WAYNE SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 7

Everything in Readiness for Opening Day. School Building in Perfect Repair and Improved.

One finds so much to commend of what has been done during the vacation time to perfect the little defects that had developed in the school property as to scarcely know where to begin. The seventeen years since the fine high school building was erected have brought so many changes in the requirements now exacted that the board did the wise thing to make the building meet every requirement in the matter of sanitation and safety.

L. A. Fanske a new member of the board, was placed at the head of the building committee, and he and others of the committee have given generously of time and careful study to the matter in hand, with the result that the old building is like new.

Inspectors said that a new and better fire escape should be provided, a modern one is in place—one of the best made. They feared that the wiring was not as it should be for safety—and that work has been put in perfect shape. The doors—some of them swung the wrong way—and they have been hung as they should be, and panic bars installed so that the doors cannot be locked or blocked by a rush from the inside. These things recommended have been put in order.

But the work did not stop there. The entire building has been treated to a coat of paint, inside and out. The furniture, including desks and chairs have been varnished new. The concrete basement floor has a new dressing until it shines like new. The toilets and lockers are in the best of shape; and Janitor Pete Hinkel, who did much to put things in such immaculate condition will see that they are kept that way—for he is an expert in his line.

Time and weather had decayed much of the window sash on the north front of the building, and in supplying new sash windows of smaller glass has been substituted, a matter of economy, especially should another hail storm drive along that way. Four or six smaller glass cost far less than a single large one covering the same space. Some of the plastered ceilings had become loose and unsafe, and steel ceiling were placed in two such rooms, making four rooms now finished in this manner. A new flag staff has been erected, the old one having become so weakened that a heavy wind might cause it to break. The roof and chimney have had some needed repair work, and, in fact, it looks like a perfect finish.

The Instructors

A full force of instructors have been engaged; many of them of other years here. Some new faces will be found in the group when they meet Saturday to perfect plans for the year work. Farmer Superintendent Jacobson, having been called to a school superintendency in a larger place at a greater salary, he was released, and from among the many applicants for the place made vacant, the board decided to secure the services of T. S. Hook of Whiting, Iowa, his old home, who he had not been in school work there for some years. Mr. Hook had been teaching at Eureka, Nevada, and had been re-elected there for a second year, but asked release when offered the position here. They moved in last week, and are living in a B. W. Wright house at 9th and Window streets.

Below we give the list of teachers and their place as reported: Minnie Will, Kindergarten. Cora A. Potras, 1st grade. Lulu Waite, 2nd grade. Helen Spahr, 4th grade. Mary A. Tyrrell, 5th grade. Marsaline Lewis, 7th grade. Mrs. E. E. Fisher, Supervisor Junior High.

CRADLE

PRINCE—Monday, August 31, 1925, to Robert L. Prince and wife a son at Winside.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH IMPROVED

Repairing the roof so that it is not likely to leak with the rains we are all wishing for, the good folks of the Baptist faith have been busy for a week sicking and cleaning up the inside. The walls have been cleaned and tinted, the woodwork brightened following a wholesome cleaning, so that the interior presents a much neater appearance than for several years—for until the cause could be removed, as the Chiropractors say, the disease of stain and dirt could not be more than given temporary relief.

The work is practically finished now, and the delegates and visitors who are coming to attend the district convention here this week will not have to listen to any apologies as to the appearance of the church, for it looks fine.

CONRAD FREVERT, PIONEER, DIED WEDNESDAY EVENING

This morning news came to Wayne of the death of Conrad Frevert, at age of nearly 91 years. He had been living on the old home place with his son Carl, ten miles southeast of Wayne, where they settled when coming to this county in 1884—forty-one years ago.

His funeral service will be first from the home at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and an hour later from the German Lutheran church at Wayne. Salem church of which he was long a member in undergoing repair, so that it cannot be used. His pastor, Rev. Fischer will preach in German and Rev. Teckhaus of the Wayne church will speak in the English language, and burial will be at Greenwood cemetery in this city.

He was long a prominent figure in the community, and retained his mental faculties and physical vigor to a remarkable degree. He was up and about the house at will, but contracted a slight cold a few days ago, which annoyed him with coughing, until the tired body was exhausted. We hope to have a fitting obituary for publication next week. A daughter and four sons survive him.

GUESTS OF THE GORST-OMAN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Savidge of Omaha sister and brother-in-law of the groom, who were here to attend the wedding, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hiseox during their stay here. They left Thursday and motored to their home. Madam Laure de Vilmar was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Jones while in the city to attend and sing at the wedding. She left by auto for her home at Lincoln Thursday forenoon.

Mrs. O. O. Hager and children Gordon, Loreen, Dale and Junior were entertained at the J. J. Ahern home during their visit, and left by car for Lincoln Thursday.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Kilburn from McCook, who was the officiating clergyman, left early Thursday morning, and drove the entire distance of more than 300 miles to their home that day.

The wedding party was entertained Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Jones.

MOVIE MEN MEET AT WAYNE TUESDAY

Tuesday afternoon a part of the men running movie picture shows in this corner of Nebraska met with E. E. Garley at Wayne to tell their experiences and give and take ideas as to the best methods of handling a lot of questions. September 1 is a sort of beginning of the season with the motion picture men, when folks are getting home from vacations and settling down to enjoy life at home.

Among those present were Larson of Laurel, Cremer from Stanton, Bopner from Madison, Roppe from Bismarck, and Larsen Brothers from Creighton. C. E. Williams, president of the organization of motion picture men of the state, also met with the members here.

MRS. FRANK PANABAKER DIES AT OMAHA

A former resident of Wayne, but a resident of late years at Sidney, passed away Friday, August 28, 1925, at an Omaha hospital following an operation for gall troubles. She was daughter of E. B. Chichester and the body was taken to her Sidney home for burial, her father going from here to accompany the body home.

LEGION CARNIVAL OPENS TONIGHT

With Every Thing Ready the American Legion Carnival Starts a Three-night Series of Sport.

If you want a really jolly time any of the remaining nights of this week, or all of them, plan to attend the American Legion carnival which opens at the Community house this evening, and continues three evenings.

The Legioniers have carefully provided many of the most popular carnival attractions—attractions too numerous to mention. If the wedding stunt is to take place, we have not heard who will be the happy couple.

One of the amusements will be dancing, the six-piece Barbary Coast Orchestra being engaged for the season, and they are said to be the equal of most of the orchestras.

Last evening the Legion drum and bugle corps went to Wakefield on a bit of advertising campaign, and joined the Wakefield band in their weekly concert. They will play at the carnival here evenings. Come for a really jolly time.

THE BRESSLER REUNION

GREAT CROWDS AT BRIDGE OPENING TUESDAY

W. C. Andrews, who was among those who attended the bridge opening Tuesday near Wheeler, South Dakota, tells us that it was no place to get lonesome. Great crowds were there from both sides of the river, and from Nebraska. Bette of this state and a dozen other towns near and far had handsome floats expressing their appreciation of the bridging of the Missouri, making a "gateway" between the two parts of the state and the two states. It has long been a needed improvement. For years the river was not bridged between Sioux City and Bismarck, and within a year two bridges have been opened, and others are building.

Mr. Andrews tells us that there are six spans to this bridge, and that it is about 50 feet above the water, enabling boats that ply the upper river to pass under. On one side a long approach has had to be graded, and on the other, a cut had to be made in the bluff to get a way off the bridge. The crowd was estimated at 25,000, and many crossed the bridge, which is about 1,600 feet in length.

There are no large towns near the bridge site—in fact, really no town at all until one goes some distance back.

One happy experience for the occasion was two showers of rain, each shedding about one inch of water; but so dry was it there, that all were glad to see it, even though it caused a wetting and mud to drive home in but the territory covered did not extend far to the south at least.

MONDAY NEXT GOLF PLAY BEGINS

Much Interest Shown in Coming Tournament. A Banquet to Visitors. $200 in Prizes.

The Fifth Annual Tournament of the Wayne Country club will get under way next Monday morning and a great crowd of out of town golfers are expected by the local club.

A special group have been working this week on the local course to put it in fine tournament shape. The greens of the course have been watered steadily during the dry period and are now in the best condition they have ever been since the local course was established.

The prizes for the tournament are the best ever offered by the local club. Most of these prizes have been donated by the manufacturers of golf sundries and local merchants. They comprise the following:

- 6 dozen Golf Balls.
- 2 fine Golf bags.
- 2 Putters.
- 1 Driver.
- 1 Brassie.
- 1 Silver cup.
- 1 Oakwood Rain Jacket.
- 1 Durable Captive.
- 1 Pair Tailored-to-order Knickers.
- 1 Special package of Tees.
- 1 pair Golf Oxfords.

The above list comprises about $200 worth of prizes. They will be on display at Morgan's Toggery the last of the week.

The following special Committees have been appointed to put the finishing touches on the tournament:

- Local Entries and Banquet tickets:— Carl Wright, chairman. Joe Nuss. Clyde Oman. Roy Ehlers.
- Banquet:— J. J. Ahern, chairman. C. M. Craven. R. B. Judson. H. B. Jones. Caddies:— W. C. Hunter. Tents and Showers:— C. M. Craven, chairman. John Ahern. Wm. Beckenhauer. C. H. Fisher. P. A. Theobald. Concessions:— P. A. Theobald.

Among the out of town entries will be five former Northeast Nebraska Champions, Wm. Reckert, B. M. Beeler, D. T. McKinnon, Dr. L. L. Nelson, and Geo. Christoph all of Norfolk. Besides these a number of others will be over from Norfolk. From Fremont Chas. Marr will head a party of strong contenders. Sioux City will probably be represented by Cateon McLaughlin and Wm. McCullough. The Russell family father and two sons will be here from Omaha. Hartington, Randolph, Stanton, Laurel and Pender as well as out Wakefield neighbors will of course be here.

CHAS. RUBECK SELLS HOME

A deal was closed this week by which Chas. Rubeck sells his residence and half of his lot on South Main street to Nels Bollen, a farmer from southeast of Wayne, who is retiring from the farm. Possession is to be given late this fall and Mr. Rubeck will at once begin the erection of a house for himself and family on the remaining part of the large lot he owned. The consideration for the property sold was $6,000. This Wayne continues to expand slowly but surely. By the way, there is a lot of properties that might be divided and homes built in desirable parts of the city, if those who do not wish to go out too far and those who have inside lots that will permit of division can agree as to price. More and more are business people coming to the opinion that they can get along with less lawn to care for.

