

WILLIAM SCHRUMPF PASSES SUDDENLY

Dies at Lincoln Hospital Monday Following Operation for Ruptured Appendicitis.

AGENT HERE FOR SEVEN YEARS

William Schrupf, for more than seven years the local agent of the C. St. P. M. & O. railway, died at a Lincoln hospital in the early morning hours of Monday, June 18, 1928, from acute gangrenous appendicitis, for which he underwent an operation a few days before, his illness from this final attack being but four days, at the age of 57 years, 10 months and 9 days.

A summary of his life furnished to the Democrat, tells that he was born at Highland, Illinois, August 9, 1870, son of Fredrick and Johannah Schrupf. His early life was doubtless spent in the vicinity of his birth, but that is not mentioned here. At Omaha, October 13, 1904, he was united in marriage to Jennie Workman, who with four daughters survive him. They are Mrs. E. A. Ramsey, Casville, New York, Misses Frieda and Nannetta Schrupf and Mrs. Foy Cross at the home here. Two brothers, Peter Schrupf of Highland, Illinois, and Henry Schrupf of Giant Park, Illinois. The sisters are Christina Giese of Edwardsville, Illinois and Mrs. John Hirsch, of Wichita Falls, Texas. He also leaves one grandson.

Mr. Schrupf was a successful railroad man, acting for years in the capacity of station agent or operator, and ever to the satisfaction of the company and the public, serving both impartially and with fairness. At Winside a number of years, then to Lyons, from which place he was promoted to the vacancy here, following the death of T. W. Moran, who had held this station most of the time since the building of the road, nearly forty years before his death.

William Schrupf was a consistent member of the M. E. church of this place since coming here—a member of the great Masonic fraternity, also a member of the Scottish Rite degree at Sioux City. He also affiliated with the O. E. S., with the I. O. O. F., Modern Woodmen and the O. R. T.

The funeral services will be held from the late home at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon—a Masonic service, with Rev. Whitman of the Wayne M. E. church, and Rev. G. W. Snyder of Wahoo speaking at the service. Burial will be at Pleasant View cemetery at Winside, a place so many years their home.

The plans for the funeral service in addition to those above mentioned include singing by Misses Frances Beckenhauer and Marjorie Maryott, with Mrs. J. T. Bressler, Jr. at the piano. Miss Maryott will sing "The Holy City"; and the two singing another favorite song of both Mr. and Mrs. Schrupf, "The Mountain Railway," and concluding with "Lead Kindly Light."

In the death of Mr. Schrupf Wayne loses a most excellent citizen, and the railway company one of its best and most efficient local agents. In many years of newspaper work we cannot recall a case in which so many friends have voluntarily told of the kind deeds in connection with the daily business transactions as have come to our ears of this man who represented both this community and the railroad organization. With many duties of his own, always well performed, he gave a helping hand in a practical way to other employees.

Another patron of the road, a stranger at the time, told of an adjustment made in his favor of an over-charge of which he knew not a thing until the refund came. Another tells of his volunteer aid to him in a time of financial shortage which, while it may not have been strictly in line with his duties was the right thing to do at the right time.

We care not what might have been his professions of religion, or his brotherly obligations in the various organizations of which he was a member, his daily walk in life proclaimed him a christian in the true meaning of the word. Such men who needed, are often called.

EYES ON HOUSTON NOW

The scene of action in the political world, and especially of the citizens of this country, has shifted to Houston, Texas, this week, where the delegates for the national democratic convention are gathering. It is possible if not probable that the result can be given next week, or at least forecasted. According to newspaper talk, there seems to be a spirit of determination to block the will of a substantial majority of the delegates by a minority. This attitude should not prevail to the extent that it did four years ago, for we are all Americans—the we may not agree on men and measures, in this country a majority vote properly and legally expressed should have consideration, and individuals dissenting have the right to vote their convictions—provided they can find any political organization standing for them. We will have five political parties in the field this fall, and possibly six, should there be a bolt of any size from either of the major parties.

RETURNING DELEGATE CALLS

We had the honor of visiting a few moments with a newspaper man from North Dakota, up in the Devil Lake lands, where the N. P. L. was the leader in politics a few years ago, and from the way the editor talked, some of the N. P. L. medicine was still in his system. Of course, he may cool off a bit when the winds of late October whisper thru his whiskers, the fellows who were honored by being made delegates are expected to smile and take their medicine and invite as many of their friends to partake of the wormwood and gall with them as it is possible to coax, bulldoze or frighten. This newspaper man, who was evidently one of the "big Indians" at Kansas City, really did not seem especially enthusiastic for the ticket. Did not talk as tho it promised much for the farmer.

RENNICK-CARSON

At Omaha, Thursday, June 14, 1928, occurred the marriage of Mr. Geo. Rennick, son of James Rennick of this place and Miss Hazel Carson of Pilger the pastor of the First Baptist church officiating.

IT HAS BEEN COOL

The low temperature nights and mornings has been the only real kick we have heard against the weather man in this vicinity of late—that and a feeling that more rain would be welcome. But listen. As to the rain, there seems to be moisture enough to keep things growing as fast as could be expected, in cool weather.

But now comes a report from Wyoming that makes us feel quite comfortably warm. Mrs. Rogers, formerly known here as a Miss Dammie is here visiting relatives, coming from the vicinity of Lusk, we are told. That lady is getting weather reports from her husband, and they are to the effect that it is snowing out there daily and had for several days—it is freezing nights enough to nip the gardens and some of the corn. It is noticed that when the wind gets here from the west, it has not gotten fully warmed up—but it has not been below the frost line since quite early in the spring. Let's quit kicking.

MISS RENNICK HOME FROM PORTO RICO

Glad to be Home After Spending Two Years in the Tropics; Will Attend College.

After spending two school years in the schools of Porto Rico, Miss Lynette Rennick has returned to our mainland. With other lady teachers of the schools on the island, she drove from Philadelphia to Wayne, arriving Saturday and going on to the Black Hills almost immediately with her mother and others of the family, and then to visit the home of her sister, Mrs. Jacobs at Highdivide, Wyoming, and returning to Wayne Tuesday or Wednesday.

Miss Rennick is not decided as to her future work, beyond that she is planning to leave Wayne Friday for Trenton, New Jersey, where she will enter the Rogers college for the summer school term.

Her many friends are glad to learn that she is home, and to know that she is planning to again come to Wayne at the close of the summer school work. Says she enjoyed the experience much but would not care to spend her life in that tropical climate.

TO HARVEST BLUEGRASS SEED

A year ago, E. C. Williams was here harvesting a wonderfully big crop of bluegrass, and Monday afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Williams, he came to be in the harvest of the much lighter crop to be gathered this season. ## NOVEL TOURNAMENT MAKES GREAT HIT

W. C. Hunter Turns in Low Score to Top Cop First Honors in Close Competition.

NINTH HOLE IS JINX TO MANY

W. C. Hunter turned in the low score to top individual honors in the feature golf tournament held here over the week end under the auspices of the country club beating out his nearest rivals W. P. Canning and H. H. Hahn by six strokes. Mr. Hunter shot a gross score of 47 and with the handicap of three had a net score of 44. The event proved most interesting throughout and much fun and a lot of good golf resulted. The ninth hole ruined a number of good scores for the local aspirants.

C. M. Craven drove off the ninth tee with a score of 42 and had conceded himself a strangle hold on the engraved insurance policy offered for the best performance, but he required an additional 24 to land the elusive apple in the steel pig trough.

A. D. Lewis took 32 strokes to make this hole, and there is still some dispute as whether he really made it or not. Russell Larson was worse yet. He required no less than 38 tries.

Hole number two, proved about as interesting to the spectators as any, as all the players made special effort to beat their rivals into the cup. The first one in was permitted to give a shot to each of those playing with him, and a number of goose eggs were registered because of this handicap.

The Kiwanis team match will be continued throughout the week. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Beckenhauer are captains of this match.

Blind Bogey

A blind bogey tournament will be held over next week end. This will be an eighteen hole match, medal play in which the player chooses his own handicap, and tries to guess the number under the seal.

A three pound can of Millers Magnet coffee, donated by the Larson Grocery, is offered as a prize for the winner of the Bogey tournament.

