Funeral services were held from St. Paul's Lutheran church, at 9:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 17. Rev. W. C. Heidenreich, pastor of the church, officiated at the services. ## Wayne County's Relief Contribution

Courtesy Sioux City Tribune

The above picture of Wayne county's poultry car was taken Sunday morning by Craven's Studio. "Bunt" Fleetwood and "Red" Perrin, standing in the car, went with the chickens to Texarkana, Ark., where the biddies and roosters are to be distributed to the drought sufferers. "Bunt" and "Red" received instructions to stay with the car until they have seen that it is properly disposed of.

Wayne county's car-load of poultry left Sunday afternoon at about three o'clock, filled to capacity, and headed for Texarkana, Ark., accompanied by E. E. "Bunt" Fleetwood and C. J. "Red" Perrin.
So successful was Wayne county's campaign to send a car-load of poultry to drought sufferers that a few chickens had to be taken out of the car and sold. None of the money contributed for purchase of chickens had to be used.
A committee meeting Sunday morning showed $976.38 in the hands of committee treasurer Martin L. Ringer, and it was deemed advisable by committee members to purchase food-stuffs with the cash, since people solicited had been given to understand that food, not money, would be sent.

Sunday afternoon a committee consisting of C. E. B. Shoof of Winside, Frank Phillips of Hoskins, J. J. Ahern, H. S. Seace and M. L. Ringer of Wayne, went to Omaha, paying their own expenses without using any of the money from the poultry fund. Monday morning they purchased a small car-load of canned goods, consisting of 547 cases.

W. H. Baxter, in charge of Red Cross relief work for the midwestern area, advised shipment of the car to Little Rock, Ark., and the committee made arrangements to send the Wayne county food contribution to that place.

The load of 20,000 pounds of canned goods was purchased from an Omaha wholesale house at ten percent less than wholesale price. The car contained 150 cases of stewed tomatoes, 85 cases of canned milk, 12 cases of baby-food milk, 100 cases of canned corn, 100 cases of hominy, and 100 cases of miscellaneous goods.

While committee members were in Omaha, they made arrangements for publicity in the Omaha World-Herald, and the Bee-News. Both papers promised to give Wayne county credit for the spirit shown in sending aid to the Arkansas drought sufferers.

Publicity has been given to Wayne county in The Norfolk Daily News, The Sioux City Journal, and The Sioux City Tribune. Radio stations throughout the middle west have complimented the county on its enterprise and its charitable attitude.

Cash receipts from the campaign are as follows:
Wayne ..... $725.30
Winside ..... 172.50
Hoskins ..... 27.75
State surplus poultry ..... 50.83
All money contributions at Carroll and Shoof were used for purchase of chickens in those communities.

BOOTLEGGER PAYS FINE OF $366.80

Harvey Freed Enters Plea of Guilty to Possession and Sale Charges.

Engaging in the occupation of bootlegging proved unprofitable to the extent of $366.80 to Harvey Freed, who lives two miles west of Hoskins. Freed paid out that sum in county Judge J. M. Cherry's court Monday, Feb. 16.

Freed pleaded guilty to two charges of sale of moonshine whiskey and one charge of possession, and was fined $100 on each charge. Costs totalled $66.80.

The prosecution charged that Freed had sold moonshine to William Gosch, Hoskins farmer. Sheriff Stephens found some whiskey on Freed's place when he searched it, Feb. 7. Stephens also found a supply of bootlegger's equipment.

How About It?

Fifty years ago, the first load of lumber was hauled into what is now the city of Wayne.

Local business men have been discussing the advisability of a Golden Jubilee celebration for the past month, but as yet no action seems to have been taken. Such a project would be a fitting tribute to the rise of Wayne and would be a splendid thing for the community, in the opinion of those who have been giving thought to the matter.

The Nebraska Democrat is heartily in sympathy with any move to give due credit to Wayne for the enormous strides of advancement our city has taken in fifty golden years.

Such a celebration would entail considerable expense—and it should either be staged on a large scale or not at all. If the community is desirous of a Golden Jubilee celebration and is willing to pay for it, The Democrat promises its heartiest support. By that, we do not mean publication of a special advertising edition, because The Democrat feels that desire for personal gain should be kept out of civic propositions.

