MRS. J. LAUNSPAUGH CALLED BY DEATH

Winside Woman, 84, Dies at Home of Her Daughter, Mrs. Henry Ulrich, Sunday Morning.

CAME TO AMERICA 88 YEARS AGO

Mrs. John Launspach who had been failing in health for a number of years, and became so feeble after her husband's death a year ago, died Sunday morning, March 17, 1929. She was unable to leave the house but was able to be around until about six weeks ago.

Louise Widman was born in Chur Switzerland on February 18, 1845. She came with her parents to America when one year old and a year later to Dubuque, Iowa, living in and near Dubuque for 70 years.

She was married to John Launspach on October 10, 1865. To this union five children were born, three of whom and husband preceded her in death. Twelve years ago on account of their failing health, they moved to Winside to live with their daughter, Mrs. Henry Ulrich. She leaves one son, Dr. G. W. Launspach of Huron, South Dakota, and one daughter Mrs. Henry Ulrich of Winside.

Funeral services were conducted Wednesday afternoon from the home and the Emanuel Reformed church southwest of town of which she was a member, conducted by the Rev. L. R. Keckler. Burial was in the Winside cemetery.

DISTRICT COURT

The Security State Bank of Wakefield was awarded a judgment for $2,909.00 against Carl Lundahl. The plaintiff sought collection of a promissory note which was signed by Lundahl, who contended that a second party was to have signed with him and that it was a partnership affair, and that he was obligated for only half the amount.

H. D. Addison was awarded a verdict of $50.00 in his suit against Wayne county for fees on his services in defending Harrison Miller last fall.

An error in the writ of appeal of Glenn Foltz was found by Judge Stewart and the case thrown out of district court and the plaintiff ordered to abide by the county court decision.

Foltz was fined $342.40, including costs, December 26, when he was found guilty on three counts of illegal whisky traffic. He appealed to higher court.

S. E. Auken was awarded a verdict of $2,750.00 against Herman Ritzke.

In the State vs. Scottie Miller the jury were to be instructed this morning and a verdict was predicted before noon.

A number of other cases are on the docket including the Eastburn vs. Kenrick, in which the plaintiff is suing for fees he claims are due for completing services in a land sale. James Finn is suing for damages alleged to have been sustained about 5 years ago when a shipment of fat cattle were detained 24 hours in Iowa while being sent to the Chicago market. Both of these will probably come up today. The Finn case has been in court about five years originating in the county court at that time.

The Wayne Ministerial association will this year inaugurate a series of pre Easter services new to this community, gathering for 20 minutes each afternoon at the Gay theatre at 2:30 o'clock beginning Monday the 26th. The services will be brief, but twenty minutes, and the hope is that many will find a third of an hour to spare for these services daily. It is a much appreciated courtesy on the part of the movie house man, and it is hoped that many will show their appreciation by attending.

RUSSEL MORGAN GETS FINE POSITION SOON

John Morgan has just received word from his grandson, Russel Morgan of Granite Falls, who is soon to graduate from the agricultural department of the University of Minnesota, state that when he is thru school he has a place as assistant farm or agricultural agent of Winona, county, Minnesota, at a salary of $2,000 and mileage, to begin his duties as soon as he finishes the school year.

The young Mr. Morgan has been making good in agriculture for a number of years, winning first prizes as a member of the calf club of his county, and winning also first place in state, and a number of valuable prizes besides that some long prices on the show animals he cared for. Now he is a graduate from the university, and he must stand well in the school, else such an opportunity would not have been offered him. And his grandparents are very justly proud of him. It also shows what the inspiration of calf and pig clubs may lead one to.

LEON W. LOOMIS DIED THURSDAY

Pioneer of Craig, Resident Here in Recent Years passes After Lengthy Illness.

Born May 10, 1866, at Champaign, New York, Leon Ward Loomis passed away at his home on Pearl street in Wayne, Thursday evening, March 14, 1929, at the age of 62 years 10 months and 4 days, from complications resulting from a weak heart, which had been his heritage thru life.

At the age of three years, he came with his parents from the state in which he was born to Nebraska, where they settled in 1869, making him one of the young pioneers of this state. They purchased land near Craig, and developed a farm there, building and setting trees to make it a homelike place. Here he grew to manhood, attended the public schools and spent the life of the young of those days, subduing the wild prairie land for fertile acres; and there his body was laid to rest in the family burial plot beside the bodies of his parents, Monday afternoon, following a funeral service at the Methodist church at which those who had known him thru most of the years of his life gathered to attest their respect and to sympathize with the family of one of their neighbors of other days.

Mr. Loomis was united in marriage at Geneva, Illinois, September 21, 1904, to Miss Lucy L. Wheeler, who with two daughters, Helen E. and Dorothy E. survive to mourn his loss. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. R. V. McPherson of Craig.

While never a rugged man, he continued the farm life until failing health caused him to retire from the farm, after visiting various places for the restoration of normal health. They moved to Wayne in June, 1910, and has since made home here, in comparative physical comfort, tho never able to perform manual labor in all these years.

The funeral service was from his old church, the Methodist at Craig, the pastor, Rev. Simpson preaching a brief sermon to an audience which contained many of the early settlers from all that part of the state. The pall bearers were selected from among his former neighbors and playmates of school days, and were Art Longwell, Dan Hogan, Howard Hancock, Andrew Struthers and Will Ernst; and the church choir and Mrs. Will Minier furnished the music. Beautiful floral offerings from Wayne neighbors and former Craig neighbors banked the casket high and covered the grave after the services were over.

A plain unassuming man during his nine years residence at Wayne his passing showed that he had won many friends here.

Wayne-Amer. Legion Post is Sponsoring Lecture by Bennett J. Doty, War Hero

Author Who Braved Death in World War Will Tell of His Exciting Experiences Here.

SPONSORED BY WAYNE LEGION

Bennett J. Doty, author of "The Legion of the Damned" a book based on the personal experiences with the famous French Foreign Legion during the World War, will appear at the college auditorium here Friday March 29, under the auspices of the American Legion. He will tell of his personal experiences with this strange body of fighting men.

The French Foreign Legion, with whom he was connected, was composed of men from all parts of the world, principally the United States, who for the love of adventure went to France and enlisted.

Doty was one of those and gained renown as one of the most fearless of this group. He braved death for the Legion and won the Croix De Guerre.

His war service and the years following were filled with the most thrilling experiences. At one time he was under arrest with the death penalty hanging over him for deserting the army of occupation in Syria, after the war was ended and his life had lost its color of thrill.

Because of his services during the war the sentence was commuted and he was pardoned after he served eight months of an eight year sentence.

The local Legionnaires through the cooperation of the local college will have charge of this lecture, which is called the main attraction of the year, and will have tickets on sale within a day or two.

Ample space in the auditorium will be available as college students will be on their Easter vacation, and the World war veterans will appreciate a large turnout to hear Mr. Doty.

buys Interests, He Sold First of Year, From Val Hrabak; Took Possession Sunday.

Albert Johnson, who sold his bakery to Val Hrabak the first of the year, announces that he has repurchased his old interests and will again operate the plant.

Because his health wouldn't permit the confinement necessary to manage the bakery, Mr. Hrabak said, was his primary reason for selling. He enjoyed a very satisfactory business and liked the work but found that he couldn't stand being inside so many hours.

The plant will be operated along the same plans as when formerly managed by Mr. Johnson, he said, although he hopes to offer even better service than before.

Johnson entered the bakery a few years ago and has built up a fine shop which has shown an increase in business every year since he became owner.

The transaction was completed the first of the week and possession by Johnson was resumed Sunday.

NORFOLK "LEGGERS" CAR CONFISCATED BY COURT

Paul "Jake" and Tom Salsbury, of Norfolk, paid a $350 fine and had their car confiscated in county court here yesterday when they were found guilty of contempt of court and illegal sales of moonshine whisky. They were also paroled out on a sixty day jail sentence.

The car will be sold by the sheriff in the near future. Contempt of court charges were filed when they removed the car from a local garage where it had been stored by Sheriff Stephens following confiscation proceedings.

Replevin proceedings were made in Madison county and the Salsburys came here and took the car unbeknown to local officers, which action was found to be in contempt of local court orders.

The car was recovered by Wayne officers and will be sold. The Norfolk men are alleged to have been in partnership and their fines were concurrent.

HENKEL-HARSHBERGER

At Ozark, Arkansas, January 27, 1929, occurred the marriage of Mr. Robert W. Henkel of this city and Miss Juanita Harshberger of Van Buren, Arkansas, and Saturday last Mr. Henkel went to Omaha where he met his wife, and accompanied her to Wayne, where they are now at home having an apartment at the I. C. Trumbauer home at 114 Douglas street.

