O. C. LEWIS, SHERIFF AND PIONEER OF COUNTY DIES

For a number of months past Sheriff Lewis was in failing health, and for the past two months he was not able to attend the duties of his office, which had been unusually heavy, owing to inability of many to meet obligations as they came due; and to his ambition to give full service, in measure the cause of his broken health. After he could no longer keep going, he went to Sioux City and under the care of a specialist tried to stamp out disease and rebuild his wasted energies. The only hope lay in an operation; but he had not vitality sufficient to regain health, and was brought home six days before the end came, after it was known that all possible had been done.

The Obituary

Otis Clinton Lewis was born April 16, 1865, in Atkinson county, Missouri, where his boyhood days were spent. He died at his home in this city, Saturday, November 17, 1923.

OTIS CLINTON LEWIS

at the age of 58 years, 7 months and 1 day. He is survived by his wife, Francis Lewis, two daughters, Mrs. Etta May Jones of Gorman, South Dakota, and Mrs. Minta Leebrock of McDonald, Kansas; and one sister, Mrs. C. Leehan of San Leandro, California, and Master William Jones, who has been given a home with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis since an infant.

The funeral services were held from the Methodist church Wednesday afternoon, the Masons attending in a body and giving their ritual service at the Greenwood cemetery where he was placed in his family lot beside the body of the wife who passed away some six or seven years ago.

The funeral service was conducted by a former pastor, Rev. S. A. Draiss, now of Wisner, a friend of the family, who was pastor of the Winside and Grace churches for four years when Mr. Lewis was a member of their church organization. A wealth of flowers from many sources attested the high esteem in which he was held by all.

Mr. Lewis moved to Wayne county in 1886 from near Afton, Iowa, and has since been a citizen of the county, first owning and occupying a farm in Brenna precinct, and later selling it and buying a farm just east of Carroll. Fourteen years ago, he sold that land and moved to Wayne and has since made his home here. In addition to his church affiliations he was a member of the Modern Woodmen and the Odd Fellows.

He served as sheriff of the county five years, having been elected for the second term at the last election. Among those from outside to attend the funeral were sheriffs from a number of adjoining counties.

Mrs. Lewis and the boy will soon leave for her former home in Ohio, where she has two brothers living, who need her services in the old home.

In the passing of O. C. Lewis this community sustains a great loss, for he was a good fellow, public spirited, and a willing helper in any and all enterprises that looked to the advancement of all good community uplift.

1873 VOIGTS—LESSMAN 1923

At Liberty, Illinois, November 17th, 1873, occurred the marriage of Mr. William Lessman and Sophia Voigts—and Saturday, November 17, 1923, more than 150 relatives and friends gathered at the comfortable home of Mr. and Mrs. Lessman, seven miles northeast of Wayne to do honor to these old settlers, who have spent the greater part of their half century of married life in our midst. Besides the many home folks who came to pay their respects to their neighbor and citizen, were a number from away, among them being Mr. and Mrs. D. Trackra of Ithica, Mr. and Mrs. Whaling of Alta, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Dahamke of Millett, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Lessman of Des Moines, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Niefeldt of Ithica, Mr. and Mrs. Brayer of Ceresco.

In addition to $65 in gold, Mr. and Mrs. Lessman were recipients of many presents of value and utility, as an expression of the kindly feeling of friends, relatives and neighbors.

The day was spent in sociability—visiting of other days, and pioneer times on the farm, making it a date long to be remembered not only by Mr. and Mrs. Lessman, but by the guests as well. Ample was the supply of good things to eat, for no guest at the Henry Lessman home can fail to partake of the bounteous hospitality. Quite a number of the Wayne business men and families, who have so long known Mr. and Mrs. Lessman drove to the home in the evening to pay their respects and extend congratulations.

GOVERNOR BRYAN'S POLICIES

Tuesday, Governor Bryan made a little talk before the Farmers' Educational and Co-Operative Union, and announced his platform, which is creating quite a stir among the people, because they seem to believe it is sensible and honest—an honest opinion from an honest man, fearlessly expressed. We cannot give it this week, but might say that he favors a lot of reforms, and one is for voters to quite voting party label, no matter what they advocate, and vote for those whom they think will come nearest to doing the greatest good to the greatest number.

Repeat present high tariff, restore income and excess profit taxes to something near what they were before reduced. Increase the money in circulation to an amount of $50 per capita, repeal the Esch-Cummins law.

Reduce the cost of government—reduce rail freight rates 30 per cent, reduce the price of coal at the mine $3.00 per ton on hard coal and 25 per cent on soft coal; and the same as to oils, and other natural products. If the present forces running these extortions cannot do that, let the government take them over and run them until such time as the people can be protected by law.

In short, he would have all submit to a just government, whose mission should be first of all to protect the weak from the strong and unscrupulous.

Mr. Bryan advocated specific remedies for the ills we suffer, and took the stand for what he believe to be right.

DINOSAUR EGGS AND TURTLE EGGS

We notice in the papers Wednesday the statement that a party of professors out searching for ancient things and prehistoric events have or at least claim to have discovered a nest of dinosaur eggs that are a million years old. We doubt if they hatch any of those birds. But speaking of eggs, did any of you happen in at the Rexall drug store this week and see those two jars which Mr. Vath tells are turtle eggs, captured by some of the lads along the Logan. From their size and activity, Mr. Vath asserts that they must be incubated to near the hatching point. The are kept at a temperature around 70 degrees, and appear to be about to bring forth. Mr. V. seems to enjoy telling what he knows of the habits of turtles and turtle eggs.

THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT—CAN WE HAVE IT?

Having been shut in for almost two months with a broken arm, has given me wonderful opportunity to think of and study the community proposition from every standpoint. I feel that it might be worth while to write a little along this line which lays very near not only my heart, but to a goodly number of other ladies of our little town.

It is the community spirit we have been working for, and we wish that all the ladies, and men also, could feel this as we do. We feel that if they did it would not be long until our work would be accomplished.

We feel that our ministers are trying to help us. But we also feel that they don't quite understand our situation, and now is the time to explain or at least give them and our community to know our view of the situation.

Just a handful of ladies have worked hard to bring this about. You all know it takes money to accomplish anything in this world. Where have we gotten this money? Just by hard work, and the bright prospect ahead that some day we will be out of debt. Then we could do something worthwhile. Just stop and think how easy this would have been for us all, if you would have helped us, even just a little.

By this time we might have a large community house, a rest room for our country people and out of town visitors, a home for everybody—a place for our young people to get together for their socials, singing class, and at least once a week a good lecture to listen to. What have we now? No place for them to go only the picture show; and we are thankful we have such a fine picture show for them to attend. Mr. Gailey is doing more for our young people and our community than any other person or persons in Wayne. But the boys and girls cannot go there every night, for the house is not large enough to hold half of our young people, beside it would be pretty hard on father and mother's pocketbook. Now, where are the rest going to spend their evenings? The weather is cold and they cannot stay out doors.

I think I hear the ministers and church people say, let them go to church. Stop and think again. Church service is just once a week—six more evenings. Where shall we go? What shall we do? It is too cold outside. There is your home. In the most of the homes mother has worked hard all day. What a pleasure and recreation it would be to have a nice, warm pleasant place for mother to go with the children, listen to some good music or a reading, or nice games to play, that they could all enjoy. What a pleasant, happy evening for all. And this could all be brought about if all could get the spirit and each one do his or her share, even if just a little. We all know that good, wholesome environment to bring up children means much to them. It must be interesting to help them and make them happy. I believe that the big idea that we work for in this life is happiness. Just happiness first and comfort afterwards. How many young people think or wish for comfort?

No, it is pleasure and happiness even those who seemingly work and slave for money, want, as it looks to the outsider. But we expect the money to buy happiness when we get it. Oh, how often it falls short. Why? because it is not put in the right place to bring happiness.

We all want our children to go to church and Sunday school, but we must educate them to it, you can't drive them right off the street into a church and expect them to enjoy it and take an interest. Give them something to do, some place to go where they can feel that they are a part of it, and it is up to them to help others, for we each and every one of us, no matter what the station in life, depend more or less on the other fellow, so why not give every one a chance to bring out the very best that is in him?

