The Homer Star says that one argument in favor of trading at home is the fact that when you want credit, you ask the home man for it—and never the mail-order concerns.
Mrs. Russel Harrison and little daughter Katherine, who was visiting at the home of her parent Mr. and Mrs. George Roberts, returned to her home at Wakefield Saturday afternoon.
Thurston county reports one man arrested for not complying with the school law; he having been keeping his children from school. He was released on promise to give the children a chance.
Leo Kavanaugh, who has been employed at the Gem Cafe for several years departed Monday for Seattle, Washington, where he will visit home folks and probably make his home there, that having formerly been home to him.
Pursuant to the plan of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. for the aid of Employees in case of accident, sickness disability or death, the company has presented Mrs. Viola Fox mother of the late Daisy Fox with a check for $394.42.
Mrs. Wm. Camp of Los Angeles, California, who spent a couple of days visiting with her uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hanson, and with her cousin Mrs. Oscar Liedtke left Monday afternoon for Washington, D. C. She met her husband at Sioux City.
Mrs. E. B. Michael was at Sioux City the last of the week, going over to visit friends and attend the poultry show at that place. Mrs. M. had no exhibit at the show, but last fall made a showing at a number of the county fairs, and came home with many premiums.
It used to be a common saying that the man who tells the first story has a slim chance. It looks as tho that is true yet in these days of corn-husking champlons. It takes a lot of corn in the field to supply all of these fellows with 250 bushel per day. It once was that 100 bushels was as big as they dared tell the story.
Several Wayne citizens have received letters from Germany in the past week or two, and stamps must be plentiful over there. One came with a million marks in stamps, and another a little fatter, we suppose, called for twice as many stamps. The envelopes were practically covered with stamps, back and front, except the place for address.
We have in your vicinity a high grade piano on which party is unable to continue payments. You can own this piano by paying the unpaid balance, either cash or payments. If interested write A. Hospe Co., Omaha, Nebraska.—adv.

Down in Thurston county are lovers who proceed according to law as to their intentions of marriage, and if they be those who would stop them, they may speak up, or forever hold their peace. James Bird, aged 33 and Mrs. Elizabeth Houghton, age 62, are the young folks who will not sneak out to Sioux City, or some out-of-state place to become lawfully wed. More of those who are to wed should follow the example.
In some counties the bankers are paying their taxes on the full assessment, rightly paying under protest, so that should the courts decide that they have paid in excess of what is required, it may be returned to them. In other counties the bankers are making a tender of their tax as it would be should they carry a point in having their taxes considered intangible property, therefore subject only to 25 percent of value for taxation. There are two sides to many of these questions.
A snow Saturday night and Sunday covered the ground south from the Elkhorn, but it gradually thinned out north from that river, until at the south line of this county it was hardly enough to call it a snow. A number of years ago a farm auction was held near Altona, and the people who came from the south came in sleds, and those from the north in wagons, buggies and cars. At the farm where the sale was held there was barely snow enough to let the sleds slide in.

How sweet they are,
The Christmas bells!
They never jar,
How sweet they are;
As from afar
Their music swells.

Another belle

I need not tell
Another belle;

OH THAT again the portals of the sky
Might open on the darkness of this night,
That a great messenger might earthward fly,
Raked in a glorious garb of heavenly light,
Stilling the anxious fears of watching men
With tidings of a mighty, saving King,
Filling sad hearts with gladness now as then,
In hope of joys that only he can bring.

The High School Athletic Association is giving all members of the Football squad, that stayed out the entire year a banquet at the Boyd hotel, Friday evening of this week. If the plans that have been made are carried out, this will be made an annual affair, and will be one place where the football men can be feted in front of their lady friends, as the girls of the high school are to be welcome, if they are asked by one of the members of the squad.

The program at the banquet will be as follows:

C. Jacobson—Toastmaster
 Introductory Remarks, Idea of Banquet, etc.—C. Jacobson

It is expected in the future that this banquet will be made an annual affair and will be that event which will officially close the football season.

Definite arrangements have been made for the starting of an Athletic Club, or "A.W." club, made up of those men who have won the coveted letter. The purpose of the club is to promote a higher grade of Athletics, school spirit, cleaner athletics, and to keep the interest up to the required pitch, both of members of athletic squads, and non-members. The first meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. at the High school, when officers will be elected, the constitution gone over, and a program drawn up for the year.

It is hoped by all interested, that the town will back the High school athletes in this program which they are trying to put over, as it will mean a much higher type and grade of Athletics.

seven brothers and sisters were quite unobserved, he turned and nodded. The youngest opened her pail. One of the twins drummed on the lid of his. But no one ate. There was nothing to eat. The pails were empty.

After a while the eldest stood up so that anyone might see and pretended to throw a crust off over the boulder's edge.

This happened, not in devastated Flanders, nor in hunger-stricken Austria, nor in unfortunate Russia but in one of the most placid and prosperous valleys of a great Western State, and not once, but noon after noon, for weeks.

The teacher wondered why these particular brothers and sisters remained so resolutely away from the rest. The other children wondered why the eight never played the running games after lunch.

But no one knew of the gallant game they played out behind the rocks with their battered lunch pails, until a Red Cross worker found them at home, just before school, parceling out a loaf of bread. That was breakfast. She saw them take their empty pails and trudge off to school. Hours before, the mother and father had gone to work in the fields. At night they would come home, and another loaf would make dinner for ten.

Then the Junior American Red Cross, without a word to rob the eight game little actors of their secret, started a hot lunch in the school. Some of the pupils brought nickles, some brought pennies, and some brought nothing, but no one except the teacher knew of these distinctions. And no one but the teacher knew why eight pairs of eyes watched so eagerly the clock's hands diminish the distance to the hour of twelve.—From The Normal Instructor.

EIGHT EMPTY LUNCH PAILS

Eight battered lunch pails hung on the wall under eight ragged caps and hats. The noon bell rang. Slowly a little wearily, eight pairs of hands took them down, and carried them out to the shade of the biggest boulder beyond the school.

Now and then, one of the eight, the oldest brother, peered over the rock's rim and surveyed the yard where his schoolmates sat in little groups, nibbling hard-boiled eggs and unwrapping fat sandwiches from waxed paper. Already one boy, grinning a last chunk of cake into his bulged cheeks, was reaching for the favorite baseball bat. The boy on the rock made sure that the teacher was still within the darkened doorway. Yes! She was standing at the window sill, pouring tea. The blue china pot shone in the sunlight and the hot vapor steamed up between the ferns.

When the boy saw that he and his
