College Squad Wins Triangular Field Meet from Wesleyan and Cotner Schools

Christensen Does Iron Horse Stunt and Wayne Noses Out Rivals in Close Race.

MEET HELD ON FINE NEW FIELD

Christensen, Wayne's "iron horse" led the Wildcats to victory in their triangular meet at Wesleyan yesterday when he won first in the two mile and one mile events and second in the half mile race for a total of 13 points. Wayne won the meet with 72½ points to Wesleyan's 70 and Cotner's 21.

Christensen's record is considered outstanding not only because he galloped around the track for a total distance of 3 and one-half miles, but he made good time in all the events in spite of the cold and disagreeable weather.

The Wildcats mopped up in the track events copping firsts in all but two of the various races. They were not so successful in the field but managed to cop a number of points in these, also.

The meet early developed into a dual affair with Wayne and Wesleyan crowding the Cotner Bull Dogs far into the rear. The meet was held on Wesleyan's new field, which when completed will be one of the best in the Missouri valley.

How Wayne Made Them:

100 yd. dash—Lowry, second; Phillips, third. 220 dash—Lowry, third. 440 dash—Dennis, first; in 53 flat. 880 dash—McClurg, first; Christensen, second; Hunt, fourth.

Two Mile—Christensen, first. One mile relay—won by Wayne; Kelly, Mayberry, Phillips and Dennis. Time, 1:37.6.

Five Relay—won by Wayne; L. Andrews, Stedry, Ray and Dennis. Time, 3:47.

High Hurdles—Farrow, first; Ray, second. Low Hurdles—Ray, second; Andrews who was leading fell before he completed the sprint.

TWO TRACK MEETS TO BE HELD HERE

District High School Meet and State College Meet Scheduled for May 17-18.

The annual Northeast Nebraska high school track and field meet will be held on the college field Friday, May 17, Fred G. Dale secretary of the association announces, when a couple of hundred of the best performers of this corner of the state are expected to compete.

With no outstanding high school squads in this corner of the state, this season, the competition is expected to be quite evenly divided between a number of individuals who will attempt to lead their school to highest honors.

During the past two years Norfolk and Randolph copped the majority of the points and had little trouble besting the other schools of the district.

College Meet May 18

On Saturday following the high school competition the annual state meet, in which the four state normal colleges are entered, will be held on the Wayne field.

With all four schools boasting strong squads the competition is expected to be unusually close and a number of thrilling events are anticipated by local followers.

Peru is expected to lead in the field performance while Chadron and Wayne are conceded the edge in the running events. The local relay teams will be taxed to the limit to come through with a win, it is anticipated, and a number of feature events are looked for.

CALENDAR'S HISTORY SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Rev. Merle Adams Reviews History and Presents Proposed Changes of Calendar.

The history of our calendar, was the topic on which Rev. Merle Adams, Norfolk minister and principal speaker at the Men's Dinner at the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening, spoke.

Following a brief review of the history of the present system of reckoning time, in which he outlined some of the illogical methods of its development, the speaker told of proposed changes that are now being seriously considered.

The history of our calendar, Rev. Adams pointed out, dates back to the time of the Caesars and has undergone few changes since its adoption at that time, other than minor corrections. Change Considered

Several hundred large business firms of this country have already adopted a new calendar, the speaker stated, which three years ago was presented to the league of nations for study and investigation as to the feasibility of making this new calendar the international system, replacing the present one.

The league acted favorably in its behalf and are taking the matter up with important countries, and indications are that a new system of thirteen months of four weeks or 28 days with an extra day at the end of the year will be adopted within a few years, the speaker intimated.

Ladies Serve Dinner

About 100 men and boys of the Presbyterian church attended the dinner, served by the ladies of the congregation, which was followed by a short program including the talk by Rev. Merle Adams, pastor of the Congregational church of Norfolk.

The speaker was introduced by R. R. Larson, local depot agent, who called on F. H. Jones, superintendent of the Sunday school, who responded with an appeal for a better attendance. The pastor of the church, Fenton C. Jones, also responded briefly to the call of the toastmaster. Frank Gamble led in group singing of a number of songs.

WAYNE SCHOOL BAND TO PLAY AT ALBION

Awarded Contract for Second Appearance at Boone County Fair This Fall.

The Wayne High School band, under the direction of F. C. Reed, will play again this year at Boone county fair in Albion. They were asked to return at an increase in payment over last year. Their program at the fair will include both afternoon and evening concerts each day of the week.

The Wayne band, both this year and last, won the contract in competition with such bands as Deadend's colored band of Omaha. At Wayne, the band has been already engaged for the fourth of July celebration.

The high school band, organized something over two years ago, which won first prize in the state high school band contest at Lincoln only ten months after its organization, and which has been holding weekly practice since, has been showing consistent improvement. During the winter the band has been practicing twice weekly and showing steady progress from month to month, and, according to F. C. Reed, will be able to give concerts this summer that will compare well with professional concerts anywhere.

The band will give regular concerts in the city park again this summer. The date of the opening night will depend upon the weather. Dates and programs will appear later in the Democrat.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Auken were Sioux City visitors Sunday.

A. T. CAVANAUGH PRESENTS HIS IMPRESSIONS OF SOUTH

A. T. Cavanaugh, Wayne insurance man, gave his impressions of the Gulf country, gained in his recent trip there, in his address before the Kiwanis club Monday noon.

Mr. Cavanaugh was impressed with Fairhope, a municipality just outside Mobile, Alabama, which is operated on the single tax plan. People there are taxed on the amount of land they own, and not for the value of their property. Fairhope is a prosperous community, said Mr. Cavanaugh, where people are not fined for initiative and for making improvements.

Cavanaugh made the trip through the south last winter in company with R. B. Judson, R. L. Larson, and Guy Strickland. He stopped at Mobile, while the others went on to Florida.

At the meeting next Monday, Harriet Craven and Mildred Bonawitz, who have won in local declamatory contests this year, will give readings before the Kiwanians.

SAM DAVIES STARTS SEVENTY-SIXTH YEAR

Pioneer Newsdealer Entertains For Relatives and Friends at Sunday Dinner.

GOT HIS START SORTING COAL

Twenty relatives and close friends were guests of Sam Davies, Wayne pioneer, at his 75th birthday anniversary dinner held at the Stratton hotel Sunday.

Mr. Davies began his 76th year Saturday, but entertained for his relatives and close friends Sunday at a dinner, at which time he was the recipient of a number of appreciated gifts.

Although a large cake was served it wasn't big enough to hold all the candles, said Mr. Davies, who admitted that he enjoyed the event.

A pioneer newspaper dealer of Wayne, Sam as he is known to his many friends, still enjoys good health and makes his daily jaunts to the afternoon trains.

Pioneer Newsdealer

Mr. Davies entered the newspaper business here 43 years ago, which he continued until six years ago when he sold his business to Mr. Conger who later sold it to Milo Kremke.

Born in Wales he emigrated with his parents to America when a lad of ten years. His father entered the coal mining business in Pennsylvania—and Sam got a job sorting the slate from the coal.

Later the Davies family moved to Iowa where Sam's father homesteaded. In 1885 he came to Wayne and a year later entered the business which he conducted for 37 years, and at the time he retired was Wayne's pioneer business man.

He served as justice of peace for a time and although he successfully evaded Capt. Dale's best efforts he officially started a number of couples out on the sea of matrimony while serving in this capacity.

FIRST PIONEER WRITES EVENTS

Original Settler of Carroll Drove Herd of Sheep From Montana to Carroll.

ORGANIZER OF BAPTIST CHURCH

The original settler of the present townsite of Carroll and one of the influential charter members and founders of the Wayne Baptist church, William Bryce Jordan, who now lives in Oklahoma, recently completed an autobiography of his life which he mailed to Rev. A. C. Downing from which we have gathered the following which will be of interest to the old settlers of the county.

