MERLE EVANS WED TO MISS JESSIE BENEDICT MONDAY

The marriage of F. Merle Evans of Norfolk to Miss Jessie Benedict of Hoskins was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents Monday, June 12, 1928, with Rev. Bowen of Norfolk performing the ceremonies.

Sunday evening people near 2nd and Main street called the fire department to hurry their equipment to that corner, as a fire was looking pretty bad over the State bank in the rooms occupied by the French Beauty Parlor of which Joe Smolsky is the proprietor. Joe was busy at the parlor, and when he saw the blaze he threw on a bit of water and extinguished it before the firemen got in action. Window shade and drapery were burned and paint on the window casing blistered. That made up the loss except that a large glass piece used in some of the work of the shop, was too hot when the water hit it, and it was badly wrecked. A match ignited in some unknown manner is that to have started the blaze.

The patient Joe was giving massage at the time, tho quite lame, is said to have made his exit safely.

THELMA PETERSON MARRIED SUNDAY

Becomes Bride of Chadron Man in Beautiful Nuptial Rites at Church Ceremonies.

Miss Thelma Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Peterson of Wayne, and William R. Launt of Chadron, Nebraska, were united in marriage Sunday evening, June 10, 1928, at 8:30 o'clock, at St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church in the presence of one hundred relatives and friends, Rev. C. F. H. Krueger performing the ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of pink and white peonies. The service was performed by candle light, the church being lighted by tall white tapers and a candelabrum on the altar.

Miss Alma Swamberg, aunt of the bride, played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's wedding march. Miss Swamberg also played these same selections at the wedding of the bride's parents twenty-five years ago. During the ceremony Miss Swamberg played "To a Wild Rose."

Before the ceremony Miss Minnie Will of Wayne sang, "I Love You Truly," and Miss Rose Will of Sioux City sang, "Oh, Perfect Love."

The bride entered the church with her father. She wore a white georgette dress with pearl ornaments. Her veil was of tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and white wild sweetpeas.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Norma Peterson, as maid of honor, who wore green figured georgette and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Miss Elizabeth Pleak of Villisca, Iowa, and Miss Henrietta Hurstad of Wayne acted as bridesmaids. Miss Pleak wore a dress of rose pink and carried yellow roses, while Miss Hurstad wore powder blue and carried pink roses. Little Jean Tobias of Sioux City, acted as flower girl. She wore a dress of orchid georgette and carried a basket of sweetpeas.

Mr. Launt and his bride left immediately after the reception. After an extended trip through the East, they will make their home at Chadron.

Out of town guests who attended the wedding were: Mr. Paul Launt of Oakdale, Mrs. Amanda Swamberg, Miss Alma Swamberg, and Mrs. Elmer Hultquist and son John, all of Holdrege. Sister Aurora Swamberg and Sister Julian Holt of Axtell, Mrs. S. I. Neis of Neligh, Mrs. G. H. Hanson of Fremont, Miss Elizabeth Pleak of Villisca, Iowa; Rev. and Mrs. Coy L. Stager of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Holmes and Mrs. Ernest Kloth of Norfolk, Mr. John R. Mellen of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hypse of Wakefield, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hancock of Council Bluffs, Iowa, Dr. and Mrs. D. D. Tobias and daughters, Marjorie and EJan; and Miss Rose Will of Sioux City, Iowa.

"John Doe" Replenishes County Court's Coffers With $150 in Real "Dough" Mon.

Man Found Asleep in His Car at Hoskins by Sheriff Saturday Is Brought Here.

PLEADS GUILTY TO 3 CHARGES

There may not be much in a name, but a man who said he was John Doe of Omaha is convinced that "Poor Richard" might have been a better choice, or at least no-worse.

He replenished the coffers of the county court to the extent of $150 in real "dough" here Monday when he pleaded guilty to possession, intoxication and driving while intoxicated.

Mr. "Doe", as he called himself, was found "dead to the world" in his car at Hoskins, Saturday by none other than the sheriff of Wayne county, who brought him here and placed him under lock and key, all of which was unknown to "John." For he didn't "come to" until the church bells were sounding their appeal the following morning.

Archie Stephens, who acted the part of the good Samaritan, in providing shelter and nursing him back to life, found a half-pint of alleged whiskey in his pocket. The other half, of what originally was a full pint, was admitted to be the cause of it all.

One hundred and fifty and costs was the verdict of Wayne county's benevolent judge upon hearing the testimony Monday morning. "John Doe" produced the "dough" and went his way, pondering what might have happened had he emptied the bottle, or had he christened himself "Poor Richard."

8 STOCKHOLDERS OF CITIZEN BANK HELD FOR DEBTS

According to a Lincoln dispatch of June 8th, eight stockholders and directors of the Citizens National bank of Wayne who signed a guaranty of the payment of all notes sold to the First National bank of Omaha by the bank, and D. E. Brainerd, president are held by the supreme court to be liable, thereunder, for the payment of notes individually executed by Brainerd. The guaranty was given so that the bank might get money it badly needed. The notes by Brainerd were not paid.

The decision turned on the grammatical construction of that part of the sentence which read "The Citizens National bank and D. E. Brainerd." The defendants said that this meant notes signed by both of them, but the court said it meant notes signed by either of them.

In the case of Koek vs. Bauman from Dixon county, an action to compel the performance of a contract to sell real estate, was decided in favor of Koek. The court held that the defendants had no legal ground for refusing to complete the transaction.

WIND STRIKES MCCOOK

The town of McCook, a division point on the Burlington in the south central part of the state was hard hit by a heavy wind Sunday night, and 300 persons are reported homeless as a result, tho but few people were injured, and but two perhaps fatally hurt, and 80 others were slightly injured. Homes were wrecked in about 25 square blocks, and the property loss is said to be nearly a million dollars.

Members of the Legion have organized to patrol the wind wrecked district to prevent plundering and other damages to property.

Hall was reported at North Platte and Lexington, and one person was injured at Ellsworth, and the rain was quite general over a large portion of the state.

Wind made quite a bit of damages at Leed, a suburb of Sioux City, and trees were uprooted there they tell, but no buildings reported seriously damaged.

ENTRANCE GAINED TO JEWELRY STORE

Amateurs Break Into Mines Jewelry Store Early Sunday Morning But Get Few Valuables.

$100 REWARD FOR INFORMATION

Local "sleuths" are offered an opportunity to cash up on their ability by solving the robbery of the Mines Jewelry store here early Sunday morning.

The reward is a standing offer of a detective agency by whom both local jewelers are protected against burglaries or thefts.

Amateur Job

Entrance to the store was made through a rear window, and all indications are to the effect that the job was pulled by new hands at that profession.

A Pinkerton detective who reported immediately after the discovery of the attempted robbery called it either a "home talent" job or one done by amateurs.

A careful checkup revealed that only about fifteen dollars worth of goods were taken. All diamonds, watches and the more valuable small jewelry is kept in a vault at night, and no attempt had been made to break into that.

No clues have been discovered, but anyone who might have information that would lead to arrest and conviction is eligible to the standing reward.

BUSY WEEK AT WAYNE HOSPITAL

The past week has been quite a busy one for the Wayne hospital people, and the list of people served during the week follows:

Wendell Swenney, son of Harry Swenney, had tonsil and adenoids removed Sunday.

