

WILLIAM H. WEBER PASSES WEDNESDAY

Resident of Wayne for Quarter Century Dies at His Dunning Home Wednesday.

WAS PARTNER IN FLOUR MILL

First there came word to Walter Weber here of the serious illness of his brother and former partner here in the mill, Will H. Weber, and following soon after came the word of his death which is reported to have occurred in the early hours of Wednesday morning, June 27, 1928, at the age of 70 years within a few days.

At this writing the cause of his death or length of his sickness is not known. His brother Emil and a sister living at Florence, first received the word of his sickness, and sending it on here, left almost at once for his home, but he had passed away before they reached the farm in Blaine county.

Mr. Weber is survived by wife, a daughter and three sons, and also three brothers and two sisters. The daughter, Hazel Northrup lives at Eugene, Oregon, the sons, Walter at Emerson, Harold until recently here, is in California, at Long Beach, we think, and Gillman at home on the farm. Of the brothers, Jacob lives at Florence, Emil in Iowa, and Walter at this place. The sisters living near the old home in vicinity of Florence are Mrs. P. D. Smith and Mrs. M. J. Griffin.

For a third of a century, Will Weber was a resident of Wayne, and was associated with his brother Walter in the conduct of a milling business.

Place of burial and funeral plans and date are not yet known here.

ALL STORES TO CLOSE WEDNESDAY, JULY 4TH

All Wayne merchants will close their places of business next Wednesday, July 4th, excepting the meat markets which will be open until 10 o'clock.

All places of business will remain open on Tuesday evening, as on Saturdays, to permit everyone to get ready for the big Independence day.

Although there will be no celebration in Wayne, a number of towns and amusement parks in this territory will observe the day in grand style, according to reports.

The Wayne band will furnish music at Wakefield, during the day and many from here plan to spend the day at that place.

A BIT OF FARM CHANGING

Jacob Reeg, living northwest of Wayne has sold his 80 acre farm at $155 per acre, to Claude Weeces, who comes from Craig to locate in this good community. Nor are we to lose Mr. Reeg for he has purchased 160 acre farm south of town, the property of the Ferguson estate, for which he pays $150 the acre, and those who know the farm tell that he has bought well.

Henry Lutt has bought the quarter section held by Henry Hinrichs northeast of Wayne, paying 152.50 per acre for the same. Possession of these places will be given in March next, we are informed by Martin Ringer, who acted as the agent.

BIG TIM MURPHY DEAD AT CHICAGO

A dispatch from the city of gang warfare brought the news to the world that gang guns had gotten Big Tim Murphy; shot down in cold blood, as the saying is, and his career of alleged crime cut short by other criminals in their gang warfare. Murphy was called from the house by the ringing of his door bell, which he answered in his usual cautious manner by going out from a side door to see who, for he well knew that his life was sought, and had been for years. A machine gun fire from a closed car laid him low. His brother-in-law, who accompanied him out, dropped to the ground at the first round, and escaped injury. So ends another chapter of gun warfare.

NO BAND CONCERT TONIGHT BECAUSE PLAYERS ABSENT

There will be no band concert at the Wayne park tonight because of the absence of several of the members of the band.

E. B. CHICHESTER CELEBRATES AT AGE OF 4-SCORE AND 2

The eighty-second birthday anniversary of E. B. Chichester a former resident of Wayne was celebrated at the home of his son W. L. Chichester at Dalton.

Dinner was served to 43 guests. A huge cake bearing eighty-two candles was the center piece of the table.

Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Chichester and family of Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Chichester and son of Wayne, Frank Panabaker, Miss Lucenda Panabaker and Ralph Panabaker, Earl Panabaker and family, Harry Martin and wife, Martin Chichester and wife all of Dalton; Raymond Chichester and wife, Fred Chichester, wife and daughter of Chappell; Chris Chichester, wife and sons of Oshkosh, Nebraska; Mrs. John Sylvanus of Wayne, Mrs. Lenora Paulson and Miss Mae Chichester of Chicago, and Burdette Thies of Wayne.

It was a happy gathering of relatives to honor this aged relative.

FIFTY ENROLL FOR SPORTS TUTORING

Practical Information on Actual Fundamentals of Games Presented by W. G. Kline.

More than fifty high school coaches of northeast Nebraska, north western Iowa and southeastern South Dakota are enrolled for the Coaching school offered at the local college this week with W. G. "Bad Bill" Kline proving all that was hoped for as instructor.

Mr. Kline is doing more than many athletic instructors, according to those in attendance, he is offering good practical information on the actual fundamentals of basketball and football. He does not confine his chalk talks to theory, he goes into detail to prove the practicability of every contention.

Scoring plays and the defense for each, which he has proved good and new plays which he believes good are very carefully outlined, around which any coach can build an endless number of attacks.

The local athletic staff feel very fortunate to have an instructor here for a week, who ranks as high as an authority as does Mr. Kline. They believe it should do much to improve the game in this corner of the state.

Mr. Kline has served many years as a successful mentor of both basketball and football in small and large colleges. His ideas of the game are regarded with favor by the nation's most renowned coaches.

He is now connected with a sporting goods company of Kansas City, and is doing research work for that company. He has plans for introducing new features that he believes will be a great help to coaches and his firm.

While here he and Mrs. Kline and their two sons are being entertained at the W. K. Hickman home.

COUNTRY CLUB ENTERTAIN

About ninety women and thirty children attended the weekly entertainment of the Country club at the club house Tuesday. The afternoon was spent at bridge and refreshments were served by the entertainment committee.

Mrs. P. A. Theobald was chairman of the entertainment with the following assisting her: Mesdames, W. K. Smith, F. S. Berry, C. A. Orr, Paul Mines, H. A. Welch, R. W. Casper, and Mrs. Nettie Call.

Helen Jones and Peggy Morris had charge of the children.

They will not meet next week because of July Fourth coming on Wednesday, but will convene on July 10 when Mrs. A. T. Claycomb is chairman of the committee in charge.

A benefit luncheon was held at the club grounds last Friday at which about 140 plates were sold for the two course luncheon, netting the organization about seventy dollars.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS MET HERE WEDNESDAY

Miss Sewell, county superintendent of this county was hostess to a dozen superintendents from this corner of the state Wednesday when they gathered here in one of their meetings to discuss school matters and methods and visit. On account of the weather, not all of the district were present, but the dozen here report a good time. The next gathering, probably in August will meet at Madison.

"Mollie" Ulrich Has His Mother, 78, "Pinched" for Punching Holes in Tires

Because of Her Extreme Age Judge Didn't Have the Heart to Confine Her to "Lock-up".

CLAIMED IT WAS HER PROPERTY

The extreme age of the defendant, who was found guilty of punching holes in her son's automobile tires with an ice pick, was too much for the Judge and she was freed on condition of good behavior, after being fined $25 and costs here last Saturday and ordered confined to the county jail until paid.

Anna Ulrich, who has spent 78 years on this earth, claimed that the tires which her son charged her with destroying, were her own property and that they were on her own car.

She testified that she resorted to this method of procedure as a means of preventing her son from driving the car which rightfully was hers, and that she therefor had a perfect right to use an ice pick on them.

John Ulrich, the plaintiff, convinced the court that the car did not belong to his mother, and that she had no right to incapacitate it.

She was fined $25 and costs, and ordered confined to the county jail until said fine should be fully paid.

Then the Judge weakened and decreed that because of her extreme age, her feebleness and due to the infirmities of her years she be paroled on good behavior.

CELEBRATION

Pender and Wakefield hold celebrations next Wednesday and are offering the usual attractions, plus some special features. At Pender Chas. Eryan is to be the speaker. Members of the Wayne band will furnish music at Wakefield, and a bunch of boosters finished a busy day inviting people from the surrounding towns to come to that place to celebrate. The boosters were here about six o'clock Tuesday evening.

FRIENDS GATHER AT DINNER PARTY

Mary Libengood Guest of Honor at Dinner Party at Wm. Fox Home Here Last Sunday.

On account of the frequent showers Sunday, the picnic dinner at the park, planned by the relatives and friends of Mrs. Mary Libengood, was changed to an indoor dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Fox, a daughter of Mrs. Libengood. There was a gathering of nearly forty relatives, and some from as far away as Pennsylvania. Those who live here had provided for a picnic dinner, and it was brought and spread like a real banquet on the tables at the Wm. Fox home.

Mrs. Mary Libengood, in whose honor the gathering was held, has been here and at Emerson for some months, visiting, and she left for her home Wednesday from Emerson. Ray Libengood and wife, a son from Pennsylvania, were here, and accompanied his mother on her return home yesterday. Miss Beatrice Fishel was also here from Pennsylvania, and was one of the party going home Wednesday.

Then follows quite a number of that name, Will and wife, Ruth, Stella, Norman, Lawrence, Anna, Hilbert, Paul, and Doris Jean Libengood. Clinton Denith from Alliance, Ohio, Kenneth McCurdy of Omaha, and Clair Meyers and wife, besides a number of neighbors, and the host and hostess, Wm. Fox and wife. They report very pleasant time, and left for their homes with a pleasant memory of the event.

HOSPITAL NOTES

A number of new patients are confined to the Wayne hospital, a number of which are given as follows:

Mrs. G. D. Boardman of Coleridge underwent a major operation Sunday, and is reported improving nicely.

Arnold Korn of Carroll, appendix operation, Saturday, is doing nicely.

Mrs. H. V. Cronk of Wayne is confined to the hospital as a medical patient.

Helen Hennericks of Wayne underwent a tonsil operation Saturday. Oscar Johnson also of Wayne underwent a tonsil operation the same day.