WAYNE MEN HOME FROM CAMP SNELLING

Ed Reynolds, Owen Brainard and Ted Milder are home from a month in training camp at Ft. Snelling. We happened to meet Mr. Reynolds and he told us that they had a very busy as well as happy month. At the camp they combine study with drill, and plenty of either to keep most of the boys going. They also had time for amusement, and had evenings off part of the week, when they could obtain passes and visit the twin cities of St. Paul and Minneapolis, which were but about eight and ten miles from the barracks. Other Wayne men were at Des Moines; but under certain conditions Nebraska men were permitted to elect to go to the Snelling camp. Some 2,000 young men were in the training camp there this year. This was the first year for Reynolds, and the second for Brainard and Milder. Mr. Reynolds says that he wants to go another year, for with the acquaintances made this season and the knowledge acquired he feels confident that next year and the two years following, will surely be as profitable in the way of acquiring knowledge, and as pleasant as the four weeks just closed have been.

He said that the camp life and ration had agreed with him, and that in spite of the hard work himself and others had sustained no loss in weight, and that was true of practically every one in the camp.

NORTHEAST NEBRASKA ASSOCIATION MET AT WAYNE

Wednesday and today the representatives of the Baptists of this part of Nebraska are holding their annual association meeting at the Baptist church of this city. John Grant Shick at 1 o'clock Tuesday, September 1, 1925. They were attended by a brother and sister of the bride and several other relatives. After a wedding trip by auto to points in Iowa they will reside on a farm near Coleridge. The Bible Study Circle met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Ziegler and daughter and studied the Sunday school lesson for next Sunday carefully, and passed a pleasant hour. The meeting next week—Tuesday—will be with Miss Rose Assenheimer.

FAIR INTEREST FAST GROWING

New Buildings for Exhibits and Track and Grand Stand Give Much Interest. Big Exhibit.

These are busy times for those upon whom the responsibility of making our county fair a success has fallen. The new building for the school exhibit is well near completion, paint, stucco and all. The horse barn is nicely started, the foundation being in and most of the grading done. The same is true as to the new grandstand. A cattle barn is doubtless to be added before the fair.

Increasing interest is being shown in making exhibits in all lines. Both horses and cattle from out the county as well as many from within the county are planning to exhibit. The showing of swine will be good and numerous. Sheep and poultry, too are coming in for a share of attention.

On the track, which is practically finished, there will this year be some local races and a day of harness racing. There will also be an exhibition chariot race each day, a dozen thoroughbred animals of Kentucky breeding being engaged as one of the numerous attractions, not all of which are known to the writer at present.

Fairs are going good this year so far as reported, and we feel that Wayne and Wayne county will have an exhibit and attractions the equal of the best.

WALTON LEAGUE HEAD BACKS GAME WARDEN

Support for Chief Game Warden John C. Jenkins in his effort to enforce the game laws of the state, was given by Howard Miller of Battle Creek, president of the state division of the Izaak Walton League of America, in a statement issued today. "One hundred and thirty-three chapters of the Izaak Walton League of America in Nebraska commend the action of Chief Game Warden J. C. Jenkins in his efforts to stop illegal hunting and fishing," said Mr. Miller.

"The Izaak Walton league stands for true sportsmanship, equal rights to all and special privileges to none. We pledge ourselves to do our best to restore for posterity the outdoor America of our ancestors and this pledge has awakened thousands and thousands of principled sportsmen and outdoor lovers to the realization of the perils that are threatening our precious woods and streams, wild animal life, wild fowls and song and game birds and fish.

"This organization of true sportsmen stands for the strictest enforcement of federal and state game laws, so that your boys and girls and their boys and girls and all future generations may have some of the pleasure that we are having at this time. "No man of average intelligence will maliciously violate the game and fish laws of state and nation. It is done only by those who have not given it due thought and consideration.

"Many species of fish and game are becoming extinct and it is up to all true sportsmen to join our organization so that our fish and game may be conserved and increased and our laws judicially enforced."

SAYS PAPERS BIG AID IF USED BY TEACHERS

Newspapers are strong instructive influences in school life, and in developing school spirit, E. S. Hosman, secretary of the Nebraska State Teachers' association, informed 132 county school teachers at the opening of their three-day institute at the court house Tuesday. "Teachers should co-operate with the newspapers to see that the accomplishments of their pupils are published, as this develops personal respect and ambition among the pupils," he declared. "Lessons can be based around cartoon illustrations with which all the children are familiar, in many cases. The health and question columns are invaluable aid to the teacher."

Just so, and the Democrat is sent the entire school year for only $1.00.

that corn will not be a failure, but fortunate in living in sort of oasis.

That is the drouth was not so severe

ed thru a zone of some 100 miles where it seemed to have forgotten to rain, and corn is a failure.

Wm. J. Young of Randolph, who came to Wayne county in 1887, and lived in this county until 1890, when he moved to Randolph, passed away

65 years. He was born at Lone ness acquaintances in the days when he was active in business.

to Lyons the last of last week to begin his sixth school year at that place, four of them when he served in the capacity of superintendent, as he is to do this year. He is a graduate from the Normal school at this place, and has made good in the school at Lyons. His brother James is also a graduate from this Normal and has been teaching at Atkinson, Illinois, going last week to begin his second year as normal training teacher and coach of athletics. He developed a splendid basketball team there last year.

The World-Herald of Monday gave the picture of Marion B. Stahl son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stahl of West Point, who has just been admitted to the bar of the state of Illinois, after graduating with high honors from the law department of the University of Michigan. He is now associated with one of the large law firms of Chicago—a firm representing the Tribune, the Evening Post, the Union Bank and Travelers Insurance Co. of Chicago. The young man's father was and a few weeks ago editor of the Democrat at West Point, and the last time we remember seeing the lad who is now an attorney, he was standing on a box learning to set type in the good old way of the times when every country printing office did not have a machine, and could always use a lad who wanted to learn the ease. Young Stahl won the championship debating contest of the state high schools in 1916 and is a forceful speaker.

Fortner wants poultry and eggs.

The J. J. Vinckel home near Ran-

Not all of the accidents last week were automobile mishaps. Two men near Randolph lost fingers in windmill gears. Chas. Kessler got caught in the gear of a windmill he was adjusting, and cog's do not have much give when grinding fingers. David O'Keefe not far from Carroll had his right hand caught in a gear while oiling the mill. He may not lose the fingers unless infection sets in.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Andrews returned from their outing in Minnesota last week Tuesday night, and report a pleasant time, but that fish-ink was so very bad that it might be said that there was none. This week they have gone to Wheeler to be present at the bridge dedication, that being so near Mr. Andrews' old home that he thinks he will know a large number of the near-home folks who are bound to be there to cross the river dry shod and without a boat.

Miss Dorothy Dalhoff of Sioux Falls South Dakota, Miss Monica Dalhoff of Remson, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ortman and daughter Jeanette Mary of Remson, Iowa, Miss Marie Dalhoff of Sutherland Iowa, Miss Rose Dalhoff and Joseph Dalhoff of Sioux City, were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Purdue the sister of the ladies and of Joseph Dalhoff. The two former ladies departed Monday morning for Petersburg to attend the funeral of their uncle.
The others returned to their homes
the first of the week.

Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Vail drove home Saturday from a fortnight vacation which they spent visiting relatives and friends in Iowa and Illinois. Mrs. Vail spent much of the time at her old home at Gardner, Illinois, while W. B. divided his time between that place and Chicago, where he visited some of his eye specialist friends, and noted the great improvement that has been developing in the care of the eye. He saw a number of very delicate operations performed for restoring sight, some of which were unknown a few years ago.

Tuesday the big coal strike force opened, and 158,000 thousand miners quit work, effecting 828 mines in ten counties of Pennsylvania. It has the earmarks of a put up job upon those who would consume coal if possible to obtain it for what it is worth.

Miss Winifred Main departed Monday afternoon for Vinton, Iowa, where she will attend the wedding of her cousin Miss Kathryn McElroy, who was married Wednesday to Mr. Walter Rockwell, of Boston, Massachusetts.

Three young men left for California Sunday. Phil Barlow, Maurice Whitaker and Raymond Strope of Orchard, who had been employed here. They started before the break of day, because it looked like rain, to drive to Los Angeles. The first two named will enter the University of California Southern department, at Los Angeles. The other one of the trio is an auto mechanic, who will have work there. They all have relatives or friends there, and are anticipating not only a happy, but a busy time.

Mrs. A. D. Lewis tells us that Monday last her sister, Aral Ellison, Mrs. A. R. Harris, sailed with her husband from San Francisco for the Hawaiian Islands, where they are to stop for a short time and then take steamer to Guam, one of the Philippine islands, where Lt. Harris is to be stationed for some 18 months. He is in the dental service of Uncle Sam. Mrs. Harris is expecting to join the teaching force on the island and help instruct the folks of the place in the good American school way. She is a graduate of the Normal here, and was a successful teacher before marriage.

Just as a starter to show what's what, and what the dry forces can do when they wake up and get busy, preliminary to making the north end of Cedar county dry, the sheriff and state men took in seventeen alleged law violators, and most of them were rewarded by a fine of $100 and costs, the one drew an additional jail sentence of 60 days at hard labor, and another, one old enough to know better, got the fine and the jail without labor. What perhaps will worry the fellows the most will be the fact that next time will be the second time, and that is supposed to carry a prison sentence. The new head of the enforcement of this state, who was due to go on the job Tuesday, is promising, according to interviews, that the big wholesalers will get their now and that he will invoke the padlock law to make things stay dry. When they hit the pocketbook of those who are willing to rent their property for illegal uses they rap the booze bunch hard.

THAT OLD SETTLER MEETING

Last week we failed to get a full report of the annual meeting of the old settler meeting as we had hoped for, and we overheard complaint from one of the prize winners that the report was deficient in the matter of telling the winners. So we lay for the home paper for copy this week, and are still in ignorance of the winnings in the sports except as to one contestant. Next year we hope to attend and give a full report. From the Tribune we glean:

The speaking by the Hon. S. I. Sallinger of Carroll, Iowa, is best told in the following words by H. E. Sisman who was in charge of this committee and who introduced Mr. Sallinger to the large crowd:

"The management of the Old Settlers picnic are to be especially commended for their success in securing Hon. B. I. Sallinger, as the speaker of the day. Judge Sallinger is reputed to be one of the most forceful and eloquent speakers in the country and the people who heard him last Thursday are all willing to bear testimony he is all that he is reputed to be.

The parade, while not up to the standard of some other years, was good, and the floats were rated as follows by the judges:

1st prize, Winside Drug Store; 2nd prize, Star Cookers; 3rd prize, Winside Library. Motor Vehicles—1st prize, Citizens State Bank; 2nd prize, Jewell Theater; 3rd prize, Winside Oil Co. Clubs—1st prize, Coterie Club; 2nd prize, Social Circle. Calithumpian—"Old Settlers."

