F. S. BERRY DEFENDS LAW ENFORCEMENT

Increase in Crimes Due to Rapid Changes in Living Conditions Speaker Believes.

188 IN GRADUATING CLASSES

"It is time that someone said something about the extent to which law is being enforced", declared Fred S. Berry in his address, The Base of the Triangle, at the 19th annual commencement held in the college auditorium of Wayne State Teachers college at 10:30 Wednesday morning. It is Mr. Berry's belief that the stories of American lawlessness are being overdone, and that it is time to give publicity to the fact that most criminals are brought to justice.

In Nebraska, the speaker pointed out, 85 percent of all guilty persons arrested for crime are convicted and punished. Mr. Berry said that he had checked over the records in Douglas county for one year and had found that out of 295 criminal cases in the District court there were 278 convictions and but 17 acquittals. "If you choose the wrong course you haven't one chance out of a hundred of escaping disgrace and punishment", he declared.

According to Mr. Berry, one of the chief reasons for the large crime increase the last few years has been what he called the most rapid change known to history, the change in the United States from an agricultural to an industrial and urban nation. "We have not yet adjusted ourselves to this new, fast-living life," he said.

The speaker likened government and the administration of justice to a triangle, with the people as the base, where lies the final solution of all governmental problems. "You will never have satisfactory enforcement of law in this country until the conscience and morals of the people is raised to a point somewhere near the standard of laws which we are trying to enforce," he said. "There is no mandate courts can send out to force a people to obey the Ten Commandments or respect the philosophy of the Sermon on the Mount."

Fifty-three graduates received A. B. degrees and 135 were presented with two-year diplomas at the exercises Wednesday morning. Dr. U. S. Conn presented the degrees and diplomas.

A college string trio with flute, Prof. W. C. Hunter, violin, Margaret Abern, cello, Marion Jo Theobald, flute, and Marion Abern at the piano, played two numbers, Andante Cantabile, and Barcarolle. The college orchestral club played the processionals. The invocation was given by Rev. A. C. Downing and the benediction by Rev. W. C. Heidenreich.

Coe College President Addresses Graduates

Makes Plea for a Stronger Spirit of Internationalism.

It is only in the recognition of the inherent worth of all individuals, and allowance for the inherent, ultimate differences between individuals that society may be properly organized, said Dr. Harry M. Gage, president of the college in his Baccalaureate address. The World and the Individual, Sunday evening at the college auditorium. And it is only in this recognition of the worth of each race and allowance for the differences between races that world solidarity and brotherhood may be obtained, he declared.

According to Dr. Gage, each nation has something of its own to contribute, which the rest of the world cannot well do without. He asked why it was that people were afraid of internationalism, and pointed out that as intercollegiate athletics promote a stronger college spirit, so a proper internationalism should promote a stronger national patriotism. Dr. U. S. Conn introduced the speaker. Other features of the impressive services were vocal solos by Prof. W. Irving Horn and Martha Markytan, and two numbers by the college choir.

At the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening it was voted to buy a motor cycle for the use of the Wayne police department, to aid them in putting a curb on speedsters in the city. The city clerk was instructed to purchase one. As yet he has not determined what make he will buy.

The council decided on a 20 percent reduction in power rates in the city to take effect with the June bills. It was voted to place school signs on the road past the college to slow up passing motorists.

Legion to Run Band

According to the decision of an investigation committee of representatives of the city council, school board, American Legion, which was presented to the council at this time the American Legion will continue to manage the Wayne band along the same plans as in the past.

This committee, which met at the request of the council, following the dispute raised recently, voted to request the American Legion to continue in the capacity of managing the band and it is believed that few changes will be made in the plans in force during the past four years, which were referred to as most satisfactory.

SIXTY-SEVEN VETS BURIED HERE

The ranks of Wayne county Civil war veterans have been reduced from near a hundred to only five according to H. P. Williams, commander of the Wayne G. A. R. post and one of the two surviving veterans living in Wayne. Mr. Williams and Jack Hyatt are the only members of the local post now living in the county.

The five veterans now living in the county include R. P. Williams and A. J. Hyatt of Wayne, W. C. Lowry of Winside, U. H. Groath of Carroll and Cyril Templin of Hoskins.

Both of the local veterans are in very good health for their years and will take part in the memorial day services tomorrow. A. J. Hyatt has for several years called the Civil war veterans roll of honor, and reads the long list of 52 names without glasses, although he is past 83 years old and has lost the use of one of his eyes.

The services will be held at the Gay theatre beginning at 10 o'clock when special music will be given by the Wayne Legion-Municipal band and a quartet. Newell Pollard will read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, I. H. Brittell will give the address of the day. Rev. Fenton C. Jones will read the benediction.

OPENING CONCERT BY BAND THURSDAY

Opening Concert of Weekly Programs Will Be Given at Bressler Park This Week.

MUCH BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

The Wayne band will make their initial appearance in the weekly programs at the Bressler Park Thursday evening, when what is said to be the best band ever to appear here will open their regular schedule of weekly concerts, to which the public is cordially invited.

The band this year is composed of about forty pieces, and is said to be by far the best it has been at anytime since its organization nearly four years ago. Many of the members have developed into very proficient players, during that time, and the organization is now beginning to resemble a professional band and the concerts, it is believed, will be far better than those given during the past three summers, which were considered very good and were appreciated by the hundreds of listeners every week.

The band will gladly comply with requests for any special numbers, that listeners might like to hear, at the weekly programs and anyone wishing to hear certain numbers may turn in their requests to Mr. Reed, the band director, at the concerts or at any other time during the week. The program will appear in the Democrat from week to week.

The annual physical education pageant, entitled "The Hidden Necklace" this year, and directed by Miss Esther P. Dewitz, physical education head, was held Tuesday afternoon in the Wayne State Teachers college gymnasium, and was well attended by the people of the community. The Hidden Necklace, an old-fashioned fairy tale, was written by Miss Dewitz herself.

The children's chorus was directed by Prof. Irving W. Horn, the orchestra by Prof. W. C. Hunter, both of the music department, and the kindergarten children were directed by Miss Alwino W. Luers, kindergarten teacher. Accompanists were Marie Denkinger and Martha Markytan.

Over 200 training school and college girls took part in the pageant. The costuming was elaborate. Some of the leading character parts of the pageant were: Esther Black, King Denys, father of the princess; Elsie Malzacher, Princess Rosiere; Evelyn Glenn, Prince Cecil; Helen Berg, Prince Cyril; Inez Armstrong, Prince Constant; Genevieve Wright, Mother Goose; Pearl Tedy, Mother Hubbard; and Constance Owens, Bo Peep.

FELLOWSHIP FLAGS PRESENTED TO CLUB

Two Living Civil War Vets are Guests of Kiwanians at Memorial Day Program.

JACK HYATT SINGS "SO-LOW"

An American flag and a Canadian flag now hang side-by-side, a symbol of international fellowship, in the Kiwanis club room. At the patriotic meeting Monday noon in honor of the Civil War veterans, O. R. Bowen, acting for Ernest C. Folsom, district governor of the Kiwanis, presented the flags to the local club. President William Beckenhauer accepted the flags for the club.

R. P. Williams and Jack Hyatt, the two remaining Civil War veterans at Wayne, were guests of the Kiwanis, as is the custom at the annual patriotic program. Jack Hyatt sang as a solo, Marching Through Georgia, for the Kiwanians.

H. W. Siman, Wayne lawyer, paid a strong tribute to the old soldiers in his talk which was a resume of American history, past, present, and future. Mr. Siman pointed out that the qualities which had animated the soldiers in the Civil War were the qualities which had been the making of America.