L. B. McCLURE WINS BLIND BOGEY MEET

Winner of Flag Tournament to be Held This Week Will Get Hot and Cold Jug.

FREMONT MAN MAKES RECORD

L. B. McClure proved to be the champion guesser in the Blind Bogey tournament held on the local courses over the week end, and won the three pound can of coffee donated by the Larson store. He chose a fifteen handicap and shot a ninety which left just enough to win the honors, '75 the number under the seal.

Flag Tournament

The attraction for the golfers this week end will be a Flag tournament. In this event each contestant will add his handicap to 74—which is par for the course—and will then play until he has exhausted his allotted number of strokes.

The player getting the farthest distance from the starting point will be declared the winner of the Hot and Cold Jug donated by the McNatt hardware store.

New Course Record

Mr. Craighead of Fremont broke the old course record by one stroke here this week when he scored a 34 in the second round of an eighteen hole match.

His score for the match was 39-34 for a 73 which is one stroke higher than the eighteen hole record for the local course.

A number of the local golfers plan to go to either Omaha Friday or Sioux City on Saturday to see an exhibition to be played by Johnny Farrell, new national champion, and Gene Sarazen, one of the nation's best players.

Play is continuing in the Kiwanis team match, and the two teams are nearly tied at present.

BOY SCOUTS WILL VISIT WAYNE CAMP

First Class Troop Will Visit Wayne in August on 600 Mile Tour of State.

Twenty-four first class Boy Scouts will leave Omaha July 23 on a six hundred mile gypsy tour through a portion of the twenty-eight counties recently added to the Omaha area, Boy Scouts of America.

Twenty-three towns will be visited on the tour and in each the troop will put on demonstrations as well as in other towns along the route. A big truck has been donated for the trip.

Laverne C. Haugness will be in charge of the tour and the following boys have been selected to make the trip: George Hossack, Leo Sonderegger, Walter Wellman, Robert Dwyer, Richard Daly, Robert Bushman, Raymond Hanson, Carl Julius Ernst, Edward Elliott, Colt Campbell, James Hanley, Theodore Brown, Frank Ogle, John Kerrigan, Russell Rullman, Maurice Dunderson, Richard Bickel, Richard Salyards, Harry Jensen, Arnold Seltzer, Geo. Alexander, Donald Hughes and two boys to be selected from the Wahoo, troop.

The itinerary will start July 23 at Wahoo and David City, be at Hartington August 1, Wayne and Schuyler August 2.

CAUTION

Americans who will take part in the annual celebration of Independence day, are urged to make every safety precaution when that day arrives. Figures collected on the celebration last year show that 200 died and more than 3,000 suffered injuries. Of those killed, 30 were less than six years of age, 120 were between six and twenty. Fifty of those who lost their lives were burned to death when their clothes took fire. Of the injured, many of them will remain crippled or blind. A large portion of the injuries were serious and many of the others were powder burns and other painful but not permanent injuries. The day has always been one of fun but the annual toll of deaths and injuries calls attention to the need for safety.—Ex.

Mrs. Albert Hoskinson and daughter Hope went to Iowa the first of the week, and are said to be visiting various places in that state.

THOS NAPER FORM NAPER VISITED WAYNE RELATIVES

Tuesday afternoon the Norfolk train left Tom Naper here for a short visit at Wayne, a guest at the C. E. Yocum home, to whom he is not only a relative, but a former neighbor. Mr. Naper was on his way to Sioux City and formerly for a short time attended college here. Later he decided to see the world while adding to his education, and took the naval route, joining the navy for that purpose. He is now home, but did not divulge his intentions for the future. While in the naval service he was round the world or near it, several times, and had a valuable experience. But he assented to the idea that while he would not for a fortune miss what he has seen, and the experience passed, he is not in the market as a buyer for more of that kind. We would have been glad to have learned more of his experiences, but opportunity was not found.

VETERANS HOLD FORMAL MEETING

About Thirty Members of Post Are Guests of Commander at Interesting Meeting.

Due to the uncertainty of the weather the picnic which was to have been held last evening, when the Legionnaires were invited to be guests of the commander, Mr. Wm. Kleper, at his farm home, was held at the club rooms.

This meeting, although very formal proved one of the most interesting of the year, it being the final one for the summer. Some important business was well disposed of, and surely.

The post reluctantly accepted J. T. Bressler's very generous offer of paying the Decoration day speaker expenses, which while they amounted to only a paltry "fifty" were unanimously accepted—almost.

One thing the post forgot to do was offer the donor the customary rising vote of appreciation.

"Bad Bill" Kline, one of the middle west's best authorities on athletics who is assisting the college tutor of sports with the Coaches schooling this week, was a guest—and the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Kline spoke briefly but very much to the point, telling some of his experiences with Legion posts in his travels.

Following the address by Mr. Kline a two or three course luncheon was served by the entertainment committee of which Mr. Helme and the Commander had charge.

The menu consisted of two layer wafers, tomato soup, cake and lemonade.

Sometime during the rush of events the veterans voted to send the commander and adjutant to the state convention at Grand Island in August. These two were also voted to make all arrangements for a joint picnic between the Legion and Auxiliary to be held in the near future.

ATTENDS COACH SCHOOL AT OMAHA LAST WEEK

Valdemar Peterson of Wayne who is athletic director of the Madison public schools, attended the Omaha Coaches' school held at the Technical high school of that city during last week, and reports that he enjoyed the week.

Some of the leading instructors of the middle west and the nation had charge of the instruction. Henry Schulte, the outstanding field and track coach of the University of Nebraska, Gwinn Henry, football coach of Missouri and H. V. McDermott, mentor of Oklahoma's Missouri Valley cage champions had charge of these respective departments.

Mr. Peterson said that Mr. Schulte was recognized as the outstanding authority of the group, but intimated that all sessions were most instructive. He regarded this school as the outstanding instruction offered in the middle west during this summer.

EWING COUPLE MARRIED HERE LAST SATURDAY

Henry F. Reimer and Eleanor E. Larson both of Ewing were married here last Saturday, Rev. Fenton C. Jones of the Presbyterian church performing the marriage rites.

The groom's reported to be a farmer of near Ewing.

GRANT MEARS NAMED ACTING POSTMASTER

Notified of Appointment to Postmastership of Wayne Office First of This Week.

C. A. BERRY SERVED 12 YEARS

According to report given last week the examination papers of the nine candidates for the Wayne postoffice had been passed on, and the names of the three having the highest ranking were being considered, according to the rule of civil service as adopted by the present and the previous administrations. As the standing of the three were given, C. A. Berry was first in rank and F. G. Phillo second and G. S. Mears third.

At any rate, the word came Saturday that G. S. Mears had been named as "acting postmaster" for the Wayne office, and while the time when he may assume the duties is optional with him, we hear that he will take the place July 1st.

Postmaster Berry has served more than 12 years as postmaster, being out only a short time when the death of the appointee for his successor died suddenly just before he was installed. Then G. S. Mears was named as "acting postmaster" and a new examination ordered, which resulted in the reinstatement of Mr. Berry. Mr. Mears gave good service, as we remember, during his short term acting postmaster.

COLLEGE FACULTY CHANGES FOR THE COMING TERM

(From the Goldenrod.)

Several changes in the personnel of the Faculty have been made for the coming year. Five of the new members are the following:

Miss Helen M. Pence of Harvard, Illinois, has been selected as Dean of Women to take the place of Miss Dora Carlson who resigned to accept a position in Augustana College at Rock Island, Illinois. Miss Pence will take up her duties early in July and Miss Carlson will spend the remainder of the summer at Columbia University. It is with regret that the school sees Miss Carlson leave as her work has been eminently satisfactory. Miss Pence holds the bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois and the master's degree from Columbia University. She has had a number of years experience in grade schools, high schools and in teachers colleges. She comes to us highly recommended.

Mr. Judson Q. Owen of Minneapolis will be at the head of the department of English next year. He holds the A. B. degree from Illinois Wesleyan University and the M. A. from the University of Wisconsin. He has been at the head of the English department at South Dakota Wesleyan University and during the past year has been an assistant in the University of Minnesota. Mr. Owen comes to Wayne highly recommended and well prepared for the work he is to do.

Mr. George W. Costerisan, who is an instructor this summer in the department of education, will remain next year as a substitute for Prof. Walter T. Orr who will be on leave of absence for the year. Mr. Costerisan holds the bachelor's and the master's degrees from the University of Wisconsin and has had fourteen years teaching experience in the schools of Wisconsin.

Mr. W. Irving Horn of Crystal Lake, Illinois, has been secured to have charge of the public school music in the training school and to teach voice work next year. He holds the diploma from the American Conservatory of Music of Chicago and the degree from the Columbia School of Music in Chicago. Professor Beery who formerly had charge of this work and had leave of absence for the past year, decided to remain in Columbia University to complete further preparation in music.

Miss Lenore P. Ramsey of South Bend, Indiana, will be an assistant in the department of education next year, taking the place of Miss Marie Johnson who has resigned. Miss Ramsey holds the master's degree from Northwestern University and has had considerable experience as an instructor of English. In connection with the English work she will assist in the expression and dramatics

It was a fine little shower this morning, cheering the farmer and the city folks alike. Not so cold, either, and local showers promised.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

James Holt was visiting at the R. A. Dunn home at Scribner last week-end.

Miss Elsie Warnock is visiting at Omaha this week, going down Monday morning.

F. H. Vail, Piano Tuner will be back in Wayne about November 1st.—adv. May 17-11.

Mrs. Stallsmith went to Carroll the last of the week for a week-end visit at the Ed Murrell home.

