NATIONAL SCOUT WEEK OBSERVED

Week Crowded With Entertainments and Scout Functions for Wayne Troops.

MAY HOLD DISTRICT MEET HERE

National boy scout week which was observed with many functions opened with a banquet at the Methodist church parlors last Friday night at which fathers or friends of the boys entertained, which was followed by a program, in which scouts and scout workers entertained with talks and music.

Gene Beaman acted as toastmaster and proved equal to the occasion announcing the program on which the following took part: Bob Gulliver, Joe Lutgen, John Kemp, Carl Wright Herb Welch and Prof. T. S. Hook. Saturday, Scouts took charge of the city government with the following acting as executives: Dale Hanks, mayor; Robert Gulliver, clerk; Harold Sala, Jack Morgan, Billie Ahern, Milton Dawson, Kenyon Lewis and Lewellen Whitmore, councilmen; Wm. Mellor, chief of police.

The scouts served coffee and sandwiches to the firemen who were at the Relyea home Saturday morning.

Sunday they attended the Presbyterian church in a body. They were guests of the Kiwanians at a dinner Monday and Tuesday they gave demonstrations at the training school and the high school.

Last evening the boys entertained the court of honor, the troop committee, the scout masters and parents, and tonight the scoutmasters will be hosts to the boys in the final entertainment of the week.

A flag was raised and lowered at the high school and training school each day except Sunday during the week.

Plans for holding a district field meet in June are being worked out and this will probably be held here, as Wayne is said to have better facilities for entertaining than other towns of the district.

WILDCATS TO MAKE FINAL JAUNT TO KEARNEY, FRI.

The Hickman proteges will make their final jaunt of the season tomorrow when they go to Kearney for the fifth conference game, having copped two and lost as many they are hoping to get on the long end of the two remaining clashes which would give them second place in the standing.

On their trip last week they were defeated by Peru 36 to 23 and won from Omaha university 29 to 19.

Unless other games are scheduled they will play their final tussle of the season next week during the district tourney.

Preps Defeat Pender

The training school team won easily from Pender reserves on the local floor last Saturday night and tomorrow they will again try out their strategy when they will meet Pilger, in the home lots.

Although the boys are small they play a clever game and are able to hold their own with larger teams.

SPANISH WAR VETS ARE TO BROADCAST PROGRAM

The sinking of the battleship "Maine" and the quick and decisive events which followed will be featured in a radio program to be broadcast over KFAB, the Nebraska-Buick station of Lincoln, by the William Lewis camp of the U. S. W. V. tomorrow evening, according to a news dispatch received by Wm. Assenheimer, local veteran of that war.

The veterans are to be assisted by the auxiliary and all Spanish-American veterans are requested to tune in on this station tomorrow evening.

FEBRUARY NUMBER NORTHWESTERN BELL

O. L. Randall, local manager for the telephone people at Wayne, and a district surrounding this place, left the February number of their monthly magazine on the office desk and it contains much of general interest to the telephone people and the general public. Among other pictures of officials and employees, we note that of a former manager at this place, N. S. Krause, who has been elected president of Casper E. Yost chapter No. 19. He is a relative of Mrs. Wm. Beckenhauer.

FRED WANDSHER GIVEN PENITENTIARY SENTENCE

Fred Wandscher, alien, who was found guilty in county court several weeks ago of entering and stealing five gallons of oil from Will Peters, appeared before District Judge Chase and was sentenced to four years in the state penitentiary, when he pleaded guilty to the charges of feloniously breaking and entering.

At the time of Wandscher's arrest he was driving an Essex car stolen in Fremont last April. He also had a Colts revolver which was confiscated by the county court.

He has worked on a number of farms in the county during the past few years, and has lived in Texas and other southern states, it is reported. Removal to the penitentiary will be made as soon as room is available.

H. D. ADDISON AND STANTON GIRL WED

Wayne Attorney and Miss Alma Lammli Are Married at Lincoln Last Thursday.

H. D. Addison, Wayne barrister, and Miss Alma Lammli, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lammli of Stanton, were married at Lincoln last Friday, February 8, 1929. The nuptial ceremonies were held at the First Plymouth Congregational church of that place with the pastor Rev. Wyland performing the ceremonies.

Walter T. Lammli, Omaha, brother of the bride was groomsman and Miss Florence Zilmer, Lincoln, was bridesmaid.

Following the wedding at high noon a wedding breakfast was served at the Lincoln Hotel. The newly weds spent a short honeymoon in Omaha and Sioux City. They will live in Mr. Addison's home on Logan street.

The bride attended the Nebraska university and also the University of California. She has lived most of her life in Stanton and taught school in Hastings last year.

The groom is well known here, having practiced law in Wayne since he graduated from the law school in 1923.

MRS. HARRIET J. WALDEN DIES

Last week word came of the death of a former resident of Wakefield, when Mrs. Harriett J. Walden, 83, died Tuesday, February 5, 1929, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mell A. Schmeid, her daughter, after a brief illness.

Funeral services were held at one o'clock Saturday afternoon from the First Lutheran church in South Sioux City, conducted by Rev. Geo. E. Mortenson. Burial will be in Sioux City.

Mrs. Walden was born in Dekalb county, Illinois, on June 20, 1845. Her parents died while she was a young girl. When 15 years old she went to Decatur county, Iowa, and was married three years later to John Walden. In 1866 they and their two children joined a train of covered wagon going from Decatur county to Nebraska.

The wagon train had considerable trouble in crossing high streams. More than a month elapsed before the travelers reached their destination.

Mr. Walden found employment in a lumber mill in the now extinct town of Tievill, on the Iowa side of the river, and several months later moved to Nebraska, where they moved on to a farm in Dakota county. They moved to Wakefield about 40 years ago. Mr. Walden died in 1902 and a year later Mrs. Walden went to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Schmeid who then lived in Dakota City.

Surviving her are two sons: J. B. Walden, Laport City, Iowa; John A. Walden, San Francisco, California; James W. Walden, Phoenix, Arizona; and Cecil H. Walden, Los Angeles, California; a daughter: Mrs. Mell A. Schmeid, South Sioux City, Nebraska; 9 grandchildren, and 10 great grandchildren. Two sons, Will and Louis, preceded her in death.

BEERCHANT AND STRAHAN WAREHOUSE IS ENTERED

The Merchant & Strahan warehouse was broken into Sunday night, but so far as could be determined only a small amount of kerosene was taken. This is the second experience of the nature in the past few weeks, and a better system of locking the house it is thought will prevent further visits.

Largest District Cage Tourney in the State Will be Held Here Next Week

Thirty-one High School Teams Are to Enter in Annual Classic Held Here.

WEST POINT AGAIN FAVORITE

Plans are announced by Fred G. Dale, member of the tournament committee, for the annual district meet of high school basketball teams scheduled for Friday and Saturday of next week when thirty-one teams will participate in the largest meet of its kind in the state.

The large entry will necessitate the forming of four classes instead of three as originally planned with eight teams in each.

Although a number of teams are bidding for the championship honors, West Point, winner of three of the last four meets, is favored to cop the hunting this year, having played most of the better teams of the district without suffering a reverse. Last year they were not given an outside chance, by dopsters, to win but came through with flying colors and romped over all opposition.

Wayne has been showing up very well in recent clashes and are now being taken seriously as championship material, having lost to Norfolk and Wakefield in earlier games they have romped over recent competition, trouncing a number of teams by wide margins.

Wakefield and Crofton are other contenders that are favored to show up well and are conceded a fair chance to battle their way to the finals and lug home the coveted trophy.

Randolph, a strong favorite last year, is not being considered as championship calibre but may kick the dope bucket galley west and come through with flying colors. They were eliminated in the quarter-finals last year, when they were all but conceded the big cup, before the meet had started.

HIGH SCHOOL COPS THREE MORE GAMES

Have Hard Time Winning From Wisner After Piling up Big Margins With Madison and Allen.

The Wayne high school basketball shooters continued their winning by downing Madison and Allen in lopsided scores Thursday and Friday night and then nosing out the Wisner quint on Saturday night of last week.

The Saturday night tussle proved to be one of the most thrilling games of the Holder proteges have encountered this season and was not decided until the final moments.

The visitors seemed to have things pretty much their own way during the opening half and enjoyed an 11 to 3 lead at the end of the half. The Wayne tossers missed a number of chances during this time and failed to work the ball under the hoop consistently, while the visitors were making good on most of their chances and were more successful in advancing the sphere toward the goal.

