FORMER WAYNE MINISTER DIES At LINCOLN HOME

W. W. Theobald Was Pastor of Baptist Church Here for Eight Years; Passed July 30.

TWO BROTHERS LIVING IN WAYNE

Rev. W. W. Theobald, pastor of the First Baptist church at Wayne for eight years, and for the last 15 years a resident of Lincoln, passed away at his home at University Place, a suburb of Lincoln, early last Wednesday morning, after an illness which extended over two years, and which had totally incapacitated him since last October.

Two brothers of Rev. Theobald, S. R. and H. W. Theobald, live in Wayne.

Funeral services were held in Lincoln last Friday afternoon, and burial was at Palmyra.

It was over 20 years ago that Rev. Theobald ceased his pastorate here, and moved to Tecumseh, where he served as pastor of the Baptist church for four years. It was under his pastorate here that the old frame Baptist church was moved from a block east to its present site.

Walter William Theobald was born at Norwich, England, April 16, 1860. At the age of 13 he came to America with his parents, who settled at Garden Prairie, Illinois. Five years later the family moved to Palmyra, Nebraska.

As a very young man deceased united with the Baptist church. He entered the drug business, first at Palmyra, and later at Ainsley. But the urge to become a minister caused him to sell his business and to take a theological course at the University of Chicago.

Besides his pastorates at Wayne and at Palmyra, he was also district missionary for the Nebraska Baptist convention for a time. He was forced by ill health to give up the ministry in 1902. He engaged in clerical work in Wisconsin and Colorado for several years.

Fifteen years ago Rev. Theobald moved to University Place at Lincoln, where he established a mercantile business, and where he has lived since. He was mayor of University Place for two years and always took a keen interest in civic affairs. He is survived by his wife, Cora, two children, Mrs. C. J. Hall, of Washington, and J. E. Theobald, of Lincoln; two grandchildren, Margaret Teobald and Louise Hall; four brothers, S. R. and H. W. Theobald, of Wayne, and H. J. and C. F. Theobald, of Lincoln.

Local Man Severely Injured at Sioux City

F. W. Ivan Sustains Broken Hip When Truck Body Falls.

F. W. Ivan, who until a few days ago was the driver of a gas truck for the Standard Oil Company here, sustained a very painful injury at the Wilson Body Works last Friday at Sioux City, when the body of a truck fell on him.

Mr. Ivan had driven to Sioux City for the purpose of purchasing a new body for his truck, and was helping to make the change from the old body to the new when a truck body standing on its side fell over upon him, breaking his hip and severely bruising him. His injuries would have been much worse and probably fatal if it had not been for four-by-six planks which saved the full weight of the truck body from falling upon him.

Mr. Ivan was taken to the Sioux City hospital. It was found that his injuries, though serious, were not dangerous. It is expected that he will be able to go home in two or three weeks.

Mr. Ivan, until a few days before the accident, drove a gas truck for the Standard Oil company here. He had resigned his position, with the expectation of moving to Dixon, when the accident occurred.

Wayne Man Continues to Show Improvement

C. A. Chace, who underwent an operation in the Norfolk hospital nearly three weeks ago, continues to show marked improvement, and it is expected that he will be able to return home soon.

Local People Are Hurt In Collision Thursday

James Grier was taken to the Wayne hospital with a broken shoulder and fractured collar bone last Thursday following a collision near Wisner with a car driven by Mrs. Ed Luther when the two cars met at a cross road.

Mr. Grier, accompanied by Mrs. Grier, was driving a Chevrolet, which was badly smashed by the accident. Mrs. Grier was also bruised somewhat, sustaining broken ribs, and she was also taken to the local hospital, but was able to go home in a short time.

The Luther car also was considerably damaged, but Mrs. Luther sustained but very minor injuries.

County Clerk Notifies State Board Will Ignore Cattle Assessment Increase

County Officers Believe That 10 Percent Tax Increase on Cattle Unfair to Local Owners.

1929 STATE LEVY 2.40 MILLS

Following an increase in the state tax levy of more than 16 percent over that of 1928, with assessment increases of from 10 to 40 percent on various properties ordered by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, Charles W. Reynolds, county clerk, notified the board Tuesday that he would disregard that part of the order dealing with the 10 percent increase in the assessment on cattle, on the grounds, he said, that the increase was unwarranted and unauthorized.

This increase, Mr. Reynolds says, is clearly not in accord with the agreement reached at the meeting of the county assessors of the state held at Lincoln earlier in the year.

The county clerk is backed in this stand by members of the county board of commissioners and by C. H. Hendrickson, county attorney.

County Assessments Over Schedule A schedule of assessments was reached by the county assessors at their state meeting. Wayne county assessments on cattle were made above schedule, the average valuation of cattle over the state being $30.00, while the Wayne county average was $46.50. The recent order for a general advance of 10 percent on cattle assessments would make the tax in this county far too high, the county officers feel.

It is not known at present just what action the state board will take on the stand of Mr. Reynolds.

The total valuation reached by the state on Wayne county property this (continued on page five)

Their daughters, Helen and Dorothy Felber, who have been traveling with the Student Travel tour this summer, and, who are now visiting in eastern cities, wrote their parents four or five weeks ago that they were sending them a package from Switzerland.

The package did not arrive until Tuesday and proved to be a four-pound Swiss cheese.

Childs, Osmond, young man and formerly a student at Wayne State Teachers college. Only the two immediate families were present.

Miss Mable Childs was the bridesmaid, and George Downing was the best man. The bride was dressed in a flowered chiffon gown with an even hemline. Miss Bereniece Terry, of Norfolk sang two solos, "I Love You Truly," and "Because", with Mrs. E. S. Blair accompanying at the piano. The young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip in the Black Hills. They will make their home at Cedar Rapids, Nebraska, where the groom will teach commercial work in the high school this coming year. They will be at home after August 21st.

PIONEER COUPLE TO OBSERVE THEIR 61ST ANNIVERSARY FRI.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Williams Married in Macon County, Missouri, 61 Years Ago.

MR. WILLIAMS CIVIL WAR VET

A record in the length of wedded life will be established here tomorrow when Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Williams, old Nebraska settlers, observe their 61st wedding anniversary. Occasionally couples celebrate their 50th anniversary, but those who complete 61 years together are not common.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams are yet active, and as Mr. Williams expresses it, "still running the ranch." Their daughter, Mrs. Ethel Lutz, lives with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams were married 61 years ago, August 9, 1868, in Macon county, Missouri, and came to this section of Nebraska 14 years later, where Mr. Williams has followed the carpenter's trade until the last few years. They came to Wayne county 33 years ago. Mr. Williams is one of two surviving Civil War veterans in the county.

This worthy couple have five children living, Guy Williams and Ethel Lutz, of Wayne; Mrs. Lou Delaney, of Allen; Mrs. Martin Timer, of New Rockford, North Dakota; and Richard Williams, of Neligh.

WAYNE MAN BEATS IOWA CORN RECORD

C. J. Johnson, of Northwest of Wayne, Goes Winner of Tribune Contest One Better.

The farmer who won the Sioux City Tribune contest for tall corn at Lake Okoboji, Iowa, recently, may have been going some, but Wayne county farmers have corn almost a foot higher. At least C. J. Johnson, on the Wilbur Spahr farm northwest of Wayne, brought a stalk to the Martin Ringer real estate office last week that measured exactly 13 feet, 6 inches in height, which is 10 inches taller than the 12 foot 8 inch stalk that won in the contest at Lake Okoboji.

The stalk is now on exhibition at the lamp pole in front of the Ringer office, having replaced the 12 foot stalk from the Henry Bush farm brought in last week. The Johnson stalks lacks only a few inches of overtopping the lamp pole. Come on you farmers, who will be the first to bring in a stalk that will wave above the lamp?