Mrs. A. A. Welch went to Kansas City Tuesday morning for a visit at the home of her son Leslie.

Mrs. Frank Erxleben visited at Norfolk Tuesday, going over on the morning train, and returning that evening.

Mrs. Henry Korff went to Sioux City Saturday morning to visit a short time at the home of her son and wife in that city.

Mrs. Clara Horsham and daughter Miss Emly were passengers to Sioux City Tuesday morning, going over for the day in the city.

Mrs. W. Simpson from Mapleton, Iowa, who had been spending a week at the Ben Carhart home, returned to Iowa Saturday morning.

There is an unconfirmed rumor that the Hearst interests have purchased the Omaha Bee-News for the modest sum of two million bucks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hufford were up from Columbus Saturday to greet some of their former friends here; Mr. H. is in the employ of the state, inspecting gravel that is being loaded out for graveling.

Special attention to all kinds of fillings. Robt. W. Casper, D. D. S.

E. C. Rhoades and wife and Herman Sund and wife and son were passengers to Sioux City Saturday morning, going over for the day.

Alnsworth is to have a new bus line, extending from O'Neill to Grand Island in part, and another branch will lead to Chadron and the Black Hills.

FOR PERMANENT WAVE, or other hair dressing before the 4th, make appointment at once. The French Beauty Parlor, Wayne, Phone 527—adv.

Miss O. Evans, who has been employed at Lieth, North Dakota, for some time was thru Wayne the last of the week on her way to visit her home folks at Carroll.

U. W. Tompsett and wife from Omaha were here for a week-end visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Judson, a brother of Mrs. Judson. They returned Sunday morning.

Chester Fowler, Miss Lila Gardner and Miss Chickie drove to Inman Friday evening, where two of the three visited home folks and Miss Lila visited among friends there, where she taught in the school for three years.

For milk or cream for daily delivery or for special occasions call phone 417-F-2 the Logan Valley Dairy. We are always on the job.—adv. M18-11.

Mrs. C. E. Peterson and son and daughter came the last of the week from Rawlins, Wyoming, for an extended visit here at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Griffith, and with other relatives and friends.

At Coleridge they have an airline marker, which simply consists of the name of the town painted on the roof of a garage. This is to let the bird-men know where they are, and perhaps keep them from running into the tall buildings.

They call it a cool season, and it seems to be. At Norfolk the mercury Sunday night indicated a temperature only 11 degrees above freezing, and that record at this time of the year was only once in 31 year lower than that on that date.

For better underwear try Munsing at Gamble's.

Coleridge is considering the matter of installing a sanitary sewer, or at least are getting the estimated cost of sewer and disposal plant. They will find it a great convenience for the home keepers—and a help to the sanitation of the town.

Mrs. Joseph Hall left here Saturday morning for her home at Minneapolis. Mrs. Hall has been spending some time here with her sister, Mrs. Augusta Swanson, and her son Glenn Swanson; and together the two sisters had visited relatives and friends at Lincoln, where a brother lives, and at Wausau, having a good time every day.

Wm. Luellman from Bloomfield, who spent a couple of weeks here at the Wayne hospital, where his appendix was removed, was able to return home Friday. Said that he was feeling pretty well, in fact, much better than when he came to Wayne. He told how well he had been treated by the hospital force while here.

Dr. Young's Dental Office over the Ahern's store. Phone 307.—adv. 11.

Mrs. D. H. Alberts from Pierce, came the last of the week to visit her mother, Mrs. Henry Jans in the east part of this city. Mrs. Jans, in spite of her four-score of years, lives by herself preferring to live at her own home to going to the home of daughters where she is welcome. As a rule, some students have a room there.

Mrs. L. E. Mead from Pierson, Iowa, who has been visiting at the home of a daughter at Iroquois, South Dakota, came Saturday evening to visit here for a while at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Ramsey. The daughter she had been visiting, Mrs. C. L. Wait came with her from South Dakota, and left for home Tuesday morning.

For snappy straw hats try Gamble's.

Geo. Caplinger of Sioux City, for many years a conductor on the passenger trains thru Wayne, came over to attend the Wm. Schrupf funeral last Thursday. "Cap" took a lay-off a few months ago, and while looking and feeling much better, he is not able to return to his work—and in recognition of his years of faithful service, tho he had not attained the pension age, an exception was made in his case, and he is retired on a pension—and he richly deserves it—for he has earned the privilege of retiring on a pension, and friends hope that he long lives to enjoy the reward for his service.

From the reading of the story of the republican convention written by Editor Murray of the Pender Times, it seems quite possible that had the republicans heard and heeded the speech of the young senator, LaFollette from Wisconsin, the Times might have been better for the republican national ticket during the campaign. Many have said it was the only worthwhile speech of the convention.

Last week the Nebraska Journal-Leader of Ponca came to our desk with a new name at the head of the editorial page, E. D. Simpson having grasped the pen that for the past two or more years was wielded by Editor Charles. Mr. and Mrs. Charles, according to their farewell in the paper week before, have a new business to develop, something but recently perfected. Hope it makes them plenty of kale.

There was a consignment thru here on the express the first of the week of ten Holstein calves, consigned to John McQuistian at Bloomfield, which gives one the impression that dairy stock is being imported into the state. Quite a number of these calves, and perhaps all of them were heifers; and a part of them were fine appearing calves, and showed mark of good breeding of that kind of dairy animals.

In the list of stock shipments last week were a number of single ear hog shipments, and Oscar Reinhardt sent three cars of fat cattle to the Sioux City market the first of the week. Prices have been increasing on hogs during the past few weeks, and the cattle prices have not been advancing during that time. In addition to the car shipments, we have noticed the truck forces rather busy these days and nights.

MONEY FOR FARMERS—Let us finance your farm operations. If you want to buy, build, or retire an old loan we can help you. Our loans cost less than 5%. Write or call John H. Roper, Dodge, Nebr.—adv. J7-4t.

Over at Madison the fire chief has been inspecting the conditions of the city as to its fire fighting equipment and water supply, and is warning the officials there that they will have to improve conditions or pay more insurance. Their records show that in condition of hydrants, size of water mains and fire truck and other equipment, they are far below what they should be, and it is pay for better fire fighting equipment or pay more for insurance.

W. A. Ramsey and family are soon to move to Wakefield, where Mr. Ramsey has purchased the Carl Miller barber shop, and is going to run it from now on. It is a 2-chair shop, and the Miller assistant will stay with him for the present. Mr. Ramsey has been a resident of Wayne about four years, during which time he has held a chair at the P. L. Mabbot shop, and has friends and patrons here who will be missing himself and family. Mr. Ramsey took possession Tuesday.

Mel Norton, for many years a resident here, came out from Sioux City last week to visit his daughter, Mrs. E. L. Chichester in the country and his son Art here in the city. Mr. Norton is not in the best of health, having suffered a slight stroke of paralysis some time ago, but he is much improved now, and able to be about, and with but little trace of the affliction in his speech, tho his words do not seem to flow as easily as before. He was greeting quite a number of farmer friends.

Over at that fur farm in Madison county they are receiving shipments of rats, and hope to be skinning them this winter. It is estimated that the fencing that will be required to keep the animals at home will cost $15,000, then there are other expenses, including a windmill for furnishing the water supply for their reservoirs. The lake is well filled with carp, and they are enemies of the muskrats, and it is said that the lake will soon be open to the public for fishing purposes that they may clean it of the carp, before they clean the lake of rats.

The program for the first half of the week at the New Orpheum theatre, Sioux City, is headed by Larry Rich and His Friends, a group of dancers, singers, and musicians. Mr. Rich, among his other attributes is a musician and he has organized a particularly fine orchestra of the syn-copated sort which is augmented by Mlle. Cherit, The Dean Twins and Bernie Rich. "The Skyscraper" is the screen attraction and features William Boyd. The Paper Fashion Star, Lestra Lamont in "Paper Creations" heads the bill for the last half. Everything is made of paper, the scenery, gowns, furs, shoes and all. Cooper & Clifton in "Stage Struck" and other novelties round out the vaudeville program. The play "Forbidden Hours" is an intensely human portrayal of a romance behind an European throne. Ramon Navarro is the star while Renee Adoree plays the feminine role.—adv.

PIERCE MAN WILL VISIT WITH SON OF NOTED TEXAN

(Ray Kenaston, Journal Staff Writer) Nebraska Headquarters, Hotel Rice, Houston, Texas, June 24.—The trip to the national democratic convention will mean more to Douglas Coen, of Pierce, Nebraska, than simply casting his vote for Gov. Al Smith. For tomorrow Mr. Coen will meet none other than Samuel Houston, son of the famous Sam Houston after whom the convention city is named and to whom all Texas pays homage as its savior and hero. And not only will Mr. Coen meet the son of the famous frontiersman, but he will meet him as a relative, at the request of Mr. Houston.

For several years Mr. Coen and Mr. Houston, who are cousins, have carried on correspondence regarding their relationship. When Mr. Houston, who is 60 years old, learned that Mr. Coen had been elected a member of the Nebraska delegation, he telegraphed him urging him to attend the convention, and made an appointment to meet him here, Monday. Not only is Mr. Coen proud of the fact that he will meet the son of such a distinguished southerner, but the entire Nebraska delegation shares in his joy, and the Cornhusker delegates are laying plans for an elaborate entertainment for Mr. Coen and Mr. Houston, which they will put on before the close of the convention.