However, Wayne came back strong at the half and tied the count at 11 by the end of the third quarter by holding the visitors scoreless and adding eight points to their total, during the final quarter the fracas was fought on quite even terms with Dowling sinking a field goal on a beautiful play just as the game ended to break the deadlock. Wayne winning 16 to 14.

Dowling and Sund were high point men for Wayne while Peterson and Bressler played a fine defensive game.

The Wayne team now have a long string of victories to their credit and have lost but two games one to Norfolk and one to Wakefield.

Play Randolph
Tonight the Wayne high school will meet the Randolph school on the college courts. This is the second tussle for these two teams, Wayne having won one game from Snugg's offerings earlier this winter.

EXPRESSING APPRECIATION AND SINCERE THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to friends and neighbors, and also to the Wayne Volunteer firemen for their earnest endeavor to control the fire which destroyed our home this week.

WM. ASSENHEIMER IS HALF AS OLD AS LINCOLN

Wm. Assenheimer, who was born on Lincoln's birthday, celebrated his sixtieth anniversary Tuesday and was half as old as Lincoln would have been were he still living.

"They always put out the flags on my birthday," said Mr. Assenheimer, who otherwise observed the event without any special demonstrations. Mr. Assenheimer is a Spanish-American war veteran and has been Wayne county assessor for several years. He doesn't expect to live sixty years more he said.

NORFOLK 'LEGGERS' DRAWS HEAVY FINE

Floyd Wheeler is Found guilty in County Court Here, on Five Separate Counts.

Sixty days in jail and $100 fine was imposed on Floyd Wheeler, Norfolk, on five separate counts each charging the defendant with illegal possession and sale of intoxicants, in county court here last Saturday.

Wheeler pleaded not guilty to each of the charges and appealed to district court following the verdict by Judge Cherry, and is being held in lieu of $1000 bond.

The complaint charged Wheeler with making five sales on as many different days since the first of the year and specified amounts of moonshine whisky varying from two to eight gallons in each sale, which it was alleged he transferred to John Harder, who paid for the goods with checks which were produced by the state as evidence.

Besides the fines which total $500 and the three hundred day jail sentence Wheeler was also assessed the costs amounting to $43.70.

His hearing in higher court will probably come up at the next term of district court in March.

THIRD SCOUT TROOP IS ORGANIZED HERE, FRIDAY

Jimmie Morris will be assistant scout master for this group.

INSTITUTE OF EVANGELISM AT EMERSON FEBRUARY 19

Heidenreich of the St. Paul Lutheran church of Wayne is to preside, when the general theme for the program will be "The Evangelistic Task." It is hoped that all churches in this part of the state will be represented.

HENRY KAY COMMITTED TO STATE HOSPITAL, TUES.

Mr. Kay, according to witnesses, had threatened to shoot and otherwise indicated that he was mentally affected. His condition is said to be caused by uncontrollable desire for liquors.

PIONEER'S HOME IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Home of S. D. Relyea, Burned to Ground by Fire Started by Explosion in Furnace.

ONE OF EARLIEST PIONEERS

Fire, thought to have started from an explosion in the furnace, burned to the ground the beautiful home of S. D. Relyea, early pioneer who came to Wayne in 1882 riding on the first load of lumber brought here before the town had a railroad, early last Saturday morning causing a loss estimated at $15,000.

Relyea, who was trapped in the basement while fighting frantically in an attempt to extinguish the blaze, escaped with difficulty when he was warned by a neighbor, Geo. Noakes that his life was in great danger.

Miss Edith Stocking, training school teacher, and Miss Mate Relyea, a daughter of Mr. Relyea, got out of the house just before flames began leaping from all parts of the large home, and had their exit been delayed a few minutes more it is thought they could not have gotten out.

The home, which was built by Mr. Relyea and which was one of the better houses of the city, and all the furniture and clothing was consumed in the fire, which had gained such headway that it could not be checked when firemen arrived.

Mr. Relyea had gone to the basement and stoked the furnace fire a couple of hours before he detected a crackling noise, when he returned to find it filled with flames and smoke which he attempted frantically to check without results.

Miss Stocking was aroused by the smoke which was rapidly filling the home and hailed Mr. Noakes, who was passing, and who assisted in getting the other occupants out just before the entire house broke out in a mass of flames.

The loss of $15,000 was partially covered by insurance with $4,400 on the home and $1,000 on the furniture.

FEBRUARY BIRTHDAYS

There has been a lot of people born in the short month of February. People not only of this nation, but of the world to a greater or less extent observed the birth anniversary of the great emancipator Tuesday, which was the Lincoln birthday—the 120th. A day or two earlier, Edison, the great wizard of electricity, was 82 years of age. Then coming down to home folks. John Morgan admitted that he will be 81 years of age Friday of this week the 15th, and then turned to R. P. Williams, a veteran of the Civil war, and said he was thankful he was not as old as Williams, who is due to observe his 81st birthday today, just a day older than Mr. Morgan. There are plenty of birthdays during this short month, now and then one who came the year when the month contained an extra day, and got in ahead of March 1, and can only have a birthday once in four years, and from 1896 until 1904 was a eight year vacation for people thus born on the 29th of February. Personally, we would just as soon have been born in the breezy month of March.

While it is not considered the proper thing to say much about the birthdays or age of the ladies, we might be excused for saying that today is the birthday of Mrs. Mary Stubbs of this city, but we are not going to tell her age; but just stop the press to add our congratulations, and wish her many returns of the day.

We are not the only people who are peeling the grip of winter. A blanket of snow and ice is over much of northern Europe, with some places so blocked by snow and ice as to make a food shortage, because unable to get provisions and needed supplies past the blockade.

Jeanette Robertson, who has finished her work as planned at the normal left for her home at Blair Friday afternoon, and will be a member of the graduating class at commencement time. During the past year Mrs. Robertson was editor-in-chief of the Goldenrod staff, and did excellent work throughout the year.

Word came back from the quarter of Wayne men who left last week for Mobile and other points in the south, that they had reached that city after five days of snow and rain, and some of the mud made by the wet weather. The first word back, as we are told did not spend much talk in telling of the beauties of the sunny south-land.

There seems to be a lot of excitement in store for the people who watch the scraps. There will be the legislature settling the bank guaranty and the code matter in our own state; while in other fields there is the Standard oil scrap between two factions of the Indiana Standard. That possibly may be a case of the pot calling the kettle back.

Miss Harriett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kenney of Wakefield and Walter Otte of this place were married at Omaha, February 7, 1929, according to a newspaper announcement. The groom has been employed here at the Ford garage. The happy couple are to be at home on the O. S. Stephens farm southeast of Wakefield.

Former Nelligh man, Darry Zanuck, who was a lad at that place has won notoriety in the movie world, and is one of the big figures in the Hollywood motion picture world, where he has attained the reputation as both author and producer manager. A talking picture of Noah's ark is said to be one of his work, in which new talking and sound effects are incorporated.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

Most of the teachers of Nelligh were re-elected at a board meeting last week. Mr. Elm and Misses Dodson and Unthank were not asking to be given another contract.

According to statistics of city firms fully one-half of them originate in cellars, usually in trash piles. It would be fine if by proper care of the cellar that half of the fire calls could be eliminated.

The matter of settlement of the bank guaranty condition is still up in the air. Monday night there was a called meeting of all who could and would come to gather and discuss the situation as it looks to the depositors who are holding the empty sack.

It is being demonstrated this season that the old-time winter did not have anything on the winter of 1928-9. The month of January in this part of Nebraska had twenty days when the mercury registered below zero, and 17 was the warmest time of the month, and that did not last long.

We judge from the reading of a news dispatch from Manhattan, Kansas, of that the state agricultural college of that place is very strict about smoking, and it is said that the student who violates the "no smoking traditions of the school will be subject to dismissal."

When Crystal lake was seized by the state to remove excess of undesirable fish, more than 36,000 are said to have been caught, and of these 1,183 were game fish, and were returned to the water as permanent addition to the stock for next season fishermen. Buffalo seemed to be the most numerous of the soft fish.

Who is who in Omaha may now be settled. The attorney general, backed by the governor has said that the gambling houses must cease that kind of business, and quite a bunch of them have been closed by police. Now it may be necessary to wait a little while to find out if the city administration can defy or evade the orders given. The city needs a cleaning, not a whitewashing.