Shoulder Dislocated in Accident With Bicycles

When her bicycle collided with one ridden by Carol Peterson, Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock, Hazel Liveringhouse was thrown to the ground and sustained a dislocated shoulder and severe bruises.

Hazel Liveringhouse, the Peterson boy, and a Graham boy were riding their bicycles on Pearl street when the accident happened. Hazel ran into Carol when he stopped ahead of her.

At the hospital it was found that beside a dislocated shoulder, the girl had a broken humerus.

Former Wayne Resident In Montana June Flood

An interesting letter was received by Judge J. M. Cherry last Saturday from Joe D. Cullen, of Wibaux, Montana, a resident of Wayne some 14 years ago, when he was a teacher in the public schools of the county. Mr. Cullen related a flood which occurred in his town recently. "Our town is just recovering from a bad June flood. The water was nine feet deep in my office. Three lives were lost, and we think it fortunate that there were no more. The national Red Cross came in for six weeks and spent $20,000 in rehabilitating the devastated homes." Mr. Cullen's home, fortunately located on high ground, escaped the flood.

SOME CHANGE IN FAIR PREMIUM LIST

The seventh annual premium list for the Wayne county fair is now in the process of printing and will be distributed within a few weeks.

Except for adding one class of draft horses and for changes in two classes of cattle the premiums paid out will be the same this year as last. The mares and geldings of draft horses are placed in two separate classes, instead of one as done heretofore. And the premiums on two of the classes of cattle were increased.

The premiums offered by the different departments of the fair will be as follows:

Cracker-Jack Case is Dismissed in Local Court

The case in county court against G. R. Schelley and the Nash-Finch grocery, of Norfolk, and Ralph Rundell, Wayne grocer, on charge of violation of the pure food law, was dismissed last Thursday morning, for lack of evidence to prove that there was intent to break the law.

Defendants were able to produce orders to show that the cracker-jacks they had ordered from the Chicago manufacturers were not the novelty packages which had been sent to them.

The Wayne Parks Are Proving Very Popular Among Picnicers This Year

With the addition of several more combination benches and seats to take care of the increasing crowds and a new building in the east park, the Wayne public parks will be among the finest and most up-to-date in towns of this size in the country.

The park committee have decided to replace the east park building which is too small, with a new one 16 feet square, which will house the toilet and the park tools.

Over 300 people made use of the west park last Sunday, coming from all over this part of the state. Crowds have been large in the park this summer, since the ash and maple trees are now large enough to afford pleasant shade thruout the day. The two parks are the frequent meeting places for tourists from different parts of the state who wish to get together for picnics. According to J. H. Fitch, park superintendent, Sundays and evenings count the largest attendance, but the parks are in use at all hours on pleasant days.

People who come from a distance comment on the well kept appearance and the pleasantness of the two parks, and the variety of swings, teeter-totters and sand pits there are for the amusement of the children. Mr. Fitch and R. T. Whorlow, his assistant, put in their whole time in caring for the parks and keep them in tiptop shape.

WILL THE WORM TURN?

For the first time in the known history of man, the males of the human race are showing signs of revolt against the tyranny of clothes. The pajama fad, with its promise of a degree of comfort in the heated summer months, is beginning to get adherents, here and there. And the report comes from New York that the clothing manufacturers, alarmed, are ready to fight the movement at the drop of a woolen suit.

No one can advance a good reason for men binding themselves about the neck with a shirt and adding to the torture by a tightly wound and fastened piece of silk in the form of a necktie. Yet that is what men do.

No one can advance a good reason for intelligent beings going out into blazing sunlight in hot woollens, wound from head to foot in wrappings that add to discomfort.

Women, lightly, and with a fine, free scorn for the conventions, cast aside her swaddling clothes long ago. She adopted the garb of common sense in summer.

There are those who have fought this reformation, asserting that with each shed garment woman sacrificed more of her mystery, and that the ancient feminine allure is lost with today's revealing styles.

Perhaps the men, by clinging to their garments, are seeking to hold their mystery. Perhaps they think that their allure will be more potent, if the Adam's apple stays concealed.

'Tis doubtful. The risk is worth taking, at any rate. We're all for the new garb, whether it be pajamas or paper. But let some braver soul make the first plunges.—Omaha World Herald.

The Absent-Minded Prof.
(U. P. Magazine)

"Who's the absent-minded one now?" said the professor as they left the church one rainy night. "You left your umbrella back there and I not only remembered mine but I brought yours too." And he produced them from his coat.

His wife gazed blankly at him. "But," said she, "neither of us brought one to church."

Ohio Cattle Feeders

Visit Nebr. Sand Hills

Ohio Men Pay Visit After Nebraska Cattle Win at Fair.

The sand hills of Nebraska were visited last week by a special train load of cattle feeders from Ohio and Michigan, many of whom had been feeding cattle raised in that section for the past several years.

Enthusiasm about the sand-hill territory was evident in the party after the trip of inspection began there. A general questioning of visitors brought out comments that expectations were exceeded by the grass and the fresh water lakes, as well as by the appearance of the herds of Herefords.

The trip was an outgrowth of the championship competition at the Ohio state fair last year, in which the fat cattle prizes went to cattle fed in Ohio, brought from the Nebraska sand hill range.

The day's itinerary included visits to the ranch and hay country from Seneca to Brownlee, a stop at the farm of Robert Lee, a master farmer in 1928, the national forest reserve near Halsey, the Bessey nursery and its tree planting experiments, at Theford, where the visitors again took the train after a fish dinner.

Leaders of the party are Earl G. Reed, agricultural agent of the New York Central; N. E. Shaw, editor of the Ohio Farmer, and Bert Wermuth, editor of the Michigan Farmer. Twenty-five cars were used in the sand hills visit.

THE NEW CENSORSHIP

Why it should be left to a senator from New Mexico to attack the vicious censorship set up in the Hawley tariff bill we cannot say; but at any rate, Senator Cutting has made a well-directed and vigorous attack.

Senator Cutting believes that the task of deciding what adult Americans should read is a job for a superman and

"supermen are not to be found in the poorly paid positions of literary adviser to the bureau of customs."

Prof. Zechariah Chafee of the Harvard law school, has already pointed out that the famous Section 305, which prohibits the importation of "any matter advocating or urging treason, insurrection or forcible resistance to any law of the United States," is so badly drawn that it might be construed to mean exclusion of the works of Marx, Prudden, Bakunin or Stirner, because they all advocated forcible resistance to some government some-

Furthermore, it was not to some indefinite country located somewhere across the seas, but to the government of the United States that Thomas Jefferson referred when he wrote to Judge Tyler:

"God forbid that we should ever be 20 years without such a rebellion."

What country can preserve its liberties if its rulers are not warned from time to time that the people preserve the spirit of resistance? Let them take arms. The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of tyrants. It is its natural manure."

Under the proposed law it would be criminal to import that utterance of Jefferson into Jefferson's native country. And this law, be it remembered, is not to be administered to weigh evidence and theoretically guided by enlightened reason. It is to be administered by bureaucrats in the treasury department, from whose decision there will be no appeal. Senator Cutting is justified in his assumption that such a law invites the "ridicule of the civilized world."

Peru, Nebraska, can boast of 20 inches of rainfall during the month of July, with a full five inches at the last downpour! And we thought we had a wet July in Wayne.

The Hartington Herald spends several columns in last week's paper telling about the severe heat wave which has stricken that city, while the News of the same town, reports that stalks of corn in the locality were nipped by frost recently. Peculiar weather in Hartington!