Mrs. Hermon Flier and Mrs. Charles Unger; 2nd prize "New Kork," Ray Andersen and Russell Pryor; 3rd prize, Marvin Trautwein. Fred Witter also won a prize with his McCormick-Deering tractor.

The free ball game in the morning between Winside and Pilger went fine until about the 6th inning when the umpire made a decision that was not that to be fair, and game blew up. But as no admission was charged, we suppose the spectators could not kick much.

The afternoon ball game was not given credit for being up to expectations of the management, and with an attendance of nearly 1,000 as reported, the management had a right to feel that they had not had a square deal, unless they accepted some comedy as real ball playing. The score at the close was 7 to 1 in favor of the stock yard sluggers. The purse was split 60-40.

The water fight was between Winside men, the Wayne team members having been misinformed as to the time for the show, were not there when the battle was called. But the water fight was good, just the same, and if not for blood, was for water.

The dance at night was fine, and pleased many. In point of attendance, and finance the picnic was a success, in spite of the fact that some of the attractions promised were not up to what the management had hoped for, but we heard no complaint of lack of a really good time by those in attendance.

BUMPER CORN STORIES

One of our good farmer readers hands us the following corn stories from neighboring states, and while we will be glad to have some of our farmers tell us from time to time from now on what their Nebraska corn is doing, and in doing so, please remember that "truth is stranger than fiction."

Herington, Kansas, July 23.—One hundred carpenters have been working frantically two days in an effort to build a ladder high enough to rescue little Willie Sommers from the top of a corn stalk on his father's farm near here.

Willie was sent to get roasting ears, and, seeing he could not carry a whole ear, climbed to the first leaf with his ax. While he worked the stalk grew until he could no longer drop to the ground. For two days he has been growing into the air. Food is being carried to him by air-planes. He sleeps on a leaf wrapped by silk from the ears. It is expected the rescue party will reach him Sunday.

This news item in The Star July 24 brought the following letter last week from Hamilton, Missouri.

Dear Sir: We are two Missouri girls very much interested in the Kansas boy who was marooned on the stalk of corn. Have they rescued him, or is he still going up? If they haven't, we will ride a Missouri mule over to do the job. S. M. and M. I.

The Star regrets that information of an even greater tragedy has come from Herington. The rescue party did reach Willie the next Sunday, and knocked off work because it was the Sabbath. Monday morning they awakened to learn their ladder, erected from the earth a half mile below, had been raised 300 feet by the stalk's growth, so high that none of the party of thirteen could drop without being killed. Fourteen humans now are stranded on the stalk.

It is feared the mule which S. M. and M. I. would bridle for rescue work must be a winged mule to be effective.

WHEN THE SHEARING BEGINS

(Lincoln Star)

For nearly ten months the Wall street stock market has been in the hands of bull operators who have succeeded in pushing prices for virtually all securities to the highest level in years. Of late there have been some signs that the tide is about to turn. Some of the bulls are reported to be going over to the bear side of the market, in anticipation of what they think is likely to happen.

The boom in stocks, however, has attracted many thousands of outsiders who think the situation still offers a chance for them to get rich quickly by purchasing shares on speculative margins and reselling later at an advance. Their money is helping to hold up the market, so that no violent slump has taken place as yet.

When the "street" itself decides that the time has come to unload, it is these outsiders who will have their cash tied up in the high-priced securities. As soon as the professional traders withdraw their buying support, the bottom will drop out of the market as it did in 1921. Then the fellows who have squandered their wealth in buying margins will find themselves in the tight grip of the bears. Eventually, many of the stocks will be sacrificed and find their way into the possession of the former owners, bought back at perhaps half as much as they were sold for. When that process is completed, the time will be ripe for another boom and the re-shearing of the lambs.

The wiser investors who buy stocks for their own sake, and not for speculation, are leaving Wall street very much alone at present. They know that by waiting awhile they can get more for their money than they can now when suckers are scrambling over each other for a chance to buy. The man who has ready money when others are forced to sell is always in a good position to get the best bargains.

A Wall street crash, which may come almost any time, will not necessarily prove injurious to country. It may, in fact, help by discouraging the idea of getting rich quickly and turning available capital into channels of productive activity.

WAYNE MARKET REPORTS

Following are the market prices quoted us up to the time of going to press Thursday:

Table with market prices for Corn No. 3, Oats, Springs, Roosters, Heavy Hens, Light Hens, Eggs, Butter Fat, Hogs, and Fat Cattle.

And Mayor Dahlman roped a steer at Norfolk last week. Now can he rope the outlaws of Omaha and throw and "hog tie" them?

They tell us that business is better than a year ago. Glad to hear that, for we thought that there was ample room for improvement.

An encouraging report comes from the western part of the state. It is that the potatoe crop is good in the great potatoe fields of that region.

That we heard, something fall Gasoline dropped another cent in Sioux City Tuesday. One trouble about that is that it seems to go up as easily as it comes down, when the monopoly in command pulls the string.

The best sugar crop is said to be the best in years, and perhaps the price of sweetening will drop a little. The crop is nearer maturity than usual at this time, and the promise of tonnage is greater, while the season has been such that the sugar deposit should be greater.

Now it is said that the big bakeries of this country are facing a prosecution by the federal trade commission because investigation leads to prove that the cost of bread to the consumer is wholly out of proportion to the cost of material, labor and transportation entering into the bread making. If one may judge from the quoted price of bread in other countries than this, where all that enters into the bread unless it be labor, is higher than here, we are being robbed.

September 12, at Sioux City, members of the Klan may parade the streets with uniform, except masks. That is all right, as we see it. This is a free country, and we cannot see why organizations should not be permitted to assemble in peaceable gatherings and parade a city streets nor can we see why a citizen which want to belong to an organization which would ask a citizen to wear a mask to conceal his or her identity when keeping within the rights of citizenship.

The matter of prohibition law enforcement is now in the hands of "Carpbaggers," so to speak. From Oklahoma comes Andrew W. McCampbell as chief director for Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, while his right hower is Wm. E. Dunigan of Sidney, Montana. Perhaps we can soon form some idea of how the people of the south must have felt a half century ago when the ruler from the north was sent to rule. But we are not kicking—not yet, anyhow. If they will wipe the state dry, without feat or favor, no one should kick, for it is a dirty job at the best—but some one has to do the dirty work. If it is well done that is enough.

The Brookhart-Steck senatorial recount has been finished and Brookhart appear to be the winner on the face of the return, but by a less majority than was shown in the official certificate of election. Then, just as one gets that all settled in his mind, comes the report that there is a

Now 2,000,000 Chevrolets Why? Ask W. C. Andrews Wayne, Phone 317

Sioux City precinct missing, and that may change the result. Then there next appears a missing link in Polk county, involving some 300 or 500 votes, to quote round numbers. As it now looks, he recount, whichever way it is decided, may throw Iowa into the doubtful column in the next congressional, senatorial and possibly presidential vote contest. It looks as tho the standpatters will be fighting for their control of the political situation, while the progressive republicans are likely to crowd the regulars out of the saddle.

There is pressure being brought on members of congress, so says Congressman Howard of this district, to bring about the repeal of the publicity clause of the income tax returns. The fellows who must pay income taxes are a modest bunch, and they shrink from the publicity that might be connected with publishing the names and amounts. But just now the law says that it is open season for those who are gunning for information as to who pays and how much, and Mr. Howard says that as a newspaper man he calls all tax matters public matters, both as to gathering and expending. From his editorial we think he will be rather proud of Columbus and its business men, if it shall develop that they have a lot of prosperity down there which helps to run the government. He writes that Nebraska incomes will be a sort of "exhibit A" at Omaha after September 1, and that the Telegram will be represented there to learn what share the business men of his city have had in making this surplus of which Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is worrying so nights and Sundays. Of course, a lot of prosperous fellows think it is no business of the other fellow how much they make or how they make it. A lot of them tho the same way when our county commissioners decided to publish a list of the personal property assessment, but they turned in a more full report of the assessor. And some of the good, honest people kicked because thru an error, the published assessment was not as much as given in. He said, "I do not want the people to think I gave in so little as that; when they know I have more. And while this was an error, the fact that it was published helped to detect the error and correct it. We are glad that the court has upheld the law permitting publicity—and it is very possible that the Democrat might want to tell who pays income tax from this community, and how much. It is especially interesting just now when a lot of the rich ones want the publicity feature repealed—in fact, if they dared to say so, they would be calling for the repeal of the entire tax on the wealth of the land. Let the poor fellows pay it, there are so many of them, it will not be much for each one.

INCOME TAX FIGURES RELEASED FOR PUBLICATION

The first reports that come in from the income tax figures, opened to the public September 1, indicate that many incomes are less than the preceding year. One instance indicates that some mistake might have been made last year or the year before. The chewing gum king paid in 1923 more than $36 thousand dollars, and last year but $2664. The Yellow Cab concern fell off more than $160,000 according to the figures. These reductions came from a clause in the law which permits such concerns to "write off losses" as far back as 1914, and this has been carefully looked after, it seems.

Among some of the big payers, Ford is well at the head of the list with more than 16 millions paid in taxes. J. P. Morgan put up more than a half million. Ford's personal tax was more than two millions. Melon the secretary of the treasury had to pay near the 2 million mark. President Coolidge's tax was over 14 thousand. But the Rockefeller family lead all others again, with more than six and a quarter million.

BASED UPON TRUTH

Truth courts the light, but error shuns it. The chiropractor tells you his message in English because he wants you to understand. He does not camouflage his ignorance with Latin.

Truth is the same always and everywhere, and because the practice of Chiropractic is based upon truth it is a universally efficient method. The law of nature are the same yesterday, today and forever; and because Chiropractic is based upon natural law, it does not change its explanation of disease with the season. Since Chiropractic depends upon the operation of natural law, for its results, chiropractors do not require faith or credulity of their patients. Chiropractic is a demonstrable science. It is the most efficient method of getting the sick well and we will gladly show you just what we do and tell you WHY we do it. Consultation and spinal analysis free. DR. There were twelve couple present and the evening was passed with dancing from 9 to 11. At the close of the evening the hostess assisted by Bonnie Mitchell served a two-course luncheon. The out-town guests were: Miss Marion Cash of Niobrara, Bob Cavanaugh of Thurston, Nona, Selma and Walter Vastrow, of Emerson.