More people will hear the inaugural ceremonies this year when Herbert Hoover is officially ushered into the presidency than ever before—for a nation-wide hookup is going to give the millions who have radios and their friends chance to listen in. Perhaps more people will realize what a responsibility the head of a great government assumes when he takes the oath of office.

Frank Henderson, says the Emerson Press, bought a couple of sows, each weighing about 500 pounds in the late fall—and now he is telling that each sow gave birth to 16 pigs, and all but one lived. Because of the shortage of places to get their dinner, a part of them were fed from bottles, and all are doing well. Is it any wonder that hogs are cheap, no matter what one has to pay for pork.

After weeks of illness, during several of which death seemed imminent any moment, the king of England has recovered sufficiently to be moved to the seashore. During these weeks the king has carried with him the sympathy of a peaceful world. The interest shown in his case by the Americans has been gratifying to the English and to those in both countries who hope to see relations between the United States and England remain pleasant.

Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, died suddenly at his Detroit home February 8th. After retiring from the cabinet he returned to Detroit and resumed his financial and legal and industrial activities. Secretary Denby was forced to resign from the cabinet because of the Teapot Dome oil expose. He was perhaps the best one of the bunch implicated in the expose—but he claimed that his action was for the best interest of the government, as he saw it. He was born in Indiana 59 years ago this month.

It is now being admitted, and was believed by many at the time, that the stories of German atrocities during the war were greatly exaggerated. One of the late revelations is that a lad who had a hand severed in a mowing machine, due to accident, was shown over the country as a victim of the German blood-thirst. A physician who examined the stub of the arm was classed as a pro-German because he said at the time what is now admitted that the arm had been removed by an expert surgeon. And so it has proven to have been the case.

Washington legislative body has its trouble over the prohibition enforcement appropriation and its secret tax refund proposed legislation; and at Lincoln the legislature is worrying over the guaranty law and the gas tax measure, and while out of humor over the delay in these important measures, are reported to be burying a lot of lesser measures—and perhaps that is what should be done with them.

May 1, a more favorable freight rate is to be made on corn from Iowa to Colorado points, and also from South Dakota to points on the western coast. The rail roads seem to be finding a way to bid for business both freight and passenger. We hope to see the time when the roads will learn that they do not own the entire country known as the great middle west. The waterway is surely coming, and for some kinds of traffic the bus and truck are already here.

form than waste material or fertilizer for it is not much good for that purpose. It does not seem, according to prices quoted to be economy to use it as newspaper. Perhaps as a lumber it might be used at a saving price—considering the less cost for freight, it should have to pay, being a home made product. The plan outlined is for plants over the state, to reduce the stalks to pulp, and send it to Omaha for finishing—and then send it back to the farm for building; that gives the railroads theirs.

There are many reasons for the ease of steering the new Ford

THE new Ford is exceptionally easy to steer because of the well-proportioned weight of the car, the steel-spoke wheels, the co-ordinated design of springs and shock absorbers, the size and design of the steering wheel, and the simple mechanical construction of the steering gear.

The Ford steering gear is of the worm and sector type used on high-priced cars and is three-quarter irreversible.

In simple, non-technical language, this means that the car responds easily and quickly to the steering wheel, yet there is no danger of the wheel being jerked from the hands of the driver by ruts or bumps in the road. A light touch guides the car, yet you always have that necessary feel-of-the-road so essential to good driving.

Strength of materials and careful workmanship give unusual stability to the Ford steering gear and housing.

The steering worm, for instance, is splined to the steering worm shaft and is stronger, of course, than if a single key were used to hold the shaft and worm together. The steering worm sector is forged and machined in the same piece with its shaft.

The housing of the steering gear mechanism is made of three steel forgings, electrically welded together. This housing is then electrically welded to the steering column. Such a one-piece steel unit is naturally much sturdier than if several parts were used and bolted or riveted together.

Throughout, the new Ford steering mechanism is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires practically no attention.

The only thing for you to do is to have the front steering spindles, spindle connecting rods, and drag link lubricated every 500 miles and the steering gear lubricated every 2000 miles.

For this work, you will find it best to consult the Ford dealer. He has been specially trained and equipped to help you get the greatest possible use from your car over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

Chevrolet Dealer Announces 6-Cylinder Service Facilities

Mr. W. C. Coryell, of the Coryell Auto Company, today announced that he is in a position to give the same prompt and efficient service on the new Chevrolet six as he has always given on previous four-cylinder cars.

"The remarkable thing about the new Chevrolet six," said Mr. Coryell, "is that it will be just as easy to service as was the four." This is due to the foresight of Chevrolet engineers and the careful testing which is given each feature of design before it is put into production. Chevrolet engineers test every feature of the car three ways:

First—With a view of economy of production. This test necessarily keeps the car simple in design.

Second—It is tested from a standpoint of use by owners. This second test is conducted at the great General Motors Proving Ground at Milford, Michigan, where six-cylinder Chevrolets were run over a million miles before they were announced to the public.

The third test which the Chevrolet engineers give every feature is the ease with which it can be serviced.

Then, if every design feature passes all these three tests, it is put into the hands of the public.

This extraordinarily careful policy on the part of the manufacturer is to a great extent responsible for the economy of upkeep which Chevrolet owners have so long enjoyed.

THE JURY SYSTEM FLAW

(State Journal)

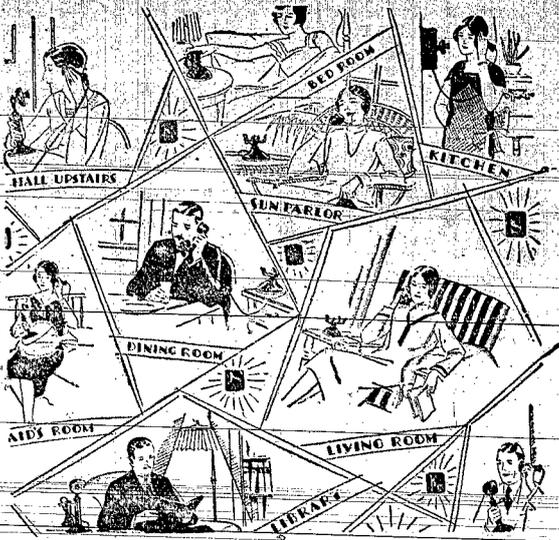

Eleven men battled against the stubbornness of one man in a jury room at Kansas City, holding out until the foreman collapsed from sheer weariness and the court declared a mistrial of a man who had confessed twice to the police to his guilt as a bank robber and participant in a killing, and who had tried to bargain with the public prosecutor for a life sentence in return for a plea of guilty in court.

In this case the life of the defendant was at stake. Eleven men convinced of his guilt held that society would be protected by his conviction and removal. One held out against this theory, urging that he was not to be brow beaten by an attorney's complaint that this juror had been laughing while listening to serious evidence. The defeat of this attorney seemed more important to this juror, if press accounts contained an accurate picture of the controversy, than that a criminal should be punished.

Such cases as this give force to the contention for a fractional jury verdict, much reason as there is to oppose such in criminal cases. An eleven to one verdict in this case would have protected society and would have saved expense to taxpayers. The defendant's companions in crime had been convicted and sentenced. They had told of his part in the robbery. He may yet win over law and order thru the frailty of one juror who was not moved by convincing evidence.

Mr. C. F. Rodlich, the successful expert says:

The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position—the body—assumes, of how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief, contract the opening in a remarkably short time and strengthen the weak tissues (the real cause of rupture) so that they frequently recover their previous natural retaining power, needing no further outside support. Stomach trouble, backache and constipation often caused by Rupture promptly disappear.

Truly remarkable and prompt results have been obtained not only with recent and not fully developed ruptures but also with old, long neglected ones.

Ingenious, recently perfected devices are now holding ruptures firmly which heretofore never had been retained.

No elastic belts nor filthy legstraps are used.

I guarantee to hold the rupture and also the durability of my absolutely sweat and moisture proof, sanitary appliances.

