law making power. Some one must crush the "invisible" government.

P. F. O'Gara from Cedar county has accepted filing of the people which asked him to make a race for congress from this district, in their behalf. He was petitioned by both the democrats and the progressives, and accepts the call of each or both; and in his announcement, to which we call your attention, he asks that the voters remember that he is not a party man in the strict sense of the word, nor will he be if nominated and elected. He will be a representative of the best interest of the people. Mr. O'Gara was one of the very few democrats who had a seat in the last Nebraska legislature, and his place came to him as a democrat in a general landslide away from democracy—it came, we venture to assert, because those who know him best felt that he was the better man for the people to name for that place. May it prove true in this larger field where responsibilities are greater duties more exacting—if one do his duty, as Mr. O'Gara has a habit of doing.

The Transmississippi Golf association will meet in Omaha the week of July 10.

The Omaha Street Railway company has placed the value of holdings at $20,466,000.

The Omaha Water Board has inaugurated a campaign for improvements to the city water system, costing $1,350,000. The work will begin at once.

Dr. Lee VanCamp, Omaha county physician, is authority for the statement that most of the bootleg whiskey offered for sale carries a large percent of poison.

Ten counties in this corner of Nebraska were represented in a Christian Endeavor convention at Randolph last week. Nearly 100 delegates were present, and a profitable program was followed.

The Sholes troubles have in a measure subsided. There are those who doubt much that the real head of the booze peddling has been caught yet. The way of the bootlegger, however is getting a little rougher and rockier all of the time.

IS LET IN ANTELOPE

The section of state and federal aid highway extending from Tilden to Oakdale, over the Blue Pole Highway as routed was let for permanent construction by the department of public works at Lincoln last Friday to The Peterson and Gumpheys Construction company of Omaha. The contract was sublet to the Dutcher Construction Co., who built the Clearwater to Oakdale project of the same road last year. Mr. Dutcher was in camp west of Neligh with his outfit, consisting of forty mules and a complete road-building equipment and moved the outfit to the Schwarting homestead, four miles west of Tilden, Monday and began work at the railroad crossing one mile east of Oakdale and proceeded eastward to the completion of the project at the west corporate limits of Tilden. This is a section of State Highway No. 47 and the Blue Pole Highway and will make an excellent road when completed from Norfolk west to Clearwater.

BAILEY AT HEAD OF BANK

The successor of J. Z. Miller, jr., as governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Kansas City will be W. J. Bailey of Atchison, Kan., formerly republican governor of Kansas and a director of the Federal Reserve bank of this district since its organization eight years ago.

The change in office will take place July 1. Immediately after that date, Governor Miller, Mrs. Miller and their daughter will carry out plans for a European trip. They will sail in July and be absent three or four months.

Governor Miller tendered his resignation at a regular meeting of the bank's directors Thursday. The governor's intention had been anticipated, and the directors were in line for Mr. Bailey. Their vote was said to be unanimous.

The election is to fill a term that will expire January 1. The governorship is for one year and the election is at the hands of the directors.

Mr. Miller said he had no intention of re-entering banking. At fifty-nine, he is closing forty-one years of active banking, broken only by two prior vacations, trips to Europe, thirty and twenty years ago.

When the bank was in the making Governor Miller was a bit vain of the fact he had every detail at his fingers' tips. But when organization became essential, he was prouder of the fact that he no longer knew or had to know what was transpiring in the many departments.

TARIFF AND BONUS

In the United States senate Tuesday Senator Walsh, democrat, of Massachusetts, moved that the bonus bill be taken up for passage, leaving the tariff bill to wait till the bonus was out of the way. Senator Watson republican, Indiana, moved to lay the motion on the table, which motion prevailed.

Twenty democrats and two republicans voted to give the bonus bill the right of way. Forty-three republicans and eight democrats voted that the tariff bill must be disposed of first.

The tariff bill calls for payment by the people of a bonus to the manufacturing interests. The bonus bill calls for payment by the people of the money due the soldiers of the late war.

The tariff bill will cost the people many times as much money, annually, as the bonus bill would cost.

Why is it so much more important to pay the one than the other? Why have the manufacturers a superior claim to the boys who gave up their jobs to go and fight our war while the manufacturers stayed home and doubled their riches?

Why is it assumed that there is a plenty of money in the country to pay the tariff bonus to the manufacturers, and that there is none to pay the adjusted compensation bonus to the soldiers?

It has been charged before this that republics are ungrateful. But it has never been charged, nor is it now, that the republican party is ungrateful to the sources from which its campaign funds flow.—World Herald.

PERSONAL PROPERTY VALUATIONS FOR 1922

The following named individuals, firms, corporations, or co-partnerships have been assessed in the precincts as herein shown, and the amounts set opposite their names are the valuations fixed by the Assessor, and are as they appear from the assessment record and also are the totals upon which the tax for the year 1922 will be computed unless changed by either the County or State Boards of Equalization. Bear in mind that these are the actual valuations as all levies are now based on actual instead of assessed values.

every man to be happy. After stating his profound admiration and love for a hopeful, optimistic man he showed how much more popular writers of such a temperament are than those of equal talent but of pessimistic outlook. He briefly sketched and contrasted the life and writings of Swift, Carlyle, Bunyan, Dante, Tennyson and Stevenson. The first two, in spite of tremendous genius, have never been popular because of their dark, cold outlook upon life, while Stevenson, burdened with the body of an invalid, maintained an unflinching spirit of cheerfulness that has been a source of delight and inspiration to all of his readers.

Speaking before the current poetry class Dr. Aitken called Burns not only the greatest Scottish poet but the poet of Scotland. He is Scotland condensed into one unit. He can be criticized only by Scotchmen of pure blood who alone can understand him and his genius. In thinking of Burns we should also consider the age in which he lived. He drank; so did all men of his time. He was known as a very religious man and was a fearless defender of the truth.

To illustrate the militant democracy of Burns he told how the poet was once invited to the house of a wealthy man. When he arrived he was asked to dine in the kitchen and then called before the other guests and asked to sing a song. Burns turned to his host and began to recite those stirring lines ending, "A man's a man for a' that!"