Here is what the newspaper said of the Nebraska Delegation on their arrival at Houston Sunday: The Delegation is for Gilbert M. Hitchcock and if he does not gain strength as the balloting proceeds, a part, but not all the delegates may get into the Smith band wagon. In caucus, they named Mayer Dahlgren chairman of the delegation. The mayor, is 70 years of age, and has been attending conventions since 1896, when he was one of the Bryan supporters in that great convention, and was Nebraska's national committeeman in that wonderful campaign.

LAW ENFORCEMENT PLANK

The people at Houston are having plenty of advice as to the platform, on which to run the race for the presidency, and we give below the ideas of P. F. O'Garra, the representative in the last legislature from Cedar county, and the democratic nominee to be his own successor in the next session of Nebraska law makers.

A Criticism and a Suggestion

Eliminating from that declaration and alleged promise, the quotations from Washington and Lincoln, it read as follows: "The people, through the the method provided by the constitution, have written the Eighteenth amendment into the constitution. The republican party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of this provision of the constitution".

"The Eighteenth amendment to our constitution does not define intoxicating liquor. Under this amendment congress must do so by appropriate legislation. If the so-called 'law enforcement plank' in the republican platform also stated that the party pledged itself and its nominees to the vigorous enforcement of the Volstead act, which defines as intoxicating liquor any liquor that contains more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol, it would mean something, as it stands I submit to every intelligent man, woman and child in the United States of America that it is absolutely meaningless.

"Under this law enforcement plank a republican congress could amend the Volstead act and legalize, for beverage purposes, the use of beer containing 5 per cent of alcohol, or light wine, containing 10 or 15 per cent of alcohol, or even bourbon whisky, the erstwhile delight of Kentucky colonels, and claim that the party had lived up to its platform pledge. As, I stated, the Eighteenth amendment to the constitution does not define what is intoxicating liquor, the congress must do that and congress can amend the Volstead act so as to allow for a larger per cent of alcohol in liquors used for beverage purposes.

"I would suggest that the democrats at Houston draft a law enforcing plank about as follows: "The people, through the method provided by the constitution, have written the Eighteenth amendment into the constitution. The democratic party pledges itself and its nominees to the observance and vigorous enforcement of the Volstead act, enacted under and by virtue of the Eighteenth amendment so long as the law remains on our federal statute and until congress, obeying the clear and unmistakable demand of a majority of our people, fairly and honestly counted and clearly expressed, shall modify or repeal the present prohibitory law, known as the Volstead act."

A democratic president, with such a plank as I have suggested, and as a declaration of party principles, would not completely enforce the Volstead act that the people of this country would know what real prohibition means, intelligent and unmistakable expression of the people's wishes as to this important question. As the matter stands today, with enforcement of prohibition a farce, we are getting nowhere. Let us democrats be fearless and absolutely honest with the people on every question and particularly on this question; nominate Governor Al Smith for the presidency and we will carry every state in the union on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November in this year of our Lord 1928.

A QUESTION FOR LEGISLATION

While accurate statistics have not been compiled, C. M. Skiles, attorney for the guaranty fund commission, who has had charge of much of the litigation involving the winding up of insolvent state banks, is of the opinion that the double liability imposed on stockholders by the constitution is only 50 percent effective. He reaches this conclusion by a study of a number of the banks.

What usually happens is that as the men who operate banks are the largest stockholders, when the bank goes broke they go broke along with it. This leaves the holders of five and ten shares, usually outstanding farmers in the neighborhood, the only ones from whom collection in full can be made. Included also are some widows and other persons of small means in the town. In addition to this a percentage of the holders have nothing when the sheriff comes around to levy an execution on the judgment. Some of them reach this stage by the age old expedient of transferring their property to their wives, or other co-plaintment and willing relatives. Still others have moved away by the time the processes of the courts can be invoked.

The law itself is responsible for the failure to prevent the losses from the last two causes named. As construed by the courts this double liability cannot be made effective until all assets have been realized upon. The courts could not do otherwise because the constitution says very plainly that this liability cannot be enforced until the corporate property has been exhausted. Thus the receiver's hands are tied while part of this source of collections vanishes.

Mr. Skiles suggests that each bank should be required to give a surety bond to the extent of the capital and surplus, to be resorted to for the purpose of making up the deficiency in stockholder liability collections. The suggestion has the merit of meeting the situation, since an amendment to the constitution would not then be necessary, even if advisable. The constitutional convention fund this provision in the old constitution and inserted it in the new.

Perhaps it will be a real campaign fight this time. One in which the principles involved in just government may be discussed.

The road folks in session at Lincoln are urging a 4c gas tax law by the next legislature. What are they going to buy cars with, if the tax law is doubled?

Henry Sherman on trial at Chadron charged with the murder of three in the Roger Pochon family is pleading not guilty, but "insanity," and we wonder if he has money enough to play that game successfully?

Just to show how in earnest they are, a couple of U. S. senators were ready to fight in the platform committee room at Houston Wednesday. Wonder if the bunch at Kansas City had any platform principles they were ready to fight for?

Every now and then some sympathetic fellow who is sorry for the editor tells how grieved he is that we continue to affiliate with that party—why not get into the party of greed and graft. Well it is bad enough to have to stand for some of the things practiced and preached in the name of democracy; and it would simply be impossible to be in a position where one would be expected to make excuses for some of the things done in the name of republicanism and retain any self-respect. Most too near press time to attempt to mention the complete list. But there is a protective tariff which permits the favored interests to tax the rest of the world, including those who think it a holy cause.

THE FUNDAMENTAL ISSUE

Claude G. Bowers, who sounded the keynote at the democratic national convention, is not a politician. He is a scholar, a student, and a historian. His books on "Jefferson and Hamilton" and "Party Battles of the Jackson Period" are recognized as among the outstanding works on American history. By his long and close study of the early years of the republic and of the harshly conflicting principles that attended its birth and strove fiercely for its mastery, he was peculiarly fitted for his task at Houston. Peculiarly fitted because the battle that was joined between Jefferson and Hamilton and their respective followers, and renewed between Andrew Jackson and Nick Biddle, is the battle that is raging still. The leaders are new, the battle ground has been subjected to tremendous changes, but the issue is the same. It is an issue that will persist as long as the enthralling experiment of free popular government lives to be assailed without ceasing by its mighty foes.

What that issue is, in what various forms it manifests itself in our own time, what are the consequences of today's ascendancy of Hamiltonism over Jeffersonism, Bowers, with the skill and clarity of a great historian, with the art of a masterful orator, makes plain within the limits of a few thousand words. It is of course, and frankly, a partisan presentation, vividly colored, but it comes from the warm heart and trained mind of an honest and thoughtful student and patriot, who is impassioned only because of a profound conviction in the righteousness of his cause.

"Hamilton," says Bowers, "believed in the rule of an aristocracy of money and Jefferson in a democracy of men."

"Hamilton wrote to Morris that governments are strong in proportion as they are made profitable to the powerful; and Jefferson knew that no government is fit to live that does not conserve the interest of the average man."

And applying the issue to the conditions of today he adds:

There is not a major issue of which the American people are complaining now that is not due to the triumph of the Hamiltonian conception of the state. And the tribute to Hamilton at Kansas City was an expression of fealty to him . . . who proposed the plan for binding the wealthy to the government by making government a source of revenue to the wealthy—who devised the scheme to tax the farm to pay the factory; and whose purpose was to make democracy in America a mockery and a sham."

Shall an aristocracy of wealth control government?

Hamilton said yes. Jefferson said no.

It is Hamilton's will, Hamilton's theory, that has come to prevail. We have still the form of the free government that Jefferson gave to us. But the spirit that possesses it is the spirit of Alexander Hamilton, "whose fundamental principle," says James T. Adams in his "Hamiltonian Principles," "was distrust of the common man."

The consequences that have flowed and are flowing in ever increasing volume from the Hamiltonian triumph Bowers lays before us in pulsing oratory. Millions of citizens listened to his speech last night. Millions more will read it today and in days to come. To all who gave it thoughtful attention who give it further study, will come a clear conception of the meaning of the approaching campaign.

The republican party will continue its fight for reposing the powers of government in the hands of a few—the great modern aristocrats of wealth and privilege. The democratic party will fight, as since Jefferson's day, and Jackson's day, it has fought, for control of government by the people themselves, and for its use for the equal benefit of all alike.

That is the fundamental issue. It towers, as a giant over a pigmy, above all others. —World-Herald.

DEMOCRACY'S DAY IN THE SUN

The representatives of the democrats of the nation are at Houston this week, and to them comes the responsibility of naming the candidates for president and vice president to hold aloft the banner of the party which for years has had as its slogan the sentiment embodied in the words: "Equal opportunity to all; special privilege to none."

The committee on resolutions will have the task of declaring the party platform on which the battle of ballots shall be waged in November. Let us hope for a platform that will say what it means, and mean what it says.

Congressman Howard has suggested three planks that he hopes to see incorporated in a short declaration of principles.

1. A plank which will applaud the action of the United States congress in passing the Muscle Shoals bill, and condemn President Coolidge for murdering that good legislation.

2. A plank endorsing the Norris "lame duck" resolution, which seeks to put newly-elected members of the congress on duty sixty days after their election, instead of thirteen months after election as at present. The people know it and understand it as the "Norris resolution," and the democratic platform should endorse it as the Norris resolution.

3. A plank applauding the congress for passing the McNary-Haugen bill, and condemning President Coolidge for his cruel veto of that legislation. This plank should not necessarily mention the McNary-Haugen bill by name, but at least it should endorse the principle of that legislation.

Most of the papers are conceding that Al Smith will be named as the standard bearer, and we hope that he makes the race with a fair and fearless declaration of principles. A party in a national campaign should make its position known on many questions of principle, and go to victory or defeat with its flag flying—and if to victory, keep the flag flying. A platform not only to run on; but to live up to if it prove a winning one, and demand the same ideals from the opposition parties."