Prizes Wanted

These local week-end tournaments will be held during the summer and any who have prizes they wish to donate are asked to advise either Don Larson, Carl Wright or Frank Morgan.

Low Scores

The following low scores have been recorded on the local courses during the last ten days: A. D. Lewis 36-38-74; F. S. Morgan 37-37-74; A. T. Caynaugh 37-38-76.

The recent rains and the additional work on the greens has put the course in fine condition, and many good scores are looked for from now on.

Chas. Collins, who has been staying in Denver and other high altitude places because of asthma, came to his home at Carroll, Tim Collins and wife, fears that he will not be able to stay home long, for he had hardly reached Carroll until the trouble began, doubtless due to some atmospheric condition, for the asthma patient is most susceptible to change of air of any disease known, we believe.

Over in Iowa says O'Furey, state officers swoop down on a community and gather in all auto drivers who are compelled to give a test of headlights. The surprising thing is that over one half of the cars are a hazard to other drivers by reason of the imperfect lights. With the improvement of Nebraska hiways and the increased speed of the newer automobiles there is a growing demand for a more rigid enforcement of the headlight law. It is not intended to deprive any driver of pleasure but it is a demand that the lives of others be protected from the careless and the indifferent.

Over in Iowa says O'Furey, state officers swoop down on a community and gather in all auto drivers who are compelled to give a test of headlights. The surprising thing is that over one half of the cars are a hazard to other drivers by reason of the imperfect lights. With the improvement of Nebraska hiways and the increased speed of the newer automobiles there is a growing demand for a more rigid enforcement of the headlight law. It is not intended to deprive any driver of pleasure but it is a demand that the lives of others be protected from the careless and the indifferent.

F. H. Vail, Piano Tuner will be back in Wayne about November 1st.—adv. May 17-4t.

Miss Hattie Fischer, who has been attending the Sherwood School of Music at Chicago for the past two years, is home for the summer vacation, and plans to return in September. She timed her vacation so that it would occur while her instructor, Sidney Silber, is spending a vacation in Europe. Miss Hattie is assisting at the Ahern store.

B. F. Strahan and family droye to Lake Andes Saturday evening, and spent Sunday at the South Dakota lake. They did little fishing as the weather was rather disagreeable. A heavy rain fell for about two hours that morning.—Mr. Strahan reported that the crops look fine up that way, and that corn seemed farther along than in Nebraska.

Conductor F. McDonald is taking a bit of a layoff for the rest of the month, and perhaps longer, and has gone to Hitchcock, South Dakota, where he is superintending a set of farm buildings that are being erected on a farm he has near that place. Work was started on buildings some two months ago, but on account of the cold weather and the frozen ground, making it difficult to excavate, work was postponed, and not until now was he able to again get help for the job.

Clyde Yoast, who was let out by the Meadow Grove school board last winter because of unsatisfactory service as instructor in the sciences, is suing the board for violation of contract and $375 back wages. E. F. Reed of Norfolk is Yoast's attorney. Yoast is a graduate of Wayne normal college and claims the charges against him were faked to save another teacher on whom he claims more serious charges might have been made. The community is pretty well stirred over the charges and counter charges.—Norfolk Press.

WOODMEN HONOR LINCOLN MAN

Flag raising at Camp Talbot opened the Modern Woodmen of America forester encampment and athletic tournament at Capitol Beach Monday morning. The services were postponed from Sunday on account of inclement weather. F. R. Koras of Des Moines, Iowa, a national director, spoke briefly of the significance of the flag as related to the Woodmen organization. No other group, he said, has more right to be proud of the national emblem and what it stands for. Nearly sixty thousand Woodmen served in the World war, and of this number, 2,069 lost their lives.

The American flag deserves the greatest homage, he said. It has never been used to call the nation to war except for a holy cause. Mr. Koras closed his address with an apothesis to the flag.

Former Governor McKelvie welcomed the foresters and members of the order to Nebraska. The strength of the state, he said, rests in its resources and people, especially the latter. He paid homage to A. R. Talbot of Lincoln, head consul of the organization. The encampment is in honor of his twenty-fifth anniversary as chief.

E. E. Murphy of Leavenworth, Kansas, dean of the national directors, responded to the welcome in behalf of the members.

Head Consul Talbot expressed his gratitude for the honor bestowed upon him. He extended congratulations to the foresters in uniform, praising the principles they stand for. He explained that such camps as the one here were now being held in place of one great gathering at the national headquarters to facilitate the teaching of the purposes and ideals of the order. Thus the spirit of the state can be combined with the feeling of national fraternity. He paid tribute to E. E. Kester, state deputy, under whose leadership Nebraska has risen to third in volume of business in the whole jurisdiction.

Monte Lum of Lincoln, adjutant of the camp, read convention orders, expressing appreciation for the building of the camp and announcing rules which will govern the foresters. Brig-Gen. A. C. Herrick, who is in command of the foresters, spoke briefly, commending the spirit shown and explaining some of the purposes of the foresters activities. Among the teams present was the national champion drill group from Rock Island, Illinois, Des Moines, Iowa, Watertown, South Dakota, Pierre, South Dakota, Green River, Wyoming, Grand Forks, North Dakota, Topeka, Kansas, and Minneapolis, Minnesota, were also represented.

NASH presents a New and Finer Motor Car

New Twin Ignition Motor
New Salon Bodies

"The three new Nash Series, which are being introduced everywhere today, achieve the ambition of my manufacturing career.

"They represent an entirely new type of motor car, priced moderately, but offering you all the beauty and quality and performance heretofore exclusive to very expensive automobiles.

"To create such a car we had to develop an entirely new type of design and invest over $2,500,000 in dies and machinery alone.

"Both the Salon bodies and the high compression motors which power these new models exemplify the most radically modern advancement in body craftsmanship and engineering.

"Naturally space precludes the full listing of all features but I do want to draw your attention to a number of the outstanding attractions such as—

"—Twin ignition, high compression, Bohnalite aluminum alloy pistons with Invar-struts, 7-bearing crankshaft with hollowed crankpins, Bijur centralized chassis lubrication, Houdaille and Lovejoy shock absorbers, Biflex-Nash bumpers and bumperettes, chrome plating over nickel for all exterior metal ware, double-drop frame, one-piece Salon fenders and longer wheelbase lengths.

"This new-type engineering of the '400' motors makes them by far the best performing cars I have ever built.

"I don't think anyone will ever want to use all the speed and power they deliver.

"Equipment is absolutely complete at the factory list price and you need buy no extras except a spare tire.

"If my judgment is worth anything you will find it well worth while today to examine this new automobile development with the greatest care."

The Non-Stop Flight of Time

For the past ten years has been marked at the Jeffries Style Shop by Anniversary sales, and the 28th anniversary of this going concern is now being observed, and in keeping with the policy of the house to keep from accumulating good goods until they are out of style, if none the less valuable, has been to make a price at these annual sales which will move them out, to make room for newer stock.

So now, according to prices tagged in plain figures on placards thru the store, the time is here for bargain seekers to come in for their harvest of goods below their real value.

One card in a window filled with their best shoes reads any shoe in the window, next ten days, at $4.98. This card is hedged about with the shoes which at regular prices sell at from one to two dollars above the figure. Then other cards on less desirable shoes lists them down as low as 98c for serviceable shoes. The ladies and the little folks feet are cared for.

DRESSES—a wonderful assortment, all marked according to quality from 98c to $3.98. This includes several grades of wash dresses.

The full line of fancy work materials is marked in the same manner, at greatly reduced prices. Underwear, too is on the sacrifice list—and it is in style too. Corsets are also cut in price for this sale.

along so smoothly. Hardly a bubble of a hot box, except one main bearing located in the central part and designated as the Loudon bearing fell out, but it did not seem to be an essential part for the machine never hesitated or halted.

'It is hard to convict a million dollars,' is the saying of Geo. W. Norris, and it must be so, for we see that Geo. Remus, the Cincinnati bootlegger who killed his wife Imogene last October, has won his fight for freedom by decree of the Ohio supreme court, by a 3 to 4 decision which releases him from the Lima state hospital for the criminal insane, to which he had been committed. If he is not insane, he should go to the gallows—and if insane he should not be allowed at large.