Jordan, according to the autobiography, was born in Ohio in 1850, and when a lad of 15 migrated to Atlantic, Iowa, where he lived until about 1880.

In the spring of 1880, he writes, "Without taking God into my council" started to Montana bent on entering the sheep business. Stopping with his wife and two little daughters for a visit at the home of his father-in-law near Battle Creek, Nebraska, he was induced to farm his homestead on the Elkhorn river. He put in a crop and then went west 200 miles, bought a flock of sheep and drove them to the Battle Creek farm.

Visits La Porte

The following year, not satisfied with the river farm, which was flooded during high waters, he drove to La Porte, then county seat of Wayne county, where he became acquainted with J. T. Bressler, Sr., who with a Mr. Patterson was operating Wayne county's first bank and dealing in land.

Jordan was referred to a quarter part of which adjoins the present townsite of Carroll, which suited him and which he bought through Bressler and Patterson from an eastern investment company. He also arranged to take two school quarters adjoining this land.

He then opened a trail from his farm to Battle Creek and moved his herd of sheep, equipment and family to his new farm.

He engaged the services of a herder to drive the herd the 40 miles across an unsettled country. They followed a swath which Jordan, cut with a mower and over which he hauled three loads of lumber for his first house. This was the original trail from Battle Creek to Carroll and became known as the Jordan trail.

Loses 1,000 Sheep

The following winter, the year he and others organized the Wayne Baptist church, he lost 1,000 head of his sheep and after experiencing a couple of years of reverses returned to Atlantic, Iowa.

Referring to his part in the organization of the church, he writes "I would not exchange that small amount of stock for all the sheep in Nebraska, or all the oil wells in Oklahoma."

According to the biography, Jordan for some forty years has been a traveling salesman and had lived in dozens of towns and cities of the middle west and southern states, principally in Texas and Oklahoma. During this time he has been active in the interests of Baptist churches wherever he had been stationed, according to the article.

WOODS PREDICTS GOLDEN AGE OF FARMER NEARING

Former Lincoln Man Forecasts Rosy Future for Tillers.

A "Golden Age" for agriculture was the forecast of Dr. A. F. Woods, director of the scientific activities of agriculture in Washington and former Lincoln man, in an interview with a United Press correspondent.

Predicting permanent solution of the "farm problem" within the next ten years, Dr. Woods, visualized agriculture as now passing thru a transition stage somewhat similar to that experienced by industry before the present day of large scale consolidation.

Science and the lawmaker have combined, Dr. Woods said, to relieve the farmer from the perils of plant pests, weather, surpluses and wasteful marketing methods. Prosperity will be brought to the farm, Dr. Woods believes, thru three chief agencies:

1. Further development of co-operative marketing corporations.
2. Improved methods of production.
3. Restriction of the amount of new land opened to farming.

Enactment of the administration farm relief bill, passed by the house will give "enormous impetus" to development of co-operative marketing agencies, Dr. Woods said. Such organizations now do an annual business of $2,500,000,000 but still wider growth is necessary if the benefits of co-operative marketing are to be shared by all farmers.

"More efficient methods of production go hand in hand with development of better distribution systems under the farmer's own control," he added. "We are changing over from growing a wide variety of scrub products to highly bred strains of crops for which there is always a demand."

"Improving business methods in handling farm products, development of the home-market together with the natural increase in population during the next ten years will bring back the golden age in agriculture. Now is the time to invest in farms."

Asked how the surplus problem would be removed, Dr. Woods said there always will be surpluses of farm crops to protect against famines but these will be carried at the expense of the consumer instead of the farmer as now done.

"It is not fair these surplus should depress the farmer's crop prices, but they should be carried at expense of the consumer by the government corporations to be provided for that purpose."

Prices of foodstuffs will not be raised, however, by the development of such corporation, Dr. Woods explained, because present wasteful marketing methods will be abolished.

Dr. Woods is a former Lincoln man and a brother of Mark, George and Frank Woods.

"400" STANDARD SIX SEDAN $980.00

Delivered, Fully Equipped, Nothing More to Buy!

WHEN a Nash "400" leaves the factory it has been furnished with all items of equipment, including chromium-nickel bumpers, front and rear, hydraulic shock absorbers, tire lock and tire cover. There is no extra charge made thereafter for these items.

So, when you see, in a motor car advertisement, a price quoted, and under it the words "All prices f. o. b. factory," you should make a mental note to ask the salesman for that car how much extra, over and above the f. o. b. price, it will cost you to have a fully equipped car such as the Nash "400."

Some dealers (not Nash dealers) charge up to $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Investigation will show you conclusively that the Nash way of building and selling a motor car saves you money. You will find cars of competitive makes actually costing considerably more than a Nash "400" when delivered, fully equipped, nothing more to buy!

CANADIAN WHEAT POOL

PLAN ADOPTED AT MEET

Hope to Have Organization Perfected to Handle Fall Crop.

Last week, Tuesday, at Lincoln, delegates representing wheat growers who have signed cooperative marketing agreements perfected their organization and adopted by-laws under the name of The Midwest Grain Marketing Association, which will be the district organization in the midwest to control and market wheat and grain under the Canadian Wheat Pool plan.

Mr. F. W. Raftson, secretary of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, addressed the meeting and is spending a week with the officers elected, and advising with them in setting up the organization and its departments. Former Governor Samuel R. McKelvie, who has been one of the leaders in this organization's development, and Mr. Andrew Kopeprud, Manager of the Intermediate Credit Bank of Omaha, which will finance the organization, also addressed the meeting. Mr. Ole Hanson, manager of the Orleans Cooperative Creamery, and Mr. T. L. Oldroyd, Commissioner of Agriculture of Wyoming, sent greetings and offers of cooperation. Mr. J. W. Brinton, Organization Director, who recently returned from Washington, made a report on the progress of the sign up and pending legislation before Congress, under which this new cooperative expects to operate.

Start Drive May 6th

Resolutions were passed calling upon every member, delegate and officer to get behind the final organization drive which will commence May 6th and continue until June 15th, the territory to be divided into districts and an intensive effort made of one week in each district.

Directors were elected who will make the necessary arrangements for handling the grain and who will take charge July 1st. Mr. J. M. McNally, vice-president of the Farmers Elevator at Bellwood, and Frank Malick, president of the Farmers Elevator at Barneston, were elected president and secretary, respectively, of the meeting.

Over 300 delegates were present, representing the wheat growing sections of Wyoming and Nebraska, and a delegation from Colorado was seated. Colorado may join.

A resolution was passed inviting the wheat growers of Colorado to join in the movement. This resolution expressed the hope of not only creating a dominant and large scale cooperative in the midwest, but that such an organization would also be created in the southwest and northwest, as well as in the Pacific northwest, and soft wheat central states, so that the stabilization corporation to be established by Congress may be operated and controlled by these five large district organizations, which, in turn, will be under the control of the local organizations in their respective territories.

The delegates represented over 14,000 members, producing 35% of the wheat in Nebraska and over 50% of the wheat in Wyoming.

DEFUNCT WAKEFIELD BANK WILL PAY DIVIDEND SOON

$176,000, 45% of Deposits to be Paid to Losers Soon.

Announcement is made that a first dividend of forty-five per cent will be paid soon to the creditors of the Farmers National Bank of Wakefield. The claims aggregated about $400,000.00 and the total amount to be distributed will be about $176,000.00.

The checks and schedules have been made up and sent to the Comptroller's office at Washington and when they are returned, duly signed by the Comptroller, the dividend will be paid. This will probably be in about two weeks and due notice will be given when the payments are ready for distribution.

The bank suspended business on November 20th, 1928, just a few days over five months ago, and in addition to the amount of the present dividend the Receiver has also paid off approximately $58,000.00 of secured indebtedness.