Now, about the swimming pool we are looking forward to in the spring. You may think it is too early or out of season to approach that subject. But it is only a few months until spring, and last summer the objection was too late in the season to do anything. It will take from now until spring for some people to decide and make up their minds just what to do. But a swimming pool we must have for our boys and girls and the community, this coming summer. I cannot understand the attitude of our men and fathers of the town. We

ACTO TRUCK DRIVER CRUSHES LILLIAN AUKER

Sunday as Lillian Auker, eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard F. Auker, formerly of this place, stepped from the street car while returning from Morningside church, she was struck by a truck being rapidly driven by Dorrance Houghton, a driver for the Roberts Dairy company. The child was run over, a leg and an arm broken, besides internal injuries and bruises about the head causing her death about twenty-four hours later.

The driver of the truck was arrested when he came to headquarters to report the accident, and is being held on a charge of manslaughter at the Sioux City jail.

Lillian was accompanied by her younger sister Lucille, who was waiting to follow her as she stepped from the street car in which they were riding, at 36th and Jackson near their Morningside home.

Mr. and Mrs. Auker have been living at Morningside for two or more years, where he is engaged in real estate business. He is son of S. E. Auker, and grew to manhood near Wayne, and a host of friends and many relatives will sympathize with them in their sad loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merchant, Dick Auker, Mrs. C. H. Hendrickson from this place and Mrs. Auker from Wingo went to the city Sunday evening or Monday morning.

NO ONE CAN TELL

Last week the Democrat asked the question as to "What's the matter with Wayne," and answered it that "She's all right," and asked for communications on the subject. So far no one has written. Several said it was a live and proper question to ask. Another said he would have asked for suggestions as to the needs of Wayne, and we accept the amendment. In fact, we asked for suggestions along that line, and are still asking. Perhaps some of the ladies will venture an opinion. Some people talk well, but do not seem to want to put it in writing.

One man told us what he thought was the matter, but it would not look well in print, and might not get by the postmaster.

We asked the question in hope that some would offer a suggestion looking toward the development of good things at Wayne. It was not for criticism; unless there were those who felt that criticism is needed for the good of the community. Will anyone offer a suggestion?

DO NOT FORGET

That the ladies of the Presbyterian church will hold their annual bazaar at the Library basement Saturday afternoon, November 24, beginning at 1:30. A splendid assortment of wares will be for sale, as well as foods and home canned fruits. There will also be a book booth for receiving old books and selling the same. This will offer opportunity to purchase a great variety of books, and many no doubt of much interest. Remember the date and place.—adv.

know they all want their boys and girls to learn to swim. I believe I am correct in saying there is not a clean body of water within ten or more miles of Wayne where they can even go in bathing. Now mother has bathed these boys and girls in the bathtub for years to have them clean and healthy, and now that they are almost grown they cannot learn to swim in the bathtub, and it is up to the fathers of these young folks to provide a place for them to swim in. They are just as proud and anxious for their children to grow up stout and healthy as any can be. But they don't take the time from their business to study what they need. It is a place nearer home where there is a nice clean water in which to bath and learn to swim. Several of our boys have been very ill, sickness contracted from trying to bath in unfit water and places.

With other places not half as large as Wayne having swimming pools, one wonders if they think more of their boys and young-people than we do. I think not. But we must prove it by doing something for them. So please think this over before spring and decide just what we can and will do to help, for spring is, but about three months away. A swimming pool we must have, and how easy it would be for all if every one would do just a little to help it along. I would so love to see this accomplished while I am here with you for this is my town, my boys and my girls. Sincerely, Mrs. Henry Ley.

Mechanically, your motor is an all-around champion—quick starting, speeds up quickly, has lots of power and can go a long way on one filling of fuel. But just as the athlete must diet correctly, so must your motor be fueled correctly. Performance varies with the quality of gasoline used.

In Red Crown Gasoline the fuel elements are so well balanced that you always get quick, complete, powerful combustion on a lean mixture. Red Crown Gasoline is built up to definite specifications—plenty of low boiling point fractions to insure quick ignition—plenty of higher boiling

One thing the next legislature should do is to amend the marriage law passed by the last legislature as to prohibit Nebraska citizens going from the state to wed, except that they have complied with the law as to notice and physical examination. As the law now stands it is pretty hard on the preacher's wives. They are supposed to have the marriage money, we are told, and as the law now stands most of the weddings are outside the state. This is an "infant industry" which should be given protection.

NEBRASKA CROP REPORT

Corn has risen to second in record of the crop in the history of the department. There was an increased acreage, due in part to the abandoned winter wheat, following a dry fall and winter in some of the wheat growing districts. The average yield is placed at 34 bushels per acre. Last year price averaged 53 cents at this time, compared, and the estimate is that the price will average 60 cents this year, giving it a market value of about $170,000,000. Corn is 88 per cent marketable.

The hay crop is reported at 6,000,000 tons—a million tons greater than last year.

The Nebraska potato yield is placed at 80 bushels per acre, and with the less acreage and yield there is a shortage of about two million bushels from last year, being estimated at nine and eleven bushels respectively. Apples are but little more than a half crop, and are estimated at 880,000 bushels; and about one-third may be classified as commercial.

The minor crops are about as usual. The sugar beet is about 88 per cent of normal, indicating about 570,000 tons, about 150,000 tons less than last year.

The labor wage was $40 per month with board, and day wage was $2.75 per day with board. The labor demand was 98 percent and the supply but 83 per cent.

Estimates of leading crops for the U. S. are as follows; the first figure being the present and the second, last year's estimate. Corn, 3,029,000,000 bu. and 2,890,000,000 bu. All wheat, 781,737,000 bu. and 862,091,000 bu. Oats, 1,302,453,000 bu. and 1,201,436,000 bu. Potatoes 416,722,000 bu. and 451,185,000 bu. Commercial apples, 33,522,000 bbls. and 30,955,000 bbls. Total apples, 193,855,000 bu. and 201,252,000 bu.

FOUND OUT HOW HARD

John Mussack of Stanton is minus one eye, and possibly two of them. He wanted to know something of the force of the explosion of a dynamite cap, and so hit the cap with an ax. While he cannot see very well just what it did, he can feel that it is a mighty force. A piece of the metal container cut one eye ball open, and the other eye is seriously injured, so that it is a question as to whether or not it will ever be of much value to him. It takes all kinds of fools to make thrilling news for the papers. One man wants to know if it is loaded, and it proved to be, but he never knew it. Another lights a match to see if there was any gasoline left in the can, and it was immaterial to him whether there was or not, for there was gas enough to blow him and can to kingdom come. Some auto drivers think they can beat a train of cars to a crossing, and proved a tie. Once a man in Colorado mining district wondered how small a piece of dynamite would explode so that it could be heard. He tried it with a small piece on the anvil in a blacksmith shop, hitting it with a sledge. His hammer went out thru a perfectly good roof, and went so quick that it took the skin and flesh from the inside of his hands before he could loosen his grip, and that sledge may be going yet for all he ever learned. But why tell of more instances where the fool-killer had overlooked his duty and left a lot of those who should have been looked after at large.

GREAT INDUSTRIAL MOVEMENTS

Probably the greatest movements ever inaugurated in our country says The Manufacturer and Industrial News Bureau for stabilizing finance and utility properties are what are known as the establishment of labor bank and customer ownership of utilities.

In many of the large cities, large labor organizations have become controlling stockholders in national banks and members of unions not only own shares but are swelling the deposits into millions.

On the other line, the customers ownership of utilities, starting in June, 1914, has been extended to 1,500,000 citizen stockholders in electricity, telephone and gas corporations.

This large number of individuals not only share in the dividend and interest distribution of these large utility and public service organizations, but have invested $300,000,000 this year in new securities.

Customers ownership financing has been the salvation of these public service industries, supplying the new capital necessary for extensions and improvements.

Some of the great railroad companies of our country like the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Santa Fe have extended their lists of stockholders in the same direction, selling their common stock to the men and women on their pay rolls on the installment plan.

