EVANGELIST CALLS CHURCH MEMBERS HYPOCRITES

Evangelist Hunter says, "Don't Forget the World Knows When You Are Windjamming and Fourflushing"

The revival meetings at the community house, conducted by Evangelist Hunter, are proving of great interest, the number in attendance increasing each night. Each afternoon prayer meetings are held at various homes about town and the prayers of these godly men and women are putting courage into the heart of the evangelist and his singer, Clein Payne.

Rev. Mr. Hunter is an unusual man and will no doubt put over his program for a religious upheaval in Wayne. He talks straight from the shoulder and hits 'em hard. It seems that many have slipped on the shoe that fits so nicely and are preparing to wear it. If you don't like revivals and don't like Hunter's methods, better go to the meetings anyway. You will enjoy the novelty, you will be entertained by the language that rolls so glibly off the speaker's tongue, and who knows, you may find the vision of the Christ in the earnest face of the evangelist and having some to scoff you may go home to praise God for this man who is different. Different enough, as Hunter puts it, to "get under your tough skin." If the men of God we listen to each Sunday, the men who live amongst us, cannot touch us and make us see the light, then give this man a chance. He may reach that hardened heart and cause you to think. One thing sure, you will not have the nerve to refuse to read your quota of chapters in the Bible, when he puts it up to you as a duty to yourself, your family and friends. And in the reading will come memories to stir and disquiet that hardened spot and then go back to the meeting and Hunter will plant some real truths, plant them with a pick, if necessary, and they will grow if given half a chance.

Speaks to School Children

Wednesday evening, at Rev. Hunter's invitation, the students of the public schools attended the meeting in a body. The text was: "Thou shalt have good success." And the speaker said, in part:

"Today, when success is spelled in dollar-marks, when it is not what a man is but what he has, gives him prestige, power and standing in a community, and a man in measured, not by character, but by wealth, I think there is another kind of success that is worthy of our consideration tonight. This success is not measured by what a man has, on what he can get out of life, but by what he is, and by what he gives to the world.

"The man who writes his name in the hearts and lives of his fellows is a greater man and more successful, though he die poor, than the man who amasses a fortune and lives for self only.

"If you would make your life count, if you would win true success, you must build your life-structure upon these three fundamental principles—courage, determination and will.

"You, who are attending high school, have an added responsibility, because of your training, and the world expects more of you because you are having advantages that thousands before you could not have. Because of this you should have a broader vision, higher ideals, keener sympathy and grander purpose.

"Remember, education is not what you get out of books but out of life. The man who wrote, 'Let me live in my house by the side of the road,' was a greater man and more successful than Admiral Beatty who when addressing a large concourse of people, climaxed his address by saying, 'My country, my country, may she always be right in her intercourse with other nations, but right or wrong, my country.'

"That is enthusiasm, but that is not American. True American principle and policy is 'Right makes might.' So young ladies and gentlemen, I am asking you to meet life seriously and thoughtfully. Today we are in the maelstrom of a superficial, social earth-quake. Hear me, bend your ear to the call of the world, calling for young men and women to serve mankind—calling for you to sacrifice pleasure for ability.

"Don't think that successful people just happen. They made the sacrifice. Don't think because the large majority is going to Vanity Fair that that makes it right. The larger part of the world was in war, but that did not vindicate wholesale murder. The majority of a mob condemned an innocent man and cried, 'Crucify Him,' and they did it, but they murdered the Son of God. Up until a few years ago we ushered into eternity one hundred and ten thousand lives, doomed and damned, by allowing the open saloon. But that did not make it right, so don't guide your ship down the stream of life by the 'current of the crowd!'

"Today you are having your dreams of a rosy-tinted future, and you have a right to your dreams, dream on, for dreams are the shifting shades out of which life is made. Dream on, but don't make dreams your master, think but don't make thoughts your aim.

Have courage when the crowd says, 'You can't. Believe in yourself, for in yourself lies the ability to succeed. Be determined to do something-worth-while. Don't join that army of loafers who say, 'The world owes me a living.' The world doesn't owe you a thing but an opportunity to make good. Don't be satisfied by just 'getting by.' Be determined to excel good. Don't be satisfied by just 'getting by.' Be determined to excel. Any fool can loaf around the streets and suck cigarettes. It doesn't take high grade brains to shoot craps or loaf around the pool hall. Any weak-minded boob can drink booze and follow a gang.

"O, young folks, I want you to have higher ideals than that, our standards are the ten commandments and the Golden Rule.

"Today is the age of cruel materialism and grafting. I love to think of such men as Milton, Shakespeare or Longfellow, giving to the world the overflow of a great mind, heart and soul, without any thought of compensation, but there never was such a time to serve the world as now. Never such an opportunity to serve man-kind as is yours.

"The field of music is to be redeemed from this cheap, superficial noise called 'jazz,' to music that will stir the hearts of men to noble endeavor.

"The field of poetry is calling for some one to write the verses that will inspire men to do and dare for right.

"The field of Art is to be reclaimed from these meaningless, idiotic cartoons to masterpieces that call forth life's noblest impulses.

"The field of politics is to be won from the cheap, characterless, human echoes who can be bought and sold like cheap goods on the bargain counter.

"The field of business is to be put upon a larger basis than dollars and beating competition, and must be conducted under the standard of 'service to your fellows.'

"These are only a few of the fields that are calling for your ability, your enthusiasm, your talent and your consecration.

"So give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you, and then, 'Thou shalt have good success.'
Don't forget that one of the best sermons during the revival will be on Friday evening of this week when Evangelist Hunter will talk on "The Modern Dance."

J. T. BRESSLER VISITS CONGRESSMAN HOWARD

The Columbus Telegram of April 3rd tells in its Washington Notes, sent out by the editor, Edgar Howard, of the visit in the capitol city while on his way home from a trip to the old world. Here is what Howard wrote home:

I entertained in my office this morning an agreeable gentleman from Wayne, Nebraska—Senator John Bressler, who has just returned from a tour of Europe. He visited many countries in Europe, and gave vivid pictures of conditions as he found them. He said the thing which impressed him most unfavorably in all sections of Europe was the presence of military people everywhere. It looked to him like there were almost as many soldiers as civilians in some places. He said that the Europeans were always talking about the time when America would take a hand in the politics of Europe by becoming a member of the league of nations. I asked Mr. Bressler the direct question: "Do you believe America ought to become a member of the league of nations?" Promptly he replied: "Not until after the nations of Europe shall first have decided to abandon their preparations for war. In all my travels I found people apprehensive of an early war. They did not agree, just which nations would be involved in war, but they did agree that war is not far away. I want the United States to do everything possible for the peace of the world, but it will be idle to talk about world peace while all the nations of Europe are adding to their military equipment in anticipation of war with some of their neighbors." I was impressed by the earnest manner in which Senator Bressler protested against American interference in the diplomatic and political brawls of Europe, and I quite agree that he is right when he advises the United States to keep out of that nasty mess until the Europeans shall begin trying to establish peace among themselves, and sure there can be no such thing as permanent peace in Europe while each nation is madly trying to make its own army larger than the army of its neighbor nation.

President E. J. Huntemer of the Greater Wayne club is hoping for the presence of every member of the club at their meeting at the city hall Monday evening, when representatives of the "Sunshine" highway will be in attendance and let Wayne people know how that great north and south trail from Canada to the gulf is progressing. President W. H. Beakman and F. H. Beels of the field force for Nebraska Good Roads association are to be here Monday evening and make us wise to some of the provisions of the federal aid law, and what steps may be necessary to get federal aid. Business men of Wayne, and the farmers as well, should have an interest in this matter and make it a point to attend this meeting, April 14 at 8 o'clock. Come in and let us move to join with other places both north and south of Wayne to get the benefits that will come from bringing a great international highway thru our county and city.

We cannot tell much about it or its advantages; but you may find out at the Monday evening meeting.

As this is the regular meeting night for the Greater Wayne, there will doubtless be other business of importance to the community, so let's all attend.

MISS WHITE WRITES
Mission, Texas, April 5, 1924.
Again Greetings to My Friends:
I presume it is about time I told you people something about this country. It really seems like a wonderful country to me when I come in from gathering roses or garden truck and pick up the Democrat or a letter telling of Nebraska blizzards. And when they tell me that ten years ago this country was generally covered with mesquite brush, and now look at the orchards white with orange or grape fruit blossoms and inhale the fragrance, or read in the Houston Chronicle, that during the month of February 15 to March 15 the average shipments of fruit and vegetables for each day from the valley, were $25,000 worth, also that a farmer, near Westico, that is about thirty miles east of here sold his farm for $5000 per acre, it does seem wonderful. It is not a picturesque country as it is almost perfectly level but is a beautiful pastoral country. The roadsides are lined with wild flowers of a great many different varieties, while the yards are full of tame ones. Hedges of white and red oleanders as high as a one story house abound. It is certainly the place for your families as the children can go to school barefoot the greater part of the year. No need of coal as they seldom need fire all day. You can raise two crops in a year and have your own garden vegetables all winter, make your garden in September then again in the spring. They irrigate from the Rio Grande, while it doesn't rain much, they have the most wonderful aerias. They are building a brick school house just a block from Helen's that will accommodate all the pupils in Sharyland. It is supposed to cost $40,000.

PRIMARY VS. CONVENTION

Just at this time of the year we recognize the imperfections of our primary law or system—and the handicap of the ignorance of the people and lack of interest which they show, and admit that the law should be amended so as to make it easier for the people to express their will—but we need something which will make the people study and know candidates and for what they stand. There are plenty of cases to cite where the voters have not done that which to many seem best under the primary system in this and other states; but yet the one who holds office by grace of the primary vote knows that he must answer to the people for his sins of omission and commission, and not to a ward political boss.

Admitting the imperfections of the primary it so much better than the old convention system that very few would want a return to a system which placed nearly unlimited power in the hands of a ring of self-appointed delegates, who were very frequently put there by selfish interests for the purpose of thwarting the will of the people. The tricks of convention days, by which the bosses ruled were many, and while the convention plan when honesty followed had its merits, its faults as remembered by most voters who took part in them, and who have felt the power of the "steam roller" are so grave that they do not wish a return to those days of political scheming.

PROMINENT OPTOMETRIST WILL COME TO WAYNE

L. A. Fanske tells us that he is again to open his optical department in connection with his jewelry business, and has arranged for Dr. E. E. Simmons of Norfolk to take charge of that department. We are not personally acquainted with Dr. Simmons, but he comes with the best of recommendations as a competent exclusive optometrist, and we know that no other could find a place at the Fanske room. Mr. Fanske has just finished refitting the room formerly used for optical work so that it is thoroughly modern, and with Dr. Simmons in charge feels that patrons can be assured of high class service.

Mrs. J. Woodward Jones and daughter Ruth, went to Lincoln today where they will visit over Sunday with relatives.

SUNSHINE HIGHWAY HEADED WAYNE WAY

President E. J. Huntemer of the Greater Wayne club is hoping for the presence of every member of the club at their meeting at the city hall Monday evening, when representatives of the "Sunshine" highway will be in attendance and let Wayne people know how that great north and south trail from Canada to the gulf is progressing. The other day while in McAllen I met two dear friends from Carroll, Mrs. Snowden and her daughter-in-law Mabel-Lynn Snowden who while a student at the Normal was a member of my household.

Mr. Gardner asked for my opinion in regard to the Imbriglio at Washington. That it is possible for such a performance to go on in our seat of government is one of the greatest disgrace that we have ever endured. It seems like a horrible night mare. That if it would be possible to accuse the highest legal officers in the executive of our government, of such high crimes seems too terrible to be true.