Those in charge state that there will be other substantial dividends paid in the future. Every effort will be made to make as large a realization for the creditors as possible the Receiver stated. He also stated that he is much pleased with the friendly spirit shown by the people of the community in assisting him to work out the affairs of the bank to the best advantage.

164 MORE NEW LAWS (World Herald)

The material for another compendious book of laws has now been provided by the recently adjourned forty-fifth session of the Nebraska legislature.

When the last compilation of the state statutes was made in 1922 it resulted in a book about six inches thick, one which it would take an ordinary person about a year, in spare time, to read from cover to cover.

Perhaps all this legislation is necessary, but we don't think so. Many people will differ with us, however; just how many may be indicated by recalling that for every law that was passed at the session just closed more than six bills were introduced.

Certainly, in any event, it is true that the Jewish people under Moses could know all about what the law is. But a Nebraska citizen might spend his time from now until death and he would still be ignorant of most of the statutes that govern his actions.

POWER BODY ACTIVITIES ARE EXPOSED AT HEARING

Has Financial Grip on Dozen Journals Hearing Reveals. Archibald R. Graustein, president of the International Power and Paper company, freely told of the inroads his company has made recently in the American newspaper field.

Reveals Holdings The newspaper holdings, as Graustein revealed them in writing and sworn testimony are: Ten thousand four hundred and twenty-eight shares of common stock in the Boston Herald and the Boston Traveler, acquired at a cost of approximately $5,380,000.

One million nine hundred and fifty-four notes and 400 shares of common stock of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle Corp., publishing the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, another unit in the Gannett chain which was described as comprising 17 newspapers.

A $300,000 "contingent interest" in Gannett's Ithaca Journal News.

Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars preferred stock and 5,000 shares common stock of the Chicago Daily News, representing 4.15 per cent and 1.25 per cent, respectively, of the outstanding stock of those classes.

One million dollars debentures and $600,000 preferred stock of Bryan-Thomson Newspapers, Inc., publishing the Chicago Journal, the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, and the Greensboro (N.C.) Record. These securities, with 10,000 shares common stock of the Chicago Journal, were bought for $1,600,000.

Eight hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars notes representing an "advance" to Harold Hall and William Lavarre, new owners of Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle, the Columbia (S.C.) Record and the Spartanburg (S.C.) Herald and Journal. This "advance," according to the testimony, is secured by all the stock of those papers.

OBSERVATIONS

However great our progress may have been in the last century, we are still sticking to antiquated systems of measurement. Our schools take weeks of every child's life to teach him how to convert inches into feet and rods, square feet into acres and sections, pints into quarts and barrels, ounces into pounds, and then he goes on wasting precious minutes every week for the rest of his life making calculations by the system taught him.

It is all absolutely unnecessary. The French metric system, based entirely on decimals, requires no effort to learn or to put in use. It is the system now used in all scientific work, and it not only saves a great deal of time, but eliminates an untold amount of error that the English system incurs.

Another system of measurement that should be dropped by our efficient twentieth century is our calendar, which as Merle Adams has pointed out, was rigged up in its present form to tickle the vanity of the Cassars. One hundred of the more progressive business firms of the country are now using a calendar of thirteen months of four weeks each, with a spare day at the end.

The only reason why we have not changed to the French system long ago is our reticence to break habits. We are used to the old ways of figuring, however unhandy they may be, and we do not take the trouble to change.

Augustus Caesar was the man who balled up our calendar, according to Seth L. Bush of Holyoke, Mass., who spoke before the Illinois Manufacturers' Cost association recently. Caesar wanted August, the month which honored him, to be as long as any other month, so he increased its length one day at the expense of February, from which he lopped off a day. This threw the quarterly periods out of balance. To readjust them he made changes in some of the last months of the year. Our present calendar is the result.

"And now, sir," thundered the lawyer, "tell the court what you were doing in the interim." "I didn't go in there," was the angry reply. "I stayed in the living room the whole evening."

SIoux CITY MARKET

(Furnished by Steele-Siman Com. Co.) Sioux City Stock Wards.—Increased receipts caused bearishness on all classes of live stock this week. Shipping demands were not very broad in and division and representatives of the big packers were given the opportunity to exert pressure.

Fat steers and yearlings were rather slow on the first two days of the week and the market eased off 15 to 25c on the average with some of the desirable grades holding steady. Local receipts were moderate but all buyers were in a bearish mood. The big end of the receipts went at the beef steer and yearling department.

A top of $14.40 was paid for three loads of choice steers weighing 1,103 pounds, on the second session, tying the highest price of the season. A few sales were made at $13.75 and $14.25 with bulk at $13.00 and $13.75 and plainer grades ranged down to $12.00 and under. Strong weight steers topped at $14.40 with the bulk downward from $14.50.

The heifer market held close to steady. Choice light weights sold at $14.00 with other sales ranging down to $12.00 and under.

Cows opened on a steady basis. Good and choice grades sold at $10.00 and $11.50 with a few koshers at $12 and better. Fair grades sold down to $8.75 and under. Bulk of the canners and cutters moved at $6.25 and $7.50.

Supplies ran light in the stocker and feeder department and sellers were able to clear on a steady basis. Bulk of the cattle brought $11.25 and $12.50 with a few to $13.00 and better. Choice light weight would sell up to $13.75, or so. Heifers sold from $11.75 down and cows from $8.75 down.

Hog receipts amounted to 256,000 at the 11 leading markets the first two days of the week, 61,700 more than on last Monday and Tuesday and an increase of 45,600 over the corresponding period a year ago.

Increased receipts forced the market sharply lower. The break started last Saturday and continued on Monday and Tuesday. Shippers insisted on sharp declines and the big packers were more insistent for further reductions.

On the second session, shippers paid $10.75 and $10.85 for a string of 180 to 250 pound butchers with lighter grades, down to $10.50. Packers offered $10.25 and $10.50 for hogs of all weights that were left for them. Sows sold from $10.00 down and stags at $9.50 and $10.00. Pigs topped at $10.75. The general hog market dropped 50c to $1.00, compared with last Friday.

Both ewes and lambs dropped 50c to $1.00 on the first two days. Woolled lambs were quoted to $15.75 and clipppers $15.00 with woolled ewes to $9.50 and clipppers at $8.50.

MUST THINK PEACE, SAYS SOUTH DAKOTA DEAN

To educate children from kindergarten up to think in terms of peace and not of war, was the plea of Mrs. Genevieve Griffith Turnipseed, dean of women at State Teachers college of Madison, South Dakota, in her talk following the A. A. U. W. banquet Friday evening, April 26, at Hotel Stratton attended by 26 A. A. U. W. members.

Dean Turnipseed, who has attended an international conference at Washington, claimed that people need to get in the habit of talking peace instead of war, and pointed out the general conditions that keep them from doing so. She gave the attitude and relationship of the different governmental departments toward military preparedness.

Another feature of the banquet was the vocal solos of Mrs. Laura Belle Johnson, head of music in the Wayne schools. The room was decorated with carnations.

A. B. CLARK CEDAR COUNTY LAND CLAIM IS RESISTED

Seeks to Collect $3,688 Damages Alleged Due to Negligence.

Attorneys of Cedar county were in supreme court last week defending the ruling of a district court in favor of the defendant in a suit in which Aaron B. Clark, Wayne, sought damages alleged to be the result of negligence in road construction near land which he owns in that county.

The plaintiff contends that due to improper road construction water during heavy rains floods his lands, and destroy his crops. The county claims that Clark's land is lower than Baker creek which did the flooding, and that in any event the damage was caused by a flood of such proportions that it can properly be listed as an act of God.

Clark's attorneys insisted that this defense cannot be raised where the results of an act of God can be foreseen, and that it is available only when it is the sole cause.

HARTINGTON YOUTH, GETS A SERVICE CERTIFICATE

Receives Paper Signed by Colonel Charles Lindberg.