Zola and Norman Wilson had tonsil removed Tuesday.

Roberta, Wilma and Francis Baker had their tonsils and adenoids removed Tuesday.

Delma Davis of Concord returned to his home after an appendix operation performed ten days ago.

A CHURCH DIRECTORY

Rev. H. A. Toekhaus presented us with a copy of the official directory of the Evangelical Lutheran church of Wayne, of which he is the pastor.

This little booklet gives the names and office of the Church Council, seven in number. The organist, choir director and members of the choir are given; the order of services, the Sunday school, Luther League, the congregational meetings and the Ladies Aid. This is followed by a complete list of the membership, with their postoffice address numbering about 250. It is a very complete directory, and mighty handy to have for a reference book on many occasions. Wayne business men evidently paid the cost with advertising patronage.

MAY CONSOLIDATE RADIO STATIONS KGCH AND WJAG

J. M. Shum, director of the local broadcasting station, was at Lincoln last week Thursday to meet the radio commissioners Sykes and Pichard and discuss the situation as to KGCH. There seems to be a possibility of combining KGCH and WJAG of Norfolk. The radio commission is having a great stirring up of things, and it was decreed that more than 90 of the stations in the great middle west would have to be discontinued.

HE IS A GOOD GARDNER, BUT HE COULDN'T CATCH A FISH

Mr. Morgan, who has for some years been conceded to be one of the expert anglers of this city, returned from the Minnesota waters the first of the week, where he spent a week in a vain attempt to bring in a mess. He didn't catch a fish in the week, and has offered to turn over his belt.

However, he still claims the gardening championship. He had a mess of new peas and potatoes of his own growing for dinner yesterday.

J. G. W. LEWIS ADDRESSED KIWANIS CLUB MONDAY

J. G. W. Lewis addressed the Kiwanians at their regular meeting here Monday, on "Hindrances to Good Citizenship." His talk was along the same line of thought as in the Memorial address given at the Presbyterian church a short time ago.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION

All eyes are on Kansas City this week, and according to the daily papers, the presidential nominee will be Hoover, and it looks like Davies as the vice presidential nominee at this writing, tho it might be any one of a half-dozen who have their lightning rod up. As the reports now indicate, it will be whoever the administration crowd shall select.

The only things that appears to have stumped the faction in control is the two planks in the platform relating to prohibition and agriculture, and they will doubtless be fought out on the floor of the convention today—and there is promise of a real spat, as how to word those two resolutions so as to catch those who are wet and those who are dry. The Farm relief plank seems to meet with much the same difficulty.

MOTHERS GUESTS OF "HELLO" GIRLS

Mothers Day is Observed at Telephone Office in Special Entertainment June 8.

The mothers of our telephone operators were entertained at the Central office Friday, June 8 from 2:30 to 5:00 p. m. The offices were decorated with red and white peonies and roses for the occasion.

The main feature for the entertainment, the mothers were provided with head sets, such as the operators wear, and listened in on the switchboard while the daughter was operating, both on local and toll, or long distance, where great surprise was expressed as to the work and patience necessary for the handling of their work.

Pictures were taken of the mothers present and of the operators. They were Mesdames Viola Fox, Will Fox, James Kelley, John Sylvanus and Wm. Norman. Brick ice cream and wafers were served, with red and white carnations as favors.

A TRIP TO THE WEST COAST

Wednesday afternoon Wm. Stewart and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tillman left for a 40 day vacation trip to the west coast. Mr. Stewart is city marshal, and Mr. Tillman is a rural route mail carrier on route 2, and both officials have substitutes while away.

Mr. Stewart tells us that they will drive to Fullerton the first evening, and spend the night there at the home of Chas. Sokel and wife, their daughter. The next stop for a visit will be at Hotchkiss, in Delta county, Colorado, where lives a sister of Mr. Stewart. After a short visit there, they will hit the trail for Stokton, California, a long pull, here lives R. F. Stewart and family, a brother whom Mr. Stewart has not seen for many years. After a visit here, they will head north for Seattle, Washington, to visit a sister and after a visit there, leave for home, with one stop scheduled for visit, at Boise, Idaho.

They are anticipating a good time, and good visits with relatives. Mr. Stewart and wife spent some time in Washington state, and expect to feel quite at home visiting the scenes of other days, but they hardly expect them to all look natural, for it is quite a number of years since they were in these parts.

MONEY FOR FARMERS—Let us finance your farm operations. If you want to buy, build, or retire an old loan we can help you. Our loans cost less than 5%. Write or call John H. Roper, Dodge, Nebr.—adv. J7-4t.

Over at Norfolk, says the Press, the Fairmont creamery folks are building a modern cream station, and propose to have it ready to occupy sometime in July. We are glad to hear this, and we are also glad to report that such a place has been built at Wayne, and that other cream stations here are kept in far better and more sanitary condition than in former years. Having been brought up in a dairy country, we have often wondered that Nebraska, with its laws for sanitary markets, drug stores, hotels, restaurants and kindred establishments, permits cream, one of the most susceptible commodities to filth and odors that exists, to be gathered in at just any old shack, without much pretense to sanitation, and allows the return of empty cream cans in open stock cars in which there is a bedding of several inches of manure to cushion the cans as they come from headquarters. Yet frequently in recent years, we have seen cans at this station in such filth. While conditions are much improved here along that line, we believe that some department of state should see that improvement is made; and if it cannot now be legally done, have a bit of legislation in the interest of more sanitary care of cream and milk products.

LIKE A MIRROR
(New York American)

Some republicans in New Jersey are blaming the present dissensions in their party upon the direct primary and want the state convention at Trenton to declare against it.

The direct primary is simply a mirror, not a cause. When political conditions are healthy, the picture it reveals is wholesome. It would be silly to smash a mirror just because you did not like what it reflects.

Do not forget that the only persons who would benefit from repeal of direct primaries would be the bosses so often served.

They like the convention system, with its back-room decisions the night before, because the public can be kept out and the deals kept dark.

We had a sample of that in the Harding nomination eight years ago. Direct primaries sometimes do cost more than conventions—at the time.

But not so much in the long run. What American politics needs is not fewer but more direct primaries, and a larger participation in them.

THE COST TO FARMERS OF DIRECT SELLING OF STOCK

Last week Monday Carl Wright was at Sioux City buying young cattle, and purchased 20 head, as did Alvin Rennie who was also in after stock. They accepted an invitation which was to all stock men, to attend the Goodfellowship dinner of the Sioux City Stock exchange, at which M. W. Borders, attorney for the Kansas City Live Stock exchange was the chief speaker. Mr. Wright was impressed with the importance of the figures he quoted, because he thinks it is a question which many of the stockmen are not familiar with, and admitting that he had had his eyes opened so as to see the matter in a new light, gave The Democrat a copy of the address that we might give to our readers at least a part of the talk, and some of the points that should be considered. Sorry that we cannot give it all, but it is too long for a local paper to give except in an abbreviated form:

Cost to Live Stock Interests

"I am here to address you tonight on direct marketing—direct marketing or direct buying, selling, or shipping, however the terms may be used interchangeably—of live stock, and that problem, gentlemen, is a problem which must and which will in the immediate future, engross your closest attention, if it has not already done so. That is particularly true of you gentlemen in this community, more so than in a community in the east, because fundamentally the success of you gentlemen is dependent on the success of agriculture. Your success after all is grounded upon the success of the agricultural community which surrounds you.