By thus welding the interests of their employees, customers and the general public as a link in their financial existence, there is developing an asset of wonderful value, and a system of profit sharing that is based upon sound principles.

TAX-EXEMPTS VS. INCOME TAX

The following comes to our attention, and we want to call it to your attention, that you may think it over, and when chance comes act on the question as to you seems best:

J. Odgen Mills, a banker, at the National Tax Conference, declared that tax-exempt securities were the greatest evil in the whole field of taxation.

He declared that a progressive income tax and tax-exempt securities could not exist side by side, and the latter would destroy the former.

"Is there any need to point out how excessively high surtax rates sin against the fundamentals of a sound tax system, in that they are becoming increasingly unproductive, that they encourage evasion and are too great a burden on industry, initiative and thrift?"

"Can there be anything more fantastic than the government of the United States solemnly declaring its purpose to take 58 per cent of a mans income and then providing the means whereby he will pay no tax at all?"

"What are you doing through these tax-exempt securities, backed up by a high—a very high—progressive income tax rate? You are not only drying up this investment fund, but you are drying up this fund of initiative, of energy, of business ability."

"Is there anything more likely, if history means anything, to engender class hatred and prejudice, and is there anything more likely to bring into general contempt a government which not only permits such a situation but one which actually created it?"

GAS AT FORT COLLINS

A copy of the Fort Collins Express-Courier that has been sent to the Democrat by a former resident of Wayne, tells particulars of the great gas well tapped at that Colorado city. They quote expert opinions that the strong flow from the well will undoubtedly last for a generation. It is also predicted that the population of Fort Collins will increase to 30,000 within two years; and that the

The first effort is to cap the well so as to keep the gas which is escaping at a rapid rate, as the pressure is high. The moisture in the gas, experts affirm, indicates a great supply of oil available.

No where, perhaps, does the principle of the old saying, "A stitch in time saves nine," apply more truthfully than when applied to the repair of a road. Facts most motorists know

Protective lubrication makes motoring less expensive

What motor oil actually costs is not measured by its price per gallon. Add your repair bills to your bills for oil and you get a more accurate figure—because fully seventy per cent of all motor repairs are chargeable to poor lubrication.

Price is not a safe guide. Appearance means nothing. No one grade of oil can provide protective lubrication for all different types of motors.

Polarine is not the most expensive oil, but it is the most perfect motor oil that years of test and experiment have produced. It is made in five grades—light, medium, heavy, special heavy and extra heavy—a grade that assures protective lubrication for every type and make of gasoline motor.

Consult the Polarine Chart. Buy the grade of Polarine recommended. Flush the old oil out every five or six hundred miles. Then motoring will cost you less. Buy where you see this sign.

Now comes a politician and suggests that the democrats should nominate a man without record, and elect him. No, we would not say so, for one with even a bad record might be stronger than a non-entity.

Under the present tariff sugar costs the American people two cents a pound extra, whether it is paid into the treasury or to the coffers of the sugar trust. That means a tax of $200,000,000 annually, and quite a part of that is paid, not to the government, but to the fellows who manipulate the prices under the protecting wing of the tariff buzzard.

Speaking of presidential candidates for next year, Senator Brookhart of Iowa says that Senator Bob LaFollette could and would sweep the country, if he could get the nomination. That is as much as to say that the conservatives who rule the dominant parties will not permit his nomination. Yet we are told that the people rule.

News from Ainsworth is to the effect that there are many mortgage foreclosures in that vicinity. That is the inevitable result of a deflation of the money combined with a tariff that protects to an extent that it makes the foreign market—the natural outlet for surplus of our farms dead. That's part of the game of those who manipulate the currency and the tariffs.

As the time for fighting the fight of 1924 approaches, an increasing number of voters, looking the field over with critical eye, are reaching the conclusion that W. J. Bryan is one of the real candidates to be considered. Of course, he is not a candidate, so far as we know; but he has a record as a candidate not equalled by any other living citizen; but he never won the election for himself. There is always a first time, if one keep at it.

A contribution to the Belden Progress of last week starts in with the assertion that some plan of community activity should be in operation at that place and then ambles along down a column of the paper, and stoops before he gets anywhere. He must have stopped too soon, or else he did not stop quick enough. The fact is that too many people with good ideas are afraid to advocate them; for fear they will be criticised. That should not be.

The congress that died last March deliberately put a tax of $200,000,000 on the sugar consumers of the United States for the benefit of the sugar trust. And to think a great paper would say that it would not be fair to accuse Senator Smoot of corruption. Certainly not—if he was put in the senate to represent the sugar interests—and doubtless he was. But some people that he was there as a representative of the people of Utah in particular and the people of the nation in general. If such senators will tell before election for what they stand and with whom they stand, well and good; but in too many cases it is obtaining goods under false pretense, or just a smooth way of stealing.

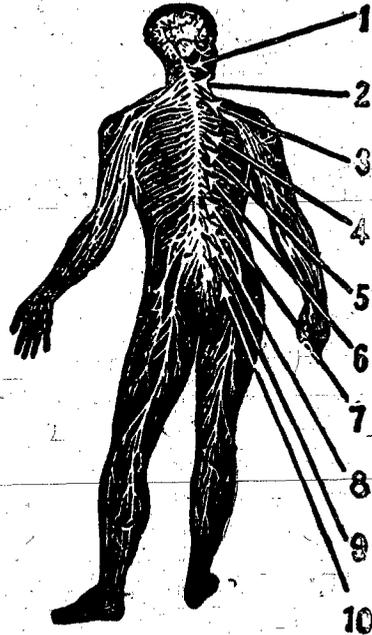

THE HIGH PRICE OF FARM LAND

A Madison county quarter section sold at sheriff sale last week at $280 per acre, says an exchange, and thinks that pretty good for a forced sale. It certainly was a good price, and the question naturally arises: "Who was forced to bid that much to save the owners of a second mortgage. It often happens in these times that a man with a second mortgage to protect his thinking and figuring, which is the least of two evils?"

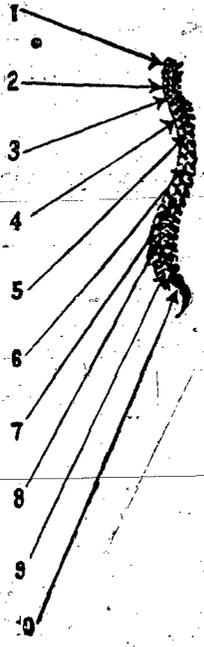

Sure enough, reading in another paper some history of the case, it is learned that the above condition prevailed. The purchaser held second and third mortgages, and the holder of the first mortgage forced the sale. In addition to the incumbrance above noted, two other banks had claims to the amount of $17,000 which they lose, and the farm owner had to go into bankruptcy to clear up as fairly as was possible his outstanding obligations. His farm was highly improved, a good, modern house, electricity and water, heat, bath, fixtures for home amusements, good furniture and a mortgage. It was a banker who bought, and he may get out with a whole skin, but no one could do it farming under present conditions.

Wm. Assenheimer left early Monday morning for Cheyenne Wells, Colorado, where he is now supposed to be busy threshing some three dozen stacks of headed wheat. No, it is not expected to make him rich, for the rust struck making the yield less than half what it promised to be, and cutting the grade so that it will do well to bring two-thirds price. Such is the life of the wheat-grower this season. Prospects for next year crop were never better, we are told. Henry Bellman from Winslow accompanied him as far as Julesburg.

BLACKSTONE

Under the able tutelage of our preceptors, the Messieurs L. and M. Miller, the Blackstone has become a very peaceful and law-abiding lair, compared with which a Quaker meeting is a celebration and a sorority house the next thing to pandemonium.

House meeting was in order Tuesday evening at the Blackstone, as West has been rechristened. At this meeting, sentiment ran strongly in favor of purchasing some new records for the phonograph and also some decorations for the parlor. This is being done that some entertainment may be given the girls during the second semester.

Our attention has been called to the lessons in "stepping out," as given by the older members of our hall to the young and bashful. If the girls will wait until these instructions are given—in six lessons—they probably won't be so lonesome over week-ends. These lessons, however, do not include the steps leading to matrimony. This part of the training is being omitted this year on account of long year's being so near at hand, and, therefore, no need exists for it.