Norfolkians are assured by Secretary Humphrey, of the Norfolk chamber of commerce, that they will have the bull fight at the forthcoming rodeo as advertised, in spite of the ruling of Attorney General Sorenson to the contrary. But it will be a nice peaceful bull fight, Mr. Humphrey says, one that would not offend even the attorney general.

FARMERS MUST ORGANIZE

Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, has recently given advice to the American farmer that he must build cooperative organizations. Legge pointed out that the board was created for the purpose of working with organized groups. The recent federal crop aid bill was passed on the assumption that the farmers would organize, would work together, and there is no chance for it to work unless they do.

Which makes us wonder why agriculture is not better organized in this locality. So far as we are able to learn, except for the 4-H clubs which are doing laudable work, there are no farm clubs of any kind in the county, and there is one cooperative marketing group of indifferent strength.

Is local interest in such enterprise what it should be? Some weeks ago, under auspices of state leaders, the mat producers held a regional meeting at West Point for the purpose of uniting on an advertising campaign to boost the consumption of meat. Wayne is in a live stock section, one of the best in the state, yet so far as we can learn, very few farmers of this vicinity attended that meeting.

Effort toward farm relief must begin at home.

THE CROPS ARE FINE

The Democrat reporter perambulates about town, and his ears catch the currents of talk that are circulating. Right now he is struck by the favor of those currents. What do we Waynites talk about now, on the verge of dog days? Art and science? There may be a certain amount of it in the air, but the reporter doesn't understand it, and he hasn't paid attention. The hot weather? It is frequently mentioned, but only on the side, and seems to be welcomed rather than otherwise. Business? "Business is dull right now," say the merchants, but even that seems secondary in their thoughts.

No, what is on everybody's tongue is talk of the harvest, of the bumper corn crop that is coming. "Hot weather is good for the corn," all say when we will under a 100 degree sun, "Let us have more of it." They are saying it in the grocery stores, in the millinery shops, on the street and on the hill. We shouldn't wonder if that is what the high school girls are chattering or the babies are cooing in their cribs. "Crops are fine," everybody says.

There is no cool Eastern aloofness toward the welfare of agriculture about us Waynites. We are too near the soil ourselves.

THE PRESS AND THE WETS

The address of Mrs. Clara Clayton, Nebraska president of W. C. T. U. at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening was stirring in its appeal for law observance and for fighting the wets to the last ditch. Mrs. Clayton charged the press of the country with misrepresenting the liquor situation, and gave many quotations to prove her point. On the whole her charges may have been correct, but sweeping statements often prove unfair and we believe that this one was. Much misrepresentation no doubt there is, but the majority of the papers of the United States are dry, sincerely so we believe. And there are some publications just as sincerely wet, neither of which classes would wilfully misrepresent the situation.

And, excellent as Mrs. Clayton's talk was, in one statement we believe she was guilty of misrepresentation. That was in her charge that the press of the country had represented Wickersham, head of the crime commission, as advocating the repeal of the 18th amendment. Mrs. Clayton may have access to newspapers to which we do not, but in none of the papers on our exchanges, and there are several, did we find a statement to that effect. In fact, the Omaha World-Herald, admittedly one of the wettest papers in the state, quoted Mr. Wickersham exactly, so far as we could recall, as did Mrs. Clayton Sunday evening. And if the World-Herald did some sneaking in its editorial columns upon Mr. Wickersham's exact meaning, it was entitled to do that, as the head of the crime commission's meaning was none too clear. We believe that the bulk of the newspapers in the country quoted Mr. Wickersham correctly.

There were callers at the house and little Charles felt that he should contribute something to the conversation. "We've had chicken four times this week," he said, pottily. "Four chicken! What extravagance!" exclaimed one of the visitors. "Oh, no, said Charles, "It was the same chicken."

MORE INQUESTS

A corner's inquest is to be held to determine whether there was criminal responsibility in the death of a Norfolk young man who was struck by an automobile while he was changing a tire on his own machine at the roadside.

This is an encouraging sign. Ten Madison county residents, we believe, have been killed within the last few months in automobile accidents, and if we are not mistaken this is the first inquest to be held.

We have come to take automobile killings as the price we pay for progress. We lean to the fatalistic attitude that they are inevitable, so why do anything about it?

They are the price we pay for progress, but they are something more than that. They are the price we pay for using the implements of progress carelessly. There are few serious automobile accidents that are not caused by recklessness, momentary or habitual. Sometimes, often perhaps, it is the victim himself that is guilty of carelessness. Many times all the contributory acts of negligence or commission were not committed by one person. In the case of collisions both drivers are often at fault.

The responsibility ought to be fixed. It ought to be fixed not only for purposes of prosecution in case the offense is flagrant, but also for the purpose of educating and warning other drivers. If it were published that a specific act of negligence caused the death or injury of an automobilist, some faster driver might have a lesson impressed upon his mind sharply enough to keep him from committing the same reckless act.

Certainly if an inquest saves even one life, it will be well worth while. —Norfolk Daily News.

TARIFF NOTIONS OUTGROWN

The dual purpose of American tariff making was explained by one of the American business men who sailed to attend the congress of the International Chamber of Commerce to be held in Amsterdam. One of the questions there to be taken up is the bearing of tariffs upon foreign trade. In Europe they are felt to be obstacles to it which ought to be removed. That has never been the point of view of American protectionists, but some of them are coming to see that, as Julius H. Barnes said, "we cannot set up here an exclusion policy because we are depending more and more upon our export trade to keep our plants running."

This goes beyond the point of an agricultural surplus which must be sold abroad. It looks to the fact that our manufacturing capacity has been developed beyond the consuming power of this country. We must find foreign markets or see our own glutted. Hence arises the need of another impossible formula for a protective tariff. It must operate so as to restrict the foreign trade of other nations but greatly to stimulate ours.

If all this sounds more like metaphysics than taxation, the reason is that the United States has far outgrown the old tariff notions. They are like clothes which no longer fit us. Try as we will to stretch them to cover our increased bulk they only tear in the process and leave us looking more awkwardly dressed than ever. Some time the country will wake up to the fact that the true object of a tariff is not to take away with one hand what is given by the other, but to promote internal trade and overseas commerce in the most effective ways possible; knowing that on every transaction a profit is reaped by both sides engaged in it. —New York Times.

WE AND THE FARMERS

A Farmer's Picnic, especially an annual affair, should be about the biggest gathering outside of the county fair.

This county, in fact, the several counties about us are about as absolutely agricultural as it is possible for a county to become. At present I can not think of a single occupation that is not directly connected with farming some way or other in its many branches.

The merchant is the medium between the farm produce and the necessary merchandise of the farmer.

And the other businesses are in daily contact with the farmer. Therefore we are agricultural. We may not be farmers but we must be farm minded. We must be vitally interested in the really big industry of the country. I am not sure that all farmers are so much interested, and I can readily guess that there are business men that are not too much interested. And here's the point. When we have an annual farm picnic or meeting or whatever it is called, all the farmers, all the business men, and their wives, and their kids, and their hired girls should go and make it a representative occasion of the main industry.

I am not saying this just to create an impression but I do believe that it is the truest bit of common sense. If I am in sympathy with the chief industry, the more I boost that industry, the more I know it, the more my individual efforts support it, and if what I say about me applies to you, and you, and you; then we'll all be better off in friendliness and general esteem along with added prosperity. —Wisner News-Chronicle.

N. E. Nebraska Farmers

Picnic at West Point

Prominent Farm Leaders to Talk Tomorrow at Farm Bureau Gathering

Tomorrow farmers of northeast Nebraska, gather at West Point for a Farm Bureau picnic sponsored by the Nebraska Farm Bureau federation. They will have an opportunity to get first hand information about what is being done toward farm relief at Washington, thru the speech of Chester H. Gray, director of the legislative department of the American Farm Bureau federation.