Inez Armstrong gave a reading "Old Glory". The club sang several patriotic songs during the meeting.

CHILD IS DROWNED IN A WATER TANK

Wayne Firemen Called to Wisner Home in Puddle Attempt to Save Life With Pulmotor.

Wayne firemen were unsuccessful in their attempt to save the life of "Buddy" Reece, the one and one-half year old son of William Reece of Wisner, who was drowned in a water tank Monday evening.

The lad was said to have been submerged in the water not more than ten or fifteen minutes and the Wayne firemen were called because of having the only pulmotor in this territory, but arrived too late to revive the child although they worked nearly two hours in an attempt to restore life.

Martin Ringer, Wayne fire chief, L. W. Vath and Dr. T. T. Jones left here about 8:30 Monday evening, as soon as they were called to the Reece home on the highway about half way between Pilger and Wisner.

It is believed that if it had been possible to begin action with the pulmotor as soon as the child was taken out of the tank his life might have been saved, but the delay in time because of having to drive about twenty miles made the attempt almost out of the question, it is thought.

LOCAL MASONS TO ATTEND GRAND LODGE MEETING

Among members of the local Masonic lodge who are planning to attend the meeting of the Grand lodge in Omaha next week are: Walter Bressler, master of the Wayne lodge; J. G. Mines, C. T. Ingham. H. S. GRADUATES GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Life Is Mortgaged to Society for Their Education Speaker Tells Large Class.

SUPT. HOOK COMMENDS FACULTY

The 42 members of the class of 1929 were graduated at the Methodist church last Friday evening. In the history of the school there has been but one class larger and one class to equal it in size. Rev. C. E. Sawyer, pastor of the First Unitarian church of Sioux City, gave the commencement address, "Mortgages." The presentation of the diplomas was by C. E. Carhart, president of the school board. Mrs. Allis N. Pollard awarded the honors to the class. The room was decorated with white flowers.

It was a serious occasion. Only during the singing of the senior class songs after the diplomas had been given out did some of the faces of the seniors relax into smiles.

Dorothy Davis Valedictorian

Dorothy Davis, with an average of 92.1-38 percent during her four years of high school work, received the highest honors of the senior class and the scholarship from the four state normal colleges. She is the daughter of Mrs. Anna Davis.

Second honors went to Jeannette Lewis, whose average was 90.14-17 percent for the two years she has been enrolled at the Wayne high school. Jeannette is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis. Helen Mohr, with an average of 90.1-8, was awarded third scholarship honors.

Miss Lewis also was presented with the citizenship medal, awarded by the faculty to the "outstanding school citizen." Mrs. Pollard, in making the award, said that Jeannette not only had made a creditable showing in scholarship, but that she had entered heartily into the activities and

Two Runaway Wakefield Youths Returned Home

After Thrilling Day Spent in Norfolk Are Glad to Be Home.

A farmer who believed home is the better place for a boy frustrated the plans of Vincent Swanson, 13, and Charles Barto, 15, who ran away from their home in Wakefield last Wednesday, as they related their plans of a trip to the Black Hills when they stopped at his place for water.

Leaving a note explaining their intended escapade the boys took a two month's accumulation of earnings amounting to $8.65 and set out and soon were given a lift by a passing motorist who brought them nearly to Norfolk.

Following a day of thrills spent in Norfolk including a ride in an airplane and a few hours sojourn in the jail the lads were returned to their homes by relatives who came to Norfolk for them.

Plans Are Frustrated
They stopped at the farm home of Guy Simmerman, eight and one-half miles northeast of Norfolk, where they asked for water. Realizing that the boys would be better off at home than on their way to the Black Hills which, they told Mrs. Simmerman, was their destination, Mr. Simmerman placed the adventurers in his car and brought them to the Norfolk police station.

Rather than put the boys in a jail cell all afternoon, Chief of Police Anderson took them for an automobile ride while he was making several calls about the city. After Vincent had confided to him that one of his ambitions was to see the Norfolk airport, the chief took the lads to the flying field.

To give the boys the thrill of their trip, A. A. Hesser, owner of the airport, placed them in his big monoplane and gave them a real air trip over the city and surrounding country. From about 3,000 feet in the air, Pilot Hesser zoomed his plane downward. Charles became sick, but Vincent thought the plunge toward the earth was great.

Cassler Murder Case of 1878 Is Recalled

Seward County Man Hanged For Murder of Land Seeker.

An account of a Seward man who paid for the murder of a Kansan, who was driving through territory looking for land, appeared in last week's issue of the Seward Independent, and was as follows:

"Three thousand people saw the execution of Orlando Cassler at Seward. They tore down the fence surrounding the gallows and all had a chance to witness the spectacle. Cassler was convicted of the murder of George L. Munroe, a Kansan who was looking for land in Seward county, and he had a team which was found in Cassler's possession."

The crime for which Cassler paid with his life was the murder of G. L. Munroe, a stranger from Kansas who was traveling through this section of the country. Cassler and Munroe met in Seward, and on the afternoon of July 7, 1878, camped on the Blue river bank just west of town. During the night a heavy thunderstorm came up, and while the storm was on Cassler is alleged to have murdered his companion and sunk the body in the river. He then took possession of Munroe's team and other belongings, and went to his home on a farm in the southwest part of the county, telling the neighbors that he had bought the outfit.

A couple of days later some fishermen found the body of Munroe floating in the river, and the coroner's jury connected Cassler up with the murder. He was arrested, tried and convicted and sentenced to be hanged.

The execution was to take place on May 20, 1879, in the jail yard in Seward, on the block where the county jail now stands. When Cassler mounted the scaffold his final words were:

"I Am Sorry Gentlemen"
"Well, now, this will finish Orlando Cassler's life. Behold the scaffold with Orlando Cassler standing on it here. This is the last of trouble and sorrow. I am sorry, gentlemen, that I have to die here, but there is a world above where there is no trouble and sorrow. "Goodbye, gentlemen." Then the trap was sprung.

Cassler owned an eighty-acre farm down near Beaver Crossing, and October 17, 1901, this was sold at sheriff's sale by Sheriff J. H. Wise to pay the costs off his own execution.

WE WANT TO KNOW WHY (World Herald)

"Mark Sullivan says," remarks the Lincoln Journal, "that the expert opinion is that the only certain relief to the farmer will come through the abandonment of his effort to be an exporter, and that this policy will be basic in the immediate future of American agriculture." The Journal adds that the farmer "could, if he would, limit his production to the needs of the country and, secure behind the tariff wall, enjoy the same meed of prosperity that is the lot of the manufacturer who doesn't glut his home market." And this is, in fact, "the underlying assumption of the Hoover relief plan."

We put the good old Journal down and pick up a New York Evening Post, with an editorial entitled "Automobile Exports." It exults over "the steady growth of motor car exports," tells that "the current year promises to break all records," and reports:

"Leaders of the industry called upon President Hoover the other day and told him they expected at least a million American cars to be shipped abroad during the year. And they urged him to aid them in their efforts to find a constantly expanding market for their products in foreign countries."

President Hoover, naturally, ate that up. For eight years as secretary of commerce he devoted himself with great success to aiding our manufacturers to find a constantly expanding market for their products in foreign countries. And meanwhile our farmers, neglected by a paternal government, have been finding a constantly diminishing foreign market for their products.

We understand, easily enough, that this is in accord with the "Hoover relief plan." Larger foreign markets for the factories and none for the farms. What we are unable to understand is the equity and justice of such a plan, vigorously prosecuted by a president who is president of the farm states as well as the industrial states. Why should there be one rule for the manufacturers and another for the farmers? If factory exports are good, why are not farm exports good too? Why must our farmers have their arms and legs cut off to fit them into the narrow confines of the home market, while our tariff-fatted manufacturers are urged and aided to grow longer legs and longer arms so they can reach out and encompass the whole world in their embrace?