The weather is still holding up those Atlantic fliers. They might have gone over and back by boat while they have been waiting for the proper weather condition for a start. Of course, if the weather is right, they may make the trip in about one-fifth the time it takes a boat to do the stunt; but look at first-page publicity one gets if he or she even threaten to fly over. Why Columbus, when he set sail out on the unknown deep did not get any publicity, and yet his was a far greater venture and of much greater worth to mankind. Too many people want to do things for the glory that it may bring to them rather than for the good to mankind.

OBSERVATIONS

It appears that the beautiful little yellow stop signs that are posted at every intersection on the state roads were not fully authorized by legislative law. Representative O'Gara of this county, in talking to the Wynot Tribune, explained that it was the clear intent of the law to only place these signs at hazardous road crossings. The state road department saw fit to interpret the law differently and as a result the little yellow signs are scattered all over the state and the road fund is depleted to the extent of several thousands of dollars with but little benefit to the general public and the benefit to public safety is questionable. The Tribune is certainly in favor of any measure that will tend to make driving on the roads more safe for the public, but to suppose that the motorist will respect the law that compels him to come to a full stop on the open road where the view is plain and where no other cars are in sight, is preposterous. The signs at hazardous corners are perfectly proper and if they had been only placed at such points it would have been much easier to enforce the law. As Representative O'Gara explains, the law under the state interpretation, will only become a joke, as so many fool enactments have in the past and only burden the statutes.

A MIDSUMMER FESTIVAL

Twenty thousand persons from the big Sioux City trade territory will attend a mammoth Swedish Midsummer Festival in Riverside park Saturday afternoon and evening, June 23. This the second observance in recent years of the gala day in the Northlands by Sioux City, promises to surpass anything of its kind ever attempted.

In Sweden no one thinks of working when Midsummer day rolls around. It is a day of recreation and enjoyment. Folk dances of past and present are revived anew as the costumed dancers circle the colorful Maypole to the accompaniment of the merry notes of the village fiddlers.

Swedish-Americans and their friends will celebrate in like manner this festival day in Sioux City. Monahan Post Band, will present a full program. Smaller musical groups will add their bits and the maypole dances without which it would seem no festival day to many, will feature the program of the day.

Col. Oscar N. Solbert of Rochester, New York, who enjoys the distinction of being selected by President Coolidge to escort the Prince of Wales and the Swedish Crown Prince about the country on their recent tours, will be the principal speaker.

Soccer football, a game increasing in public favor, will be exemplified by competition between two good teams.

MATTER OF MISUNDERSTANDING

Very naturally, and as was to be expected, a subject of big interest in the convention of the National Live Stock exchange, held in St. Louis this week, was that of which so much has been heard and read of late months, the direct marketing of live stock from pasture and lead lot to packer. But there seems to be, along with and part of the struggles for perpetuation of 'the best market system' for live stock the has ever devised, an increasing determination that the farmer and stock raiser, as well as the meddling politician, shall finally come to understand just what the organized live stock market, man is, and what he means to the interests of the farmer and stock raiser. There has been a great hue and cry to get rid of the middle man in the live stock markets, and it was stressed in the St. Louis convention that the live stock commission man is, in no sense a middleman as the term is understood. In fact, the position of the live stock commission man has been misunderstood—and purposely so—by a class of people who would play upon the farmer to wreck the organized market and build upon its ruins the most dangerous market system in all history. The organized live stock exchange, and it was so stressed in the convention, wants the farmer to know the exchange better, and the commission man to know the farmer better, and in this better knowing the farmer and stock raiser will come to understand that the commission man is the hired man of the farmer rather than a middleman who feeds off the farmer in a speculative way. But this is a condition which men as the promoters of concentration stock yards and the so-called direct selling of live stock will never admit. It is the declared business of such men to keep the farmer from understanding the live stock commission man. But, truth is mighty and will eventually prevail in spite of the rattling of promotion nuts over the land.

The above is from the Live Stock Record of Sioux City, and we are wondering how the commission men who are doing the hollering expect to clear up that misunderstanding? If they would try a bit of paid publicity in papers like the Democrat, circulating among the stock-growers, they might see things in a true light. Publicity helps many good things to be understood.

DON'T TRY TO STANDARDIZE BOYS

Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer of New York recently gave a warning which deserves wide circulation. Speaking before a gathering of men engaged in work with boys, he said:

'I view with some alarm the development of the technique of boys' club work, and I am surprised at the emphasis placed at this meeting on the introduction of business methods.

'Boy's work must not be based on the main street idea. When we standardize and co-ordinate, let us not standardize out of existence those individual enthusiasms which are the life blood of this work.'

Amen! Boys aren't Ford cars, to be assembled from a moving platform. They can't be standardized; but they can be ruined by the fool attempt.

Justice Proskauer sees—what so many earnest 'uplifters' never see—that human beings are worth while as human beings first, and as industrial units or supporters of some particular form of social organization a long time afterwards—if at all. Boy's clubs should seek to help boys, not to turn out 'hands,' says Labor. L.

ROAD MEETING

Notice is given of a special meeting of the Nebraska Good Roads Association called by the Board of Directors, which will be held in the Venetian room of the Lincoln hotel, Lincoln, Wednesday, June 27, 1928, and will be called to order at 10:00 a. m.

The purpose of this meeting is to discuss urgent needs arising from a recent state survey showing the increased cost of maintenance and highway congestion, and possibilities of amending the 1928 Norfolk program. Nothing is more vital to our prosperity than the continuation of the construction of our highway transportation system. This subject should have the personal attention of every public spirited man in the state. We should have 1000 men at this meeting for there is an urgent need for concentrated and cooperative work, says the secretary.

SEES NEW NASHES

Joe Baker and family drove to Omaha Tuesday to view the display of the new model Nashes now being shown at the distributors. Mr. Baker was very much impressed with the new improvements, which he believes will add greatly to their popularity. He plans to have some of the new models on his floor within a few days, and he feels certain that they will meet the approval of the public.

'YOU CAN'T WIN'

(New York Evening Post)
To what depths Chicago had descended in the alliance between politics, law and crime is illustrated anew by the indictment of Charles S. Wharton on charges of participation in the famous 133 thousand dollar mail train robbery last February at Evergreen Park, Illinois.

Wharton was once 'the boy congressman' from the stockyard district. Later he was assistant to the now notorious Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook county. Federal authorities have evidence that the train robbers, before they held up the train, engaged Wharton to defend them and afterward, divided their loot in his house and left him four thousand dollars of it as a retainer fee.

That such things can even be charged against a former public prosecutor is a shocking revelation as to processes that are probably normal and commonplace in a community where United States senators sorrowfully attend the funerals of gang gunmen.

Nevertheless, those who are preaching to would-be criminals the doctrine that it does not pay must find in this Evergreen Park case solid justification for their theory. The crime was beautifully planned and carried out. Everything was carefully rehearsed and performed according to plan. The train was stopped and robbed of its 'tipped off' treasure exactly as per schedule. The masked men silently and safely seaped in their waiting motors. Not a trace of their identity was left visible to the naked eye.

Yet today, a few short months after the crime, two members of the gang have been mysteriously murdered for their share of the loot, one has confessed, three are in jail, all are indicted, including the attorney Wharton, and two are fugitives on the face of the earth. One-third of the 133 thousand dollars has been recovered. It was because each member of the gang thought the other had 'gypped' him out of his share that the 'squeals' came to the police. Vengeful wives or sweethearts turn-ished most of them. The warning 'You can't win' is right.

TAX LEVY LESS IN WAYNE

It will be good news to a lot of Wayne people to know that the tax levy to be made soon will be somewhat reduced in Wayne and Wayne county. The Wayne reduction will amount to more than 4 mills in Wayne and about half that sum in other parts of the county. The greater reduction at Wayne is due to the retirement of a bunch of school bonds.

S. R. Libengood and family from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, came last of the week to visit at the home of his brother Will Libengood. They are now visiting a few days at Creighton, with relatives. Plans are being made for a reunion of the relatives living here Sunday, and they are to gather at the park that day for a basket dinner and a visit. There will be about forty interested as relatives.

Chas. Pfeil went to Sioux City Wednesday morning to visit the day with his wife, at the Methodist hospital in that city. He tells that she is slowly, but surely coming back to health, and gaining in strength. He also volunteered the information that Vern Richardson, also at that hospital was looking better than when he had been there on a previous visit.