Mrs. Robbie Miller entertained twelve ladies at her home Wednesday afternoon complimentary to Mrs. Harry Wert, formerly Miss Doris Loville West. The afternoon was spent playing games, and hemming rainbow color dust cloths which were presented to the guest of honor. At the close of the afternoon the hostess assisted by Miss Mildred Westlund served a two-course luncheon.

Mrs. C. O. Mitchell entertained the employees of the Monument Works at the home Tuesday evening in honor of her husband's birthday. At six o'clock Mrs. Mitchell served a three course dinner, covers being held for twelve. The employees presided Mr. Mitchell with an electric wind shield cleaner and had it installed on his car.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Laughlin entertained about sixty of their friends at their home Wednesday evening at a moonlight party. The evening was spent with dancing, and a delicious luncheon was served at mid-night. All reported an enjoyable time.

The P. N. G. club will have their regular monthly meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Alice Rickabaugh. Mrs. Will Buotow will be assisting hostess. The time is to be spent with kensington.

The members of the Rebekah's had their regular business meeting at the I. O. O. F. hall Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Tucker from Pasadena, California, came last week for a ten day stop at the homes of their daughters here, while returning from a visit at their old home in western New York. They had previously visited here, while on their way east, and this was just a stopping place on the way home. It just happened that Mr. Tucker's boyhood home was in Cattaraugus county New York, and the folks who made a home for the editor in his childhood days, were born and brought up in an adjoining county in New York state, and the writer visited one summer there when a kid, so it was with more than usual interest that we listened to Mr. Tucker's tale of the change that had come to that land in the past sixty years, the most of the change had doubtless been in the past fifteen or twenty years. The American citizens and in those earlier days they were all-American, have practically all moved out, and Americans are few and far between.

In a part of the country that was considered pretty poor farm land after Illinois, Iowa and other western states were discovered, has been found to be productive of some good crops not known much of in those earlier days, and for which there was then no market, everyone raising and consuming his little lot of buckwheat and squaw corn with pretty good yield of small grain; but all in small fields cleared from the heavy timber which then covered much of that stony, clayey soil.

Now, Mr. Tucker says, he finds it all changed. The old houses and fine barns as well as the farm lands as they once were, are going back. Houses and barns rotting down from neglect, lack of paint and care. Now that land is cropped intensly to beans, and small sweet corn, grapes and other fruits. In the immediate part visited by Mr. Tucker beans were the chief crop, and they are harvested by the ton and taken to great canning factories. The pickers are mostly Italians, who swarm out from the cities by the hundreds, whole families entering the bean fields and picking early and late. The little folks by the dozen, father, mother, and even grandmothers. Sometimes a family would earn a daily wage of $15 to $18. It did not seem like the old place of his boyhood home. The schools, he said are now but about one in five or six American—the others foreign born, mostly Italian, and bright, keen little folks, eager for education. The old forests are mostly gone, many of the pioneer farm places are in ruins, and yet as farmed the land is now doubtless bringing many times the return in cash for some one what they did in other years. The days of threshing the buckwheat with a flail; treading the small grain out with oxen or if the crop was not too large threshing it with a flail and winnowing it from the chaff, and giving it a final cleaning in the old fanning mill passed long ago.

Sixty years ago there was a few small threshing machines set in the big barn, usually, and two horses on a tread power doing the work, with less grain threshed in a day than the machines of today will thresh in a single hour. The grain was mostly put away in the barn, and when threshed the straw stacked back in the mow for winter feed.

It was said that in those days, they used green goggles for their cattle to wear while eating straw, to make them think it was hay. But Mr. Tucker thinks that a false story—at least it was not the fashion in his home community when a lad.

W. H. A. Wittler of Hoskins, who lives between that place and Winside fell from the hay loft in his barn Monday morning, striking on his back in such manner as to nearly break the spinal column. Last week Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kay went to Rochester, where Mrs. Kay underwent an operation for removal of gall bladder, last week Wednesday. Mr. Kay left for home Sunday, and tells us that later reports are to the effect that Mrs. Kay is improving nicely. In proof of that he said that she was able to write a letter; but it is not that that she will be able to come home for the next three weeks.

Mrs. J. P. Jeffries returned the first of the week from a four week trip to the west coast, where she visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Fox, her sister, of Washougal, Wash. they coming with her—Mr. Fox stopping a few days at Grand Island to visit his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Fox are expecting to spend the winter here, returning in the spring. Mrs. Jeffries tells us that people appear to be busy and prospering out in that west land, but what worried her most was to see the fruit going to waste, the ground in the orchards being covered with it. Perhaps it was fruit unfit for shipment, but just the same, it looked wasteful to see it rotting on the ground. Mrs. Jeffries had a little shipment sent home to her address, and when she gets it, pays the freight and sees its condition she can better tell whether or not one might find it worth while to ship it from there, if they had first to purchase the fruit. They have the good road fever in that land, too, and just now are so busy building better and hard surfaced roads that they have no roads now to travel on, it all being one detour after another.

At Sioux City one of the daily papers is charging graft and dishonesty in connection with the police of the city, and one thing that might be considered in the light of favoring the charges made by the paper, is that Tuesday a bandit held up and robbed a bank over on this side of the river, and took the banker and his clerks and one of the patrons over by police headquarters, and left them, and drove off unmolested, and is not yet discovered.

The Kiwanis club, which was to have resumed the regular weekly meetings the 7th, have postponed until the 14th the opening session of the fall and winter, because of the invitation to go on a golf tourney here next week. Many of the members of the club are also members of the country club, and are equally interested in the two events, so do not wish a conflict of events. The golf people are to have a banquet Monday evening, as we understand the program at this writing.

The Boyd County Fair will be held at Butte next week, and then soon the Wayne county fair. Fair time rolls round so often before we are aware of it, and then it is a hustle to get ready with all details in time, especially when the getting ready includes the finishing of a track, the erection of a number of new buildings, and other improvements. The Wayne forces are busy as can be and promise to be better prepared for the opening day than some had believed possible. Any aid that can be given is always appreciated.

At South Sioux City Tuesday afternoon a lone bandit robbed the Nebraska State Bank of that place, captured about $2,000 in currency, then took bank employees and a patron into his car, under cover of gun and drove across the bridge into Sioux City, unloaded his passenger near the police headquarters and drove off—abandoning the car a few blocks away, and disappearing. Well, he will doubtless re-appear some where else to bank his loot—or perhaps to get more.

C. O. Mitchell of the Wayne Monument Works is having an exhibit of the good work from their shop at the fair at Concord, which is in session this week. Concord has the name of having a real fair, and as much of the patronage comes from country easily tributary to Wayne in these days of automobile, it should attract a lot of enquiry this way, for Wayne easily has the best stock and equipment in that line tributary to most of those who will attend that fair.

Some things improve greatly with age says Gus Bohnert, and then he said, perhaps it is not what you first think it is that it mean. Beside what you think of, the violin—the good ones, have a richer, sweeter, more melodious and softer tone than those of more recent make. He tells us that he now has three of the instruments that have aged until they are much to be desired. If interested, come in and listen to the tone some day, for I have none of that other commodity which also it said become softer and smoother with age.—1

Wednesday morning Dr. J. T. House and Prof. Martin started at sunup for the east, going together to Ottawa, Illinois, where Mr. Martin will visit a son for a short time, then return accompanied by the son, and both visit another son at Knoxville, Iowa; and then return home, the son from Illinois accompanying him. Dr. House will go on to Chicago, where he will join Mrs. House in her visit with the daughter, Mary, and together they will go on to their new home and new field of work, at Montgomery, West Virginia.

Wm. Von Seggern drove to Lincoln last night or at least before eight o'clock this morning, when he was due at that place to meet with other officers of the State Fair Board to make a final lineup of the business which must be looked after before the fair, which opens the first of next week.

Jack Dawson lost two fingers of his right hand Tuesday when working at a planing machine at the Theobald-Horney lumber yard. He had his board just finished, when it slipped and the knives caught his index and second finger of the right hand and severed them at the second joint, leaving him a scant half of the two fingers.

Nebraska was once a desert, they tell us, for a camel skeleton has been found. It was some 6,000,000 years ago that this beast of burden laid down and died, according to the signs the wise men of Chicago claim they found with the bones. Well, it is not fifty years ago that the school books platted Nebraska as a part of the "Great American Desert."

The Nebraska division of the Izaak Walton league is to be held at Norfolk September 14, and word has just been received that the governor will attend and speak at the meeting. Congressman Howard and Game Warden Jenkins are to attend, while Will H. Dilg the president and founder of the league is to be one of the speakers. The sessions of the league will begin at 11 o'clock, and there will be a banquet at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Don Fitch and family drove to Macy Sunday to see the Omaha Indians in their annual powwow. Congressman Howard was there the day before, and he says that more people and their children should attend these gatherings, for by so doing they may learn more in a day of the original American and his wild life of other years than will be possible in many months of the study of school books. Get the information and impression first hand, says the congressman.

Mrs. Chas. Ash, who underwent an appendix operation at the Wayne hospital, has recovered sufficiently to be discharged to go to her home just south of Wayne. A number of other cases have been discharged during the week, all well on the way to recovery.

S. C. Fox and wife will leave Friday by car for Glenwood, Iowa, the home of Iowa feeble minded, and Mr. Fox expressed some doubt as to whether or not they would permit him to leave, once they get him there. Time will tell. From Glenwood, they plan to drive to Murdock, in this state and visit at the home of Mrs. Fox's aged uncle, George Skyles, an older brother of her father. Then bring up for a few days at the state fair at Lincoln.

Strange that Mr. Bruce of Wisconsin, whoever he is, is permitted to take the democratic senatorial nomination there by default. There are no democrats to speak of in Wisconsin. Davis received only about eight per cent of the 1924 vote. But Mr. Bruce will get a lot of votes. He might even win, seeing how many conservative republicans will vote for him if young Robert La Follette wins the republican nomination; and how many radical republicans will vote for him if young Robert loses. The chief function of a democratic candidate in Wisconsin is to furnish a vent for the losers in the republican primaries.—State Journal.

THE HEROES OF TODAY

Every age has its heroes and today the heroes are perhaps, in public eye, those who have been waiting for favorable weather present and promised, to start out with a fleet of air ships to cross the Pacific from our mainland to the Hawaiian islands, a distance of 2,100 miles. But they have anticipated trouble by stationing ten battleships of the navy along the line of flight as a rescue precaution in case of trouble, so the danger is reduced to the minimum.

But is their venture anything compared to that of the people who left their home in the east to trek to California three thousand miles of plain, mountain and desert without any government aid, facing the unbroken trails, streams without bridges traveling only with the speed of an ox team; with hostile Indians along practically the whole distance? We say that the man and family who started on this sort of a journey had to have a lot more real courage and confidence in his ability to cope with foes and unknown conditions than the air men of today.