The Forbes affairs was bad enough but this seems still worse, if true terrible, if not true it is horrible that men who have been trusted will mean themselves to make such statements on the witness stand. In regard to politics in Wayne county you seem to have a superfluity of sheriff timber. I hope you will be careful to nominate and elect the man, who has been doing his duty in regard to punishing offenders.

CHARLOTTE WHITE.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING

At a special meeting of the city council Wednesday evening the matter of so tilling the tourist park in the south part of the city as to thoroughly drain it into the river was passed upon, and the work is to be done, thus making it unnecessary for Wayne to apologize to tourists as to their park.

WINNERS IN PRIMARY ELECTION

This morning papers tell that Tuesday primary, and that Thomas leads McDonald for the Democratic nomination for the senate. Coolidge wins state over Hiram Johnson as presidential preference for republicans. McAdoe lead on the democratic side. J. P. Mullen and Chas. Pool were winners for the democratic nomination for lieutenant governor and secretary of state. C. E. Harmon won as auditor and Floyd L. Bollen is the nominee as railway commissioner. Other places are not yet known, being quite close. The democratic congressmen were all renomated.

On the republican side, McMullen wins the presidential nomination; McFarland is first for lieutenant governor with Grant Mears of this place a very close second.

Bryan carries the state by about four to one over his competitor. A table on page 5 gives detail of the local vote.

Additional Figures

In addition to the detailed vote given in the table we have the following figures kindly made out by County Clerk, Chas. W. Reynolds, who by the way is a great help to the fellow who want election returns, for he has an acquaintance over the county and a system of appealing to the members of the election boards which always seems to bring results.

The delegates to national convention favorable to Coolidge won by a vote of about 575 average, while those who would have Johnson named seem to have an average of about 325. Chas. McCloud carried the county for national committeeman with 592 votes. L. B. Johnson led the bunch for secretary of state with a vote of 178. Geo. W. Marsh won the county for auditor of public accounts with 571 votes, and Dan Swanson was in lead for commissioner of lands and public buildings with 395 supporters. All the above are republicans.

On the democratic side Chas. W. Pool carried the county with a vote of 309. C. E. Harman for auditor of public accounts won the county with 170 votes. L. A. Larson had 213 votes for commissioner of public lands and buildings. The other candidates had no opposition.

In the 2nd commissioner district Thos. Sundahl won the democratic nomination without opposition; and Henry Rehwisch won the republican nomination with 246 votes to John L. Davis 126 and Chas. Shellenberger 55.

In the non-political list the vote for supreme judge was Dowling 344; Albert 193; Cain 163; Evans 670.

For district judge Welch had 1124; Barnhart 399; Chace 461; Oleson 389. Cherry for county judge had 1281 votes.

No record was compiled of the scattering votes of those written in where no filing was made nor is there a record of the few who may have voted the progressive or prohibition ballots.

Henry Korff was written in quite often for democratic for representative, but as stated before we cannot say how many; but we are assured that he leads all others.

MRS. LENA KAY DIED AT WAYNE HOME

Tuesday, April 8th, 1924, the death summons came to Mrs. Lena Krause Kay, who had been seriously ill for a number of weeks, suffering from diabetes, which is so seldom cured. She was born in Oldenberg, Germany, December 26, 1875, and had attained an age of 48 years, 3 months and 12 days.

She came with her parents from Germany when 11 years of age, and they first settled in Nebraska at Millard, and came from there to Wayne county a third of a century ago.

She was united in marriage to Fritz Kay, March 17, 1900, and four children born to this union are living near Wayne; Mrs. Mata Powers, Henry, Herman and Clarence. She also leaves four brothers and five sisters, as follows: August C. of Wayne; William in South Dakota, Henry in California, and Ernest in Maryland; the sisters are Mrs. Schroeder, Woodbine, Iowa; Mrs. Wm. Benning, Randolph; Mrs. Krel, Dixon; Mrs. Elgis of Livingston, Montana; and Mrs. Dunklau of this county.

The funeral services will be from the English Lutheran church Saturday afternoon at 2:30, conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Fetteroff, and burial at Wayne cemetery.

An industrious, hard working, self-sacrificing mother has been taken.

CORN TESTING DAY WAS WELL PUT OVER

Last Saturday was a busy day at the Miller building when the Greater Wayne club, thru the efforts of its president, E. J. Huntemer, made a fine success of their efforts to waken the farmers to the importance of knowing what their seed corn was like, especially this year. The storm of the Saturday before had in a measure hampered their work, for it was planned then to get a goodly number of samples of home corn to put in the test that those coming Saturday might see. But in spite of weather samples were put to test to show that our seed is not nearly perfect this year. True, some of the samples came from the elevator, and could not be traced to the owner, or the care they had received; other samples were from a field near Wayne, that had returned a big yield of fine looking corn, but it would not grow. A test was made of corn from Cheyenne county, Colorado, and it was almost perfect.

The different methods of testing were shown—the plate test, a sort of preliminary test to get an idea of the condition in a general way; the individual ear test which is so arranged that the tester may know just which ears will and which will not grow, and practically the percentage of good corn in each ear. The rag doll test was also shown, which is a very simple manner of finding out whether or not your seed corn is alive or dead.

Nearly 100 Testers Started

Nearly 100 farmers brought their ten ear sample for a compost test, and the corn was taken at once to the college and placed in position to test, and each one sending in seed will be notified of the result, and next week the Democrat will give a report of the results, which are not available at this writing, because of the short time that has elapsed since the grain were placed in the test.

Farmers and others showed much interest in the work, and both gave and received information about corn and some of the peculiarities, and why some will and some will not grow, and the causes that make the difference.

Many learned the significance of the following questions which were on the little pamphlet sent out by the agricultural department from Lincoln:

1. Why is it advisable to make a general test before making the individual ear test?
2. When is it advisable to make an individual ear test?
3. What relation seems to exist between soundness and germinative power?
4. What four qualities in corn indicate unsoundness?
5. In making your germination box why should the bottom of the box not be made too tight?
6. Why must there be some system for identifying each ear with its corresponding square in the germinator? What system did you use?
7. What temperature is best for germinating corn?
8. In removing kernels from ears why should one pry at the edges?
9. Why should the shield cloth be of firm weave?
10. Did you find it necessary to make an individual ear test?

DEATH OF WESTON DERUSH HUGHES

Weston Hughes passed away at the local hospital Friday, April 4, 1924, at the age of 48 years and 8 days, suffering from complications following an attack of the flu last fall, and from other complaints which had been undermining his health for a number of months. He was brought to the hospital for care about two weeks before the end came, but his condition was such that he failed to respond to treatment.

Deceased was born at Lineville, Iowa, where he lived until 1884, when he came to York county, in this state, and four years later moved to this county, and has since made his home in this part of Nebraska. About six years ago he moved to the vicinity of Orchard, and less than two years ago moved to Newcastle from which place he was brought to the Wayne hospital. He leaves his aged mother, Mrs. Jack Hyatt of this city, a brother, a wife at Newcastle and a son Derush Hughes who lives at Belmont, Iowa, with his mother.

The funeral service and burial was at Newcastle Sunday afternoon.

At Stanton they defeated a paving proposition by 26 votes. The sentiment seemed to be that the cost of such work is yet too high, compared with prices paid for the products on which a community like Stanton must depend.

Fort Crook's army flying field will be officially named Offutt field, May 15, the war department has announced. The name is in honor of Lieutenant Jarvis Offutt, Omaha aviation officer, who was killed while flying in France, August 11, 1918.

The First National Bank at Pilger closed its doors to the public last Thursday morning, and is in charge of the bank examiner. In many cases of failure of national banks it is very probable that had the examiner been on the job exercising his proper authority, the banks might not have had to close. An ounce of prevention is often worth a ton of cure.

In Cedar county the jail has been condemned by two different inspectors, and the county judge will not sentence criminals to imprisonment there, because the courts have held that if a prisoner dies from being confined in a condemned prison, the official sending them there may be found guilty of murder, and the judge does not want to go to the electric chair.

James Stanton returned to his home at Carroll Monday evening after a few days' visit at Omaha. Jim might have tarried longer in the city, but felt it his duty to be home for the primary election, for he thinks his duty as a citizen at the polls on election day is as important and as patriotic as that of the soldier who goes to the front at the call of his country in time of war, even though it be less dangerous.

Twenty miles of paving will be laid in Douglas county this summer, the county commissioners announce. One stretch will connect Millard with the Military highway, linking Fremont to South Omaha by paving, and another stretch of five miles will extend the road from Florence toward Bennington.

At Blair last week the city council let contract for a new oil burning engine of 170 k. a. v. with generator at $21,972 complete, and installed ready to run. There were numerous bids from the steam engine companies but the engineer recommended the oil engine, and it was ordered at a higher price than the bid on some steam engines of greater listed power. The representative of the oil engine told the committee that the first year of the new engine would result in a saving of the $5,000 they pay over their lowest bid, and that according to that rate of saving in four years the city will have saved the cost of their oil engine in running expenses.

With buildings totaling more than $19,000,000 already planned or likely to be built in Omaha this year, the new building record of $13,008,899 made by Omaha last year is certain to be shattered. Buildings which are practically certain to be started this year are: Live Stock Exchange, $1,000,000; Federal Reserve bank, $550,000; Brandeis store remodeling and addition, $350,000; Woman's club, $100,000; Knights of Columbus, $500,000; Odd Fellows home, $200,000; Rent-a-Ford garage, $85,000; Nebraska Power company, $3,000,000; Ford plant addition, $35,000; K-B Printing company, $87,000. Buildings in prospect for the year are: Paxton hotel, $750,000; Orpheum theatre, $450,000; Medical Arts building, $500,000; Union station, $2,500,000; Methodist hospital addition, $100,000; apartments, $1,000,000; homes, $7,500,000.

Geo. Haight of Battle Creek says that a few well cared-for fruit trees will furnish all the fruit that an ordinary family can use in a year. However, he emphasizes good care. Mr. Haight has sold in different years as much as $700 worth from his orchard on a farm southwest of town. He uses four sprays, especially emphasizing the need of a dormant spray. One of the easiest ways to keep down disease infection is to prevent it. No rubbish is permitted to accumulate in this orchard, neither are apples left to rot to harbor moths and insects. Everything is kept clean and cultivated. Any rough spots in the bark is apt to make a harbor for an insect pest. One way to keep this down well in the lower part of the tree is to whitewash the tree well above the crotch twice a year. He uses the following formula: 30 pounds of unslaked air lime; 50 pounds barrel salt; 4 pounds beef tallow and one pound rice. Boil, rice and pour into lime as it is slaked. Add the balance of the ingredients when it quits boiling. Clean off all old bark and paint.

VEGETABLES FOR ALL THE YEAR
Now is the time to plan the spring garden so that it will furnish fresh vegetables for the table thruout the spring and summer, and also provide them for canning. Vegetables not only help to furnish the calcium, iron and phosphorus needed by the body to make it grow and keep well but they also furnish the vitamins. From experiments in feeding animals and from watching the effect of foods on the body, it has been found that vitamins are necessary for growth and development and also to maintain health. Thru these experiments it also has been found which foods contain vitamins.

We know that there are vitamins in milk and eggs and also in most vegetables. Tomatoes, botanically a fruit but used as a vegetable, and leafy vegetables such as spinach, cabbage and lettuce are especially rich in vitamins. It is better to eat vegetables than take "spring medicine." It is well to know we should have vegetables every day but the important factor is, do we practice what we believe?