The groom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Henkel, and has spent practically his entire life at Wayne, where he attended the city schools, and graduated into the railway service, and for a number of years has been the very efficient head of the local freight department, filling every duty of that exacting department to the satisfaction of the company and the public he serves, and it is to be hoped that he will remain here for many moons, unless he shall be called to a place higher in the service because of his efficiency.

The announcement of this marriage is in the nature of a surprise to the many friends of the groom—and yet he has not made a trip away from Wayne when the friends of the lad had not been watching for him to return with a bride, but until now they have not had the pleasure of greeting the happy bride. His many friends will be counted as friends of the woman of his choice for a life companion.

FOCH DEAD

Marshal Foch, leader of the Allied forces in the late World war, passed away at Paris last night, a sudden collapse coming at the close of several months illness.

Omaha has a traffic court, and it is to be hoped that it will make traffic on those streets a bit more safe, and make those who violate traffic laws pay dearly for their indulgence.

Miss Pauline Judson, who is teaching her first year at Gering, tells home folks that she has been elected for a second year with a double promotion, one in salary and one as to position. She now being elected to preside over the primary department, a work for which she took special study when attending the normal.

Miss Charlotte White was a passenger to Carroll Monday, going to that place to visit friends, of whom she has many there, and in her official capacity as state organizer for the W. C. T. U., a position to which she was recently appointed. In spite of more than 80 years of active life, Miss White continues active, and as spry as many a younger woman. She takes with her in her work something that appears to be lacking on the part of many "temperance workers," a sincere belief in the wisdom and justice of the cause she is engaged to advance.

Get that Easter suit at Gamble's.

Rev. S. D. Sikes, who a few years ago was conducting revival meetings at Carroll, is at Wayne for an indefinite stay, taking treatment for injuries he suffered not so long ago in an automobile accident in the east, which came very near calling for the benediction so far as Rev. Sikes was concerned. However, he is able to be up and about, and do some work in his chosen calling, and Sunday evening he accepted the invitation of Rev. A. C. Downing of the Baptist church to talk from his pulpit. Rev. Sikes is regaining strength and hopes to again soon resume his evangelistic work.

Dorothy Hayward from Randolph was here Monday afternoon passing thru Wayne on her way for a visit at Moore Haven, Florida. She did not expect to reach her destination before Thursday morning, and it might be later on account of floods in the south.

See Hart Schaffner & Marx high school suits at Gamble's.

Albert Soules was at Emerson the last of the week, visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans, his sister. It did not seem to have marred the joy of his visit that it was so timed that he could assist them in the task of moving their household goods from one place in that town to another part.

Seventeen flock of standard bred poultry have been accredited by the state from Pierce county; and more than a million hens in the state are in the accredited poultry ranks, and the accredited hatcheries use no eggs except from the accredited flocks. The poultry of the state has long been neglected, but is now gaining recognition of merit.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

Buick, the genius who worked out and perfected the automobile of that name, died recently in poverty, while the fellow with the cash, who stepped in when the inventor's cash had dwindled, is reaping fat dividends. Such is the way of the world. We knew well the man who invented and patented one of the important improvements now employed on most of the road graders in use on the highways, who is in poverty. He held for a number of years a place as janitor for a number of years a place as janitor, which is using his device appears to be well fixed. Such is life in the west.

Last week at Pierce the business men of the place gathered about the banquet table to a fine feed, and listened to a spell-binder feed them a cornstalk paper diet. If we were wanting to go to making cornstalk pulp or paper, we believe we would look to a locality where the "tall corn" grows—where the stalks attain a height of 14 to 18 feet, and a size so large that the cattle cannot eat them before they are run thru a shredder, and where as one of the natives of that Missouri bottom lands said of the corn crop a few years ago, "It is an endurn' big crop," and the "high'n' bugs" last August worked themselves to death, thinking it was overnight in the dense shade.

Wonder why it is that nothing less than a feed in prospect will bring out more than 15 percent of the fellows who should be interested in a booster meeting for the advancement of the community? At any rate, that seems to be the rule that works best.

Mr. and R. B. Judson were visitors at Omaha the first of the week, driving down Sunday.

Some wise guy has discovered that it is as easy to earn money as to save it, once it is earned. You can bet it is—for there is ever some scheming, unscrupulous fellow watching to see who is getting a bit of cash ahead by industry and economy, to come round with a promising appearing "get rich quick" scheme for the plodder to bite on.

As Representative Cone sees it, the enactment of 4-cent gasoline tax is taxing the fellow with a flivver to build a good road for the use of the rich to their land and property holdings, instead of having them go down in their own pants pocket and find cash to build their own highways and farm improvements.

A forty-acre tract of farm land near Madison sold last week at $125 per acre.

It cost an Omaha auto owner $14.95 over in Madison county for driving a car with only the 1928 number. That is another case demonstrating the truth of the old saying that a "stitch in time saves nine."

The Madison Star-Mail says in a head line that the bar docket for the March term of court is heavy, and then adds that seventy-six couples are seeking divorce. A lot of these divorces victims should have applied Judge Cherry's binding oath and then stuck to the text.

A band is being organized at Pender, under the supervision of the commercial club.

Lumber dealers from this corner of the state are to meet at Norfolk Wednesday evening, the 27th, when Ivan Wood, university extension worker is announced as the principal speaker. He will speak of farm building, and making or remodeling them to serve more efficiently than the old style farm buildings.

Everett Hoguewood, who is busy at Yankton this spring, was home Sunday, returning to the town by the bridge that evening.

all day long is well within its range.

Above we show some of the local records, officially observed by newspaper men, which Essex the Challenger established during Nation-wide Challenger Week. Owners here, and owners by thousands all over the country, have duplicated these tests, or, at least, verified the capacity of their own Essex the Challenger to reproduce any or all of these proofs.

IN FAST GET-AWAY—no car is excepted. IN SPEED—anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN HILL CLIMBING—against any car you choose. IN APPEARANCE—match it for smartness with costlier cars. IN EASE OF DRIVING—note smoothness of motor—ease of steering—roadability and effectiveness of brakes. IN ENDURANCE—60 miles an hour

One million owners know the special advantages of the Super-Six. They are best qualified to compare the Essex the Challenger. To them we offer first opportunity to test the most powerful, the largest, roomiest, smoothest, easiest riding—most complete Essex ever built. But all motordom must be astounded that even with seventy-six notable improvements, the price is the lowest in Essex history—a price but little above the lowest-priced car on the market.

APPROACHING SPRING

As the spring equinox season approaches there has been much trouble from weather conditions in many parts of the world. Snow in the mountains has been a menace to life and property, and travelers have been marooned, and lives lost. Food has been secured with much difficulty in many small mountain towns, where the going and coming by the usual travel methods has been stopped.

In many of the northern states the great bodies of snow and ice beginning to travel in liquid form, and ice-blocked storm sewers and gutters is throwing the waters out over the streets, and into basements in some instances in the towns, and inundating the low lands in many localities.

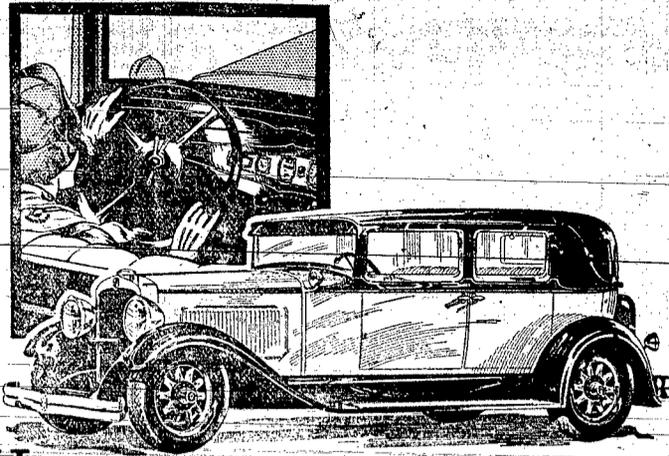

In the south floods from rains and the melting snows from the north-land is creating a serious flood district in various parts, and more than 10,000 people have been driven from their homes, and like the first doves let out of Noah's ark, not being able to swim, found no place to light. But they have in part been supplied with food dropped for them from planes, where they could find place above water on with to leave provisions.

There have been now and then a cyclone to twist things up, and destroy property. The winter just passing has proven a bad one in many localities; tho this corner of Nebraska has had no unusually heavy snows or bad storms, the temperature has averaged below normal, while many other parts of the state and Iowa, Missouri and Illinois have had in addition to the low temperature excessive snowfall, and rain. Road are not the best, and in some sections of the state only the highway can be navigated by auto. Horses have to be given a chance where a journey must be made.