Anderson, in the Theory of Education class: "Some students earn their way through school by writing compositions for other students."

Ort: "Yes, and some of them make their way through by taking examinations for others."

West: "How do they work it?"

(K and J eating at cafeteria.) K: "These potatoes taste like ether." J: "You know the reason, don't you? They have to chloroform them to keep them from walking away."

Swede: "So you came from a tough town."

Nellis: "Yes sir, the town's so tough that even the canary birds sing with a bass."

GYM CLASSES TO GIVE PROGRAMS

(From The Goldenrod)

Extracts from themes which will be read as a part of the Education week programs are published below.

Modern Physical Education

In trying to get away from formal discipline in gymnasium, escape the artificial, formal calisthenics and gymnastics, we find the Greek idea the only solution. The games and contests were not participated in by the few for the entertainment of the many, but were performed with reference to form, grace, skill and control of temper, and did not have for their object the winning at all cost which seems to be one of the essentials in America and Europe.

The two systems best known in the United States are the German and the Swedish. It is interesting to remember that these two systems were introduced for the same purpose, military need, and it is important in modern physical education that the War Department of the United States in developing a new national army emphasized games and sports.

The general public has the wrong conception of physical education when thinking it deals only with the formal calisthenics, and gymnastics. Professor Raaper corrects this in declaring that, "The aim of physical education as given by physical education teachers or directors is to emphasize or develop obedience, general power of determination, exactness and precision, self-control and endurance." One may gain great power of self-control, precision, and determination in certain phases of school environment in which they were developed. This lessons the emphasis on formal physical training and strengthens purpose, psychological play and work.

Physical education should be a natural and not an artificial process. All education should develop from within and must represent an effort to afford the child an opportunity to express himself in the doing of something worthy. It must recognize the play instinct, vivify the gymnasium with living, purposeful, wholesome forms of play and physical exercise.

We need to aim higher than health, victorious teams, and big muscles and perspiration. It should be conducted to set a standard of living above the average and commonplace, and afford an opportunity to act in situations that are wholesome, mentally stimulating, satisfying and socially desirable.

The Case of William Butler

That physical culture is a means of establishing health habits is a fact well-known to most people, and one that should be known to everyone. Physical culture has been a means of making new men out of many. For example, I will cite the case of William E. Butler.

William E. Butler was always sickly; he had many diseases while growing up. When he was still a young man, four very good doctors pronounced his death sentence—he was told that he had just three more months to live. But he "got his Irish up" and promptly replied that he would live to see them all dead.

Soon after this, he took up the study of massage, and gave massage treatments and baths for a living. By reason of that exercise, his health began to improve.

He later came to the conclusion that, with plenty of fresh air, sunshine, deep breathing, light exercise, and proper food, he could come back to life. Little was known on diet in those days, but he decided to quit eating meat three or four times a day and also to quit eating bread. He gradually gained in health and strength, going from 125 lbs. to 175 lbs. in the next three years. He knew then he was going to live. He felt very well and strong, could be active and alert physically and mentally. Life was sweet. He later married, was father of six children as physically perfect as any could be, and lived to a serene old age.

Community Day—Why We Need It

The community center is young. It is just developing; it is not developed. Just as our government centralizes all our actions, so the community center will, in our city and town administration, be the centralizing force of that community. It is our duty as citizens to understand its powers, make every effort to win for it statesmanlike and human leadership of the highest order and give to it our full loyalty.

The public has not yet firmly established in its mind that recreation is a real need, a necessary factor in the daily life of every member of a community. This is proven to us when we notice the insufficient facilities provided everywhere to meet the need adequately and sufficiently.

It is a community problem to meet needs of the recreation hours. They must provide community parks and playgrounds where every member of the community may enjoy unrestricted use of areas properly designed and developed for the purpose.

Would you think of teaching chemistry without a laboratory? Of course not! But do we not then need a citizenship laboratory of the community? We can only find this laboratory in the playground—the school playground or the community playground. Good citizenship training comes only through the advantage of play, plus leadership.

There are the children and old folks who are not able to go to the parks, the community center. Many of the states are trying to live up to the slogan, "An equal chance for all children," and here is what they are doing. During the winter terms, at the colleges, a course is offered by the Expression department related to Story-telling and Child Psychology. The outstanding characteristics of children are studied and also stories suitable, and then, members of the class are assigned places to tell stories to children. The Sunshine Nurseries, where children are taken care of while parents work, are some of the places where stories are told. This furnishes children not fortunate enough to have a mother in the home to tell them stories an equal opportunity with the more fortunate.

West Virginia has recognized the need of play in the development of the country boy or girl. This has led the Agricultural Extension Division in West Virginia to undertake through play to develop the mental, moral, and physical side of the farm boy and girl. The work among these children began with the organization of community clubs, which centered around the projects that farm children like, such as raising a calf or growing an acre of corn. Games and songs are also a part of the club meeting.

Many other states are seeing the need of developing the country children and are thus living up to the slogan, "A square deal for the country boy and girl." (Extract from theme by Opal Reed.)

Play Preparation for Democracy

Play in itself is a perfect democracy. In it is found an equality of rights that has never elsewhere existed. On the playground there is no royal road to any goal. The same amount of effort is required of a millionaire's son to carry the ball forward as of a negro. The very school that is often regarded as an absolute monarchy has its play grounds conducted on truly democratic principles. There is a voluntary organization here that cannot be found in the schoolroom.

Means of Developing Social Qualities

Children in folk dancing will, if properly taught, develop knowledge of folk lore and folk life, skill and body control, and certain social values in working harmoniously with other people. Boys and girls in certain games under proper direction and supervision develop skill and bodily control, loyalty, truthfulness, and honesty by being in situations that require decision and action, and certain social values, co-operation and self sacrifice as a resultant of the game which, in itself, was satisfying to them. Cook testifies to this method for the development of moral and social value when he says:

"I tell you that sincere endeavor and honesty of purpose can only be relied on under conditions that favor their continuance."

THE TEN GREATEST BOOKS OF THE WORLD

This list was compiled as a favor for the president of the Sioux City College of Barbers and is presented for your approval.

1. Whiz Bang
2. How I discovered the North Pole
3. Almanac
4. Telephone Book
5. Dictionary—Standard
6. How I worked my way through college
7. How I do
8. What I done in, the Movies—Atlas
9. Catalogue
10. Check Book

"Whiz Bang" heads the list because of the "solid material" in it. "How I discovered the North Pole" is good because of its truthful facts. The "Almanac" is the most popular of the group, and contains information for the educated. The "Telephone Book" is placed fourth because of the sincerity of the author. As fifth choice, we have placed the "Dictionary," the style of the author and ease with which the subject is handled calling forth our admiration. Mr. Durham's book would be of advantage to anyone who intends to "work" through college. Doolittle's "How I do" is a good example of anyone working for a correspondence school and, consequently, is very popular. Our number eight needs no alibi. The "Catalogue" by Ward Seabuck is perhaps the best illustrated book ever published. The last named publication is very popular, especially with young folks and is usually C. O. D.

An automobile—a Ford, we mean—was stolen from in front of the Farmer-Union store at Randolph last week Saturday night. The car, nearly new, belonged to Martin Anderson, who had left it in front of that place a few minutes. It was gone, and no trace obtainable.

The Sixth Sense

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"BUT that painting's wonderful!" Homer Cary, the artist, stood looking at the canvas executed by the boy, while his wife, standing at his side, added her own enthusiasm to his.

"Who taught you, boy?" "I jest taught myself," answered the boy. "Pop says it's all foolishness."

"What made you want to paint?" "I dunno. It's just a—just a something here," answered the boy, pointing to his head.

Homer had a talk with his wife. "He is a great, natural, untrained genius. With three or four years of training he would astonish the world. His technic, of course, is nowhere, but the coloring, the instinct—"

"We must do something for him, Homer." "There will be a vacancy in the Free Scholarship Fund at the Institute this fall."

"Would his father let him go?" "Well, that's up to the boy. He's of age, isn't he?"