In continuing his lecture before the children's literature and the literary criticism classes at 1:30, Dr. Aitken made the statement that "No poet had more heart than Burns." As examples of the universal love voiced by Burns he gave "To a Mouse", "Hymn to Mary" and John Anderson, "My Jo".

In telling of his visit to Burns' home at Ayre, Dr. Aitken showed why all Scotchmen consider "Tam O' Shanter" as Burns' greatest poem.

Those who attended the lecture felt themselves fortunate in hearing a distinguished scholar, literary critic and pleasing speaker. As a Scotsman and a lover of Burns (the two are synonymous) no one is better fitted to give a better understanding of Burns and his works.

EDWARD MONK ASSISTS IN BIOLOGY LABORATORY

(From The Goldenrod)

The long expected assistant for the biology laboratory has arrived. When the cryptogamic botany class heard George announce that Mr. Gray's brother had arrived it immediately came to attention and was introduced to a rather small, dark whiskered gentleman from Porto Rico.

His voluble conversation and ringed tall made him easily the most distinctive person in the room. It must be admitted that for a monkey he is a very haughty and self-satisfied individual. After inquiring as to the health of his friend Croghan, he complained bitterly of the confinement and poor service he had encountered during his journey. The attitude of the crowds and his traveling companions had been rude and curious, his berth poorly kept, the cars hot and prohibition impossible. To think that a gentleman should travel in such a country—and now that he had reached his destination he found no companionship except Ashford, a couple of man-eating rabbits and an octogenarian turtle of such vile disposition that he had to be bolted to a chain. Really, now, were these fit companions for a well bred, self-respecting monkey? He broke down utterly and screamed his disappointment and disgust.

When he regained his self control Edward was somewhat mollified by being appointed assistant keeper of the Zoo and put in charge of a part of the office work. Although Edward is a model in all other respects we must admit that he is just the least bit timid. When the turtle gave way to its prurient tendencies and broke loose he went into immediate retirement and when Buck, the rabbit, was placed under Edward's care to protect him from his earnest and bloodthirsty brother, Bosco, Edward deserted his post of duty and climbed a tree. Not even the best of us are perfect.

Edward greatly misses the companionship of his kind and wishes to announce that as his duties demand his presence in his office at all times, he will be glad to receive any who will call there.

Unveiling of Neihardt Bust Homecoming Day

(From The Goldenrod)

A notable feature of the annual Homecoming of the alumni of the State Teachers College at Wayne on Friday, June 16, 1922 was the unveiling of a bust of John G. Neihardt, the gift to the college of Mrs. Alice Neihardt, mother of the poet, and made by Mrs. Mona Neihardt, the poet's wife. The ceremony came at the close of the Alumni Chapel Service before an audience of perhaps a thousand students, alumni and faculty of the College and their friends. The following is an account of the proceedings, a permanent record of which has been prepared for the archives of the Neihardt Club by Mrs. Elva Brockway, curator of the organization. In opening the program Miss Martha Pierce, chairman of the Committee on Arrangements said:

"We as an institution have had conferred upon us a great gift. Mrs. Alice Neihardt, the mother of our most distinguished alumnus, the poet laureate of Nebraska, John G. Neihardt, has presented to the school, as a mark of her interest and friendship, a bust of her son, the work of his gifted and devoted wife, Mona Martinsen Neihardt.

"When it became known that the bust would reach Wayne before the date of the annual Homecoming of our Alumni, it was thought eminently fitting that it should be formally presented to the school and unveiled in the presence of the assembled Alumni and friends of this day.

"Accordingly a committee was appointed to arrange for this ceremony. Miss Edith Beechel of the class of 1912 represented the Alumni association. Mrs. Elva Brockway, curator of the Neihardt Club, representing that organization, while to me falls the good fortune and high honor of representing the faculty of the institution.

"The committee has thought that it would be your pleasure and the wish of all friends of the poet and the school, that, in the absence of the donor the presentation be made by one who is known to all as the close personal friend of the poet, one who, far ahead of the indifferent crowd early recognized his genius, one to whose untiring and unselfish zeal is due in no small part the discovery and celebration of the poet's worth by his contemporaries. I refer to Dr. Julius T. House.

"Because he is the loved and honored president of this school and because of his unswerving friendship and his early association with Neihardt as a teacher in the days when the young man began the study of the classics, a study that became a passion and has borne so great a part in the development of his peculiar genius, it is a joy to all of us that this gift is to be accepted for the school by Dr. U. S. Conn.

"The two members of the alumni association, Veronica Wina and Faith Philleo, both of the class of 1922, who will unveil the bust have been chosen from among the graduates of the school to represent our students who are perhaps most favored of all those in any institution of learning in this state, in the opportunity offered them to become conversant with the work of the poet, under the most favorable and inspiring conditions.

"Among those who knew the poet in his boyhood here in Wayne, the young genius found no friends more true, tried and truster than Judge James Brittain and his family. It was agreed in the committee that some one conspicuously fitted to represent the friends John Neihardt found among the people of 'The Poet's Town,' should take part in the ceremony. Mrs. James Miller, daughter of Judge Brittain was chosen to open the program with music of her own selection.

"With the exception of the poet himself, it is conceivable that none of us who appear this morning will be remembered two hundred years hence except for that fact. We are most fortunate to have Dr. Neihardt present this morning and doubly fortunate that he has consented to be introduced to you after the unveiling. "It is with a solemn conviction of the great and momentous character of this event that we proceed with this significant ceremony."

Dr. House then read the two following letters and gave the presentation address as printed below:

Branson, Missouri
June 11, 1922

Dear Dr. House:
It is so altogether wonderful that my bust of John should have found a permanent place in Wayne, where John and his mother suffered and fought, that I feel the years of my girlhood spent in the study of sculpture were years well spent even though I should never model again. It is good of you to wish that I might be present at the unveiling but I am so happy "all around", and so grateful that in years to come the students of Neihardt's youth will have to see him through my eyes, that I cannot feel any sense of disappointment. You ask me to tell you about my "career." It was as follows:

When seventeen years old I tried to model a relief likeness of my brother out of dough and was much pleased with the result. Within a couple of months I gained admittance to the studio of our American sculptor, Frank Edwin Elwell, who became my teacher and who was most generous in his interest in my work until I went to Paris at the age of twenty. In Paris I did not frequent a school; I rented a small studio and modeled from life receiving much valued criticism from the great master Rodin. At the end of three years I subjected two portrait busts and one nude figure to the Jury of the Salon. Of these, two pieces, one portrait bust and the full length figure, were accepted. Some of my work done during those three years is in Geneva, Switzerland, and some in Holland. Shortly after exhibiting at the Salon, I returned to New York City, where the "Bundle of Myrrh" sent me spinning!