HOMELY PHILOSOPHY

Are you one of the birds that always "try" the new things as they come out but who never "buy" as long as they can avoid it?

You are always having goods sent up on approval and then returning these same things without buying.

You say that dealers should expect to show their wares.

But the idea that you are making a salesman go to needless and useless expense just to amuse you has not penetrated your cheeky brain.

The bluffer who pretends interest in a certain thing in order to get service free will not last long.

Every dealer has a few such persons spotted.

A Kansas editor has noticed that when a man finds fault with his local newspaper the chances are ten to one that he hasn't an advertisement in it; five to one that he never gave it job work; three to one that he is delinquent in his subscription; even money that he never did anything to assist the publisher to make a good paper; and forty to one that he is anxious to see it when it comes out. —Chanute Tribune.

Much depends on what paper you are reading, who is going to win the election, and really it will be best to wait until the votes are counted before deciding.

One little thing that the farmer kicks about is that before the World war—about 1915—he could buy a farm wagon for 110 bushels of corn, and now, while the price of corn has advanced a little it takes 239 bushels. In those other days 236 bushels of corn would buy a binder; now it takes 398 bushels to pay for the same binder. Most any corn husker can understand that.

The Business and Professional women of the land, of which Wayne has a local club, are to meet at New Orleans July 9 to 14, and the announcement they send out tells that they have an interesting program planned and will have some economic questions considered. Now we want, for just a suggestion to their propaganda writer, to say she would get more publicity for her cause, we think, if she would leave out the veiled advertising of concerns amply able to pay for their publicity—in fact, do pay for it in magazines, and expect it in the country press gratis.

"Politics certainly makes strange bedfellows," for from undisputed authority it seems that John J. Curry, the New York manager of the Curtis presidential campaign, gave more than a score of reasons why Hoover should not have the republican nomination, and they are to be found in this issue of the democrat.

"Money is the poorest measure of human worth in the world, says one who has plenty of it. When we observe some who have it, we must be convinced that anybody can get it; and having gotten it, only a few know how to keep or use it. This is not an indictment of the rich, nor of riches; neither is it a "play" to the floor. It is a simple acknowledgment that gold and fine human qualities are of entirely different metals.

At the close of a 15-page protest sent from Ohio of extravagant school expenditures we find the following remedy: "Stop electing to the various boards of education incompetent, hand-picked old women of either sex, who have a vanity to gratify and who seek the adulation of the school teacher and the school politician at the expense of the child and the taxpayer."

One thing that makes it look as though the Smith nomination is practically conceded by the republicans is that papers of that faith are beginning to turn in charges of action not creditable to the governor, as they state them. There is one good thing about these charges, they are early enough to be investigated before the fall election, even if too late to be answered before the delegates begin balloting. Perhaps they are intended to serve the country by blocking the nomination, in the hope that whoever else might be named would not rank with Smith as vote getter.

Some papers are predicting that the time is coming when neither of the major parties will dare to take a position on major issues. Perhaps it may be here now—and when it once dawns upon the voters that such is the condition, there may be no major political parties—just a big non-partisan league, or something similar.

"Independence Day"

To give everyone an opportunity to enjoy "Independence Day" all the Wayne business houses will be closed all day Wednesday, July 4th.

Meat markets will be open until 10 o'clock a. m.

All places of business will be kept open Tuesday night, as on Saturday, to permit all to do their shopping.

COMMITTEE.

There was a real case of Hodgepodge at Wayne a few weeks ago, when a bunch of spinach was delivered by the grocer for the family dinner, and as the same morning an order of astors for beautifying the garden came from the greenhouse man. From the head of the house came the word to the cook to have the greens cooked for dinner. The head of the culinary department found and cooked the plants, but did not discover the spinach, we are told. Mistakes will happen.

The phone rang at Terrace Hall and none other than Louise, the notorious blue eyed brunette, answered the thing. She walked gracefully into the booth, casting an envious glance at her sisters, who were basking in the sun parlor.

"Hello," she began.

"Hello. Do you still love me?" came in return.

"Why, of course I do. Who is this?"

"Well, I'm working on the phone wires and I thought I would test out your line. I find it to be in good shape, thank you."

C. O. Mitchell and wife and daughter Bonnie are planning a bit of vacation trip in Minnesota next week, when they plan to spend a week or two traveling and visiting in that state, and while fishing between spells Mr. Mitchell will visit some of the noted quarries in that state and see what is latest and best in granites for his shop use during the next 12 months.

Marcus Kroger, who underwent an operation at Rochester last week is reported to be gaining in strength day by day. His case was diagnosed as goitre—and when the operation was underway it was found that he had two of those pets, one on either side of the throat. Both were removed, and Mr. K. is said to be able to be up and about the hospital a little each day, and the promise of getting outside soon, and perhaps come home in a fortnight.

Mrs. Lawrence Jenkins and daughter Lois returned Wednesday morning to their home near Carroll from Minneapolis, where they had been that the daughter might have examination from her physician as to the progress she is making toward overcoming an affliction which left her so crippled that she may go thru life on crutches—but her intellect seems normal, and she attends school regularly, and is in 3d grade and so can get much pleasure in life.

Dr. C. H. Bubker of O'Neill was kidnapped by officer of the law at that place early Sunday morning, before many people were on the street, and hurried across the county line into Holt county. It was that that he was taken for ignoring a court order of the court to have him do something for the support of his children, a divorce between himself and wife being in the courts. The doctor is a Chiropractor, and so may be able to "adjust" the matter.

Ray Perdue is shipping stock from Wayne today, going in with a car of cattle Wednesday. Mr. Perdue tells us that he thinks it pays to go to market with his stock to look after them. On one occasion had he not been looking after his cattle, the railroad or yards people would have given him an extra steer—and that he did not want—nor would he want one of his animals to have disappeared and landed in some other bunch, and been a loss to him or the company.

Out at Royal, J. M. Grove has a number of rare treasures, among them a parchment deed that was signed by J. Q. Adams. It entitles the holder to seventy-eight acres of land where the city Cincinnati now stands. Besides this he has a bed cover that is more than 150 years old, and a solid walnut dresser more than 100 years old. The oldest keepsake that he has is a bread dough biscuit that is 43 years old. It has never lost its shape and has never moulded although it is yellow. It was brought from Indiana by Mr. Grove when the family moved here in pioneer days.

Mrs. Phil H. Kohl recently underwent an operation at Rochester, and Mr. Kohl, who went there to be with her, was planning to come home the first of this week. When he was about ready to start, he complained of not feeling well, and went to see a physician who called two others, and they found a condition which made it seem advisable for him to remain at that place and undergo an operation, which we are told he did. In the letter telling of his condition the nature of his trouble was not told. It is to be hoped that both himself and Mrs. Kohl will soon be able to come home in improved health.

Mrs. W. S. Elder of Carroll was called to Emerson, Iowa, Wednesday by word of the serious condition of her sister, Mrs. W. A. Snodgrass of Emerson. Not much of her condition or what had befallen her could not be gathered from the message calling her but owing to her age of more than seventy years, and wording of the message it was feared that it might be a serious accident. Their brother, W. C. Kelly from Laurel joined Mrs. Elder here for the trip. Mrs. Snodgrass had frequently visited at Carroll, and had spent at least one winter at the Elder home, made the lady quite well known to many in that community.

Chas. Meyer was at Omaha last night with two cars of cattle from his farm.

The contractors have commenced work on the new city powerhouse building, which is practically to enclose the old building.

Mrs. Mary Harrington and daughter Marietta from Chicago, have been here visiting at the home of Sam Barnes and wife, her sister, for a week.

Edwin Richards of Martinsburg was a visitor at the S. H. Richards home last Friday. He reports that everything is looking very well up that way this spring.

Mrs. Eddie Owen received word this week of the death of a brother John Schier of Pierce, and the funeral is to be held today. As to the cause of the death or the age of the young man, we did not hear.

There was quite a delegation of Carroll folks here Wednesday evening, waiting for the train. James Eddie, W. W. Black and his son O. L. Black, and Mrs. John Horn, who had been at Sioux City for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Phermetter from Baldwin, Wisconsin, spent Monday and Tuesday here visiting their cousin, Mrs. Minnie Baker, and left for their home Wednesday morning, planning to visit friends in Iowa on their way east.

According to report from near West Point H. C. Bartells and Vaughn Williams of Carroll ran into a ditch by the side of the railway near West Point one day this week, and had to be hauled out, but without much damage to the car or injury to themselves. It looked like hitting the ditch was the best of two chances, and they took it.

Mary Rebecca Thompson, daughter of Levi Thompson and wife from just north of town, has been quite seriously ill with an appendix attack followed by intestinal flu, but is much better. The little one was at the home of her grandparents, Sam Barnes and wife while ill, and was recovered sufficiently to be able to return home the first of the week, says Miss Weiland, her nurse during the sickness.

Mrs. Harry Radaker of Newport, who has been spending a week here at the home of her parents, Wm. H. Gildersleeve and family, left for home Wednesday for home. Mrs. R. told that her mother and sister Wilma, who were going to Europe on an excursion, had sent word back to their sailing from Quebec the last of last week, and according to their sailing schedule, they were supposed to be near the west coast of Ireland at this time. This old world is getting smaller and smaller all the time, as distance is measured in time it takes to travel from point to point. By air the Atlantic is spanned in less than a day—if nothing happens—but not many are going that way.