"Direct marketing has cut off of the value of every hog in this country from $2 to $3 a hundred, and that means in value of live stock between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 a year, and when you say that you are saying something, and you are meaning something. And that hits every one of you gentlemen, so that this problem, while it may be dry, perhaps due to the speaker, while it may be perhaps technical in some of its phases, nevertheless is a problem and is a question which you must sooner or later understand.

No Quarrel With Packers

"Although I am opposed to direct buying I have no particular quarrel with the packers. This direct buying as I see it has grown up more or less as an economic phase of our existence, following along in the same trend that other types of marketing have followed, and it is something that is going to pass in my opinion, but whatever I say tonight there is no particular criticism of the packers except for their adoption of a system which is fundamentally, economically unsound and they know it.

"In discussing the question of direct buying it is my opinion that you must get the background of the marketing of live stock animals in this country; you must understand the history, if you will bear with me I want to recapitulate the history of our live stock marketing. Many years ago some of you gentlemen can remember them; I can't—but many years ago our live stock marketing was done by barter and sale, one man who had an animal, or four, or five or 10 animals to sell would come to another man and they would meet, bargain and sell those animals. Gradually that system was found inefficient, uneconomic, and so of course discarded. We gradually built up large packing plants such as you have here and located close to the base of supply.

Packers Had Advantage

"Now, the packers, gentlemen, always had a tremendous advantage over the producers as such, and always will have, and that is no criticism of the packers. The producers are scattered, they are comparatively poor, they have comparatively little information of market conditions and of world conditions. The packers are few, they are concentrated, they are at these price fixing markets, they have men gathering information and gathering data, analyzing it, comparing it, and naturally they are better equipped in dealing on the markets than the producers are themselves.

and that gave rise to what has been termed a middleman, mistakenly termed a middleman in my opinion, namely, the commission men. You have at Sioux City, you have in all of these markets, commission men who are specially trained in the selling and the handling of the animals for the farmers. They have access to the same types of information and the same kind of information that the packers have, and it was to the advantage of the farmers to ship their animals to the commission men at these large markets and let them handle them.

Then, according to the speaker, after packers were in control of markets, attempts to have government control, and as a result came the enactment of the famous consent decree.

"That agitation continued from 1915 to 1920, and in 1920 there were grand jury investigations, and the packers then came to the government and they said, 'We want to settle this controversy, we want to end this agitation, we want the confidence of the public, we want the confidence of the producers.' And so they said, 'We will enter into a decree of court, a consent decree, which will divest us of all of our control of the markets, of the live stock markets of the producers.' The government agreed to that and the famous consent decree of 1920 was entered.

"They got out of their control of the markets by this consent decree which is now going to be enforced, and, realizing that, they turned them to some other form of controlling the live stock markets of this country and the prices. Relying on the consent decree, all of these drastic bills were dropped, and we got what we now know as the Packers and Stock Yards act of 1921.

Beginning Direct Buying

"The important thing about the Packers and Stock Yards act of 1921 was the definition of a 'stock yard'. The act gave to the secretary of agriculture and the department of agriculture control and regulation over public live stock competitive markets so that when you farmers and you producers ship into this market or any market you may be sure that in so far as it lies within human power you are going to be fairly and justly treated. There will be no unfair practice, no deceptive devices that will be used to tangle you and defraud you. But that control, gentlemen, extended only to public stock yards, and that was the beginning of direct buying.

"And what has happened? Today we have the packers purchasing of all federal inspected hogs for slaughter about 35 per cent direct. In 1922 that percentage was very small. That percentage has been constantly increasing, 1922 on up.

"And I say to you that if this direct buying is not checked, if it is not stopped, then your public live stock markets are doomed, and you won't have any Sioux City stock yards out here. All you will have will be concentration points and private stock yards owned by the packers.

Divide the Territory

"Now, I want to touch just for a moment on how this direct buying operates. In the first place it is based and grounded upon a division of territory by the packers. We have maps showing just how this division occurs. It is done either by territories, or it is done by railroads. At, for instance Kansas City, we have the Burlington. I have forgotten just who has that but you will find along the Burlington for instance, that Cudahy has all the so called selected shippers on the branch, and you turn to the Missouri Pacific and you will find that Swift has all along that line, and so on down the line.

"Now, when they decide that a certain packer shall have a certain territory, then they go to that point and there they will find what are known as shippers. Now, shippers are a necessary cog in the live stock industry, shippers are people who purchase animals from farmers who can ship probably in less than carload lots, because freight rates on carload lots and less than carload lots are tremendously different, and these shippers buy these animals, and they do the farmers a service by doing that, and they combine them, they grade them, they sort them, and then they ship them into market in a carload lot.

"Now, the packers will pick out the most energetic, perhaps the man best equipped for their purpose in the vicinity, and they will appoint him what we call a designated shipper, or a protected shipper, and when that happens then you will find the price being bid in that particular locality going up. Sometimes they bid higher than the public market price with no allowance for freight, and the result is that these other shippers that are there in the same towns, and the co-operatives, the shipping associations are driven out, and then that selected shipper has a monopoly, and then the price drops down."

Thus the game is played with the packers taking what seems to be an unfair advantage, and not only fixing a lower price on what their buyer buys, but in this manner, establishing as far as possible a less price for that which goes to the public stock yards, which because of the purchases of their buyers is often of the less desirable stock.

Thus the fight goes on, the packers because of their few numbers, being able to get together, getting the best of the game. As the speaker said before he closed the talk, "one system must go."

H. F. CUNNINGHAM FAMILY MOVE TO SIOUX CITY

(Bloomfield Monitor)

It is with regret that we convey the news to our readers and to the many friends of the H. F. Cunningham family, that they have moved from Bloomfield to Sioux City yesterday, where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham have resided in this city for the past 24 or 25 years, and during their stay in this city they have formed a wide acquaintance and they have a large circle of friends who will more than regret to learn of their departure.

During Mr. Cunningham's stay in this city he served the people as Mayor, held his positions in the Masonic lodge, and was among the leaders in the I. O. O. F. lodge. He will be missed from these circles, and his place will be hard to fill. "Flem" as he is familiarly known, was a good booster. He was for anything and everything which was for the good of the town. Civically, morally and for the upbuilding of the community, Mr. Cunningham ranked among the leaders.

This paper regrets to see the Cunningham family leave this city. They have a son and daughter, who are a source of pride to the citizens of this city. Boys and girls of this caliber are the future builders of a city like Bloomfield, and they have a large circle of friends who also will regret to see them leave this city. However, all of us wish the Cunningham family, success and prosperity in their new home. Mr. Cunningham is employed in the Sioux City Stock Yards where he has a fine position.

Mr. Cunningham formerly lived at Wayne and has many friends here, among the early settlers. He is son of Burle Cunningham of Bloomfield.

According to reports the careful fire risk inspections and enforcement is resulting in some reduction of the cost of fire insurance, and also materially reducing losses. It seems from the report that reduction is conditional upon certain roof improvements. Perhaps that is all right. At any rate the item says that the reduction of rate is voluntary on the part of the insurance people. We think they should volunteer some more reduction right here in Wayne for two reasons. First, the elimination of old buildings and general cleaning up and removal of fire-trap old frame buildings removed a hazard. Second—the fire fighting equipment is 100 per cent superior to what it was a few years ago. The paved street enables quick time to be made by the fire fighters, and time counts at a fire. Let us have a voluntary reduction of rates for places that deserve it.