Edgar Ewing, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Ewing of Hartington, has received a certificate acknowledging aerial service signed by Charles A. Lindberg and Harry E. Guggenheim, directors of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics. Charles A. Lindberg is honorary president of the fund.

The service which Edgar did to warrant the certificate was the erection of letters five foot in length, spelling Hartington, on the top of the Globe building. The letters lay flat on the Globe roof and, because of their size and color, can be seen from the clouds.

The certificate which Edgar received Saturday reads. This is to certify that Edgar Ewing has completed the work of identification for the service of aerial navigation thus contributing to the establishment of a nationwide system of transportation." R. B. Small of Coleridge who has a similar sign laid out on the top of his Ford Garage, has received a similar certificate.

FORMER SHERIFF OF CEDAR COUNTY HAS TRAGIC DEATH

Mystery Shrouds Fate of Man Twice Cedar County Sheriff.

With a bullet hole in his face the body of J. C. Rosenberger, two times sheriff of Cedar county, was found in his office in Sauk Center, Minnesota, where for several years he had been employed on the police force.

When Rosenberger, who served in Cedar county about 20 years ago and who was night policeman of Sauk Center, failed to return home in the morning his wife went to his office and found his body sprawled out on the floor.

The chief of police was called and following an exhaustive investigation it was decided that he was murdered. The bullet entered his face and plowed through the back of his head.

At first it was believed that he might have dropped his gun, which was lying on the floor near his body, and that it might have been discharged when it struck the floor and the stray bullet doing the damage, but this theory was exploded at the inquest.

ORGANIZED TO OPPOSE INCREASED FREIGHT RATE

Seven States Represented at Kansas City Meeting.

Kansas City.—Estimating that the revised freight rates on grain and grain products recommended to the interstate commerce commission would cost farmers in their states in the neighborhood of $13,000,000, representatives of seven middlewestern states at a conference here Friday, determined to take a strong stand against the proposed schedules.

Speakers asserted that suggested rate increases, included in the report recently submitted to the Interstate commerce commission by its examiners, were unjustified under the terms of the Hoch-Smith resolution of congress.

Gov. Clyde M. Reed of Kansas, who called the conference, declared that the added freight charges in Kansas probably would amount to $2,500,000 or $3,000,000.

North Dakota shippers would be forced to pay from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 in additional charges, J. A. Little, special counsel, representing the governor and the state railroad commission, said.

Minnesota rates would be increased at least $2,000,000, it was estimated by L. R. Bitney, statistician for the railroad, and warehouse commission. The increases would run from 25 to 40 percent, he said.

Gov. Arthur J. Weaver, who alone represented Nebraska, was told that the suggested rates would mean substantial increases in rates there. Mr. Little, who lives in Lincoln, told the governor "a patch work of increases and decreases" would result from the application of the new scale there.

J. H. Henderson, commerce counsel for the railroad commission of Iowa, estimated rates would be increased in Iowa from 20 to 25 percent.

THIRD ELECTION FAILS TO DECIDE BOND ISSUE

Rail Bond's Majority Offset by Blank Ballot.

The third special election held in Crofton to decide whether East township should issue bonds to the amount of $30,000 in the aid of the construction of the Yankton-Norfolk railroad was indecisive with 273 votes cast for the measure and 272 against it and one voter failing to mark his ballot.

The law states that a majority of the votes cast shall decide—which leaves room for argument, as only half the voters cast their ballot in favor of the measure.

The issue was defeated in two previous elections. Dowling township in the same county defeated a similar proposition two to one last Friday.

WAYNE STUDENTS WIN TWO FIRSTS

Ferne Wamberg and Harriet Craven Win to Give Wayne Third Place in State Contest.

Competing against over 200 contestants from 30 schools, Wayne high school tied for first in two events and won third place in the state commercial contest at Lexington last Saturday.

Ferne Wamberg tied with Robert Southard of South Omaha for first place in championship shorthand, each scoring 99½ per cent. And Harriet Craven, scoring 104 per cent in novice shorthand, tied with Leona Dommer of Norfolk. This gave Wayne third place in the meet.

Norfolk, with 23½ points, and breaking two state records, won the meet for the fourth time in five years and led Hastings, the nearest competitor, by 10 points. Hazel Reuhter set a new speed record in championship typing, with 86 words a minute; and LaVerne Mueller, in novice typing broke the record with 74 words a minute. Both are Norfolk students.

Wayne placed third in the meet, with 9 points, Franklin fourth with 8, South Omaha fifth with 7.

The Wayne students who competed were Esther Theis, Fern Wamberg, Harriet Craven, Jeanette Lewis, and Audrey Lewis. Miss Dorothy Cooley commercial teacher, accompanied them.

Wayne was not represented in the spelling and bookkeeping contests, which handicapped them somewhat in making a high score.

Ferne Wamberg won a first place in the state contest last year, in novice shorthand.

Book Chat

The latest acquisition of the Wayne public library is America's Interest in World Peace, a booklet by Irving Fisher, professor of economics in Yale University, which sums up very neatly America's relationship with the League of Nations and the World Court. To those of us who have been believing that the League of Nations was on its last legs, or that it was born without legs, this little book will be quite illuminating. It can be read at a sitting.

The author dedicates the booklet to Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson. Roosevelt, he says, contrary to the declarations of many of his followers, was in favor of some kind of a League of Nations. Roosevelt did not like Wilson well enough so that it is likely he could ever have been a warm advocate to his League. But he is not here to define his exact position, and there is room for discussion over this point.

Professor Fisher points out that in the first six years of its existence 56 nations joined the League, and that over four-fifths of the population of the world is now represented at its councils. The United States has for company in non-representation Turkey, Mexico, Russia, and a number of rather insignificant countries. It would seem that all that is needed to make the League an almost invulnerable force for world peace is the membership of the last great power.

According to Professor Fisher, the League has averted no less than seven wars, and has patched up a large number of disputes. But the League is not alone busy in averting wars.

It is engaged in numerous cooperative enterprises that help to bring the nations together and which will probably do more eventually to prevent war than arbitration. The League established the World Court. Following the war it extended a vast amount of help to refugees; through the League the traffic in drugs and white slaves has been cut down materially. When her government went to pieces it was the League that appointed a receiver for Austria and put her on her feet again financially.

Professor Fisher scoffs at the idea that war can not be abolished. The chief of civilization, he says, has been largely through the vanquishment of war. First war between individuals was abolished, then war between tribes and states. Now all we need is the final push to tip war over into the discard, by eliminating war between nations.

He finds absurd the position of those Americans who say the United States should go into some League and some World Court some day, but not the present ones. It's rather arrogant to ask the other nations to scrap something that is in good running order and doing the business in order to suit our own whims.

What is most significant as far as the United States is concerned, is the fact that we are now represented on nine League commissions and committees, and cooperating with the League in a large variety of ways. As Professor Fisher says, "We are already a back-door member of the League." And yet it was only a few years ago that the American government refused to recognize the League, even to the extent of answering its communications.

Once in a while there arises somebody who has such a broad understanding of things, and writes so remarkably well that people keep on reading what he has written, keep on laughing and weeping and thinking with him century after century. In the past there have been some great old writers who refuse to be covered with the dust of the past.

But to many of us who know but little of the times in which they lived or of the problems they faced, their writing are often heavy going, and rather unintelligible. People who would really like to enjoy some of the greater authors will find much help in books of criticism. I have found one of the best to be Much Loved Books, by James O'Donnell Bennett, published recently by Boni & Liverlight. It is a series of articles first written for the Chicago Tribune, and later collected into book form, and tells of a large variety of books, old and new that are still popular. He covers books or as wide a difference as The Travels of Marco Polo and Huckleberry Finn, Shakespeare's Hamlet and Mother Goose, Treasure Island and Arabian Nights, The Scarlet Letter and Gulliver's Travels. And he finds them all entralling, and paints the backgrounds on which they were built to make them more understandable to their readers. After reading this book the one finds new interest in the classics, and goes back to some of his favorites with greater zest. Much Loved Books is at the Wayne library.