At last spring is over, and summer is ushered in today. The sun has reached its highest point in the northern heavens, and begins to recede, day by day, until they start summer in the southern hemisphere about December 21, when we will have to take the short end of daylight. A great scheme, this tipping of the axle on which the earth revolves, to make a change of seasons, so that all get some change during the year.

Miss Elsie Warnock, who has been teaching in a school in Nevada, returned home last week for the summer vacation. The re-elected, she said she did not care to return, or teach so far from home or most any other place, for Nevada, is a land of magnificent distances, and 200 mile auto jaunt to a neighboring town is not considered very much of a trip, and there are parts of the state where there are not many neighboring towns of any size within that distance.

J. L. Wilson, who was for about three months express messenger on the run between Emerson and Bloomfield, with headquarters at Wayne, was away for a week vacation, and returning Tuesday, said that he is changing base, and left last evening for Billings, Montana, from where he will have a run from Billings to Alliance, in this state. This will be a long run, and the messengers on such a run have their hours on duty in long stretches, and then their time off in days rather than hours.

Robert W. Stewart was acquitted of a charge of contempt of the senate. He refused to answer questions concerning the Teapot Dome scandal. He was acquitted in part thru a law that has been on the statute books for over a hundred years and places a fine and a mandatory sentence of one year in a common jail. If the jury found him guilty they placed him under a sentence which could not be adjusted. The jurors deliberated twenty hours and then decided to acquit him. How much better a commission with power to fix penalty could have handled the matter. A competent commission of judges could have given him a fair sentence instead of letting him go free because of an injustice in an age old law.—State Journal.

CLARK-ROBERTSON
According to authenticated report, Miss Agnes Clark and Ralph Robertson, of Craig, both former students at the Wayne Normal and Teacher's college, were married June 11, 1928, at Craig. They are in the western part of the state of Colorado for their wedding trip, we are told, Mr. R. being a special mechanic employed by the company selling the combined harvester, and thresher, and had to be in the field installing new combines. He has a partly finished course at the university at Lincoln, and they plan to make their home there after the next school year opens.

THE VICIOUS CIRCLE
(Dayton News)
From far away New Jersey this further angle on the agricultural problem:

"I own a small poultry farm. I buy about one ton of corn per month. My last bill was .70 per hundred-weight. Now, to my way of thinking, if the farmer gets a fair break at $2.70 per one hundred pounds, raising corn should be far more profitable than digging gold. Of one thing I am positive: If feed goes much higher the chicken that lays the golden egg will lose her head. Kindly tell me what price the farmer got for his corn say, last December or January when the farmer had corn to sell."

When the Jerseyman was paying $2.70 per one hundred pounds for corn for his chickens in New Jersey the Illinois farmer was getting at his shipping station in the neighborhood of $1.50 per hundred. The difference is freight and middlemen's margins, as we see here, are not at all the same. The Wisconsin dairymen declared against the McNary-Haugen bill. They want cheap corn for their cows just as Mr. Coolidge wants cheap corn for his New England cotton spinners and the New Jerseyman for his chickens.

By law we increase, for the benefit of the wool spinners, the price of clothing. To enable himself to buy clothes, the farmer then asks to have the price of corn increased by law. Do that and the New Jersey chicken grower will need to have the price of eggs and chickens increased by law. Do that and the wool spinner consumers of eggs and chickens will need to have their wages increased by law. Do that and their employers would need to have the price of wool increased by the government some more. So round and round, if we try to be just, the vicious circle goes.

We agree with Mr. Coolidge that government price fixing is bad business. When then did Mr. Coolidge begin it? Why does he insist on keeping it up?

Some one wants to wager that a change of party administration of government will tend to more lax administration of the dry laws. We would rather wager that there will be less hypocrisy about the enforcement than at present.

The last of the appointees by President Wilson, Rear-Admiral, W. S. Benson and Phillip S. Teller of Frisco has retired from the federal commerce commission, and they have con-people's ships to private interests—and that at bargain counter prices. Now it is intimated that it is proposed that Uncle Sam shall loan the money to private parties at a low interest rate, with which to buy the people's property. Looks like a con in the woodpile.

The Oil For Your New FORD

The new Ford is at least 20 miles an hour faster than the Model T, and naturally needs a higher grade oil to lubricate it safely at high speed. If you ever want to drive yours at fifty miles an hour for any distance, use an oil that won't thin out and fail.

Quaker State holds its body under heavy service—at high temperatures its viscosity is remarkable. For Quaker State Medium Motor Oil is super-refined in special stills and filters which remove the 25%, or more, of non-viscous matter present in ordinary oils.

Quaker State Medium is all lubricant—100%. It contains no non-viscous matter to break down and fail just when you need protection most. And its greater mileage, and savings in upkeep and repair costs, make it the most economical oil you can use in your new Ford. The price is 30c per quart.

MOST people know this absolute antidote for pain, but are you careful to say Bayer when you buy it? And do you always give a glance to see Bayer on the box—and the word genuine printed in red? It isn't the genuine Bayer Aspirin without it! A drugstore always has Bayer, with the proven directions tucked in every box:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

When Pain Comes,

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acid instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never see crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1878.

THE ROAD HOG AND HIT AND RUN DRIVER

Honest, fair-minded people are justly indignant at the manner in which these two classes of criminals disregard the law, and escaped their just deserts—a term in prison, and cancellation of their privilege to drive a car or truck. Here is an account of one instance that is getting a bit of publicity, and is promised prosecution—and we hope the driver gets the full penalty and spends a few years in the penitentiary. Here is the story.

Family Escapes death
"Mrs. Marie Weekes of the Norfolk Press, Mrs. Kathryn Graham, her mother and J. F. O'Donnell of Long Pine, her brother, his daughter, Ethic Marie and Mrs. Weekes' other niece, Kathleen Kulp, escaped death last night about 10:30, when a car dashed into the one driven by Mr. O'Donnell a few miles north of West Point as the family group returned from a visit to their father's grave where they went to make a belated Decoration day floral offering and after a happy little call in the home of Mrs. Graham's sister, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, whom they had taken home after a day's visit here.

"Mrs. Graham suffered a fractured arm, Mr. O'Donnell was cut and bruised, the girls suffered slight cuts on the lower limbs and bad bumps on their heads while Mrs. Weekes came through with a few bruises and slight cuts and one badly wrenched shoulder. The car was damaged but not beyond repair.

"Two cars were racing on the highway north of the old home town of this family, when the second of the two struck the O'Donnell car causing it to go into the ditch and turn over.

"Sheriff Sexton of Cuming county was given the name of the hit-and-run driver who did not turn back to see what damage he had done. Criminal charges will be filed against the fellow who is said to be a Bloomfield man working on a farm near West Point."

Such cases are becoming common, and the law makes it a criminal matter to hit another car and run without stopping to aid and make known the identity of the driver, and offering any assistance needed. From the many cases we read and hear of there is an increasing number of these criminals at large in this corner of the state.

Last week we were told of one in which Laurel people were the victims and brought to the Wayne hospital to be sewed together again.

But three weeks ago, a road hog driving south from Wayne in a truck crowded a small roadster to the ditch on the wide, well graded and gravelled highway, he holding a straight course south with enough of his truck on the wrong side of the road center that the little car, going to the ditch edge lacked six or eight inches of being in the clear, and the fenders of the car, both front and back were bent down until there was barely room for the wheels to turn beneath them. Did the driver stop to learn what he had done? No, he kept steadily on; and his number plate was so covered with mud that it could not be read.

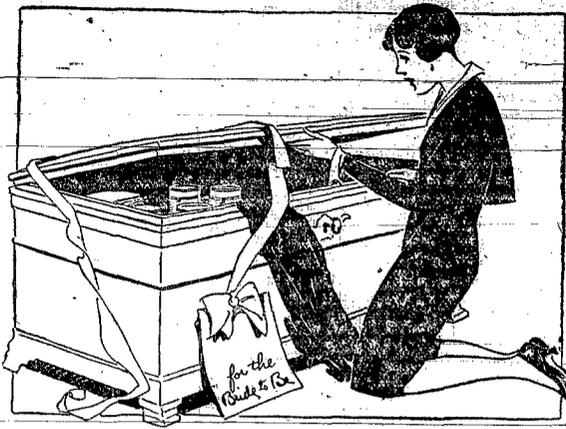

Years ago, in Iowa, when that was a newly settled country, horse stealing was becoming very common, and the officers were not getting much of a trace of the thieves, or capturing many. The people organized, and very shortly, horse stealing in that corner almost ceased. When a horse or horses were stolen volunteers, riders, members of the association, were out and after them, and the horses, as a rule were recovered, and the thieves headed toward Ft. Madison or Anamosa. It is but a few years ago that we saw in the old home paper the call for the annual meeting of that association for the election of officers. Perhaps it now is turned to an association for the capture of auto thieves.