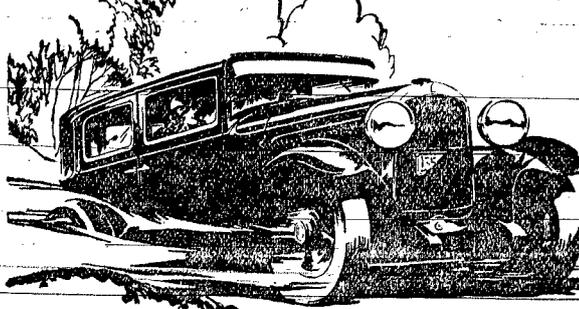

75% of ruptured children recover completely through expert mechanical treatment according to statistics.

You should ask your members of the legislature to pass the inheritance tax bill—and get more money—wealth that has been created here, but permitted to be collected and retained by the federal government. Just a little change of law will bring 50 percent of it back home.

Should this community so organize as to save to the community as much as is frequently taken for taxes, by the individuals who live and trade in this county or community? Some fellow with wheels in his head, perhaps, thinks it could be done with simple justice to all. Will some one please make the initial move?

The tariff hearing is going on before the Ways and Means committee at Washington, and every protected industry is reported to be clamoring for a higher tariff—and a cover page cartoon on the Tariff Review from an Albany paper represents the head of the committee listening to the farmer demand for more protection on practically everything he produces, and the committee head is apparently speechless. From his expression, he is amazed at the high-handed demands of agriculture for a place at the pie table. The same tariff arguments that have been used for years to get protection for the manufacturer sounds very different when the farmer uses it to plead his cause for just and fair treatment.

At last the members of the legislature are waking to the fact that a costless provision of law, had it been or should it be enacted by this legislature which will bring back to Nebraska 80 percent of the federal inheritance tax collected by the federal government from those who pass on after having put away enough of the world's goods to make it an object to collect an inheritance tax. It does not increase the tax on the estates of those who leave anything to be taxed—but it will turn 80 percent of it back to the state in which the holding was acquired. Just like finding so much. We fail to understand why other legislatures have not taken the time to make it legal to pick up this bit of swag and thus have more money to appropriate and spend, and not even take from the land mark than the federal government now takes. It looks as tho our legislators have been sleeping.

LINCOLN BIRTHDAY

Tuesday was the 120th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln one of the greatest characters in the history of the country in which he was born—the greatest and freest nation of all. His was a charity boundless as the shores of time. A brief review of his life and its lessons. No reference to this great character could be considered complete which did not quote that wonderful, brief talk he made on the battlefield of Gettysburg when that bloody battle field was dedicated to the principles of freedom and Americanism, and it is always and ever fitting for space in any eulogy of Lincoln:

"Four score and seven years ago, our fathers brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. We are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation—or any nation so conceived and so dedicated—can long endure. We are met to dedicate a portion of that field as the final resting place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our power to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember, what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here. "It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they have thus far so nobly carried on. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they here gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation shall, under God, have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Lincoln little dreamed, when thus he spoke on that eventful occasion, that his words, briefly and informally spoken, should become such a masterpiece as to be looked upon as one of the greatest addresses ever delivered by mortal man. May the spirit of sacrifice be imbued in our hearts "that these dead shall not have died in vain," that "from the ashes of dissolving self" and "from the furnace heat of affliction" may rise a nobler nation and a nobler people, lighting the way to man's higher destiny and true heritage.

LET GEORGE DO IT

The meeting called for the purpose of advancing interest in the free bridge over the Missouri river between South Sioux City and Sioux City in Iowa, a couple of weeks ago, happened in bad and cold weather, and the Eagle of the former place, knowing that the people want the bridge wonders that they did not turn out at that time and show an interest. Well that is the way with some people. They cannot do much and so they do nothing—and then when it is too late, perhaps, kick about nothing being done.

The bill presented to congress by the congressman from the Nebraska district, Congressman Howard, is endorsed as being so drawn as to make it practically impossible for money to be collected for tolls to be used in any other manner than paying for the bridge until that debt is paid, and then the bridge becomes free. Omaha and Council Bluffs are working out a similar plan for a bridge between those two towns. In fact, a lot of the preliminary windwork was done at the meeting, tho a lot of those who should have been there were absent. Some of these days people will not be called on to pay toll for crossing the river dry shod.

Mrs. Percy Brandts and little son were passengers yesterday to Mrs. Brandts' former home in Iowa, where she plans to visit friends and relatives.

Miss Hazel Combs of Pender, where she has been conducting a beauty shop, is now at the Mrs. Jeffries' shop, coming to Wayne the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Beckenhauer and daughter Frances drove to Sioux City Saturday to meet John H. Volk of Williston, North Dakota, who spent the week-end at the Beckenhauer home.

Miss Maggie Davis of Carroll went to Omaha Wednesday to do buying for her millinery shop at Carroll. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Davis, accompanied here, and will go to consult a physician while in the city.

Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Gorman of Norfolk were guests of Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Whitman Sunday. Rev. Gorman is the newly appointed superintendent of the Norfolk district and preached his first sermon at the Methodist church in Wayne.

It seems like old times to quite an extent to read of the sub-zero weather continuing from day to day, and night after night, as has been for the past forty days. The only difference as we remember it, is that in those other days the reports ran lower than this winter, when 14 to 18 below seems about the limit. Over in Iowa, a half century ago 30 to 40 degrees minus was not uncommon.

Whether the groundhog sees his shadow or not Nebraska always puts on six weeks more of winter after February 2. But she smiles in the spring when smiles are in order and she turns on the faucets when water is needed and when fall comes the annual "bumper" crop is harvested. There is no place on earth more fair, and no where can you find more contented prosperous folk than Nebraskans.

Jake Bird, convicted of the ax murder has been sentenced to 30 years in Iowa prison—and just on the eve of his sentence a new suspect was arrested in Illinois, is the report, but the judge, who was asked to defer sentence did not heed the request, and Bird is said to be in prison at Anamosa or Fort Madison. The judge was right in starting him at his task, for the sooner he begins the quicker he will be done no doubt.

At Creighton Friday evening a young man drove his auto into the side of a slowly moving freight train, and escaped serious injury for himself but Miss Gertrude Darcy, an occupant of the car suffered a deep cut in the face, and her sister, Miss Florence Darcy was slightly injured. Harry Horstman was the driver, but the item did not say whether he was asleep or not. His car was considerably wrecked when it hit the train which it struck at the 7th car from the rear end.

Stock shipments the past week have been rather light, being mostly hogs from here, and they do not bring the wealth in very rapidly at the prevailing prices. Alfred Buer sent a car of cattle to Omaha, and a mixed car to Sioux City.

There seems to be a rats war among the barbers at Coleridge. The price of barbering is slashed as badly as perhaps the face of the customer could well be. One tonsorial artist has a card out for them to come in and get the work they need and pay only what they think it worth to them. That sounds fair—and in fact must be fair to the patron, and as a rule the patron will be square if he gets good work.

Over in South Dakota, where they have need this year to fight snow from their highways, some of the farmers have introduced a novel way of breaking the road for the auto. They fasten an ordinary walking plow to the rear runner of a bob and set the team going, throwing the furrow of snow out of the way, one side at a time, and one round is said to make a path for the wheels of the auto. If we ever happen to get much snow down in this vicinity, it might be well to remember and try that method. Looks reasonable, so it does.

An exchange remarks to the effect that according to common belief, there are germs which carry the seed for a cold or flu, and that care should be exercised when coughing or sneezing to protect others as much as possible from these germs, by covering the mouth and nose. That is fine advice, but it does not go far enough. It did not tell that pure blood is the best germicide known, and that the lungs and fresh air make the blood pure if properly mixed in the lungs, pure blood kept properly in circulation will check many forms of infection.

It looks like a bit of rats war between the railroads and the bus, on thru business from the Missouri river to the west coast. The Union Pacific is quoting a rate of $40.00 in day coaches between Omaha and Los Angeles, for a six-week period beginning March 15. The bus rate is $41, and the time for the trip is nearly twice the time required by the train, for this service will be supplied on the California mail and the Continental limited trains. The low rate does not permit of any Pullman service, but the passengers may have access to the diners. The regular one way fare is now $63.30. A round trip day coach fare of $75.60 will be available from May 15 to October 15.