"Within twenty-four hours after the bill had been signed, applications had been made for loans on four new transatlantic liners, designed to make the passage in four days. Ship-yard owners were predicting a boom, and it was announced that the government-owned passenger fleet, headed by the "Leviathan," may be put on the market shortly. Personnel remains a difficulty. Fifty percent of the crew, stewards included, must be American citizens. Since the stewards constitute about half the crew of a passenger ship, and since it is difficult to get Americans to serve in that department, deck and engine-room men will need to be almost entirely recruited from among our own citizens. It remains to be seen whether the encouragement to our merchant marine will be as great as is predicted. But if it is not, it won't be for lack of sympathy and aid from the Coolidge administration.—The New Republic. There must have been a lot of things just ready to be put over in a hurry. Perhaps that is why the president signed the bill, so his friends could get busy. If the farmers had just had some one on top who could loan that equalization fee quickly, perhaps their bill might have been signed. They should not have been so slow getting the backing of the financiers.

PERMANENT CHAIRMAN, MOSES

Senator Moses, the permanent chairman came on the air just after the dinner hour Wednesday, and as "static" was not bad we gave ear to the words of this great man from

New England, the only part of the nation he seemed to know existed. If the democrats shall not nominate Governor Al Smith, at their meeting, much of his speech will have lost its point, for it was chiefly a marshaling of the things the republicans might hope to change against this man, should he win the nomination in opposition to Mellon—no Hoover, we mean. According to the speech of acceptance of the permanent chairman, his first and only duty is to bury all live democrats—and bury them alive, too. He just rolled them into an open grave, and then was proceeding to fill the grave and tramp it dirt with which he would fill it, down solid.

It has not been our fortune in many years to listen to such a partisan talk. All good is in the gop, and all that is bad is represented by the party in opposition. There must have been a partisan bunch there, if they could cheer his sentiment.

A MAN TO BEAT SMITH

John T. McCutcheon, veteran cartoonist of the Chicago Tribune, has presented in his paper the real situation that confronts the republican party in this presidential campaign. His caption is: "Will the Keynote State the Real Purpose of the Convention?" Then he pictures the assembled delegates in the convention hall in Kansas City with the keynote in the form of the mythical elephant and making this statement: "Gentlemen, you will deliberate upon many important questions, some very controversial, but there is one, and only one question that is really important and which you should constantly bear in mind—namely: Can the man you vote for beat Al Smith?"

Mr. McCutcheon has said in a cartoon what The Journal has said editorially for some weeks. The warning, however, is one that really should not be at all necessary. It is so obvious, so patent, so self evident that Al Smith as leader of the democratic party would be a foe worthy of the best steel of the republican organization, a hard man to defeat no matter who faced him. If it were possible to put a man on the republican ticket who was a composite of the best strength owned by all the candidates in the field he still would have the fight of his life on his hands. If Herbert Hoover, Frank O. Lowden, Senator Curtis, Senator Watson, Senator Goff and Vice President Dawes were rolled into one there would not be any assurance that Al Smith would go down to defeat in November.

This does not mean that Al Smith is a greater man than all the rest put together. For when it comes to that it is seriously to be doubted that in statesmanship and actual ability he measures up to some of the republican candidates. There's a difference between being a successful governor of New York and a successful president of the United States. But the thing to consider in this campaign is not Al Smith's actual ability nor even his reputation for ability. Instead the compelling thing in front of the republican party is Al Smith's popularity, his vote getting ability, the enthusiasm he has aroused all over the country and the fact that on the wet issue he appeals to thousands of republicans who are more opposed to prohibition than to the democratic party.

Because of this the republican party which opens its convention tomorrow simply cannot afford to weaken itself anywhere. It has got to be strong to win. It has got to name a man who can appeal to all the country if it is to keep Al Smith out of the White House. If there ever has been a time when the republican party needed harmony in order to continue in power that time is now. Al Smith's shadow is growing taller every day.

The above editorial is from that always dependable republican paper, the Sioux City Journal, and was handed to us by an ardent Smith supporter who thinks this an evidence of the fright that the possible democratic candidate is throwing into the republican ranks. That may be—and again it might be that there is fear on the part of the republicans that should Smith be the nominee and elected he will be less liberal as a supporter of the dry law than the present big distiller, who has been placed at the head of the enforcement department. It is not every administration that can pick the leading distiller of liquor in all the land to enforce the law restricting the sale of liquors. They might name one who would enforce the law without fear or favor, and that might work a real hardship on the richer class of violators. A new man might make a mistake and prosecute some one of those now immune from prosecution, and that would be almost a national scandal.

Again it is possible that the fear is that the rich spoils of office will not be as open to them as in the past. A new man might see and stop a lot of graft. Might cut government expenses and deprive a lot of pet chair-warmers of a sit-u-ation. In fact the many possibilities that might come to benefit the people from a change of administration makes them shudder.

THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Not belonging to those of that political faith, and not drilling in the financial class with those who attended, this editor naturally did not get in at the show—but we had friends there, and friends of the people, and we can tell you what some of those said. Staunch republican delegates nationally known, and in position to know just what they were talking about and also to make comparisons, so we quote them:

Just Like a Funeral

William Allen White, a delegate from Kansas, draws this picture of the Kansas City convention: "These crowds are without emotion. Even Hoover, who is in the lead, evokes little enthusiasm here. Voices are hushed in the lobbies and on the streets. The thing resembles much as it resembles the funeral of McKinley.

Typically republican conventions are calm. This one is without spirit, without sparkle, almost without interest. The reason for this political atrophy lies in the lack of powerful and interesting leaders. Not only are the presidential candidates on the whole colorless men, but the convention is without striking leadership. There is not an epigram in a carload of these leaders."

Viewed from the angle of another delegate, Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois, the convention looks like this:

"The republican national convention of 1928, about to write history of tremendous consequence to this nation, is what?

"One Man!
"Who?
"Uncle Andy Mellon!

"After all our fuss and feathers, our best efforts in a thousand directions, we approach the zero hour in this critical moment awaiting his one word.

"There looms up this great figure, a sort of Solomon, who is to decide whose child this nomination is."

Mrs. McCormick's report goes far to explain Mr. White's, says an exchange.

A convention consisting of Andrew Mellon naturally would be one without emotion, without enthusiasm, without sparkle, atrophied and colorless.

Mr. Mellon never sparkles. He seldom smiles. From his pallid face there comes an occasional word spoken hardly above a whisper.

As is Mellon, so are Coolidge and Hoover, the two other outstanding figures of the party and—from afar—of the convention. Neither is given to smiles or sparkles. Any one of the three would sooner drop dead than attempt an epigram. They are dour and gloomy men, and it is dour and gloomy men they designate to speak for them—Simon Fess as keynoter, Reed Smoot as chairman of the platform committee.

It is little wonder that William Allen White finds their convention to resemble nothing so much as a funeral.