If the president is too busy to explain, perhaps the Lincoln Journal will oblige an interested subscriber.

Potter Telephone Girl Saves Life of Pilot

Will Be Rewarded For Her Thoughtfulness at Special Exercises.

"Air-mindedness" was the quality which Mrs. Mabel Hite, agent of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company at Potter, Nebraska, exhibited on the night of February 17, 1928, when she played an important part in saving a United States mail plane from a smash-up and its pilot from probable death. A citation accompanying a Theodore N. Vail medal, just awarded to Mrs. Hite by the national committee, commends her "alertness and responsiveness" and her "initiative and resourcefulness" in meeting "an emergency under unusual circumstances."

The Vail medals are awarded each year to telephone employees of the Bell System for acts of "Noteworthy Public Service." Mrs. Hite's national medal is of silver and is accompanied by a cash award of $250. A bronze Vail medal also will be awarded Mrs. Hite by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company. An appropriate program for presenting the medals is now being arranged.

Mrs. Hite was on duty in the Potter central office at about 8 o'clock in the evening when she heard an airplane overhead. There was nothing unusual about this, for Potter is on the direct line of an air mail route, some 20 miles west of a landing field at Sidney, Nebraska. What was unusual was that the noise of the motor, instead of dying out as the plane passed over the town, continued for 15 or 20 minutes.

A severe blizzard was raging at the time and the telephone operator deduced that the plane was probably lost and that the pilot was circling about in the hope making a landing. She was alone at the switchboard and could not leave to summon help. She at once called up the attendant at the Sidney landing field, explaining the situation and asking what she could do to be of assistance to the distressed plane.

The attendant, John T. McIntosh, advised her to obtain some red flares from the section foreman of the Union Pacific Railroad Company at Potter and have some 30 men surround a field close by the town on which the plane might make a safe landing. Mrs. Hite carried out these instructions by calling a Potter garage man and explaining to him what should be done. In a few minutes, the field was marked off by blazing flares and the plane effected a safe landing. The pilot, H. T. Lewis, later declared that but for Mrs. Hite's assistance his efforts to find his bearings "would undoubtedly have ended in a fatal smash-up". This probability is strengthened by the fact that the nature of the land surrounding Potter is such as to make landing in the dark almost impossible. The surface is uneven, high hills alternating with deep ravines and canyons.

A 100 acre stock and grain farm located nine miles southwest of Pierce in Pierce county, Nebraska in the famous Willow Creek Valley. This is all level land except possibly 35 acres that is just a gentle slope but it is all plow land, not an acre but what can be farmed and just about three acres that could really be called a hill.

There is 200 acres under cultivation, 120 acres in wild hay meadow and 80 acres in tame grass pasture. This farm is leased for 2-5th of grain crop, one half of hay in the stack and $225.00 cash for the pasture.

There is a fairly good five room farm house, one of the largest barns in the county, a good garage, good tool house, good chicken house and a good hog house, an old double corn crib but in use and an old cow shed but still in use. A splendid well with an abundance of pure water and steel tower and two steel tanks. The farm is well fenced and cross fenced and good roads from the farm in all directions.

Mrs. Hite entered the employ of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company at Potter in February 1925.

Gypsies Take $25 From Pierce Filling Station

Nabbed in Wisner Where They Fork Over Cash Stolen.

While the manager of a filling station in Pierce was filling the large sedan they were driving, two women of a band of six Gypsies, went into the station and took $25 from the cash register.

A few minutes later when the loot was missed officers were summoned and after notifying police in Norfolk to be on the lookout the Pierce officials gave chase. The band were arrested by Wisner authorities and willingly turned over the $25 taken at Pierce as well as another $5 bill they said they took at a Norfolk station, where they also purchased gasoline.

HONOR THEM

Today we pause in commemoration of those who offered of their lives that our country might endure. The day belongs originally to the veterans who served in the bitterest struggle in the history of our nation and therefore they should be foremost in our minds, now, as we momentarily consider their sacrifices.

A greater hero than any one of these has not yet lived and perhaps if he ever does it will be he who creates a feasible plan that will effectively eliminate the possibility of war. We can think of nothing nobler than to offer one's life for a just cause, and if ever a more ideal purpose is at stake than the one for which our Civil war heroes labored . . . it, we believe, will be a plan that will eliminate the necessity and possibility of war.

That was said to be the ultimate goal of the World war, but now seems to have been premature. Those who labored with that thought in view for the moment have struggled in vain, but sometime the purpose will be attained and perhaps the World war veterans will be credited with having fought to end war.

We believe, however, that aside from being inductive to serious thought along the lines of peace, no war will ever be rightfully credited with the birth of continued peace.

Perpetual peace, we believe, will be born of enlightenment, and will be the result of much thought by those entrusted with leadership. The time to develop a plausible plan of continued peace is while the horrors of war are alive in the minds of the nation . . . and therefore we contend that no better time than now, for such a plan to be given birth will be afforded until another war has been fought.

The suggestion of such a plan, like most new ideas, when advanced were regarded as "schoolboy philosophy" and "one entirely unworkable." . . . but that was due to lack of enlightenment and thought, along such lines, by the majority of those who had a grip on the steering wheel of our destinies.

It is unlikely that the world is ready for adoption of a plan of perpetual peace and, no doubt, any yet proposed is unworkable . . . but we believe when the millions who must bear the brunt of conflicts become enlightened enough to demand that war be outlawed they will find that some has the remedy.
Unless that demand is made, now, while the horribleness of war is fresh in the minds of the world it will become dormant until again aroused by thunder of cannon fire.
Most accomplishments are attained through a "trial and error" method. Why not make a start by demanding the adoption of some plan prepared by a committee of the world's best minds? It might work if it doesn't, at least a start will have been made, and a nucleus around which to improve would certainly result.
The world, today, with our many mediums of rapid transmission, is no larger than small communities were a few hundred years ago . . . and it, therefore, is no more unreasonable, today, to hope for a peaceable world than it was to strive toward the stabilization of a small part of it a few centuries ago.

Let us honor our heroes, who courageously attacked their problems of the hour, by recognizing the first problem of today and facing it as squarely as did they!

This is one of the times when we wish we were enough of a fundamentalist to believe that sometime—million or two years hence would be satisfactory—there will be a roll-call of the infernal concourse. Our interest in the roll call would be confined to those who persist in annually poisoning the dogs, most of which are some little boy's or girl's pet, for we believe that certainly they would all be there . . . and that seems to be the only possible method of meting out to these sinners their just dues. There seems to be no effective means of discovering who is responsible for these acts, and therefore it is out of the question to hope to have them pay for their crimes, on this earth. It, therefore, must afford those who are fortunate enough to entertain a belief in the eternal blaze, considerable glee as they form a mental picture of the culprit, who poisoned a treasured pet, writhing in the liquid inferno.

At a conference of the delegates of the United Bretheran church a resolution was adopted prohibiting the clergy of that creed from the use of tobacco in any form. We fear that enforcement of the resolution will require so much attention of those interested that it will cause a slowing up of the efforts to save lost souls . . . which is the primary reason for the church. A canvass might prove that the clergy who smokes also make the fur fly.