It is possible that car owners will have to form an association to secure evidence, run down and prosecute these criminals. The officers are not able to cope with so many as there are.

Mrs. Weeks, or whoever is taking the above case up, will have the hearty cooperation of all motorists, we think, and we hope the suspected driver will be tried, and if guilty as charged be given such penalty as will be a warning to others of the kind.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk of Wayne, Nebraska, until 5 o'clock P. M. June 26, 1928, for digging of ditch, laying, calking and backfilling approximately 1500 feet of 4-inch water main and connecting same to present main, also setting of 2 fire hydrants. City to furnish pipe, lead and jute. Bidder to furnish all labor and tools. Bids to be at so much per foot. The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
W. S. BRESSLER,
City Clerk.

Hope Chest Treasures

REALLY, of course, what goes into the June Bride's Hope Chest is nobody's business. But if we are allowed just one peep at the treasures inside, we may be startled. Snowy white embroidered linens of a few years ago are replaced by colorful ones—even sheets to sleep on are orchid, rose and jade. Yesterday's yards of silky lingerie have shrunk to the briefest number of inches of georgettes and chiffons. But in the midst of all these things which right-minded grandmothers would decry as "impractical," there appears something so practical that grandmother herself would never have dreamed of adding it to her own hope chest even if she could!

Tied with white ribbons—the decorations in which they appeared at the "Kitchenette Shower" for the bride-to-be—are a host of individual and "just-for-two" sizes of canned foods! Everything from the daintiest fruits for salads and imported brands of caviar for after-theatre supper canapés, to the most prosaic but oftentimes more desirable, cans of tomatoes, corn, peas, oven baked beans, and sauerkraut.

Useful and Practical

Contributing small cans of food for the hope chest is a rather new but very popular custom for the 1928 bride. Not only are these cans just the right size to open up in a hurry during the days of early housekeeping when one is being entertained at a continual round of parties, but they add to the bride's limited knowledge of the good foods which are available ready prepared.

Here are some suggestions that will be found most useful for the rosy days of entertaining in the new home: artichoke hearts, brussels sprouts, mushrooms, grapefruit, cherries, loganberries, Hawaiian pineapple, anchovies, crabmeat, cheese, fig puddings, tamales, sliced bacon, boneless chicken, veal loaf, clam chowder, chicken à la king, lobster Newburg, salmon, asparagus soup, sweet and sour pickles, and fruit cake.

TAX BURDEN ALARMING

Says Gene Walrath in his Oseola Democrat:

"Thoughtful men and women in every walk of life are seriously concerned over the constantly increasing burden of taxation. 'Why the great increase in taxes?' is a question heard on every hand. The only answer—increased cost of government.

"Eighteen years ago, in 1910, appropriations by congress for all the activities of the federal government aggregated $645,191,676. The congress that just adjourned appropriated more than seven times as much for governmental needs as did the congress eighteen years ago.

"The cause for the staggering increase in state taxes is clearly shown in the following table which gives in round numbers the cost of the Nebraska state government for two-year periods covering the past sixteen years:

"Cost of state government for first two years under Governor Morehead, $7,000,000.

"Morehead's second term of two years, $8,000,000.

"Under Governor Neville for two years (during the war and without the code), $9,000,000.

"Under Governor McKelvie first two years (after the war and with the code), $20,000,000.

"Second term under McKelvie (with the code), $30,000,000.

"Under Governor Bryan two years (with scrambling of the code,) $24,000,000.

"Under Governor McMullen first two years (with restoration of the code), $34,000,000.

"McMullen's present term (with full development of the code), $40,000,000

"There is a substantial foundation for the deep alarm which is being shown over the increasing burden of taxation. Where will it end? County officers are having trouble to explain the astounding tax increase. The county treasurer of Lancaster county sent a postal card to each taxpayer on the face of which was printed the following notice:

"Lincoln, Nebraska, October 10, 1927. PERSONAL TAX NOTICE. For the year 1927. In comparing 1927 levy with 1926 levy. State Taxes are 108 percent and County 20 percent higher. This tax draws 10 percent interest from delinquent date. Yours respectfully, M. Albers, Treasurer, Lancaster County."

"The Lancaster county treasurer and all commissioners are republicans for 'time from whence the memory of man runneth not to the contrary' and realizing the storm of protest that would come from taxpayers they took this means to emphasize the fact that state taxes had increased 108 percent.

Canning Helps The Farmer

WHEN you stock your pantry shelves with canned foods you may feel that you are a long ways from the farm and the days when you ate tomatoes fresh pulled from your own farm plants, or at least bought them from the farmer's truck.

As a matter of fact, buying canned foods brings you very near to the farm both in the brief time that elapses between their picking and cooking and in that you are aiding the farmer to sell his crops in advance. Before the days of canneries, farmers were among the greatest gamblers—they gambled not only on the weather but on the chance of selling their produce before it spoiled.

Helps Housewife Too

The contract method, by which farmers supply canners, not only assures the farmer of selling his crop, but it also assures the housewife that she is getting the crop fresh from the farm in cans. William E. Lewis, Marketing Specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture explains this method thus:

"The most common method throughout the United States is for contracts to be made before the planting season starts, although in Maryland, Delaware, and New Jersey many growers prefer to sell their tomatoes on the open market. When contracting, the canner and grower agree on the acreage of tomatoes, for instance, which shall be grown for the cannery and the price to be paid per ton for sound red ripe tomatoes."

The enormous crops of fruit and vegetables thus delivered to the cannery the moment they are ripe, relieves the farmer of the uncertainty and worry of disposing of his produce.

IOWA BUTTER MAKING DOUBLES SINCE 1920

Des Moines, June 15.—Production of creamery butter in Iowa increased 100 per cent from 1920 to 1927, the annual year book of the state department of agriculture, to be published next month, will show.

The increase during the period in the southern half of the state was 105 per cent; the increase in the northwest quarter was 149 per cent; 25 counties in the northeastern part of the state, where 40 per cent of the creamery butter in Iowa is made, increased their output 60 per cent.

"Dairying does not necessarily lessen other farm production," the year-book will say. The best illustration is Sioux county, a leader in production of corn, hogs, oats, poultry and eggs. It likewise holds a similar position in the production of creamery butter from its own cows, there being only two counties which lead it slightly.

"Creamery prices for butterfat have been well sustained during the year," the report will show. "The general average for the state is 3 cents per pound more than in 1926.

"Iowa's production of creamery butter shows a gain over the year 1926 of 20,184,240 pounds, or a total production in 1927 of 192,422,103 pounds. Total production of farmmade butter in 1927 was 24 million pounds, making Iowa's total butter production in 1927 approximately 216,442,103 pounds.

Nebraska Coming Fast

The above report shows that the dairy industry in the United States, and especially in Nebraska is only in its infancy, and its possibilities are not known. The writer remembers when the butter boom first struck Iowa, more than a half century ago. In the early '70s the wheat crop of northeastern Iowa, which had for a number of years prior to that time been a great wheat-producing country but for some reason it fell off both in yield and price, and farmers who were in debt on their farms were not able to meet payments, and farm after farm went under the hammer at sheriff sale. Some were so involved that they just surrendered their equity, which had been squeezed out by deflation and short crops, and left for new fields.

But it so happened that there were a few old, experienced dairymen who had learned the game in the state of New York, and they could not see why, if cows could live in the stony, clay pasture lands of eastern New York, they might not do far better in that land of good grass, and they ventured into the game, and did educational work and induced many of the farmers to change from wheat to cows. First a cheese factory started, and later the creamery. Then came the world fair in 1876, and the award for the best butter in the world came to that little corner of Iowa; and then there was a rush to get into the dairy game, and during the next quarter of a century all manner of butter making ventures were made, but in later years, the business has become more centralized, until now, where there was once a dozen little creameries within eight or ten miles of the old town, there is now but one—a plant, thoroughly modern, owned by the dairymen themselves, and run by them—and to them comes the profit that is derived from the near perfect development of a plant and a system for care of milk and manufacture of butter that lets no butterfat escape, and produces the highest class product possible. There is room at the top—Keep climbing.