A CONSTRUCTIVE PLATFORM

Never has the democracy of the state adopted a more comprehensive and constructive platform than is placed before the voters this year. Recognizing that a party must grow by natural accretion to its ranks the invitation has been extended and welcome into the organization is assured active young men and women. Look at these demands of the party platform as adopted by the unanimous vote of delegates in the Omaha convention. First, the immediate reduction of the tariff; second, reduction of transportation rates; third, the reversal of the deflation policy; fourth, the enactment and carrying into effect without delay the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill. Then, if you please look over these criticisms and promises to undo the bad of republican administrations and see if there is anything with which the citizenship of this agricultural state should not support. Enumerated as among the more important is a repeal of the code, repeal of the intangible tax, reduction of license fee on farm trucks, and a more equitable distribution of the gasoline tax between the state and the counties so that county roads may be better improved. The success of a democrat state and national ticket will bring changes as indicated here. Isn't it worth while? No one appears satisfied with present conditions and there is an opportunity of righting matters by a return to the democracy of the fathers, says the Polk County Democrat.

CONVENTION NOTES

The farmers were not admitted—a fact that should tend to show that it is their votes only that are wanted.

The big Biz is in the saddle at Kansas City.

Hoover and his gang had the pins all set, and the midwest could not bowl them over.

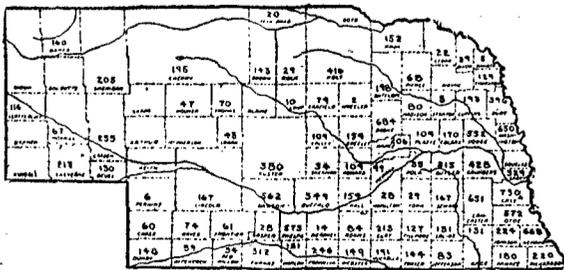

The farmers at least have the committee on resolutions guessing on how best to fool them this time.

It has taken two night sessions of the resolutions committee to frame a farm relief plank that will look right to the farmer, and can be evaded after the farmer votes are counted.

If they would say what they mean in plain English the platform might read protection is right for the manufacturer, but not constitutional for the producer of raw material.

THE RAIN AND STORM

It was a fine rain of 1 3-8 inches that visited Wayne and vicinity Monday morning. For a short time the wind was rather boisterous, and broke a few limbs from trees, but no damages reported to buildings. The rain fell rapidly for a short time, and then became more mild. Dry cisterns were filled, and the Logan raised to half bankfull. The moisture was needed, the according to reports only pastures, hay and some small grain were suffering for want of moisture. Corn is a good stand, and growing slowly—due more to the prevailing low temperature than to the lack of moisture.

WHAT IS BEING DONE FOR THE INVALID POOR

Lincoln, June 12.—This map shows the number of days patients of meager means from the various counties of Nebraska were cared for at the University of Nebraska medical college hospital at Omaha during the past fiscal year. Each county is entitled to a certain number of eligible patients, or a certain number of hospital days, each year. The number of days is based on the population of the county.

Because of its more spectacular nature and because of its close association with the people of the state, the work of the hospital and the outpatient department of the medical college receives the most attention.

Forty-three thousand hospital days represents the grand total of service afforded the poor of the state during the past fiscal year, which means in ordinary language that each of the 3,000 patients spent on the average about fourteen days in the hospital. During the year 1,000 minor surgical operations and 500 major operations were performed, while 43,000 visits were made by the doctors to patients in the hospital. Two thousand x-ray examinations and treatments were given, while 10,000 prescriptions were filled and as many laboratory tests made. Three hundred and thirty-eight babies were born at the hospital.

TODAY IS FLAG DAY-- UNFURL "OLD GLORY" LAUREL WOMAN IS INJURED BY HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Unfurl Old Glory to the breeze
And let her wave on high;
There is no finer emblem
Beneath this earth's blue sky;
It stands for peace and justice
And equal rights for all
Of those oppressed and suffering;
It answers to the call;
It stands upon a dignity
Well earned by might and right;
It shirks no plain marked duty,
Nor shuns a righteous fight;
It offers to the worthy
Safe possession of their gain,
Obtained by honest labor
Of human hand and brain.
The stripes upon her fabric
Have a meaning all their own,
And the stars upon her azure
Are bright jewels in her crown.
So to Old Glory on the breeze
We proudly bow the head,
And to soldiers and to sailors
Who fought and died and bled.

Mrs. A. T. Arnold, of Laurel was badly injured north of Wayne yesterday when the car in which she was riding was struck by a car going at a high rate of speed, the driver of which is unknown.
Mrs. Arnold and other Laurel women were returning home when they were struck and in the excitement failed to get the license number of the "Hit and Run driver."
Mrs. Arnold was taken to the Wayne hospital for treatment, and is reported to have escaped serious injuries.

Burle Cunningham from Bloomfield was here Tuesday evening, returning from a visit at Sioux City and Silver City, Iowa.

Mrs. Chas. McConnell and son, the junior Charles were at Sioux City last week, and while there the lad had his tonsils removed.

T. S. Hook, superintendent of the city schools, is at Iowa City, taking a term of summer-school at the University of that state.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Griffith, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. E. L. Griffith, were visiting at their former home north of Yankton, South Dakota.

Nebraska pharmacists met at Omaha Monday and coming until today. They expect an attendance of 500, and have an interesting program to present.

G. O. Smith from Lincoln is here this week visiting at the J. W. Jones home, and with W. K. Smith and wife, and also looking after his land interests in this county.

Mrs. J. H. Boyce was at Norfolk a short time Wednesday, going over to spend a little time with her sister, Mrs. Danielson, who is critically ill at that place, with small hope of recovery.

A card from Marcus Kroger now in Rochester, tells that he is getting along nicely, and it was that that he would undergo an operation Wednesday for an internal goitre. Then if all goes well, he will begin to gain strength and rally for a home trip.

J. L. Wilson, express messenger between Emerson and Bloomfield, and back again, with headquarters at Wayne, is off today for a bit of vacation. He will stop a little while at Omaha, and then go on to Leavenworth, Kansas for a short stay with relatives in the "sunflower" state.

Mrs. S. E. Wilson from Kansas City was here this week visiting her sister Mrs. H. L. Hornby of this place and another sister, Mrs. Henry Jones of Carroll. Last year they had a reunion at which seven sisters were present, the first time that all had been together for more than a half century.

It is a fine window display that "Bunt" has in the Hiscow window, showing hose—garden hose, we mean, the cotton or silk hose shown seems to attract the most attention, especially among the bachelors of the place, some of whom even go behind the screen to get a better view of the display.

KINDLING—About a load of good kindling for sale, Mildner Grocery, Phone 134.—adv.

"The Crowning Beauty of Woman Is Her Hair"

And how shall she best care for and preserve that Crown of Beauty?

The careful, competent hair dresser can do most to make it more becoming without injury to the hair.

The Permanent Wave

As given at the French Beauty Parlor is perhaps the best way to beautify. They do not so operate as to make the hair "kinky," but leave it in smooth waves, like a perfect marcel.

With none but expert operators, under direction of Joe Smolsky, the proprietor, and Jo Martin, an expert and experienced operator, perfect satisfaction may be assured whether the lady wants a permanent wave, a marcel, a finger wave, scalp treatment or shampoo.

Some may give waves for a less price—but not for the Best of work, and insurance against injury to the hair.

OVER STATE BANK

Sam Sadden was out from Sioux City Wednesday, looking after business matters here.