Cities grow and towns prosper and villages are made beautiful not alone by reason of the effort by those who also hope for profit but also by reason of the many self-appointed tasks that are a labor of love to those who undertake them, says J. P. O'Furey. . . . In Coleridge the war memorial which stands in the inter-section of the principal streets is surrounded by a small plot of ground which for several years grew up in weeds simply because it was no particular person's duty to mow the weeds. Then Henry Gartner, a retiring farmer of the community that that the memorial would be more appropriate if the little plot indicated that it was being cared for, and so out of his slender purse he purchases flower seed and he devotes as much time as may be necessary to the cultivation of the little plot and the care of the flowers. The big shaft will be a true memorial at least as long as Henry Gartner is able to care for it. In nearly every community there are those who perform similar services all too frequently without thanks or appreciation.

Sholes News

Picking cherries is the order of the day in Sholes.

Elmer Stark and family and Clarence Stark, all of Hastings, who have been visiting at the R. E. Pickering home the past week returned to their home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Swieheart of Coleridge, who were recently married in Sioux City, spent Wednesday evening in the home of the latter's brother Matt Paltz and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stewart of South Sioux City arrived Monday evening for a visit with friends in Sholes.

Ed. Mosher and wife left Friday for Sioux City to attend the funeral of Wm. Slaughter. Mr. Slaughter was the owner of the elevator which is managed by Mr. Mosher in Sholes. H. W. Burnham is in charge of the business during Mr. Mosher's absence. George Carlson and his mother arrived home Saturday evening. Mrs. Carlson has been visiting relatives in Stanton, Iowa, and Fremont white Geo. has been working in a garage at Fremont.

Farmers in the vicinity of Sholes are rejoicing over the fine rains we had Saturday and Sunday.

H. J. Lenzen left Saturday to relieve the agent at Randolph for about eight or ten days while the latter is on a vacation.

Mrs. J. L. Davis, J. L. Beaton and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Beaton will leave this week for an extended trip through the Black Hills. They expect to camp out.

Word was received here by Mrs. H. J. Lenzen of the automobile accident which occurred three miles north of Wausa last Thursday in which Rev. George Georgen was almost instantly killed and Miss Margaret Irie, his housekeeper seriously injured but is expected to recover. The party were on their way home to Primrose, and were passing a truck and got into some loose gravel overturned three times. Rev. Father Georgen was a former pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic church at Wynot, and Miss Irie is a life long friend and school-mate of Mrs. Lenzen.

The Lewis families of Sholes visited relatives near Randolph Sunday.

Rudolph Shutt and J. L. Davis, each had a car of stock on the Chicago market Monday.

Mrs. M. Fritson has had a hard tussle with the flu, but has improved considerable at this writing.

Mrs. Mary Pinkelman who has been visiting relatives here and at Carroll left for Hartington Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lage and Mrs. Hans Tietgen and children visited with little Mildred Tietgen who is in a hospital at Norfolk, last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Friedenbach of Bloomfield visited at the home of their son Charles and family here Sunday.

Several from here attended the double header ballgame at Randolph Sunday.

Miss LaRue Miller assisted Mrs. H. J. Lenzen with her house work last week.

TEACHERS PLANNING VACATIONS

The training school will close at the end of four weeks of summer school, June 29. Miss Stocking will spend the vacation at her home in North Bend. Miss Marchall will visit relatives at Kansas City and Springfield, Missouri.

Miss Rutherford will go to her home at Mount Vernon, Mo.

Miss Scott will leave almost immediately for New York where she plans to enter Columbia and later motor through the east. Her sister will accompany her.

Miss Fisher will be with her mother at Delta, Iowa.

Miss Staple will visit her people in North Platte before going to Chicago University for the second term.

Mrs. Heylman will leave immediately for Minneapolis where she will visit friends and attend the meeting of the N. E. A. Later she will go to New York and take work in Columbia. After the close of summer school she will travel in the New England states and visit Philadelphia and Washington, D. C.

Mr. Teed, Mr. Britell, Miss Pierce, Miss Woodworth, and Miss McCorkindale will be away from Wayne the second term of the summer school.

The first three will spend their vacation traveling as formerly announced the last named will be at their homes in Topeka and Wakefield respectively.

Miss Nellie Behm plans to take work at the University of Chicago the last quarter and will leave Wayne early in July. Her work will be taken care of by Miss Myrtle Burns who has been an assistant for some time.

Miss Dora Carlson will leave Wayne at the close of the fifth week of school and Miss Pence the new Dean of Women, will take her place. Miss Carlson plans to enter Columbia for the summer term before taking up her duties at Augustana college, Rock Island, Illinois. Miss Pence will be here several days before Miss Carlson leaves.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby

-Babies Have Nerves-

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

RECEIVES LETTER FROM ESSAY PRIZE COMMITTEE

(From The Goldenrod)

Following is the letter which accompanied the check for the prize essay.

June 2nd, 1928.

My Dear Dr. Conn:

It is a real pleasure to us to be able to enclose herewith a check to the order of Mr. Russell Mellberg in the sum of $500. This prize check is in recognition of Mr. Mellberg's achievement in having written an essay on "The Relation of Chemistry to National Defense" which the examining committee considered the best on its topic in this nation-wide contest. We also enclose a letter for Mr. Mellberg from Mr. Francis P. Garvan, the donor of the prizes for this contest.

When you present Mr. Mellberg with his prize check please also convey the congratulations of our Committee to him on his success.

May we take this opportunity to thank you and those of your faculty who have co-operated in presenting the Prize Essay Contest to your stu-

Mellberg's Essay

One of the most serious problems confronting any nation is that of national defense. The protection of its people and its territory is of utmost importance to any government. The Constitution of the United States of America commits to the national government the great powers of raising and maintaining armies and navies, declaring war and adjusting the results by treaties. Much of the time and energy of each administration is expended in this type of work.

The weapons of war are many and of various kinds. Practically all of them are dependent upon chemistry. The production of gunpowder and high explosives is a chemical process and enormous quantities of nitrates and nitric acid are used in their manufacture. During the World War the government of the United States erected a large plant at Muscle Shoales, Alabama to produce nitrates for explosives. In "Creative Chemistry", E. E. Slosson describes the firing of a big gun as, "A chemical reaction on a large scale."

These big guns and many of the other implements of war require steel of tremendous strength. This, too, was produced by chemists after years of patient research. Such steel can be manufactured only under the direction of those who have much technical training and experience in chemistry. Warfare of any modern type whatsoever would be impossible without chemists and chemistry.

Each new type of weapon produced has had a revolutionary effect upon war. The invention of gunpowder rendered lances, spears and swords useless as weapons. The introduction of high explosives and big guns into battle marked the end of forts and other fixed defenses and the beginning of trench warfare. The latest weapon to revolutionize warfare is gas which is peculiarly a chemical product. Its manufacture is almost entirely chemical. No one but a trained chemist can produce gas or direct its use on the field of battle.

The gases used during the World War may be grouped as asphyxiating gases, lachrymatory gases, sneezing gases and blistering gases. Asphyxiating gases, of which chlorine is the most common, cause lesions and congestion in the pulmonary system. Lachrymatory gases produce temporary blindness by irritating the eyes and causing a flow of tears. The purpose of sneezing gas is to compel the removal of gas mask. Blistering gases burn the skin producing an effect somewhat like severe sunburn. Mustard gas is a common blistering gas. It is also known as a "persistent" gas because when released it infests the ground for days. Gases which infest the ground for only a few minutes are called "non-persistent" gases.

For centuries there has been great and, at times, violent objection to every new weapon employed in war. In the case of gas many believe that it is inhumane and that its use should and will be forbidden by the nations. A resolution stating that poison gas should not be used in war was adopted at The Hague Peace Conference in 1907. Admiral Mahan, representing the United States, strongly opposed the resolution and refused to sign it. It is significant that several of the nations who did sign have since violated this agreement. What power can force any nation to abide by a promise not to use gas? If resolutions and agreements will stop the use of gas why not stop all war by the same means?

The great advantage of gas is its efficiency. It is one of the most powerful and effective means ever used for waging war. The total number of gas casualties sustained by the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany during the recent war was approximately 507,000. Only about 15,000 gas troops were employed in producing these casualties. What other weapon has ever been as efficient and effective as this? General Amos A. Fries, chief of the Chemical Warfare Service says, "Gas is the universal weapon, applicable to every arm and every sort of action."

Gas was employed very little until 1915 and is therefore a new weapon. Yet before the close of the war in 1918 it had assumed tremendous importance and demonstrated remarkable efficiency. Because it is a new weapon much progress may be expected in making it even more effective.

There is a very strong impression that the use of gas has made war infinitely more cruel and inhumane. Because the troops who suffered the first gas attack in 1915 were entirely unprepared for it, their casualties were unusually heavy. This is no indication of the effect of gas upon those who have means of protection. An official list of the casualties sustained by the American Army during the World War was compiled by the Surgeon General's office. It shows that of the 70,752 gas casualties about 1,400, approximately 2 per cent, were fatal. The total casualties were 258,338 and 46,519, or 27.4 per cent, resulted in death. This indicates how destructive of life, explosives, and bayonets are as compared to gas. Again, men wounded with gas rarely suffer any permanent disability or disfigurement. After a careful consideration of facts and figures, Lieutenant Colonel Edward B. Vedder of the Medical Corps of the United States Army concludes, "Only a very minute percentage has suffered from any permanent disability directly caused by gas." It is the high explosives that make physical and mental wrecks of their victims. The production of casualties is a necessary part of warfare. Gas makes it possible to inflict casualties of such a nature that most of the injured may be restored to health and usefulness. Lachrymatory gas is especially humane. Although it has been effectively used in battle, there is no record that anyone was ever killed or permanently injured by it. Of what other weapon ever employed in war could this be said?