A party of mortorists, speeding by an old farmer trudging down the road with his gun under his arm and his dog at his heels, inadvertently struck the dog. The driver stopped, got out, observed the deceased animal, and asked the old man:

"That your dog?"
"Yessir."
"You owned him?"
"Yessir."
"Looks like I've killed him."
"Yessir, certainly does look so."
"Very valuable animal?"
"Nosir, not so very valuable."
"Will five dollars satisfy you?"
"Yessir."

The money was paid and the driver called back from the car:

"Well, 'uncle, I'm sorry I spoiled your hunting."
"Wasn't goin' huntin'," replied the old philosopher, "was just going down to the river to shoot this here dog."

Death in Boiling Oil

Old-English Penalty
The last person legally boiled to death in England was so executed in 1542.

Save as a metaphor for the vulgar, the boiling of human beings has ceased to be a factor in our civilization. We do sometimes say our pet aversion ought to be boiled in oil. It is a jest, merely. Nobody boils in England nowadays, except perhaps with indignation, and even in tropic climes, thanks to missionary effort, the practice of allowing one's fellow-men to simmer gently till tender is rapidly passing into the realm of legend.

Our ancestors were less squeamish; and in 1542 a servant girl, Margaret Dany by name, suffered this penalty for poisoning three households by whom she had been employed.

"Boiling as a punishment was legalized by Henry VIII and abolished by his son, Edward VI. During the 16 years it existed as part of the English penal system—being reserved only for poisoners—quite a number of people met their end in this way. As neither medicine nor sanitation was very far advanced in those days we are led to wonder how many deserved their fate and how many merely suffered for an unlucky outbreak of ptomaine or appendicitis.—From the Continental Edition of the London Daily Mail.

Magpie Combines Both Good and Bad Traits

The farmers of the West are divided in their opinion of the magpie. Some regard the bird as a serious nuisance and others defend it.

Magpies have been known to steal eggs from chicken yards to carry to their young. They sometimes kill chicks. They also show great partiality to cherry orchards. Perhaps their worst offense is harrying weak or wounded animals, and even, occasionally, sound and healthy creatures. The magpie attack is torturesome.

A magpie has been known to keep pecking and enlarging a wound of an animal, finally resulting in its death after days of suffering.

On the other hand, the magpie is often beneficial. Its diet includes a great number of injurious insects, in particular grasshoppers and caterpillars in the spring and grasshoppers later in the summer and autumn. The grain the magpie eats is largely waste in the fields, for the bird prefers insects both at planting time and during the harvest time.

Boston's Eveless Adames

Modesty, lack of self-confidence, was (and is) a fault of Boston in character—just as undue self-consciousness is in manners. The Cabot type—a semicivilized tribe inhabiting the confines of Boston with customs, but no manners," as the great lexicographer defined them—had at least no manners, and that is all right. "How fortunate," said the French ambassador, "that that young lady has no manners! Because, if she had manners they would be bad." Only indeed, that Boston's Adames have no Eve. Eve is not a Boston type, any more than Astarte.—F. J. Stimson in Scribner's Magazine.

Gives View of Sea Bed

Very often, when the water is clear, it is unnecessary to send a diver down simply to find an object, for the bed of the sea can be seen quite well with the aid of a submarine telescope. It is called the "Catoptic tube."

In appearance this tube is similar to an ordinary large telescope, but it has lugs attached to it, to which ropes can be attached for keeping it vertical in the water. Sometimes, instead of the ordinary telescope eyepiece, binoculars are fitted. This "Catoptic tube" is very often used in recovering small articles of value that have been lost by dropping them in the sea from a pier or small boat.

Common Sense or Brains

The Judge of the Probate court was trying to determine the intelligence of Mamie Lee, a thirteen-year-old colored girl, who had been considered "not quite bright." Pointing to the woman who had brought Mamie into court, the judge said:

"Mamie, if Mrs. Garrick weighs 166 pounds, standing on both feet, how much does she weigh standing on one foot?"
Mamie eyed the judge suspiciously, and replied: "Does you want me to use my common sense, or does you want to see if I can divide by two?"—True Story Magazine.

The Arts and Religion

Drama seems to have come from religious ritual and festival processions; even to the days of the skeptical Euripides it remained a sacred thing at Athens; and modern drama, the most secular of contemporary arts, began in the Mass and in the pious parades which pictured for the medieval mind the life and death of Christ. Sculpture found a new splendor in the adornment of the cathedrals; and painting reached its zenith under the inspiration of Christianity.—Will Durant, in Cosmopolitan.

Better Preparation Urged for Berries

Growers Should Aim to Produce Fruit of High Grade.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The unsatisfactory condition and grade of strawberries often found on the market indicates a need for more attention to standardization and better handling methods, according to the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, following a field survey of strawberry marketing methods.

Growers, says the department, should aim to produce berries of such uniformly high quality that no hand grading is necessary, as any extra handling adds to the possibility of decay. In many instances, however, hand grading is necessary and profitable, but the logical place to grade berries is in the field. Whether or not the berries have been hand or field graded, the filled boxes should be classified as to grade before they are placed in crates for shipment.

Field grading under proper supervision is preferred to grading in the packing shed because it involves less handling and therefore less deterioration in transit. The use of established standard grades is recommended as furnishing a definite basis and guide to the grower in preparing his crop for market, to the buyer in purchasing the fruit, and for inspection either at shipping point or terminal market.

Boxes should contain a uniform grade of berries and should be filled so that they are not slack nor yet full enough for the berries to be crushed when placed in the crates. The crates should be loaded in the cars so as to permit ample circulation of cold air, and should be firmly stripped and braced to prevent shifting and damage to the load while in transit.

The detailed results of the department's survey has been published in Farmers' Bulletin No. 1500, entitled "Preparing Strawberries for Market," copies of which may be obtained from the department at Washington, D. C.

Build Up Productivity of Soil and Retain It

Comparing the farm to a factory in a recent publication by the United States Department of Agriculture, the authors, A. T. Wiancko and S. D. Connor, say: "The farmer should know his soil and have a sound basis for every step in its treatment. Building up the productivity of a soil to a high level and then maintaining it is an achievement for which every farmer should strive. The business of farming should be conducted as intelligently and as carefully as a manufacturing business. Every process must be understood and regulated, from the raw material to the finished product, in order to be uniformly successful. The farmer's factory is his farm. Different soils present different problems. It is important, therefore, that soils be studied and understood in order that the production of crops may be most satisfactory and profitable. No system of soil management can be satisfactory that does not in the long run bring profitable returns. Some soil treatments and methods of management may be profitable for a time, but ruinous in the end. One-sided or unbalanced soil treatments have been altogether too common in the history of farming in this country. A properly balanced system of treatment will make almost any soil profitably productive."

Dangerous to Turn Cows on Pastures Too Early

Turning cows out on the pastures too soon in the spring is one of the common mistakes milk producers make, according to dairy specialists, Iowa State college, and this year the tendency will be greater than before because of the general shortage of feed.

To turn the cows out in the pastures too early hurts the pastures, and the feed value of the pastures is especially low so that it hurts the cows, early grass consisting mostly of water. Wait until the grass gets a good start and take the cows off winter roughage feeds gradually, advise the extension men. Six to eight weeks after the cows have been on pasture the medium producers will do fairly well on grass alone. With high producers, however, the grain allowance should be continued but may be cut down a few pounds.

Fewer and Bigger Plants
Are Needed by Industry

"Fewer and bigger milk-handling plants go with fewer and better cows in the improvement of Wisconsin's dairy industry," says K. L. Hatch, director of extension at the University of Wisconsin.

Professor Hatch believes that competition will prevent the establishment of more one-man plants which have been common since pioneer days. He believes that modern transportation makes it possible to assemble a large volume of milk and cream at one point where it can be handled by experts in plants equipped with labor-saving, large-volume machinery. A single milk plant of this type can replace a dozen one-man factories and save the labor of several men. Another feature in favor of the large plant is the uniformly good product which is possible when the best of machinery is used and the work is done by experts.