HONOR OF THE PRESS
(New York Evening World)
If the American people are still prone to ignore the activities of the power trust after the disclosures before the federal trade commission of the startling plan of the International Paper and Power company to buy up newspapers wholesale from coast to coast, it may be only a matter of a few years until all the public's natural resources will be in the hands of private exploiters. Nothing surely could be more sinister than the plans revealed by the testimony of Samuel E. Thomson of Chicago. With millions of money at his service, he set forth at the instance of this representative of the power trust on a continental journey with authority to buy as many as 20 newspapers, including some of the most important in the nation. It appears he was ready to pay as much as 24 million dollars for one paper, the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Among the other well known and reputable journals he sought to buy were the Atlanta Constitution, the Kansas City Star, the Detroit Free Press, the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Newark Evening News, the Memphis Commercial Appeal and the Indianapolis News. It was no piker's errand on which he went. No modest motive inspired those who sent him. They proposed, with the millions of the power crowd, to acquire the agencies of publicity, and, as we believe, for the purpose of propaganda. Writing textbooks for our children was not enough. Subsidizing professors to preach against public interest in academic robes did not suffice. The American press was to be purchased and, that accomplished, the confusion of the people and the poisoning of the wells of information would be simple.

Here is something that involves the honor and the reputation of the American press. If money can reduce newspapers to commodities to be bought and sold as on an auction block, then money can buy government itself for unless the people are informed of what is going on they can be used to vote their own destruction.

The claim that this paper and power company was thinking only of selling paper is not convincing. That some of the papers acquired with its money were not unmindful of the interpretation the public would place upon the connection is manifest in the failure of one of the papers bought to include in the statement of ownership, exacted by the law, the name of the International Paper and Power company.
Again the American people are heavily indebted to Senator Walsh of Montana in forcing this investigation. It ought to put them on their guard. It is the people's heritage in our invaluable natural resources these interests are after. They are willing to spend millions because there are billions in it.

TAMPERING WITH TEMPERAMENT
There is a continual endeavor on the part of minority groups in this country to ape European customs and make "paternalism" instead of "liberty" the slogan of the land.
Our crime record is cited as showing failure in our moral structure. We are told that in England private ownership of guns is not allowed, hence less crime.

In order to reduce deaths by automobiles one might again cite England and say that compared to the United States proportionately few people enjoy the luxury of a car, hence there are fewer deaths from this cause. Therefore, by making conditions in this country the same as in England, the auto death toll could be reduced.
In all these comparisons one important fact which spells the difference between America and Europe is overlooked, namely, the temperament of the people. This nation was founded because of the urge for freedom—to escape restrictive laws and class privilege. As a whole our people have been a straight-thinking, straight-living and straight-shooting nation. Hunting, shooting, fishing, automobiles, guns, horses and the open country have been symbolical of American life.

There is nothing wrong in owning a gun. Therefore it will be hard to make a nation of gun owners accept such restrictions to their personal liberties. Punish the man who uses a gun wrongfully just the same as you would punish a man who uses an automobile wrongfully, but don't make the law-abiding suffer for the errors of the wrong-doer.

Facts About Nebr.
(From Bulletin of Nebr. Utilities Information Bureau)

Nebraska's estimated population in 1928 was 1,408,000, with an average of 18 persons per square mile, which is just one-half of the national average; there are more people living north of the Platte river than south, but the area is greater in proportion. The population center is 6 miles west of Clarks. More than 87 per cent of Nebraska citizens are nativeborn white.

Nebraska's railway freight business amounted to three and one-half billion ton-miles in 1913; it was slightly more than double that for 1927. Freight and passenger business for the same years were $18,949,000 and $33,284,000 respectively.

The Nebraska Historical society was set up as a state organization by the legislature of 1883. Robert W. Furnas was the first president.

Nebraska produced more than a billion dollars worth of beet sugar last year.

The Union Pacific railroad will spend $26,000,000 on Nebraska improvements during the year, which is more than the original cost of running the line through the state in the 60's.

Alma is looking forward toward building an ornamental white way. The village board favors paying the paving bonds first.

The city of Broken Bow is planning to build a new power house and add to the equipment of the municipal electric plant.

Former Cedar County Man Buys Carroll News

Wyoming Man Takes Charge of Carroll Paper This Week.

The Carroll News, which was started last fall by H. M. Woolman of Stratton, Nebraska, a few weeks after a Carroll publication had been discontinued by Mr. Dawson, who edited the Carroll Index, has been sold to Frank Kelly, former Cedar county editor.

Mr. Kelly, who for several years has lived at Keeline, Wyoming, took possession following the issuing of last week's edition of the paper and will publish his first issue this week, it is announced.

The new editor, according to the announcement, for a time edited a paper in Hartington and has also edited a paper in Verdel. He, according to the announcement, has served as a feature writer for the Sioux City Tribune.

The retiring editor, who said that he plans to enter a larger field, stated that he was well pleased with his venture in Carroll and commended the business men of the town for their splendid cooperation in supporting the paper.

A. F. Gulliver Attends Presbyterian Assembly
Prof. A. F. Gulliver, as elder commissioner of Niobrara Presbytery, has been in attendance at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church at St. Paul, Minnesota the past few days. Over 1200 ministers and elders were present at this annual meeting of the representatives of the Presbyterian church held May 23-29. The meeting also was attended by 50 missionaries from foreign countries.
B. M. Long, D. D., from Pender, was the ministerial representative from Niobrara Presbytery.
One of the most significant actions of the assembly was the adoption of a recommendation looking toward the union of five protestant churches: the Protestant Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Episcopal south, Presbyterian church south, and the Presbyterian church. This was in answer to an invitation from the Protestant Episcopal church to consider union. A commission will be appointed by the church to confer with similar commissions from other churches.
The assembly also voted to submit to the presbyteries of the church proposals dealing with the recognition of women, making them eligible to serve as ministers, elders, and lay evangelists. A favorable decision of all the presbyteries is necessary to carry the proposal.

Snyder Makes Strong Address

Rev. C. B. Snyder, pastor of the First Unitarian church of Sioux City, gave a forceful talk and did not lose the attention of his audience even when the church lights went out for several minutes. When the room was plunged in darkness he did not falter on a word, and after some uneasy stirring in the audience, all became quiet in order not to miss a phrase while the janitor was restoring the lights.

Rev. Snyder's talk was an attempt to impress on the graduating class the debt they had incurred in securing their education, and the fact that they could repay it only by being of some value to the world. He said that he did not wish to congratulate them upon their accomplishment in completing their high school work, but rather, "upon the mortgages you have taken upon yourself" He said that he would prefer to call them back in fifty years to the same platform, and then give them an examination to discover how well they had paid off their debts.

He told the seniors that they could not know what the commencement exercises meant to their parents, that they could not know until they, too, had children of their own who were graduating. "There are no possible honors which come to us so full of meaning as the steps our children take to fulfill our dreams."

The debts the graduates owed, said Rev. Snyder, were to their parents and to the taxpayers who had built the great educational system of the country out of their hard earned wages because of the possibilities they saw in their children; and to the pioneers of the prairies and those hidden away in laboratories making new discoveries for science and education. But, the speaker said, these debts could not be paid to those from whom they had been incurred, and they could not be repaid in money. The only currency that could cancel those debts was that of being of use to the world.

Rev. Snyder closed his address with the plea that the seniors find in their education a means for a greater appreciation of life, and that this greater appreciation give them a sense of honor and a desire to repay the debts they had incurred.

Supt. T. S. Hook, in presenting the senior class to the president of the school board, said that it had been the ambition of the faculty to give the students ideals as well as knowledge. "I would like to have the people of the town know that they have a faculty not to be beaten in northeast Nebraska," he said in referring to the efforts of the teachers. He paid particular tribute to the faithfulness of Mrs. Pollard, principal of the public schools.

Mr. Carhart, in a short talk, called attention to the fact that the $28,000 of outstanding indebtedness of the school had been paid off in the last year, and that the school was now not only on a cash basis, but had sufficient funds on hand to carry on the affairs of the school well on into the coming year. He spoke of the cooperation of the superintendent in the payment of this debt, and said that Mr. Hook deserves great credit for his masterful management of the finances for the past year.