We mean that The Democrat would be willing to serve in whatever capacity happened to be assigned to it in the furtherance of a celebration in honor of fifty years of progress. Our interest is confessedly selfish in some degree, because betterment of the community means betterment of everyone in the community.

Car Leaves Road; Occupants Injured

Girl in Serious Condition as Result of Wreck Saturday Night.

Lou Baker, who lives five miles out of Wayne, and Jessie Legg of Newcastle, Neb., were seriously injured Saturday night when the car in which they were riding went off of the road. Mr. Baker was driving.

Mr. Baker suffered bad lacerations of the ear and three fractured ribs, as well as a number of scars.

Miss Legg had her right chest crushed and suffered crushing injuries to the right kidney. She was critically ill Tuesday, but Dr. Paul Sman reported her condition as improved Wednesday. It was thought for a time that the girl might succumb to her injuries.

She is being cared for at the W. E. Evans home at 608 Logan street. Her folks came from Newcastle to be with her.

It is thought that loose gravel was responsible for the car's leaving the road.

ANOTHER TOURNAMENT
High school regional basketball tournament will be held in Wayne on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Mar. 5, 6 and 7. The three high teams of the district tournament will be allowed to compete.

Gay Will Present Local Movie Shots

Moving pictures of Wayne people, taken last Saturday in connection with the campaign to send a car-load of poultry to Arkansas, will be shown at the Gay theatre in Wayne as soon as the pictures have been printed.

The pictures were taken by The Nebraska Democrat through special arrangements with Lynn's Photo Finishing store of Sioux City, Iowa. Titles for the pictures had to be made in Chicago and it is the titling of the picture which causes delay in securing the finished print.

The Sioux City concern expects to be able to deliver the film by Saturday of this week, and the local pictures will be shown in connection with the regular news-reel at the Gay. Shots were taken of the crowd, of individuals bringing poultry contributions to the car, of the Wayne municipal band and of the free act.

MAGICIAN THRILLS SATURDAY CROWD

Wonder Worker Presents Long Performance of Magic Effects.

Approximately 2,500 people were thrilled Saturday afternoon by the performance of Clifford, the magician, presented through the courtesy of The Nebraska Democrat.

Clifford, working at a disadvantage because of a strong wind, kept his audience mystified and amused for one hour. From the time he made his handkerchief change color until he escaped from 100 feet of rope he kept spectators in an hilarious mood.

The youthful wonder worker convulsed the crowd with merriment when he pulled a live chicken out of the back of a youngster's coat. He had young and old folks alike guessing when yard after yard of ribbon began issuing forth from a borrowed hat.

Courtesy Sioux City Tribune

One little girl was almost in tears when the magician stabbed a butcher knife again and again through her handkerchief, but her smile was restored when he returned it to her again unharmed.

This magician is noted in magic circles for his skillful manipulation of an old magical effect, the linking rings, and he had Wayne county folks guessing and scratching their heads at his presentation of this trick.

The suave young miracle worker seemed to enjoy his work immensely, and his own apparent enjoyment added materially to the effect. His performance ended only because he thought the cold wind was making spectators uncomfortable. He has enough magic equipment to present hours of entertainment, and those who watched him were desirous of seeing him again. The Democrat received a good deal of favorable comment on the calibre of the entertainment.

D. M. Follington will speak to Wayne Kiwanians Monday noon on the subject, "In Your World of Construction." The lecture will be accompanied by visual illustrations.

Auto Victim's Widow Files $25,000 Suit

Mrs. Blanche Trumbauer Asks Damages for Husband's Death.

Mrs. Blanche Trumbauer, widow of the late Irvin C. Trumbauer and administratrix of his estate, has filed suit against the Rapid Transit bus line, Joe G. Friedrich, Paul Coburn, Daniel Coburn, F. H. Way, and Edward Grangulst, for $25,000.

The suit is an aftermath of the accident in which her husband was run over and killed by an automobile.