THE MAY QUEEN'S FEAST

"You must wake and call me early, call me early,
Mother dear;
To-morrow'll be the happiest time of all the
glad New Year,—
Of all the glad New Year, mother the maddest, merriest day;
For I'm to be Queen o' the May, mother, I'm to be Queen of the May."

WANT you see her in her little starched, frilly frock, a garland of flowers on her dainty head and her clear eyes shining with delight? She'll hold court over all the little boys, and preside with great dignity from her improvised throne.

But if anyone says: "Tag, you're it!" Her Temporary Majesty is very apt to forget her queenly dignity and scamper rapidly across the lawn in pursuit of her tagger. And when she comes in breathless, her cheeks rosy and blooming, from a succession of such games, Her Majesty will certainly be in need of sustaining food. Here, then, is a menu to meet the occasion which will appeal to the Queen of the May and all her court:

Whole Fresh Strawberries Around Powdered Sugar Cone
Cream of Tomato and Liver Soup
Whole Wheat Crackers
Creamed Chicken and Peas on Tiny Baking Powder Biscuits
Currant Jelly
Asparagus Salad with Cheese Carrots
Water-Cress Sandwiches
Junket Ice Cream with Red Raspberries
Sugar Cookies Milk
Hard Candies

How to Make Them

Of course the sugar cookies, hard candies and currant jelly come in cans which keep them fresh until they're needed, and the first course consists of just an appetizer of a circle of strawberries with their stems on around a tiny cone of powder sugar, but you'll want to know how to prepare the rest of the dishes for this wholesome May Queen meal for children. So here goes:

Cream of Tomato and Liver Soup: Make a white sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour and one quart of milk. Simmer the contents of a number 2 can of tomatoes with a slice of onion for fifteen minutes, then press through a sieve. Add very slowly to the hot white sauce. Add one cup of finely chopped cooked liver, season with salt and pepper, and keep hot in a double boiler, but do not boil after combining. This recipe is supposed to make enough to serve eight, but remember that the children have been running and playing tag.

The Main Dishes

Creamed Chicken and Peas: Make a white sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, two cups of rich milk and the liquor from an eleven-ounce can of peas. Add a teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Then add the contents of a twelve-ounce can of boneless chicken, cut in small pieces, the peas and one teaspoon of lemon juice, heat in a double boiler and serve on tiny split baking powder biscuits. This recipe, too, is reputed to serve eight people.

Asparagus Salad with Cheese Carrots: Drain and chill one sixteen-ounce can of asparagus tips, and arrange in nests of shredded lettuce. Pour over them French Dressing made with lemon juice instead of vinegar and to which some finely minced pimiento has been added. Shape pimiento cheese (one jar of the soft kind) into tiny carrots, dust with paprika and insert a sprig of parsley for the carrot top. Use one or two as a garnish on each serving of salad. This recipe serves eight.

Then the Sweets

And now that the children have been still for a few minutes while they are eating, and have cooled off to some extent, you can give them their ice cream and cookies and hard candies as the final treat.

Junket Ice Cream with Red Raspberries: Scald together one quart of fresh milk, one cup of evaporated milk and three-fourths cup sugar, and then cool to luke warm. Add one tablespoon vanilla. Crush one and one-half junket tablets and dissolve in two tablespoons of cold water. Add to the luke warm mixture in the ice cream can and let stand until firm. Then freeze like any other ice cream. Scatter a few spoonfuls from a can of red raspberries over each portion and top with marshmallow cream. They say that this will serve eight, but have you ever noticed hungry children eating ice cream?

Cute in a Baby-Awful at Three - and it's Dangerous
by Ruth Brittain

Thumb sucking does look sweet in a baby, but it is disgusting in the three-year-old and sometimes it hangs on until fifteen or sixteen! The habit may cause an ill-formed mouth or induce adenoids and it always interferes with digestion. Pinning the sleeve over the hand; attaching mittens, or putting on cardboard cuffs, which prevent bending the arms at the elbows, are some of the ways to stop the habit.

Another bad habit—irregularity in bowel action—is responsible for weak bowels and constipation in babies. Give the tiny bowels an opportunity to act at regular periods each day. If they don't act at first, a little Fletcher's Castoria will soon regulate them. Every mother should keep a bottle of it handy to use in case of colic, cholera, diarrhoea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, loss of sleep, or when baby is cross and fussy. Its gentle influence over baby's system enables him to get full nourishment from his food, helps him gain, strengthens his bowels.
Castoria is purely vegetable and harmless—the recipe is on the wrapper. Physicians have prescribed it for over 80 years. With each package, you get a valuable book on Motherhood. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper so you'll get the genuine.

AUTOBUNKED

(Dayton News)

Senator Brookhart of Iowa listens to the Hoover proposals for agricultural relief and gives a loud cry of pain. This isn't the help the farmers need nor the help they had a right to expect of the president, says Senator Brookhart, noting that nothing in the president's plans offers anything to the producers of export surpluses. He makes it plain that he considers himself and the Iowa farmers, to have been double-crossed.

The Iowa farmers have been double-crossed all right, but by Senator Brookhart, not President Hoover. Nothing in the campaign speeches of Mr. Hoover indicated a willingness to go any farther for the farmers than his message to congress goes. But so anxious was Senator Brookhart to maintain his party regularity and at the same time justify himself to his farmers that he read into Mr. Hoover's declarations promises which were not there. In this effort he told his Iowa farmers that Mr. Hoover was the best friend they had ever had. The farmers took Brookhart's word for it and voted for Hoover. It wasn't Hoover that fooled them; it was Brookhart.

If Brookhart was bunked, it was himself did it. If the farmers were bunked, it was Brookhart and others like him who did it. Mr. Hoover took no special pains, it is true, to divest the farmers of the hopes of him which the Brookharts planted in their bosoms; but technically he is guiltless of the double-crossing which Senator Brookhart now charges against him. The situation is embarrassing to Brookhart, and he has not to indulge in smokescreen cries to divert the minds of his disillusioned constituents. More senators from the farmer country than Brookhart find themselves now in that same hole.

A Peach of a Time

HOW can you have a peach of a time better than with peaches? Zoological or botanical? Both. We presume that being a zoological product yourself, you know just how to deal with this species, so we're going to limit our suggestions strictly to how to deal with the kind that grows on trees. So here goes for a couple of recipes that may not be in your repertoire:

Peach Marbles: Soften two tablespoons gelatin in one-fourth cup cold water, then dissolve it in one-half cup boiling water. Add three tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons lemon juice, stir in the well-mashed contents of a No. 2½ can of peaches, and cool. As it begins to stiffen, beat occasionally with a Dover egg beater until light and fluffy. Add two stiffly beaten egg whites and let stand. When stiff and ready to serve, scoop out in little balls with a potato ball cutter or scoop out in small spoonfuls. Roll each one in shredded pecan nuts, and pile several on each individual plate. Garnish with whipped cream forced through a pastry tube. Serves eight.

A Shappy Dessert

Peach Whip: Drain juice from a No. 2½ can of peaches and measure. Add enough water to make two cups. Add three tablespoons sugar and one-half cup minute tapioca and cook in double boiler until the tapioca is transparent and clear. Add the sliced peaches and cook a few minutes more. Cool slightly, add one-fourth tablespoon vanilla, and fold in two stiffly egg whites. Serve very cold with creamy soft custard or with plain cream. Serves six.

DON'T suffer headaches, or any of those pains that Bayer Aspirin can end in a hurry! Physicians prescribe it, and approve its free use, for it does not affect the heart. Every druggist has it, but don't fail to ask the druggist for Bayer. And don't take any but the box that says Bayer, with the word genuine printed in red:

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocetylaceticate of Salicylic acid.