A QUESTION FOR THE FARM WEST

Des Moines Register: The chances are the president is not going to find the industrial east any more cordial to his program than it was to the McNary-Haugen program. That raises a very direct question for the farm west and that is whether to get behind the president's program without stopping to debate the old differences, on the theory that it is going to take a very united effort to get any sort of program through congress.

World's Easiest Driving Control

NO OTHER CAR in all the world controls quite so easily—with such complete lack of effort—as the new Nash "400".

Nash engineers have developed a new steering mechanism to achieve this result. An ingenious arrangement of roller bearings and a roller-tooth traveling in a worm gear, reduces friction to a minimum hitherto thought impossible.

Women drivers find new help and gain new confidence in parking. Little effort is needed to bring the "400" up to, or away from, the curb.

Gear shifting is just as easy. The "400" clutch pedal depresses at a touch, scarcely resisting the weight of your foot. The conveniently placed shifting lever moves smoothly, easily, from one speed to another.

If you ever find that driving a car tires you, try driving a Nash "400". It will give you an entirely new conception of how effortless, how pleasurable, motoring can be!

If all the repair parts the Ford Motor Company makes for the Model T (or old model Ford) were assembled they would make 2,500 Ford cars per day.

The American Telephone Company contracted for 5,000 new Model "A" Ford cars in 1929.

The Dearborn Ford plant in Detroit, alone, employs 147,000 men.

There are 26 Ball and Roller bearings in the new Model "A" Ford chassis.

After using a Model "A" Ford for one year in which he covered the worst territory in Nebraska, in his work of law enforcement, the State Game Warden advised the Ford Motor Company that the total cost of operation including storage, gas and oil, repairs and depreciation amounted to only 3 1/4 cents per mile for the Model "A" Ford, which was the lowest cost of operation the department experienced on any of their cars.

Plans are being discussed for a diamond jubilee of the birth of Nebraska either this spring or next fall. Good idea, no doubt.

Spencer, the cartoonist for the World-Herald made a fine picture of the new president dumping a number of Coolidge hobbies out of the white house window, such as handshaking, Sunday high hat, the official spokesman and the sausage and buckwheat cake breakfasts—but he seems to have overlooked the ex-president's wooden hobby horse—but perhaps Calvin took that with him to the green hills of New England.

Over in Iowa the legislature, recognizing the struggles which state officials have in "keeping up with Jones," passed a measure increasing the salary of the elective state officers, except the governor, $1000 per year, thus taking several dollars annually from the tax-payers to the "tax-eaters." We did not notice during the campaign that there was any complaint about the salary; and there appeared to be plenty willing to make the race without asking a bonus.

Recent developments indicate that while Al Smith lost votes in the last fall election because he was and is a member of Tammany. It now develops that he was not the kind of a Tammany member who deserved that loss, for the papers now say that following the resignation of the Tammany leader, that the organization does not want the vacancy filled by Al. Smith or a man named by him. Al and his friends are evidently not tough enough to suit the old time Tammanyite.

The legislature is playing with a bill to make an income tax for Nebraska people to pay. They should give it a correct title, or change the measure. It should be called a measure to create many soft places for pots, and strengthen political machines. The proposed bill would make a tax of $5.00 on the first $1,000 income from single persons. That is not enough to pay the cost of collection—but it would make a job for the collector. Besides, in these times the person who is not making more than that sum needs it all and more, without having to pay some tax-eater a part of it.

It seems as tho the members of this legislature had better get their ears to the ground, if they expect to be returned another term, and listen to the voice of the people rather than the political hoses at Lincoln, who are trying to get legislation defeated, contrary to the will of the people; this is especially true, we think, in the matter of not passing a measure which will permit municipalities having light and power plants to extend their service to the country and also to smaller towns that may want the service, and the outside earnings be used to pay for the plant and its operating expenses. Does the light and water power companies and a few bosses in Omaha own the legislature? Have the people nothing to say in the matter?

The State Journal seems to oppose a guaranty bank law; but afraid to say so without reservations that might mean a little or nothing. The state legislature passed a guaranty banking law, and then neglected to make proper provision for its proper enforcement. For that reason it appears that the state is in part responsible for its present plight. It was too much of a political football. The bankers should have been given opportunity to examine banks—with a real examination, in which event we doubt if the Beemer, Papillon and other rotten deals nearer home could have stolen the millions that now is acknowledged to have been lost thru dishonesty which has cost more than incompetency, we dare say. Under the circumstances, and the alleged negligence of the state, it seems that the state might justly be held for a part of the losses. The bankers have been offering rewards for the scalps of the "holdup" bank robbers when they should have offered double the reward for the killing or catching the bank robber from within.

OUR LEGISLATURE—YES, OURS

There is a bit of evidence in the papers from day to day that the legislature now in session at Lincoln may not realize that it is to represent the people of the state, and work for their best interest, and there is very little evidence that the people are very much concerned; but a lot of special interests are "Johnnie on the spot" at all times, to pull for their particular graft.

A bill providing for a change in the primary law is moving forward in the house. Do you know its good or bad points? Why not look it up? Our present primary law, while not perfect, assures the people many rights they did not have in the days of convention rule before its passage. Guard it.

The bank guaranty law is in danger of being made of less value than it has been, and it needs the honest aid from the voters to pull it out of the predicament into which it has fallen and maintain its good features. Here is one view of the situation:

Must Have Paid Taxes
"No depositors of any failed or insolvent bank shall participate in the benefits of the depositors' guaranty fund until he shall show to the satisfaction of the receiver of said bank or to the satisfaction of the secretary of the department of trade and commerce that he shall have listed and paid the state, county and municipal tax on the money represented by his said claim while it was on deposit in said failed or insolvent bank."

Attorneys before the committee said that if such an amendment is approved by the committee and legislature, the amount which they seek to recover from the state may come close to meeting the entire deficit obligation.

Sorensen Tells Stand
Attorney General Sorensen voiced the opinion that the state is not under legal obligation to make refunds to banks. "I can tell you in advance what our opinion will be," he said. "Our contention is that the levy against banks was sufficient up to the past two years, and further, that the state cannot be sued without consent of the legislature, the guaranty fund does not belong to the state. The department of trade and commerce acted merely as trustee for depositors. Even if the negligence could be alleged and proven as against the department, the state could not be held liable. As a legal claim, there is nothing to it. I should like to see the depositors reimbursed, but if this is brought about the obligation must be considered as moral, and not legal."

House refused senate changes on bill increasing salaries of Douglas county attorney and deputies.

CORN BELT GROUP STARTS DISCUSSIONS ON TARIFF

Des Moines, Iowa, March 18.—An open forum discussion on the advisability of seeking higher agricultural tariff schedules at the special session of congress, characterized sessions of the Corn Belt federation conference here today.

Meeting for the first time since the election of President Hoover, this group, which upheld the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill throughout its congressional course, heard speakers urge equalization of farm tariffs with those of other industries.

Henry Wallace of Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines, warned the committee that a revision which increased manufacturing tariffs might do more damage than an increase on farm products would do good.

"Farmers are not under a delusion regarding the tariff," William Hirth of Columbia, Missouri, chairman, said. "The biggest chance we have of getting a semblance of a satisfactory bill lies in the fear of heavy tariff beneficiaries longer denying tariff benefits to the farmer. Manufacturers are learning they can not maintain the protective tariff system and deny it to agriculture."

The legislative committee had not reported late today on resolutions which it expected the federation to adopt regarding recommendations for congressional farm relief measures. Fifty federation members from Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas and Wisconsin were here for the session.

The following resolution was adopted: "The tariff makes the farmer buy in a protected market and sell in a free trade world market. The McNary-Haugen bill as passed by congress represents our convictions as to the principles necessary to be incorporated into law. But, let it be known that we have always kept an open mind for all suggestions as to what agriculture legislation could be enacted. If any one can suggest a plan equal or better to solve the farm problems it will command our general approval."

DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

Washington.—There will be no drastic or dynamic drive to enforce prohibition under President Hoover, but the administration will follow a vigorous and well defined policy for building up law enforcement generally.

The government, it was learned on high authority Tuesday, will avoid all acts of sensational character in its enforcement efforts and will confine itself to generally building up law enforcement and reducing crime.

The most intensive and widespread effort ever made to enforce prohibition is imminent.

Spurred on by President Hoover, who made law enforcement a leading issue of the campaign and the chief text of his inaugural the federal government is marshalling its forces for a major offensive against the liquor law breaker.