I am very grateful to Providence and to John that I landed in Branson! and I am very grateful to Mother for wanting to give to Wayne my bust of John—and to you for your generous attitude toward the Poet's wife.

Most cordially
Mona Neihardt.
Branson, Mo.
June 8, 1922.

The Neihardt Club
Wayne, Nebraska
Although it is impossible for me to be present at the unveiling of the bust of our poet, I assure you I take great pleasure in the fact that the absent I shall have my part in the occasion.

It is especially gratifying to me that the bust will be in the keeping of the Wayne Normal College. Thirty years ago when Prof. Pile founded the institution my children started with it and one by one graduated in their turn. The struggles of that time have long ceased to matter; but the memory of the big hearted man who made it possible in various ways for my children to attend his school, as he did for many another ambitious boy and girl, has made the college and those times very dear to me.

It is fitting that the bust should be presented during the presidency of Mr. Conn, who knew the boy and who, I know, has watched his growth with genuine interest.

It may be some satisfaction to him to know that both John and I remember with gratitude how generously he gave of his time in special classes. It was thru Mr. Conn that John became acquainted with Virgil in the original, and it would be difficult to overestimate the influence of Virgil upon the general trend of John's development.

I am proud to associate myself with the college and the Poet's town by means of the gift I am able to make. Thanks to my daughter-in-law, Mona, who made the bust for me thirteen years ago at the time when John was writing "The Poet's Town."

I have reason to be grateful to the college and to Wayne. Few have been so gracious to their poets.

I wish to say not only as John's mother but also as one with an impersonal interest in his work that I deeply appreciate the loyalty of the Neihardt Club. I am glad to be a helper in it for the work that is being done and that which is yet to do. It was a red letter day for me when I landed in Wayne with my children altho I did not know it then.

I found good friends. We found Prof. Pile, who has always been a beacon light in my family. We found Mr. Conn, without whom John's life work might have miscarried. And last but not least the college gave us "Dr. House who has always been a true appreciator of John's work and has given ungrudgingly of his time and effort to its success, whose keenness of understanding is unsurpassed and and whose friendship we esteem most highly.

Most sincerely
Alice M. Neihardt

"After the reading of these letters only a word more is needed. As a friend of the family, in the absence of the giver, I am asked to present this gift to this Institution. Every consideration of sentiment proclaims that the bust of the poet, made just as he was completing his splendid lyric songs and beginning to dream of his epics, should be and remain in the halls of this college until its lineaments shall have been lost in decay. Again, it is peculiarly fitting that here where the family lived in the days of the Poet's youth, should be placed the statue that recalls the love of the Mother who, not knowing what was to be her boy's destiny yet over and over in the dark had said:

"Blessed but not as happier children blest"

Lastly, it is a source of joy that the love of the wife shall appear and mingle with the skill and cunning of the artist in the virile representation of a virile man. Seldom indeed is it that such a Trinity has combined to produce such occasion as we celebrate today.

"Is it not a happy condition that both the Town and the Poet now know that all that matters is the "wakeful glory" that today they meet, recognizing that the Poet shall pass and the Town be buried deep as that other timeless town yet the poet's song shall live for the long dumb aching years of prose."

"So, Mr. President, it is with pleasure I cannot express, that, speaking in behalf of the whole Neihardt family, I present through you to this school the choice gift, pausing further merely to repeat lines from the poem several times referred to in these ceremonies, lines that many capable literary critics begin to believe were unconsciously prophetic.

"Once in a cycle the comet doubles its lonesome track;
Enriched with the tears of a thousand years
Easchylus wanders back,
Ever unweaving, returning, the near grows out of the far,
And Homer shall sing once more in a swing
Of the austere polar star."

The veil was lifted from the bust by Miss Wina and Miss Philleo, graduates of the 1922 class who are members of the Wayne Neihardt Club. After the echo of applause from the nearly one thousand spectators had died away, President U. S. Conn accepted the gift in the following words:

"I am greatly pleased to have the privilege of accepting this magnificent gift from the donor to the institution. I accept it on behalf of the faculty, the school and the alumni association. We especially appreciate the gift because it is the bust of the poet who has not only a national but an international reputation as a writer. It is a particularly fitting gift because there are so many things associated with the early life of the poet which are identical with the history of Wayne. It was here where he spent his boyhood days and received the rudimentary part of his education. To accept this gift is a special pleasure to me for the reason that for a year or two I was his teacher. His mother gives me credit with having been an inspiration to him in certain ways. I do not believe, however, that my teaching has had anything to do with his success as a poet; I only hope that whatever I may have done for him may not have been an obstacle in his way.

"We shall give this bust a prominent position in this institution somewhat in keeping with the prominent place which he now occupies in the literary world."

At the close of the ceremony Dr. Neihardt was introduced and arose and bowed graciously to the audience.

UP TO YOU AND CONGRESS

At the present time it would be a misnomer to speak of the national government having a personnel system at all. The reform accomplished by the establishment of the civil service commission and the merit system has touched but one phase of the personnel problem, and that but partially—entrance into the government service. Practically nothing has been done in the way of erecting the government services into careers that will attract and retain efficient men. Bad as conditions were in this respect before the war, they have become many times worse during and since that event.

The correction of these evils presents a problem of great complexity. It cannot be achieved by a half-hearted or half-way tinkering with the present system. Nothing but a thorough overhauling of the whole personnel system and the establishment of a new system covering all phases of the question and embodying the most approved principles of personnel administration will meet the needs of the situation. Fortunately a beginning has been made in this direction. It at least furnishes a starting point for action looking to the giving to the government of the personnel system that it must have if government work is to be even measurably well done.