Nebraska's Third Industry

In Nebraska every year 15,000,000 fuzzy, toddling little chicks grow up into great flocks of clucking, cackling, crowing hens and roosters.

Poultry raising ranks third among the industries of the state.

The average annual income from the sale of Nebraska poultry and eggs is $35,000,000, or nearly half the value of the state's average annual wheat crop.

Poultry raising and other Nebraska industries are steadily growing, and as the state grows, more and more local and long distance telephone service will be required. To keep step with Nebraska's growth, the Bell System must spend about three-fourths of a million dollars annually for new telephone equipment in this state.

In order to provide for the growing demands for telephone service, vast sums of money must be obtained constantly from investors. Nearly half a million people already are financially interested in the business. We shall be pleased to have you, also, as an investor. Our Manager or any telephone employe will gladly give you full information about Bell stock or bonds.

As Nebraska prospers, the telephone is successful. Therefore, we constantly strive to provide reliable telephone service at the lowest possible charges consistent with reasonable wages to employees and a fair return on the money invested in the business.

ADDISON WAIT, HEAD OF SOLDIER HOME, DIES

Grand Island, Nebraska, April 1.—Addison Wait, 77, commandant of the state soldiers' home here, died today after a serious illness of some weeks. The funeral will take place in Lincoln where he had retained his residence.

Mr. Waite was a native of Ohio, came to Nebraska in 1873 as a telegraph operator, served a term as legislator from Syracuse, Nebraska, and became connected with the state banking department and moved to Lincoln in 1903. He later became assistant secretary of state and was elected secretary in 1911, serving two terms. He came to the home as adjutant in 1913, becoming commandant in 1919.

He joined the One Hundred and Forty-fifth Ohio infantry in the civil war, being only 19 years of age when the war ended. He was a member of the Lincoln Congregational church, Lincoln post G. A. R., and I. O. O. F. There remain, besides his wife, three sons and four daughters, several of whom are in California. Funeral arrangements await word from them though the remains will probably be taken to Lincoln Wednesday. A dropsical condition resulting from throat trouble was the immediate cause of death.

HUNTERS FINED $600 FOR ILLEGAL KILLING

A fine of $600 and costs of $9.70 was assessed against Edward Franklin, aged 21, and Lyle Stephens, 23, both of Lincoln, for shooting ducks during the closed season, according to a report received by Chief Game Warden Koester. The fine was paid. They had twenty-four ducks in their possession. Both men pleaded guilty in court at Schuyler. This prosecution was under the state game law which is the same as the federal regulations in the matter of a closed season for the killing of migratory birds. Federal Game Warden John Q. Holmes has taken the guns owned by the two Lincoln hunters and will file a complaint against them under the federal law for the same offense. They were shooting ducks on an island in the Platte river. The federal game warden has filed charges against the three hunters at Clarks, who were recently fined heavily under the state law.

NURSE WRITES ABOUT MEASLES (Katherine Justesen, Cedar County Nurse)

We are again facing an epidemic, let us all co-operate for the checking of same. Many children are left with permanent defects such as impaired and sometimes loss of vision and hearing, as the result of having had measles. The first signs of measles are sneezing, running of the nose and a slight cough. The eyes are red and watery and the light hurts them, the child appears to have a cold, during this period and the disease is very contagious.

The mother who sends her child to school or allows it to play with other children helps to spread the disease. The State Law provides that all children in a family where measles exist be excluded from school. (Extract of letter received from State Department of Health.) In families where septic, sore throat, rubella, measles, mumps, whooping cough typhoid fever and chicken pox exist all the children of the family are excluded from school for the incubation period of the disease. This letter was received on March 25th and is published so that the individual citizen may know his duty. In order to protect your own children it is necessary that you help to protect other people's children.

We are accustomed to think of measles as a disease not very dangerous, yet nearly as many children die from measles as from scarlet fever. Measles is a dangerous disease. No child needs to have it.

We have just suffered a financial loss to our little city of about $1500, from the closing of the schools, let us not have this repeated.

Do not object to the placarding of your home. The law requires the placarding of homes where measles exist. This is not a strict quarantine but is for the purpose of warning of contagious disease and to warn people to stay out.

BRYAN SUGGEST U. S. PAY CAMPAIGN COSTS

Washington, D. C., April 1.—A plan to let the government pay the campaign expenses of candidates for public office was brought forward here today by William Jennings Bryan. Recalling that President Roosevelt once suggested some such arrangement, Mr. Bryan said the senate disclosures had prepared the public mind for acceptance of the practical details of the plan, and advocated quick action so it could be employed in the 1924 campaign.

The formal announcements of candidates would be placed before the people under the plan in a bulletin issued by the government, and there would be an additional appropriation from the federal treasury amounting to 10 cents per voter, apportioned among parties according to their last recorded strength.

Thus, said Mr. Bryan, parties and candidates would be saved from "obligating themselves to the predatory interests."

"TO BE PERFECTLY FRANK WITH YOU"

Frankness is a virtue. Our best friends are those not afraid to speak their minds when occasion demands. Frankness is precious. Few have the courage to tell the absolute truth when the opposite, or a smoothed-over argument, will serve as oil troubled waters.

And yet frankness may be cruel; it may be harsh and unlovely and unhelpful.

What shall we do about the wounding of this two-edged sword that hews friendships and enmities alike? The secret of effective, kindly frankness is this: Use it as a remedy, not as a habit. Be frank when it means something more than an "outburst of Everett True," a safety valve, an expression of indignation.

"To be perfectly frank with you"—how often these words, spoken with righteous ring, are merely introduction to an indictment of something not agreeing with our own pet viewpoint. And yet, with the desire to render a service, they become a beacon upon the shore for the floundering object struggling out there in the waves. Winnow the friendly frankness of your nature from proneness to vent impatient criticism, then the gates of confidence and sympathy will open both ways, and the flower of friendship will flourish and bloom.

—Goodloe H. Thomas.

BEWARE THE RADICALS

The cat's out of the bag. Not the patriotic White house Tom that was located by radio in the war department, but the cat that has the number of the two United States senators from Montana. The republican national committee effected his release. The whole damnable red plot, incubated in Montana and hatched under the very noses of such faithful defenders of their country's honor as Fall and Daugherty and Denby, is now laid bare.

Wheeler is a radical and Walsh is an aider and abettor of radicals. Now let the country tremble at the awful peril it is in. The state that chose them as its representatives in the United States senate is a hotbed of sedition and treason and ought to be read out of the union. Instead of being free to uncover graft in high places in the government of the United States both men should be sent to the block without benefit of clergy.

How does the republican committee know that Wheeler is a radical? Because he wasn't stampeded into bringing wholesale prosecutions for sedition during the war. How does the committee know there was anyone who should have been prosecuted? Because the "patriotic Americans of Butte" took the matter in hand, organized a lawless mob, "hanged one of the leaders and ran the others out of Butte." And Walsh was just as bad as Wheeler because he didn't get the latter fired.

There, friends and fellow countrymen, is the evidence which proves that Fall never got one hundred thousand dollar bills in a black satchel, that the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome naval reserves never were handed over to his generous friends, that Daugherty could have had no possible connection with millions of dollars worth of illegal liquor withdrawals, or with the profitable transaction in prize fight films, and that there is nothing whatever to the thousand and one indications that the old gang was getting bloated from the avidity with which it was attempting to appease an appetite of eight long years' standing.—World Herald.

PROTEIN FEED NEEDED BY PRODUCING COWS

The importance of protein in the ration of dairy cows is stressed by J. O. Tretsven, dairy specialist of Montana, in answering a question on economical balanced rations, recently submitted through the feeding problem service. This service, which is rendered by various States in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture, enables a farmer to submit his specific feeding questions to specialists.

Blanks on which the farmer may present the facts involved in his problem are distributed through county agents and other agricultural workers.

In this instance the ration being fed by the inquirer was analyzed as being a fattening ration deficient in protein. A drop in milk production had resulted. A ration of corn silage, alfalfa hay, barley, oats, and mixed mill feed was recommended by Mr. Tretsven as very satisfactory for milk-producing cows in that locality. He added that if the alfalfa and silage were of excellent grade, little grain feed would be required.

FOREST PROTECTION WEEK PROCLAIMED BY PRESIDENT

Forest Protection Week for 1924 has been designated by President Coolidge for April 21-27, inclusive, announces the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture.

In his proclamation, President Coolidge calls attention to the appalling losses that occur each year from forest fires, and urges all citizens, either in association or as individuals to protect all wooded areas from fire. Governors of many States will issue proclamations supplementing the one issued by the President, and Arbor Day in several States will be observed during Forest Protection Week.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and W. B. Greeley, Chief of the Forest Service, have many times emphasized the importance of preventing forest fires, about 36,000 of which every year sweep 11,000,000 acres of land.

BILL TO GUARANTEE FREE AND OPEN LIVE STOCK MARKETING

Senator Norris chairman of the Senate agricultural committee, as well as other members, have approved in substance a bill now pending Congress which has the underlying principle of guaranteeing free and open competitive livestock markets for the farmers of this country. This measure has the support of thousands of livestock shippers in all parts of the United States who have voiced their approval of it to the Senate committee through direct representatives of their own organizations, and by mail and petitions, says an exchange. As originally introduced by Senator Capper, of Kansas, the bill was aimed at the Mistletoe private stockyards at Kansas City and owned by the Armour Packing Company. Early in the hearings it was quite generally concluded that similar situation might exist or arise at other market centers much to the detriment of livestock shippers. In view of this fact a substitute bill was agreed upon which declares that public stockyards are public utilities and should so be regulated and maintained.

The Armour-owned yards are located adjacent to the public stockyards at Kansas City. At the hearings thus far held it was brought out that by understanding and agreement only certain farmers were permitted to ship hogs to the Mistletoe yards, where they are sold on the basis of the price at the public market. It was further brought out that Armour receives most of his hogs at the private yards, but maintains a buyer on the public yards who is a factor in keeping down hog prices, knowing that the lower price was kept the cheaper he could buy the hogs at the private yards, because the price at the public yards is the same as paid for hogs received at the Mistletoe yards. And the selected farmers who are permitted to ship to the private yards do not have to pay the expenses necessary in maintaining the public yards.

The intense interest shown in this bill by Senator Norris is characteristic of the efforts he is putting forth on behalf of the farmer. It has been frequently expressed by Senators and others during the course of hearings before the Senate agricultural committee that they believe Senator Norris is in closer touch with agriculture. And he has been more active during the present session of Congress than at any time since he has been in the Senate.

In speaking of the apparent unfairness of the situation at the Mistletoe yards Senator Norris said that "would it not follow that since certain farmers are getting a price at the Mistletoe yards based on a market that is kept up by other shippers, then these farmers should bear their expense in keeping up the public yards."

The question of whether or not the packers should be permitted to operate private stockyards in the vicinity of public yards was discussed fully by witnesses and members of the senate committee. "The thing that bothers me," said Senator Norris, "is that it seems to be conceded that markets like the Kansas City market are necessary. Maybe they are not, but if they are not we have developed far enough in the economic science to do away with them. If we concede that they are necessary then does it not follow that if we permit such things to go on as are going on we will drive them out of business and if we have no public markets, then would we not have places like the Mistletoe yards all over the United States and would not the seller be at their mercy?"

FIGURES SHOW INCREASE IN USE OF MILK AND CREAM

The American appetite for milk and cream goes on increasing. A survey recently completed by the Bureau of Agriculture Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, shows that the per capita consumption of fluid milk for 1923 was 53 gallons, which figures out to 1.16 pints daily for each person. In 1922 the per capita consumption was 50 gallons; and the year before it was 49 gallons.