Money aggregating nearly $50,000,000 for this year alone is available for the "big push." Extra funds aggregating $2,730,000 were appropriated by the recent congress for division between all dry law enforcement agencies.

WORLD'S TAX RECORD BROKEN CALL HALT IN STATES

In 1927 a new world's record in tax collecting was established in this country when federal, state and local governments required $9,074,000,000 to keep going. This was 12 per cent of our national income, a two per cent increase since 1923. It is believed that when the statistics for 1928 are gathered we will have definitely exceeded this former high mark. Tax records, unlike other achievements, seldom outlast their year.

An interesting phase of affairs is that the increase in taxes can mainly be laid at the doors of state and local units of government. Federal economies have kept federal taxes fairly constant. The solution, if we can find one, must deal with the unprecedented generosity—or perhaps prodigality—of legislators and state and municipal office holders.

Progress of course costs money, and civic and state spirit, that wants to outdo everything ever done before, is more or less commendable. But community expenditures for luxuries and non-essentials may easily bury the taxpayers under a mound of indebtedness that will make progress impossible.

And they say that our legislature has seen its shadow, and will be in for another six weeks.

"HELLO" HENDERSON OWNS SMALL KINGDOM

The following from the Burr Oak, Kansas, Herald, will interest a lot of radio fans. It tells something of "Old Man Henderson" who one always hears when they tune in on his powerful station at Shreveport, Louisiana. Radio listeners who have heard the rantings of "Hello World" Henderson, of the Henderson Iron Works, of Shreveport, Louisiana, may be interested to learn something of the man and his surroundings from the description of a recent visitor to his home.

To begin with "Old Man" Henderson is 48 years old, and the largest individual land owner in Louisiana, his real estate holdings over the state amounting to 65,000 acres. He pays yearly $55,000 in taxes, and besides his iron works, Henderson owns saw mills, cotton gins, electric shops, a motor car agency and numerous apartment houses. He met the visitor at the station in a Pierce-Arrow limousine and drove out to his "Kingdom" comprising 10,000 acres.

There was found a 16-room house with telephones in every room and a private switchboard and 17 trunk lines leading to Shreveport. About 800 persons are employed in the home estate. Here are three radio studios, and three telegraph printing machines to receive messages from listeners-in. The visitors, invited down for a hunting trip, were supplied with a motor and chauffeur next morning from Henderson's fleet of 46 automobiles that include 8 Cadillacs, 2 Pierce-Arrows, and a Marmon. On the estate are two lakes, one of 65 and the other of 200 acres, the latter with seven blinds for hunting. The blinds are equipped with gas heaters and telephones.

The foundation of Henderson's fortune was laid by his grandfather.

"I like to razz people and they like to razz me," explained Mr. Henderson superfluously.

ESSEX CHALLENGE WEEK EXTENDED FOR A MONTH

So successful was Essex Challenge Week, March 4th to 11th, that the Hudson Motor Car Company has decided to extend the program for a month, using the slogan "Essex Challenge and Demonstration Month," they announce.

Record breaking performances from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf marked Challenge Week. Speed in excess of 70 miles an hour was shown in every section of the country excepting where deep snow drifts completely blocked traffic, it is claimed.

A particularly noteworthy performance was reported from the Pacific Coast where a stock Essex sealed in high gear and with hood and radiator sealed, completed the round trip from San Francisco to the Mexican border, a distance of 3,490 miles, without changing oil or water. This trip, regarded as one of the most difficult ever accomplished, included climbing twelve mountain ranges. The car, according to reports, could have gone several hundred more miles.

Among the "stunts" successfully pulled off is numbered the pulling around of a switch engine and the towing of a large loaded truck. If it can be called a "stunt", though the consequences may be a little more serious, Alabama State Police arrested the service manager of the McGough Motor Company of Montgomery and charged him with having gone at a speed of 81 miles an hour.

FARMERS ELEVATORS FIFTY YEARS OLD

In the present agitation for co-operative marketing by farmers, the fact that the grain producers of the United States now have in operation in their farmers elevator movement the world's oldest and most successful co-operative marketing venture, seems to be overlooked.

An investigation made by the United States Department of Agriculture of 1,516 farmers elevator companies now operating successfully discloses the fact that their organization began in 1880 and continued until the organization peak was reached in 1919—thirty-nine years of continued organization for forty-nine years of continued success in business.

A plan of business organization which continues without material change for thirty-nine years has demonstrated that it is sound. Business institutions organized under that plan that have successfully continued in business for forty-nine years have demonstrated that they are efficient.

Farmers elevator companies are successful co-operative marketing institutions and are a permanent part of American business, says Farmers Elevator Guide.

TEST FOR TAMMANY

It may not be, and yet again it may be, that the resignation of George Olvany, as leader of Tammany Hall, marks the beginning of the predicted revolt of the boys against the high morality of the leaders who have been directing Tammany's efforts since the death of Boss Murphy.

Judge Olvany was hailed as a leader who would keep Tammany pure, and judging from the reports coming from New York he has, after a manner of speaking, done that. At least there has been a marked absence of the malodorous emanations that we had been led by long experience to expect in the vicinity of Fourteenth street. Tammany has been giving New York a better administration of its affairs than the city had been accustomed to before the reform wave struck the Hall.

Former Gov. Al Smith has, of course, been responsible, in great measure, for this cleaning up of the political machinery. He has been an important influence in the organization for these many years, but whether he has ever been able completely to dominate it, is a matter of dispute, says an Exchange.

A little Japanese boy was very tardy one morning. The teacher said, "Masneichi, why are you late?" Looking at the teacher gravely, he said, "My brother he no walk hurry."

Nebraska lands are probably keeping pace with if not distancing those of other states in the matter of sales at pretty fair prices. That the members of the house of representatives are responsive to opinion of home folks was proven when the house passed the game commission measure by a vote of 75 to 17. When the vote was advanced to its third reading, it had but one vote to spare—and then the members of the Walton leagues began to ask for its support, and got it. It will yet have to pass the senate and if there is question as to the results, those interested might get busy.

NEWS AND COMMENTS

Beginning this week, the day will be longer than the nights—a change of conditions enjoyed by a great majority of the people.

The floods in Alabama recede, but the bad effects are felt in epidemics of illness in the flooded districts. Supplies, medical and food are needed. The death list, so far as known, had reached fifteen by the first of this week. The floods drove 15,000 people from their homes.

Members of the legislature are looking forward for a date for adjournment, but the most that they can see is a pile of unfinished work.

Over in the neighboring state of Iowa, the cheese making has declined, the number of cheese factories have shrunk from 113 to five, but the decline counts in many very small factories. But the decline should not have been as great, tho the record reported covers a period of about thirty years. Iowa people should make their own cheese unless they can make the money to buy it with in a better way. The Hawkeye people consume ten million pounds of cheese, and produce but about one million pounds. That makes it appear that they might increase the production to ten times what it now is. Nebraska should increase its output of cheese and let Iowa have a bit of the surplus. Wisconsin is the banner cheese producing state of the middle west, if not of the nation.

United States Street gives its net income after deduction of interest on funded debt and addition of special income receipts and net adjustment of various accounts, at $114,173,774. This compares with $87,896,800 in 1927. Bethlehem's earnings were $18,585,922, as compared with $15,826,142. That is doing pretty well. Why not cut the price more and do still better?

Corning, Iowa, has one citizen at least who kept the walks free from snow last winter, tho it was a severe winter, and a season of much snow down in Adams county, Iowa, if one may believe the reports which came from that county where they farm the top soil—both sides in some of the hilly sections, and mine coal from underneath. Mrs. Hannah Senff, 85 years of age, kept her walk clean from snow, and as a rule removed the "beautiful" before the foot of any morning pedestrian had pressed it. The snow came in great quantity in southern Iowa, the newspapers and the radio both said, but Mrs. Senff met it early and often with a shovel or broom, and pushed it off the walk. That was better than many an abled-bodied Wayne man did, tho not half as old as this public spirited elderly lady.

WHAT OF WAYNE'S FUTURE?
A croaker, or pessimist, perhaps might be a more fair term, was looking at the dark side of things here, and talking at the same time, and the talk prompted the question above. Whether the gloomy talk was justified or not, it might be wise to try to answer the above question, and the Democrat invites suggestions as to what Wayne people might best do to assure a continuation of the very satisfactory building boom. (If it may be called a boom) of the past two or three years.

What line of production or manufacture will give the best returns for time and money invested?

With two and a half thousand people here, with a Kiwanis club, a Business and Professional Woman's club, and a dozen or more other similar organizations there should be plenty to offer practical suggestions as to wealth-producing lines for both city and country people.