Mrs. Dee Moore from Norfolk has been visiting a few days at the W. B. Vail home and returned to Norfolk Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Harold Blair of Lincoln, who has been spending a few days at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Blair, returned to her home this morning.

Mrs. Geo. Crossland went to Sioux City this morning to meet their son Paul, who comes from Minneapolis, where he is studying medicine, for his summer vacation.

I. C. Trumbauer and family are enjoying a vacation this week and are visiting points in Kansas, where they have friends and relatives. They are driving, and plan to return the last of the week.

Geo. Church and wife from near Lincoln, who were here last week visiting at the home of her parents, P. C. Crockett and wife, left Sunday and are now on the way to visit at the home of his father in Oregon.

Dr. Hayes of Lincoln, chief of the bureau of animal industry of the state, was at Wayne Wednesday, looking after matters in connection with the final test of cattle tuberculosis, and the little work necessary to make Wayne an accredited county.

L. W. Kratavil, who is sojourning at Excelsior Springs in good old Missouri, not far from Kansas City, sends word that himself and wife plan to tarry a couple of weeks longer at that retreat. Perhaps Mr. K. wanted to take a week off to attend the convention so near to his temporary abiding place.

Misses Amanda and Rose Kugler, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kugler, left for a vacation trip to California, planning to stop first at Lodgepole for a day or two, then take a thru train from Sidney to Los Angeles where they will visit at the home of a sister, and see the sights of southern California.

W. J. Rupert and wife of Burlington, and Mr. R. is one of the train crew between Emerson and their home town, were here Tuesday, on their way to Sioux City, where they were going to meet their daughter, who was on her way home from Kalamazoo, Michigan, where she teaches. The young lady will spend vacation with home folks.

Mrs. Dixon from Wakefield was a Wayne visitor Wednesday, and said that while they did not think they were getting very much, the depositors of the failed bank here, were getting a 20 percent dividend from the assets of the bank—but she added that it was not that that those who had bonds there were in position to get anything from them.

Miss Della Thompson of Hannan, a summer school student, who was sent to the hospital threatened with appendicitis last week, seemed to rally and returned to the dormitory—but only for a day or two, when a second attack came, and Sunday she underwent an operation at the Wayne hospital for the removal of the trouble. Her friends here report that she is rallying nicely from the shock.

Mr. and Mrs. Berg and sons have moved to Wayne from Wausa, and have purchased the Donald Larson property on Lincoln near 24 street to purchase a property to get a place in which to live. Mr. Berg is in the employ of Contractor Foster, and the sons have places. Mrs. Berg is well known here, having attended college here for a number of years. She is now of the Wausa teaching force, and will go to that place again when the school year begins.

Last week Mr. A. M. Helt went to North Platte to visit their son Raymond and wife, and also to be present when the son underwent an appendix operation, which had been conceded to be necessary for some time, but had been postponed until he had finished his year of school work at Grand Island. He underwent the operation Saturday, and according to reports is rallying nicely, and no serious complications developing. Mrs. Helt will probably return home soon.

D. A. R. CLOSES YEAR

Last Saturday afternoon the Daughters of the American Revolution members were entertained by Mrs. Cavanaugh and Mrs. Nyburg at the home of the former, in their last meeting of the season, and their next gathering will not be until fall, and will be announced then.

The roll call was responded to by flag quotations. Mrs. H. W. Theobald read an interesting, instructive and entertaining paper on the history of the order in this state. Then followed the regular business of the organization. Mrs. Paul Siman was a guest.

"Chuck Keyser:—(feeling salad fork) "For what purpose was this constructed."

PRACTICE TEACHING IN THE TRAINING SCHOOL

(From The Goldenrod)

With an enrollment of 239 pupils, distributed in grades from the kindergarten to the tenth, inclusive, the Training school, with eleven supervisors, has during the first three quarters taken care of 163 student teachers. Of these ten had one year of experience; eleven, two years; seventeen, three years; seven, four years; nine, five years; two, seven years; and two, ten years. Those with less than three years of experience taught nine weeks in each of two departments. Each grade below the seventh constitutes a department and on an average takes care of eight student teachers each quarter. In the junior high school, consisting of grades seven, eight, nine, and ten, only six students are assigned to one supervisor. Each student teaches and participates in the work of the department to which he is assigned one hour each day. Thus, in each of the first six grades, the children work through the day under eight different practice teachers.

The question is often asked: How can children progress in their work when taught by eight different teachers each day? The question is a fair one, but the answers one hears are often based upon misinformation or preconceived notions. It is the purpose of this article to state the conditions under which practice teaching is done in the Wayne school and thus give the public the necessary facts for an honest answer to the question.

That children do progress satisfactorily under the above regime cannot be gainsaid. In all of the grades the pupils are checked carefully with standards of achievement in the various subjects taught. Without an exception, when so tested, our work is shown to be well up to grade, or even much better. Then, too, during the school year, children come to us from other schools, thus giving us an opportunity to compare our work with that done elsewhere. In no case has our work been discredited by this comparison. Finally, our pupils go to other schools, and, according to reports, hold their own wherever they go.

What, then, is the explanation of the satisfactory progress our pupils make in the Training School? In the first place, our children have only one teacher, not eight. Each grade has a supervisor and she is in charge at all times. She chooses the teaching materials, determines their organization, checks the daily assignments, sets up standards of achievement and of discipline, formulates methods of instruction, and plans the school routine. There is no break or change in any of these factors. They remain uniform throughout the day. Instead of the children adjusting themselves to the eight teachers, the teachers are required to adjust themselves to the school as determined by the supervisor. The practice teachers are merely that many helpers in the room. Our children thus have the advantage of an expert teacher with eight helpers; while in other schools pupils have but a single teacher with no one to help her.

A second point that is overlooked in answering the above question is the fact that the practice teachers in reality are not beginners. As shown above, over one-third have as much experience as teachers generally have. All of them have been in training for practice teaching at least a year before they began teaching. They are not permitted to experiment with methods and devices. As already suggested, they use the methods and devices which their supervisors have tried and found successful. In no sense, then is it true that the student teachers "practice on children." There is much less of this "practicing on children" in the Training school than may be found in schools elsewhere.

Lastly, each lesson taught is prepared thoroughly by the student teaching it. This is made possible because each student teaches but one subject daily. His program is so arranged that he has ninety minutes for the preparation of the lesson. He is not permitted to teach the lesson unless he can convince his supervisor that he is prepared. Such preparation is all but impossible in an ordinary school in which the teacher teaches as many as fifteen classes daily and has not to exceed ten minutes for the preparation of each lesson.

When all of the above facts are kept in mind, one can readily see why the pupils in the Training School are making more than ordinary progress in their work. Practice teaching as it is done in the Wayne Training School must thus be considered, not a liability, but an asset. It is generally so considered by the parents who are sending their children to the school.

WHEN THE FARMERS MARCH

(New York World)
When the embattled farmers of many western states march on Kansas City, as they are likely to do unless headed off by some reassurance more definite than fair words, there will be a lot of joking because they do their marching in good automobiles, equipped with adequate camping outfits and bearing none of the aspects of tramps and starvelings. Such joking reacts. It expresses ray and bare the notion which the eastern manufacturer and his political errand-boys have of the western farmer that he ought not to complain since manifestly he is not starving or clad in rags.