The statement has often been made that farmers who produce milk for the market sell practically all of it and do not use as much in their homes as do the city people. The survey shows that contrary—that on farm with producing cows more milk and cream were consumed than by city families. The farm figures were obtained from 30,000 individual farms and represent the most comprehensive survey of the kind ever made. The city figures were obtained principally from boards of health and covered 300 cities having a total population of about 25,000,000 persons.

The average daily consumption of milk and cream on farms where producing cows were kept was found to be 1.78 pints per person in 1923. On farms having no cows or on which nonproducing cows were kept, the average daily consumption was 0.775 pint. The city average was 0.87 pint.

480 Acre Brule Co. Farm for SALE or TRADE

This is not a trade price on this farm but an offering it at same price as is asked for in cash deal.

ACREAGE—480 acres. 200 acres under cultivation and 30 in alfalfa, balance pasture. Land all smooth and good soil, and all can be cultivated but ten acres in lake bed and this makes excellent pasture.

FENCE—Land all fence and cross fenced, there being more than four miles of woven fence. Cattle and hog yards are all fenced around about the buildings.

WATER—Excellent well and windmill and good cistern for family use.

TOWN, SCHOOL and ROADS—Six miles from a South Dakota town of 1200 and one of the best markets in South Dakota. School within 3-4 mile of building. You travel three miles north from the buildings and strike the main state gravelled road to town.

TAXES—The taxes in this township are the lowest in the county, the average for the past three years being $202.00 for the 480 acres. Two miles to the east, farms are within the consolidated school district, and a farm like this one is there taxed for $800.00.

IMPROVEMENTS—This is one of the best improve farms in the county. Most of the buildings were placed there new in the years 1918 and 1919. $200 in repairs and $300 in paint would make them appear as all new buildings. The building with the dimensions and their values at this time, are enumerated as follows:

Two story, 7 room house, with basement, screened porch, cistern and summer house	$3000.00
Garage 16x36 in fair repair	100.00
Ice house 12x12	100.00
Barn 32x44, with 14 foot posts	1000.00
Hen house 20x20	150.00
Hen house 14x28	200.00
Cattle Barn 26x30, shingle roof	250.00
Cattle Barn 26x30, shingle roof	400.00
Machine house 18x20	250.00
Hog house 28x50	1000.00
Grainary 12x24	300.00
Orchard of young trees	200.00
	$6700.00

The values placed on the buildings are very conservative and I am positive that the buildings could not be placed or duplicated new for less than $12,000.00.

In 1919 the owner was offered $140 per acre for this place but he refused it. I am now offering it for $35.00 per acre which is low price, and on excellent terms. Mortgage of $15,000.00 drawing 6 per cent semi annual interest and maturing March 1st, 1928, must be assumed by purchaser. $7000.00 must be paid in cash and income property up to $5000.00 will be accepted as part payment providing it is not too heavily encumbered and I will take the balance back on a second mortgage for five years at 6 per cent interest.

A part of the republican press assumes that it is a worse crime for the democrats to have unearthed the recent oil and other scandals than it was for the republicans to have committed the crimes. Just a matter of the viewpoint.

Government by weather is the way one paper puts it in the assertion that in the primary Tuesday had weather keeping the farmer vote at home spelled victory for Coolidge, and with good weather and passible roads Johnson forces would have a clear majority.

The national referendum on the winning prize for the Bok peace award, submitted by Dr. Charles H. Levermore, showed 534,177 votes in favor of the plan and 76,381 against. Citizens in every state and many abroad were represented in the ballots. The vote closed March 15. Under the conditions of the award, Dr. Levermore was given $50,000 when his plan was selected by the committee and will be given another $50,000 "when or if the plan is approved by congress" or if the committee decides the measure of support has been adequate to warrant giving him the second half of the award.

We hear a lot of holler about the marriage law enacted by the legislature, and that it is robbing the Nebraska preachers and jewelers by sending the weddings out of the state. Judge Cherry says that never before in the record of the office has it shown as many home marriages as in the last few months; and Wayne is not located far enough from the state line to make it much of a hardship to go out of the state either north or east on a wedding trip—and yet that is the record. Iowa legislature now in special session, is enacting a very similar law, only a little more stringent than the one in this state. Let any one who does not believe in this law visit our homes for the unfortunate children, the feeble minded and the reform schools, and inquire into the life history of those who are there, a charge and expense to the public, and no good to themselves or any one else, and know from their history that under present marriage laws the half of them would never have been born, and call for the repeal of that law if you dare. In years to come, when this law has been tested and made bit more stringent it will be reported as one of the very few really good laws enacted at the legislature of 1922. Make the law a bit more strict but do not repeal it. But few have been refused license in this county, we are told; and if the law remains in force the sentiment that those who go from home to wed do so because they cannot pass the test here will increase and then few indeed will go away to marry contrary to their home state law.

THE WEEK

The Senate investigations of the naval oil leases and of Attorney-General Daugherty have now gone far enough to show clearly the conditions which existed in Washington during the two years of the Harding administration. Some individual witnesses may prove to be unreliable, some statements may turn out false. But the broad outlines of the picture will remain essentially as they now stand. History will record that during this period public resources of great value were abandoned to private interests; that this was accompanied by the most shameless purchase of high officials; and that during this time one of the most important government departments was the familiar meeting place of a nest of incredibly vulgar and sordid rascals engaged in bootlegging, drug-smuggling, criminal conspiracy, and the giving and accepting of bribes. That stain is indelible.

Indelible, in particular, is the stain on the character of Attorney-General Daugherty. Even should he successfully disprove all charges of personal complicity in the various illegal operations which went on in his office he has revealed himself for all time as a man whose natural affiliations were with, and whose preferences for, persons who can only be characterized as belonging to the underworld. It is incredible that the Attorney-General does not see how all his replies to the evidence offered against him serve only to reinforce the assumption that that evidence is substantially correct. Typical of his attitude is his assertion that Roxie Stinson had sought to extort $150,000 from him as the price of her silence. Obviously, no better testimony could be offered, that she believed her own story. Up to the present practically the only response of Mr. Daugherty to any of the series of charges has been to attack the character of the witnesses. Mr. Daugherty could be as innocent as possible of any crime; and would yet have revealed himself as thoroughly unfit not only for his present high office but for any other.

The most shocking aspect of the whole shocking business is the attitude displayed toward the revelations by a large part of the press. All their indignation is saved for the misty and frailties of the investigators; they have none to waste on dishonest officials and their bootlegging, drug-smuggling, bribing allies. If you were to read only the editorial pages of most of the great conservative dailies in our larger cities (with a few honorable exceptions such as the Boston Transcript) you would get an impression that the members of the Senate committees were hysterical fools and that the persons they are investigating have done nothing which ought not to be condoned, with a wink, as harmless peccadilloes by men of the world. Such an attitude on the part of alleged leaders of public opinion might well cause the honest citizen to despair.

Certainly it is true that the investigators are not perfect, that they make mistakes, pursue false trails, occasion; ally turn the limelight on innocent persons, and are not wholly unconscious of the political effects of their activities. But when, since the world began, have investigators been perfect? Has any other investigation in the whole history of America ever revealed so much important evidence of corruption in so short a time? The truth is, as every sensible man knows, that you must choose between an imperfect investigation such as we are having, and none at all. The newspapers which bend every effort to belittle and deride the senators who are surveying the condition of our Augean stables, lay themselves open to the grave suspicion that what they want is no investigation at all, but the sealing up of the whole malodorous mess.

The Senate, as we go to press, is contemplating a separate investigation of contributors and contributions to the Republican National campaign fund in 1920. Such an inquiry is clearly needed. The Republican leaders must be in a queer state of mind to reecho Will Hays's satisfaction that the Sinclair gift has bled down from $1,850,000 to only $78,000. "Only" indeed! One is reminded of the servant girl who pleaded in extenuation of her baby that it was such a little one. A $75,000 gift from Mr. Sinclair, in view of the millions the oil magnate expected to make through the connivance of the administration becomes a political scandal of the first importance. It is magnified by Sinclair's defiance of the Senate committee and of public opinion in refusing to testify. The man has a right to know and demand to know how many oil men and others who had an ax to grind came to the support of the party, and to what extent.

The above is from the editorial page of the New Republic, and was handed in with a request that the Democrat readers have opportunity peruse the same, and this we gladly do as a part of the mission of a newspaper.—Ed.

COMMENTS OF AN OLD-TIMER

(by Katherine Mitchell)

Heard a man say Tuesday that he knew just how he wanted to vote but couldn't understand "how they run this 'ere votin' since we have primaries." No, Pauline, it is not just "wimmin folks" who are ignorant.

Talked to a farmer's wife recently. Said she had not been to town since last November. Yes, she was happy and sweet and contented. Almost six months of life on the farm with lots of hard work and just her immediate family to keep her company, except on special occasions when neighbors dropped in to chat. She knew more about the political situation in Nebraska than I do. She had her plans for her life and her children's lives well established in her mind and she has the education, ability and good horse sense to see that her dreams come true. No, her life is not sorrow. Why, she radiated happiness. She did not get her inspiration from a sermon, a club or the movies. She got it from living the simple life, from loving her fellow beings and a goodly per cent of old-fashioned religion.

Read an article written by a woman, a mother, in which she wrote at length concerning what she was pleased to term "the lack of entertainment" provided for our young folks today. Said she advocated a community house where there would be a swimming pool, supervised dancing, social evenings, etc. Why, my dear lady, our average young person gets up at eight o'clock, snatches a hasty breakfast, runs to school; comes home at noon, snatches another hasty bite; runs back to school; gets into the harness until four, sometimes five o'clock; comes home, tired, irritable, too played out to help with the work; snatches another bite, goes out to a supervised lecture, supervised movie, supervised entertainment of some sort, every night in the week. If there is nothing on in the line of school activities, don't let that worry you, there is the church which we hope to take them for a night once in a while, and there is always 'the bunch' to fill in a vacant 'date.' The only good thing about most of the activities is the fact that they are supervised. The only reason there is no more activities is the painful knowledge that the day has but twenty-four hours, and young folk cannot get along without sleep at all. If Dad and Mother want a night off they have to wait until they can catch a flying chat with son or daughter and ask, rather timidly, if there is one evening any time soon when the young folk expect to do that studying they have expected to find time for since last September. If the woman who wrote the article above mentioned will tell me on which end of the day she expects to burn the candle, that she may fill in "those lonely hours", I will be glad to hear her plans. It seems to me if we could in some way, squeeze in an hour or two of real, physical labor in every twenty-four hours, for our boys and girls, supervised by Mother or Dad, who would see that the time was industriously spent, that would be real recreation from study, and serve as a balance for the tired nerves caused by the modern slap, being existence they are leading.

SCHOOL BOARD NAMES 4 MORE TEACHERS MONDAY

The Wayne school board elected Miss Ruth Anderson of West Point for commercial work; Miss Nettie C. Carlson of Neligh for domestic science and Miss Marguerite Harris of Madison and Miss Pearl Young of Oakland for the seventh and fifth grades. They also voted to continue the janitor of the past fifteen or twenty years for a time longer. Peter Hinkel is his name, and we doubt if they make any change while he is able to attend the work.