Wayne has no vacant houses, and it might be well to consider that "prevention is better than cure."

Plan This Spring For Next Fall's Harvest

THE DIFFERENCE between success and failure will largely be determined by how well you plan for the year.

The farmer who prepares for a large yield by a careful seed selection and then gives the see the best possible chance by PROPER TILLAGE AND GROUND PREPARATION . . . which is assured by using McCORMICK-DEERING IMPLEMENTS . . . stands a much better show of coming out ahead than the one who is inclined to be careless about these vital things.

McCORMICK-DEERING stands for everything that is modern in Farm equipment, and we believe that, no matter how long you search, you will not find anything that equals this line for good farming . . . and surely you cannot find better tools.

Therefore the farmer who selects his implement needs from us will be making proper steps toward a most successful year, and many to follow, as McCormick-Deering Implements are built not only to do better work . . . but are made to last indefinitely.

THE GUARANTEE FUND MATTER

The legislature is busy this week considering the matter of whether the state should make good the losses sustained by depositors of state banks operating under the state guarantee fund. To our mind there is no question what position the legislature should take—the depositors should be paid in full. It is an obligation the state can't afford to shift. The plan to guarantee deposits was a wholesome one, but crooked state officials together with criminal acts of certain bankers have absolutely bankrupted the plan. Not all officials of failed banks were criminals and the fund raised to protect the losses would have paid the deficits but the big failures in early every case were caused by criminal acts. Those in charge of the state banking system under the McMullen administration were in most cases incompetent or unfaithful to the guarantee system and were seemingly glad the guarantee plan was being wrecked. Every trusting depositor should be reimbursed whether the money is raised by direct taxation of a tax on luxuries—it matters not which. It would be a reflection on the honor of the state to repudiate this just obligation. The demand of the governor that the operation of the state guarantee fund commission and the state banking department should be investigated is correct no matter who gets hurt.—Pender Times.

SUBSIDIES

(Des Moines Register)

A news dispatch from San Francisco announces that the Dollar Steamship company has asked for bids on two new liners of huge size, equipped for use of airplanes to speed up mail and passenger delivery, costing approximately seven million dollars apiece, and then goes on to say:

"The vessels will represent the beginning of a Dollar line construction program, which includes six new ships in the next few years for round the world service. The ships probably would be constructed with government aid under the provisions of the Jones-White bill Dollar said."

America has been a country where supposedly government subsidies were anathema, but it is proving to be one where subsidy is all right provided we call it something else—small subvention for instance.

Government help to this industry and that has been, in reality, as much a commonplace in the United States as anywhere. We have not changed things very much by being more direct in our governmental help to some industries. We have become more direct, as the direct financial support to our shipping interests illustrates.

CARE OF PIGS AND POULTRY

Young pigs are now coming. Keep them away from poultry infected with tuberculosis, as they will get the disease from them if you don't.

Keep in separate lots, or, still better, get rid of your diseased poultry.

Eighty per cent of the poultry flocks infected with tuberculosis do not show it alive, but do on postmortem examination by:

(1) Yellow spots on liver or spleen.

(2) Nodules on intestines filled with yellow gritty substance which when expelled may give it to other chickens and to pigs.

Chickens in an advanced stage of tuberculosis are light in weight, pale of comb and sometimes lame. Kill them and burn them. Keep your young chicks on clean soil.

If some of the healthier looking hens are kept for spring laying, shut them up and keep their shut up until sold next summer.

Clean and disinfect all houses before the young healthy chickens are put in next fall. Keep only pullets for laying purposes at least until your premises are free from infection.

Pullets have very little tuberculosis and are better layers than older hens. Trap-nest records from 10 states averaged show that hens lay 36 per cent more eggs during the first 12 months than during the second 12 months of production.

Effective May 1, 1929, the packers will not pay the 10-cent premium on any individual producer's consignment of tattooed hogs from accredited counties where more than 10 per cent are infected with tuberculosis.

The packers should not be expected to pay the 10-cent premium on any such hogs after November 1, 1929, unless each lot coming from any farm is entirely free from tuberculosis.

Cleaning up the poultry is a simple process and should be done now for the benefit of both industries, says Harry J. Boyts, Live Stock Commissioner.

CONGRESS THE NULLIFIER

(Charleston Evening Post)

The constitution prescribes that congress shall reapportion representation in the house of representatives once in every 10 years, immediately following the national census and upon the basis of that enumeration and it is clear and unequivocal.

It is nearly nine years since the last national census was taken and preparations are well under way for another enumeration to be made next year. But there has been no reapportionment.

Aside from the practical phases of the matter, an interesting question is raised by this refusal of congress to carry out a plain prescription of its duty. What is to be done about the constitution when congress will not be governed by it.

In event of the passage of an act which is in conflict with the constitution the supreme court can render it invalid and of no effect by solemn pronouncement, but who is to compel congress to do what the constitution says it must do? Obviously, there is no authority for that. Each branch of the government is independent of and coordinate with the other. If congress won't, it won't and nobody can make it do what it is not disposed to do. Thus it is within the power of congress, at least in matters of positive prescription, to violate the constitution and that it is doing.

LOOKING UP VETERAN CLAIMS

According to a report in the Norfolk News, Congressman Howard is expecting to be kept pretty busy during his short vacation before April 15, when congress is called to meet in special session, looking up the facts as to a half a hundred claims of veterans in the district for compensation. Mr. Howard says that he hopes to investigate and get the facts in all these cases during the short end of the month he has before returning to Washington.

Congressman Howard is reported as being ready to support the Hoover agricultural program, if it shall be what is predicted, and he is not asking whether or not such action will please the democrats of the district or not, if it give promise of aid to the farmer.

PLANS A NEW POLICY FOR INDIAN SERVICE

Washington, D. C., March 15.—The policy of the federal government toward the Indian soon is to take an entirely new direction.

Secretary Wilbur intends that the Indian is to be rehabilitated and that the Indian bureau is to lead the way toward a new era in the government's dealings with its Indian citizens.

This new policy is part of a general program of reorganization which already is feeling its way out from the secretary's office to every bureau in the department.

In the meantime Secretary Wilbur is devoting much time to studying the qualifications of a number of men whose names have been suggested for the head of the Indian bureau to succeed Commissioner Burke, whose resignation was announced today by President Hoover. Mr. Wilbur is looking for a trained sociologist who has had wide experience as an administrator.

Along with this new Indian policy the interior department is finding itself treading new paths in relation to conservation and use of national and natural resources. Secretary Wilbur has let it be known that these government reserves are to remain as reserves.

TEN YEARS OF THE LEGION

The American Legion last week celebrated its tenth birthday, and its leaders found much to which they could point with pride.

An organization attempting to weld into peace time service the strangely diverse men who were thrown into the common uniform of war time might be expected to become a great failure as readily as to be a great success. That the American Legion has been able to gain and hold a membership averaging around three-quarters of a million, and to keep that membership vigorous during 10 years, is a tribute to its leadership.

Nationally the legion has come to be accepted as a powerful force in public affairs. Occasionally it has seemed to range itself dangerously for reaction. Fortunately it did not succeed in arousing in the country at large the same fear from communism that animated its members.

It preached 100 per cent Americanism when most people were glad to get away from the harangues of the professional patriots. And when the legion, after insisting it wanted no bonus, seized upon the "adjusted compensation" act as a means of bringing to its standards the dissatisfied ex-service men, it was accused of double-dealing. At the same time its support of that measure, as a means of partial justice to those who fought while others profited, won the battle for the bonus.

The greatest service the legion has performed has been to keep its skirts clean of politics. The greatest danger in such an organization, would be an attempt to place control of government in the hand of its own members.

In Omaha the legion has deserved the highest regard of all the citizens. Omaha post No. 1 has been vigilant to serve the disabled men, and has made that its cardinal labor. It has ever been a force for progress in the community. The service of the legion in undertaking the burden of getting a hanger for the air port will not soon be forgotten, and is but one example of the watchfulness of the organization for opportunities to build. And the annual custom of the legion in awarding citations each year to Omaha's "most distinguished citizen," serves the useful purpose of calling to everyone's attention, the value of unselfishness, and the necessity for civic labor if the community is to prosper.

In 10 years of its work the American Legion may fairly be said to have earned the confidence and respect of the nation at large, as well as the communities where each post is organized.—World-Herald.