Other speakers on the program include George Farrell, in charge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's extension service in the north central states, and E. A. Tyler, director of Insurance and Finance of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

Fresh from the battle-ground on Capitol Hill, Mr. Gray will narrate the story of the struggle for tariff revision and explain its relation to the Farm Bureau program for farm relief.

Mr. Gray was first president of the Vernon county Farm Bureau, first president of the Missouri State Farm Bureau, and in 1919 when a national organization of state Farm Bureaus was contemplated he participated in the preliminary meeting at Ithaca, New York, where he helped draft the constitution which now guides the activities of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

In addition to these speeches by the farm leaders there will be various entertainments and a playground for the children. The program will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, and will last all day.

Following is the complete program:

- 10:00 a. m. Games, races, contests for all.
- 11:15 a. m. The Relation of Insurance and Finance to Agricultural Development.—E. A. Tyler.
- 12 noon Basket lunch.
- 1:15 p. m. 4-H Club Specials.
- 1:30 p. m. Extension Service Part in Agriculture's Adjustment.—George E. Farrell.
- 2:30 p. m. Entertainment.
- 2:45 p. m. The Farm Bureau Member and Legislation.—Chester H. Gray.

The program, it is promised, will be on schedule and the speaking will close promptly at 3:45.

W. C. T. U. Head Speaks at Local Church Sunday

Urges Union to Combat Moderation Groups; Press Misrepresents, She Says.

That the numbers of the W. C. T. U. should continue in their crusade for temperance and for the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and combat the influence of "women's moderation" organizations recently formed, was the declaration of Mrs. Clara Clayton, state president of W. C. T. U., of Lincoln, who spoke before a small group at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening.

Mrs. Clayton said that the people needed to be told the truth about the prohibition situation, and accused the press of being guilty of much of the misrepresentation that has taken place. She charged that the Women's Moderation Union and the Women's Organization for Prohibition Reform, were both organized since the last election to combat the dry forces.

Mrs. Clayton urged that the W. C. T. U. increase its strength to offset the work of wet organizations, and to enlist the young people in temperance work.

2600 Young Men Are Attending C. M. T. C.

About 2,600 youths from Iowa and Nebraska arrived at Fort Crook last Thursday for the opening of the annual citizen's military training camp.

The first day was spent in registration, physical examinations, the issuing of supplies and assignment of the young soldiers to quarters.

Friday morning the youths were routed from their bunks by reveille and the 30-day period of training began in earnest.

The mornings will be devoted to intensive drill in military formations and maneuvers, while the afternoon program will be given over chiefly to athletic contests.

Of the group of 2,600 more than 75 present are from Nebraska, officers at the fort said.

Training of the young men is under the supervision of reserve officers of the 345th reserve infantry. Col. C. A. Trotter, commandant at Fort Crook, has charge of the encampment.

Herbert Perry and Burr Davis are local boys attending the camp this year.

Dr. Keim Leads Group On Nebraska Farm Tour

Five auto loads of Nebraska agriculturalists left Lincoln Monday morning July 29 for a 14 day field study of Nebraska. Dr. F. D. Keim of the college of agriculture was in charge of this class of bankers, county agents, teachers, senators, college students, and insurance men.

The delayed harvest and threshing prevented many farmers from taking this trip it is believed. A number of applications were cancelled at the last minute due to pressing farm work according to those in charge.

Among other places the group made stops at Kearney, North Platte, Sidney, Scottsbluff, Alliance, Hot Springs and Sylvan Lake, South Dakota, Chadron, Valentine, Long Pine, North Fork, and Fremont. They observed both good and bad practices in agriculture.

Things which are of special interest included pump irrigation, soil types, plant diseases and insects, large scale farming, sugar beet growing, Captain Cook's ranch, and the Black Hills. College students and others in the party who have registered in the University will receive college credit for this observation trip.

After a young fellow and his girl had got comfortably seated in the show here the other evening he discovered that a fellow sitting on the other side of his girl was taking advantage of the darkness and slipping an arm around her waist. "Say, tell that fellow to take his arm from your waist," he whispered to the girl. "Tell him yourself," she whispered back, "he's a perfect stranger to me."

County Treasurer Now Writing Applications For Drivers Licenses

All Drivers Must Have Them Before the First of October.

The county treasurer started writing applications Saturday for the new auto drivers' licenses required under the statute which becomes effective September 1. A number of these applications already have been filled out, and the licenses will be sent to the applicants when received at the county office. Fees will be paid for licenses when received.

Those seeking licenses must appear personally at the treasurer's office to make out their applications. No driving test will be required of all who have driven a car for at least six months. Although the new law becomes effective September 1, 30 days leeway is allowed for the procuring of licenses.

The following questions are asked on the applications:

For how long a period prior to the date of this application have you operated a motor vehicle?

Do you suffer from any physical defects that would detract from normal ability to safely operate a motor vehicle?

Have you suffered dismemberment of foot?; leg?; hand?; or arm?

Are you subject to vertigo or fainting spells??

Are you deaf?? Is your hearing seriously impaired??

Has your operator's license ever been revoked or suspended, and if so give date and period of suspension and date and period of revocation?

Do you now own a motor vehicle?

Age? Race? Complexion?

The law requires that each person who operates a car must have a license. When there are several drivers of the same car, each must have his own license. Licenses will not be granted to those under 16 years of age, or to those who have not been a driver of a motor vehicle for at least six months, unless each can demonstrate his ability as a driver to the treasurer or have some competent driver vouch for him.

The licenses will be good as long as the holder lives in Nebraska unless revoked due to careless or reckless driving, or for other reasons. The licenses must be carried while the holder is operating a car, if drivers would escape penalty.

TREASURER NOTIFIES BOARD TO DISREGARD TAX INCREASE

year is $40,077,551, as compared to $40,210,570 last year, but the assessment of the county due to the raising of schedules will be considerably higher—$96,136.12 in 1929 and $2,833.77 in 1928.

The assessment increases ordered by the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, are as follows:

Cattle, all classes, 10 percent.

Telephone companies, 20 percent.

Telegraph companies, 30 percent.

All electric light, power and heating, 10 percent.

Water companies, 40 percent.

It is understood that a telegraph company has filed an injunction against the law.

Levy Announced Friday

An increase of more than 16 percent in the state tax levy from that of 1928, was announced last Friday by Harry Scott, state tax commissioner.

The increase is nearly a third of a mill, bringing the rate to 2.40 mills, compared with the last year figure of 2.06 mills.

The boost of 34 hundredths is less than early estimates made by Mr. Scott, who believed the 1929 levy would be 2.50 mills.

Mr. Scott explained that the valuations in the state had been greatly increased, that corporate franchises had been assessed this year, and that the revised intangible tax law is expected to bring greatly larger returns. These offset to a partial degree the increase in appropriations made by the legislature, which voted a total of $16,053,785.80 of operating expenses from the general fund during a two-year period, and an additional amount in emergency appropriations for this year of $807,621.21.

The general fund is to get 2.18 mills and the capitol fund of .22 mills from the 2.40 levy.

General tax valuations have gone up 60 million dollars, Mr. Scott declared, from a total of $3,125,000,000.

Intangibles are expected to yield 256 thousand dollars, compared with 146 thousand dollars in 1928. The total this year is about 300 million dollars.

Seventy-Five Bushels Is Oat Yield Record Here

Thrashing Hindered by Rain and Dew; Oat Market Takes Drop.

Following the sharp drop in the grain market last week, farmers temporarily have almost ceased delivering their oats to the local dealers. Thrashing is now under way again after having been delayed nearly a week by the heavy rain July 30 and by the heavy dews. With a week of good weather the small grain thrashing should be nearly completed.