The high school mixed chorus, in which some of the graduating class took part, sang two selections, "Farewell, Speedyell", and "Ships that Pass in the Night."

Book Chat

A book just accessioned at the Wayne public library is The Reading Interests and Habits of Adults, by William L. Gray, dean of the college of Education, Chicago University, and Ruth Munroe, assistant librarian at the Cleveland Public Library.

It is a serious survey and study of the reading habits, good and bad, of people, and how they are formed. It should be of interest to people in educational work.

Cradle of the Deep, by Joan Lowell, is getting its share of adverse criticism, but is weathering the storm so far as sales go. Those who seem to be getting the worst of it are the Book-of-the-Month club, which selected it as the book of the month recently and its publishers, Simon & Schuster.

The book has been advertised as an authentic biography of Joan Lowell, a girl who spent her childhood and youth on board a sailing vessel among rough sailors, the only "woman-thing" aboard. The climax of the book comes when the boat burns under thrilling circumstances and Joan has a desperate three-mile swim to shore.

But now it develops through the investigations of the New York Evening Post that Joan was a landlubber through a great share of her youth, and instead of being the only "woman-thing" aboard when she was at sea, she was chaperoned at least by her mother and sisters. The ship actually did catch fire when Joan was aboard, but her desperate swim was merely a leap ashore, as the ship was tied up in the docks. This is embarrassing to the publishers and to the Book-of-the-Month club. Joan, however, seems to be enjoying the situation and counting her royalties. And people continue to find her book "fascinating". Perhaps all the more fascinating if not true. The Wayne library has ordered Cradle of the Deep.

There have been mutterings in the book world against the various book clubs, and criticism from papers of no less standing than the New York Evening Post, the Springfield Republican, and the St. Louis Globe Democrat. An editorial in the Evening Express of Portland, Maine runs thus: "The book-buying clubs, to do them justice, are undoubtedly influencing many persons to read good books who otherwise might read bad ones or none at all. We are a lazy people, despite our reputation for pep and energy, and it is easier to read a book that is placed in our hands than to go out and buy one. But on the other hand, it is the part of wisdom to encourage mental laziness?" And so on.

But the greatest blast comes from John McCrae, president of E. P. Dutton Company, one of the largest and oldest of American publishing houses. He has sent circulars to book buyers, reviewers and librarians all over the United States, charging the Book-of-the-Month club and the Literary Guild and other book clubs with being merely commercial mail-order concerns. Instead of increasing the interest in books and giving a chance for struggling young authors of outstanding merit to have their work recognized, they are doing the opposite, and narrowing sales down to a few books they arbitrarily select.

To substantiate his charge of profiting he points out that the Book-of-the-Month club demands a discount of 70 percent on the books it selects. For every two dollar book it sells, it receives $1.40, leaving 60 cents to divide between publisher, printer, and author. And Mr. McCrae declares that the Book-of-the-Month club greatly misrepresents when it says that publishers submit to them all their best books for consideration. Because of the 70 percent discount publishers are unable to do this and many of the best and more expensive books to produce are never submitted.

The Book-of-the-Month club answers the first structure of Mr. McCrae, pointing out the prestige of its judges, declaring that the judges are in no way influenced by the possible sale of a book, and accusing Mr. McCrae of making a libelous attack upon the judges and the club.

The row will go merrily on. And what started it was little Joan Lowell, not so much of an old salt in fact as in imagination.

We see that 13 copies of Voltaire's play, Candide, bound for a Boston bookseller, were seized by the United States customs service on the ground that they were immoral and calculated to corrupt the youth of the country. Voltaire penned Candide 170 years ago. That is a long time for a "vicious" book to live. Most "immoral" productions either die or else the public grows used to them and they become very respectable long before they have been out 170 years. Certain of Sherwood Anderson's books shocked people exceedingly when they first appeared. But now, only a few years later, the public takes them very calmly. Voltaire must have written in an extremely naughty manner.

But Boston is inclined to have its book troubles. Upton Sinclair's book, Oil, an extremely vigorous lambasting of the capitalistic classes, which did not even spare the two presidents of the United States preceding Hoover, was declared to be immoral, and its sale was banned in Boston.

Sinclair procured a Bible and substituted for its cover a cover from one of his books. This he sold to a Boston policeman. The policeman immediately arrested him.

"What?" asked Sinclair, "Don't you allow even the Bible to be sold in Boston?"

AVOID RUST IN STOVES

Rust in the oven of gas ranges can be avoided if the door is left slightly open for a moment after the burners are lighted. The open door permits the escape of the moisture produced by combustion and prevents its too rapid condensation on the sides of the oven. A further protection for both the oven lining and the burners is an occasional application of oil or grease to form a moisture-proof film. The substance used should be free from salt, and should be applied while the metal is warm.

TRAINMEN PAY OWN WAGES

Trainmen of the Denver street railways pay themselves each day they work. At the end of each working day, the conductor takes out of his cash the wages of himself and motor-man. There have been no pay checks since December, 1888, and the company has found that the hundreds of thousands of dollars handled annually in this way have been with only infrequent errors.

Discuss Extension of Rural Electrification

Attack Problems of electrifying Farms for Mutual Benefit.

At the twenty-third annual convention of Nebraska Section National Electric Light Association, held at Scottsbluff last week, chief attention was centered on the problem of extending electricity more widely into rural territory. This association is made up of the private companies operating in the state.

A representative of each of the larger companies explained the method of building rural lines adopted by his company and experienced cost per mile for the construction. He also told of the contracts being offered to rural customers for service and in detail explained why this particular contract has been adopted.

Plan to Aid Farmer

Another phase of his rural symposium was a discussion of how to sell agricultural service; that is, how to help the farmer who has electric service to secure and utilize the equipment which will mean dollars and cents profit to him. It was recognized that every effort should be made to guard against selling equipment which cost too much to operate, or the use of which does not lend itself to the particular customer.

Reports indicated that where heretofore the demand for rural service has been spotted and irregular and expensive because of those facts, at this time the rural demand is greater than the ability of the companies to meet it. To build rural lines successfully, it is necessary to interest most, if not all, the farmers along the line of proposed construction. If this cannot be done, the cost of construction per customer readily and quickly becomes too great to warrant the investment or requires the sale of the current at discouragingly high rates.

A SWARM OF BEES PAYS VISIT TO DEMOCRAT

Much excitement! A stray swarm of Italian bees lodged in the hickory tree back of the Democrat office last Friday afternoon. None of the Democrat force were much disposed to become beekeepers, so L. M. Panabaker was notified by C. E. Carhart, who acted as their custodian until Mr. Panabaker arrived. Mr. Panabaker removed the bees to his apiary.

OLD MEMORIES REVIVED AS LOG DWELLING RAZED

One of the few remaining log houses in Antelope county was razed last week by Frank Shabram, a son of the original builder of the house which was constructed on the old Shabram homestead a few miles from Neligh, more than fifty years ago.

The logs, it was recalled by remaining pioneers who remembered when the home was built, were hauled many miles and were fastened together by wooden pins whittled out by hand.

The razing of the log house, one of the few remaining in that territory, it was reported, called to the minds many incidents of the pioneer days.

Iowan Says Marines Plunder Native Huts

Red Oak Marine Tells of Conditions in Mexico.

Richard Williams, of Red Oak, has written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Williams of Red Oak, that the marines in Nicaragua with whom he is stationed, run the natives out of their huts and kill their chickens when they want something to eat.

He enlisted last December at Omaha.