What big business fails to grasp is that the farmer is in big business also, but that it is a big business so subdivided as to make concerted action difficult—though the difficulty may be surmounted. Every farmer is a capitalist if he owns his farm, a laborer if he works upon it. If he complains that he is not getting interest on his capital, he is but echoing the "profitless prosperity" cry we used to hear, and he does not like it. Often he complains, and justly, that he is not even getting fair wages as a workman.

When the eastern manufacturer is not satisfied with his returns he orders congress to raise the tariff on his goods, disposes of domestic competition by the familiar machinery of trusts and combinations and presents the bill to the consumer, who pays or stops consuming. The McNary-Haugen bill asked of congress for the farmer no more than the protected manufacturer is already enjoying. He may not get as much as he asks; he ought not to. But in that case he may have something to say about the tariff of his eastern critics. They would better not make too many jokes because he "marches" in a comfortable car. If he marches at all it will be a protest requiring most respectful attention.

Nov. 26—Miss Edith Beechel, senior sponsor, entertained the members of this class at the Scaee home. Each came in costume to represent some child in literature.

The judges of costumes gave Mabel Senter (Old Mother Goose) first place, Professor Coteman (Jack) second, and Ramona McElroy (Hiawatha) third place.

THE EMPLOYMENT SITUATION IN THE NEBRASKA SCHOOLS

(From the Goldenrod.)

(In compiling the figures for this report, the last three graduating classes, consisting of 88 four-year graduates and 482 two-year graduates, making a total of 570 students, of which only 23 are unaccounted for, were taken as a basis.)

A study of the employment situation in the Nebraska schools has revealed some very interesting facts. First and foremost, we find that High School and Administrative positions are restricted almost entirely to degree students. Secondly, for grade work the better systems require two years and experience, while the lesser systems require at least two years of proper college preparation. Thirdly, the only schools which consistently accept two-year students for teachers are rural schools. (In this connection it is interesting to note that over ten per cent of the two-year graduates of the last three years have been compelled to accept rural schools at rural salaries.) Fourth, experience is a big factor in obtaining any position and accounts for the ability of some two-year students to get fairly good positions. Fifth, there is an alarming increase in the number of two-year students compelled to seek rural positions. Data compiled in this study show a 434 per cent increase in 1926 and a 95 percent further increase in 1927 in the number of two-year students in rural schools. It is interesting to note that no four-year students are in rural work.

Sixth, there is also a decided increase in the number of two-year graduates, who, falling to obtain jobs, return to school to finish, out their degree requirements in order to have a better opportunity of getting a good position. The figure will illustrate this tendency best. Included in this list of those unemployed at present in school work are the number of actually jobless, and the number compelled to seek other occupations because of failure to obtain schools.

Thus 84 percent of the A. B.s are employed in school positions as against only 69.3 percent of the two-year graduates.

Seventh, there is no doubt whatever that those who hold degrees get the better jobs. We know that the executive positions of Superintendent and Principal, together with the position of Coach, are the best paid in any school.

Out of 88 A. B. students 29, or 32.95 per cent were in this class.

Out of 482 2 years pupils 39, or 8.09 percent were in this class.

This means that on the average one out of every three degree students may expect to hold an executive position, while only one out of every thirteen two-year students may have that expectation. The surprisingly high number of two-year students in executive and coaching positions is mainly due to the fact that most of them have a background of considerable experience.

So far we have merely studied the relative numbers of the two classes in Executive or Coaching positions. Now let us study the relative numbers in the teaching positions, taking as three separate types the High School, Grade School and Rural School jobs.

37.5 percent of the A. B.s get High School positions as against 9.54 per cent of the two-year students. That only 2.27 percent of A. B. grads take grade work as against 30.29 percent of the two-year diploma students that no A. B. students are in rural work as against 16.37 percent of the two-year students in such work.

Adding the High School positions with the Executives, we see at a glance that 70.45 per cent of the A. B. graduates are in higher secondary work, as compared with only 17.63 percent of the two-year students. In the face of all this evidence, can there be any doubt that the four year man or woman gets the best job?

Note in particular the increase in the number of two-year students compelled to take rural schools, the very apparent tendency of degree holders to get the more highly paid positions of Executive and High School teachers. At the same time, note the increasing number of those who are getting degrees so as to have a better opportunity at the good jobs. Then make a firm resolution to yourself not to leave school until you have your degree, so that you, too, may reap the benefits of a higher class, home highly paid, position.

Apparently There Is Much Virtue in Soap

Kings are like other human beings. They need to be washed occasionally. Even when they exist only in bronze. King Henry VII has his tomb in Westminster abbey. Nobody ever paid any attention to the grave. The monument was considered to be of no importance, historically or esthetically. From this opinion to the belief that King Henry VII did not amount to much as a monarch, was only a step. Somebody had the notion to clean the tomb a short time ago. The stone was scrubbed and the bronze polished up. Great surprise. The sculpture was discovered to be the magnificent work of an Italian artist, Pietro Torregiano, of whom Kipling speaks in his novel, "Just So." Since that time thousands of visitors to the abbey have asked to see the masterpiece, and book publishers report that there has been a sudden demand for works on Henry VII. Henry might be recognized, one of these days as a great king, thereby establishing that fame depended on a little bit of soap.—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

People who know Mr. Gatti-Casazza, director of the Metropolitan opera, know he has a positive talent for dealing with bores. Here is the newest story they are telling in musical circles about him:

One of his songbirds, a man not a bit lacking in self-assurance, has a voice of peculiar range. He started as a tenor, changed his mind and register and warbled for a while as a baritone and then actually sang as a basso. One day he cornered the busy Mr. Gatti and edged him into an audition chamber at the opera house. First he sang his tenor notes, then his baritone, then rendered a few bars basso profundo. After which he drew himself up and with the utmost pride demanded:

"Tell me, am I a tenor, a baritone or a basso?"

"No!" roared Gatti, seizing his hat and leaving the room.—New York Sun.

Chilly Forecast

The earth is growing in bulk on account of the meteoric dust that falls on it. It has recently been estimated that 100 tons fall daily over the surface of the globe and that millions of years hence this will have increased the thickness of the earth considerably. This would have a tendency to bring us closer to the sun. But centrifugal force is augmented at the same time in greater proportion and counteracts this tendency; consequently the earth would be swept away from the sun, with the result that its distance from that body would be considerably augmented. This is spoken of as having possibly happened to some of the larger, outer planets—notably Jupiter—in the remote past.

Why Bishop Quit Betting

That he spoke from experience when denouncing betting, was the declaration of Stirling Woolcombe, bishop of Whitley, at a meeting in York, England, recently. "While at Oxford I was lucky and became extremely interested," he said. "My last bet was ten shillings on a five-to-one winner of the Chester cup, yet my friend and I resolved after the race never to bet again, not because we had lost—we had won a considerable sum—but because we were finding out that when betting enters into you it saps your highest interests. I believe it would have driven me to hell if I had gone on with it."

Eternal Youth?

My grandad, raising Duroc hogs, said, "Things are going to the dogs." His grandad, in his house of logs, said, "Things are going to the dogs." His grandad, in his English hogs, said, "Things are going to the dogs." His grandad, in his old skin togs, said, "Things are going to the dogs." But here and now I wish to state, those dogs have had a good long wait. International Student.