Yields per acre are much better than usual this year, both barley and oats averaging between 35 and 50 bushels per acre on most of the farms. The exception is the grain struck by hail. Very little of this has as yet been threshed. Twenty-five and thirty bushels per acre are reported from hail-struck fields which have been threshed.

One of the largest yields of oats was reported from the farm of Beck Brothers southeast of Wayne, who threshed 75 bushels per acre from an eight acre field. Carl Frevort, who also lives southeast of Wayne, reports 60 bushels per acre from a field of barley.

The four cent drop in the price of oats which has caused local farmers to quit selling was due largely to the unusually large shipments of grain, especially wheat, to the markets. Eleven hundred carloads of wheat were received on the Omaha market last Monday, the largest day's run ever experienced there.

Will Lay Cornerstone of Neihardt Hall Soon

The ceremony of the laying of the Neihardt hall cornerstone will take place within the next two weeks, according to plans now formulating at the college. The grand lodge of the Masonic order and probably the grand master himself, will be present for the occasion.

The cornerstone will be laid in the southeast corner of the new wing. It is hoped to hold the ceremonies before the completion of the summer session at the college, and the event may take place August 26.

Those who like biography of the romantic, semi-fiction type will find it in "Don Juan, Or the Youth of Byron," by Aundre Maurois, the first installment of which appears in the August number of the Forum. The unconventional, passionate people are what Maurois does best, and Byron should offer full scope for the Frenchman's light pen.

The Forum, according to its liberal policy, makes a practice of publishing debates by prominent people on the leading questions of today. What I find most interesting are their Socratic dialogues, in which a number of people of opposing views take part. Nothing is ever settled but views are well aired to the entertainment and education of the reader.

Religion is a difficult subject for such a debate, but it is handled rather ably in the August number of the Forum, under the title, "Does the Modern World Need Religion?" A number of people meet together at the home of Henry Goddard Leach, the editor of the Forum and discuss this subject, which discussion is taken by a stenographer and reprinted in the Forum. Present are a Catholic priest, the wife of an Episcopalian rector, a Methodist minister, two athletes, including the famous, (or infamous, according to the point of view) Mr. Clarence Darrow, a student of Cambridge university, England, and the editor of the Forum.

The discussion makes good reading, but we are a little disappointed at the end that a group of such able minds should not give more that is really constructive to those of us who have not been able as yet to make up our minds entirely about the value of religion.

The chief difficulty, I believe, was the inability of these worthy people to find a satisfactory definition of religion. Each has his own idea of what he believes religion to be or what it should be, and he finds it desirable or undesirable accordingly. They all agree that world brotherhood is desirable, that selfishness is not desirable, but they cannot agree on whether what they think of as religion will help to bring about this desirable end.

Our Pender poet, it appears, is known beyond the confines of Nebraska. Besides frequently appearing in Nebraska Farmer, Agnes Macklin is preparing manuscript for the Stratford publication, and it is said that she will appear soon in the London Poetry Review.

Here are two more verses from her pen:

Why is it folks is yearnin'
To do somethin' what they ain't
And always just been burnin'
To do somethin' that they can't.
There's a world of satisfaction
If you sees just what you are
Instead of ever reachin'
For some bling'n' star.

Man wants but little here below
Hath hall expressed it truly.
A pair of knees bare, cold and these
Will he ignore most coolly.
But let him pass a comely lass
With shoulders coy draped boldly
And silver hose but half exposed,
He's captivated wholly.

The Farmer's Wife Is Using More Electricity

Lights, Washing Machines, Flat Irons Most Used on Nebraska Farms.

Farm women evidently make use of more electrical appliances than their husbands according to a farm survey conducted by the college of agriculture. Lights, washing machines, and flat irons were the three electrical devices most used on Nebraska farms connected with electric power lines. All of them had lights and about 75 per cent had washing machines and flat irons.

Nine and one-half cents per kilowatt hour was the average charge to farmers securing their current from private companies, it was found. This made about fifty dollars annually for each farm. When agriculture can make use of greater quantities of electricity, this unit cost can be lowered according to the Nebraska experiment station bulletin 236 in which complete data of the study were just printed.

Some farmers obtained their electricity from municipalities, some from private companies, and others from farmer managed lines. Further possibilities seem to be evident for more farm connections on lines between towns, this bulletin says. There were about 1500 miles of pole lines in Nebraska of which the voltage was 13,200 or less which is suitable for farm connections according to engineers.

There were nine farmer managed lines in this state, they found. Further information on the cost of current and the consumption was secured thru a study of three organized farm lines. Additional facts were also gathered on the various rates and rate contracts which have been used in supplying electricity for farm use. The aim of the authors of this publication has not been to offer suggestions for further possibilities but simply to present the pertinent material.

Nebraska Hatcherymen at Chick Convention

About thirty Nebraska hatcherymen, poultry raisers, and poultry specialists were in the delegation from Nebraska at the International baby chick association convention at Minneapolis, Minnesota, beginning Monday July 29 to August 2.

Officials from the United States Department of Agriculture, state poultry specialists, and hatcherymen from nearly every state in the Union gathered for this annual meeting. The educational exhibits included great displays of poultry appliances, labor saving equipment, and live poultry. The Nebraska group represented a 40 million dollar industry in this state.

Among the prominent speakers appearing on the convention program were Dr. M. A. Jull from Washington; Dr. C. H. L. Shrader, United States Department of Agriculture; James G. Halpin, University of Wisconsin; and Dr. W. A. Lippincott, University of California.

Poultrymen from the Nebraska agricultural college at the convention were J. R. Redditt, J. H. Claybaugh, and Roscoe Hill.

Omaha Exchange Flooded
Following the arrival of 4,004 cars of wheat in a week at the Omaha Grain exchange, by far the largest week's business ever done by the exchange in its 25 years of existence the rule requiring the weighing of grain at the Omaha market was suspended until midnight of August 10. Thousands of cars of wheat are being loaded and are enroute to the Omaha market. The unusual receipts of wheat are due, it is said, to the higher prices being paid by the Omaha market as compared to other markets.

McCormick Pays a Visit To Neligh and Vicinity

International Harvester Man On Tour of Inspection.

Harold McCormick, son of the famous tractor and farm machinery capitalist, paid a visit to Neligh implement dealers August 26.

Harold McCormick, son of the famous tractor and farm machinery capitalist, paid a visit to Burrett and Obershaw in Neligh and Oakdale Friday. He was accompanied by George M. Durkee, branch manager of the Omaha zone office of the International Harvester company, owned by the McCormicks.

The two distinguished visitors were making an inspection trip over the International Harvester company's territories, visiting each dealer on their route. They spent about two hours in Neligh and Oakdale before continuing their trip to Omaha.

Harold McCormick, a young man in his twenties, is a nephew of John D. Rockefeller and only recently his uncle made him a present of $5,000,000.

It is said that a young fellow living west of town bought a new car and took it home to surprise the old folks. He took the old man out for a spin, and as they were whizzing along the road asked him how he liked the machine. Just then the young fellow lost control of the car and it banged into a tree, doubling up the fenders and shaking up things in general. As the old man crawled out of it he said: "Wa'al, I guess it's all right, but how in thunder do ye stop it when thar ain't any trees around."

Silo Profit Is in the Feeding

Dairy Farms and Live Stock Feeders Declare Silage Is Essential.

The proof of the silo profit is in the feeding. Wisconsin has proved the economy of this. If the value of silage in the live stock ration was known all over this land as well as it is in this state, where there is one silo to every 30 head of cattle, there would be 2,000,000 silos built in America in the next three years. All the evidence is in favor of this feed as a profit-bringing, milk-making and beef-building ration.