BIBLE STUDY CIRCLE

Two years ago the mind of the religious world was suddenly awakened by a flood of startling reports from the north of Ireland and parts of Scotland telling of a mighty revival that was shaking those countries and spreading like living fire from village to village. Lowly fishermen and plain men and women in work-a-day clothes were seen preaching on crowded street cars, in open fields, in the streets, witnessing in strange power to a new life and joy in Christ. Through hamlet and village came the spiritual wave sweeping out sin and crime and every where causing tears of repentance and songs of holy praise. The churches were crowded with humble penitents and the usual formal services were turned over to those longing for changed lives.

Last year Rev. Howard B. Denwidle who was for 12 years head of all the Institutional work in greater New York, and now head of the Pioneer Mission agency, was called to the scenes of this unusual spiritual awakening to present the claims of Christ and the needs of the untouched world fields in the larger centers of Ireland, Scotland and England.

Over three hundred young people were fired to offer themselves for life service in pioneer parts of the world. His late travels through the Amazon Valley where thousands upon thousands have never seen a white man before, is a thrilling romance which his congregations on the Pacific coast are hearing the past two weeks. This distinguished gentleman will pay a 24 hour visit to Wayne April 11 and 12th enroute from San Francisco to New York, and will speak at the Community house, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. His many friends are urged to make this good news known and to be present promptly.

HOT SHOTS

(By Evangelist Hunter)

You know how cussed mean and ungodly you are. You knew that before I came to Wayne. There are members in the churches in this town who are so crooked the devil is ashamed of them.

The time is up. Let's get busy and clean up. What do you say?

Don't be content just to follow the crowd. A yellow dog can do that.

The trouble today is we have too many people in the church who are not converted. You card playing, dancing christians, either clean up or get out of the church.

Some girls insult every decent man they pass by the lack of proper covering. If they wish men to show them respect they should pull down their signs.

If some people would serve their business as they do Jesus, they would be bankrupt in thirty days, or if they treated their family as they treat Jesus, they would be arrested for cruelty.

Every church member is in the limelight, and if true to God, will be respected but if not true, the world will know and laugh.

A BIT OF BLAZE

There was a little explosion of an electric mantle in the Boyd hotel laundry room Monday morning which started a bit of a blaze which was quickly extinguished by the chemical extinguishers from the hotel and one from the Central garage; but quick as was the work of those right at the scene the firemen had two trucks there ready for action if needed. The loss to the linen is placed at about $200.

ALFALFA IN FULL BLOOM
WILL PRODUCE MORE HAY
Alfalfa cut in full bloom is slightly less palatable but produces more hay than when cut at beginning of bloom. Fields mowed earlier die out sooner. Cutting the alfalfa just when the new growth starts from the crown gives the plants the best chance of competing against weeds and conserves moisture by keeping the ground shaded most of the time. Too late fall cutting promotes winter killing. Nebraska station finds that it does not pay to plant alfalfa in rows and cultivate for hay.

HE TRAPPED COYOTES— MADE WIFE FUR COAT

Newcastle, Nebraska, March 21.—Mrs. T. J. Ryan, living near the Missouri river not far from Newcastle, has a unique and very beautiful fur coat, which she prizes highly, made from the skins of five coyotes and two raccoons, which were caught by her husband.

Mr. Ryan, who appears to be a genius in this respect, wishing to please his young wife, tanned, cut and sewed the hides himself, without any pattern and without any suggestions. The seams of the coat are scarcely discernible and the artistic design and orderly arrangement of the skins are remarkable.

The back of this extraordinary coat is made of one big coyote skin so that the stripes or colorings extend from the top to the bottom in a striking way, and the coyote tail hangs at the bottom as a part of the trimming. The other coyote tails make up the rest of the trimmings around the bottom as a part of the trimming, and collar are made from the raccoon skins with one skin and tail hanging from the neck at the back, similar to the big coyote skin described. Then on each shoulder is an artistic design of the coyotes' breasts. The coat is lined with blue taffeta and probably is worth several hundred dollars.

GIVES NEW MONEY FOR OLD

Saturday Evening Post.—Besides the great stacks of old bills turned in by banks, scores of unlucky people—all over the world—are running daily to their governments, asking new money in place of the torn or charred fragments of bills damaged by one accident or another.

At the treasury in Washington they showed me a glass goblet melted, when a house burned, into the form of a hollow square. In that goblet the careless housewife had kept her money—$50 in bills. By some old fluke, the melting goblet had poured down around the money, charring it, of course, but leaving the still recognizable ashes and ten $5 bills plainly visible. They gave the woman fifty good dollars and put the glass in their museum.

"One of the oddest cases we ever had," said Mr. Gates of the redemption office, "was that of a man who kept a goat. Somehow this goat ate a garment in the pocket of which was tucked fifteen $1 bills and ate this money."

The minute the owner heard of what had occurred, and being familiar with the digestive powers of the goat, he did a quick stunt in mental arithmetic. The goat he figured was worth $1.50, or only one-tenth of the value of that paper money repast. Promptly, then, he slew the creature, recovered the chewed bills and sent them to us. We mailed him a check for $15, thus cutting his net loss to $1.50."

It costs Uncle Sam practically as much to make a $1 bill as it does to make a $20 bill, or a $10,000 note—about 1.3 cents each, they told me at the treasury. So, even were it practicable to use gold, and even if we always had enough, it would cost more through loss by abrasion to use it than to use paper. At that, some 600 million dollars in gold is in circulation, or theoretically so for most of it is kept in vaults of banks.

Every day old paper money moves in a steady stream to the treasury, and new bills move out. More than one million dollars a day is destroyed, and of course, an enormous amount must be kept on hand to meet new demands. In one small cupboard about three feet square I saw 842 millions dollars in paper money—said to be the most valuable pile anywhere.

Our $1 bills, being handled most, wears out soonest. Many of the two's turned in have one corner torn off—proof that gamblers and others still believe a $2 bill is unlucky, and that only by tearing off a corner is the hoodoo broken. "A $20 bill," said Frank Thiel, assistant treasurer, "will last on an average somewhat less than four years. Just how much paper money is lost or destroyed, and never returned for redemption, is difficult to estimate. One guess says that it is not more than one-quarter of 1 per cent."

"YOUR HATS OFF GENTLEMEN!" Filley Spotlight:

People don't ride on the trains like they used to. Years ago you could wing passengers like you could a flock of ducks, but nowadays they're all going in automobiles. Years ago they used to run excursions to Beatrice to show people the chautauqua, but the big majority never got any farther than the second or third saloon. The intellectual treat was left to the few who didn't like beer.

Returning to Virginia on one of these excursion trains Emil Shestak found himself on the platform thoroughly stewed but ready for more fun. Following his train was a seventeen-coach train carrying St. Joseph boosters to their homes, and it didn't stop at Virginia. The train was packed, and half the passengers were sticking their heads out of the windows. The long row of hats was too much for Emil. Picking up a switch broom he held it so that it swept the windows, knocking straw lids onto the platform. The whole train went by and Emil stuck to the broom. Panamas, silk banded hats, plain hats and fancy hats—the assortment of head-wear which covered the platform would have stocked a haberdasher's shop for two years.

Surprised looks, waving arms and angry curses were in vain—the train went on, leaving Emil amused with his plunder. But the railroad company took the matter up and Mr. Shestak paid several hundred dollars for his sport. For a few years after that the station agent had unclaimed hats in his office, and they would probably be there yet if the depot hadn't burned down several years ago.

BOYS' CALF CLUBS

Not the least important agency in promotion of the dairy industry in Nebraska is represented in the boys' calf club organizations existing in many parts of the state. These organizations are promoted and financed by local committees of citizens who realize the value of dairying to a community and believe that one way to put it on a solid foundation for the future is to get the boys interested as actual owners of milk cows, while they are young, say an exchange.

The plan is a fairly simple one. The local committee purchases a number of calves from tested grade cows and pure bred sires. These are distributed among a selected group of boys, yes, and girls, too. The recipient agrees to return to the committee the first-bearer calf which his own animal bears. After that obligation has been fulfilled he receives complete title to the animal which has been entrusted to him.

While he is rearing his calf and developing his embryo dairy the owner is enrolled as a member of the calf club which holds regular meetings. His county agent is always ready to advise him when problems arise and he is given instruction in a course in practical dairying.

The committee turns over the new calves which come to them from club members to other boys and girls, so that the club is perpetuated. Not only is the dairy idea thus spread, but the necessity of keeping animals up to a standard of production is emphasized.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABIES (Korselania)

Aunt Bertha tried to get little Henry to lie down. "Look at all the little chickens! How quietly they have all gone to rest!" "Yes—but all the old hens have gone with them."

THE INVESTIGATIONS (World-Herald)

"The casualty list" of the congressional investigations, compiled by the New York World, may be of interest to those who allege that congress has merely been shooting mud guns in the air. Here it is:

Attorney General Daugherty resigned.

Secretary of the Navy Denby, resigned.

Ex-Secretary of the Interior Fall, facing indictment in oil cases.

Collector of Customs C. C. Chase, El Paso, resigned but facing impeachment.

Colonel Charles R. Forbes, resigned indicted.

Representative J. W. Langley, indicted.

Millard E. West, former deputy collector internal revenue, indicted.

Harry F. Sinclair, Edward L. Doheny, oil lessees, cases pending with Fall's.

And this is only a beginning. If the reorganization of the department of justice forced by the investigations, brings about fearless and impartial law enforcement and prosecution of the guilty, many other official heads are likely to fall.

Sweeping reorganization and reconstruction of the prohibition enforcement and internal revenue bureaus, with improved efficiency and higher standards of official conduct, also is indicated.

Conservation of natural resources, a policy that was about to die of malnutrition, is suddenly revived. And suits are pending for the recovery to the people of vast holdings that were illegally and fraudulently turned over to private greed.

The congressional investigations have made an evil stench. They have "disturbed business"—especially crooked business in league with crooked politics. They have given the blatherskite his golden opportunity and encouraged the pessimist and cynic to croak himself hoarse.

But they have been worth all they cost, and much more. We shall have better government because of them. And we shall have a restoration of popular confidence in government because we shall have government more worthy to be trusted.

THE REFUSAL TO COME CLEAN (New York World)

In what the Herald Tribune calls "the opening speech of the republican national campaign," Senator Pepper produced the alibi:

The cabinet was only 30 per cent corrupt or incompetent;

The fault was President Harding's behind whose name it is proper to hide;

The republican congress is not under republican control, and, therefore, the republican party is not responsible for anything;

The effect of the revelations is to create the danger of a third party.

This is not a very successful opening for the republican national campaign. For to describe corruption or incompetence in the department of the interior, the navy department, the department of justice and the veteran's bureau as not very important, is to put it mildly a sordid apology; to hide behind President Harding's name is, to put it mildly ignoble; to plead a lack of party responsibility in a congress which is republican in both branches is, to put it mildly, a confession of weakness; and to charge the democrats with creating a third party is, to put it mildly once more, a piece of pure chicanery.

To Senator Pepper, making a keynote speech for republicans to republicans, the inability of a republican president to lead a republican majority in congress is due to democratic wickedness. To Senator Pepper the danger of the republican party's splitting into pieces under the impact of the exposures is the result of democratic partisanship. In other words, if the republican party goes on the rocks, it will be due not to republican sins but to the force of the democratic attack. For silliness this is just about the end of the limit.

So then an alibi would never be employed by the authorized spokesman of a party who had a case that he really believed in. The truth of the matter is that the administration has no case it dares to avow. The tortuous method of the president in dealing with Denby and Daugherty, and this speech of Senator Pepper's, are the work of men with troubled consciences and divided minds. In very plain English, they are the work of men who are forced to defend a party which refuses to come clean.

Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Pepper are in the unfortunate position of men caught between a party machine which insists upon standing pat and a national sentiment which demands a drastic change. If they stand by the party machine, and Daugherty was very near to the center of it, they outrage the country. If they have to repudiate the men who nominated Harding and are about to nominate Coolidge.

That is why they do not come clean. That is why the president was afraid either to dismiss Daugherty except on a pretext or to stand by Daugherty till he had had his hearing as he had promised. That is why Senator Pepper had to put himself in the unpleasant position of pooh-poohing the corruption or incompetence of four of the highest officials in the administration. That is why he drew President Harding's name into the mess. That is why he had to make the ridiculous charge that if the republican party breaks up, it is the democrats who are responsible. For-bad consciences make bad excuses.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL TEAM IS ORGANIZED

The Winside high school organized a baseball team for the coming season at the schoolhouse, recently. Art Brune was named captain and Guy Ashford was made coach. Several games will be scheduled immediately and attempts will be made in particular to arrange for games with Pillgor, Wayne, Wakefield, Carroll and Emerson. Prospects for a winning team are very good, most of the boys having played with the high school team for several seasons and at least three of them have played with the town team. "Pete" Clayton will do the twirling again this year and ought to show a big improvement over last year, although his record last year was an enviable one. Mittelstadt will catch. Following are the members who make up the team:

THE OLD HOME PAPER

It's printed old-fashioned and homely, bearing name of a small country town;

With an unfeigned sneer at its wrapper queer,
The postman, in scorn, throws it down.
But I scan every line that it offers,
Each item brings something to view,
Through the vista of years, through youth's pleasure and fears
It serves their keen touch to renew.

The death of the girl I once courted,
The growth of a firm I once jeered,
The rise of a friend I love to commend,
The fall of a man I revered.

As I read I drift dreamily backward
To the days when to live was a joy,
I think and I pore, till the city's dull roar
Grows faint, and again I'm a boy.

Rare perfume of green country by-ways,
Fair music of flowers and bees,
And the quaint little town with the streets leading down
To the creek and the low-bending trees.

Around me the forms of my comrades,
About us earth's glories unfurled,
Each heart undefiled, with the faith of a child.

Looking forth to a place in the world,
And the paper tells how all have prospered,
I follow their lives as they flow,
Applauding each gain and regretting
each pain.

For the sake of the days long ago,
Above all the huge city dallies
With ponderous utterance wist,
This scant page hath power to spread for an hour
A fairland sweet to my eyes!

DRUGGIST'S PARODY ON "BANANAS"

There's a druggist in every town
With a pretty store
When a customer comes around,
He sees things galore;
Yet most everything he wants,
This man's always out.
Sadly thru his shelves he'll jaunt,
Then you'll hear him shout.

CHORUS
Yes, we have no Castoria,
We have no more Tanlac today,
There's Pluto, Unguentine and ExLax
And Lysol and Lydia Pinkham's too.
We've got some old-fashioned senna,
Catnip and henna, but
Yes, we have no more Swamp Root,
We have no Peruna today.—Ex.

VEGETABLES AS SPRING TONIC

If the diet has lacked vegetables during the winter months, one is tempted to take a spring tonic. Iron tonic out of a bottle will not be as beneficial to us as iron from a dish of vegetables. Every part of the body needs iron in order to get its supply of oxygen from the air. If our food lacks iron we become pale and anaemic. Any tendency toward anaemia is noted by paleness of the lips, ear lobes and mucous membrane of the eye. An anaemic boy or girl cannot develop normally and is more susceptible to cold and disease. The green vegetables are richest in iron. Phosphorous is also needed by muscles, bones, nerves and glands.

For a market for poultry, eggs and cream, remember Fortner.—adv.

PRESENT "HIAWATHA" FOR MAY FESTIVAL

(From the Goldenrod)
First rehearsal of the chorus of town people, who with the State Normal choral club and visiting artists will present the cantata, "Hiawatha," May 21 for the May festival, was held Tuesday evening. Prof. Leon F. Beery is making this evening feature of the May festival a larger undertaking than last year and everyone who sings is welcome to meet with the chorus next Wednesday evening at 7:30 in the industrial building to practice for the cantata. Negotiations are being made to get artists of exceptional talent here for solo parts. "Hiawatha" is one of the best musical productions of its nature. It was written by Coleridge-Taylor whose father was an English officer and whose mother was a negro. The cantata is difficult and practice is thus begun early.

The physical education classes will give a demonstration the morning of the May festival; there will probably be a program including the entire music department of the school, also in the morning; the artists' recital will be in the afternoon and it is hoped that a children's chorus of voices from the State Normal and Wayne city school can be organized to present a short cantata at the same program; and "Hiawatha" will be presented in the evening.

MILLO J. MCGEE

Word reached Wayne last week of the death of Milo J. McGee, which occurred March 18 at Boise, Idaho.

Milo McGee came to Wayne in 1909 at attend the Nebraska Normal College and he graduated from the State Normal School in 1912. After teaching school in northeast Nebraska three years he went to Idaho where he followed the teaching profession and homesteaded. He served in the World War being stationed at Camp Lewis, Washington. Shortly after his discharge from service he developed tuberculosis which physicians say was contracted while in service. Every possible effort was made to restore his health but it was in vain.

The Masonic Lodge had charge of the funeral service which took place at Boise, Idaho. The body was laid to rest in the World War Veterans' Rest plot in Boise cemetery.

Mr. McGee made many friends while in Wayne who are grieved to learn of his death. He was one of the young men who always took the right attitude in regard to everything. He had the good fortune to have to work his way through school and no one could have shown greater interest in his work and the general welfare of the school that did Milo. He always thought of the school as home, and was a welcome visitor to students and faculty who knew him.

LINES IN LATE MARCH

I whistle; why not?
Have I not seen the first strips of green winding up the sloughs?
Have I not heard the meadow-lark?
I have looked into soft blue skies and have been uplifted!

Where are the doubts and the dark ideas I entertained?
What have I caught from the maple-buds that changes me?
Or was it the meadow-lark or the blue sky—or the strips of green?
The green that winds up the sloughs?

I sought the dark and found much of it.
Is there in truth much darkness?
Have the meadow-larks lied to me?
Have the green grass and the blue sky testified falsely?

I want to trust the sky and the grass!
I want to believe the songs I hear from the fence-posts!
Why should a maple-bud mislead me?
—John G. Neherdt.

EDITORIALS TAKEN FROM THE GOLDENROD

There is an incident in the rather dramatic career of Judge Ben Lindsey that shows very nicely the loyalty of the "kids" to the "Jedge".

Some time ago one of his charges confided in the judge. He was later haled into another court on a criminal charge. Mr. Lindsey's "friends" subpoenaed him and tried to force him to divulge the confidential talk.

When the "kids" heard that the "Jedge" was in trouble they saved up their pennies and paid the fine themselves. Yes, it seems indeed that "Loyalty is the thing and we must only direct it into the right channels."

When any group of people engaged in one occupation is asked to widen its scope and include some other occupation, the group instead of accepting the innovation will generally put it on probation, so to speak, in place of treating it as the others. This is what has happened to "athletics" in schools.

When our barbaric ancestors huddled over the horizon into an astonished Roman world the outraged Latins may have felt some of the indignation that now finds its home in the breast of Henry Cabot Lodge.

The gradual shifting and disappearance of party lines which has been going on since the Progressive year of 1912, comes plainly into sight in the Nebraska primary of this year.

ON THE WEATHER (From the Goldenrod)

Every year people speak wonderingly of the lateness of the spring. Certainly it is late. It was late last year and the year before; the year before that it was extraordinarily late.

With the unquenchable optimism that has saved man, the reasoning animal, from the bitterness of his logic and led him on to each new step in his long journey to the stars, mankind awaits the spring.

Is it due to this innate optimism that we attribute all pleasant things to climate, the permanent, and all unpleasant things to weather, the impermanent? If we have pleasant weather it is due to the climate.

Man rules the planet because he, of all the animals, is the best adjusted to his environment. He is so well adjusted to weather that, were it abolished, not only civilization but the race would perish.

AS WE WERE SAYING

The "mediaeval mind" is often mentioned when any particularly mediaeval thing happens. We can't say that the mediaeval mind has yet disappeared. The mediaeval mind moves in a circle the center of which is itself.

According to science, man is an inferior animal. If a man were as strong as an ant he could lift 120 tons. On that basis, if a man's leg muscles were as well developed as a grasshopper's, he could jump clear across the state of Nebraska.

was gasping—she seemed to want air—then, with a loud cough, she turned over once, and died. It was terrible. The two men who were bending over her body straightened up and gazed into each other's eyes.

They were not handsome men, no, far from it. Both wore old ragged clothes which were covered with grease and dirt. The shorter of the two men looked as if he might be a foreigner, while both, of them had a brutal appearance.

"You've killed her," cried one. "No, I did not. You did, you know you did. You choked her," accused the other.

"Turn her over," commanded the first. "I will not—she's dead, I tell you," cried the other.

It seems the two mechanics are quite angry because "Grandma" Johnson, Dr. Johnson's car, which everyone calls "Grandma" on account of her age, refuses to run.

We gasp, as we watch the train bear down upon the speeding automobile whose driver apparently neither hears nor heeds the warning signal. The train and the car arrive at the crossing at precisely the same moment. On the impact the train is thrown some three hundred yards while the driver of the motor car laughs derisively at the hopeless train and speeds on into the distance.

Have you heard the expression "That person is mediaeval minded," and then walked away wondering just what the speaker meant? Does "Mediaeval minded" mean narrow minded? We think that it does not in its strictest sense but rather think that being "mediaeval minded" consists of these things: attempts to suppress free thinking, opposition to new things because they are new, and failure to see any reason in the other man's view whether the truth be known or not.

A law before the State Legislature of New Jersey to standardize thought concerning some very prominent characters of American history and prohibiting the teaching of any facts of a type that the legislature considers degrading, seems to us an indication of the mediaeval.

The Ku Klux Klan, basing its power upon the supernatural, the symbolism, and the superstitions of mediaeval times, flourishes in many parts of the United States. Surely this is mediaevalism. Again the "personal right" theory on the prohibition issue carries us back to mediaeval times.

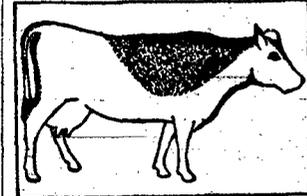

We wonder what would happen to a playwright if his villain didn't wear a mis-placed eyebrow under his nose. If his hero had hair that became disarranged. If his vamp didn't have a willowy figure, outlandish clothes and an Eastern squint to her eyes.

In short we wonder what would happen if a playwright used realistic characters? Answer: Eugene O'Neil.

The DAIRY

RAW LINSEED OIL IS BEST TO KILL LICE

The little red lice or biting lice of cattle are common to young and mature animals alike. They do not suck the blood of the host but feed upon loose scales of the skin and portions of the hair. Their multiplication is favored more by the dry, scaly skin of the cow than by any other condition.

Illustrating the Parts of a Cow Most Liable to Infestations With Lice.

Effective control measures must be directed against the lice during the period after they are hatched from the eggs and before they mature and start the egg-laying process. Any substance that will destroy the eggs will be injurious to the skin of the animal. Any substance that is poisonous to the cow should not be used.

The raw oil is not poisonous. Only a small amount is required for each cow, one pint being sufficient to treat four or five cows. It is not injurious to the hide of the animal but will kill the lice.