United States Law in Dealing With Old Age

It is significant that the discriminations practiced against men and women past their prime are of an origin peculiarly American. Abroad, such practices are hardly known. In virtually every civilized nation the responsibility for the old age of workers has been removed from the individual concern and properly placed upon the entire industrial society, writes Abraham Epstein in the Forum.

Instead of depending upon each employer to provide against the handicaps of old age, comprehensive old age insurance or pension plans have been instituted which guarantee the aged worker at least some assistance in his declining years.

These social provisions permit employers to engage men and women at any age without hesitation as long as they are capable of performing a particular task. When they become incapacitated either the invalidity insurance system or the old age pension plan takes care of them. In none of the industrial countries is the attainment of the age of forty fraught with the dangers that confront our American wage earners whether manual or professional. May not the solution of our problem lie along the same path?

Bees Have Long Been Workers for Mankind

The busy bee was probably the first created thing whose labors were exploited by mankind.

In the Hittite code of laws, dated 1800 B. C., punishments for the theft of bees and hives were mentioned. About 4000 B. C. the bee was adopted as the symbol for the king of Lower Egypt. Hieroglyphic bees were found from the First dynasty down to Roman times—a period of some 4,000 years.

Beekeeping was regularly practiced in Egypt in 2000 B. C.; reliefs showing the conformation of the hives—mud structures placed one over the other—and the men engaged in pouring out the honey and sealing it in jars. But thousands of years before this the wild honey was extracted from rocks and trees. It was only in comparatively recent times, some six or seven thousand years ago, that it occurred to man to reduce the bee to slavery.

An Obvious Need

Israel Zangwill used to be fond of telling a tale about his little son Oliver—now grown up—to illustrate the debt he owed to his wife for taking such good care of him. Seeing a snail in the middle of the road, near Far End (their home at East Preston, Sussex), Mr. Zangwill removed it by hand to the hedge.

"What's that for?" asked Oliver, then a mere baby. His father explained that if the foolish snail continued to wander about the middle of the road it would certainly be run over.

"Then why doesn't he get a wife to look after him?" asked the little boy, drawing upon his daily experience of woman's sphere in married life.—Exchange.

Improved Miner's Pan

To take the place of the familiar pan in separating gold from sand and gravel, a whirling bowl devised by a Nebraska man is operated on the same principle as a cement mixer or a cream separator, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A revolving screen removes the coarse gravel before the material is run into the bowl itself. This is fitted with grooves that retain the heavy gold particles as the container turns. The outfit is operated by a small engine and there is a pump to furnish water. A small unit will handle from twenty to thirty tons of material a day.

Microscopic Writing

Ages ago in the ancient world the Iliad of Homer was said to have been written by a hermit in such tiny letters that the complete work could be preserved in a walnut shell.

This story was doubted for many years until a learned Frenchman proved that by writing with a fine quill pen on a piece of vellum eight inches by ten, he could write thirty verses in each line and could get 250 lines on each side of the sheet. Thus the vellum would hold 7,500 verses on each side, making the total of the 15,000 verses of the Iliad.

Worst Time for Storms

More storms occur at 5 p. m. than at any other hour of the day. Statistics gathered by the weather bureau at Kansas City during the period from 1906 to 1925 inclusive show that in that time 91 storms occurred at 5 p. m., says Nation's Business. This was more than at any other time. The hours next in number were: 3 a. m., 84; 7 p. m., 83; 8 p. m., 78; 4 a. m., 76; and 10 p. m., 69. At noon, 29 storms occurred; at 8 a. m., 81, and at 9 a. m., 24.

The Robbery

"What happened when the robbers broke into the Right Place store?" asked an acquaintance. "When they heered me jump out o' bed upon getting the alarm," replied Constable Slackputter, the faithful guardian of the peace and dignity of Petunia, "they tumbled through the door and flew like the wind, as the feller said. Went so fast, I-gorry, that none of the clews they dropped have struck the ground till plumb yet."—Kansas City Star.

Fungus Causes Clover Failure

Anthracnose Blamed for Decline in Popularity as Forage Crop.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Clover failure" has been one of the causes for the decline in popularity of red clover as a forage crop. Diseases—area, among the important causes of the failure of the crop, and of the diseases anthracnose is the most important. In Technical Bulletin 28-T, "Clover Anthracnose Caused by Colletotrichum Trifolii," just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, John Monteith, Jr., of the bureau of plant industry reports studies of the disease. This bulletin is devoted to the anthracnose caused by the fungus Colletotrichum trifolii. A subsequent paper will treat a similar disease caused by another fungus, Gloeosporium caulivorum.

Clover failure was reported in 1905 in Tennessee, and has since been reported in many clover growing sections. Mr. Monteith reports that several other legumes, but not all, are susceptible to the damage. This particular fungus does its greatest damage in the southern part of the clover belt both because the fungus lives over the winter more readily there and more particularly because high temperatures and humidity in that section are more favorable to the development and spread of the fungus at the time it is attacking the plants.

Control by spraying or dusting is not practicable even if it were effective. The injury can be reduced by a change of seeding dates. The fungus thrives in the heat of summer. If seeding is delayed until August, the plants are likely to escape injury and go into the winter in good condition and would then make at least one crop before the fungus is at its height the second year. The common practice of sowing a nurse crop with clover is particularly unfavorable. The clover loses protecting shade and is somewhat weakened when the nurse crop is harvested, and this happens at the time when the fungus finds conditions most favorable.

Best Control.

The best control and one which has proved effective in Tennessee is found in the selection of strains resistant to the disease. Such a strain was developed at the Tennessee experiment station and has retained a high degree of resistance. This resistant strain failed when seeded in New England, but Mr. Monteith reports that the damage there was from a similar anthracnose caused by the other fungus he has studied. Home-grown seed from stock produced in regions where the disease is regularly severe is, in general, more resistant than imported seed, or seed from regions where the disease is not prevalent. Natural selection must be depended on to play an important part, Mr. Monteith concludes, in increasing the degree of resistance in clover grown continuously in an anthracnose infested region.

This bulletin is technical in character and may be obtained free upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Individual Feeding of Dairy Cows Is Favored

Different cows have different capacities for converting feed into milk. No man who has not a full appreciation of the wide variation in individual cows will be fully successful as a feeder. Some cows may have natural capacity for producing large quantities of milk, and may not receive feed enough for maximum production. By increasing the feed of the highest-producing cows and carefully consulting the milk sheets on which each cow's daily production is recorded, the skillful feeder will soon find that some cows in the herd will respond to the increased allowance and return a good profit on the additional feed given. On the other hand, there are cows that have a limited capacity for milk production and are very liable to be overfed. By carefully studying each individual cow the feeder will soon ascertain the point beyond which any addition to the grain ration becomes unprofitable.

Short Farm Notes

Cabbage growers need particularly to watch crop market reports. In a short crop year, consider holding part of the crop, unless the fall price is very high.

Grain growers annually lose millions of dollars from plant diseases. These diseases can be controlled. Stinking smut of wheat is one of the most serious of these diseases.

When tomato plants bear fruit the size of an egg, a top dressing of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia will increase its size and give the fruit a deeper color. Naturally this will also increase the size of your crop.

All the hardier vegetables, like onions, carrots and beets, should be hurried into the ground. But there's nothing gained by being too brisk with such tender ones as beans and cucumbers. They don't make any headway in chilly weather.