Corn silage can be grown and put into the silo for less than $6 a ton. Some reports set the cost figures as low as $5 a ton. This is crediting the corn as being worth about 94 cents a bushel.

Value of Silage.

Experts in different states claim that when butterfat is selling for 45 cents a pound, corn silage will bring the dairy farmer $10 per ton, and when fat steers are selling from $9 to $10 per hundredweight, corn silage is worth from $7 to $8 per ton. The owner of a silo with a fair yield of crop can receive a value from his corn made into silage of $70 to $80 an acre when fed to steers, and $100 when fed to good dairy cows.

It has been proved that, with dairy animals, the feeding of silage saves from 8 to 15 cents on the cost of producing a pound of butter, and from 30 to 50 cents on producing 100 pounds of milk. For beef production the saving produced by silage is about $1 per 100 pounds of gain.

It is true that the horse is decreasing in numbers, but the cattle census must be kept up and will be kept up by the steady demand for milk and meat. It is probable that the values placed upon silage as given above will be considered too low before next spring.

Make Study of Silo.

It is just the time to make a study of their value and economy, watching the feeding through the winter and letting the facts stand as proof that thousands more should be set to work making money for stockmen. Experiment stations, dairy farms and live stock feeders all over the United States have proved that the silo is of highest importance in the economic production of stock and stock products. The half-million progressive stock farmers who are using silos find them indispensable. For many years we have urged the trial of the silo as a money maker.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Grafting Relationships Not Clearly Explained

(Prepared by the United States Department)

One of the facts of plant life on which scientists would like to have more complete information deals with the relationship of plants within which grafting may be done. As Guy E. Yerkes, of the United States Department of Agriculture, remarked recently, the limits of this botanical relationship are not clearly defined. "Varieties within the same species," he said, "may be expected to unite; for example, all varieties of European pear will grow on French pear stock. Often different species within the same genus will make satisfactory unions. As an example, most botanical species of apple (Malus) will grow on each other. On the other hand, cherry will not unite with peach, although both are placed by many botanists in the genus Prunus. In many cases, plants more distantly related may be grafted and will grow, as hawthorn upon apple and firethorn upon mountain ash. The citrus fruits are related closely enough so that they by no means uncommon to see a single stock, which has been grafted, producing different fruits on different limbs, lemons on one, oranges on another, and perhaps grapefruit and tangerines as well."

Fall Plowing Will Make Enlarged Crop of Oats

On average land oats will usually make a larger crop when the ground is plowed shallow in the fall. One is usually less likely to get a good stand of clover when it is sown in oats on fall or spring plowed ground unless the land has been disked and rolled to get it into a firm seedbed, than when the land was only disked for oats. The surface of the plowed ground will dry out deeper than on disked land and the clover seed is not so likely to have as good moisture conditions for germinating on plowed ground as on disked ground. A good rolling will overcome this tendency to a large extent however.

Plant Food Will Make Crops More Pleasing

On soils that are full of plant food, the crops will grow quickly and more succulent. The individual plants will grow larger and freer from fiber and thus be much more desirable for table use. This applies more particularly to salad crops like cabbage, celery, spinach, etc. The very best kind of root crops will be produced on such soils. The radishes thus grown will be less peppery and free from fiber—the kind that fairly snap when you bite one of them. Beets and carrots, too, will be tender because they have made a quick growth.

Flavor of First Wife's Cooking Found at Last

A middle-aged spinster married a widower, who had lost his first wife after a marriage of 15 years.

The spinster, who lived for years with her aged mother, was brought up in the spirit of immaculate house-keeping. An old-fashioned house-keeper, the mother excelled in cooking and her daughter kept fairly well in her footsteps.

Yet, despite her efforts and her skill in culinary arts, the new bride never succeeded in quite satisfying her husband.

"It's fine, Sadie," he told her often, "but there is just something amiss. My poor Mary could give the food a flavor I never find anywhere else. I don't know just how she did it."

Then came a day when housecleaning kept Sadie on her toes all day. In a rush to have everything clean and in order by the time her hubby arrived, she forgot to look after the meal. When she remembered, it was too late. There was a burned meal.

Ashamedly she watched her husband taste the food. But how surprised was she, when he exclaimed:

"Now, Sadie, that's really fine. It has that delightful flavor which distinguished Mary's cooking."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Snakes Not Aggressive; Called Lazy and Timid

"Contrary to lore, snakes do not attack humans wantonly," reads an article in the news magazine Time.

"They are lazy and timid and do not strike unless hurt or threatened with hurt," the article continues.

"Exceptions are the African mamba, the Malayan king, the bushmaster of the tropics, and cascavel, a rattler of Central America. A coachwhip sometimes follows a man. But it is only curious, and will speed away if threatened."

Other facts about snakes are given in Time as follows: "Identifying poisonous snakes is easy. Most of them belong to the pit-viper family. They have a deep depression between eye and nostril. Heads are flat and triangular, necks thin, bodies stout; tails short, eyes with elliptical pupils like a cat's. Fangs fold back against the roof of the mouth. A single row of scales runs along the belly. The biggest United States snake is the eastern diamond-back rattler, which grows to nine feet."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

When Teeth Were Weapons

Most of us, from our earliest days, are at intervals gravely troubled by our teeth. It was not always so.

The jawbone of the Heidelberg man, who walked this earth about 50,000 years ago, is placed alongside that of modern man. We realize that our underkneelers, as the Germans call them, are but as toys when compared with those of our earliest ancestors.

The jawbones of still more ancient people than the Heidelberg race were even more formidable, as they were provided with projecting teeth, which, without much doubt, were used in fighting and in other many sports of those days.

Value of Mental Training

Mental training, both in reading and in special study, does much to keep the individual happy, wideawake and healthy. Much of the trouble in the world comes from worry; if a man or woman is busy with his own interests and retains the ambitions of earlier years his chances of a happy, profitable life seem greater.

The plight of the unhappy individual who never reads or who has no special hobbies is not a pleasant one. The practice of mental thrift, of utilizing the brain through later years, makes a richer, fuller life.—Thrill Magazine.

To Strengthen Eyes

Eye exercise to strengthen the muscles are advised by certain physicians, and these should be done before breakfast. Keep the head still and roll the eyes upwards as far as possible, then right downwards, with a steady and unjerky motion. Continue rolling the eyes right, then left. Now lift them upwards and inwards, then upwards and outwards; and finally downwards and inwards, and downwards and outwards. Do this five times at first and gradually increase to twelve a day.

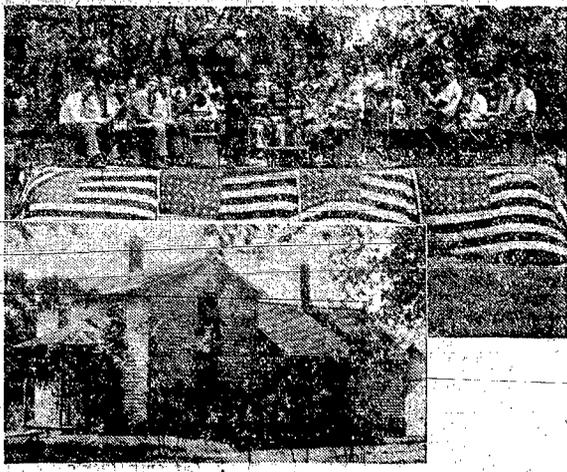

Daily Thought

From the lowest depths, there is a path to the loftiest heights. The tendency to persevere, to persist in spite of hindrances, discouragements, and impossibilities—it is this in all things that distinguishes the strong soul from the weak. The man without a purpose is like a ship without a rudder—a waf, a nothing, a no man. Have a purpose in life, and, having it, throw such strength of mind and muscle into your work as God has given you.—Thomas Carlyle.