The new year is on its way. It is potential with good and great things. Why can't The Press have some letters, articles, stories, whatever you want to call them from the pens and typewriters of men and women who like to write? There are Minerva and Laurie J. Quimby and Will Green Frank Harrison and Julius Huff out in California. There are Katherine Mitchell, Ed Fry, Lillian Elliott, Phoebe Frost Wendt, Myra Thorgate-Barber, Congressman Edgar Howard, Dr. G. L. Carlson, Forrest Lear, Watson Purdy, Alice Hall, Cora Beale, Reverend Father Krings and scores of folks here at home—all of whom can and should write.—Norfolk Press. Thanks, Mrs. Weekes, I appreciate the compliment and would advise you to buy a blue pencil. I may surprise you.—Katherine Mitchell.

C. M. Cunninghams of Omaha, a former resident of Wayne, was here Monday morning, on his way to Bloomfield, where he visited his father, Bur. Cunningham, also well known to all of the early settlers of this part of Nebraska. His father is one of the survivors of the Civil war, and in spite of his eighty-one years of age, and the hardships he saw in service, is well, the son said, adding that he had talked with him over the phone since coming to Wayne. Bur Cunningham was one of those in that hard fought engagement between northern and southern troops at Gettysburg, where he was color bearer, and where he also suffered a wound from some of the careless shooting indulged in during that three day conflict, which marked the high tide of the forces of confederacy to the north.

There is a danger now to the lad who would coast down the hills on the highways that did not exist when a lot of us older folks were out "sliding down hill." It is the automobile, dashing along at a speed too great to stop, often, and too silent and speedy to dodge. The writer well remembers one adventure of boyhood days. Sliding down the old hill at home when an ox team was coming toward the foot of the hill, and anxious to get down in time to catch a hitch on the sled and ride up, the time was not taken to properly gauge the distance to the meeting place at the foot of the hill, and we did not quite get there—but the plodding oxen did, and it was a choice of running into the corner of an old style stake and rider rail fence and going under the feet of the oxen. The fence seemed the better chance, and as we untangled ourselves from the fence corner the driver of the team, a man noted for his profanity, was telling just what kind of a fool he thought was out coasting; nor did we get the hitch for a while, for we stayed too long in the fence corner—and in the future made sure that we could get to a good meeting place.

Dr. Tuxley of Carroll was here Monday, on his way to Omaha on a business mission.

NEWS OF INTEREST

Governor Weaver is being commended by many of the Wayne people for his veto of the bill granting passes to physicians, attorneys and others. Now if we had had a governor two or four years ago who would have put the same kind of a clamp on the measure to let the railroads bribe the ministers of the gospel. To be consistent, the legislature and the governor should have let the bars down for the editors—they are the boys who can broadcast the dope, but will they?

The past few weeks has been hard for the quail and pheasants in the part of the state north and west of Wayne. At Foster and vicinity the farmers are feeding these birds. The writer has heard old settlers of Iowa tell that the winter of 1866-7 killed off all the quail in northeastern Iowa except a flock or two fed by settlers. Two foot of snow, with three crusts on it, one above the other scatted the fate of the quail, and when the snow finally thawed in the spring hundreds of coverts of dead quail were exposed. The deer, too, were mostly killed by the wolves that winter, for the crust of snow would carry a wolf, and the sharp hoof of the deer cut thru, and the crust cut the legs of the deer, crippling them so that they became easy prey for the wolves.

President Coolidge has signed the bill for the building of more battle ships or cruisers, at a cost of a half billion, and at the same time is considering a bid of perhaps the price of one of the new cruisers for eleven ships that are now old, after but a short period of service. Is it extravagance?

New Orleans was joyously and noisily celebrating Mardi Gras Wednesday, and we suppose a quartet of Wayne fellows were helping make the noise. Five deaths resulted from the festivities. One man fell from a truck and was crushed beneath the wheels—four negroes were shot.

At Burlington, Iowa, the other day a Wisconsin farmer was applauded by thousands as he denounced the proposed farm relief, and presented what he thought a proper plan—that is to advertise farm products such as Wrigley is putting his gum before the people, and selling it. Bread should be a better and more essential commodity to advertise than gum, and while the profit might be less, because the value is greater, it should pay—and pay the printer.

Over in Illinois they are offering a premium on sobriety—five dollars a month being the temptation to abstain from that which intoxicates. Not so bad, and if the fellow was much of a drinker he could make more than that by saving the drink bill in addition to the premium.

Lindy is to be wed soon, perhaps, to Miss Morrow, daughter of the Ambassador to Mexico—but they do not tell when. Better watch that bird or he will perhaps fly away with the bride.

TAKING THE LITTLE ONES

News from Lincoln says, Children from two and one-half years of age to four and one-half years are now going to school at the College of Agriculture of the University of Nebraska. With a recently completed nursery school building, the home economics department has opened a school which is attended by a limited number of small children. The building itself is a large two story structure resembling more a home than a school. It is situated on the campus in a group of trees far enough away from the other building to neither disturb nor be disturbed, accessible to the street and yet far enough away for safety.

The organization of such a type of school comes through the realization of today, determined as it is by social and economic conditions is lessening the possibilities of proper development of the child in the home by limitations of space, by extraneous family activities, by many trained helpers, and by an excess of certain types of stimulation such as toys, adults, noises, many contact and much attention to study the young child and the influence of environment and civilization upon it, so as to better aid the modern parent in the most difficult task of child rearing.

The equipment of the school, both

This nursery school offers also a laboratory which can be used to vitalize instruction in child care. One of the purposes of the home economics department is to train young women in care and management of children. Students study children in all phases of their development and the nursery school becomes their laboratory. In time, the result ought to be to raise the level of community understanding of children.

The following paragraphs appear in the June number of the "Detroit Educational Bulletin," which is published monthly for the teachers of Detroit by the Board of Education.

The article is entitled "Important Qualities in a Teacher," and is written by Nellie L. Jackson, Dean of Women, Detroit Teachers College. It is of such general interest that it is reproduced in these columns in its entirety.

"The qualities which are most essential for the teacher are just those which are essential for any person who is to live a rich and balanced life. These, perhaps, should come first—a sound, healthy body, good posture and carriage, healthgiving habits, cleanliness, and artistic dress. All of these are outcomes which the public school aims to produce in its children. Therefore, they are essentials for the teachers whose example is always a strong factor in his work.

"Social-mindedness is an indispensable quality. The teacher, more than any other force, is responsible for developing group spirit and cooperation between members of a group which is so necessary in a democratic community. His behavior must furnish an example of social poise and of sympathetic interest in those about him. He must also have that leadership which consists of resourcefulness in ideas of worthwhile undertakings, in ways and means of attaining them, and in ability to convey to others his enthusiasm for these undertakings.

"Outstanding among the teacher's moral qualities must be sincerity. He must believe in what he advocates; for the fake teacher, like the fake in any other field, cannot long hold the confidence of his public. Loyalty, too, is an important factor in the teacher's equipment; loyalty, first of all, to children, which makes him regard his knowledge of their weaknesses and shortcomings as a trust, not at any time as a subject for gossip or a target for sarcasm. Loyalty to his fellow teachers, that spirit which makes for fair play and good fellowship in the group, is also essential. There must be loyalty, too, to the ideals of the profession, a willingness to do the utmost possible to realize the highest degree of excellence attainable.

"Of course it is assumed that, along with all of these qualities, the teacher will have a rich cultural background. There must be an understanding and an appreciation of achievements in the various cultural lines—in literature, acquaintance with the thought heritage of man and with those various forms so necessary for clear, forceful, and artistic expression; in history, the perspective which the story of man's struggles and achievements gives for present-day civilization; in music and art, at least an appreciation of their function in man's life; in the sciences, at least experience enough to make him realize the progress that has been made toward the discovery of natural laws and to make him appreciate the function of this knowledge in promoting the welfare of mankind; in sociology, sufficient experience to enable him appreciate the way in which the social organization functions and the place of the individual in the whole; and, in each of the other various fields, at least enough contacts to form a basis for appreciation.

"Perhaps the most important of all qualities for a teacher is a scientific attitude which leads him to prepare his work and view its results as the scientist does an experiment. This, more than anything else, makes for that interest and growth in one's work which is essential to real happiness."

Indigestion
Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise. The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.
Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.
"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

DEMAND

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer, Manufacture of Monrovia, California, U.S.A.

JUST HUMANS

Mother's Cook Book

We sacrifice to dress, till household joys
 And comforts cease. Dress drains our collars dry.
 And keeps our larder lean; puts out

 And introduces hunger, frost and woe.