"One of our pastime sports is shooting monkeys and parrots for practice" he writes. "We go out on patrol and sometimes don't get back for a month, going through mud up to our waist, and sleeping on the ground with scorpions and ants.

"When we want something to eat, we run the natives out of their huts and kill their chickens. If they have no chickens we kill a cow or some other animal, eat what we want, and then take anything else laying around we want, and go on. The people in the states do not know half as much about the marines in Nicaragua as they think they do. This kind of life, being shut out from civilization for 18 months, will either make or break a person, but I think I can stand it."

BETTER FOOD AND LESS

(William G. Shepherd in Collier's.)
Strange as it may seem at first glance, the table use of corn is a test of prosperity. The higher the income in homes, the less is spent for corn. And the higher American incomes have risen, the less corn meal we have consumed per person. Today we eat only one-fifth of the corn meal we consumed back in the hard and grim eighties.

We are inclined, as we grow more affluent, to let animals eat our corn for us, and then, in turn, eat the animals. Corn is still among our largest crops, but our corn bill for the table falls, and our meat bill correspondingly rises as our wealth increases.

In a prosperous year you, roughly speaking, at your weight in meat. The average meat consumption per person is about 155 pounds. Over half of this will be in the form of pork, fattened, in the main, on corn.

Sugar is a prosperity food. No other people on earth can afford as much of it as we use. No year would be complete for you, speaking in averages, that did not yield you your quota of 110 pounds of sugar. That's almost twice as much as Americans of the eighties could afford.

Chicken—there's another yardstick of standards of living, though it applies more to city than to country folk. Compare 214 with 340 and you have the quantity in millions of pounds of the increase in poultry sales to city folk in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston since 1920.

We're eating less food in quantity,

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby—Babies Have Nerves
By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's safe to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.

however, than in 1910. Salaried persons in offices eat less than wage earners in industries, and salaried persons have grown more rapidly in number than toilers. Eating to be slender is another factor in the reduction in food consumption. Still another explanation is education, which is becoming general, against overeating.

President Hoover's investigators point out that our eating habits are undoubtedly growing more sensible. Our very large and ever-increasing consumption of salad oils, made, in large part, from cottonseed, and appearing frequently in what used to be a rich man's luxury, mayonnaise dressing, shows how we are turning to leafy vegetables and fresh fruits in salad form.

We have already regretted the fact that no scientist could measure the value of women's work in the home. However that may be, the fact remains that her toil is growing lighter every year.

She buys more package foods for the table, foods which her mother laboriously cooked over a hot fire. Old-fashioned folk rant about this. But the fact remains that housewives of the early days of this century did not have the same opportunity to purchase well prepared foods of a great variety in package form.

MILLIONS FOR SAFETY

During the past nine years United States railroads have spent, on the average, 40 million dollars annually to increase the safety of rail transportation.

This does not include maintenance or operation of safety devices that have already been installed, interest or taxes, or the additional millions spent for better equipment and improvements which are an indirect contribution to safety.

The result of these vast expenditures has been that safety of travel has increased over 100 per cent in five years. In 1923 the average was one fatality for each 24 million passengers carried; last year it was but one for every 49 million passengers. The total fatalities in 1928 among passengers was 16, as compared with 79 in 1926 and 83 in 1925. Five times as many deaths occurred each day in automobile accidents as there were railroad passenger fatalities during the entire year.

The record in improving the safety of employees equals this. In every phase of operation the railroads have taken steps to eliminate hazards and lower the risk on any hazards that are unavoidable.

OVERHEARD AT THE DEPOT

"Gosh, this is a hot town. I wouldn't live here on a BET!" This from one girl to another. The two misses were nattering a Wrigley product and making a contemptuous survey of Wayne from the depot platform.

"Where do you live?" This from a Wayne bootster.

"Oh, we come from X——. There's 1190 people in our town. We wouldn't live in this hick place on a BET!"

The train pulled out and they went with it. The gum was none the worse for wear.

COSMOPOLITAN CORN

THE word "corn," specifically applied in this country, refers to "Indian corn," or maize. It is native to tropical America and was used as food by the Indians centuries before the era of Columbus, and probably even by the civilization which antedated the Red Man.

In the early days of the English colonies, corn was not confined to yellow and white ears, with an occasional red variation, as it is today. Though yellow and white were even then the most common, they were interspersed with red, blue, olive, greenish, black, vari-colored, speckled and striped ears. Today its consumption has become so universal in this country that this grain can fairly be called cosmopolitan, and practically all of it is packed in sanitary enamel lined cans.

Corn is lower in protein than wheat and oats, but it is fully equal in that respect to other grains and it surpasses many in the proportion of fat and oil. The starch of corn, its main food component, is of excellent quality, and it lends itself to combinations with so many other foods that it has been called by many first-aid to the housewife.

With Meats and Fish

There are many combinations, for instance, of corn with meat and fish. Here are some recipes which will undoubtedly suggest more:

Corn Chowder: Dice and fry one-fourth pound bacon; add one small onion and one green pepper, diced, and continue sautéing until brown. Add four cups of diced boiled potatoes, and allow them to fry until slightly browned. Add one No. 2 can of corn, five cups milk, two and one-half teaspoons salt and one-fourth teaspoon pepper, bring to scalding, and serve. This recipe will make sufficient chowder for ten people.

Hamburg and Corn Scramble: Sauté one medium chopped onion in two tablespoons butter a few minutes, add three-quarters of a pound of Hamburg steak, and stir until well browned. Add one No. 2 can of corn, two teaspoons salt and one-fourth teaspoon pepper, and heat. This will serve eight.

Corn and Salmon Pudding: Mix one No. 2 can of corn, one tablespoon melted butter, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one small can of salmon and one tablespoon heavy cream or evaporated milk in the foregoing order, being careful not to break up the salmon too finely. Bake in a buttered baking dish in a moderate oven (350° F.) thirty minutes. This, too, will serve eight.

With Fresh Vegetables

Canned corn combines excellently with fresh vegetables that are in season. Here are some sample recipes:

Escalloped Corn and Eggplant: Sauté one coarsely chopped green pepper, two coarsely chopped pimientos and one-half a medium eggplant, diced (about three cups) in three tablespoons butter until slightly brown. Add one No. 2 can of corn, one cup of thin cream or rich milk, two teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and one-fourth teaspoon celery salt, and pour into buttered casserole. Cover with buttered crumbs, and bake, covered. Remove cover at last to brown the crumbs. This recipe will serve from six to eight.

Summer Squash with Corn: Sauté one sliced onion in three tablespoons drippings, add one pound of white "button" squash, peeled and thinly sliced, and sauté a few minutes longer. Add one cup water, cover and cook gently until tender. Add one cup of corn, one teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and bring to boiling. This serves eight.

All By Itself

Baked Stuffed Eggs: Cut eight hard-cooked eggs in half lengthwise and mash yolks. Sauté one-half cup chopped mushrooms in two tablespoons butter till tender and add yolks. Add one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-eighth teaspoon prepared mustard and two tablespoons cream, and re-fill whites with this mixture. Place in a shallow buttered baking dish. Add one-fourth cup cream and seasonings to one No. 2 can of corn, and pour around the eggs. Cover with buttered crumbs, and brown in a hot oven. This serves eight.

But canned corn all by itself makes a delicious dish, and here is one of the most delectable ways to prepare it.

Cream of Corn Supreme: Simmer one No. 2 can of corn, one-half cup celery, a slice of onion and two cups of water together for twenty minutes. Rub through a sieve. Add to two cups of thin white sauce, and season highly. Just before serving add one slightly beaten egg mixed with one cup of cream, and heat in a double boiler. Serve in bouillon cups with a spoonful of whipped cream on top. Serves eight.