The raw linseed oil may be supplied with a stiff brush when the cows are being cleaned or groomed. Treatment should begin in the fall and early winter before the lice become numerous. The second application of the oil should be made in 12 to 18 days.

The boiled linseed oil is not recommended because there is more danger of its blistering the hide. When using the raw oil, precaution should be used not to rub the hide too strenuously when applying as burns may result.

Improper Feeding Cause of Trouble With Calves

Scours in calves may be due to over-feeding, irregular feeding, feeding cold milk, sour milk, dirty milk, use of unsanitary feeding pails, etc., says J. P. LaMaster, chief of the dairy division at Clemson college, who makes the following suggestions for treatment:

- 1. For ordinary scours, as soon as symptoms are observed, omit one feeding and reduce next feeding to half, and then gradually bring up to original quantity. In case the disease becomes obstinate, give from 1 1/2 to 2 tablespoonfuls of castor oil, repeating the dose on the second day if necessary.

Calf Will Learn to Eat Hay Very Early in Life

A calf will learn to eat hay very early in life, and it should be clean and leafy and replaced often with fresh hay. In ten days or two weeks it may be taught to eat grain. It is often easily started by placing some oats or ground barley on its wet nose and will soon be eating from a box or dish. It is a great mistake to allow grain or feed to stand before it, as the feed soon becomes soiled and sour.

Taxicab Driver Proves Chivalry Is Not Dead

"Don't offer me money, lady—it's so long since I have been a hero," said a taxicab driver, proving thereby that chivalry has not died. The girl was dressed to impress a possible employer—that is, in her best. She had been job-hunting, and a sudden rainstorm left her marooned in an office building on a Fifth avenue corner.

"Get up; get up, miss," said the driver, beginning to look frightened. "I've gotta take this cab around to the garage." "I can't get up," said the girl. "You'll hafta get up," said the driver sternly. "I can't stay here all night—that cop is telling me to move on now."

Quintana Roo Better Than Its Name Sounds

Quintana Roo left a bad taste in the mouths of Mexicans in the days of Porfirio Diaz because it was principally known as the place to which political offenders and "bad Indians," mainly from Sonora, were sent to do time and die in its unhealthy climate. But now comes a report telling of the vast natural resources of this practically unknown territory of 18,000 square miles, comprising the eastern part of the peninsula of Yucatan and extending about 300 miles north and south.

Of the some 9,000 inhabitants of the territory, 2,500 live in Santa Cruz de Bravo, the capital. Transportation to the interior is lacking, but the recent arrival of an American caterpillar tractor has given the more enterprising coast residents visions of a speedy development.

Life in a Dead Hand

The dead hand is often a busy little mitt in these days of speedy finance. It works a full 24 hours in the day and brings results. We refer to mortmain in a broad sense as signifying funds functioning "on their own," as it were, without the disturbing influence of human timidity and eccentricities.

At the present time most of the estate has been distributed, but there are still possibilities of further gains by a kind of retroactivity of the power of money. The proverbial green bay tree has nothing on funds that are wisely placed, in wise control, by those who, realizing their end is near, wish to make wisest provision for their heirs.

Mountain Has 20,000 Deer

Despite the isolated and inaccessible character of Kaibab plateau of northern Arizona, it is one of the most beautiful in the United States, and it is in fact a mountain with 20,000 deer. Nowhere else in the United States can the same number of deer be found in an equal area, says the Detroit News.

The game preserve is thirty-five to forty-five miles in extent, and the deer are free to roam throughout this immense territory. Its isolation has helped the government to keep the hunters away. When the preserve was established in 1906 it was estimated that the area contained about 3,000 deer. An estimate made by representatives of the United States biological survey and forest service in 1923, after an extensive survey of the area, places the present number at 20,000.

Egyptian Flag Changed

The familiar red and white colors of the Egyptian flag have disappeared. By edict of the king the symbolic white crescent and three stars remain, but green has been substituted for the red background. Green is the color entitled to be worn by those who have accomplished the pilgrimage to Mecca.

She Was Playing the Game

By ELLA SAUNDERS (© 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

KATHLEEN looked around the little shabby hall bedroom that she was so soon to leave forever. Her suitcase was packed, and it contained all her worldly possessions. The only other thing she had of value was her face—her beauty.

"She surveyed herself in the glass. 'For Sale' she thought bitterly. Well, why not? After those three years of struggle and poverty in the city—why not, when Ellis loved her?" Mechanically she picked up a letter lying on the table. She must not leave it there. She was growing careless. She read it once again:

"I'll call for you at nine tonight and we'll be on our way West by midnight." Ellis loved her. He was employed in the same office with her. He was manager of a department. He had had an offer of a better post in California. He had five thousand dollars a year in his present position, and he had money saved. Yes, it was a good thing for her.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Jameson, but about that week's rent in advance," she began. "You leaving so sudden—" "Oh, yes, Mrs. Toms," said Kathleen, taking up her purse. She paid the landlady. "I wouldn't ask for it, God knows, Miss Jameson, if things wasn't so hard," said Mrs. Toms. "But you know how it is."

"Say, hard ain't the word, Miss Jameson! And what with four children to bring up, and my husband God knows where! It's often I'm tempted just to go off somewhere and get a job and leave them all." "But of course you wouldn't do that."

"Well, I guess not. But—you'll understand, Miss Jameson, there was a time, just after little Charlie was born—I was younger-looking then than I am now, and considered pretty. And there was a gentleman—" Mrs. Toms put a corner of her apron to her eyes and began to cry.

"Why—I guess I'm glad on the whole, Miss Jameson," answered Mrs. Toms. "I like sometimes to think of it, when I'm feeling low, and to picture what might have been. But I guess there wouldn't have been no real happiness in it. You can't get happiness that way. It's all a sort of game, this living, and one's got to play it. And I've played it."

"Well, I'm sure I'm thankful to you for that money, Miss Jameson," she said. "And of course you understand how it is." "Oh, quite, quite," answered Kathleen. She was standing in the middle of the floor, her hands clenched. In that moment she was making the decision of her life. A game! To play or not to play?

"Oh, Mrs. Toms?" "Miss Jameson?" "If my friend calls for me this evening, tell him I'm gone and that I'll write to him." But she knew that she would never write.

Worth the Effort

When retired ministers get together they frequently fall to discussing sermons they have preached. Two Scotch Presbyterians just over from Scotland met at a church service recently and during the conversation one of them stated that when he first entered the ministry he delivered a sermon three hours in length. "Mon, weren't you tired before you had finished?" asked the other. "Sure," the other answered, "but I woulda done your heart good to see how tired the people were."—Columbus Dispatch.

Chickens have no ring fingers. The bones of the bird's hand or wing are three in number; those corresponding to the little finger and the ring finger of the human hand being absent.

LITTLE THINGS THAT BREAK INTO PAPERS

D. C. Patterson, who was one of the democratic candidates for U. S. senator, and a son-in-law of Mrs. Gamble of this place, was twice fined in Omaha last season for permitting sumac to grow on a vacant lot in Omaha. He has appealed from the lower court to the supreme court on the ground that the sumac is a shrub, and not a weed, which is the way the court classed it; and he is marshaling evidence to prove the truth of his contention. Well, a rose would smell as sweet by any other name, and a weed might not be more of a nuisance than the sumac. We cannot say—and perhaps the judges at Lincoln may fail to agree.

Coolidge led in the primary in Michigan over Johnson by a vote of practically 2 to 1. Henry Ford was a slight leader over W. N. Ferris in the democratic race for presidential preference.

The pay of railroad men has been increased $50,000,000 annually on western lines, which might mean additional freight charges. But what's a million a week, if it goes to a good cause? The people pay the freight.

In Illinois the fight was strong between the two republican candidates for governor, Len Small, present governor, and Thurlow G. Essington. The fight between Coolidge and Johnson was an open question before the votes were counted. McAdoo had no candidate opposed to him, but there was a strong movement for "non-preference" delegates, led by Geo. E. Brennan, the state's democratic chieftain.

MORE CORN AND HOGS THIS YEAR'S PROGRAM IN NORTHEASTERN WYOMING

From now on we will probably see more corn and hogs and do some of the feeding in our country, observed E. J. Vore, of Vore and Sons, Beulah, Wyo., who was in Omaha Monday with two loads of 200 pound hogs good enough to bring $7.20. "Very little cattle feeding has been done so far, but the range business is dying a natural death, and I have five loads of steers that I will put on feed next fall if I get a good crop of corn."

A new state bank has been organized at Pflger, following the failure of the national bank at that place. The new bank is to be one of the Folda chain of state banks, of which this makes the 5th or 6th. Emil Folda is to be at the head of the concern.

WITH THE WAYNE CHURCHES

Methodist Episcopal Church

The pastor has decided to give another sermon in the series "This Present World" next Sunday morning under the theme "A World Embracing Program."

Remember our Church is cooperating in the Evangelistic meetings at the Community House; so there will be no preaching at our house of worship next Sunday night and no mid-week meeting next week. Let's all turn out and help boost the revival.

Three persons were baptized, one received the preparatory membership; five into full membership and four by certificate of transfer at the service last Sunday morning. We welcome them all.

Our District Superintendent, Dr. E. D. Hull, will be with us to hold our second-third session of the quarterly conference at the church Monday night, April 14th., at 8:00 o'clock.

The Epworth League contest for membership and attendance begun last Sunday night. All of our young people are invited to enter into this. Envelopes will be given out next Sunday morning at the Sunday school and preaching service for the Easter week offering to the benevolent work of the church.

Mr. D. E. Brainard will be the four minute speaker next Sunday morning, speaking on the Goodwill Industries of the Church.

Have you ever thought of the changes that have taken place, and are taking place in our New England? Time was when this part of our country furnished the sinews of strength for much of the rest of our domain. This was true in religious concerns as well as in other matters. Using Methodist history in illustration:—From New England came the founders of Methodist Missions in Africa, South America, India and Mexico. In Boston our W. F. M. S. was organized by a handful of women a little over fifty years ago. One has recently affirmed "Jason Lee a Methodist pioneer missionary, with the group he led in the great Northwest, determined the holding of the Oregon country to the United States in her contest with Canada and that the financial results of that victory would have more than endowed all the colleges of Methodism." Another has said "New England soil may be sterile, her farms rocky, her hill sides bleak, her output poor, but as yet she has never failed in her crop of men." But today New England has 4.9 per cent of illiteracy; running as high as 12 per cent among her foreign born. Southern New England is fast becoming an vast city, with a population as dense as that of Belgium. 62 per cent of her population today are either foreign-born or of foreign-born, or mixed parentage. For many decades agriculture was the leading occupation in New England. Today agriculture has given over its primacy to industry; resulting in many abandoned farms. In Massachusetts 95 per cent of the population lives in cities. In Connecticut 85 per cent. These changes have brought vast problems—civic, economic, social and religious—which must be solved if New England civilization is to be kept from a deterioration which will be a menace to the rest of the Republic.

some of them. (1) If you begin the day with prayer you will go forth to your daily task with a cheerful heart. (2) You will have strength to meet the discouragements and disappointments that may fall to your lot. (3) The family altar will sweeten home life and enrich home relations as nothing else can do. With the advent of spring weather Coach Brown's diamond artists are beginning to take their regular workouts on the diamond at the Fair Grounds, and are slowly rounding in to shape for their first game, Friday, April 18, which is to be played at Winside. The work being given consists mainly of hitting practice, coupled with a little fielding practice, and a few of the fundamentals of baseball are being taught the team. With the first of the week, Coach Brown hopes to have his proteges in full swing, and his regulars, at least, tentatively picked. The team is using the town team suits, but still are short a few, and would appreciate it a great deal if anyone could give the Coach or members of the team any information regarding more suits.