HOW TO USE THE BLIZZARD BEATER

A good plan followed by many farmers in locating a "blizzard beater" is as follows: They select a well drained place with a south slope if possible. First they unroll some hog wire for floors to prevent rooting. Then they arrange the "A" type houses that they intend to use for farrowing side by side about a foot apart and facing the south. If several are used a 40 degree angle is formed by facing half of them toward the south and the rest toward the east. Some of the farmers dig small trenches in between the houses to prevent the water from seeping into the nest. Next they unroll some woven wire in the rear of the houses and build a temporary fence about two feet from them. Some slats are nailed on the front to keep the sows from going between the houses. They then fill the spaces between and behind the houses with straw.

Individual pens are made by constructing fence panels of rough lumber and arranging them in front of the houses. The panels are removed when it is desirable to allow the pigs a clear run of the field. A creep is usually built for feeding the small pigs.

A detailed description of the "blizzard beater" can be found in Extension circular 230, "Nebraska Portable Hog Houses." They may be obtained from county agents or from the agricultural college extension service at Lincoln.

Cities Built With Cans

BENITO MUSSOLINI, dictator of Italy, recently promulgated an edict that the agricultural population of that country must remain on the farms. Mussolini is a benevolent and constructive dictator, and the edict is doubtless wise in a country where the canning business is small, and much of the food canned is used for export. But in this country, with its steady trend of population toward big urban centers, such an edict would arouse a howl of rage which would be heard from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and re-echo in Mexico and reverberate in Canada.

But what has the canning industry to do with it? Practically everything. If safe, pure, nutritious foods were not available by the thousands of tons in a form in which they can be kept indefinitely and used when wanted, the big cities of this country could not exist.

able to preserve certain foods practically indefinitely without in any way injuring their nutritive value or seriously interfering with their appearance or taste."

"The process of canning," he says on a later page, "discovered by Apert and afterward perfected through the work of Pasteur, has proven of inestimable benefit to mankind. It enables nourishing food of a perishable character to be kept and transported to great distances and to be used in localities where fresh foods are unobtainable. Without this method of preserving foods the pioneer and the explorer would be seriously handicapped. Large army and navy maneuvers would be seriously impeded, and great metropolitan cities would be impossible. Wiley states that the winning of the West has been marked by the debris of the rusty can."

Canned Foods Are Safe

"The process of canning," says this same authority, "is practically synonymous with sterilization and is, therefore, one of the best sanitary safeguards we have against parasites and the injurious products of putrefaction in foodstuffs. "Canned foods are sterile foods and, therefore, generally safer than fresh foods. Fresh foods, of course, are to be preferred to those that have been sterilized, although many sterilized foods are more dangerous in the fresh state than after they have been exposed to a high temperature.

"Canned foods are not only safe, but are quite as nutritious as the original articles. The process permits us to have a well-balanced ration throughout the year—irrespective of season."

Canning Business the Bulwark

That's the explanation of the up-building of our great cities. When city dwellers are able to obtain in safe, sanitary and nutritious form practically the whole range of vegetables all the way from artichokes down through the alphabet to turnips and wholewheat, fruits all the way from apples to strawberries, fish and shellfish from anchovies to shrimps; meats from bacon to veal, ready-made entrees such as beef à la Mode, goulash, Hungarian style, chicken curry, chicken à la King and lobster Newburg, a whole range of soups and such specialties as Boston brown bread, chili con carne, fruit butters, jams, jellies, marmalades, condensed and evaporated milk, buttermilk, molasses, puddings, salad dressings, syrups, spaghetti and tomato sauce, they stand in no danger of either malnutrition or starvation. If the canning business were suddenly swept out of existence, Mussolini's migratory edict would automatically enforce itself in this country, and a myriad of city dwellers would have to go back to the land.

Inoculation Is Aid to Soy Bean

One Plot Yield Increased Three Times Weight of Cured Hay.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To plant soy beans from the same lot of seed in the same field during the same summer with the same amount of fertilizer and make one plot yield three times the weight of cured hay as another plot is an accomplishment worthy of mention. Such a large increase, measured in terms of the weight of dried hay, resulted during the past summer from the inoculation of soy bean seed with nodule bacteria, according to observations and measurements recently completed by specialists in soil microbiology of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Untreated Seed Used.

In a 30-acre field upon a high hill on the farm of R. R. Fred, near Middleburg, Va., the supply of inoculated seed ran out temporarily at the time of planting and the seed drill was run with untreated seed for several trips around the sides of a large square of land until more seed could be treated and placed in the drill. Then the seeding was completed with the inoculated seed. Long before harvest time the result became visible to the whole countryside. From the lowlands and from the opposite hills a great yellow square became more and more distinct as the acres of inoculated soy bean hay grew steadily greener and darker and the plants from uninoculated seed grew yellower and brighter.

Dr. E. B. Fred, of the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Charles Thom, chief of the division of microbiology and L. T. Leonard, bacteriologist of the bureau of chemistry and soils, inspected the field. They found that the inoculated plants were much taller and healthier than those untreated and that they also contained many more seed pods.

Difference in Yield.

To determine the differences resulting from inoculation, careful measurements were made by the department specialists in soil bacteriology of both the treated and untreated plants. Fifty plants taken from each portion of the field showed that the treated plants grew to an average height of 39 inches, the others to only 23 inches. An estimate of the yield of dry hay gave two and a half tons to the acre for the inoculated seed and only three-fourths of a ton for the other. Another startling difference was the average of 20 pods carried by the inoculated plants as compared with an average of five pods for those untreated. Finally, an analysis of the plants showed that those grown from inoculated seed carried approximately twice the percentage of protein as the others. Agar culture of nodule bacteria from the Wisconsin College of Agriculture was used for inoculation.

Asked if inoculation of soy bean seed with reliable cultures would always bring such profitable returns, the department specialists in soil bacteriology replied, "Probably not. Some land does not need inoculation, for the organisms are already there, but it is worth trying in any community where nodules are not abundant on the roots of legumes. Each farmer should determine this matter for himself by planting inoculated seed side by side with uninoculated seed, and let the facts speak for themselves."

Greatest Usefulness of Jerusalem Artichokes

The greatest usefulness of Jerusalem artichokes in the past has been as a stock feed. At present in France they are mostly used for sheep and cattle, and in this country they are most frequently grown for hogs. The crop has been highly recommended for this purpose, but has never superseded corn where that crop succeeds. The leaves and branches are also good stock feed and are extensively used abroad. The stalks may be cured in the same way as corn stover, or they may be made into silage. As a source of alcohol Europeans have used Jerusalem artichokes to some extent.

Norse Names Common in Parts of Scotland

Professor Brogger, of Oslo university, in a lecture at Edinburgh university, commented on the striking fact that the majority of the place names in the Shetlands and Orkneys were of Norse character. A scrutiny of the old Norse farm names revealed certain types of names which had been most used in the Shetlands, Orkneys, Caithness and the Hebrides—Names in Norway were not only chronological, but also indicative of the social position held by the families in Norway. Further, their geographical limit was sharply defined and for that reason it was possible to conclude from which parts of Norway the emigration was greatest.

This proved to have been the southwestern coasts of Norway (Agder, Rogaland), and the northwestern (More). In the Agder coast districts in recent years a number of farm sites which had been examined proved to have belonged to an older iron age, and seemed to have been deserted in the Seventy-eighth centuries. They were usually situated in districts which were no longer cultivated. In all probability a number of these remains were relics of the emigrants.

Small Boy Had Found Perfectly Safe Place

It was the evening rush hour. An intensive throng, regardless of everything but their desire to get home as soon and as best they could, stormed the various entrances to the subway elevated trains as they pulled into the central city stations.

The stroller was standing in the vestibule of the last car of the train. All seats, aisles and corners were crammed with humanity, a seething mass. At Eighth street the door opened to permit a few more to crowd in. A transit employee helped by shoveling them along.

"Cut that pushing! There's a little boy here. Ain't you got any better sense?" This from an irate father, who was trying to shield his boy from the struggling mass.

The child, undismayed by all this anxiety and turbulence, smiled at his parent.

"Don't worry, daddy; they can't hurt me."

He had crawled under the overflow of his father's stomach.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Samoa Tattooing

The art of tattooing still flourishes in the Samoan islands where the natives tattoo their bodies from the hips to the knees. A tattooer's profession is very lucrative. His instruments resemble combs, and are made of human bones of different sizes. The operation takes from two to three months, during which time a patient remains in the same retired place. All this time the relatives of the young person bring mats, money and food, but if the quantity does not suit the tattooer, he "goes on strike," refusing to proceed until sufficient liberality is displayed. The requisite gifts are sure to be brought, for no Samoan could endure going half tattooed.