TWO THOUGHTS

Gratitude is an agreeable emotion if you are the object of it, but compassion is a sweeter one to feel.

GAS-MADE MAN

Seldom, if ever, does a man think about his indebtedness to a product that he cannot even see. Should he do so, suggests the Ohio committee on public utility information, he would discover that:

- His hat is shaped and ironed by gas.
- His razor and blade are tempered by gas.
- His shirts are washed and ironed by gas.
- His cuff links are enameled and soldered by gas.
- The paraffin for his shoe laces was melted by gas.
- The fountain pen in his pocket was made with gas.
- His gloves are shaped, dried and ironed with gas.
- The glass and wire in his spectacles are made by gas.
- The cotton yarn in his collar and shirts is singed by gas.
- His tie and handkerchief are dyed with a by-product of gas.
- The steel in his watch was tempered and the gold melted by gas.
- To heat tools and melt glue for his shoes, use was made of gas.
- The wool in his suit was singed, stretched and finished by gas.

"AIN'T IT THE TRUTH?"

- Silence is sometimes golden, sometimes ironical.
- Men who always tell the truth catch the smallest fish.
- Also the people who marry for money may repent at leisure.
- It takes a mighty little shove to send some men down hill.

Two-Dollar Dinner for Six

- Pear Cocktail—37¢
- Mashed Potatoes—10¢
- Liver with Fried Onions and Spinach—73¢
- Parsley Peas and Carrots—19¢
- Hot Buttered Rolls—25¢
- Mocha Spanish Cream—27¢
- Black Coffee—5¢
- Total—$1.96
- Incidentals—4¢

SIX people can dine charmingly with an outlay of less than two dollars when the money is judiciously spent. Here is the way it can be done:

For pear cocktail: cube and divide into six cocktail glasses the canned pears from a number 2 can and pour the pear syrup over them. Add one tablespoon grenadine syrup to each glass and chill well. The pears cost 25 cents and the grenadine 12 cents.

To prepare the liver, wash a pound and a half (42 cents), cover with boiling water and parboil gently for fifteen minutes. Drain, remove membranes and skin and cut into serving portions. Slice a pound of onions (10 cents) and fry in four tablespoons drippings; remove onions and keep in a hot place. Brown the liver in the pan, reduce heat and cook until tender. Season well and remove to a hot platter, piling onions on top. Heat contents of a number 2 1/2 can of spinach (17 cents) in the pan and arrange as a border around the liver. Make a gravy of two tablespoons flour, one cup milk and drippings in the pan.

Heat a number 2 can of peas and carrots (15 cents), drain and add two tablespoons butter and one-fourth bunch minced parsley. Season and toss together.

For the dessert: Scald together in a double boiler, one and one-third cups evaporated milk, seven eighths cup strong coffee, and three-fourths square chocolate until the chocolate melts. Beat two egg yolks slightly, add one-half cup sugar and add to above mixture stirring constantly until thickened. Add one and one-half tablespoons gelatine softened in three tablespoons cold water and stir until dissolved. Cool. When about to stiffen fold in two stiffly-beaten egg whites and chill. In this, the milk costs 8 cents, the gelatine 4, and the eggs 9 cents, and the others 6 cents.

Keep Your Coffee Right

ARE you a coffee lover? Then nothing will replace that steaming cup of succulence with its tempting aroma with which you are accustomed to start each day. But are you going to get good coffee where you go this summer? You can, easily, if you'll observe only one simple rule.

There are lots of brands of good coffee on the market, but scientists have recently discovered that no coffee is good coffee if it is not fresh. It has been ascertained beyond the possibility of a doubt that from 65% to 70% of the coffee gas and an appreciable part of its aromatic oils disappear in the first twenty-four hours when freshly roasted coffee is exposed to oxygen. After that period it expels the gas more slowly, but in ten or twelve days it has lost all of its gas and a great part of the aromatic oils which constitute its flavor.

The One Sure Way

The only way in which fresh roasted coffee can be kept fresh and flavorful is by packing it in a container which is absolutely impervious to all climatic influences. This method of packing is known as the "Vacuum Process" and more and more coffee packers are adopting it. After the vacuum packed can has been opened, the coffee should be put into Mason jars and their covers screwed down tight on the rubber rings. It's just as simple as that, but it makes all the difference. Try it this summer, and you'll see.

The Limit

Little Anita was in the first month of the first year of her school life. Laboriously she had learned the consecutive order of numbers as far as seven. She couldn't imagine that anything in the counting-line could exist beyond that figure.

Just at that time her mother reached another milestone on the road of life and the members of the family wished her many happy returns of the day. When it came to Anita's turn, she said:

"Many happy returns of the day, mother. I hope you live— and then after a long and thoughtful pause, 'for seven years more.'"

Mr. and Mrs. August Kay drove to Winside Sunday afternoon and spent the afternoon with Mrs. Kay's sister, Mrs. John Meyer, who is quite ill. She has returned to her home after remaining for several weeks at the home of her sister Mrs. Henrietta Hurstad in Wayne.

Mr. Oelklaus of Missouri arrived at the home of his sister Mrs. Raymond Baker Monday. He plans to remain here indefinitely.

Mrs. Mary Doring, Hilda, Clara, Irma and Irene Doring and Mr. and Mrs. Max Brudigan motored to Laurel Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. James Benjamin. Irma is remaining with Mrs. Benjamin for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Harrison and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hanson all of Wakefield spent Sunday evening at the Elmer Harrison home.

Brother and sisters of both Mr. and Mrs. Henry Doring accompanied by their families went to the Doring home Sunday evening to help Henry celebrate his birthday. Luncheon was served by the guests.

John Baker, Christina Henrieks, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thompson, Alfred and Arthur Thompson spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Laughlin spent Thursday at the Elmer Harrison home.

Evergreens Found in Warm and Cold Zones

An evergreen is a tree which stays green all winter—that is to say, the leaves do not fall in autumn, as do the leaves of deciduous trees. Many evergreens are conifers (cone-bearing trees), but not all conifers are evergreens. The larch is a conifer, but is not an evergreen.

Spruce is a familiar evergreen. It was so named because it was first known as a native of Prussia—French "prusse" and middle English "pruse" or "spruce." Spruce is an old name for Prussia. Fir is an old word, long in the language, always used for the tree; pine is Latin, also the name of the tree which it designates today. The hemlock has also been long in the language.

There are evergreens which are not trees. Almost all tropical plants, botanically speaking, are evergreens. The holly is an interesting northern evergreen, much used for decoration purposes at Christmas.

The rhododendron is an evergreen shrub. Its name, according to Webster's New International dictionary, comes from Greek words meaning literally "rose tree." It was so named because of its large flowers.

Other evergreens of the north include certain varieties of the cedar, ivy, laurel, etc. The words are all "old"—that is, they have been in the language for centuries, often nearly in the forms we know today as the names of these plants or similar plants.

Spanish Sailor First to Discover Australia

While in South America, Doctor Rosenbach of Philadelphia is said to have acquired many interesting papers, including one which bears the only known signature of the discoverer of Australia, Capt. Pedro Fernando de Quiros. It commissions Gaspar de Gay and Manuel Noble as sailing masters of the ships San Pedro and San Pedro y Pablo, about to proceed on "the discovery of the unknown austral regions of this South sea by order of the king," and is dated Lima, July 27, 1605.

On leaving Callao harbor Quiros was, it is related in records of him, asked to lay down a course, and he replied: "Let her go as she is; God will take her somewhere." The ships came to the land fringe of Australia—"southern land"—and were separated by a storm. Returning, Quiros, now penniless, got a new outfit from Spain to continue the exploration, but died of fever on reaching Panama.