The First To Go Cold, the Ideal Vecto Heater

Is here, and installed for your inspection at the

Geo. Grunemeyer Store

It is a beauty—a real parlor ornament, and more than that, "handsome is that handsome does," so this product of one of the largest and most progressive firms manufacturing heating equipment, back this with their approval, as the very best system for warming by stove.

It is the circulation of the warm air which counts in heating a home. So they have devised a system which makes the warm air circulate. This is incorporated in the IDEAL VECTO HEATER, and it has been proven that it is successful, so no one is buying an experiment.

This device for assuring the circulation of warm air is built around one of the best systems known for extracting ALL of the heat from fuel and radiating it. The radiating surface is three times that of the ordinary stove of the same size firebox. The fuel consumption is the minimum—the circulation of warmed air the maximum—the result is COMFORT.

This heater is so constructed as to burn any kind of fuel from wood to hard coal. It is the last word in heating for the home, school, church or business house. The price is modest, costing less than many stoves that cannot give near the service.

Mr. Grunemeyer will be glad to show you the stove and tell you what and why about it, including taking your order for the next one to go out. The housewife should see this before thinking the winter warmth is provided for. Phone for an appointment to see the stove.

THE TARIFF SHAM

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

Organized laborer's declaration of war against the high protective tariff comes just at the time when general dissatisfaction with our tariff policy is becoming apparent in the agricultural sections.

In the emergency tariff act which was passed in the early days of the Harding administration and again in the present law the tariff makers sought to save the farmer with high but wholly meaningless duties upon wheat and other staple farm products. At the same time they argued, and made American labor believe, that the maintenance of the wartime scale of wages would be assured by the high protection which they imposed not for the farmer or the workingman, but for the Eastern manufacturers and the Southern and Western sugar growers.

With the American farmer paying the cost of this protection in nearly everything he buys, but enjoying but few of the benefits when he hauls his wheat and corn to market, he is ready for a new tariff deal. And with wage reductions ordered in the cotton manufacturing industry, which was a very special beneficiary of the Fordney-McCumber act, the cotton mill operative also is willing to take his chance on a different tariff policy.

KICKS, HINTS, SUGGESTIONS

Not many moons ago the writer was picked up by one of our business men as he was "hoofing" it down after the noonday meal; and instead of keeping on down Main street and parking his boat, he drove into one of the cross streets and parked. Wondering if he was ashamed of the company he had picked, we asked why—and he said, "I like to have it clear of my cars in front of the store and make room for a possible patron, who otherwise might drive past and forget to come back to trade. Then he added that he believed it would be a wise plan for all business men who front on Main street to cease parking in front of their business houses, and make room for a patron's car. Think it over. At Madison the community club discussed that very question at their recent meeting, and suggested the plan followed by at least one business man of Wayne.

Why is it? asked a lady friend the other day, that we cannot at Wayne have a well-organized jitney service? She said that there had not seemed to be any real service. If one came home laden with a grip or two, and long half mile to walk, it would be fine to find a conveyance there which carried for hire—or at least know that she could call a car by phone with some assurance of getting an answer back and some suggestion as to where she could get a car. While the neighbor might not object, she did not like to have to ask them for a ride, or walk; and she could not expect them to know her need and offer service. She had had the same trouble in getting baggage hauled from home to station and also in getting a jitney to drive her to station. It just happened that we have known of others having the same trouble. It looks as though it might well pay some concern to organize and advertise such a service as to baggage and passengers. Only Sunday, an infirm appearing elderly lady came here, was met by her daughter, but in vain did they look for a car for hire. A stranger in the place with a bit of idle time, volunteered to take her to her destination a few blocks away.

At the risk of being called a grumbler, we are going to suggest that it is a habit that would cause an arrest in many places which some have—that of stopping their car in the street in a busy part of the town at a busy hour, and going for the mail, or a loaf of bread or a slab of meat. It is a small matter to comply with regulations and "nose" in to the curb, and back out when ready to go. Only a week ago, some one with that habit, blocked traffic for an entire block—a delay that was perfectly needless, if regulations had been observed by just one driver.

The above complaints are by request and at the suggestion of different people, who want to know what a paper was for if it was not to let the people in general know what some other people consider the shortcomings of others. Bobby Burns perhaps expressed the thought when he wrote the lines asking that people might have the power to see themselves as other see them.

P. S.—The writing of the above was interrupted just now by a stranger who had been eyeing a gray truck, and looking for the driver who was nowhere to be seen, asking if we could locate the owner—and we could not—but another man in the hauling line just happened along and he was engaged for the little haul. The gray had nothing to tell to whom it belonged, or where the owner might be found.

THE RIVERS HOLD THE KEY

(Kansas City Star)

The Mississippi-Warrior barge line saved shippers of the mid-western states 658, thousand dollars, and in addition showed a net profit of more than 4 per cent on investment in property and equipment the first five months of this year. And the lines made that showing by operating at a rate 20 per cent below that charged by the railroads.

"Isn't there a lesson here for this region? Can any doubt remain that the transportation relief this section needs must come through use of the rivers? The railroads are seeking increased rates. But if their efforts in this direction are blocked, as they should be, the transportation problem would remain. The rail rates now are burdensome. The load is not likely to be lightened. This section is paying the penalty that often is exacted where there is dependence upon a single form of transportation. River navigation would promote carrier competition of a wholesome kind. It would aid development of the region and produce increased traffic, part of which could be handled by the railroads and at lower rates than now prevail.

"The rivers point the way out. They offer the permanent solution of the middle west's transportation problem."

Now if one large line can make good on their investment while saving the shippers more than a half million dollars in a short season, what might several barge lines save them in a full season? It is small wonder that the people are up in arms to oppose an increase in the already high freight rate. One of the intelligent ways to fight high railroad freights is to boost for the waterway freight routes. If the farmer can save 20 percent of his freight charges by encouraging river transportation, why should he not favor that means of transportation rather than one that makes a near prohibitive rate and still a year? We should use our heads more, make our legislatures heed the people rather than the special interest. Eternal vigilance is the price of just legislation.

ONE CENT A MILE

(Edgar Howard)

The sovereign State of Nebraska passed a law which forbids a railroad company to charge more than two cents a mile for carrying passengers.

Congress passed the infamous Esch-Cummings railroad law, and under the workings of that law the inter-state commerce commission suspended the Nebraska law and not only authorized, but commended the railroads in Nebraska to charge 3.5 cents per mile for carrying passengers.

But suddenly the railroad managers have discovered that they can make a profit by carrying passengers at one cent or less per mile. Recently all the Nebraska railroads have been running special trains and carrying passengers at this low rate, and yesterday I heard a railroad man say that the roads were making big money on their special cent-a-mile passenger trains.

Well, if the roads can make money in carrying passengers at less than one-third the rate commended to be charged by the inter-state commerce commission, why not try a reduced freight rate? Why not tell Nebraska farmers that on a certain day they may ship wheat to Omaha or to Chicago at one-third the criminal high rate fixed by the inter-state commerce commission?

Will they do it?
If not, then why not?

ROUTE TO FAIR GROUNDS RUSHED TO COMPLETION

The work of paving the direct route to the fair grounds is being rushed to completion with but a little more than two weeks left before the opening of the annual event that brings thousands of visitors from the country each fall.

The first concrete was poured on the two-mile stretch of pavement that is to connect at Leonard street and through to the grounds of the Interstate Fair Association August 21, and men were kept working steadily to finish the work in time for the opening to come September 20.

The new route will include a viaduct over the Milwaukee tracks to cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. The work of paving will cost more than $50,000. Until the viaduct is erected later a short detour will be necessary.

The fair this year is expected to enjoy the most successful season in its history with the new direct route and the additional attractions that are being offered by way of entertainment.

Cash prizes for winning livestock and farm produce and other exhibits exceed $14,000 in addition to the prizes to be awarded in the races. The program includes harness and saddle races Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and automobile races the opening and closing days, Sunday and Friday.

Two "New Breeds" Are Investigated

Believed That "Turken" Is Nothing Else Than Transylvania Naked-Neck

There is no lure like that of the cross of widely separated species of animals and birds. That nature frowns on such crosses is evidenced by the failure of repeated and persistent experiments under favorable conditions. Where progeny has followed violent crossings, it is sterile as a rule. The Department of Agriculture has issued a press release in this connection, which is as follows:

"The United States Department of Agriculture has received many requests from all parts of the country for information concerning two so-called new 'breeds' of poultry, the 'Turken' and the 'Kiwi'. The department has been aware of advertisements concerning these new and novel 'breeds' for which some rather remarkable claims have been made. The advertisements and literature describing the origin and qualities of these 'breeds' seem to have aroused much interest on the part of the public, since the department has received several urgent requests for an explanation regarding the reliability of the claims made.

How "Turken" Was Produced. "The statements in the advertisements and literature claim that the 'turken' was originally produced by crossing a male turkey with a female chicken, and that the 'Kiwi' was produced by crossing a male ostrich with a female chicken.

"Successful crosses have been made between the pheasant and the chicken, and in practically every case the progeny has been of the male sex and sterile. Also, successful crosses have been made between the guinea and the chicken, and here again the sex of the progeny has almost invariably been male and the hybrids have been sterile. Both of these crosses have been made with great difficulty and, so far as known, no cross giving any progeny has ever been reported between the turkey and the chicken. Furthermore, it is highly improbable that the progeny, if any have ever been secured, would breed at all, and certainly not readily. In such wide or violent crosses the progeny is always sterile, and the claim for the 'Turken', which is reported to be the hybrid progeny of a cross between the turkey and the chicken, is in all probability not founded on fact.

Is Naked-Necked Chicken. "One other point must be made concerning the so-called 'Turken'. The illustrations accompanying the advertisements and literature are in all probability photographs of the Transylvania Naked-neck chickens. According to the best information obtainable this odd-looking breed originated in West India, and the characteristic naked neck has bred true for many years. It is a distinct character of the breed. The department believes that the so-called 'Turken' is nothing else than the Transylvania Naked-neck chicken, which apparently possesses no qualities superior to the more important standard breeds and varieties, and has not been shown to be particularly well adapted to conditions in many parts of our country.

"As far as the reported cross giving rise to the 'Kiwi' is concerned, there is much less evidence to support such a cross than in the case of the 'Turken'. This is too violent a cross to produce any results whatever.

"The burden of proof that such crosses as those giving rise to the 'Turken' and the 'Kiwi' must remain with the sponsors of such novel productions. In the meantime, the interests of the public should be safeguarded."