Baby Foods in Cans

THE Pure Food and Drugs Act is the United States Government's guarantee that foods processed in cans are pure and wholesome. After seeking the advice of eminent pediatricians, dietitians and domestic science experts, and subjecting their products to tests in the world famous laboratories of national institutions, the commercial processing of vegetables for babies has not only been allowed but also approved, under the stringent provisions of this act. This fact should go far to dispel any lurking fears of canned foods which still persists among a few people who are not abreast of the times. If foods can be canned that are not only fit for but beneficial to the delicate system of a little baby, canned foods will certainly agree with grown-ups.

For the normal baby vegetable dings should begin, according to leading pediatricians, at from six to eight months. But this is a question which you should not decide for yourself or on hearsay. Consult your doctor as to the best feeding schedule for the individual problem of your own particular and precious baby.

Consult Your Doctor

It is permissible, however, to ask him whether the many tedious tedious hours spent in cleaning, cooking and straining vegetables for your baby cannot be avoided by the use of specially prepared strained vegetable products in cans. He will tell you that the manner in which they are processed effects a greater conservation of the rich mineral salts and vitamin elements than is possible when the same vegetables are cooked in the presence of oxygen in open vessels.

MAGGIE AND JIGGS

The following poem appeared in the "Grit" a Pennsylvania weekly newspaper of which A. E. Bressler has been a regular subscriber for forty years. It was contributed by a Pennsylvanian, spending the winter in Florida.

St. Peter stood at the golden gate,
With a solemn mien and air sedate,
When up to the top of the golden stair
Maggie and Jiggs, ascending there, Applied for admission. They came and stood
Before St. Peter, so great and good,
In hope the City of Peace to win,
And asked St. Peter to let them in.

Maggie was full and dark and thin,
With a scraggly beardlet on her chin;
Jiggs was short and thick and stout,
And his stomach was built so it rounded out.
His face was pleasant, and all the while
He wore a kindly and pleasant smile,
The choir in the distance, the echoes woke,
And Jiggs kept still while Maggie spoke.

"Oh, thou who guardest the gate,"
said she,
"We two came hither beseeching thee
To let us enter the heavenly land,
And play our harps with the angel band.
Of me, St. Peter, there is no doubt—
There's nothing from heaven to bar me out.
I've been to meeting three times a week,
And almost always I'd rise and speak.

I've told the sinners about the day
When they'd repent of their evil way,
I've told my neighbors—I've told 'em
all
'Bout Adam and Eve and the primal
fall.
I've shown them what they'd have to do
If they passed in with the chosen few;
I've marked their path of duty clear,
Laid out the plan for their whole career.

"I've talked to 'em loud and long,
For my lungs are good and my voice
is strong,
So, good St. Peter, you'll clearly see
The gate of heaven is open to me.
But Jiggs, here, I regret to say,
Hasn't walked in exactly the narrow way—
He smokes and swears, and grave
faults he's got,
So I don't know whether he'll pass or not.

"He never would pray with an earnest
whim,
Go to revival, or sing a hymn."
While I the sins of my neighbors bore
He gadded about with Dinty Moore—
He made a practice of staying out late
But when at last he did come home,
The rolling pin went straight to his dome.

"I know him, St. Peter, know him
well,
To escape from me he'd go to hell,
But, St. Peter, I need him here,

And hope you can see your way clear.
On earth I bore a heavy cross;
Give me in heaven still Jiggs to boss.
I've brought my rolling pin, plates,
and jars,
To keep him busy dodging the stars.
"But say, St. Peter, it seems to me
This gate isn't kept as it ought to be.
You ought to stand right by the opening here,
And never sit down on that easy chair
And, say, I don't like the way your whiskers are trimmed—
They're cut too wide with an outwar'
toss;
They'd look better narrow and straight across."

St. Peter sat quietly and stroked his staff;
But in spite of his office he had to laugh.
Then he said, with a fiery gleam in his eye,
"Who's tending this gate, Maggie—
you or I?"
Then he rose in his stature tall,
And pressed a button on the wall,
And said to the imp who answered the bell,
"Escort this female around to hell."

Slowly Jiggs turned, by habit bent,
To follow wherever Maggie went.
St. Peter, standing on duty there,
Saw that the top of his head was bare
He called the "old block" back and said:
"Jiggs, how long has thou been wed?"
"Thirty years" (with a heavy sigh),
Then he thoughtfully said, "Why?"

St. Peter was silent, with head bent down;
He raised his hand and scratched his crown.
As the choir in the distance the echoes woke
Slowly, half to himself, he spoke:
"Thirty years with that woman there!
No wonder the man hasn't any hair!
Swearing is wicked, smoking's not good.
He smoked and swore—I should think he would.

"Thirty years with that tongue so sharp—
Ho! Angel Gabriel, give him a harp!
A jeweled harp with a golden string.
Good sir, pass in where the angels sing.
And Gabriel, give him a seat alone,
One with a cushion up near the throne
Call up some angels to play their best,
For Jiggs has certainly earned a rest.

"See that on finest ambrosia he feeds—
He's had about all the hell he needs;
It isn't hardly the thing to do,
To roast him on earth and in the future, too."
They gave him a harp with golden string,
And Jiggs, looking down from his
high level,
Thought of Maggie and felt sorry for the devil.

A man's heart deviseth his way;
but the Lord directeth his steps.

Protect Flocks From Parasites

Worms Causing Greatly Increased Losses to the Poultry Industry.

The recent studies of parasitologists of the United States Department of Agriculture are of scientific interest and of practical value to poultry owners. Referring to a 10 per cent decline in the chickens of the 1923 hatch compared with that of the previous year, Dr. Eloise E. Cram, of the bureau of animal industry, raises these questions: Why this decrease in 1923? Was it due to casualties caused by accidents and disease, or the closing out of flocks, or the cutting down of their size by poultry raisers, and, if the latter, why this closing out or cutting down? Were diseases, and especially parasitic diseases, an important item?

Serious Inroads of Parasites.
In answer to these questions, Doctor Cram cites evidence showing that parasites have been making more serious inroads on the poultry industry of the country than is commonly realized, though losses are sometimes difficult to explain until scientific observations are made. "In general," says Doctor Cram, "the worm parasites of poultry seem to be causing greatly increased losses to the industry."

"A poultryman in Washington, D. C., for instance, lost 75 per cent of several hundred chicks from gapes. Investigation showed that this loss resulted from the use of one of the poultryman's fields, for about 24 hours, as a resting place for a flock of turkeys being driven overland. The chickens became infested by gapeworms left by the turkey flock. In addition to producing the noticeable symptoms of gapping, by obstructing the windpipe, gapeworms also weaken their victims by sucking blood.

"Tapeworms have been named as the cause of death of 50 per cent of the chickens in some Maryland flocks. There have been correspondingly heavy losses of domestic geese in Oregon from a closely related parasite. In addition to causing death, tapeworms bring about emaciation, reduced egg production, and more or less complete paralysis.

Worms Kill Turkeys.
"Slender, threadlike worms in the crops of turkeys were found to have caused the death of three-fourths of the birds in a flock of 200, and the survivors were scarcely worth marketing. The gizzard worm, one of a general class of roundworms, is also serious because it attacks the walls of the gizzard and interferes with the food grinding function."

"Control measures to check inroads of parasites on poultry flocks," says Doctor Cram, "consist largely in sanitary equipment and management of flocks in such a way that the life cycle of parasites is broken so that infection cannot get back to the fowls. Prompt disposal of droppings from poultry houses, plowing up or scraping off the top soil of chicken yards, the use of a rotation system of yards, the judicious use of disinfectants, and providing sanitary feed and water containers, are among some of the practical means of prevention.