Church Communion

The Encyclopedia of Church History defines "open communion" as the service of the holy communion of saints which is open to all who apply, irrespective of creed. In "closed communion" the service is confined to the members of a single society or at least to the members of a denomination who are baptized. By "communion of place" is meant the administration of the sacrament in a consecrated building. It also refers to the retention of the Host.

Pilgrimage of Orphan Boys to the Orphan Home of President Hoover

Band composed of homeless boys who will play at the 55th birthday celebration of President Hoover at West Branch, Ia., the birthplace of the President, on August 10. The boys are from Father Flanagan's Boys' Home, Omaha, Neb. (Below) Picture of President Hoover's birthplace, as it exists at West Branch today. The small room at the rear was the original home site.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 8—Father Flanagan's Boys' Home will make a pilgrimage of orphan boys to the orphan home of President Herbert Hoover at West Branch, Ia., on August 10.

The occasion will be the fifty-fifth birthday of the orphan boy who became president of the United States.

The celebration will take place in front of the Hoover birthplace. The Pilgrim Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are to place a historic marker in front of the birthplace.

"We want to call the attention of the world to the fact that Herbert Hoover was an orphan boy who received the highest position within the reach of an American citizen," said Father Flanagan. "Our boys want to pay their respect at his birthplace as an inspiration to all homeless and orphan boys. Our boys are trained to do big things, and we hope that some day one of our boys may occupy the high position in Washington."

Sodium Chlorate May Cause Cattle Losses

Tests made in the division of veterinary medicine at University farm show that sodium chlorate, a weed destroying chemical, will cause sickness of cattle if taken in small amounts and death if taken in large quantities.

Therefore, when the material is used in pastures for weed eradication it is necessary to fence off temporarily the areas where it is to be applied, says A. C. Army of the farm crops section of the Minnesota experiment station. "Even if chlorates were not injurious to cattle," he says, "the fencing off of areas to be treated is advisable from the standpoint of using the chemical to the best advantage. Grass to which the chlorate has been applied is eaten greedily by cattle. Any chlorate they may eat is lost as far as bringing about weed eradication is concerned.

"Continued satisfactory use of these chemicals depends on the avoidance of accidents in making the applications and of injury to animals after the applications are made. In no case should a person apply the chlorates without having full directions for their use. These directions should be followed in detail whenever the chemicals are handled."

Valuable Supplement to Corn in Feeding

Soy beans are a very valuable supplement to corn in feeding steers and hogs. They are about equal in feeding value to either linseed meal or cottonseed meal and can be substituted for the mill feeds to balance corn when feeding steers or hogs. From 2.5 to 3 pounds per head per day should be...

However, soy beans are very rich in oil and this will have a tendency to throw both hogs and steers off feed if the beans are fed for a long time. If hogs follow steers that are fed soy beans instead of linseed or cottonseed meal the hogs should have some tankage in addition.

Live Stock Items

Knowledge is power in the control of swine diseases.

Remove sow at weaning time. Allow no other hogs in the pasture.

Preventive measures to control pig diseases should begin before the litters are farrowed.

Lack of exercise causes weak lambs, so one should be sure the ewes receive a little exercise each day.

Like feeding, breeding is not the only thing to be considered in handling live stock; both must go hand in hand if the best results are to be obtained.

Pigs of all classes respond to good forage. It is especially valuable in the ration of young, rapidly growing pigs.

Pregnant ewes require a rather liberal supply of protein for developing the foetus and producing wool as well as for body maintenance.

Spring pigs that are to follow cattle on feed in the fall and winter should not be full fed prior to this time, as they become too fat and inactive to be

Standard Time in America

Standard time is a civil time established by law. In the United States there are four standard time zones adopted by the railroads, corresponding severally to mean local time of the seventy-fifth, ninetieth, one hundred and fifth, and one hundred and twentieth meridians west of Greenwich. It is computed from the sun, not from the stars.

Alligators' Growth

Alligators grow very slowly and it is estimated that at fifteen years of age they are only two feet long; therefore, a twelve-footer may be reasonably supposed to be seventy-five years of age. The rate of growth varies with animals in their wild state and those kept in captivity, and it is also governed by the amount as well as the type of food given.

Humanity Set Apart

Every now and again I meet up with a "lonely" man or woman, who is such because, through some idiosyncrasy of creation, he or she is different from the common run of us. It is rather sad, because there appears to be no help for it. Such folks are like moths confined in a chest of cotton garments.—Portland Oregonian.

Babylon Large City

Many expeditions have been sent out to excavate the ancient city of Babylon—the first in 1784—but it was not until after the real work of Deutsche Orient Gesellschaft, begun in 1890, that the outer wall was traceable. From this time they were able to determine that the city of Babylon covered 12 square miles.

Life's Real Business

Our business in life is not to get ahead of other people, but to get ahead of ourselves. To break our own record, to outstrip yesterdays by todays, to bear our trials more beautifully than we ever dreamed we could... this is the true idea—to get ahead of ourselves.—Malthus D. Babcock.

Has Changed Meaning

The name "Patagonia" was first used to designate all the southern part of South America, but is now used to designate the region bounded on the north by the Rio Limay and the Rio Negro, the Atlantic on the east, the Strait of Magellan on the south and the Andes on the west.

Brazil Nuts

The oily three-angled nuts known as Brazil nuts grow on the "lecythidaceous" tree. The nuts themselves grow inside a large fruit. Each globular fruit contains from 18 to 24 closely packed nuts. These are the nuts which are often known as "nigger toes."

History of Goldfish

The first goldfish was bred from the Asiatic Crucian carp by the Chinese, who took 500 years to develop the goldfish from it. Later elaborated forms were produced by the Japanese who took over the breeding of goldfish for commercial purposes.

"Her Weight in Gold"

Betsy Hull is the heroine of a narrative of Colonial times which relates the fact that her father placed her in the container on one side of a large pair of scales and balanced the scales by pouring into the corresponding container shining gold pieces.

Select Turkey Breeders for Next Season's Crop

Before picking the Thanksgiving birds select the breeders for next year. Choose those birds which show good growth and development. The shanks should be heavy and fat and the legs well-set under the birds. A knock-kneed condition reveals lack of vigor. Crooked keel bones are objectionable. They may be caused by poor feeding or they may be the result of breeding. If possible, do not keep birds with crooked keel bones for breeding purposes. In the colored varieties, turkey growers prefer birds with good color, but health and vigor are more important than color.

Application of Orchard Sprays to Save Fruit

Nearly everyone has read and appreciated the truthfulness of this terse sentence—"Save the Surface and Save all." This statement may be applied with equal effect and force to the application of orchard sprays. Like the paint on buildings and fences, sprays, when applied to the surface of the fruit and foliage at intervals of from twelve to fourteen days up until five or six weeks of harvest time, will save the surface from injury by insects and disease and may prove to be the best insurance against failure.

How Much Water Should Baby Get? A Famous Authority's Rule

Baby specialists agree nowadays, that during the first six months, babies must have three ounces of fluid per pound of body weight daily. An eight pound baby, for instance, needs twenty-four ounces of fluid. Later on the rule is two ounces of fluid per pound of body weight. The amount of fluid absorbed by a breast fed baby is best determined by weighing him before and after feeding for the whole day; and it is easily calculated for the bottle fed ones. Then make up any deficiency with water.

Giving baby sufficient water often relieves his feverish, crying, upset and rest less spells. If it doesn't, give him a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. For these and other ills of babies and children such as colic, cholera, diarrhea, gas on stomach and bowels, constipation, sour stomach, loss of sleep, underweight, etc., leading physicians say there's nothing so effective. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper—and millions of mothers have depended on it in over thirty years of ever increasing use. It regulates baby's bowels, makes him sleep and eat right, enables him to get full nourishment from his food, so he increases in weight as he should. With each package you get a book on Motherhood worth its weight in gold.