Feed to Maintain Cows of Different Weights

Extensive detailed experiments have been made to determine the average amount of protein and other food nutrients needed to maintain cows of different weights. Also, the different feeds have been tested to determine the average amounts of digestible protein and other nutrients. This data has been arranged in table form and may be found in various books, experiment station bulletins, etc., but is too extensive to reproduce here. These experiments also show the amounts of food nutrients required to produce different amounts of milk. By taking the data from these tables, showing how much is required, the balanced ration is worked out by grouping together the necessary amounts of the different feeds to give the correct total and proportion of nutrients. Rations as worked out by this process can only serve as a guide because of the great variation in individual cows, but they are very valuable in actually obtaining the best rations.

Exercise Mare and Foal in Cool of the Evening

In the evening when it is cool and the flies are inactive, turn the mare and foal out on pasture. This will allow the colt to get plenty of exercise, grass, and fresh air with the least possible interference from flies. When the mare is not working, the pasture is the best place for both mare and foal, but they should be provided with shade of some sort. When natural shade is not available, a cheap structure should be built to meet the need. Hang a few sacks under the trees or in the shed so that the mare and foal can use them to chase off flies.

ROAD MANNERS

(Baltimore Evening Sun)

You are, say, a typical American. You have a care of some kind and call yourself a good driver. You are as good as anybody and not disposed to take anybody's impudence. A free man in a free country!

Now observe freedom as it functions on the highway.

The car ahead is going about as fast as you wish to go, but you don't enjoy being behind. You speed up to pass it and then slow down again to give it your dust.

Again you are going as fast as you wish to go and a car behind toots for gangway. You speed up—not for any particular reason, but just to thwart the other fellow.

You are on the main highway and a car darts in from a side road. A collision is narrowly averted. "Fool," you mutter.

You are on a side road and dart into the main highway, narrowly missing a speeding car. "Fool," you mutter.

No policeman being in sight, you make a left turn where left turns are forbidden. You feel adventurous. Five minutes later another adventurer attempts to same thing and grazes your innocent fender. "Why, the infernal idiot!" you cry.

You attempt to pass a car even though another is coming full speed.

You think you can make it. You do. The car you are passing slows down; the one coming head-on slides on locked wheels. Thus two cautious drivers save a fool from his folly. Your heart skips four beats, but you glow with pride in your achievement.

You resent the fact of traffic officers; you honk impatiently in a traffic jam; you keep a little more than half of the road and curse the car that grazes you; you break the speed limit if there isn't a speed cop in sight; you growl about women drivers; you drive with loose brakes; parking regulations irritate you; a summons seems an invasion of your rights as a free citizen.

Freedom is a wonderful thing. It makes men self-reliant and self-respecting and—er—ill-mannered.

The DAIRY

PROBLEMS OF WARM WEATHER FOR DAIRY

"Just a minute please." The manager of the powder plant stepped to the curb to halt one of his largest patrons, who was just driving away with a truck load of cans, most of them full of rejected milk. In fact, this patron had been taking the most of his milk back home with him for a week. He was in an exceedingly ugly frame of mind—as most of us would be under the same conditions. "I am pretty sure that the trouble is with that milking machine of yours," the manager told him. "How long is it since you changed the solution in your crock?" The patron acknowledged that he was using the same sterilizing solution for the rubber tubes of his milking machine as when the manager had last visited the farm a month before. "There is your whole trouble," observed the manager. "Change your solution and keep adding fresh chloride to it and I guess likely you will bring us the kind of milk that we can accept." The man who uses a milking machine, and his name is now legion, has hot weather troubles that his brother who milks by hand knows nothing about. The rubber tubes are ideal breeding places for undesirable bacteria unless the solutions in which they are kept between milkings are carefully watched. A good solution is recommended by the New York experiment station as follows: Mix the contents of a 12-ounce can of chloride of lime with a gallon of water in a small crock. Add first enough of the water to make a paste and then the remainder. The clear solution remaining after the mixture has been stirred is the part to be used. Keep covered. One quart of this stock solution is added to a strong brine made by placing 50 pounds of salt in a 20-gallon crock filled with clean water to within six inches of the top. The tubes and teat cups are immersed in this solution between milkings. One pint of the stock solution should be added twice a week and the original level maintained in the large crock by the addition of water and salt as needed. If dirt gets in, the whole solution should be changed immediately. If not, the same solution may be used as long as it remains clear. This brine solution has proved superior to chloride of lime alone and has solved the problem of clean milk from a milking machine for many a farmer.

Production of Quality Cream Important Point

Proper washing and scalding of cream separators after the milk is run through them reduces the bacteria in the cream one-half and the keeping quality of the cream is greatly increased, according to the results of an experiment recently conducted by the dairy department at South Dakota State college. With cream grading becoming a more common practice, the production of high-grade cream is one of the important points in successful dairying. Realizing this fact, the dairy department undertook to determine what effect the care and cleanliness of the separator had to do with the production of quality cream. Two separators were used in the experiment. One was washed and scalded after each separation while the other one was only rinsed. Cream separated 12 hours later in the separator that was only rinsed showed an average bacterial count of 10,800,000 per cubic centimeter. Cream from the same milk separated in the machine thoroughly washed and scalded, showed a bacterial count of only 5,500,000 and the flavor and keeping quality was far better. The skim milk in these trials showed even a greater difference in the bacteria present. When the machine was not taken apart and washed for two separations, the bacterial content showed a greater increase.

Silage and Alfalfa Hay Splendid for Dairy Cow

Silage and alfalfa hay form the basis of a splendid ration and cows will do fairly well on these feeds alone. To obtain the best results, however, some grain should be fed. Since there is plenty of oats and barley we would suggest a mixture consisting of equal parts by weight of ground barley and green oats, and then feed about one pound of this mixture for each three and one-half pounds of milk produced. Soy-bean hay is nearly equal to alfalfa for feeding the dairy cow. It is practically the same composition. The soy-bean hay is a little coarser, and on account of this the cows may waste a little more of it than they would of the alfalfa hay.

Off-Flavors From Turnips

Feeding turnips to cows at the rate of 15 pounds an hour before milking produces objectionable flavors and odors in the milk. A careful investigation recently conducted at the government experimental farm found the above true. It was also found that increasing the allowance to a full feed of 30 pounds greatly increased the intensity of the objectionable odor and flavors. Proper selection greatly reduced the intensity of strong flavors and odors in the milk.

Only Good Alfalfa Seed Is Profitable

Use Hardy Seeds Where Winter-Killing Is Likely.

Alfalfa growers should purchase their seed with care. "There are several things to consider in seed selection," says L. F. Graber, alfalfa specialist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. Where winter-killing is known to occur, hardy strains such as Grimm and Cossack should be sown, as the extra cost is returned in better yield. Where winter-killing is not serious and short rotations are practiced, good common strains have proved successful. Strange as it may seem, there is less winter-killing in the northern half of the state because of the better covering of snow which they have in that section. Another advantage of Grimm alfalfa is in seed production which may occur every other year or so. The higher price received for the seed makes this strain much more profitable. Some growers have realized as high as $60 an acre from this source. A crop can be expected only when the season is dry at blossoming time. In regard to a seed crop, alfalfa does not differ so much from clover, as seed from that crop is not a certainty. "The safest alfalfa seed to buy is that which has had a rigid inspection and certification by the officials of the western states where it is produced," Graber states. Of this there is an enormous quantity, much of which is in bags, branded or sealed, or both, by these officials, which certifies its purity. This seed is available through regular commercial channels of dealers and seed companies. The strains which Graber has found best because of the resistance to winter-killing are those from South Dakota, Montana, and Kansas.

Care for Cows Through Dry Period Important

Several weeks before the prospective mother cow's time comes for freshening, she should be "dried off." This should be done for the reason that the cow is preparing for a hard ordeal and she needs and should have all her strength reserved for the event. She should not be required to divide her strength with the production of milk. True it is that some cows are such persistent milkers that it is quite difficult to get them dry, but just as sure as water runs down hill they will not produce as much milk after freshening if they do not take a vacation from milk production previous to the arrival of the new-born calf. One way to "dry up" a persistent milker is to skip one milking, then milk her dry next time, then skip two milkings, and milk her dry, then three, etc., until dry, meanwhile keep her off good pasture and feed her nothing but timothy hay, do not let any one handle her under between milkings. When the cow is dry she should be fed generous rations of bran and oats, the oats may be fed whole or ground. The bran contains minerals and the oats provide strength. In winter on dry feed the cow should have oilmeal included in the ration.

Why Is Found Excellent as Skim Milk Substitute

Dairy farmers who have a supply of whey available will also be interested in the tests at the Wisconsin station in which calves were fed whey as a substitute for skim milk. A grain mixture of three parts ground corn, three parts standard middlings and four parts linseed meal was fed in addition and hay, salt and water were provided as in the other lots. Calves thus fed gained 1.49 pounds per head daily as an average, or practically as much as the calves fed ten pounds of skim milk daily. The average feed cost to six months of age was $21.58 per calf. It was necessary to take a little more care in changing over from whole milk to whey than from whole milk to skim milk. The whey was fed in a sanitary condition and was never allowed to stand in a filthy tank or can. The results show that when a little care is taken calves can be raised satisfactorily on whey supplemented with grain and hay.

FARM NOTES

About 10 per cent of the land area of the United States produces crops. Whitewash is one of the old reliable substances that have held their own against all newcomers. Crushed rock salt is the best chemical to use in killing the common barberry which spreads the black stem rust of cereals. Valuable feed may be saved by culling the poultry flock this summer. Those hens that molt early, that are old and inactive, are generally boarders and should be sold or put in the pot. Cattle need liberal amounts of salt and should have free access to it at all times. They will eat more ground rock salt than upground rock salt and ground evaporated salt than any other kind. The ground rock salt seems to furnish enough for good results.

Treasures of History

Moscow's largest library is the former Rumyantzev, now renamed the Lenin public library of the Soviet Union, writes a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor. This institution, which was established in Petrograd in 1828 and transferred to Moscow in 1882, contained more than a million volumes before the World war. Now this number has greatly increased. The library authorities themselves are not certain of the exact number of books under their charge, since no accurate count has been taken recently, but it is estimated that the number of books in the library is now well above 2,000,000, and may have reached the figure of 3,000,000. There are several causes for this increase in the number of books since the revolution. The contents of requisitioned private libraries were turned over to the Rumyantzev institution.