"Even though poultry raising has been highly successful, it is unwise to relax precautions against parasitic foes of poultry. By increased attention and knowledge, the ravages of parasite enemies may be checked and poultry given a better chance.

Thistles Routed by Use of Alfalfa Crop

Prepare Early for Treatment of Infested Fields.

"For Canada thistles use alfalfa." This is the prescription of A. L. Stone, state weed commissioner for Wisconsin, and the medicine even when taken in large doses is not hard to take.

For besides destroying the thistles, a good crop of rich forage is produced. But soil and other conditions must be right if alfalfa is to thrive and the Canada thistles must be partly subdued before the alfalfa seed is sown, according to Stone.

"Now is the time to begin work on Canada thistle-infested grain fields where alfalfa is to be produced next year," advises Stone. "Plow as soon as the grain crop is removed and turn the soil deep enough to bring the running roots up to the surface. Then with a spring tooth harrow the roots will be pulled to the surface where they can be dried and killed by sun and wind. The field should be kept cultivated until the ground freezes, in an effort to keep the plants from forming stems.

"Next spring the field may be plowed again a little deeper than the first time, and lime should be added if necessary," recommends Stone. "The first week in June alfalfa seed may be sown at the rate of 20 pounds per acre without a nurse crop. Within two or three years the Canada thistles will be destroyed and in their place will be a fine stand of alfalfa."

Poster on Scabies Is Issued by Government

To aid in the suppression of the serious contagious diseases variously known as scabies, scab, and mange, the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, has issued a poster on the subject. Enlarged illustrations of scab mites show the various forms which attack sheep, swine and horses. The poster shows also a typical advanced case of a scabby sheep and likewise a calf affected with scabies.

Urging stock owners to isolate and report suspected cases to the nearest veterinarian, the poster explains that the disease can be eradicated by dipping in lime sulphur or nicotine solution. At least two dippings, 10 to 12 days apart, of all infected and exposed animals are necessary for a cure. Though the interstate movement of live stock affected with scabies is prohibited by federal laws, there is still an opportunity for stock owners to co-operate with veterinary officials in suppressing local outbreaks promptly.

Copies of the poster may be obtained upon request by persons interested in furthering the suppression of the disease. Write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Alfalfa Does Not Thrive With Too Much Water

There is an old tradition among farmers of experience to the effect that alfalfa will not grow well with wet feet. If the land lies approximately level with the river it is probable that the water stands rather high in the soil at all times. There should be four or five feet between the surface and the ground water level if alfalfa is to make any kind of satisfactory growth.

Neither does alfalfa stand much overflowing. If water was to stand on an alfalfa field for several days to a week it probably would cause some damage. This land would be better suited to timothy, red top and alsike clover and to some of the tilled crops than to a permanent stand of alfalfa. Should you find, however, that the water level is low in the land it may be that the alfalfa will grow satisfactorily.

Many Varieties of Tree Fruits Must Have Bees

Bees may not have grown bigger and better but they have been given another task to perform in orchards and small fruit plantations, according to statements made by specialists in agriculture at Michigan State college.

Studies made during the past few years have proved that many varieties of tree fruits will not produce a profitable crop unless insects have free access to the trees at blossoming time, and, in many cases, there are not enough insects under natural conditions to insure a full set of fruit. Tests made at the M. S. C. South Haven station show that a larger crop of raspberries was secured from plants to which insects had access than from plants over which cages were placed to exclude insects.

Cause of Failure With Stand of Clover Crop

Not the least important factor in obtaining satisfactory stands of clover is the sowing of good seed. A farmer might use ground limestone to correct acidity of his soil and apply manure and phosphate to insure a growth of clover, yet get a poor stand of clover due to poor seed.

Out of 218 samples of red clover seed tested the past year at one experimental station, 70 samples showed an average of 27 per cent seed so hard that they will not grow. This means that if seed of this sort were sown at the usual rate only three-fourths of a stand would result if all of it escaped the usual clover hazards.

Vast Wealth Amassed by Old Time Monarchs

Among those in ancient times who could afford to turn over and take another nap in the morning, one of the wealthiest was Rameses III, according to a writer in the Detroit News. This Egyptian pharaoh some 3,000 years ago was dazzling the known world with his treasures. Diodorus estimated Rameses' wealth at about 400,000 talents, equivalent to the purchasing power of $10,000,000,000. Croesus, the best-known of all rich men, probably was not quite as wealthy as Rameses, but he was able to give the equivalent of $200,000,000 to the Delphic Oracle as a bid for victory against the Persians. And, be it added, took his defeat like a man. Croesus had a relative, Pythius, who handed Xerxes $24,000,000 one day as a token of his esteem and when Xerxes hesitated, assured him that it was a mere trifle to what he had on hand. Considering that the money would have to be multiplied by 20 to realize its purchasing power today, that was one of the largest gifts ever made.

Solomon's income was equal to $20,000,000 a year. Sardanapollus, Nero, Lucullus, the queen of Sheba and Cleopatra, if alive today, would be respected by some of our richest nabobs. Then there was William de la Pole, who, in the Fourteenth century, loaned his king $5,000,000 to tide over a royal embarrassment—and never got it back.

Had Not Really Done Much to Relieve Him

"Have you given him anything or done anything to relieve him?" asked the young doctor, who had fared far into the backwoods to see a patient in the dead of a stormy night.

"Well, no, doc—that is to say, nothing to speak of," said the wife of the patient. "I had him soak his feet in almost billin' water with a lot of mustard in it, an' I clapped a red-hot plaster on his back, an' another one on his chest, an' I've put a couple of blisters I had in the house under his arms, an' a bag o' cracked ice on the back of his neck, an' had him drink a pint o' ginger tea jes' as hot as he could swallow it, an' I foltered that with some yarb bitters one of the neighbors sent over, an' I had him take five or six pills out of a box I got one day from a man that come along with medicine to sell, an' he's had three or four spoons o' Quakem's pain-killer an' one o' these sideltz powders, but I didn't feel like as if I ort to give him much o' anything, or try to do much for him, until you come an' see what you think ailed him."—Credit Lost.

Chemistry Popular

More persons are engaged in the pursuit of chemistry than in any other science. There are approximately 22,000 chemists and assistants in the United States. The teaching of chemistry in colleges and universities, in medical and other professional schools, requires a large number of the most highly trained specialists in the field. In many university departments important research is carried on. Industries for the manufacture of chemical products, foodstuffs, gases, leather, metals, paints, petroleum, photographic materials, rubber, soap, textiles and other products maintain laboratories for the control of production, for development and for research, in which chemists are employed as analysts, research workers, department heads and chemical engineers.

Swedish Superstition

One of the strangest superstitious is that believed by some in Sweden that when a man dies after having been a faithful husband his shirt goes to heaven with him. If the wife dies first and the widower is married again he must destroy his first shirt on the eve of his second wedding. Disregarding the assumption that there is no good reason why a shirt that has given long and faithful service should not be permitted to accompany its master to eternal reward, the origin of this superstition probably is to be found in the Viking burial custom that called for the warrior's incensement in his best battle clothes, for it was assumed that he would need them—even in Valhalla.

The Last Fence

At last the vicar had found time to accept an invitation to dinner from a wealthy parishoner. As a special treat the host's little son had been allowed to stay up late and was seated at the table. After holding back his ready flow of conversation and curiosity for the greater part of the evening, the little boy shattered a sudden silence with a voice like a cold chisel. "Mr. Snookes," he began, while the family waited for the bombshell they felt sure was coming—"Mr. Snookes, did you take up the church 'cos you weren't any good at anything else?"—London Answers.