Odd Methods of Fishing

There are many ways of catching fish, but one of the quaintest methods is that revealed by natives to the administrator of New Guinea, on a tour of the territory. At Hetan the natives gave an exhibition of kite fishing for gars. The kites, constructed of pandanus leaf, and shaped like huge birds, are flown from canoes, the motion of which makes the kites' tails slip along the surface of the water. A "spider" web is attached in which the fish become entangled. Often 50 fish are caught with one kite in a day. The natives also stupefy fish with drugs.

Oldest Dated Statuette

A jade figure in the Smithsonian Institution is said to be the oldest object found in America. It is known as the Tuxtla statuette. This object was found in the state of Vera Cruz, Mexico. It is carved from jadeite, and represents a birdlike deity with human head. On the front and sides are Maya hieroglyphics, including one corresponding to the date 98 B. C., which makes the Tuxtla statuette the oldest dated monument thus far found in America. The institution has thousands without date which are much older.

Oldest Christian Symbol

The fish is considered the oldest symbol of Christianity. When the pagans became Christians they were afraid of being persecuted and put to death by those who still believed in pagan gods; so they invented a secret sign, giving it the form of a fish. When they wanted to make their new belief known to each other and wanted to find out whether the man with whom they associated was pagan or Christian, they drew the sign of the fish in the sand, and if the person responded in the same way, they felt secure to speak of their new faith.

Ideal Sense of Humor

Cultivate a sense of humor—not the harmful humor that only takes delight in the confusion or humiliation of others—but that humor which enables a man to laugh at himself and hold himself in proper proportion, a man who sees the bright side and communicates the brightness to others.—E. W. Bentley.

Sweet Potato Profit Could Be Increased

Diseases in Field, Storage and Transit Must Be Cut.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Much more profit could be realized from the growing of sweet potatoes than is now made if diseases in the field, storage, and transit were reduced. The inability of farmers to keep sweet potatoes in storage forces them to sell the bulk of their crop as soon as it is dug, a time when prices are at the low point. Specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture are of the opinion that more sweet potatoes would be available for winter use and disposed of at a good price if storage methods and principles were better understood.

In Farmers' Bulletin No. 1059-F, "Sweet-Potato Diseases," just issued by the department, sweet-potato growers will find much information of value concerning the prevention and control of storage and other diseases of their crop. Disinfection of the seed, use of immune varieties, and crop rotation are some of the practices advocated for the control of disease. Sweet potatoes infected with field diseases should never be placed in storage, for heavy losses will follow.

Numerous diseases are described in the bulletin, together with practical measures to adopt in reducing losses therefrom. A copy of the bulletin may be secured from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Keeping Records on the Poultry Business Best

Many farmers feel that poultry keeping is just a side line to be watched over and cared for by the women on the farm and as a consequence they pay very little attention to keeping an account of the income and expenditures involved in the management of the poultry flock. Often this condition exists even though the flock may be getting the best of care and may be receiving a very well-balanced ration.

Such a feeling should not exist, however. Poultry flocks are one of the best sources of farm income. Furthermore, they furnish, under proper management, a very steady income from week to week throughout the 12 months of the year. It would be an easy matter to keep a record of this income, and in many instances this is done. Too often the poultry flock book-keeping ceases with the record of the income and does not take into account the cost of keeping the flock.

Breeding Ducks Must Be Given Variety of Feeds

For early hatching five ducks may be mated to one drake. After April 1st, six or eight ducks to one drake will not be too many. Duck eggs require 28 days to hatch, except the Muscovy breed, which requires 33 to 35 days.

In handling ducks pick them up by their necks rather than the legs. Their legs are easily broken.

Ducks lay early in the morning and should be kept in the house until they do—or till about 9:30 o'clock. If let out before laying, they often drop their eggs in ponds or streams.

Pekin and Runner ducks rarely set. Breeding ducks must be well fed. Besides whole grain, they should have a wet mash of wheat middlings, ground corn and oats and wheat bran, with about one part of meat scrap to seven parts of the other feeds used in the mash. Oyster shell, or ground limestone, and sand, should be kept before them always.

Crossbred Sheep Used for Producing Mutton

Hampshire bucks crossed with grade Rambouillet ewes are being used to produce market lambs in Colorado, according to Charles I. Bray of the animal husbandry department of the Colorado College of Agriculture. A cross which Mr. Bray suggests is that of a long wool buck on a fine wool ewe. This cross has been used by some sheep growers of the other range states and gives a sheep with a good mutton body, fine quality of fleece and plenty of size.

In making this kind of a cross, Romneys, Lincolns and Cotswolds are used most frequently. By crossing a Romney Marsh buck with the ewes, a fine type of lamb was produced, according to the experiments of the Colorado College of Agriculture. The Romney is a little blockier than other long wool breeds and has shorter legs.

Brooder House Needed Now for Young Chicks

Probably no building is more needed right now than a new brooder house. One of the chief sources of loss of baby chicks comes from lack of proper brooding facilities, and a good brooder house will very nearly pay its cost in the first season.

A brooder house is not a complicated structure. A simple shed type is common, but it must be built with a warm floor, tight, warm walls and a tight roof. The use of good heavy building paper on the inside walls will stop all possibility of cracks, and will make it easier to maintain an even temperature. Bear in mind that in cold weather 60 per cent of the heat of a building is lost through the roof. Therefore, use an extra layer of building paper or one thickness of heavy wallboard under the roof.

Road Problem Is Yet Troublesome

There Must Be Cooperation of Authorities in Charge of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Before much definite progress can be made in getting the farmer out of the mud and in getting the city man out of the city on week ends, there must be co-ordination and co-operation of authorities in charge of local roads and highways in areas adjacent to large cities, according to the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture.

There are approximately 2,750,000 miles of local rural roads in the United States, say bureau engineers, and approximately 1,000,000 miles are administered by town or township authorities. There are, they say, 3,000 counties or equivalent subdivisions, of which 67 in the New England states have no relation to improvement or maintenance of roads. Authorities of the remaining 2,933 exercise jurisdiction over the 1,750,000 miles of local roads classified as county roads.

Control Construction.

Only 875 of the 2,999 counties have control over construction and maintenance which may be described as reasonably competent, according to the bureau, and there are 820 counties which have no definite organization whatever for the maintenance of roads, and in which the work is of the most casual and inefficient nature.

"The county or township unit is generally so small and its taxing power so limited," says the federal road authorities, "as to preclude overhead costs for proper supervision of and equipment for road work. If adequate equipment is provided, the area is generally so small, and the mileage so limited that it cannot be employed full time."

Control Limited.

"In many counties control is limited to a single engineer who, in many cases, is poorly paid and is inexperienced or relatively incompetent. Only the larger or richer counties have sufficient income to employ competent engineers. Also elective local authorities seldom have the qualifications necessary for highway administration. There is a tendency for them to permit considerations other than the requirements of traffic and other properly controlling conditions to influence their administration."

"The outward movement of population in metropolitan areas has caused a rapid growth of suburban sections. Generally, each of these urban units has partial jurisdiction over sections of the county highways within its borders, and the lack of a common plan has been a serious obstacle to continuous and consistent improvement of main highways. This condition, coupled with the rapid increase in traffic has resulted in serious congestion."

In these areas, says the bureau, land values are higher and with the concentration of population more and better highways can be supported.

Many Alfalfa Failures Caused by Barren Seed

One of the chief causes contributing to the many failures of alfalfa is the use of an unsuitable variety. Different varieties are not distinguishable by the seed and to the average person they are not distinguishable by the appearance of the growing plant. Most people when buying alfalfa seed simply call for alfalfa seed, naming no variety and often they choose the lowest priced seed which is practically always an inferior variety, or seed of low vitality, says a writer in the Farmer's Guide.

During the summer I observed many fields of alfalfa in all stages of bloom and so far as I can recall I never once saw a field with a variegation in the color of the flower. This fact alone convinces that a wrong variety is used largely.

Farm Notes

- A cow must have three quarts of water for every quart of milk she produces.
- Soy beans are very high in oil which has the tendency to throw hogs off feed if the soy beans are fed for a long time.
- Brood sows should be given some feed in addition to corn or other grain. They need protein and mineral matter to insure a litter of strong pigs.
- Hulled oats are fine feed for growing chickens, and when ground into oat flour they are much better for mixing in laying mash or starting mash.
- When the chicks are about a week old the mash trays should be discarded for feed hoppers. These keep the feed clean, prevent waste, and save a lot of trouble.
- The coal stove brooder has been popular for many years and has developed in recent years, so that it is not now necessary to have hard coal to be successful with them.
- Early hatched chicks that must be confined to the brooder house because of weather conditions should have cod-liver oil in their mash feed at the rate of one quart to 100 pounds of mash.