A bibliophile would find many treasures in the Lenin library. There are many old prints, both Russian and Slavonic, the most ancient, perhaps, being the Gospel of Archangel, which dates back to 1093. This collection also includes the well-known Cracow edition of 1491. There are a number of medieval Greek manuscripts and the library boasts a complete edition of the works of the Italian philosopher, Giordano Bruno. There are many original manuscripts of such Russian writers as Tolstoy, Turgeniev, Herzen, Chekhov, Pushkin and Ostrovsky.

Flowers Compelled to Fight for Existence

Flowers fight much as do the males of most species of animals, and for a similar reason, self-preservation, a writer in the Cincinnati Enquirer tells us. An iris in a crowded border, for instance, will throw out a number of sharp-pointed leaves horizontally all around, for no other purpose, it would seem, than to ward off other plants. Primroses are also pugnaclous; if they feel they are being crowded too closely they have a habit of flopping their leaves up and down, and so smothering the intruding plants. Many of the smaller hyacinths might be called floral ruffians. Any unfortunate intruder is liable to be seized and "strangled in a tangle of vegetation which, seemingly, is grown just for that purpose. Quite a number of other plants give evidence of having developed something very like consciousness that enables them to divine the best way of circumventing the encroachments of their neighbors. A remarkable illustration of this is seen in connection with the common bramble when, as is often the case, it is found struggling over a pile of stones or up against a roughly built wall. In such circumstances the plant has the power to turn its roots into clubs, which completely fill the crevices where soil is to be found, thus shuffling out all competitors.

What Your Eyes Tell

We are told that the eyes of the intellectual man are gray, and it is a fact that most men of genius have gray eyes. Brown eyes are said to express temperament rather than intellect. Although brown eyes flash with anger, light up with joy, and change swiftly with jealousy, blue and gray eyes can express greater sadness. Green and black eyes are supposed to be the most wicked. Becky Sharp's green eyes played an important part in her various conquests. The "ramp" in modern fiction usually possesses flashing eyes of either green or black. Actually, there are no black eyes; dark-brown or dark-gray eyes have the appearance of being black in certain lights.

Chance Acquaintance

Nearly every season I make the acquaintance of one or more new flowers. It takes years to exhaust the botanical treasures of any one considerable neighborhood, unless one makes a dead set at it, like an herbalist. One likes to have his floral acquaintances come to him easily and naturally, like his other friends. Some pleasant occasion should bring you together. You meet in a walk, or touch elbows on a picnic under a tree, or get acquainted on a fishing or camping-out expedition. What comes to you in the way of birds or flowers, while wooing only the large spirit of open-air nature, seems like special good fortune. At any rate, one does not like to bolt his botany, but rather to prolong the course.—John Burroughs.

Saw Hope Depart

An agitated woman entered the "Lost-and-Found" department at the car barn and told the man in charge she had lost a valuable vase. The man assured her he would leave no stone unturned till he found it. This phrase evidently pleased him for he repeated it several times. "I will leave no stone unturned." "H'm," said the lady, "I'm afraid there won't be much left of it if you find it under a stone."

Tangled Him Up

A colored man who had been in court, apparently with disastrous results, was relating the story of the trial, punctuated by rueful grimaces, to a group of sympathetic and sympathetic friends gathered around him in the corridors of the city court. ## The Command to "Move On"

By MORGAN SHEPARD

(Copyright.)

THE shattering "morning" of the earthquake and the after days of flame and chaos had become memories only in our turmoil of untimed work and feverish readjustment. Bread and canned goods were plentiful while the embers of our city cooled, and there was promise, too, for time for rest, and time to gather our scattered faculties—but still we hungered, our canned and pickled stomachs cried out for fresh green stuff, and the gnawing ache was worse than thirst and more relentless.

Here and there a vicious jet of fire spurted upward with a hiss of triumph in searching out and finding some hidden chaff to deal with as a great city had been dealt with. Chaos was subsiding and man had begun to think again. Eyes glazed by terror or dim with stupid resignation once more carried a low light of some reasoning thought.

The water front—that haven for the distracted throngs of the fire days—gave up its cowering and waiting crews. "Move on—move on," had been yelled from behind the bayonet's point. Little bands of aimless creatures stumbled forth into the ruins to start again, beyond or amid that crushed and still smouldering city of memory.

From my hill I could see scores of these plodding bands melt like shadows into the lowering murk that clung to the long stretches of gray streets—named streets in irony surely. All these shadows of men bent upon some vague purpose were the footmen and jetsam after a storm of fire and a quaking earth. But to us who had worked and sickened for the lack of fresh green things the word "orange" was music and "potato" was song. I was bidden to find them or anything, be it ever so green.

My path to the water front by way of Vallejo street looked comparatively cool and plain. It was no hard matter to select, for all streets were as clearly defined as if painted on a red map. Oakland lay bright and clean across the bay. Surely our need might be found for a price in that oasis beyond the water!

Coming my way I saw a mother, with no man to guide and guard. Through reeking ashes there trudged behind her four children, a boy, perhaps of twelve, and three girls, all younger—one of them a silent little toddler. Each wayfarer bore some burden too great, but too precious to abandon—pots, pans, besmudged bedding and the ever-familiar pillowcase, stuffed with God knows what—and bread.

"Move on, move on," the military had ordered. They were moving on, but action had no meaning. The mother's lips were dry, flabby and purposeless, her eyes dead, save for a nameless gleam that distorted the heavy eyelids. She stared before her out of those dull eyes and turned neither to right nor left, her sordid little escort of wordless offspring following along after her.

In that company there was a sixth. Wrapped by a soiled red shawl to its mother was a nursing babe, with face buried deep in the bare breast of the woman. One little arm, released from bond, dangled in rhythm with the mother's plodding steps. I saw that the child was dead.

"Mother," I said, in the language of her people, "your baby—do you know, mother—that—that your baby is dead?" She made no reply, there was no exclamation. She stopped—heavy, as did all of her followers—my word might have been a military "halt." Her expression did not change a shade from its fixed despair, there was not even a twitch of the shadowed lips or a tremor of the swollen eyelids. Then with awkward, fumbling fingers she undid the bonds that held her babe to her; the child's head fell back inertly against the mother's soiled hand and slowly she raised the little body to her parched cheek as if to listen for a heart beat but she heard none, for, turning to the dust and ashes about her she stared forth vacantly as she had before I had given my message. Judging by that unmoved face life might have been to her the same as it was before she learned that death reposed upon her bosom.

Near where she stood there flared up one of those vicious spurts of flame, dying reluctantly amid a tangle of wreckage. Thrusting itself through this mass was a mound of glowing embers. Deliberately she stooped and laid her babe upon that waiting pyre, and leaned over it a little time. "Dust to dust," I said in my heart.

She spoke no word, there was no cry, no tears came to the dull eyes, and her lips were unchanged. Then she fell again into the weary trudging I had interrupted. The drowsy smoke hung low along the broken street up which the woman passed. The sun shone red through a veil that rose over the funeral pyre of a city and a babe as a mother obeyed the command of God and the military to move on.

Speed on the Cable

A new cable from New York to Italy was officially opened recently. By the use of permalloy, a nickel-iron mixture, around its copper core, the cable is able to transmit about 1,700 letters a minute as compared to some 250 a minute by ordinary cable.—Time.

SMALL HOPE FOR A DRINK The new Congress which convenes in December will be drier by fifteen votes in lower house and by four in the upper house than the last Congress. Soy Beans Furnish Protein for Stock

Are Superior to Cottonseed Cake for Dairy Cattle.

The past few years has seen a marked increase in the acreage and interest in the growing of soy beans. A national association of growers of soy beans has been organized and they are very actively engaged in popularizing the soy bean in the United States.

The seed of the soy bean plant is the richest in crude protein of all the seeds used in live stock feeding. The percentages of crude protein in soy beans is 38.5 per cent and every 100 pounds of soy beans fed yields 83.2 pounds of digestible crude protein. The soy bean seed is also rich in oil, as it contains 16.1 pounds of digestible fat in each 100 pounds of soy beans fed. Compared to linseed oil meal, soy beans contain 2.0 per cent more digestible crude protein and 9.4 per cent more digestible fat.

Soy beans for dairy cattle are slightly superior to cottonseed cake. Care must be exercised in feeding soy beans to dairy cattle, as excessive amounts cause soft butter.

Cattle have been successfully fattened upon soy beans, and when compared to cottonseed cake, the soy beans proved just slightly inferior to the cottonseed cake. In swine feeding, the composition of soy beans, as given above, should be carefully considered. The protein content indicates that it can be used as a protein supplement to carbonaceous grains. Due to its high oil content, soft pork is apt to result, if soy beans are fed to any great extent.

Soy beans should be ground for horses and cattle, but it is not necessary in feeding sheep and pigs.—B. W. Fairbanks, Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural College.

Foreign Clover Seed Is Found to Be Worthless

During the last five years approximately twelve and one-quarter million pounds of Italian red clover seed has entered the United States from Italian ports. This seed is classed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the state experiment stations which have thoroughly tested it as "no good." It is not adapted to the production of clover in this country.

Reports coming from experiment stations in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, New York and several other states, present a body of information which leads to several important conclusions. These are that Italian red clover seed is worthless except in Idaho and Washington, where the climate is mild; that Bohemian red clover is not much better, and that native American clover seed is the best of all to withstand the winter weather and the attacks of mildew and anthracnose.

Reason a Snuff

Little John, age four, always said the unexpected. One day he was playing ball with his handkerchief. Repeatedly he threw it at Auntie who was trying to read. Hoping to regain peace, Auntie seized the handkerchief and placed it in her book. Immediately John began to touse for it. "Do you want it very badly, John?" Auntie asked, and there was an affirmative nod. "How badly do you want it?" "Just what Auntie expected, her small nephew to answer is unknown, but her surprise was evident when with puckered lips and wrinkled brow, John burst out: "We-e-h; I want to blow my nose."

Gypsy Trips for Girls

Every girl's dream magazine of the Camp Fire Girls, recommends gypsy trips in answer to the call of the wild. "The girls borrow or rent a cart and horse and just follow the road that calls," says Everygirl's. "You walk part of the time, ride part of the time, cook your meals over a camp fire beside the road or in the bend of a shady brook, sleep under the open sky or in the hayloft of a friendly barn; you watch before the fire in the quiet of the night hours; you take a dip from the spout of an ivering river or hunt your caravan at the end of a meadow and climb up to the view and the sunset."

SUCCULENT CABBAGE HAS LONG HISTORY

Its Origin Lost in the Mists of Antiquity.

Should the history of the cabbage ever be written, it may prove to be unexpectedly thrilling. Remarkable facts concerning that humble vegetable have been discovered by Prof. Ruggles Gates, the botanist.