Homer took the fellow aside. "How long have you been painting?" "Only a year or two. I couldn't find out what you painted on nof where to get the paints. And Pop says there ain't no money in painting. And there's the chores. He said mebbe after the summer boarders had gone he'd buy me another canvas. But he says it's foolishness."

"And tell me about that thing that makes you want to paint." Homer spoke very gently.

"I—I dunno. It's something I got to say. It's something in my head. It's like trying to talk and not being able to."

"It's the sixth sense," explained the artist gravely. "The sense of beauty. A few people are born with it. They are usually despised by the world and live hard lives, but the world never knows of the compensations they receive—interior compensations. Do you understand?"

The boy nodded doubtfully. "Those who choose to develop this sense are bound to risk their lives until they die. They have to make their choice once and forever—either to refuse to serve it, or to serve it to the exclusion of all else."

He went on to tell him of the possibility of his getting him a free scholarship at the Institute in the fall. The boy hesitated. In the end the matter was left undecided.

"I don't believe it's altogether his father," said Cary to his wife as they sat together on the porch of the house that night. "His father has no right to interfere with the boy's career, and he's a sensible man and would see it if it were explained to him."

"Think of the thousands of obscure geniuses that there must be in the world, Homer," said his wife gently. "It's very sad."

"It's only sad for them when they have bound themselves to their art and cannot serve it," answered Cary. "This lad is only at the beginning. There is still time for him to reject art utterly, to live the life of a country clod. If he chooses to do so he won't be much troubled by his desire to serve art."

"You couldn't get anything out of him?"

"No, as I was saying, there seems to be another factor in the case that I don't quite understand," answered Cary. "However, I understand he's thinking it over for a day or two."

They sat there in silence. The night was very calm, very beautiful. Not a breath stirred. Slowly a couple came along the lane, a young man and a girl. Their arms were around each other, their cheeks close to each other. They stopped in the shadows of the maples. Cary could not hear what words were passing between them. Nor did he want to. But there came to his and his wife's ears the sound of a kiss.

They parted, and slowly the young fellow turned in at the gate and came up toward the house. Homer and his wife looked at each other. It was the boy.

He came on as in a dream; did not seem to see them, and went into the house.

"Well, I guess there's no need taking up the matter any further," Homer sighed. "He's made his choice."

"It's sad," sighed his wife. "Sad, yes. But life must be served as well as art," said Cary, "and a man can seldom serve two masters."

Economy.

"Mary," said Mr. Chirpleigh, "I've decided that we'd better let Tom have his way, after all, and send him to college."

"Oh, John! That's wonderful! So generous and Tom will be a credit to you, I know."

"I hope so. Anyhow, we'll send him. I just got a bill from a garage for what he did to my car last week and school's a darned sight cheaper."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Precarious.

"You haven't forgotten that five dollars you owe me, have you?" "No, I have it in mind." "Well, for goodness sake, don't lose your mind."

Curious Fact.

TURK WOMEN FORGING AHEAD

Restrictions on Their Freedom Are Disappearing One After Another, Says a Writer.

The contrast between the status of these Moslem women and the position of women in Turkey proper grows steadily. In fact, the restrictions surrounding Turkish women disappear more and more almost daily. Four years ago the Turkish woman shopper in Pera used to throw her veil back while in the European quarter, but would draw it over her face immediately on crossing the bridge to Stamboul. Today the hanoum of the upper class hardly wears the veil at all. It hangs down from the side of the charshaf in a knot, and figures merely as an ornament.

A number of Moslem girls of the Turkish capital have become pupils of Robert college, the American school picturesquely situated on the hills of Bebek, by the Bosphorus. The number of Turkish women active in professions has greatly increased. During my recent visit to Constantinople I found that a young lady whom I had first met six years before had but two terms left to attain the degree of doctor of philosophy, with the ultimate aim of entering government service. The rare abilities of Halide Edib Hanoum, the well-known Turkish woman author, have been rewarded by her nomination as minister of public instruction in the Turkish cabinet at Angora.

The last remnants of polygamy virtually disappeared with the ascent to the caliphate of his majesty Abdul Medjid. He is the first ruler of the Osman dynasty who adheres to the western form of matrimony.—Edward J. Bing, in Current History Magazine.

LANDLORD OF THE LONG HEAD

French House Owner Devises Scheme to Enlist Tenants' Interest in the Property.

The constant increase in the price of material and the wages of labor tends to make the upkeep of any building an onerous affair for the owner. The repairs called for by exacting tenants go to increase the already heavy overhead. This is further augmented by the carelessness which many of them show in allowing children and servants to deteriorate the apartments they rent.

A Paris house owner has just invented an ingenious method of making his tenants his allies in the care and upkeep of the apartment house he owns, says the Washington Star. He has offered a prize of two months' rent for the best-kept apartment and has made the tenants themselves a committee of inspection and award. As a consequence his house is now cleaned and polished from basement to garret, children are carefully watched when at play to prevent their doing any damage, while the necessity of care of the premises is impressed on servants and tradespeople.

Each of the tenants, in the hope of gaining the prize, competes with his neighbors in care and cleanliness. Paint and paper are kept spick and span, while floors and staircases shine with varnish. As any application for repairs would be a confession of want and care, the bill for the upkeep of the establishment has fallen to zero. The amount awarded as a prize to the most careful tenant is therefore more than covered by the diminution of the overhead.

Not Enough Forest Protection.

Thirty-nine states contain important areas of forest land, but only 27 have organized state forest protection on a more or less adequate scale. Systematic fire protection of privately owned forest lands is sadly lacking. At least 166,000,000 acres of such land now receive no protection and on many other areas the protection furnished is incomplete and inadequate. An average expenditure of between two and one-half and three cents an acre, or a total of $9,250,000, would fairly protect all of the privately owned forest land in the United States. The task is at present two-thirds undone.

For Value Received.

A Boston woman relates that during her trip to England she visited a certain place and employed a guide to show her around. After he had explained the principal attractions of the neighborhood she remarked as she handed him his fee: "I trust that what you have told me is absolutely true. I never feel I should pay for untruths."

"Well, ma'am," responded the old fellow, scanning the coin, "truth or untruth, ye've had a good shillin's worth."

Better Animals in Canada.

There have been large increases in the number of pure bred animals in Canada during the decade between the last two censuses. The increase in the number of pure bred horses between 1911 and 1921 was 44 per cent; of cattle, 139 per cent; of sheep, 75 per cent, and of swine, nearly 44 per cent. The number of pure bred horses in the Dominion in 1921 was 47,782; cattle, 296,656; sheep, 93,643, and of swine, 81,143.

Growth of Bank Deposits.

A single New York city bank of today carries deposits equaling more than 21 times the total deposits in all the city's banks in 1847. The deposits in New York banks in the year 1847 totaled $28,000,000. These banks carried $11,000,000 of specie and had a circulation of about $7,000,000.

COLUMBUS DAY

October twelfth is not celebrated as a holiday because it was the day upon which Christopher Columbus was born, but because it was supposed to be the date upon which Columbus first stood upon the ground which forms a part of the continent of America.

The exact date of his birth is not known, nor the exact place. His birthplace is supposed to be near Genoa, in Italy, and some time about 1446.

The date which we all know is 1492. That was the year in which he discovered America, and for a discovery of that sort it seems only fair and right that we should do him the honor of celebrating a special day for him.

For Columbus was the one who made so many things possible. Perhaps others may have discovered what he did—doubtless in time to come they would have done so—but that is all guesswork on our part. The fact is Columbus did make the discovery, so that since his time the countries upon this continent have accomplished so much that is splendid and amazing.

The parents of Columbus were wool-combers, but they saw to it that Columbus was quite well educated. At an early age he began his life upon the sea.

We all know of his desires and his struggles to obtain aid to discover a route to Asia by going west. The roundness of the earth meant something very real to Columbus. He puzzled over it, thought of it, saw in his mind the round, round earth and of himself traveling into Asia by another door as it were!

So at last he started on this venture. Partly with royal assistance, and partly with the help of the Zinzonis, merchants of Palos, they started.