Dogs Called Unclean by Biblical Writers

Many people have a decided prejudice against "selling dogs." Some go so far as to regard the sale of a dog as positively sinful. One elderly woman, says the Pathfinder Magazine, severely condemned a man who engaged in the business of raising shepherd dogs for the market. She branded his business as sinful and protested against her church accepting contributions of his "tainted" money.

The origin of this prejudice is not known for certain. It may be based on the old Hebrew Scriptural teachings. Deuteronomy 23:18 says in part: "Thou shalt not bring the price of a dog into the house of the Lord thy God for any vow." Many commentators, accepting "dog" here in the literal sense, state that Moses declared dogs unclean and prohibited traffic in them.

Others take a different view of the passage. They say that "dog" here does not refer to the animal, but to a person who has prostituted himself by committing any abominable action. This opinion receives some confirmation from the context, especially the preceding verse. In Palestine the dog was looked upon with loathing and aversion, as filthy and unclean. This animal is mentioned in the Bible more than forty times and, with few exceptions, it is mentioned with contempt, to remark either its voracious instincts, its fierceness or its loathsomeness.

Medici Family Crest Now Pawnbroker Sign

In America there are but few shop signs reminiscent of an old day. The one most in use is that of the pawnbroker and his sign of three globes. With this is connected a varying and interesting background.

Averado de Medici was a commander of fighting men under the great Charlemagne. During the course of his battles on behalf of his overlord he met and slew the giant Mugello. As the spoil of war, he took the giant's club, to which for effective service in action were affixed three iron balls swinging upon a short chain.

It can readily be understood that a well-placed blow from such a club in the hands of an angry giant would certainly, to use slang, "make the birdies sing," and the three effective additions to the club would complete the picture. Therefore, Averado might well have added the three globes to the family crest. In later years the Medici took to the gentle but effective art of poisoning and as a side line engaged in the business of loaning money, using the memory of Mugello's battle-ax fixtures as their insignia.—Kansas-City Star.

Substitutes for Gold

Perhaps all the world isn't struggling for gold and silver, but it is only because those precious metals aren't known in some of the out-of-the-way spots—and even there a substitute is found.

In the South Sea islands, for instance, porpoise teeth strung around a native's head indicate his wealth, recounts the Farm Journal. On the island of Yap the rich man is known by the number of cartwheel stones piled in front of his hut. In the East Indies and throughout a large part of Africa beads and shells are used for money, and in the Polar regions, where fishing is the chief source of livelihood, fishhooks are a principal medium of exchange.

Siamese Currency

It takes 100 satang to make a baht, the latter being the equivalent of 0.66587 grams of fine gold. The baht, sometimes just bat, is also the unit of weight. Eighty baht equal one chang, and 50 chang equal one haph. One-eighth of a baht is called a fuang, and two fuang are a salung. There are also wals, kups and nlews, as well as sens, yotes, tanhs and tanans. Twenty tanans formerly equaled half a coconut shell. You will have to keep that all straight in your mind if you have financial intercourse with Siam. But remember especially that the tical is now out of use officially as a money unit.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Various "Complexes"

The word "complex" is used by many modern psychologists and alleged psychologists to denote a group of ideas and feelings which are mentally associated with a certain subject. For instance, they would say that Napoleon had a "conquest complex." Usually, but not always, the ideas and feelings are supposed to be repressed. A person is said to have an "inferiority complex" when he inherently feels himself incapable of doing certain things. The opposite state or attitude of mind is termed a "superiority complex."—Pathfinder Magazine.

"Height of Land"

This is another name for watershed, water parting or divide, the line of separation between the basins of two adjacent rivers, lakes or drainage valleys, from which streams flow in opposite directions. In Minnesota there is a small lake of this name, from which streams find their way to the Red river of the North and to the Mississippi. Maps of northern Ontario also show the Height of Land, marking the divide between rivers flowing to the north and those flowing to the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence.

IOWA LAND

(Des Moines Register)
The Register learns from a responsible source that Des Moines has three million dollars in New York for investment in stocks.
How many business men will say that 10 years from now, 20 years from now, 40 years from now an investment in Iowa land will not show up for many times there investments in stocks?
Congress is soon to meet to stabilize farming and insure standardized farming and insure standardized marketing. We are entering on a wholly new era of farm stability.
Our banking in this new era is to be more conservatively conducted. There are only three corn belts in the world and Iowa is the heart of the biggest and best. Iowa alone produces more corn than Argentina and several times more than Rumania.
In 12 years we shall not be producing more food in the United States than we consume.
It is not at all unlikely that what we speak of now as land poor will be spoken of in less than one generation as land monopoly.
At a time when money for investment in stocks is bringing 10 and 12 percent in New York, while land credit is still at 5 per cent, why should not Iowa money take up the slack in Iowa land and enable the state to come to the next harvest with a confident and cheerful countenance?
One morning while getting ready for school, John said, "Ma, wash just one ear, the one on the teacher's side."
"That girl sure looks good at a distance but she can't get far enough away."

Cute in a Baby—Awful at Three—and it's Dangerous

by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids, and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and feverish. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.

Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 50 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

DON'T suffer headaches, or any of those pains that Bayer Aspirin can end in a hurry! Physicians prescribe it, and approve its free use, for it does not affect the heart. Every druggist has it, but don't fail to ask the druggist for Bayer. And don't take any but the box that says Bayer, with the word genuine printed in red!

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monacellulose of Salzigbrunn

Farmers have discovered that the fields are dry enough to disc and many teams can be seen in the fields. If the excellent weather holds out may will sow oats this week.

Monday was Lester Lutt's birthday. A number of his relatives met at his home to greet him when he returned from school. He received many presents. Luncheon was served.

Wayne county's poor crop last year makes it necessary for farmers who normally sell grain to buy it. One result of this is that oats are as high in Wayne county as in Omaha.

Sunday was the sixth anniversary of the unusual blizzard which struck Wayne in 1923 and caught many farmers in Wayne doing their Saturday shopping. Only those who had gone to town with teams were able to make it home.

Daddy's Evenings Fairy Tale

BEARS' ADVENTURES

One day Billy and Brownie Bear went off on a hunting and seeking trip. They had a great deal of luck and came back to their cave with all sorts of good things to eat. But the things they had found that they liked best, and which they had found only a short distance away, were what they had found in an old farmyard—the other side of the edge of the woods.

They had found a garbage pail! This they had dragged off for a distance, and they had found tins which had once held jam and old jars to be licked out, and many other delicacies which bears do not often get. They scattered the old tins after they had left them quite, quite clean, and they didn't bother to pick anything up.

Then they heard the farmer. "I do believe that those bears who live off in the caves in the woods have been here. They know just how to get at tins with their claws—and they love jam and sweet things."

Then he heard a rustle through the woods. "I believe they are there now. 'Til get a shot at them if I can. So he went for his gun. After all, the bears had only taken his garbage tins and garbage wasn't such a tremendous thing to steal, but the farmer was feeling angry and cross. Off went his gun, but Billy and Brownie rushed back to their cave for all they were worth. "How selfish of him," they growled, "when we were cleaning up his place for him."

But before they reached the cave they had picked up some more goodies. "We have narrow escapes, don't we?" they said to each other as they went into their cave. But now they had eaten all they wanted and they went way into their cave for another long nap—until the spring was really around, really around!

They went fast, fast asleep and their dreams were of jam and garbage pails but not of men or guns, so you may know they had very happy, pleasant dreams. The farmer took care to keep his garbage pail from the bears during the next few weeks.

But it was quite useless for him to have bothered, for the bears weren't going near him for awhile. They were too pleased with their lovely dreams, and they were no longer hungry.

They would be hungry a little later on in the spring.

Jumbled Stories

Most boys and girls know the amusing game of "Consequences." Another capital diversion, played on similar lines, is jumbled stories. Each player is served with a sheet of notepaper and a pencil, and on the signal for starting being given each proceeds to write three lines of an original story. The first two lines are then folded over, but the third is left exposed to view.

The papers are then passed on to the neighbor on the left, and he or she, after reading the exposed line, continues with three lines of story. And so on, until the paper is filled, and then the whole set is collected, and one of the players, who is a good reader, reads the contents. The result is most amusing, and the most extraordinary mixtures are made.

Froud of Baby's Cry. Joan was the proud possessor of a new baby sister, whose favorite means of expression was crying loud and long. Some little friends of Joan came to see her. As usual, baby's voice was floating through all the air. "Is that your baby crying?" asked the little friends.

"Yes," said Joan very proudly. "If you want to hear her real plainly, go and stand on the kitchen porch."

Can You Guess This?

Answer: York, Ferk, Pork, Work, Cork.