The plaintiff charges the Rapid Transit line and Joe Friedrich, owner of the bus company, with negligence in colliding with a truck, and in driving the bus to within 100 feet of the top of a hill and allowing it to stand without pilot, caretaker or driver. The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the bus company in permitting the bus to be parked with bright lights and failing to signal or warn any approaching car from the west of danger.

Charges Negligence
The plaintiff also alleges negligence on the part of the bus driver in leaving the bus and walking to the bottom of the hill to engage in conversation or altercation with the driver of the truck.

The plaintiff's petition charges Grangulst with negligence in colliding with the bus, in stopping his truck at the bottom of the hill and returning (continued on last page)

Wildcats Win From Kearney, 35 to 19

Wayne State Teachers' college Wildcats took their fifth consecutive win Saturday evening when they defeated Kearney in a one-sided basketball game by a score of 35 to 19. Lindamood was high point man for the local hoopsters. Andrews played nearly the entire game and showed up well after his enforced layoff.

The Wildcats meet Peru at Peru Saturday night.

The Inquiring Reporter

(Every week a Democrat reporter will ask a question of five people, picked at random. If there's any question you would like to have asked, let us know about it.)

Who do you think was the greater man, Washington or Lincoln?

C. H. Hendrickson, lawyer—"I would think Washington was the greater. Washington was, in fact, starting a new republic. Lincoln was instrumental in keeping it together, but Washington took the initiative."

Paul Mines, jeweler—"I've always thought Lincoln. He had to work more 'on his own' than Washington did, and he was successful without the background that Washington had. It's easy to see how a man with Washington's assets would be successful. Lincoln made good in spite of nation-wide opposition to him."

Dr. W. B. Vaill, optician—"I would say Washington. Lincoln had a great many people against him and was successful in spite of it. Washington had the co-operation of the people. Could I have voted at the time of either man, I would have voted for Washington rather than Lincoln."

Mrs. R. F. Jacobs, housewife—"It's hard to say without giving considerable thought to the question. Both men filled their places remarkably well in their time. I would say Lincoln was the greater on account of the condition the country was in when he was in power, and the trying situations in which Lincoln had to work."

James E. Brittain, lawyer—"The comparison of two men of genius is impossible. When values are transcendental, there is no standard to judge them by."

W. F. BIERMANN

Three miles east and three-fourths mile north of Altona

born in the territory of Nebraska on Jan. 18, 1856. Long before that his father, Alois Gramlich, came to America from Germany on a sailing vessel that consumed 90 days in making the passage.

Alois Gramlich, the Nebraskan's father, left Illinois with his wife for California in a train of prairie schooners in 1855. When the travelers reached Kanessville, now Council Bluffs, they discovered the emigrant train they expected to join had already left for California. They faced the prospect of waiting until the next year for another train to be formed. They decided to put up for the winter near Bellevue at a place where hay could be obtained for their stock. They selected claims at East Larimer Mills, a steamboat landing on the Missouri, near where La Platte now stands. By spring the train disbanded. Some of the members went back to Illinois, their old home; the rest, all but the Gramlichs, went to California. Mr. Gramlich took a pre-emption claim on 160 acres but traded it later for one he liked better. He gave his last horse to boot because it had wood and water. Having no horses, he was compelled to go back to Illinois and buy a span for $200. That was in 1857. It was eight years before he got that debt paid.

Samuel Gramlich recalls that his first school was held in a granary, next in a neighbor's farm house. His third school was Dist. No. 6 in Sarpy county, a log-house with one door, three windows, and a sod roof. The seats were cottonwood slabs, 14 feet long, flattened on the seat side.

The pioneer citizen with the prize record for continuous residence on one piece of land has 11 children. He and his wife celebrated their Golden wedding last September.

The new Ford is an economical car to own and drive

Low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation mean a distinct saving to every purchaser

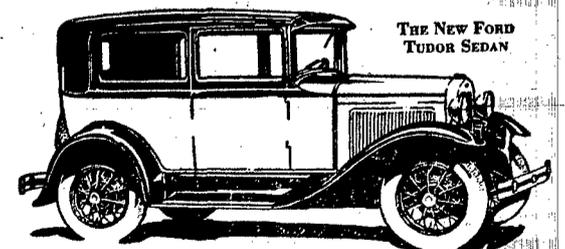

THE NEW FORD is a splendid car to own and drive because of its attractive lines and colors, safety, comfort, speed, reliability and long life.