There were only three small vessels, the Santa Maria, which was the flagship, manned by Columbus; the Nina, commanded by Vincente Yanez Pinzon, and the Pinta, commanded by Martin Alonso Pinzon, and in all there were no more than 120 men.

It was August third, 1492, that they left Palos; or, as we have always said

"Three Small Vessels."

In the little rhyme which makes us keep the date of the discovery of America in our minds:

Columbus sailed the ocean blue,
In fourteen hundred and ninety-two.

Whatever dates we may forget, that will somehow always stay in our minds, I think, for not only is there the rhyme, but there is that little picture we can see of Columbus standing in the bow of his small vessel, followed by the two others, and of the water so blue and sparkling and beautiful and smooth.

Columbus took many voyages in his life-time; he discovered many islands, made for himself a great and lasting name in history, but he never knew he had discovered a new continent.

Always he thought that those places he had touched had been parts of Asia.

And it seems quite sad to think of the times we've been applauded (and, often, very justly, too!) when we've recited well or played the piano well, or something of that sort, that Christopher Columbus, who discovered America, did not even know of the great deed that he had done.

Never had he any realization that in a new continent would they erect monuments to him, nor that in schools they would give pageants about his trip, his discouragements, his successes.

And his little son Diego, whom Queen Isabella made a page at the Spanish court, could not boast to the others and say:

"My father has discovered a new continent, which is more than can be said for most fathers, and most people, for that matter!"

For neither did little Diego know, and it has always seemed such a pity.

It would have been a splendid thing for any little boy to have been able to say:

Example of Abstract Noun.

The teacher, at the conclusion of a lesson in grammar, asked the class in turn to give an example of an abstract noun.

"Manhood," suggested the head of the class, which was duly approved by the teacher, the example being followed by the next two members of the class making in turn the somewhat unimaginative suggestions of "womanhood" and "girlhood" respectively.

The fourth little girl, however, disdainful anything so obvious as "boyhood" gave as her example, "Little Red Riding Hood."

CASTE RULES INDIA SCHOOLS

"Untouchable" Children Are Not Permitted to Mingle With Their "Bettors" There.

The public school as we know it is hardly a possibility in India, because the children of India are not permitted to enjoy anything that remotely resembles free association.

There are a great many such schools, to be sure; but the children who attend them are either caste equals or they are held to the strict observance of caste regulations.

The children of the depressed classes are not allowed to enter anywhere, says Eleanor F. Egan in the Saturday Evening Post, and I myself have seen numbers of them in groups—eager, intelligent and sadly conscious of their disabilities—squatting on schoolhouse verandas, absorbing such instruction as they could get through open windows and schoolhouse doors. None could by any chance cross a school-room threshold.

Yet in one way, and as far as the advantages go, the depressed classes enjoy better educational advantages than any class in India, because it is to them that the Christian missionaries devote their particular attention.

It is to be understood, of course, that the communities and castes are all mixed up in the general population, and are not, except in occasional instances, domiciled en masse in separate areas. A Hindu and a Mohammedan may live in adjoining houses; but it is just that they may not borrow each other's frying pans, so to speak.

The castes and the communities may all enjoy a certain measure of social intercourse; they may meet together and talk and argue and do—the British raj in union if they are so minded—and this is what they have been doing to an increasing extent during the past few years—but it must all be in the open places of public assembly.

It is the habitation that is inviolable; the person that must be guarded against pollution.

MAKING PAPER FROM ASPENS

Industry Suggested for Utah, Which Has About 100,000 Acres of Those Trees.

In Utah the manufacture of paper from aspens is no new idea, as some of the pioneers in that state produced a fair grade of paper from wood pulp and rags suitable for news print. From time to time the shortage of paper supply has brought attention to the possibilities of employing the quaking aspen trees of Utah for reduction to pulp for paper manufacture.

Now there are approximately 100,000 acres of the slopes in northern and central Utah. Their usefulness consists of serving as a cover for young evergreens, and to a certain extent they aid in controlling the flow of streams, and for that reason are conserved by foresters. The timber is soft and not of value commercially, and without denuding the aspen areas, the mature trees, it is averred, would furnish sufficient annual paper supply for the entire West. The trees grow rapidly, maturing at twenty to forty years of age on the gentler slopes and in flat regions, where they could be easily and cheaply gathered for the pulp mills. Only trees three inches or more in diameter would be taken.

Not Interested.

"It says in the paper here," began Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading, "that an airplane traveling at the rate of two hundred miles an hour would take fifty-three years to go from the earth to the sun."

"What's that?" returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, aroused from a doze.

"You wasn't listening, torment it! It would take an airplane going at two hundred miles an hour fifty-three years to reach the sun."

"What's the difference? You ain't aiming to go there, are you?"—Kansas City Star.

Wouldn't Commit Herself.

Numerous ladies now study law, are admitted to practice and become ornaments of the bar. A Supreme court judge met one of the youngest in the corridor of a public building. He bowed and paused to remark: "You are the prettiest lawyer I ever saw, and, I may add, one of the best."

She thanked him and passed on.

"Which compliment did you prefer?" asked a friend who had overheard.

But the lady, being a good lawyer as well as a pretty girl, refused to commit herself.

Hattonchatel Rebuilt.

Hattonchatel, one of the most picturesque villages in France, held by the Germans for four years, and later captured by American troops, has been rebuilt by Miss Belle Skinner, a wealthy resident of Holyoke, Mass. The place has a new town hall, with a school, a new library and—a thing unknown before in the long history of the village—a water supply system, as well as a monument to the war dead.

New Crop Diseases.

Fifteen new diseases of field and vegetable crops were reported in the United States during 1922. Twelve crops were affected. They were carrot, radish, Swiss chard, lettuce, potato, radish, Chinese cabbage, bean, watermelon, sweet potato, tomato and tobacco. Most of the new diseases appeared in very restricted areas, seeming to be the result of abnormal climatic and similar conditions.

Battling the Wolves

By ANTHONY REIMERT

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

PIERRE LOUIS had been two years in the great northland. Before he went away Madeleine had promised to wait for him, and he had brought back enough peltries to keep them comfortably and start the home that they had planned.

Arriving at the next settlement, Pierre Louis had learned the truth. Madeleine had married his rival Jean the month after he left. She had been mocking him.

Now Pierre Louis was on his way to Jean's cabin, for the purpose of that vengeance which had turned his heart to stone.

It was five miles away. He went along the forest trail, through the intense cold of that hungry winter, brooding his revenge. Head down, he went along, till suddenly a shadow fell across his path.

Turning, he saw a timber wolf looking at him from among the trees. He quickened his pace. It was late afternoon, and he hoped to be at Jean's cabin by sundown. But now the sun became obscured, the snow began to fall, and presently, looking back, Pierre saw three wolves watching him.

Then he realized his danger. The hungry brutes always traveled in packs. They would not dare attack him till it grew darker. But they were following him. And, looking back again, he saw that the pack had increased to half a dozen.

He had no rifle, nothing but the revolver with which he had meant to shoot Jean. He could only hasten and trust to luck to reach safety before it grew dark. But where was safety? Not in Jean's cabin. He must forego his scheme of vengeance for the present, and go to Andre Tardieu, a trapper, a mile farther along the trail.

The snow was falling fast. A dozen wolves were prowling after him now, and the trail seemed interminable. At last, however, he saw the little hollow before him in which Jean had his home. There was a little frozen stream to cross.

Pierre Louis swung around. The wolves were within twenty paces of him. As he turned, the hungry shapes slunk back. But it was growing dark. And Pierre Louis would rather have died than have asked aid of his enemy.

Suddenly his heart stood still. In the bed of the stream, facing him, he saw a tiny child. It must be their child, Jean's and Madeleine's. And their cabin was still more than a quarter of a mile distant. How had the child come there?

He hurried toward the child and, as he snatched it up, three of the gaunt, vicious forms leaped into the stream on either side of him. Their snarls began to rise. They were creeping nearer him on both sides. He was cut off.

Pierre Louis set the child down against a boulder. It began to cry. The wolves were closing in. Pierre Louis drew his revolver. Suddenly one of the beasts leaped.