SANDWICH FILLINGS

EVERY mother has many occasions to use sandwich fillings and a variety of ideas will be of help. It is a good plan to keep a list of good combinations, for often the makings are at hand and they are forgotten. Here is a good one: Chop fine two large sardines, one cupful of cold boiled ham and two cucumber-pickles. Make a paste by adding a tablespoonful of mayonnaise. Spread on thinly sliced, buttered white bread. Take one pint of finely chopped chicken, turkey or game, one-half cupful of ground almonds blanched, mix with mayonnaise dressing, adding a little cream. Spread on buttered brown bread. Chop enough olives and mix with mayonnaise dressing to spread on the number of sandwiches to serve. Chop equal quantities of veal, tongue or chicken, moisten with stock from the meat, season well and add scraped onion, a grating of nutmeg, mix well and spread on graham bread. Neufchatel cheese softened with a little cream, adding nuts, makes a delicious filling. Use one-half the quantity of peans, a few chopped olives and spread on buttered brown bread. The coarse breads, using the whole wheat and corn when possible, are the best of breads for children, for it gives the teeth and gums the proper exercise in mastication to keep them healthy. To one cupful of ground ham, add two cupfuls of chicken, one green pepper, finely chopped and mix with mayonnaise. Use on buttered graham bread. Soften cream cheese with cream and spread on whole wheat bread. Cover with a little chopped candied ginger. Crisp lettuce leaves dipped in French dressing and served at once makes dainty and tasty sandwich filling.

 If you feel an irresistible urge to sneeze and nothing, absolutely nothing can head it off—observe traffic rules, grile, and steer it to the right for that brings money—but a sneeze to the left means a disappointment.

Betty Compson

Few leading ladies in the "movies" are chosen twice in succession for such work, but Betty Compson has that honor in playing opposite Richard Barthelmess in "Scarlet Seas" and his most recent picture, "Weary River," a dialogue picture. Miss Compson also has a feature role in the talking picture, "The Barker," starring Milton Sills.

Why We Do What We Do

by M. K. THOMSON, Ph. D.

WHY WE HATE TAXES

MEN have always hated taxes. Taxes have kept bad company. Tribute was collected by force from those who could not defend themselves. What was wrung from the hard hand of peasants was squandered by the overlords on selfish extravagances. The tax gatherer was looked upon as a traitor, a highwayman. Something of this odium carries over to modern times. We look upon taxes as at best a necessary evil. Lack of confidence and charges of graft in the administration of public funds have done much to create a feeling of hate for all forms of taxation.

The money we pay in taxes is for the benefit of the whole country or for a district and only indirectly beneficial to us personally. Abstract benefits are less appealing. The good of the community is so vague as compared with a fine suit of clothes, a nice vacation trip, numerous concerts and prizefights, we could get with our money. We make the mistake of assuming that we could get all of these things instead of just one for the price of the tax.

There are so many people involved that we think our money will not be missed. Many otherwise honest people try to get out of paying taxes. Not infrequently they hedge a little and sometimes a whole lot. We are willing to let the other fellow pay the taxes. There is the same peculiar attitude towards large corporations.

Witness the number of honest people who try to cheat the railroad or smuggle goods into the country to avoid duty charges. Taxes come in the same class.

We hate to pay taxes because it hurts to part with a lump sum of money all at once. The best kind of a tax is one that is extracted gradually over a long period and in small installments. The gasoline tax does not frighten anyone. And yet the average driver pays out in the neighborhood of twenty dollars a year. Eow a man would howl if he was required to pay down twenty dollars a year for road tax!

Why Not?

Louis K. Liggett, who is to head the new $145,000,000 drug combine, said in a Y. M. C. A. address in New York:

"The captain of industry not only works himself to skin and bone, but he has the ability to make all the men under him work themselves to skin and bone.

"The enthusiastic young manager of a Carnegie mill once cabled to Mr. Carnegie in his Scottish castle at Skibo:

"Have broken this week all production records."
 Mr. Carnegie cabled back:
 "Congratulations. Why not do so every week?"

GEORGE WASHINGTON

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HE NEVER told a single lie, George Washington. And that is why They made him President, they did. And yet my Pa says any kid Can be a President some day, But not a kid lives out our way A President could ever be— Not even me.

You ought to always tell the truth, Pa says, especially in youth, And that is what I try to do, And yet they blame so much on you, And ask about the pantry shelf, So what's the use to blame yourself? For who would own right up right then? Not even men.

He must have been a funny one, A funny man, George Washington, I've thought about the men I know, I've thought about an hour or so, To find the man my father meant, The kind that could be President, And not a one I ever saw— Not even Pa.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

YOUR INCENTIVE

FOUR things, one or more of them, furnish the incentive for 99 per cent of men's endeavor—fame, wealth, position, power.

One thing furnishes the incentive for almost all women—love.

Aspiration to realize one or more of the quartet of achievements begins early in everybody's life.

The desire to win the most valuable marbles is only a demonstration of the desire to attain wealth as it is represented by "glassys" or "agates."

What marbles are to the boy, dollars or bonds or wide fields or some other evidence of wealth will be to the man.

The position the bully would possess as the "boss" of the school or of his associates is only the youth index of what the man would achieve whose greatest desire is for power.

The youthful bully may be a good natured boy and the man may be an "easy boss." They are one and the same thing except in years and maturity.

Men will be dishonest to gain wealth. They will risk the penalties of the law to gain fame. They will sacrifice to the limit to gain power. But they will do all three and more to gain position.

And what they would give most for is the most flimsy and treacherous possession of all.

A man honest in everything else will adopt the tactics of the dark lantern and the jimmy to gain political preferment and attain official position.

The social climber will bear almost any insult and practice almost any servility if by either or both one step may be gained to win that social recognition which is his overwhelming desire.

The groundwork of all these aspirations and the endeavor to make them into realities is ambition.

Without ambition we would go through life like snails, creeping and crawling towards a dismal end.

With a selfish ambition we would ride rough shod and heartlessly over every person and thing which blocked or threatened to block our path.

Neither career contributes to happiness here or hereafter; neither makes us better, in ourselves, nor helps us to contribute to the betterment of the world in general.

It is unselfish ambition, the desire to have wealth for the good we may do with it; position for the opportunity it gives to influence our fellow beings to be bigger and better; fame for the means it gives for the wider spreading of the real truths of life; power for the measure of good that it makes possible; by these does ambition change from a vice to a virtue and cease to be the sin by which Shakespeare tells us the angels fell.

There is but little space, too little to give it its just deserts, to say a word of that chiefest of woman's incentives, love.

Love is the only power on earth which can create something out of nothing, can make what only seems to be a living reality, can gild vice until it passes for virtue and makes a heaven out of what would otherwise be a hell.

Every mother in the world does all these things. The love of a mother knows only one great love and that the love which the Bible tells of God Himself.

In the cottage and in the palace love finds an equal place. If there be there a woman to truly express it, it knows no boundary of application, no restraints of expression. Use does not diminish or time exhaust it.

It is greater than fame, more inexhaustible than power and more permanent than position. It is the one attribute of God that establishes our likeness to our creator.

The SANDMAN STORY

ABOUT THE COOKY MAN

"SOON," said the Cooky Man, "I will be eaten."

"You take it very calmly," said Billie Brownie.

Billie Brownie had come to call on the Cooky Man for a few moments, as he had been told that the Cooky Man wanted to have others hear this story.

Every one was out of the house, and only the Cooky Man and Billie Brownie were talking.

"You see," said Billie Brownie, "the Queen of the Fairies told me you were going to be all alone and that you would tell me your story, and as I don't like to be seen I came when she said every one would be out."

"Yes," said the Cooky Man, "they are all out. Muriel is walking with her Aunt Marlan and Muriel's daddy is out—they are all out, as you heard. They thought it such a beautiful day it was a pity to stay in the house.

"I Must Tell You My Story," Said the Cooky Man.

"And I've no doubt they're right.

"But I didn't care about going out I was afraid something might happen to me. I might fall down and get dirty, and I wouldn't like that. You see, some could fall down and get dirty and they would come home and get all washed and clean again.

"You can't wash a Cooky Man, though, and so if I fell down and got dirty I mightn't be liked any more, and I most particularly want to be liked.

"You wouldn't think that a creature made of batter would have that much feeling, would you, Billie Brownie?"