There are, in addition, three other features of importance to every far-seeing automobile owner... low first cost, low cost of operation and up-keep, and low yearly depreciation.

During the life of the car, the day-by-day economy of owning a Ford will amount to considerably more than the saving on the first cost. You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive.

The reasons for this economy are simplicity of design, high quality of materials and care in manufacturing and assembling. Many vital parts are made to limits of one one-thousandth of an inch. Some to three ten-thousandths of an inch. Throughout, the new Ford is an outstanding example of fine craftsmanship in automobile engineering.

The more you see of the new Ford—the more you talk to Ford owners and experienced mechanics—the more certain you become of this fact... It brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

A PAT ON THE BACK

Wayne county's car-load of live poultry WAS a car-load, and then some. The campaign to aid starving men, women and children in the Arkansas and Texas drought area went over the top beyond our fondest expectations.

The Democrat is proud of Wayne county. Our citizens have shown that they can be counted upon to back a worthy cause to the limit. Wayne county folks gave a little more than they could afford, in many cases, and everybody supported the campaign in fine fashion.

Wayne, Winside, Carroll, Hoskins and Sholes all did their part and more. But the towns of the county could never have put the proposition across without the loyal support of the farmers. It was up to the rural citizens of the county to make the drive a success, and they came through in great style.

Farmers get cussed a lot. City people say that they aren't as public spirited as urban residents. Some folks believe the charge is true, but no one could doubt the splendid spirit of Wayne county farmers after seeing the way in which they filled the poultry car last Saturday. Nobody had to be argued with. Nobody had to be begged to support the cause. Wayne county farmers had learned of the need of unfortunate Arkansans, and that was all that was necessary.

There are mighty few communities that would answer a call for charity as readily. If you contributed to the poultry fund (and you undoubtedly did) you can "give yourself a pat on the back" without being accused of egotism.

Wayne county is a great county, inhabited by fine, friendly people.

THEY'RE "WORRIED"

Some "worry" has been expressed by a few persons in connection with the campaign to send a car-load of chickens to the drought area that needy people here at home would not be taken care of.

The county has its relief agencies, all of which function remarkably well. When there is immediate need those near the affliction can remedy it easily unless the situation becomes too serious. Should such a situation arise, the Democrat would most certainly advocate a campaign to relieve the trouble.

We had thought that Wayne county was in rather good condition, and heard little of any extensive dire poverty. Those who have been dubious about the chicken campaign should have felt it their duty to inform others about terrible conditions in our community, if such conditions existed.

The "worry" was uncalled for, in our belief. It even seems to have been rather bad taste, coming at the time it did. We have enough faith in the public spirit of our citizens so that we are not the least bit worried.

A WORD OF THANKS

The railroad companies are deserving of high commendation for their attitude in shipping drought relief contributions without charge. When Wayne county wanted to send a car-load of live poultry to the people of Arkansas, no difficulty whatsoever was encountered in securing free transportation.

As a matter of fact, the railroad officials co-operated at every turn, advising the best destination for the shipment and the best routing. The railroad organization got the poultry car from the Live Poultry Transportation company without charge.

Locally and nationally railroad officials have been doing their part with remarkable efficiency.

Too many of us are inclined to think of the railroad organization as a gigantic corporation without a soul. But the railroads, in the face of hard competition from trucks, are willing to do their share in the relief of any national emergency.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Sunday we will celebrate the birthday of George Washington, the father of our country. Washington was a great man and he was a pioneer.

Next year, the government plans to stage a real celebration in honor of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of our first president.

France and the United States will join in honoring the memory of Washington during the six months of the International and Colonial exposition sponsored by the French government, which will open May 1. The American exhibit at the exposition will help to bring the world-wide celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of Washington's birth to the attention of all nations.