The revolver cracked and the beast fell, snarling and licking at the blood that streamed from the wound in its neck. Another leaped. Crack! Pierre Louis had broken its leg. It dropped, howling.

The pack was coming nearer. In desperation Pierre Louis emptied his revolver, firing now here, now there. But though the wolves scattered before the shots they did little damage on their tough hides, and they always closed in again.

In a few minutes it would be dark. Then the final rush would come. Already they were about to spring. A monster leaped. The revolver cracked again, and then the huge, shaggy form hurtled against him, knocking him down. Desperately Pierre Louis interposed his body between the wolf and the child. He was sinking into oblivion.

Suddenly a rifle shot rang out. Another. Another. And then, as Pierre Louis opened his eyes where he lay, covering the body of the child with his own, he saw Jean bending over him, and the last of the wolves sinking away into the forest.

Jean helped him to his feet. His eyes dilated. He stared at the child, frightened, but unhurt, at his enemy. And he flung his arms around Pierre Louis's neck.

"My child—mine and Madeleine's," he sobbed. "And it is thou that saved him. And we wronged thee so."

"Oh, my friend, think nothing of that. For I have a girl of my own in the north country," said Pierre Louis.

To Remove Mildew.

A laundry expert tells of a good way to remove mildew from clothing. Ordinary washing fails altogether to remove these unsightly spots. Here is the correct treatment: Rub some good laundry soap well into the marks, then cover the soaped part with French chalk, or even finely scraped ordinary chalk would do. Place in an airy space; if in the sun, so much the better. Leave for about an hour and then repeat the process a second time, or even a third time if necessary. It will be found that the mildew marks can be removed altogether in this way without the least injury to the most delicate fabric.

Direction for Tanning Leather and Fur Skins

Farmer Can Make Use of Hides Produced on Farm.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Directions for tanning hides on the farm are given in a new bulletin just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, and issued as Farmers' Bulletin 1334, "Home Tanning of Leather and Small Fur Skins." This bulletin was prepared in response to the thousands of requests received from farmers for information that will enable them to make use of the hides produced on their farms and for which there is often no market. Sometimes hides can scarcely be given away, yet farmers must pay from $1 to $1.50 a pound for leather in small pieces. Under such conditions farmers naturally feel that they must either work up their raw materials or do without the finished leather.

While it is possible to do a fairly satisfactory job of tanning on the farm, it requires some skill and a considerable amount of experience. Only in the event that the margin of price between the raw hide and the finished product is such as to warrant the farmer in tanning for himself is it advisable to attempt home tanning. The inexperienced cannot hope to make leather equal in appearance, or possibly in quality, to that obtainable on the market, but farmers and ranchmen should be able to make serviceable leather for most farm purposes by carefully following the directions given in the bulletin.

It is never advisable for an inexperienced person to try to tan valuable fur skins or large hides to be made into coats, robes, or rugs. The results would be disappointing, both in appearance and quality. Small fur skins of low market value, however, can be tanned for home or country use, according to directions given in the bulletin, a copy of which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, as long as the supply lasts.

Moderate Pruning Each Year Will Help Cherries

Probably there is no commonly grown fruit tree that is so little pruned as the cherry, unless it is the quince. This is not viewed as neglect by the fruit growers but rather as an unnecessary operation. It is partly due also to the fact that the cherry is likely to throw out a mass of gum wherever the bark is injured or mutilated. But as a matter of fact, the cherry will respond to a moderate pruning, just as does any other fruit tree.

When the centers of the trees become thick and the twigs and branches throughout the inner area of the trees are seriously shaded it results in unfruitful and dying branches. Also, what fruit is borne is likely to run small in size. It has been observed that cherry trees (both sweet and sour) which are left unpruned and underfed are likely to produce spurs which are irregular in their bearing.

For proper functioning of the cherry tree it is necessary to have good light conditions, and any impairment of the foliage weakens the tree. It is well known that the cherry tree should be planted very early in the spring or else late in the fall, so that it becomes established as soon as possible. This is partly due to the dependence the tree places upon the leaves as soon as they are put out.

Therefore the cherry tree, contrary to popular belief, should be given a moderate pruning each year or every other year, opening up the tree so that light can penetrate to all parts. This applies particularly to the trees which are found in the dooryard of so many city, suburban and country homes.

Cows on Scant Pasture Need Mixture of Grain

Whether or not to feed moderate amounts of grain ration to producing cows on pasture is entirely a matter of judgment on the part of the feeder. Wise dairymen will play safe and add an inexpensive grain mixture, especially late in the summer when pastures are dried down. Cows that are dry will benefit to a great extent by this plan, care being taken not to pile up excess flesh beyond the acceptable condition for dairy cows, due to freshen in the fall. In any event the rate of grain to correspond with a milk flow is much less under average summer conditions on pasture than for winter stable feeding. High producing cows, or cows due to calve in the fall, should not be allowed to get into a run-down condition, and so the short pasture season is a critical period in the year's cycle.

On ordinary pastures oats with corn or barley will furnish the bulk of the grain mixture, but when pastures get short one must reckon on adding bran and oilmeal in limited amounts.

Feeding Screenings Is Most Harmful Practice

If you buy screenings for the chickens it does not pay to feed them over a large area that may be used for gardening. The screenings may bring you the finest collection of variegated weeds that your garden has ever grown. It also pays to use precautions in the scratch feed that is scattered on the range for young stock. If the mixture contains weed seeds a lot of the weeds may be left on the range to cause future work of eradication.

Wayne—Randolph
 Wayne went down to Randolph last Friday and proved to the town as well as to the football team that the visiting team was superior in practically every department of the game. According to the Randolph paper the Wayne team was dud for a trifling, as Randolph had just recently defeated a so-called strong team by a decisive score, and was intending to hang it on Wayne.

Altho' the score at the end of the first half was 0-0, even the Randolph rooters had come to the conclusion that the home team would come thru with the short end of the score. It was a real game from start to finish, both teams being held for downs within a few yards of the goal and a possible touchdown. The only touchdown of the game came after Wayne had worked the ball nearly the full length of the field on straight football, made up of off tackle passes and short passes. Then Sund took the ball off left tackle and stepped about twenty yard for the touchdown. He failed to kick goal.
 Due credit must be given Randolph in that their team had made up their mind to win, and put up a wonderful fight to do so. But they were outclassed, as was proven by the fact that Wayne could gain almost at will on simple, straight football, and also the fact that out of eight passes attempted, seven were completed.

Sund, as usual displayed a good brand of football, while Winder also played a good brand of football on offense work. Only the quarter should also be given his dues, as his head work was good at practically all times. The work of the tackles and ends, both on offense and defense must be mentioned, as it was principally thru the work of these men that our backfield was able to work, and also it was these men that broke up the majority of Randolph plays.

Wayne plays the Ponca eleven this Friday, the last home game of the season, and altho the visitors will outweigh the home team about 15 lbs. to the man, it is expected that Wayne will come thru on the long end.

We hope to have a large crowd out to the game, and it is assured that this will be one of the best games of the season, as Ponca has a strong team, and the Wayne team has been playing a good brand of football the latter part of the season.

"Mike de Pike" Heltler, of Chicago, jaunty, dapper and well dressed, says: "Sure, I sold a lot of whisky, but who sold it to me, and where are the guys that bought it? The law says they are as gully as I am. I don't know to this day where the best lot came from, but the Federal government knows and the owners of that distillery are still out in the free. It's as easy as eating a poached egg to stop it all. If the Federal government would only put the screws on the places where it leaks out, and then check up on practically ninety per cent of the Federal agents who are getting their palms greased to the extent of millions a year, there would not be anything for the local police to do but pinch stickups and stop speeders. Hadn't I ought to know?"

HOW TO HOLD A HUSBAND

Lean on him, coos the clingy one.

 Boas him, orders the hefty woman.
 Flatter him, whispers the deceiver.
 Understand him, says the soulful one.
 But the wise, wise woman knows you have to do about all of those things to hold a husband, and even then it's a gamble.—Contributed.

AN ALGEBRAIC ANALYSIS OF AN EDUCATED MAN FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE ALUMNI

(From The Goldenrod)

A certain man once said, "An educated man is a man who knows enough to conceal what he doesn't know." Since this is our formula, I see no advantage that the college graduate has over the section-hand, except that he has a little less to conceal.