Also, gas does not destroy dwellings, factories and other buildings as high explosives do. It leaves the homes and the means of making a livelihood undamaged. Considering the number of lives saved, the small number who are permanently injured and the fact that it does not destroy property, gas is by far the most humane weapon man has ever employed in warfare.

Many people fear that aeroplanes and other means will be used to attack cities and non-combatants generally with gas. If a commander desired to make such an attack he could render it more effective by using high explosives rather than gas. The development of gas as a weapon has added no new perils to the lives of civilians.

The first gas attack at Ypres inflicted tremendous losses upon the unprepared British and French armies. This, however, need not occur again. Means of defence are available that afford better protection against gas than any device ever employed against bullets or high explosives. Among these are protective clothing, gas masks and protective ointments. In such protection education, training and discipline are of supreme importance. Soldiers must know how to don a mask quickly. Yet to be of any value a mask must be properly adjusted. The drill and discipline need to be such that there will be no terror and no confusion. Such conditions would be fatal.

Passive resistance is not sufficient. Offensive use of chemical weapons is vitally necessary.

Industry has made large and varied uses of organic chemistry. Only slight modifications are required to change many plants, such as dye factories, into chemical warfare establishments. A nation with strong chemical industries can turn from the works of peace to the manufacture of chemical weapons in a remarkably short time. Because the industries of peace may be easily and quickly converted into warfare establishments the need for factories producing gas exclusively is not nearly so great. Hence, gas proves to be the most economical method of preparing for and waging war because it uses the resources at hand.

This act complicates greatly the problem of disarmament. Factories using chemistry are potential arsenals. No progressive nation will consider giving up research and production in chemistry. To do so would destroy its opportunities for scientific and economic progress. Hence, no nation with strong chemical industries will ever be disarmed. Whatever limitations are placed upon other forms of weapons will only increase the importance of gas.

Armies need other supplies than weapons. None of these is more important than food. War removes a large number of able-bodied men from the occupations of peace. Many of them are engaged in agriculture, prior to entering the service. This would naturally tend to reduce the amount of food produced and cause wide-spread suffering among both the armies and the civilians. However, chemists have analyzed the soil, studied the constituents necessary for the production of plants and have shown how to make the soil even more productive. They have taught those engaged in agriculture how to feed the soil and increase the yields.

Again, chemistry has shown how to utilize many parts of plants that have formerly been considered useless. Also, chemistry has provided means of preserving perishable foods. They may be kept for long periods of time and transported long distances. To be efficient an army must be well fed and an important part of chemistry's contribution to warfare has been the increasing and preserving of food supplies.

Another supply very much needed by armies is medicine. Because there are always wounded men to be cared for, the medical service is practically indispensable. Here, too, chemistry has been most useful. It has supplied anesthetics to relieve the anguish of those in pain and antiseptics to exclude bacteria from wounds. Antiseptics have saved the lives of thousands of soldiers. Of equal or greater importance has been the treatment of disease. Americans remember the terrible ravages of the fever during the Spanish-American War. Other countries have had similar experiences. Disease is often more to be feared than the attack of the enemy. Yet many diseases are preventable. Chemistry has overcome a large number of them by such means as inoculation and vaccination of soldiers and sterilization of water supplies.

We often consider war a very cruel occurrence. Without chemistry to supply anaesthetics, antiseptics and means for curing and preventing diseases it would be infinitely more terrible.

As a nation the United States of America is most fortunate in its resources for chemical warfare. We have the raw materials, the sources of energy, the wealth, the skill and the ingenuity to produce and utilize chemical weapons as well or better than any other nations. This is admitted by leading chemists of other countries. Our vast areas of fertile land can produce food sufficient for all our needs during times of war.

Yet these things alone do not guarantee safety and security. We need research and a stimulation of chemical industries. Elio Mameli of Italy says, "Today the chain that bars the door of every country against foreign invasion has three links: scientific research, industrial production, military application. To imagine that such a chain will hold without forging strongly all three of these links is folly."

With our vast resources, our only danger lies in ignorance and carelessness. In event of war it is the ignorant, the untrained and the unprepared who suffer most terribly. We need to realize this and act accordingly. We must understand that preparation which does not comprehend the importance of chemical weapons is obsolete and of little value. Our duty to our people and to those weaker nations whose greatest hope of international justice lies in the friendship of the United States for them demands

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart chard.

There are probably other of our graduates who have positions and if so the Goldenrod would like to know about them.

RECOGNIZING PROPAGANDA

One might almost say nowadays, that it is indeed a wise man who recognizes his own propaganda.

Investigations are now disclosing the fact that tons of pamphlets have been furnished the public schools carrying favorable "Information" about public utilities such as electric light and power companies and that professors have been hired to spread "information" about these interests.

By many, of course, such information is not regarded as propaganda; that is a term applied only to that which comes from Russia or has a socialistic tendency. Any material which tends to support the existing order of things is supposed to have the right of way in schools, it would seem.

About the only wise thing for a student to do is to realize that he is beset on every hand as much truth as possible by which he may test propaganda of every kind. It is useless to try to keep the student away from propaganda or vice versa. He will meet it in the subtlest forms, yes even in text-books, lectures and publicity pamphlets.

J. G. W. LEWIS.

FAILURE OF P. U. PROPAGANDA

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

The amazing story of public utility propaganda methods continues to occupy the attention of the federal trade commission. One of the latest chapters deals with the cooperation of Ginn & Co., an important publisher of textbooks, with the textbook committee of the National Electric Light association. It seems a textbook written by Howard Copeland Hill, University of Chicago instructor, contained matter distasteful to the utilities. One of the passages to which objection was made was this:

"As late as 1926 a man then serving as the president of a number of electric light companies in the middle west gave in a single primary election over 200 thousand dollars to the campaign funds of candidates to both parties."

The textbook committee was successful in having this statement of fact deleted, thus showing how hypersensitive are the utilities toward the truth. Everyone knows that Hill had reference to Samuel Insull's connection with the Illinois primary campaign. His donations to Frank L. Smith and George Brennan, are notorious. It is one of the significant political phenomena of our time that big business is in politics, that it contributes to both parties and that it sometimes does so in such a way as to reflect great discredit both on donor and donee. That was true in the case of Insull and Smith.

The public utilities, though their activities to censor textbooks and influence education of the growing generation were certainly vigorously conducted, were fatuous in believing that they could be successful. They were playing with fire in attempting to suppress truth and to poison youthful minids, and they have been burnt. The college professors who accepted money from the utilities have been shamed, the truckloads of pamphlets which have been shipped to the schools are being thrown to the rubbish pile and a reflex action has been set up against the utilities. Honest men everywhere are wondering why companies organized for profit should go to such great lengths to impose their ideas upon school children and the inference that is drawn is not a happy one.

Maid-servant: Please, sir, the cook has had an earache ever since he's been here.

Master of the House: The keyholes are probably too draughty.—Missouri Outlaw.

Customer: Bacon and eggs; the eggs not too hard and the bacon rather crisp. Butter toast without too much butter, and iced tea without too much ice.

Frankie L: Yes, Sir. Is there any special design you would like on the dishes?

Small Child Has Cheek Torn by Hook

Sunday afternoon, Nadine Baird, the four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Baird who lives southeast of town while playing fell on a hook and had a gash more than two inches long torn in the left cheek.

The injured child was brought at once to the hospital here and six stitches were required to sew up the wound. It is not known exactly how the accident occurred.

Winside Wins This Weeks Game With Wisner

From the beginning of the season the Winside players have been playing a good consistent game of ball and won this week's game with Wisner by a score of eight to seven.

Johnson and Hansen pitched for Winside and Grandquist caught, while Shaw and Pence were Wisner's battery. Although the visitors had an important pitcher, they could not hold the locals down.

There were no home runs, Winside made one three base hit, Winside pitchers struck out seven men and Wisner's five, Winside gave two bases on balls and Wisner's one.

Batteries—Winside, Hansen and Johnson and Grandquist, Wisner, Shaw and Pence.

Elmo Mae: Jim is mine! You keep your hands off!

Helen B.: It would be better if you said that to Jim.—Reserve Red Cat.

Mildred M: "My father's a doctor, so I can be sick for nothing."

Merrill W: "Well, mine's a preacher, so I can be good for nothing!"

HOOVER PASSES ONE BARRIER ON WAY TO WHITE HOUSE

Under such a heading an article appeared in the Sioux City Tribune of recent date, from the pen of Raymond Clipper, a United Press correspondent was sent to this office for publication; and as it seems to answer some questions about the candidate which the public should know, the article is given. It being dated at Kansas City: "Herbert Hoover has broken through the first of the two big barriers across his path to the White House. The second one will be reached next November—when for the first time in his life he will be voted upon in an election.

This is the first time Hoover, a lifelong engineer and business man, ever has run for public office and despite his final victorious sweep through the republican national convention far ahead of any rival, the experience has been a more harrowing one than befalls most candidates, especially as Hoover is a shy, extremely sensitive man.

Bitter Attacks Made

Long before Hoover, last February, agreed to become a candidate, his enemies in and out of the party had been conducting determined propaganda against him in the hope of making his nomination impossible.

The personal attacks against him went beyond any of those seen in the open by this generation. It is necessary to go back to Blaine to find their equal.