Winside Wins From West Point

At the game this week, on the home grounds, in a game between West Point and Winside, the local players were winners by a score of six to three.

The home team held the lead in the game through, the score being nearly made in the last two innings. Johnson for Winside made two home runs, West Point made one double play, Hansen for Winside struck out eight men while Hagebauer for West Point struck out four men, Hansen walked one man and Hagenbauer none.

Batteries: West Point, Hagebauer and Dramel; Winside, Hansen and Grandquist.

The game this coming Sunday will be one of the hardest fought games of the season between Winside and Winside on the local grounds as Winside is first and Winside second in the league.

MISS IDA TARBELL

COMMENTS SMITH

Miss Ida Tarbell is one of the noted women writers of the times, and the New York Times of June 10th carried the following little story from her, written at New Haven, Connecticut, the day before, showing that this noted woman reformer is not frightened about Smith and what he will do, should he be named as chief executive of the nation:

Governor Smith was eulogized today by Miss Ida Tarbell, as an ideal of efficiency, profound humanitarian sympathy, and restless energy, used for a decade unreservedly for the people of New York, and now placed before the people of the United States for their disposal and approval.

Miss Tarbell fired the opening gun of the 1928 campaign for the Democratic women of Connecticut in a political meeting at Double Beach. More than a hundred representing not only democratic clubs but the small towns where clubs do not exist, heard Miss Tarbell and the enthusiastic reception they gave to her presentation of the claims of Governor Smith for solid party support indicated deep-seated strength for his candidacy for the presidency.

Miss Tarbell's talk, drove home the claims of the governor as resting upon his record of business efficiency, his organizing skill, his constant and profound humanitarian sympathies. His untiring zeal for improvement in management of whatever enterprise he represents were cited as the prime reason for his elevation to the presidency.

Finds Smith Eminent Fitted

"Governor Smith comes before the women voters of America as a man eminently fitted for the presidency. His ability to get direct and deep results from the legislature of New York has been marvelous. He was a towering figure of the Constitutional convention a decade ago, when I first knew him. He showed there that he knows how to get evils corrected.

"One of his assets is language so phrased that it can be understood universally. His words are so carefully chosen that none will mistake the purpose for which they were intended. He has secured from Republican Assemblies wonderful accomplishments, but he is concerned in something more than the domination of the Assembly. What he fights for constantly is the cause of the people and the people's principles.

"He has directed his whole energy to opposing the centralizing control of the natural resources by private interests. In these regards his action is a demonstration of the principles of the Democratic party. The whole tendency of the Republican party is toward centralization.

Defends His Habits

"I never saw a man who was so much interested in human beings as Governor Smith. He knows the details of the State business. He knows where the money goes. He has eliminated waste and duplication in the State Government. He has a passion for seeing that people get what they pay for.

"Some people say that Governor Smith is a drinking man. To my mind he is not. His personal habits are manly and clean. He has splendid qualities of character, he thinks of others before he thinks of himself, his time is spent in giving hearings to people opposed to him, and his State Administration has furnished the most efficient and inspiring demonstration of truly democratic principles that the people of America have witnessed in many years."

hodgepodge

Hodgepodge—A stew of various ingredients; hence a mixture.—Webster.

"I thot Father's day was the first of each month," said that Irish neighbor of ours when his wife pinned a rose on his coat lapel Sunday morning, and informed him that it was Father's Day.

The slogan of some at Houston next week for a while will be like that at Kansas City with the exception of the name, and it is to be "stop Smith."

We are going to hear a lot in the next few months about violation of the dry laws, and the possibility that we may get an administration for the next four years or more that may not do as well as the big distiller put in as the head of the enforcement law by the present republican administration. Why worry? It might be worse, but it should be better.

Judge Ben Lindsey is reported to be in trouble, and some think he is losing his mental balance, especially since he has been proposing and defending companionate marriage. Some one had best look after him.

One of the latest remedies proposed to give babies both nourishment and a remedy for colic is to feed the hens a small portion of catnip and feed the eggs to the colic babies. The idea came from the fact that if the hens happen to break into the onion patch and eat heavily of that plant, the flavor of the eggs tells where the bird lunches.

A gentleman from Pennsylvania and what modern physicians would call a quack, says an exchange, gathered oil from the marsh waters and sold it as a cure-all for pains and diseases. That was in the middle of the last century. They dug a well to get more of the oil as the industry grew by leaps and bounds. The deeper they bored the more of a film collected. Then came the first well. Today the industry totals eleven billion dollars. This healer started a gigantic business and today the original purpose of the oil has been forgotten. One-sixth of the railroad freight in this country represents petroleum. A good share of the big finds in this world have been thru accident.—Now it tempts men to steal it and lie about it.

Slow Evolution From

Cave as a Dwelling

There was no fireplace in the cave home of the caveman. The fire was built outside the entrance, for it was very seldom that a cave had a hole in the roof which would allow the smoke from a wood fire to escape, and a fire in a cave without a vent was impossible. The fire at the cave's entrance served another purpose. It prevented ravenous beasts from entering and preying upon the occupants. In course of time man learned to build, but his early attempts at architecture were very crude. In some cases he burrowed beneath the ground, almost like a rabbit, and dug a kind of cave in which to dwell. Then he learned to build rough houses with trees, and later he acquired the art of building with mud and stones. The brick, as we know it today, was not made until very late in the history of mankind. In the time of Pharaoh, it will be remembered, the Children of Israel were in the habit of making bricks with clay and straw. They had not learned the art of burning bricks, by which the plastic clay would have assumed a nonplastic and hardened form, and the straw was necessary in order to bind the clay together.

Clock Close Approach

to Perpetual Motion

The clock which an ingenious Swiss engineer has constructed, depending for its energy solely on changes in temperature and air pressure, is certainly novel, but it is not an example of perpetual motion. It does not create its own energy, but utilizes external sources.

The nearest approach to a perpetual motion clock is one invented by Lord Rayleigh. It consists of a microscopic piece of radium in a glass tube supported in an exhausted glass vessel. Two aluminum leaves attached to the tube are expanded by a positive charge from the radium until they touch the sides of the containing vessel, when the charge goes to earth and the leaves fall back. This operation is repeated every minute, and will continue for many years, so slowly does radium exhaust its marvelous energy.

Ocean's Strangest Creature

The ocean harbors no creature more strange and interesting than the sea-elephant. Considering that the sea-elephant measures 21 to 22 feet in length and from 15 to 18 feet around, he is actually bigger than our land elephant.

The male has an extraordinary snout, or trunk, 18 inches from tip to eye. When sleeping, this snout rests in a shapeless mass on the sand. When the animal is crawling, the snout is flaccid and pendant. Often the trunk will relax and fall into the open mouth, or when the head is turned up it may even fall back. Despite the ungainly looks of these animals, they are able to bob along on a level surface as fast as a man can walk. In the water they are very active and agile. Diving in graceful curves and nosing into the crests of a wave, they come up with their catch.—Field and Stream Magazine.

Beauty

Beauty is the fragrance of life; it yields an attraction apart from its form, and glorifies the atmosphere of its being with an enrichment that adds to the universal grace of goodness. Beauty is truth, and truth is goodness. Give us the beauty of simple, truthful human conduct, and the painful dissensions that characterize our relationships would cease, and the vast and expensive machinery required to keep law and order might be turned into productive channels. The opportunity is ours, and its neglect is disastrous, as with all the laws that exist for our progress and our well-being.—Henry Brew.

Country's Gold Coinage

Free and unlimited coinage of gold exists in the United States. Standard gold bullion may be deposited at the mints and at the assay offices in any amount, to be coined for the benefit of the depositor, without charge for coinage, but when other than standard bullion is received for coinage a charge is made for parting or for refining, or for alloy, as the case may be. Refusal of gold bullion of less value than $100, or when it is too base for coinage, may be lawfully made at the mints.

Requisites for Collies

No color standard has been set by the Collie club for individuals of the breed, but the dogs of black or tan with a white frill and collar, and the blue merles are most sought by present-day fanciers. The collie standard requires that males of the breed measure about 24 inches at the shoulder and females approximately 22 inches. The weight for a mature dog should approximate 60 pounds and the bitch 50 pounds.