Efficiency in the art of concealment being the determining feature, let us consider the circumstances under which each person is working.

Suppose we have, in the middle of the floor, a puddle of sirup with a diameter of two feet and with a tendency to spread slowly. Let this equal "What the man does not know." Then we are given a canvas four feet square, which is equal to "What the man knows." It is obvious that it will be an easy matter for this man to conceal "what he does not know" by "what he does." In other words, this man would be very wise; in fact, no man ever lived that could conceal "What he did not know" this easily. Now suppose the sirup is four feet in diameter and the canvas two feet square. We know this man is an idiot and it is useless for him to try to make any concealments. But let us turn to a case more interesting or, in other words, more like our own. Suppose the sirup four feet in diameter and spreading at the rate of two inches per minute and the canvas four feet square and enlarging two and one ten-thousandth inches every minute. This person is really normal and has a very hard time to conceal "what he doesn't know."

Now, is a college graduate an educated man? We do not know, but we can figure it out. We do know that, if he has worked during his college course fast enough and hard enough, his canvas will be large enough, in the end, to make sure that the sirup will never catch it. But, of course, if the man lives long enough and stops work on his canvas upon graduation, he will some day fall back into the delinquent class. So, even if you are a college graduate, don't stop work, for some day the sirup may overtake you.

BRAIN VERSUS BRAUN

President Coolidge, in a recent interview, answered the question, "What part did you take in athletics during your college career?" by saying, "I guess I held stakes most of the time," and continued by stating that he was too busy with his studies to take part in the combats. At college Coolidge was a good student, an eloquent speaker, and a prize essay writer. In his political career, he has shown nerve, good judgement, and ability to make the best of circumstances. Evidently there was a place in the past thirty years where these assets could be acquired besides on the football field.

Abraham Lincoln is not an outstanding man of the past because he got a strong back by splitting rails, but because he could stand his ground in a mental combat, and could make a speech that stirred the minds and hearts of the people.

To the person who does not believe athletics are over emphasized and who believes forensics of little importance, let me offer the following encouragement. The only two names of men of the past that have been handed down to us as being notorious because of their physical strength are those of Hercules and Samson. Hercules was a myth to begin with, and as for Samson—one can no longer "kid" the world into believing it possible for a man to slay a thousand people with the jawbone of an ass. About the only service that the writer can see at present for the superior physical man is as follows—If our present peace atmosphere should be effective to such a degree that it would cause our municipal officers to disarm, perhaps then we would have some good material from which to pick a police force.

Since we study biography in order that we may profit by the experiences of our ancestors, then why not boost the organizations that foster the things they found to be worth while? Open Forum meets November thirtieth.

We are glad to know that Professor Spong is thoughtful of the general public in compiling his menagerie. Last week he declined to buy a street car from a boy who took it into his office and offered it at the low price of twenty-five cents. As long as the animal had been taken thus far, we see no reason why it should not have been retained. Why lock the stable door after the horse is stolen?

After considerable more deliberation than was expended in finding a location for Andy Gump's hair brush factory, a suitable location for the "Spizz" office has been chosen. It is occupying a suite of rooms on the second floor of Blackstone and the shingle is already floating in the breeze. We are informed that a few dates are still open for interviews during the coming year.

HUSKING FOR THE CHURCH

A number of the women of the Randolph Methodist church went out one day last week and husked 420 bushels of corn for a farmer not far from that town, and gave the pay to the church. Part of the force aided the farmers wife get the dinner. These people might have gotten up some social function and put in a days work and furnished a supper for an hundred already over-fed people and had about as much cash for the church; but they could not have said after it was all over that they had added to the wealth of the community. But by harvesting a food crop which might be snowed under most any time, they were doing constructive work and paying their church debt.

IT'S WHAT YOU THINK—AND SAY

It's what you think and say, my friend, That makes the sort of town The people find when they move in Or travel up and down.

It's your opinions oft expressed That tell the rest of us If the town is good or if it's bad Or if it's just a muss.

You see we get your slant on things, We listen to your tale, And so it's sort of up to you To boost and not to wail.

You have your part to play, my friend, Like all the rest of folks. A forward look, a forward stride, An achievement, not a hoax.

We all can push together and Then the place will grow To be the kind of town we need And the world around will know.

That we have done our useful part In planting potent seed; In keeping drones and knackers out; In barring graft and greed.

This town is ours but we must keep It worthy, fit, with an appeal To all who seek the sort of place That promotes the common-weal.

GOVERNOR J. C. WALTON, OKLAHOMA, IMPEACHED

That was the verdict of the members of the senate of that state Monday, when they voted on articles 1, 2 and 3 of the charges against the governor. These charges accuse of abuse of the pardoning power; of padding the state pay roll, and of dispersing the grand jury. He was acquitted on a number of the other charges, and by attorney exceptions were entered, giving their grounds for same.

FORD GIVEN ENDORSEMENT AT OMAHA MEETING

Omaha, Nebraska, November 21.—Plans to amalgamate two groups of progressives into a third party movement, have gone glimmering in this city during the last twelve hours and in the place of this movement has come a boom for Henry Ford for president and the endorsement of the regular progressive party of Nebraska for the principles outlined at Chicago on Monday by the group headed by J. A. Hopkins of New York.

BLOOMFIELD POSTOFFICE TO IMPROVED QUARTERS

Bloomfield, Nebraska, November 19.—The Bloomfield postoffice requires larger quarters, owing to increased business, and the department has asked for and received bids for a larger building. Lease on the present building expires next June and the owner of the building, W. H. Needham, editor of the Monitor, is one of the bidders, the plan being to enlarge the present building by adding 25 feet to the rear. Other improvements are included in the proposal.

CIVILIZATION OWES DEBT TO GOOD ROADS

That civilization owes a great debt to the "highway builders can be understood by reference to history. The first European highways were those which went out from Rome, that the Roman soldier might have easy and quick access to the remotest bounds of his great empire. With him went law and order. Later, over the highways, went the school master and the college, the education, the institution and its teachers. The missionary of the Cross used the highway, the church spread its doctrine over the highway, and to this day, the great churches, schools, colleges, hospitals, and institutions for the amelioration of the condition of mankind, are found always on, never away from, great highways.

It is the highway which made the city, not the city the highway. It is the highway which made the demand for the railroad, which is but a steel move sometime, the highway over highway over which all freight must which must travel all that is good, noble, desirable in life.

Where good highways are, there is a good civilization. Where are poor highways are usually ignorance, poverty, disease, lawlessness, lack of culture, poor standards of living, misery. Investment in highways means investment in civilization!

ARE THE NEWSPAPER MEN TOOLS OF MONOPOLY?

The Dearborn Independent vividly calls attention to the fact that certain interests are trying to reach the public without much cost, thru the country town newspaper, and make it appear that the propoganda has the endorsement and moral support of the editors and publishers of the paper. It is quite a common way of getting the ear of the public for almost nothing. Not many weeks pass that the Democrat does not have opportunity to fill its news columns with plate that comes to us free of all cost. The one to which the Independent calls particular attention is sponsored by the American Bankers Association, and it offers plate matter to any paper that will run it but not ahead of its release.

This paper used to give space to such plate in the interest of the State fair and the fair at Sioux City, but of late we have asked space rate if we run it; and it has not come. We still admit the Red Cross plate, for we believe it a very worthy cause; and we also gave much space to calls of need for the soldier lads. But if any editor wants to settle any proposed plate propoganda, we have found it the most effective to simply say, you pay well for having the plate made—why not pay to have it put before the people? Why pay for making the plate and expect us to pass it out where it will do some good gratis? It is hardly fair to ask so much for nothing.

In the proofs we received for inspection the bankers association seem to feel that sound money is being threatened if it is a money they cannot control. They fear, apparently, that they will be held financially liable or in honor bound to prevent the people from using their perfectly good property as a security—unless they leave the money power in position to collect a percentage. The Independent says that the reader is not necessarily cheated in the general use of plates; but he is often deceived when the editor uses propoganda without stating its source.