The situation now is that there is an insistent demand on the part of the public that the whole administration of the national government be put upon a more efficient basis, and that the present waste of public funds, resulting from present defective organization and methods, shall cease; that congress is alive to this demand and has made a start toward meeting it; that the fundamental defects in the existing system are well known; and that the direction efforts looking to reform should take are clearly established. The responsibility is thus squarely up to congress.

If the problem that confronts congress in securing this laudable end is analyzed it will be found that the fundamental reforms are: The reform by congress itself of its own organization and methods of procedure; the entire revision of the present system under which the financial needs of the government are determined and provided; the setting up of an agency and procedure through which the expenditure of public funds may be properly controlled and congress be given that information regarding such expenditures which it must have if it is to assure itself that its agents, the administrative services, are properly performing their duties, and to act intelligently in respect to the future grant of funds; the provision of an organ through which the President may in fact, as well as in name, discharge his duties as head of the administration; the reorganization of the administrative branch of the government so as to eliminate the present widespread overlapping of jurisdictions and functions and indefensible duplication of services, organization, plant and work; and the complete recasting of the present system under which the personnel required to man the governmental plant is secured, compensated, promoted, assigned to particular tasks and controlled, to the end that not only justice will be done to the several classes of governmental employees, but that a personnel system will be established that will insure a maximum of efficiency in the actual conduct of public affairs.

A study of action actually had or now under way shows that steps have been taken toward the accomplishment of each of these fundamental reforms. The introduction of a budget system is a long step forward.

I don't mean in the least to give the impression that all private business is perfectly run and that only government business is badly managed, or that all the efficient people are in private employ and only inefficient in the public service. Neither of those conditions exists.

In the common phrase, you have got to hand it to Alexander Hamilton for devising a scheme that has stood up since revolutionary days. It has not been fundamentally altered since his day. There has been no readjustment of salaries in the departmental service for sixty years. That implies a certain loyalty and faithfulness on the part of the workers.

My only desire is to disclose the present condition of government employment; that good men are leaving, and that the present tendency, if not checked, will inevitably drive out of the service all of the efficient and leave only the mediocre and incompetent. I have said little myself, but have chosen to let the men working for the government tell the story. Every assertion of fact in these articles comes from some responsible source or authority within the service. I am not making a criticism or attack from the outside, but merely serving as a mouthpiece for your hired men.

TURK HAD EYE TO BUSINESS

Edhem Said Bey Got Bevy of Circassian Girls for Far Less Than Purchase Price.

Edhem Said Bey, a Turk who was feeling acutely the servant problem in Constantinople, tells of going to Asia Minor and buying half a dozen servants. He went to the first Circassian village and asked the chief of the elders to exhibit the daughters for sale.

In the evening 15 or 20 girls were assembled in the town hall with their fathers. They were dressed to show themselves off to advantage. The girls danced to the tune of primitive oriental music composed of a flute and cymbals. Edhem Said Bey carefully noted which girls pleased him the most, motioned them to one side, and called their fathers.

After long bargaining with the fathers the boy went to the market and bought donkeys, buffaloes and silver-mounted arms for a tenth of the price he had agreed upon for the girls. These were then presented to the fathers as payment. A buffalo which the boy had bought for 20 gold pieces, he would offer as a priceless animal to be credited to him in the payment for the girl at five or ten times that price. His object was to make the father think he had received two or three hundred gold pieces for his daughter, although the actual value of the material delivered might be only one-tenth of that amount, so that the father might boast of a high price to his friends.

SPEED OF FINGERS DIFFERS

Those of the Right Hand Quicker and More Accurate Than Those of the Left.

The fingers of your right hand are quicker and more accurate than those of your left, says the Popular Science Monthly. The ring finger of your left hand shows a burst of speed whenever it can work with the forefinger of your right hand; and it slows down noticeably when it must team with the middle finger of your left hand.

Two fingers working together are faster than one going it alone. And a combination of two fingers on opposite hands is faster than two fingers on the same hand.

Practice, while it increases the speed of all fingers, tends to increase the rate of the slow ones more than the fast ones, thus overcoming the handicap of the ones that lag naturally.

If you are a typist or pianist, perhaps you have already discovered some of these facts about the workings of your hands. They were conclusively demonstrated by a series of tests conducted at the Carnegie Institute of Technology by Esther L. Gatewood.

Hindus' Love of Jewelry

The ruling passion of the natives of India is an inordinate love of jewelry. Every Hindu as soon as he has accumulated any surplus cash, immediately converts the same into gaudy and often expensive ornaments for himself, his wife and children.

Every Hindu wears earrings and, on great occasions, as many as half a dozen pairs. Poor people who cannot afford gold pass copper wires through their ears and noses. In some districts married men wear silver rings on their toes, and another fashion is to have tied on the upper arm a gold box containing a charm to avert bad luck. It is the women, however, who appear in the greatest splendor. It is not uncommon to see a woman attending some festival or other with decorations in her hair, her ears, her nose, around her forehead, her neck, her arms, her wrists, her fingers, about her breast and neck, and around her knees, calves, ankles and toes.

Origin of "Fifty-Fifty"

"Fifty-fifty" originated in the theater box office. It developed back in the old days before engagements for various companies were arranged from New York by owners of chains of theaters. Then each company had to look out for its own engagements and made the best deal it could for a division of the receipts with the owner of the theater, explains the Detroit News. "Sixty-forty" was a good deal the "forty" going to the house. More often it was a "sixty-five-thirty-five" basis.

So the adoption of "fifty-fifty" as an expression to indicate an absolutely even division of anything, whether in or out of the theater, was a perfectly natural development.

Emancipation Days

There are emancipation celebrations at various times of the year. August 4 is observed as a celebration of the emancipation of Haitian negroes by the British. August 1 is celebrated as the anniversary of the proclamation issued August 1, 1834, by the British government, freeing slaves in its colonies. More than 700,000 slaves were set free in the West Indies at that time, principally in Jamaica, the English government paying several millions of dollars to the slave owners as indemnity. The day most widely celebrated, however, is September 22, the anniversary of Lincoln's proclamation issued in 1863.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MISS MARSH MARGOLD

"Come on, sisters and brothers," said Miss Marsh Margold. "Do not sleep any more. It is still cool, it is true, but you must awaken. It is going to be an early spring—but any way, we must awaken."