When Drawer Sticks

When the summer moisture swells the drawers of a dresser, sideboard or cabinet, the handy man of the house usually can make them work smoothly without much trouble. The edges of the drawer openings and the parts of the drawer that stick may be rubbed with a piece of paraffin wax or wax candle; even a piece of hard soap will answer. Usually this will relieve all but the worst places, and these may be touched lightly with a plane.—Popular Science Monthly.

Petroleum Used by

Builders Long Ago

Petroleum products were well known to the ancients, according to the youngest son of Lord Lempill, a Scottish laird. Speaking before the Royal Aeronautical Society in London, Lempill said, "We read in the Bible the account of the building of the Tower of Babel and learn that 'Slime had they for mortar.' The slime was bitumen."

He further mentioned that Pliny and other ancient writers have referred to the use of "Sicilian oil" for illuminating purposes. The Dead sea, originally named the Lacus Asphaltites, provided bitumen, which was sold to the Egyptians for embalming purposes. In the East the petroleum industry was a growing concern long before the Christian era. Earlier than this the Chinese and Japanese had sunk oil wells and ventilated the shafts by means of bellows. In Japanese history it is related that "burning water" was found in the reign of Tenjiteno, or about 1260 years ago.

About the year 1600 a Japanese named Magara found oil which he subsequently distilled. The product was sold as an illuminant. It is thought this was the first instance of an attempt to split up the crude oil into its component parts.—Kansas City Star.

Majority of Mankind

Too Easily Excited

There are clubs and societies for every conceivable purpose under the sun, yet one of the most obvious needs of Americans today is left entirely uncovered. What we need is a don't-get-excited club whose object shall be to keep people from coming to the boiling point when it isn't necessary.

The trouble with most of us is, we get too excited over little things and not excited enough over the big ones.

Agitation, loss of temper and surrender of self-command over the trivial annoyances of life are a sheer waste of time and energy. In most human affairs more can be accomplished through poise and placidity than through effervescence and seismic phenomena.

If a don't-get-excited club could be so organized as to conserve all the human voltage that now goes to waste through needless excitement it would mean that mankind had reached the suburbs of a new era.—Harry Daniel in Thrift Magazine.

Plea for Tolerance

What is abhorrent to you may be not only justifiable conduct to another, but actually praiseworthy. That is where the spirits of tolerance and charity come in. We can't all think alike, any more than all trees can bear similar foliage and fruit.—We are all inconsistent. Not one of us acts according to the standard his best self sets.

Besides, we are all more or less like the man in the fable, who carried two wallets over his shoulder, one in front and one behind. The one behind contained his own faults, the one in front his neighbor's. Can it be wondered that he was always conscious of his neighbor's faults and forgetful of his own?—London Tit-Bits.

Elephants Were Lightest

The true dance brings the highest possible bodily perfection. Through it one can attain perfect poise. It is not a question of weight. A few years ago, in the Hippodrome, I saw a troupe of dancers. They were little girls, none over seven. Yet their little bodies were tense and rigid, and they came down bump! Then came some performing elephants. The beasts weighed thousands of pounds, yet as they danced from side to side, no one could hear the sound of their feet. The animals had poise . . . they were at ease, and they had natural understanding of the laws of balance and movement.—Edwin Strawbridge in the Dance Magazine.

Canvas Modern Buckskin

The modern hunter uses canvas where Daniel Boone and the old-timers would have used the skin of some animal, according to a writer in Field and Stream. "Canvas is in reality a substitute for skins," he writes. "Its principal uses are for clothing, shelter and equipment. The pioneer wore trousers, moccasins, and a shirt or a jacket made of buckskin. The modern hunter sallies forth clad in a canvas cap or hat, canvas gloves, canvas hunting coat, canvas trousers, canvas leggings, and sometimes canvas-topped shoes."

Abuse Doesn't Prevent Use

The abuse of anything does not invalidate its genuinely ethical use. As long as we are what we are, that is, as long as we have vermiform appendices in our bodies and evil in our souls, some of us will abuse anything. That inevitable abuse will never be an ethically valid reason for denying, much less for attempting to prohibit, the ethical use of that same thing, whether that thing be alcohol or sex or money.—Plain Talk Magazine.

Famous Coach Neglected

That the coach of Henry Grattan, the Irish statesman who procured in 1782 the passing of legislation which made the Irish parliament independent, is lying neglected in the open behind the National museum, Dublin, has been revealed by admirers of historic things. The coach was evicted from the museum when the Free State parliament took possession in 1922.

No Way of Recovering

Time One Has Wasted

Punctuality in daily life is of prime importance to the individual who would succeed, points out an editorial in Liberty Magazine.

"Punctuality," warns the editorial, "is a business asset. If you have an appointment with a man and are ten minutes late, you lose. You have made a big mistake. If the appointment is with your wife or sweetheart, to meet her in the lobby of the Whoopis theater at 2:30, and you get there at 2:35—well, it makes the matinee considerably less pleasant. If the lady in the case is your best girl you probably won't be late anyhow. But she may keep you waiting; that is just discipline.

"But, on the whole," concludes the editorial, "if you and everybody would go through life five minutes ahead of time, the course of things would be much more pleasant. Desires would be fulfilled more swiftly and success would be more willing to perch on the proper banners. We have a definite capital of time—just so much in a day or a week or a year. It is just as bad to waste money or health. The rewards of conserving it are just as sure, and the penalties of not doing so just as inevitable."

Penetrated Secret of

Statue's Golden Head

Hannibal Tosci, a wealthy Italian who died recently, is said to have acquired his wealth in a most romantic way.

Years and years ago there was erected on a highway near Naples a stone which bore this inscription in French: "On the first of May in every year at six o'clock in the morning I have a golden head." For many years persons flocked to the scene at the appointed hour for the purpose of witnessing some miracle, until finally, as nothing ever happened, they concluded it was a fraud and no attention was paid to it.

One morning in 1841, Tosci, then a lad, happened along and an idea occurred to him. So, on the succeeding May day he was on the spot at six o'clock in the morning and dug a hole at the point where the shadow of the head of the monument fell. Soon he discovered an old leather knapsack which was filled with gold amounting in value to 80,000 francs.

Old Belief a Myth

There is a popular belief that a dog is not permitted to cross large bridges, such as the Brooklyn bridge, because of the vibration and consequent danger to the bridge that its regular and even tread would cause. Of course it is a myth. It is based on the same theory that one soldier walking over such a bridge in regular step would produce more vibration than a regiment of soldiers marching "rout step." For the reason when troops march over a bridge the officer gives the order "rout step." If all the men kept step on a long bridge the vibration would be considerable and might cause danger. But a cat or dog would have no appreciable effect on a large modern bridge.

He Had Tried It

Mother is fond of pointing a moral when she tells stories, but young Clifford is not always properly impressed. One morning when she was uncertain whether or not he would relish the nourishing cereal she had prepared for him, she began telling him a story as she dressed him, a story about a big, healthy boy who was big enough to go to school.

"And," she said in an impressive tone of voice, "what do you suppose this fine, big boy had for breakfast?"

In the uncanny wisdom of his three years, Clifford replied:

"Oh, I know. Something he didn't like, but it was very, very good for him."

Junior's Discovery

Walter, Junior, persisted in sucking his thumb. His mother had made small progress in breaking the habit, when his grandmother decided to take a hand.

One night, as she prepared him for bed, she surreptitiously anointed his thumb with a harmless, ill-tasting drug. She tucked him into bed and returned to the living room.

Soon she heard a startled and insistent wail. "Grandmother, come here. My thumb thmelt green and tatth thomthing awful."

Which Paper Is That?

Toots was the sort of twenty-year-old maiden who believed anything and that the moon was made of green cheese. She was famous for that. One evening at a social gathering Toots was harkening to the speech of a new bride who said she was going to join the Eastern Star, as it was an excellent organization.

Toots blinked her eyes comprehendingly and asked, "Is that a newspaper?"

Early English Coinage

A penny of gold, struck during the reign of Henry II, was England's first gold coin. Edward I followed with silver half-pennies and farthings, for the first time made round instead of square. Then, in succeeding reigns followed the gold florin and noble, the silver groat and half-groat. Edward IV added the gold angel and half-angel and in Henry VII's reign came the sovereign, double and half-sovereign and the testoon, or shilling, of silver.