"Cabbages, kales, cauliflowers and brussels sprouts," says the professor, "all originated in the wild cabbage, a native of the coast and the south of England. The cabbage as we know it was the first development of the wild plant, and from it appeared the cauliflower and the sprout.

"The origin of the species is lost in antiquity, but the Romans appear to have cultivated it. The remarkable thing is that each type entered more or less suddenly into the vegetable garden.

"A gardener in these ancient days may have planted a cabbage on a certain spot and have wakened up some morning to find a cauliflower or a stalk of sprouts in its place.

"There was no gradual development. It happened spontaneously. In the case of the cauliflower, there was an inflorescence, and the green flower became white, succulent and fleshy, though not to the degree that we know it today.

"The sprout was the result of the cabbage, instead of confining its efforts to the attainment of one large bloom, determining to multiply itself into a numerous clump of tender heads.

"It is in this way that we now think evolution has taken place—the production of new and marked varieties with fully developed characters.

"What causes the transformation? Interesting developments may result from the experiments. Why not, for example, a 'cauliflower' from the parent cabbage, or perhaps a 'carrot' from the 'carrot or the turnip'?"

"As a food the cabbage has a long and honorable career," says the commissioner of health, New York city, "it has graced the tables of kings. The favorite dish of Emperor Pompey was cabbage. I have no doubt that many another ruler, if he admitted the truth, would confess a yearning for corned beef and cabbage. It must be terrible to live on ambrosia and nectar!

"The cabbage is a valuable food because it is rich in lime and potash. "Humans require roughage, coarse indigestible material, just as animals do. Every farmer can testify to the necessity of such foods for his stock. Every dietary expert agrees that roughage must be supplied if we are to be healthy.

"Cabbage is important, then, because it supplies lime and because it furnishes roughage. When it is served with delicious dressing it makes a fit dish for any table.

"In Scotland the oatmeal is cooked in the cabbage water, making a dish called 'kale brog.' In this way the mineral elements are saved.

"Almost everybody can eat raw cabbage, but the cooked vegetable disagrees with many. As a matter of fact, too, when the cabbage is boiled much of its valuable material is carried away. Steaming, instead of boiling, guards against the calcium loss."

London Wants More Color

London is showing signs of revolt against white or red brick house-facades, the color scheme of the English capital for centuries, perhaps. Buff and brown may be added to red and white to relieve the situation. George Topham Forrest, architect to the London County council, who recently spent several months inspecting buildings in this country, said there was something monotonous in a long series of dingy gray houses and, having noticed in the United States an attempt had been made to relieve this monotony by the use of colored materials, he intended to follow suit.

On the council's Becontree (Essex) estate, some 8,000 houses will be erected, in which the American idea of mixed colorings will be adopted.

Dental Motor Car

The Pennsylvania state department of health has placed in operation a plan by which it hopes to have every child in Bedford, Somerset, Tioga, Potter and Wyoming counties physically fit when he enters school next fall. A health and dental motor car, in the charge of experts, left recently to visit these counties this summer. Field workers have mapped out the itinerary and will notify parents of children of school age when the health clinic will be able to examine their children. After the children's physical defects have been diagnosed, they then will be turned over to the home community physician for treatment.

Sparrows—Human Sparrows

By FRANCES E. GALE

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

"SPARROWS! Nesting, noisy, dirty, destructive, a nuisance—human sparrows!"

Hardick was seated in his special den, the little sun-room thrown out over the back porch of his bachelor home. It overlooked his garden, which terminated at the high fence separating it from a narrow public alley. Last summer it had also overlooked the two vacant lots across the alley. Across the alley there had sprung up during the fall and winter a horrible mushroom growth, a cheap apartment building, designed to house as many human beings as could decently be packed upon its fly wide floors.

Hardick, in the unit seclusion of his den, looked across the blackness of sixty feet of cloud-ridden night, and could see the settling operations of men and women as they unpacked and placed their things.

A week earlier Hardick's bookkeeper had stood by his employer's desk nervously rolling and unrolling the monthly statement just approved.

"I've promised you the raise next year," Burdick had said, not too patiently, "why do you want it now?"

The color in the young man's face deepened.

"The fact is, Mr. Hardick, I want to get married this coming fall."

"Married! Man alive, you aren't in a position to marry."

"I'm twenty-two."

"A great age, that. And how old is the young lady?"

"Twenty. I could save enough by fall to make a start if you could give me that advance now."

"See here, Morton, I could give it to you, but I won't. When I was your age I wanted to marry, too. Every boy does. But the girl had been used to a good home, servants, fine clothes. She couldn't have done without them. She didn't know it herself, but her people did, and she came to see it their way."

"What became of the young lady, Mr. Hardick—the one you were speaking of?"

"She married—a rich man."

"Was she happy?"

"I don't know," Hardick said, shortly. "She died."

The interview was fresh in his mind as he watched the gaping windows and the moving figures. Within the oblongs of light directly opposite him a girl worked alone. She wore a light summer dress protected by a big flowered apron. He could see its gay colors as she stood under the center light. Slight and graceful, she moved quickly from bureau to shelf, from range to wall-cupboard, passing back and forth between adjoining kitchen and living room, the contents of both in plain view of the onlooker. A scene of thirty years ago flashed before Hardick's mind—a girl, dark-haired like this one, willow-slim, standing by a blossom-decked tree with hands upraised to reach some bloom that later she fastened at his breast and laid her cheek beside it. His heart gave a queer twitch. What had he been doing all those years? Waiting until there should come convenient time to live. And now it was too late to live, in any real sense, at all.

There was a storm breeding in the hot, black stillness, and the girl came to the window and flung the sash high, then leaned upon the sill, looking from side to side into the darkness that enveloped her new surroundings. Silhouetted against the room's brilliance only the outline of head and body appeared, the features being invisible. Suddenly she turned and flew to open the door, through which staggered a man, laden with a box, evidently of considerable weight. He lowered it to the floor, playfully evading the girl's proffered help, and began to take from it books. A flash-cut the gloom outside. Thunder followed. At its crash the girl drew close to the man, who, putting his arm about her, led her to the window, evidently soothing her fears. As she stood there, clasped in the hollow of his shoulder, another electric sword leaped from the clouds and she flung her arms about him, hiding her face. He stepped back a pace, wrapping her protectively in his arms, then with one hand turned her face upward and laid his lips upon hers in a long kiss. The light fell full upon the man's features.—Hardick reached quickly for his bed glasses. Through them he saw his bookkeeper, Morton, a girl with hair like Caroline's, and—Love.

"Did you have a pleasant week?" Hardick asked as his bookkeeper again stood in his office.

"Very, sir. But I'm afraid you won't be pleased at what I have to tell you. Carrie—the young lady—and I decided not to wait until the fall and were married three days ago. We've taken a little apartment in the North end, a very little one, but expenses are high and I'll have to be on the lookout for a job that will pay till I can earn. She married me against her father's wishes, so it's up to me to make good. I thought I ought to tell you."

"I guess we can manage the raise, Morton. So you wouldn't take my advice? Well, well, and you say her name is Carrie?"

"Yes, sir. Caroline Barker. Thank you very much."

"Caroline. A nice name, Morton, a nice name. You'd better give me your address. I'll run in and call on you some time. I live out in that dreary den."

Preachers' Sons High in World of Finance

From time immemorial the sons of preachers have enjoyed a bad reputation, so that men have thought of them as men of old thought of Nazareth—that no good could come out of them.

Of course, this charge has never been able to stand up against statistics, but what care men for statistics when they see a living example of the truth.

Nothing proves more clearly the vitality of error than the fact that though the contrary about preachers' sons has been proved repeatedly, you can never mention the downfall of a preacher's son without hearing some one say, "Well, you can expect nothing else from them, for preachers' sons are generally bad."

We have long since despaired of ever overtaking this error with respect to their morals, but we would like to call attention to their achievements as money-makers.

Mr. Babson, than whom there is no higher authority where statistics are involved, has been looking into the records of preachers' sons, and he has found that whether the preacher himself is a money-maker or not, his sons, at least, have a fine record in that line. He says that 40 per cent of the millionaires of this country and Canada are sons of preachers. Our population of 42,000,000, and there are 200 millionaires.

It follows, then that it takes 5,000 preachers to produce one per cent of the millionaires, while it takes 1,868, 838 of the general population to produce one per cent of the millionaires.

A little figuring will show that as wealth-producers preachers' sons produce 875 times as much as all of the other professions combined.

On one side we place the sons of the manse whose reputation is not above par, and on the other side we gather all the financiers, doctors, lawyers, professional men, with their big fees, and the great army of laboring men.

The sons of the manse are able to accumulate as much as this great mass of men.

As a certain cereal beverage has it, "There is a reason."—Presbyterian Standard.

Varnish Preserves Bones

The warning "handle with care" may no longer be so necessary in museums and laboratories where valuable bones of dinosaurs, mastodons and men's departed ancestors are preserved and studied, according to Prof. E. C. Case of the University of Michigan, who has found that by use of a varnish made from bakelite fragile material may be preserved in a practically indestructible medium. The usual means of making such specimens somewhat more durable has been to treat them with shellac. As an illustration of the success of the new method, Doctor Case says: "A human skull was selected that the writer could have crushed in his hands. After treatment it was dropped upon a table top, cautiously at first, and finally from a height of 18 inches upon its vertex without injury."

Local Color

An Armenian pageant was being given. Several Bible scenes were enacted. One of them represented the nativity, with the scene, of course, laid in a manger.

Just as the curtain was being drawn, a rather distant automobile horn out on the street was blown. An imaginative woman with a party of friends heard this and a pleased smile illuminated her face. "Now, isn't that clever of those pageant people!" she exclaimed, in a voice heard several feet away. "Having a cow moo off-stage, in order to get the proper atmosphere of the manger!"

Planes Fight Pests

Forest caterpillars which are threatening German forests are being attacked by low-flying airplanes that spray thousands of pounds of arsenated potash on tree tops, resulting in the destruction of hundreds of thousands of the destructive worms. The German department of agriculture is continuing the battle with augmented armaments. Sprays and gases are to be used from the ground while the airplanes attack from above. Similar anticaterpillar campaigns are planned throughout the country.—Family Herald.

Wolves Come Back

Wolves have been increasing for several years, especially in the northern states. When the price of wolf skins ran as high as $50 the animals were hunted with enthusiasm, while today, with the value of skins less than half what it was, the wolves are often allowed to increase. The danger from wolves is especially great in Canada, and these cross the border into the United States in large numbers, preying upon the cattle and sheep and doing great damage. The gray timber wolf is the commonest species.