"For we are famous for getting up early in the spring."

"In fact we get up before it is quite spring."

"We do not mind icy marshes in the least. We're cousins of the Buttercup family, but we're a good deal larger than the Buttercups."

"And we're really quite gay and sunny in our golden frocks. There must be many of us too. Oh yes, there are lots of leaves and they are as gay and handsome as they can be, and we must look our best too."

"Come on, sisters and brothers. Do not delay!"

So the Marsh Margold family began to awaken in the swamp and tried to look their very best.

"We do not care to be picked," said Miss Marsh Margold. "It is not that we mean to be horrid about it, but we cannot live away from the dampness of the marsh. We like a good, wet swamp—and of course that isn't to be found in people's houses where picked flowers go."

"Other flowers like to be picked and give springtime joy. But it is our habit to stay in the swamp and we cannot help our ways."

"They've been family ways for years and years and years. Yes, and they're good swamp ways too."

"Our leaves are somewhat heart-shaped so that shows that we do not mean to be cross about being picked."

"We cannot help it—that is all."

"Soon other flowers will come out. It will not be so long. But we do not mind the chilly weather. Most of them want it a little warmer."

"The pussy willows will not mind it if it is not so warm. But they will open their sweet, gray faces when the warmer days come."

"The trailing arbutus flowers will peep out of the green leaves with their dear pink and white faces."

"The ferns will soon begin to unfold themselves."

"The Spring Begonias, with its white and pink petals and its veins of rose pink will open before long in the woods where it is damp and moist."

"We can understand how it is that they like dampness and moisture."

"Later the columbines will come along. I know of a columbine family which has always lived along an ugly railway track."

"They said they wanted to make some beauty for the people passing by on trains to see. And how lovely they always look."

"Columbines are beautiful flowers whether they wear red frocks or purple, white or pink."

"Then another nice, swampy flower or shrub is the Stinger Bush. They're spring flowers too."

"They have leaves which are thick and look something like leather."

"Their flowers look something like blueberries and they're supposed to be poisonous to any cows who eat them."

"They're handsome flowers."

"Then there are the violets. Yes, they, too, are spring flowers."

"And the dear little star of Bethlehem flowers. What dear star faces they have!"

"So you see, sisters and brothers, that the spring is so filled with a succession of beautiful flowers that we must hurry if we're to get in at the start of the procession."

"Yes, we must look our golden best. Let's all of us come out and greet the early, early spring-time."

"So the Marsh Margold flowers came out—and smiled in their sunny, golden way at the world."

It was still quite, quite cool, but the Marsh Margold family did not mind.

The swamp was as wet as wet could be and they loved its cool dampness.

So they bloomed and looked their best as they took their places in the first section of the Early Spring Flower Parade.

Self-Made Man!

ALBERT W. JEFFERIS

Republican Candidate for U.S. SENATE

Mr. Jefferis is a product of his own labors. From a farmer boy he rose to congress. He is a self-made man.

"ONE OF US."

HOW WAGES CAN BE RAISED AND PRODUCTION COST LESS

No sound solution of our labor problem, says Wollman's Review, will be reached until we face this stern, inexorable fact. The only permanent benefit that has ever been received by the masses of the people, thereby including the workers themselves, has resulted only from the processes that have increased output and lowered production costs. The social and industrial gains of the last century or so have been accomplished chiefly by means of so-called labor saving devices. The cotton gin, the steam shovel, the sewing machine, the self-binding reaper and thousands of other improvements, together with better means of transportation and distribution, have been responsible for the social and material betterment of the world. They have given us cheaper clothing, cheaper food, lower rents and all the necessities and comforts of life.

It is a misnomer to call them labor saving devices. They should be known as cost reduction devices. Moreover, they are labor creating devices, for every invention and every improvement means a fresh demand for services to man the machines and meet the call for new products.

Notwithstanding the multitude of benefits that have been conferred on all classes of the community, labor as a result of mistaken conceptions has fought every attempt to cheapen and increase production, whether by the installation of improvements, or by the institution of more efficiency in industrial operations. There has been too much of a tendency to ignore the urgent necessity of enlarging the output of goods and keeping too close an eye on the distribution of the products of industry. The world can gain only through increasing its output of goods and services, and it will be found that distribution will take care of itself.

The best way to raise wages, better

HOGS MAKE A DIME ADVANCE

Light Run of Sheep and Lambs Sell at an Advance of 25¢ to 50¢. Best Spring Lambs Quoted at $13.25 to $13.50.

Union Stock Yards, South Omaha, June 28, 1922.—With 8,500 cattle on sale Tuesday the market developed considerable strength and trading was active at prices strong to a dime higher than Monday. Best steers made a new top of $9.60. Cow stuff and stockers and feeders showed very little change.

Quotations on cattle.—Choice to prime beefs, $9.15 to $9.60; good to choice beefs, $8.75 to $9.10; fair to good beefs, $8.40 to $8.75; common to fair beefs, $7.90 to $8.40; choice to prime yearlings, $8.75 to $9.35; good to choice yearlings, $8.25 to $8.75; fair to good yearlings, $7.80 to $8.25; common to fair yearlings, $7.35 to $7.80; choice to prime heifers, $7.75 to $8.50; good to choice heifers, $7.00 to $7.75; fair to good heifers, $6.75 to $7.50; choice to prime cows, $6.25 to $7.25; good to choice cows, $5.25 to $6.25; common to good cows, $3.75 to $5.00; cutters, $2.75 to $3.50; canners, $2.00 to $2.75; butcher bulls, $6.00 to $7.00; beef bulls, $4.00 to $4.75; bolegun bulls, $3.50 to $4.00; veal calves, $4.00 to $4.25; good to choice feeders, $7.25 to $7.75; fair to good feeders, $6.50 to $7.25; common to fair feeders, $6.00 to $6.50; good to choice stockers, $7.25 to $7.85; fair to good stockers, $6.50 to $7.25; common to fair stockers, $5.50 to $6.50; stock heifers, $4.00 to $5.75; stock cows, $3.50 to $4.50; stock calves, $4.50 to $7.50; stock bulls, $4.50 to $6.00.