"Well," said the Cooky Man, "I must tell you my story, for it explains everything.

"Muriel is a little girl who lives in this house. She is not very old and she is not very young. Of course, I think she is very old—she is so much older than I am. She is over five years old, and when you're only a few hours old five years seem a long time.

"Still she is not so terribly old—I mean such as she would be if she were ten or eleven years old, or something very ancient like that.

"Now I've been made especially for her. Her Aunt Marlan was making some biscuits and she said to herself:

"I'll make some cookies, too, and I will make a special cooky for Muriel."

"So she made me—making my handsome shape herself. Of course, it's not a perfect shape, but it's pretty handsome, I think.

"Well, you see, I am also dressed up for an occasion. And that occasion is when Muriel shall eat me.

"I have raisins to look like buttons on a suit—they give me a handsome look, don't they, Billie Brownie? And you will forgive me for praising myself up a bit. Others have years and years in which to say nice things about themselves, or else hear others say them, and I've so little time that I want to get in as many nice things about myself as possible.

"Then, too, it is not concealed of me, for I owe all this beauty to Muriel's Aunt Marlan.

"As you will notice, too, I have eyes and a nose and a mouth of raisins.

"Don't you think my arms are nice with the five tiny little raisins on each hand to show where my fingers would be if I had fingers?"

"I think you're a handsome Cooky Man," said Billie Brownie, "and I love calling upon you, for I've never called upon a Cooky Man before."

"Pray pardon me," said the Cooky Man, "if I don't offer you a little food. I have to save myself for Muriel. And I'm all I have in the way of food, I hope that is clear."

"Quite," agreed Billie Brownie.

"But the story I wanted to tell you was this," said the Cooky Man. "I wanted to tell you that it would be nice if you could send the suggestion about to other aunts and grandmothers and mothers that when they're baking it would be nice to always make a Cooky Man for any little girl or little boy there may be in the house. For, Billie Brownie, a Cooky Man is a treat.

"That is why I am so happy and why I don't mind being eaten. If you're going to be a treat you're only too willing to be eaten—at least that is what a Cooky Man thinks."

"Hush! There comes Muriel. And now she's to have her Cooky Man. Don't forget to send around the good word, Billie Brownie."

"I won't," said Billie Brownie, as he hurried away.

SAWS

FOR THE GOOSE—

A SMART man makes believe he understands a woman, but don't. A smart woman understands a man, but makes believe she don't.

Women think there's a lotta ways to spell happiness. But really there's only one way, and that's with two p's.

Women don't like men that are always on the jump. But there's a big difference between being restful and being tired.

If you want things and can't get 'em, it makes you bitter. If you can't get 'em, it makes you blasé.

FOR THE GANDER—

You can't let your dog lay down with a lot of muts without the risk of him catchin' cooties.

Don't try to prescribe for a doctor or reform a minister.

Wives is like grindstones. If they're good they keep you sharpened up. And if they ain't, they're terrible useless.

For Meditation

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

SINE CERA

SINE CERA, a latin phrase which means, "without wax." It was a phrase used by the Romans when they wished to express the idea that the marble contained no scars and the canvas neither blemish nor cracks. From this phrase has come our English word sincere. Without sincerity, confidence is impossible. Sincerity means truth, whether expressed in testimony, conversation, advertising or character.

Superficiality never accomplished anything worthwhile. Sham and pretense have always led to failure. When you purchase at a furniture store an article reputed to be solid walnut and you discover that it was made of a cheap wood and only veneered with a walnut finish, you immediately return the article and demand your money back. The more serious price however is paid by the dealer himself for the reason that he has lost what later might have proven to be a regular customer, for the reason that you are not likely to deal with him a second time. The progress of the economic world is possible only when the truth is stated: when mutual trust exists. A statement, letter, illustration or representation of any kind that is insincere will always lead to the sacrifice of honor and respect, without which no person can succeed. Confidence cannot be betrayed without wrecking the entire economic system. Remove sincerity from business and we have bankruptcy.

What is true of the world of business relations is also true in the world of friendships and all home life. Without sincerity home and friendship is impossible.

A fine motto—why not give it expression in all our human relationships—sine cera—I will not use wax.

WATCH OUT FOR KITTY
"Has anybody seen my Kitty?" Has anybody seen my cat? Little Kiddies beware! A royal edict has gone out from one of our institutions of learning for cats for dissecting purposes. Your cat is not immune, kiddie, so keep it under cover until this season on cats is over.

It is easy to understand that the science of physiology can be made reasonably clear by the study of the body of a dead cat. But why so many cats? Around sixty students in a class and each one must have a cat, one of their very own to slay and cut to pieces ere their knowledge will be complete.

And so it is well to watch your Tabby. Even now it may be spotted. The writer has seen heart broken kiddies, in other years, over the loss of a valued pet and it has always been a source of wonder whether the value of the learning, really pays for the theft and killing of pets.

If every student taking the subject of physiology must have animals to perfect their knowledge, then the state should raise such animals.

THRIFT VITAL TO SUCCESS
IN BUSINESS, WILLYS SAYS
Declaring that the odds in modern business are too strong against the young man who has not acquired thrift and the habit of saving, John N. Willys, president of the Willys-Overland Company, and one of the outstanding leaders in the automotive industry, takes very definite exception to Henry Ford's recent advice that young men should spend their money to be successful.

"It is not alone that the advice to spend money to be successful upsets every tradition and sound principle of good business, but it would hurl the earnest, ambitious young men in the mass of human driftwood which is content to lounge along without purpose or zeal and which is not interested in the development of that force of character the self-denials of intelligent saving builds," Mr. Willys said.

"Saving is the world's greatest character developer and character is nothing but the plus sign on ability and capacity, real and potential."

Mr. Willys said that Mr. Ford's life and work are the best proof of the folly of not saving as the Ford millions were built on the pennies earned and scraped together and invested in the Ford enterprises.

"Mr. Ford made every penny count when he was nursing his struggling enterprise along in the early days, just as he does today in the management of his many great business organizations in their full maturity," Mr. Willys added.

"The old homely saying that 'Great oaks from tiny acorns grow' and the fact that the biggest of American fortunes had its source in the severest frugality and economy apply very specifically to the splendid success of his enterprises.

"A young man's saving should have a two-fold purpose. He should first invest in himself for the development of his earning power, capacity for enjoyment and living and usefulness to the community. The balance of his savings should be directed toward the building of a surplus as a preparedness measure. That would prepare him for the proverbial rainy day and for wise investment when the big opportunity presented itself.

"The phenomenal growth of this country and the greatest era of economic prosperity ever known is predicted on saving and thrift of the people. Surpluses created through work and saving brought all the blessings of American prosperity which has given to this nation the world's highest standard of living.

"To save is to buy future leisure and peace and freedom from economic harass. It is the readiest and most cashable form of insurance. And most of all, it places one in a position to make the most of an opportunity."

IF YOU WANT TO KNOW
The latest in automobiles, and who does not? you should plan to visit the big show of automobiles of practically all makes at Omaha the week beginning the 18th—the 24th annual automobile show.

The latest models—the last word in safety of operation, in comfort, in quality and style of autodom, will be there, according to A. B. Waugh, manager of the exhibition.

All the leading cars, in one mammoth exhibition. The eights and sixes lead but the latest model four-cylinder autos will be there, too.

Just what is new? You can't tell unless you visit the show!

As an added attraction Herzberg's style revue will be held each night.

If you're interested in cars—and nearly all of America is—then you should inspect the last word in automobiles at the Omaha Auto Show.

HELPING ART STUDIES
Omaha, Nebraska, February 12.—The Art Institute of Omaha announces that hundreds of slides as well as photographs owned by the association, are available for churches, schools and clubs of Nebraska cities. Women's clubs, which plan to study certain sculptors or painters, can stipplement their study with these at no cost to themselves.

Courses of study as well as lectures, will be furnished. Anyone desiring this service can write Miss Mary P. Thayer, 216 Aquila Court, Omaha, Nebraska.

STORM CLOUDS AHEAD
Here is the sentiment of the National Farm News, a publication issued from Washington, and now four years old. We may not agree fully with their diagnosis, for we do not think a tariff is a cure for all hard-time ills; but it may please others:

"It has been truthfully said that, 'straws show which way the wind is blowing,' and nobody knows this better than those who live on the farm.