Hard to Shake Belief in Good and Bad Luck

It is hard to overcome such inbred myths as the "thirteen" superstition. To any reasonable person you can demonstrate in two minutes that there is nothing in it. But these beliefs in good and bad luck are not kept going by people capable of reason. They are the beliefs of the unthinking mass with whom it is useless to argue.

Parnell, the famous Irish statesman, was one of the many prominent politicians who have been afraid of 13. His mother was responsible for it. Yet she was a woman of character and intellect. One day she was getting into a train at Dublin when she noticed the number of the coach was 39. "I won't go in that," she declared flatly; "it's unlucky." The lord mayor, who was seeing her off, asked why. "Because of multiple of 13," she said, and climbed into another carriage—a third-class one, although she had a first-class ticket. There was no other first-class coach but the "unlucky" one.

Character Molded by Example of Parents

Do you ever wonder what you would have been if your father and mother had been different? I often do.

My own father and mother lived what they tried to teach their two children; my sister and myself. To have so consistent an example of absolute integrity would be of incalculable worth to any child; I never can sufficiently express my debt of gratitude to them.

My father was a "natural born" scientist, an indefatigable searcher for the relation between cause and effect. It was he that taught me to ask the why of everything; to want to know and to understand things.

Both my father and my mother judged persons by the essentials of character; such things as honesty, kindness, uprightness; by what persons were—not by how much money they had or how much show they could make.—Mary B. Mullett in the American Magazine.

Pal

The late Chauncey M. Depew was fond of telling stories on himself. On one of his last birthdays, which had become occasions of ceremony, he told this one:

"I feel as Methuselah must have when one of the beauties of his court congratulated him on his nine hundred sixtieth birthday saying, 'You don't look a day over 930.'"

This also on himself: "One day I was stopped in the street by a lady who asked if her aged father might come in and visit me. 'He is nearly as old as you,' she said. 'He is feeble-minded, but I know he would enjoy talking to you.'"

The Appointed Place

The big business man had died and gone to—well not to heaven. But hardly had he settled down for a nice long smoke when a hearty hand slapped him on the back, and into his ear boomed the voice of a persistent salesman who had pestered him much on earth.

"Well, Mr. Smith," chortled the salesman, "I'm here for the appointment."

"What appointment?" "Why, don't you remember?" the salesman went on. "Every time I came into your office you told me you'd see me here!"

Thou and You

A reader asks "when and by whom was the plain language, thee and thou, changed to you when speaking to a single person?" We can only say that the change was brought about by public usage. If one were to adhere strictly to the laws of grammar, then one should still address a single person as thou instead of you, and some people do this yet, but the ordinary custom has become to drop the second person singular, even when only one person is addressed, and to use the second person plural. There is no law of any kind requiring this, it is simply the custom.—Exchange.

Rites of Baptism

Immersion is unquestionably the most ancient form of Christian baptism. The word "baptism" is derived from the Greek "bapto" or "baptizeo," literally meaning to immerse, bathe, or wash. Baptism in the Latin or Roman Catholic church was originally by immersion. That method prevailed until about the twelfth century. In some places individual Catholic churches continued to baptize by immersion until only a few hundred years ago. According to the ritual now authorized by the Catholic church, baptism is performed by laying the candidate's head.—Exchange.

Where There's a Will—

Under the will of a wealthy Sydney manufacturer who died recently, $400,000 was left for the provision of horse troughs, with the names of his wife and himself to be inscribed on each one erected.

A list of queer wills was compiled in New York a few months ago containing one which had a clause requesting the mourners to stop at a restaurant and have a good lunch before proceeding to the grave. There was also the case of the Yorkshire gardener who left his wife one shilling and sixpence.

Death Valley in Java Exudes Poison Gases

For years travelers in Java have told of a "death valley" on the slopes of the volcano of Tangkuban Praho. The bottom of this valley, so they report, is paved with the skeletal remains of birds and lizards, and, according to some, even the skeletons of a few venturesome human beings who dropped dead there or staggered out of the fatal howl only to die on its rim. This valley has now been definitely located by the chemist of the volcanological survey of the Dutch East Indies.

The Java valley, says Dr. E. B. Free, seems to deserve its name, for inconspicuous vents in its bottom have been discovered by the chemists to be discharging not only carbon dioxide gas, which displaces the oxygen of the air and might suffocate the unwary, but also a still deadlier poison, hydrogen sulphide gas. This compound is the evil-smelling gas given off by rotten eggs. In the small traces set from such decaying substances, or as used in equally small amounts in chemical laboratories, the gas is not seriously dangerous. Analyses made in Java's deadly valley show, however, as much as 10 per cent of this gaseous poison in the air—enough to poison any creature that breathes it for more than a few seconds.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Slumber Long, Advice of Woman Physician

Dr. Stella Churchill, repeating the saying that a man slept six hours, a woman seven, a child eight, and a fool nine, remarked during a talk at the Institute of Hygiene, London, "I am glad to say I am numbered among the fools."

"After the age of three, human beings do not require daylight sleep, except on Sundays, when the national bad habit of overeating makes them drowsy. The more one eats, the more sleep is required.

"For an average person I advocate between eight and nine hours' sleep. 'Growing children' should sleep on a hard mattress, and the bed should never be placed against a wall.

"One's judgment is impaired by lack of sleep. Girls have married the wrong man and refused to marry the right one because their judgment has been at fault following sleepless nights.

"People should not be awakened from sleep. We are still suffering from the old-fashioned idea that there is something shameful about being asleep, as exemplified in the hymn about the sluggard who is disinclined to wake up."

Jacobite Toast

When through an oversight no finger bowls follow your dinner, just be philosophical, remember that for 813 years the British royal family got along somehow without them. But it was far from an oversight with the kings and queens of Britain. After the exile in 1688 of James the Old Pretender, the Jacobites, his adherents, instituted the clever custom of lifting the glasses in such a manner as to bring them over their finger bowls, and so were in reality toasting the "king over the water." Suddenly finger bowls were conspicuous by their absence and the Jacobites knew their deception was detected. It was not until Edward VII began reigning in 1901 that the bowls reappeared.—Detroit News.

Furfural is Now Cheap

Once a chemical curiosity, selling for $30 a pound, furfural, widely used as an insecticide, now sells for 10 cents a pound as a result of recent discoveries by chemists who have succeeded in producing it from oat hulls and other waste farm products.

A discovery by Prof. Orlando R. Sweeney, chemist at the Iowa State college, has opened up an entirely new source for furfural in sugar beets. After the sugar has been extracted from the beets, the pulp is put through an additional process which extracts the chemical.

Besides serving as an insecticide, furfural is used in making synthetic resins.—Popular Science Monthly.

Affected Great Actor

Lucy Cable Bickle, in her biography of her father, George W. Cable, includes a letter in which the novelist described his meeting with John Drew, the actor:

"Margaret and I," reads the letter, "went last night to hear John Drew in 'The Second in Command.' . . . We went behind the stage after the play and saw him and his daughter. He said, 'This is the first time I've had a chance to tell you how I cried over 'The Cavalier'—over the captain's death.' I said, 'You make me proud. Did you cry?' He said, 'Cry? I bawled!'"—Detroit News.

Tit for Tat

Down dropped the policeman's arm and immediately the traffic stream was in motion, one car shooting out in front of the other vehicles.

At that moment a pretty girl made an indiscreet dash for an island in the center of the roadway.

She would have been knocked down by the swiftly moving car had not the driver jammed on his brakes.

"Women and donkeys are always in the way!" he shrieked furiously at the girl. "Glad to see you've the manners to put yourself last!" retorted the girl coolly.