Hogs Sell 10¢ to 15¢ Higher.

Receipts of hogs Tuesday was nearly 15,000 head but there was a keen and broad demand for them and the supply was quickly cleaned up at prices 10¢ to 15¢ higher than Monday. Best light weights brought $10.25 and bulk of the trading was at $9.65 to $10.15.

Good Advance on Lambs.

Only 6,500 head of sheep and lambs showed up Tuesday and there was a brisk demand for them from all quarters. Prices ruled 25¢ to 50¢ higher than Monday on desirable lambs with best 10-hos around $13.25, although prime lambs would bring $13.50 or better.

Quotations on sheep and lambs.—Fat lambs, westerns, $12.50 to $13.50; fat lambs, natives, $11.00 to $13.25; feeding lambs, $9.00 to $11.50; cull lambs, $6.00 to $10.00; fat yearlings, $9.00 to $10.75; fat wethers, $5.50 to $8.50; fat ewes, light, $4.00 to $6.00; fat ewes, heavy, $3.50 to $4.00.

YOUNG FEEDER MAKES SHOWING THAT VETERAN MIGHT BE PROUD OF

DeForest Phillip, youngest son of the famous Phillip family of cattle feeders of Weeping Water, was on the Omaha market Tuesday with the first shipment of cattle he ever fed. The 30 steers in the consignment averaged 1,350 pounds and sold at $9.85. When taken out as feeders they scaled 1,070 pounds and cost $9.10, giving him a gain of 85 pounds in weight and $4.25 in price, which is a showing that even veteran feeders might well be proud of.

even than installing new devices, would be to eliminate industrial friction. One fairly authentic compilation estimates the losses in this country through strikes in 1921 at fully $2,000,000,000. If the products lost through these labor disturbances had been placed upon the market, they would have reduced tremendously the cost of living and added proportionately to the sum of material satisfaction; Take the single case of the New England textile strike. Up to the close of the week ending June 3, it was estimated that the loss in output of goods had amounted to 200,000,000 yards. No one will doubt that this curtailment of output will add substantially to the cost of goods which the country will have to buy.

The $2,000,000,000 lost last year has cut the purchasing power of the aggregate money wage of the workers of the United States by approximately the same amount. Even if they had won every strike, they would still be the losers, for the buying power of their wages would be reduced by higher prices for goods, higher rents, higher transportation costs—higher prices, in fact, for everything for which their money wages are spent.

If by some miracle of co-operation the industrial interests of this country, employers and workers alike, could reach an agreement for a "non-aggression pact" for two years and eliminate strikes, lockouts and walkouts, the effect on the purchasing power of the country would be almost incalculably beneficial. It would result in bringing about the greatest wage increase in history.

THE RECEIPT

It's doing your job the best you can And being just to our fellow man; It's making money—but holding friends,

And staying true to your aims and ends; It's figuring how and learning why, And looking forward and thinking high,

And dreaming a little and doing much; It's keeping always in closest touch With what is finest in word and deed;

It's being thoro, yet making speed; It's daring blithely the field of chance

While making labor a brave romance; It's going onward despite defeat

And fighting staunchly, but keeping sweet; It's being clean and it's playing fair;

It's laughing lightly at Dame Despair;

It's looking up at the stars above, And drinking deeply of life and love;

It's struggling on with the will to win, It's sharing sorrow and work and

But taking loss with a cheerful grip; With

And making better this good old earth;

It's serving, striving thru strain and stress, It's doing your noblest—that's Success!—Berton Braley in Forbes Magazine.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heart felt thanks to the many friends for their kindness and floral offerings during the sickness and death of our infant son Melvin Vincent.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fin.

DEATH OF J. W. MASON

Ashland (O.) Times. "Many friends in Ashland and Savannah who were well acquainted with J. W. Mason, who formerly lived in Savannah, will be genuinely grieved to hear of his death, June 18, at his home in Wayne, Nebraska.

Mrs. J. S. Weaver of East 4th street, his daughter, left last week and was at the bedside of her father when death came.

Mrs. Mary Wiley of Heltman avenue, and Mrs. H. A. Johnson of Cleveland avenue, sister of Mr. Mason, are now the only living members of the Andrew Mason family."

MONEY VS. BRAINS

According to the expense account filed by Col. Smith Brookhart, it cost him but $453.98 to crush the stand patters of the Iowa republican party whom it is said had millions at their command, and they spent it, too. When a candidate can convince the people that he is right, and honest and has ability, he does not have to purchase their votes.

SURELY SHOWED SOME SPEED

Chauffeur's Dashing Ways Caused Elderly Fiancee a Little Flurry of Bewilderment.

There is a certain city in the South noted for the number of foreign chauffeurs employed by its rich men. Not infrequently do these drivers find themselves in the local courts to answer charges of speeding.

"I heard of the case of an elderly Irish cook," says a man living in the city referred to, "who got engaged to a dashing young chauffeur from the south of France. She said to her mistress, after announcing this betrothal: 'My husband that is to be, mum, is such a speeder that it's bewildering.' Saturday he picked me up after knocking me down with his limousine; Sunday we got engaged, and today I find that he already owes me $200!"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Mystery of the Trees.

One of the most puzzling questions in botany is, "Why or how does water rise to the top of a tree?"

Various explanations of the phenomenon have been proposed, but none is regarded as altogether satisfactory. One investigator attacked the problem by means of interesting and novel experiments. For instance, he constructed an artificial tree of plaster of paris and found that water moved upward in it more than forty feet high. Yet he was unable to base any definite conclusion upon the results that he obtained. The water travels a large part of the way in a film, between bubbles on one side and the wall of the conducting vessel on the other. But the physical properties of the film are yet unknown.

Privilege of Nobility.

Lord Denbigh, whose coat-of-arms displays, appropriately enough, three carving knives, is nominally head-carver to the king of England. Similarly, Lord Mount Edgemoor is head butler; Lord Abergraveny, grand steward of the pantry; Lord Rothes, stirrup holder; Lord Winchester, cup bearer; while the duke of Newcastle is privileged to give support to the sovereign's arm when fatigued by the burden of the scepter.