Back yonder, during the hectic days of the recent Presidential campaign, promises were publicly made that if Herbert Hoover be elected,

DOING THEIR SHOPPING
Two thousand merchants and their wives from Omaha's trade area, are expected in Omaha the week of March 4, to attend the winter meeting of the Mid-Continent Merchants association and take part in the spring market week, sponsored by wholesalers, jobbers and manufacturers, of Omaha.

The visitors will be entertained with an extensive program each evening. There will be dinners, shows, theatres, and much amusement, all carefully planned by the Omaha business interests to assure each and every guest a good time. The guests will be shown all there is of interest in Omaha, and carefully provided for in their every comfort. It will be both entertaining and educational, and the Wayne merchants who can attend will doubtless find much on the program to their liking.

He—"Do you think you could learn to love me?"
She—"Well, I learned to eat spinach."

She—"I'm awfully tired. Let's sit on this bench a while."
You (reprovingly)—"I'm not that kind of a fellow."

agriculture would once more be brought into full partnership with all other American industries, and even the opportunity to enjoy its rightful share of any prosperity which might happen to come to our country. It was admitted then and it is acknowledged now that this "salvation" could only be brought about by surplus control and tariff revision legislation. So far, so good. Nobody denies the correctness of the diagnosis and everybody concedes that both remedies will be necessary.

So far as surplus control legislation is concerned, there seems to be little doubt that the approaching Special Session of Congress will mark the enactment of suitable laws. But of tariff revision there is considerable doubt, unless those in charge of this part of the program are willing to recognize the absolute necessity for raising tariffs on farm products without performing the same act for manufacturers in like manner. In short if we are to witness increased tariff on farm products and then behold equal increases upon those articles which the farmers have to buy, there will be no possible hope for agriculture to benefit.

Now let's see which way the straws are blowing. Senator Smoot, chairman of the Senate Committee which will have charge of tariff legislation in the upper house, is in Miami, Florida, to confer with the President-elect. He is interviewed by the press and declares that there is a disposition in Congress to grant about every increase in tariff that is asked for. The House Committee on Ways and Means, in session here at this time, is hearing appeals from about every industry you could think of and the most, if not all, of them are seeking increases in tariff rates on the products which they produce. Now comes Joseph Grundy, President of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, and makes known that his "people" expect to be very kindly treated by the Special Session of Congress.

Out of all this "whirlwind," we gather this forecast. Congress is to be asked to be liberal with its tariff increases straight down the line, regardless of the effect it will have upon agriculture. That must not happen and it will not happen. If Senators and Representatives coming from the South and West stand firmly against it. We are not surprised to learn that our Eastern manufacturers want and will attempt to get a higher tariff on their products. That's a "dis- ease" with them. Their present prosperity and large dividends are almost wholly due to former increases which they obtained. They must be told to "keep their noses out of the trough" this time and give others an opportunity to improve financial conditions. If agriculture is ever to get anywhere near on a parity with other industries, its only hope lies in a protective tariff on its products without a similar increase upon the things which the farmers have to buy. To do otherwise is to leave the same wide spread between agriculture and other industries that now exists, and which brings so much financial sorrow to the farm homes of America.

We are hopeful that Herbert Hoover because of his promise to "rescue" agriculture, will put his "foot" down on any program which will make a farce of farm relief by way of wholesale tariff protection. He is wise enough and experienced enough to see that no relief can possibly come, if we are to have everything raised equally. Here and there, it is possible that an increase in tariff on manufactured products ought to obtain, but this mad rush to get everything on a higher tariff basis is almost a high crime and misdemeanor.

Now here's what every farmer can do to help in this hour of doubt. Let him sit down NOW and write to his Senator and congressman and tell them in plain English that he does not want them to think he is not wise to what's going on in Washington that he expects and really demands that campaign promises for honest farm relief be fully kept; and that he knows such pledges cannot and will not be kept if every industry in America is to secure an increase in tariff rates. Surplus control legislation will help care for immediate troubles but no permanent agricultural policy will ever be established unless and until farm products get their relative rights in the tariff fold. Get busy, friends, for after the "job" is done, it will be extremely hard to right the wrong. Between now and April 15th the new tariff bill will be written. Your friends in Washington are watchfully waiting results, ready to fight for you and your loved ones. You can and will materially aid them, if you write your convictions to your representatives on Capitol Hill before the present session of Congress comes to a close.

Velvet Beans Are Soil Improvers
Best Way to Plant This Crop for Good Results Is With Corn.

Velvet beans, while not recommended for hay, are as valuable for soil improvement as soy beans or cow peas and at the same time cost only half as much.

"The best way to plant this crop for good results is with corn," says E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at the North Carolina State college. "They will do as well or better with corn than if planted alone and the grower will receive a profit from the corn in addition to improving his soil."

Plant in Alternate Rows.
The corn and beans should be planted in alternate rows, three feet apart, dropping the beans six inches apart on poor soil and about one foot apart on rich soils. Cultivate the corn until the bean vines have covered the middle. In this way a ton or more of vegetation, worth $14 in plant food alone, will be added to each acre planted to these crops.

On light sandy land or on very poor soils velvet beans make a much better growth than do soy beans, while on good land they make equally as good a growth and are much more valuable as a fall grazing crop. Cattle may be turned into the fields at frost and grazed until the vines and seed are gone.

Plant for Grazing.
Where the beans are planted for grazing purposes, it is a good plan to plant two rows of corn to one of velvet beans. This gives a clear space between rows for harvesting the corn and will also furnish sufficient grazing for the average farm animals.

Mr. Blair states that velvet beans and the Biloxi variety of soy beans grow together with excellent results. The heavy stalks of the soy beans help to hold up the beans, which makes for a larger growth and a corresponding increase in value to the land as well as grazing.

Prune Grapes in Winter to Get Best Results
Winter is the season for pruning grapes—anytime when the wood isn't frozen, for then the vines are brittle and will snap off if handled.

Pruning grapes is in reality thinning the crop. The idea is to remove enough wood so that the strength of the vine will be thrown into fewer bunches, and make them larger and finer. In general this result will be best gained by pruning the vine to about 30 or 40 buds distributed over four or five canes.

The size of the canes is important. According to Michigan studies the best yields are from canes about one-fourth of an inch thick, measured between the fifth and sixth buds. Big canes have spent their strength in producing wood and are poor producers of buds.

There are several different systems of pruning and training grapes, and your agricultural college will be glad to give you the best advice for your section.

Cut Out Over-Wintering Cankers to Cure Blight
Get after the fire-blight during the dormant season by cutting out the over-wintering cankers, for they are the sources of next year's infection. The cankers are often found at the base of blighted twigs and are dark-sunken areas in the bark. The cankers should be cut out beyond the discolored part of the inner bark. The wound should be disinfected with corrosive sublimate and painted over with white lead paint, or coal tar. Blighted twigs and branches should be cut off during the growing season, about six inches below the blighted part and the stub disinfected. The disinfecting can be quickly done with a swab on the end of a stick which is carried in a bottle of disinfectant. A fast growing tree is more susceptible to fire-blight than a slow-growing one, and a tree in full bearing is usually less susceptible than a young tree.

Around the Farm
All work and no play generally makes a grouch.

An inch of compost manure put on your lawn now will give good green grass next spring.

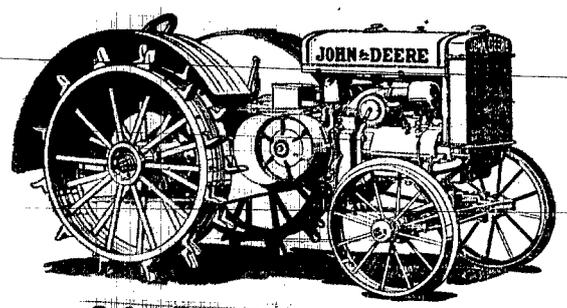

Cutting the weed trees in the farm woodlot will improve the quality of the stand in future years.

Protecting farm machinery from the weather during the winter will save heavy drains on the bank account next spring.

A farm inventory and a credit statement will tell where you stand in the farming business, and may help you get the loan you need to expand that business.

Much heavier dressings of barnyard manures may be applied to garden soils during the winter than while the vegetables are growing. In fact, chicken droppings may be safely applied for some plants at no other time of the year. One ton of such fertilizer is equal to two or three tons from the dairy barn.