Coach Brown, has arranged for a few games, with the following teams; Winside, Coleridge, Wakefield, and perhaps, Allen, Creighton and Bloomfield.

The team is beginning to look good, and should show a good brand of baseball. It is hard to pick who the regulars will be but there are a number of good men in school, who seem to be able to smack the pill on the nose.

Congressman Hull of Iowa in making a minority report of the committee on military affairs in relation to the Ford Muscle Shoals offer, opposes the majority report favoring the acceptance of that offer on the ground that:

"We do not favor acceptance of the Muscle Shoals offer of Henry Ford embodied in the committee bill for the following principal reasons:

"In our opinion it amounts to a gift of enormous property and industrial advantage to a private citizen from the resources of the United States. No government and especially no democracy, can single out for special favor any individual or group of individuals without grave wrong, injustice, and scandal.

"We do not think it just or wise or proper for a government to bestow largess upon individuals, no matter how great or good or beneficent or efficient they may be.

"The Government has constructed works of tremendous value and importance at Muscle Shoals. They represent an investment of more than $135,000,000. This is the actual cost to the taxpayers of the United States."

And yet, Congressman Hull being from Iowa, is surely republican, and as such it may be assumed and assured that he voted for the present tariff law, and if that does not amount to a gift enormous property and industrial advantage to private citizens from the resources of the United States, which that the gentleman says he objects to. Then why did he vote to let the manufacturer take from the other people in excessive process that which they owned? Is it more wise or proper to take from the people uncounted millions and bestow upon the privileged class than to take from the natural resources of the country and let an individual or corporation use it for the benefit of all of the people? We hardly think so. If the Iowa Congressman believes as he says he does he certainly voted against his convictions when he voted for a protective tariff.

SPECIFIC GRAVITY OF EGGS

There has been considerable interest shown in weighing eggs in water to determine their specific gravity before being set. Prof. Frank E. Muesel, Nebraska College of Agriculture, has made a study of the influence of specific gravity of hens eggs on fertility, hatching power and growth of chicks. Mr. Muesel writes:

"Our conclusions based on a close observation of 985 eggs and the subsequent growth of one lot of 150 chicks hatched are as follows:

"(1) There is little correlation between specific gravity, fertility, and hatchability of hens' eggs.

"(2) The specific gravity of the egg has no relation to the vitality of the chicks hatched or to its growth rate the first five weeks after hatching.

"(3) Variations in the thickness of the shell are more likely to influence the specific gravity of eggs than are variations in protein or fat content."

BRICK-BATS

Elijah Brown had great ideas, to rise above the herd. He wished to pull off mighty deals and make his ideas heard. He started working in a store, and found the work was hard and soon he wearied of his chore. He gave up cheese and lard. And then he tried to till the soil, and found it was no snap, so figured that a farmer's toll was only for a sap. He tried to be an auctioneer, but there he failed once more, but still he knew success was near, but at another door. He took up the wholesale game; advancement was too slow; besides the job was far to tame, and soon he had to go. Most everything discouraged him and nothing seemed to fit. Success began to flicker dim; he couldn't make a hit. He watched the men up at the top, and wished that he could rise to mighty heights at just one hop, and get a job his size. But life demands a long hard test, to prove our service fit, before it gives us of the best; and drops us if we quit.—Brick Smith.

Creosoted Fence Posts Last for Many Years

The fact that wood is becoming scarce and labor more expensive is causing farmers to seek means of making their fence posts last longer, says the New York Times. Experimenters have shown that creosote will solve the problem, according to the New Jersey College of Agriculture.

Prof. E. R. Gross of the college states that fence posts treated in creosote will last three to five times as long as untreated posts, this being especially true of the softer varieties such as willow, ash, elm, soft maple, white cedar and cottonwood. Many consider it inadvisable, however, to creosote the harder woods, including oak, red cedar and chestnut.

The college recommends the use of round posts for creosoting, rather than split posts, as the penetration will be more uniform. All bark must be stripped off and the timber well seasoned before creosoting.

"Creosote eight to ten inches above the depth to which the post is to be set since most rotting takes place at or just below the ground line," says Dr. Gross. "Posts three or four inches in diameter at the top give best results, as they are strong enough for most purposes and usually last as long as larger posts. It is important to get thorough and deep penetration of the creosote. A good vat is made of an old steel barrel set over a roughly constructed furnace. The creosote is kept at the boiling point and each batch of posts is left in the vat about two hours, depending on the rapidity of penetration. One inch penetration should be obtained. In order to determine this a post may be split or sawed in two. The tops of the posts should either be dipped or painted with hot creosote. A farmer having a wood lot may well spend a few days this winter cutting posts. Next winter these posts will be properly seasoned for creosoting."

Cornstarch Industry In America Is Enormous

The manufacture of cornstarch has grown to such proportions in this country that the industry now consumes about 50,000,000 bushels of America's great crop each year, according to the Department of Agriculture at Washington. From each bushel of corn the average manufacturer makes thirty-three tons of cornstarch, and in 1921 the ten largest concerns made nearly 1,850,000,000 pounds of this product, which was more than 90 per cent of the total produced that year.

This industry, which began in the United States in 1844, has been growing rapidly in recent years. By 1880 the factories had reached a productive capacity of 230,000,000 pounds, and practically all of it was consumed here. By 1921 there were nearly 50 plants, and $8,000,000 worth of the output was exported. These figures are from a report recently made public by the department following a canvass of the industry.

"This department, through the bureau of chemistry, which enforces the food and drugs act, finds that cornstarch, with the possible exception of granulated sugar, is the least adulterated of all food products appearing on the markets," continues the department. "In addition to being used for food, it is also used for many technical purposes.

"In the food industry cornstarch finds its greatest use as a basis for the manufacture of corn syrup or glucose, about one-half of that produced in 1921 having been used for that purpose. It is employed by confectioners in making gumdrops; by housewives and chefs in thickening sauces and making custards. Confectioners also use it for forms into which soft candy is poured in making bonbons. Large quantities are used in the manufacture of baking powder and pie fillers. It is also an important ingredient in cosmetics and pastes, and is used to a limited extent in pharmaceutical preparations."

Composer of "The Rosary"

Ethelbert Nevin composed "The Rosary." He was born in Vineacre, near Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1862. He began to attract attention when ten years old by his excellent piano playing and when he was twelve he was sent to Dresden, Germany, to study.

After returning from Germany he settled in Boston and became a well-known teacher and concert player, but in 1893 the "Charm of Europe, especially Italy, was too strong to be resisted, and the next seven years were spent abroad, says the Detroit News. The influence of southern Europe is very evident in the dreamy, romantic tone of much of his later music. In 1900 he became a music instructor at Yale university and was in this work when stricken with heart failure. He died in 1901.

Few modern composers have excelled Nevin in perfection of melody, critics say. While "The Rosary" is his masterpiece, "Narcissus" has received no small amount of popularity. Other compositions by Nevin are "Water Sketches," "Day in Venice" and "Twins April."

Oldest Known Will

The oldest known will, found among the ruins of ancient Egypt and said to be 4,500 years old, was so constructed that its provisions would have to be carried out if made today, William O. Taylor, formerly recorder of wills, said in a talk on "Wills," delivered at the luncheon of the Newcomers club in the City club of Washington.

HOW SHE FOUND ANOTHER LOVER

By JENNIE LITTLE

(C. 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THE engine seemed to snort disdainfully as it stopped at the miniature station, waited impatiently for one passenger to alight, then hastened on across the prairie in search of a happier destination. As the train receded that passenger took a quick step toward it, as if, after all, an unloved friend was better than none, but the black smoke waved a decisive farewell against the sky. She scanned the horizon anxiously and a great relief surged into her eyes as a horseman came galloping through the dust.

"Bart!" she called with shy eagerness as he dismounted. "I was so afraid you hadn't—oh, I beg your pardon—I thought—"

The rider, lifting a shabby hat, spoke deprecatingly. "I take it you're Miss Linda Gale from Newbury. Bart—couldn't come. Business called him away—asked me to look after you till he gets back. I'm Alvin Lovell, a rancher, too. Can you ride?"

Linda mounted awkwardly. "I hope you won't be too much set back," he said worriedly at the end of her ride, "if things don't look just as you planned."

Her face worked as she viewed the shabby shack. "I wouldn't mind—if only Bart were here. Won't Bart be back tonight?" she cried with a quick intake of breath. "He said the minister would meet us and we would be married right away."

He shook his head unwillingly. "I guess he can't be back that soon. Will you be afraid? There's no neighbors, but I'll be out in that shed, and will hear you if you speak."

A wave of homesickness engulfed her. "I don't know how I can stand it without Bart."

Six wakeful nights the girl lay and wondered. Six days she waited, helped by Lovell to cook their meals and explore the ranch. In spite of all, she grew to love the rolling wheat fields, the friendly cattle and horses, and even overcame her fear of the saddle, blushing at his hearty praise. Yet she held aloof coldly from his quiet friendliness, even though she could not help noting his great kindness to every living creature about the place.

Then a tempest came. Rain poured in torrents. Thunder crashed like besieging cannon. Fall battered ruthlessly. Lovell, hurrying from the field, found her at the breaking point.

"I won't stand it any longer," she shrieked hysterically. "You don't explain about Bart. Why didn't he leave me a letter? Why doesn't he write now, or come? How do I know but you killed him for his money?"

"I'll put you straight about that," said a hard voice. "It's what I've come 18 miles for."

They turned in astonishment to the woman, drenched, disheveled, who had entered unheard in the noise of the storm. She sneered at the girl.

"Bart Thorn tried to make you think he loved you and could give you a happy, comfortable home, didn't he? He's a slinking, yellow coyote, who would rob and desert his dying mother. I've been his wife for eight years, and I know. Two years ago he went East for special reasons. Tain't always healthy for thieves to stay too long in the same climate. That's when he found you. And that's when he planned to get you here, take what money you'd saved, and abuse you a while for pleasure, probably, before he was through. He even bragged about it to me. Then when you started, he found you had nothing. The day before you was due, Alvin, here, found him drunk on the track, and the 5:20 due. He took him home, staying the night to help me. And for saving his worthless life, Bart got up before morning, stole every cent Alvin was taking to the bank, and skipped—on Alvin's horse. And when Alvin heard about you, he walked these 18 miles, got another horse, and went to bring you here, his own ranch; for the one Bart claimed isn't paid for, and I never know what day I'll be without a roof over my head. Since then you know what he's done for you—you know what sort he is. But have you appreciated it? I'll bet not! Now, do you still love Bart?"

The girl spoke like a somnambulist whom some one had rudely shaken awake. "I guess—'twas mostly the idea of getting away from the narrow life I had. I never had anyone to care about me, and he made me think he did. My sickness took all my money, except enough to buy a ticket. How can I ever get back?"

Lovell lifted a grave face. "Miss Gale, I've just been keeping this from you till I could scrape money enough for your return fare. I figured you would be less miserable if you was looking forward to something as long as you had to stay, even if you did worry. But I'll try and borrow the money tomorrow. It goes hard to have you misjudge and hate me, for you see, I've loved you mighty hard from the first."

He turned away, but the girl stepped before him with that same intent, newly awakened, look. "Why," she faltered bravely, "if it's any trouble to get that money, you can just—just get enough for the license and minister, for—I think I'd like to stay."

His arms reached out, and even the grim face of the older woman seemed to soften, as the truant sun burst again through the clouds and filled the shack with flaming glory.