To the bishop of Durham and Bath belongs the right of the bestowal of the royal person if the king succumb to faintness. Custom, too, requires that the archbishop of Canterbury shall prepare a bowl of soup should his Britannic majesty require it.

What is the Next Step?

In New Zealand there is in use an automatic device for telling railway passengers the names of the next station. The names of the various stations are printed on a roll, which is rotated by toothed wheels. A "tripper" is placed about on the track or by its side, between each station, and this is so adjusted as to strike a lever on the passing car. The motion is communicated to the toothed wheels governing the roll bearing the station names, and the ringing of an automatic bell announces to the passengers the fact that the name of the next station is on view.

Wonderful Imagination.

A bright boy was asked by his government to write a description of his (imaginary) travels in Italy. She was rather staggered, however, when she read: "After sailing about Venice on a gorgonzola and being disappointed in the smallness of the boasted 'Bridge of Size,' I went on to Rome. Again I was disappointed. The Colosseum there compared unfavorably with the one in London. The macaroni fields were white for harvest, but the spaghetti was only just in bloom. There was nothing on at the Vatican, as the pope no longer lives underground."

MODERN DEBT TO THE PAST

Present-Day Civilization Apt to Forget Whence Came Much of Art and Literature.

So accustomed are we to our own art and civilization that we scarcely realize how varied are the sources from which they sprang. We acknowledge a great debt to Rome. But do we often remember that our alphabet goes back at least to the Egyptians? Do we appreciate the meaning of the fact that nearly half the words we use have a Latin derivation? That we owe our numerals to the Arabs?

In our literature, what is the debt of the Elizabethans to Theocritus, who first sang that pastoral they in turn learned from the Italians? Through all our lives run strange threads of the past, but we are too accustomed to them even to recognize them as strange and thrilling, too. Often influences work in the most unexpected ways. To take a recent and unexpected example, one may quote the color prints, especially those of Utamaro, Hokusai, and Hiroshige, artists of the Eighteenth and Nineteenth centuries, who have been a deep influence upon the use of line and the composition of the modern European poster or school. The simplification of lines till only those essential to the central idea remain, was a heritage to the school of color prints from earlier artists.—Elizabeth J. Coatsworth, in the North American Review.

"MARRIED TO THE ADRIATIC"

Picturesque Ceremony That Was Held of Great Importance in Old Venetian Days.

A picturesque ceremony performed annually in Venice in the time of the doges was the "Marriage of the Adriatic," a rite symbolizing the dominion of the city over the neighboring sea. It was instituted in 1177 to commemorate a great naval victory by the Venetians over Frederick Barbarossa, it is recorded. Pope Alexander III in this year presented a ring to the doge of that day, and ordered his successors, every Ascension day, to cast a similar ring into the Adriatic, promising that the bride so espoused should be as dutiful as a wife to her husband. The first ceremony was performed on Ascension day of that year.

The doge and his suite, accompanied by many citizens, proceeded to the island of Lido, in the Adriatic. Arriving there the doge first poured holy water into the sea and then, taking the ring from his finger, dropped it into the ocean, saying: "We espouse thee, a sea, in token of our just and perpetual dominion." Solemn high mass was then celebrated, and the ceremonies concluded with a great feast.

Reached His Destination.

The steep stairway called "Break-neck Steps," connecting the upper and lower towns of Quebec, has been the scene, according to old inhabitants, of incidents both tragic and ludicrous. One approaches this stairway (even with its Twentieth century improvements) in tight-lipped apprehension, writes a recent visitor to the French-Canadian city. But in the old days, at the height of its dangerous career, to reach the bottom without accident was an achievement.

The tale is still being told of the gentleman who tripped on the second step, fell, but slid to safety, bearing on his back a lady, who at his tripping had also tripped and in her plight clutched the gentleman's knotted tippet. At the bottom of the stairway the gentleman politely doffed his hat and said: "Pardon me, madame, but this is as far as I go!"

Peculiar Indian Custom.

It is an inviolable covenant within the Navajo Indian nation that after the marriage a son-in-law must never set eyes on his mother-in-law, and vice versa, a mother-in-law must never see her son-in-law. The daughters-in-law are not mentioned.

According to Navajo traditions, a Navajo girl is considered the property of her parents until she marries. Prior to her marriage a contract is made between the father of the girl and the destined bridegroom. When a Navajo woman marries she becomes free and may leave her husband for sufficient cause. A warrior of one clan must marry a maiden of one of the 11 others, and vice versa. The descent of the clans is passed along by the female line.

Mason and Dixon Line.

The Mason and Dixon line, in United States history, is a line popularly regarded as dividing the slaveholding from the non-slaveholding states. In reality, it ran for more than one-third of its length between two slave States, Maryland and Delaware. It was run by two English engineers, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, between the years 1764 and 1767, for the purpose of settling the disputed boundaries between Maryland on the one side and Pennsylvania and Delaware on the other. The work was done with such skill and accuracy that a revision in 1840, with instruments of much greater precision, disclosed no error of importance.

All Must Make Sacrifices.

Would we codify the laws that should reign in households, and whose daily transgression annoys and mortifies us and degrades our household life, we must learn to adorn every day with sacrifices. Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices. Temperance, courage, love are made up of the same jewels.—Emerson

THE SNAKES

"Well," said Willie Watersnake, "it is nice to be about again, but I enjoyed my winter sleep."

"Hiss, hiss, so did I," said Morris Moccasin snake.

"I had a fine sleep, hiss, hiss, hiss," said Robbie Rattlesnake.

"But I'm glad to be around again," said Charlie Copperhead Snake.

"So am I," said Morris Moccasin Snake.

"Some folks were surprised to hear that we had spent the winter together," said Willie Watersnake.

For the Watersnakes and the Moccasins, the Rattles and the Copperheads had all been together in the same den all winter.

"Well," said Charlie Copperhead, "sometimes our families live quite by themselves and do not share a den with others."

"The same is true of our family," said Robbie Rattlesnake.

"It has been said that we do differently at different times in our ways of living and sharing dens, and that is quite true," he added.

"And last year," said Willie Watersnake, "so my family tell me, Billy Blacksnake and his family shared a den with my family."

"We were wise snakes to build our dens facing the south so we would avoid a great many hard storms," said Morris Moccasin Snake.