His Pound of Flesh

It was Thursday and Wilkins was "broke" and hungry. Haunting outside a butcher's shop, he gazed wistfully at the display of chops and sirloins in the window. Plucking up his courage, he entered. "If I leave a security equal to what I take away, will you trust me till tomorrow?" he asked. "Certainly," replied the butcher. "Well, give me a couple of those joints and keep one of them till I come back."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

FAIRIES' PARTY

"Let the ball commence," said Fairy Queen as she waved her wand. From far and near the Fairies, Elves, Brownies and Gnomes all came hurrying. "The ball! The ball! The afternoon ball!" they shouted, for it had been decided to have the party right away, and to call it a snow-time ball. Soon the dancing commenced. Mr. Sun shone through the heavy snow-covered trees which glistened like diamonds.

In some places it looked as though gems of different colors were sparkling. That was the work of the Shadows who were being helped by Mr. Sun. "You see," said Mr. Sun—and he could continue what he was going to say, all the Fairies, Elves, Brownies, Gnomes, had shrieked out: "Of course we see. You make us see! You're bright enough for whole world to see."

"But no one can look right at you. You're entirely too bright for that!" "I know you can see!" said Sun. "I wanted to go on with a whole sentence, but you stopped me." "Continue," they said. "I was going to say," continued Sun, "that I wanted you especially to see that the afternoon was a very fine one for a ball." "It's quite the best time, and to prove it to you I'll give a fine ball."

"Ah, this is My Time of the Dance between my Rays and Shadows." "Gorgeous!" shouted the Fairies. Then the Shadows and the Sun's Rays danced together. In and out of the trees they danced while the snow sparkled and looked as if it were dancing too! As the Shadows were dancing with the Sun's Rays the sound of music was heard:

Let us sing as we go,
It's the Sun and the Snow,
As you see at a glance—
Making in dance.

"What are those voices?" asked the Fairies. "Those," said the Fairy Queen, "are the make-believe voices of the Shadows." "No one can hear them but the Fairies and little people of the woods." "They're singing especially for our ball." Then they sang some more:

It's this time of day
When we are so gay,
Ah! 'Tis Night-Hill
It's her time as well.

The Fairy Princess Twilight had laughed her wonderful musical slivers laugh, and said: "Ah, this is my time of the day, when there are shadows and wonderful colors." As she was speaking, the Sun began to grow very bright.

"I'm going to bed now," he said, "but on my way to bed I shall give an illustrated lecture as an ending to the party." "Whatever do you mean?" they asked. "I shall talk to you," he said, "and all the time I shall change the colors about me. The sky will be red, pink, blue, and there shall be purple clouds, too! It will be what the grown-ups will call a marvelous sunset, but you'll know it's an illustrated lecture, with different colors instead of different pictures."

What is it?
My first is in half but it isn't in fact,
My second's in poking but it isn't a pull;
My third's in a calf but it isn't in bull,
My fourth is in cricket but isn't in ball,
My fifth's in a blazer but not in a hat,
My sixth is in pussy but not in a cat,
My whole is a game which we all enjoy
When winter's upon us—man, woman,
girl, boy.
Answer—Hokey.

Would Wrinkle Him

Jack aged three, came crying to his mother, complaining that Bobbie had wrinkle him.

When his mother said, "Don't be a cry baby," he stopped, traced his little legs, and said, "Let me go—I'm going out and wrinkle him all up."

Father Says It

"Father, I want your advice."
"No, son, it isn't my advice you want. It's my indorsement of something foolish you've already decided to do."

Some of the headstones were broken when the Legionnaires took over the care of the place. A resident of the La Porte vicinity wrote the accompanying poem which is based upon La Porte cemetery.

The Wall From A Neglected Grave. My stalwart sons have passed since me, Their mother, they laid here. Gone, too, my daughters and their babes Who wept beside my bier.

They were not laid here by my side Where sleeps the pioneer. Instead, they rest in close-cropped plots Where shrubs and flowers appear.

My broken slab's most buried now 'Neath weeds, where coyotes roam. The sunken graves of pioneers Provide for them a home.

What of our years of sacrifice, Of loneliness and toil, When we left friends and ease behind To wrestle with this soil?

Our struggles earned your peaceful homes We meant it should be so. I plead our graves may cherished be Since death has laid us low.

STANTON CIVIL WAR VET TELLS OF PIONEER DAYS

Relates Experiences of Civil War and Early Life. A civil war veteran and Nebraska pioneer, A. C. Chamberlain of Stanton recently celebrated his 88th birthday at which time he told some of his many experiences of the war and the years following, which appeared in the Stanton county Register. Parts of the article follow:

Was Born in Ohio. This 88-year old gentleman with myriads of experiences was born at Wheelersburg, Selata county, Ohio, October 11, 1841.

In March, 1857 he migrated to Iowa with his parents, arriving at Cambridge April 24th, just 72 years ago. The trip, made in a covered wagon, required 7 weeks. Arriving in their new home they found 7 buildings in the town and corn selling at $2.00 per bushel. Potatoes were selling at $3 per bushel and wheat at $1.00.

In the fall after a crop had been produced, dressed pork was worth $1.50 per 100 pounds with no sale for corn or potatoes. In 1872 he came to Nebraska.

August 11th, 1862 Mr. Chamberlain enlisted in the Union army at Des Moines, Iowa, joining the 23rd Iowa volunteer infantry. His regiment opened the siege of Vicksburg May 1st, 1863 at 1 o'clock in the morning. May 17 of the same year he was wounded at Black River Bridge, Mississippi and was discharged July 31st, 1863.

Army Life Described

"I enlisted at Des Moines, August 11, 1862. We built the barracks there immediately and after a month's training, started for the front. Half of the regiment went by stage and the other half by foot. We detoured in a rain storm with many of our men coming down with the measles. During encampment at Patterson, Missouri, we lost a good many men, our Colonel being one, and Billy Sunday, father of the famous evangelist, being another. On October 5, 1862 we started on a scout with five hundred men and two pieces of artillery. On the twenty-seventh we caught the enemy vidette of fourteen men about sun down, one escaping. He returned to camp and reported Steel coming with forty thousand men. About 11 o'clock that night we started and reached their camp just in the grey of morn when we fired a few shots into their 7,000. They retreated not stopping to count us. We then continued on as far as Little Rock, Arkansas from where we returned to Camp Patterson with sixty prisoners and several horses.

Sailed on Mayflower

On the 11th of March we embarked at Girarda, Missouri, aboard the Mayflower which was ten days making the trip to Millikens Bend, Louisiana. We sent a fake gunboat, made out of a barge and some flour barrels, down the river, which withstood their carnage, the entire distance of their batteries (about thirty miles.) Then came the running of the batteries of our transports and gunboats. One transport came thru in a sinking condition. We then marched on the west side of the river through Louisiana to Grand Gulf, where the "Iron Clads" engaged in the battle of Grand Gulf, but failed to reduce the fort. Two of our gunboats were crippled in the engagement. On the following night we marched past the fort and our boats ran the batteries again. We then embarked again for down the river, landing at Hard Times Landing about sundown, April 30. One o'clock the first day of May, 1863, the enemy opened the Siege of Vicksburg, having posted their batteries so as to catch us at a certain point, a picket fired the signal shot for them to commence action. We were between two lines of rail fence and they made the rails play music over our backs while we were hugging the earth. The next morning about eight o'clock we entered into an argument with them. They became disgusted and moved on, we followed them. This very battle gave U. S. Grant the name of being the greatest general of the age. He entered between two armies greater than his own, driving Johnston back across the Pearl river at Jackson. The next day, May 16, we came into contact with Pemberton's army in an engagement that lasted all day. We drove him back to Black River where we charged the works the following day. We lost our Colonel, several officers and many men. The last Confederate volley fired before retreating gave me three wounds which ended my fighting. The Union army moved across Black River and about faced to meet Johnston who was following. For several days, wounded, I laid under a tree between two lines, while the flies were blowing me and their larva were eating me. My only food during this time was rice without seasoning. I was finally moved to Millikens Bend where I lay convalescing for two and a half months.