Just a word of caution. Look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on the package so you'll be sure to get the genuine. The forty cent bottles contain thirty-five doses.

The Truth About Coffee

Is coffee bad for you? According to a most elaborate investigation by Professor Samuel C. Prescott, who spent $30,000 investigating the chemistry of the coffee bean, about 2 per cent of people do not derive from it the pleasant effects it generally produces and probably 5 per cent should measure their indulgence in it with care. It was only after months of experiments and the brewing of countless cups of coffee which he got everybody he could induce to drink, that Professor Prescott arrived at this conclusion.

His Findings Confirmed That was nine years ago, but nothing has been added on this subject since to change his findings. He also obtained indications that perhaps it is not after all the much blamed caffeine which is occasionally disturbing to a few people, but that the coffee bean contains other substances some of which in solution may be injurious.

That was as far as Professor Prescott and his assistants got, but more recent investigations by other eminent scientists have proved that he was on the right track. They have discovered that coffee contains certain aromatic oils, and that oxygen is the enemy which attacks them and finally affects the coffee to such an extent that it becomes unfit to drink.

Fortunately a way has been found in which to keep fresh roasted coffee fresh, flavorful and palatable. That is by packing it by the vacuum process in tightly sealed containers which render it absolutely impervious to oxygen. After these containers have been opened, the remaining coffee should be kept in tightly capped Mason jars.

La Porte News

John Baker has just completed screening the porch on his farm which is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Max Brudigan. It adds much to the comfort of the occupants.

Threshing is the order of the day on the farm now. The machines are chiefly owned by a group of neighbors who help each other, thus making a crew. When their own work is done they put their machine in the shed. In this way no one needs to stack his grain as two weeks of good weather will give ample time for completing the work. About seven to ten farmers are usually sufficient to make a crew. The farmer who has the largest acreage furnishes the most help.

Oats in this vicinity is yielding about a 50 bushel average. Mrs. Carl Beck had 5 acres which yielded 80 bushels. This is well above the average crop which is nearer 35 bu. to the acre.

World's Coal Fields
North America, Europe and Asia have the greatest coal fields in the world. The coal fields of China are vast and of great promise, but are still practically untouched. North America surpasses all the continents in the extent and variety of its fuel supplies and the United States leads the world in coal production. There is little prospect of any country surpassing it before that far-distant day when the great coal fields of China are well opened. The coal resources of the United States are 61.8 per cent of the total for the entire world, which in 1925 was estimated at 7,685,000 metric tons.

Pretty Italian Legend
A peasant bell ringer of early days in Italy, writes Satis N. Coleman in his book, "Bells," was so devoted to the large bell which he rang every day that when orders were given for it to be kept silent for a time, his grief was unbearable. He climbed to the belfry, threw his arms about the bell, and wept. Leaning against it he wailed so bitterly and so loudly, and the sound of his voice was so intensified by the metal, that his wailing was heard like the mournful ringing of a bell all over the city and far out into the country beyond. There he died, so the story goes, broken-hearted, still clinging to his beloved bell.

Didn't Want to Be Cured
It happened in the waiting room of the Melbourne hospital. He was a full-blooded aboriginal, unversed in the ways of white doctors. He turned to the hefty youth sitting on his left and questioned him about his complaint.

"I got crook tonsils and they're goin' to be cut out," said the youth.
The abo. goggled, then turned to the laborer on his right. "What you got?" he asked.
"Gotta' ave me arm off—me wrist's poisoned."
Binghi made a bolt for the door. "I got it headache!" he gasped as he ran.—Sydney Bulletin.

But Not Voting
A Scotch clergyman had a parishioner who was a rabid politician with distinct democratic leanings. One day when the parson called he was told of a new litter of kittens.
"And do you think they'll be interested in politics?"
"Deed, yes, sir. They're conservatives."
The parson was surprised, and even more so on his next visit, for he was informed they were liberals.
"Why this change, John?"
"Och," said the old fellow, with a wink. "They've had their eyes open since you were here last."—Sporting and Dramatic.

Seek to Reduce Cost of Honey

Losses and Gains Shown to Be Closely Related to Colony Yields.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Beekeeping practices and management as well as the marketing of honey have been studied during the past year by the bureau of entomology and agricultural economics of the United States Department of Agriculture with a view to formulating methods that will help the beekeeper produce honey at a profit.

A preliminary report of the survey of apary practices in the intermountain region—Utah, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, and Idaho—covering the data secured in 1923 will soon be ready for distribution. A similar study will be started this year in the clover-honey-producing region and both studies will be continued until sufficient data have been obtained to warrant advice being given or practices and management in beekeeping as well as regarding honey houses and equipment that have been found to be efficient and profitable.

Beekeepers Keep Records.
Beekeepers co-operating with the department in these surveys keep daily records of labor and expenses, make invoices, and report on the management practiced under a variety of conditions. This information will be of interest to all beekeepers who desire to compare their management practices with those of other beekeepers.

Forty aparies were included in the 1923 survey, ranging in size from 150 to 1,800 colonies, and covering a total of more than 24,000 colonies.

The results of this survey, according to E. L. Sechrist of the bureau of entomology and R. E. Kifer of the bureau of agricultural economics, show that the great variance in labor and investment costs, as well as the yield per colony, have a marked influence on the beekeeper's profits.

Co-Operation Necessary.
Such investigations cannot be carried out successfully without the active co-operation of the various state agricultural extension agencies, the bee press, beekeepers' organizations, and particularly the beekeepers themselves. All these have done excellent work in the past, and help given by them in personal contact has been of great value, the bureau says.

The work undertaken in the clover region this fall will depend to a considerable degree on the assistance and co-operation of local beekeeping specialists and beekeeping organizations. Any organization able to assist in these surveys is invited to communicate with the division of bee culture investigations, bureau of entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Paradichlorobenzene Is Useful to Control Pest

An effective method of controlling the plum tree borer that is also inexpensive has been developed by the zoology-entomology department of the South Dakota experiment station.

The new remedy is simple and its estimated cost is not in excess of 3 cents per tree, according to Prof. George I. Gilbertson, of the department. Ordinary paraffin is melted and paradichlorobenzene, or P. D. B., is added at the rate of one part to nine parts of paraffin. A thin coat of this solution—one pint to every four or five trees—is then brushed on the trunks and larger branches of the trees.

When it hardens, the paraffin-P. D. B. combination forms a protective coat which does not chip off in summer temperature and which allows the dissolved P. D. B. to vaporize slowly and enter the tissue of the borer and kill it. The fumigating action continues for several days until the larvae of the borer are dead.

This method is believed to be the first practical and effective control ever produced during two decades of research.

Prevent Horns Growing on Very Young Calves

To prevent horns from growing on young calves secure at a drug store a stick of caustic potash. When the calf is two or three days old and as soon as the buttons where the horn grows can be felt, clip the hair close to the skin just where the horn will grow.

Then wet the end of the stick of caustic potash and rub the button until it turns red but not until it bleeds. Do this with both horns and no horns will grow.

Be careful not to use too much of the caustic potash. If any of it runs off it will burn the hide. Also use paper on your hands so as not to burn your fingers.

Co-Operative Marketing of Different Products

Co-operative marketing of farm products is one way of increasing the farmer's bargaining ability. Co-operative marketing has been getting on a sounder basis in recent years, and farmers will probably find it an important way of safeguarding their interests in the future. The tendency in business is toward concentration of bargaining power. Co-operation is the farmer's most effective way of accomplishing this end.