"Yes," said Willie Watersnake, "and we got up a little earlier this spring from our winter's sleep, because of that. However, it was nice to get up. The spring came along most pleasantly, most pleasantly."

"We know the South from the North. Oh yes, snakes know that. Some people think that snakes don't know much of anything except to have poisonous fangs like old Robbie here, for example, or to hiss and squirm."

"Strange how ignorant they can be," said Morris Moccasin.

"Of course we know the South from the North," said Charlie Copperhead, "and we know that when we have our dens facing the South we miss a great many terrific storms that way. They don't blow in such horrible gusts toward our homes."

"Ah, it is nice to go to sleep in the winter."

And all the snakes hissed and said: "It is nice, very nice. And it is well to know how to be protected from the storms, too."

"We know," said Morris, "that when we build our dens facing the South, they will not be frozen in so quickly."

"And we like warmth. That is why we have no special time for getting up in the spring. It depends on the weather."

"If it is a cold spring we get up much earlier than we otherwise would."

"We love the warmth, oh yes."

And all the snakes hissed, "Oh yes, we love the warmth."

"We like to live in cliffs," said Charlie, "and there we have fine rooms with old warm dead leaves and pine needles and other soft warm blankets."

"And then we sleep and sleep and sleep," said Robbie.

"Yes, sleep and sleep and sleep," said Morris.

"Yes, we sleep and sleep and sleep, hiss, hiss," said Willie.

"But now we are out and we must get food and drink," said Morris.

"Yes, now for the adventures, and the dangers and the food," said Robbie.

"We're off for the wide world," said Willie.

"How do you know its wide?" asked Morris.

"Oh, I have an idea that it isn't a narrow world," said Willie.

"Maybe you're right, I suppose you are."

"But it's a round world," said Charlie. "I've heard it said by those who should know."

"It can be round," said Willie, "but when I say we're off for the wide world I mean that we're off for journeys and adventures which aren't to be had in little narrow spaces, but spread out over the wide face of Mother Earth."

"We see," the others hissed, "we understand."

Why Mary Was Favored. Tom, in speaking of his approaching birthday party, remarked: "Only little boys can come to my party, Jim, Joe, Jack and Mary."

"Why, Mary is a little girl," said his mother.

"But," argued Tom, "she wears rompers just like us boys."

BUTTONS

By MARION E. LEIGHTON

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Nose on extended paws, Buttons watched with devoted but troubled eyes the shoulders of his pretty young mistress as they heaved convulsively with each heart-broken sob.

The previously undisturbed calm of Buttons' domestic happiness had been rudely shattered during the last week by frequent quarrels between the two beings he loved most on earth—his master and mistress. One short year of perfect, home-loving bliss, and then—this!

Buttons had grown up with his pretty young mistress and loved her with the devotion she deserved. His master had been a later acquisition and was accepted by him at first because his mistress seemed to desire it, and later because Buttons learned that he was a man to trust. Now, something—a foolish thing, Buttons thought—had pricked this rose-colored bubble of domestic joy and it had burst with a bang.

As he watched his mistress out of soft, brown, adoring eyes it gradually dawned in Buttons' alert mind that it was up to him to patch that bubble up or go down himself as a no-account quadruped.

That it was Mistress Nan's erring brother that had been the cause of all the trouble, Buttons knew. Brother Jack was old enough to know right from wrong, and young enough to regard family interference in his affairs as nothing short of impertinent presumption. Master Harry had protested, coaxed, threatened and finally warned him to conduct himself with greater discretion, or seek another home. Gambling, drinking and several escapades in which he was requested to "tell it to the judge" had been overlooked, but this last incident had been too much.

Buttons wasn't satisfied (any more than Mistress Nan) that brother Jack was guilty of stealing—even if circumstances and Master Harry did convict him.

Jack was wild, yet; but Buttons thought he could spot a criminal when he saw one, and he had never regarded Jack as anything worse than a little-too-good fellow. He didn't believe (and here again he agreed with Mistress Nan) that Jack had taken that roll of bills from Harry's bureau.

Sorrowfully Buttons rehearsed the quarrel between Harry and Nan. Harry had finally told her that she must choose between Jack and himself, as he refused to remain in the same house with a thief. Nan had loyally defended her brother, and Buttons, remembering, loved her the more for it.

Jack had been left alone in the house the previous afternoon and the money had been on the bureau then. (Nan knew that, too; and though she couldn't account for its disappearance, she didn't believe that Jack had taken it.) Jack hadn't returned that night and was still absent, which looked bad. Buttons admitted this to himself.

He wished he hadn't allowed his canine nature to lead him on that chase after the Baker's yellow tomcat and hold him at the foot of the big maple, where "Tom" had taken refuge, for nearly an hour; he might have kept an eye on Jack or the money—or both.

Oh, well—dogs will be dogs!

Let's see; how could that money have gotten out of his master's bedroom? The window had been open—the curtains were rustling in the soft spring breeze—Master Harry's soiled shirt was thrown over a chair—a pair of slippers, a wilted collar and a pair of socks littered the floor. Buttons remembered that because he had taken Master Harry's afternoon paper up to him just after lunch, (a trick Nan had taught him along with some others).

What else? Oh, yes, a pair of old shoes that Buttons had heard his master say could be thrown away.

That was it! That pair of shoes! Why couldn't the wind blow that money off the bureau and—

Buttons jumped up and disappeared through the open doorway that was letting in the soft spring sunshine. After many circlings and sniffings and pawings of the rubbish pile in the back yard he emitted a little "woof" of triumph, and carefully lifted an old shoe in his mouth. With his tail wagging joyfully, he took it inside and deposited it in Mistress Nan's lap.

She wiped her tear-stained cheeks and regarded it with surprise. Buttons pushed his damp nose into her soft palm and gazed up at her with pleading eyes. How he hoped she'd understand!

Nan looked at the shoe wonderingly and something green inside caught her eye. With a little gasp of surprise she thrust her hand into the shoe and drew out the missing roll of bills.

That evening Buttons lay with nose on extended paws and with supreme content gazed at a happy little family group of three.

"Don't worry about me any more, folks," Jack was saying. "I've landed that job with Wheeler Brothers, and