Twenty-two "reasons" why Hoover should not be nominated were given recently by John J. Curry, chairman of Senator Curtis' New York organization. Among the reasons given by Curry are these:

Hoover's alleged failure to take any part in political affairs until he was 43 years old, his long connection with British firms and a residence of 21 years under the British flag; his advocacy of the League of Nations; his seconding of the appeal of the late President Wilson for the election of a democratic congress; alleged war time discrimination by holding down wheat prices in the north while permitting southern cotton to soar; an alleged unforgiving attitude toward the Germans after the war and his abolition of negro segregation in the census bureau in Washington.

Criticisms Answered
His activities from London to China have been delved into. All these criticisms have been answered by Hoover's friends, apparently to the satisfaction of far more than a majority of the republican national convention.

Hoover himself refused to strike back, no matter what the nature of the attacks. He made only two important statements in the campaign for the nomination. February 12, he announced his willingness to be a candidate in a letter to Thad H. Brown of Ohio.

In the letter Hoover said: "I should consider it my duty to carry forward the principles of the republican party and the great objectives of President Coolidge's policies."

Against Dry Law Appeal
This made him the logical administration heir and the fact that all other candidates opposing him were grouped against the administration on the all-important farm issue was one of the biggest factors in making Hoover's nomination inevitable.

Hoover's second important utterance was on prohibition. Answering a questionnaire by Senator Borah, he said:

"I do not favor the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. I stand of course, for the efficient, vigorous and sincere enforcement of the laws enacted thereunder. Our country has deliberately undertaken a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose. It must be worked out constructively."

Fortune Invested Abroad
Much of the personal attack around Hoover centered on his long residence abroad. Reports were circulated that he at one time was a British subject, that he had voted in English elections.

The truth is, according to his friends, that when the war broke out, Hoover had his fortune invested in mines in British Burma and was required either to take out British citizenship or sell out his mines at a forced sale. He chose the latter course, turning down the chance of getting a British title, rather than sacrifice his American citizenship.

He was assailed as ineligible under the constitution to be president, because the constitutional provision is that no man shall be president who shall not have resided in the United States for 14 years, and 14 years ago Hoover was abroad and remained so for some time, in Belgian relief work.

Spent Much Time Abroad
It is charged Hoover never voted in the United States until 1918. He was abroad on business much of his life and California had no absentee voter's law until recently.

He was attacked for endorsing Wilson's appeal for the election of a democratic congress, and for resitating when, in 1920, he was mentioned as a presidential candidate in both parties. He first issued a statement that he could not bind himself blindly to either party until he knew what it stood for. Later he said he was a progressive republican.

Hoover went into the republican national convention in 1920 as a presidential candidate and received but 9 1/2 votes at his peak.

He joined with Charles E. Hughes, William Howard Taft, Elihu Root and many other eminent republicans in signing a statement on the eve of the 1920 election, saying that election of Harding was the best way of insuring America would go into the League of Nations.

Harding appointed him secretary of commerce in face of opposition from some politicians.

Teacher: Able, can you use the word disease in a sentence?
Able: Papa wanted to know who was talking on de phone, and I said, "Disease Abit, Papa."

Red W: Who's your girl like.
Frank B: Me.

HOOVER WHEAT CONTROL
(Extract from Statement by Senator Reed of Missouri to the New York World.)

Here is a man who has spent most of his life abroad. He had established himself in Great Britain where he described himself as "liberal" in British politics. He comes to America, and in the operation of the food administration fixed the price of wheat for the benefit of the allies and against the interest of the American producer. Later he runs for president on the democratic ticket, and sensing hopelessness there becomes a republican.

In a republican convention he is nominated through the intercession of William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, and then gives out a statement filled with moral uplift. A political mulberry seller.

Not being satisfied with having fixed the price of wheat he now tries to place the responsibility on President Wilson. It would be one thing if he had boldly acknowledged responsibility, defending it as a war measure, but to deny his undoubted responsibility carries its own suggestion.

The food control bill never had contemplated fixing the price of wheat. That was Mr. Hoover's idea. He repeatedly advocated and recommended it. The food control bill fixed a minimum price of $2.20. This was not a fixed price; it was merely the minimum price guaranteed to the farmer. Mr. Hoover had advised the allied governments, and this meant the British government chiefly, to establish a single buying concern to buy wheat.

There was established here the Export Wheat corporation, which was the single buying concern of the allies. As part of Mr. Hoover's idea, the United States Grain corporation was established as the American part of the scheme and this was articulated with the single British buying concern.

Despite the fact that congress did not give authority to fix the price of wheat, but merely guaranteed a minimum price of $2.20, Mr. Hoover, by use of the licensing power, established absolute control of the situation and definitely fixed the price.

The arbitrary use of the licensing power, a use never contemplated by congress, made it possible for him to compel the American wheat farmer to sell at this fixed price, while everything he bought was bought at war price levels.

When this arrangement had been perfected, the American farmer was under a complete domination of Mr. Hoover as if he had been a Russian serf under the domination of Peter the Great. If this had not been done the American farmer at the close of the war would have been one billion dollars richer and that much better equipped to meet the conditions that every one knew would come at its conclusion.

The wheat so bought at a depressed price and sold to the allies the single American export corporation to the single allied buying corporation was allocated to the allies and the neutrals at such prices as the British saw fit. While the American farmer was selling at this fixed price the price to neutrals for the same wheat was anywhere from three dollars to five dollars a bushel.

The prices of animals were regulated with equal disregard to the American producers, while the manipulation of sugar furnishes a chapter comparable in blackness only to the practices of the wheat corporations.

Jess: No, it isn't.

Gene: It sure is.
Jess: I'm sure it isn't.

Gene: Say, listen any time I get this close to a girl her rouge is coming off.

"When will Cal K. be out of the infirmary?"
"Not for quite a while."
"That's too bad. Did you see his doctor?"
"No, I saw his nurse."

Motto All Right, but

Staff Went Too Far

Samuel Grindstone was a hustler of the modern school. He believed in the gospel of speeding up.

Over every desk in his office he placed a large printed notice, reading: "Do It Now!"

But a week later, with tired fingers and exhausted air, he tore them all down.

"Hello," said a friend, dashing in and seeing the ceremony of destruction. "What's up? Doesn't hustling pay? Going back to the old leisurely methods?"

"Yes, I am," snorted Grindstone. "Hustling doesn't pay. I gave ten cents each for these notices, thinking they'd spur my staff to hard work."

"Well?"

"Well, the net result is that they've all acted on the motto. The chief cashier has bolted with the contents of the safe, my typist has eloped with my youngest son, four junoers came in yesterday to ask for a raise, and the office boy got a better job and has gone off to it."

Someone Else Would

Wear Nether Garment

The henpecked man came into a department store, majestically led by his wife. Their errand, if you want to use the plural form instead of the feminine singular, was to buy Mr. Henpeck a suit of clothes.

About 118 different suits of clothes were taken off the racks, and the coats, at least, tried on Henpeck. He said not a word and although his legs got trembly and wobbled, when he looked at his spouse out of the corner of his eye he saw he must stand up under the ordeal until unconsciousness gave him rest and relief.

The clothing salesman was getting more frazzled and worn down than any of the three. He had a boiler-factory perspiration and his temper was beginning to say, "I don't want to be good much longer."

So finally he blurted out to Henpeck, "Say, friend, why don't you buy this suit. You can wear the coat of it, anyhow?"—Exchange.

Wise Man Wasn't Talking

"Sleep," said the pessimist, "is but a foretaste of death—that divine nepenthe for which we poor mortals yearn."

"Sleep," said the chemist, "is caused by such an accumulation of toxins that all organic activity must be suspended or minimized pending their elimination through chemical change."

"Sleep!" said the poet, fervently. "Ah, poppy and mandragora and all the drowsy drugs—"

"Sleep," said the business man, "if I can get a good solid eight hours of it, makes me show up at the old desk feeling like a—er—fighting cock!"

"Sleep," said the philosopher, "is a phenomenon which—"

The wise man sat in the corner and said nothing. He was taking a little nap.

Fish Easily Gathered In

It may be a slander that the ostrich buries its head in the sand when frightened, but a correspondent of the Sydney Bulletin swears there is a fish that does that and more. The black-spotted sea perch, Lutjanus fulviflamma, when approached stands on his head and wags his tail so violently that he is driven clear out of sight into the sand. The Australian fishermen, however, just wade in and mark the spot with a piece of white shell where each fish has buried himself and then make the rounds with a long sharp spear, jabbing the sand around each sign post, quickly gathering them in.

The Doctor's Ruse

The doctor of a lunatic asylum was in the bathroom one day watching a number of his patients, when one of them called out suddenly: "Let's duck the doctor!"

Seeing his danger, the doctor, with great promptitude, said: "All right, boys, but suppose, now, you give the doctor a cheer before ducking him."

This reasonable proposition was at once acceded to, and a ringing cheer resounded through the building, which at once brought the keepers, as the doctor expected, and he was saved.—Yorkshire Post.

When Washington Relaxed

Irving says that Washington on rare occasions was "surprised into hearty fits of laughter." One such instance occurred at the return of peace, when he was sailing in a boat on the Hudson, and was so overcome by the drollery of a story told by Major Falk, lie of New York that he fell back in the boat in a paroxysm of laughter.

"In that fit of laughter," remarks Irving, "it was sagely presumed that he threw off the burden of care which had been weighing down his spirits throughout the war."—Good Logic.

Blame the Women!

"Poor George!"
"What's his latest hard luck?"
"After saving tobacco coupons for seven years he figured that in a couple more years he'd have enough to get a fishing rod he coveted."

"What happened?"
"His wife and daughter started smoking, and in three months they all had enough coupons—"

"To get the fishing rod?"
"No; to get a hand-carried income burner."