The 1932 celebration seems a fitting proper observance in honor of the memory of one who did much to start the United States on a path towards leadership of nations.

Our iconoclasts have tried to revile the memory of Washington, just as they have tried to defame other great men, but Washington, it seems, was great enough so that no amount of mud-slinging can dirty the picture of him which exists in American minds.

BUTLER'S "CRIME"

Court-martial proceedings against Major Smedley D. Butler of the United States marine corps, because he made some remark about Mussolini at a private banquet, have been dropped, but the fact that a court-martial was contemplated against this noted soldier isn't easily forgiven, especially under the circumstances.

A little ancient history regarding General Butler might be interesting. In 1900 the Boxer Uprising occurred in China. At that time a young engineer named Herbert Hoover and his wife were in that country. The life of every American there was in danger, and to protect them a body of marines was landed. Among this contingent of marines was a lieutenant named Smedley D. Butler. In protecting the American civilians, including Herbert Hoover and his wife, the young marine lieutenant showed such conspicuous bravery that he was rewarded with the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest recognition that this country could give him. Later on in his career, he won this coveted decoration again.

Thirty-one years passed by, and this same Smedley D. Butler, now a major general in the marines, while speaking at a private party made some reference to the Italian dictator to prove that treaties didn't necessarily mean peace with some individuals. The Italian ambassador to the United States heard of these remarks, and demanded an apology. Before an investigation was made to see whether Butler was justified in saying what he did, the apology was granted by a secretary of state who was formerly civilian secretary of the navy and who was at odds with navy officials, among whom are the marine officers.

General Butler talked too much, perhaps, and should have been reprimanded. Such action was contemplated by the navy department, but instead of such action, Herbert Hoover, the young engineer who was protected at one time by Butler, but who is now president of the United States, ordered a court-martial of the man who might have been instrumental in saving his life. Before the farce was carried through to completion, however, the charges were dropped.

Isn't it about time the United States apologizes to Kaiser Bill for things said about him during the war?—Cedar County News.

Malcolm Campbell, the English speed fiend, insists that 245 miles per hour is but a snail's pace and that we are just on the threshold of new and undreamed of speeds. The racer may be right. But we have not learned to control these high speeds. An automobile that will go 245 miles per hour is of no practical value. This speed is like electricity in Franklin's day. People know that it existed but could not use it.—Lincoln State Journal.

FAMOUS SONS

Nebraska is entitled to place statue of two of its famous sons in the hall of fame at Washington, but thus far has not done so, and may not for some years to come. Famous sons who might be thus recognized include the late W. J. Bryan, J. Sterling Morton, Col. W. F. Cody, better known as "Buffalo Bill," James C. Huhman, Edward Rosewater, Bishop R. R. Clarkson, Charles F. Manderson, Count John A. Creighton and his brother, Edward Creighton, Father Riggs, Dr. Harold Gifford, and several others.

The Omaha World-Herald recently conducted a survey to ascertain the sentiment towards the selection of two famous sons for the recognition, and found it to be in about the order the names appear above. Only the names of men who have passed from life can be considered, but the names of several still living were prominently brought out, among these being General John J. Pershing, Gilbert M. Hitchcock and Senator Norris.

Some of the names of men mentioned as famous sons are practically unknown to people of the present day, but they nevertheless played a prominent part in the affairs of the state in their time. Edward Creighton, for instance, is the man who built the first telegraph line west from Omaha, but it is only the pioneers and students of history who connect him up with that historic event. Edward Rosewater as the publisher of the Omaha Bee was the most powerful editor in Nebraska in his day.

He has been dead for more than 20 years, and there are perhaps many of the younger generation who have never heard of him.—Seward Independent-Democrat.

Women are pretty poor losers when it comes to dieting.

THANK YOU

The Nebraska Democrat wishes to extend its sincere thanks to The Carroll-News and The Winside-Tribune for the splendid manner in which they co-operated in giving publicity to the campaign to send a car-load of poultry from Wayne county to the Arkansas and Texas drought area.

Both papers were instrumental in organizing the campaign in their towns and the management of both publications was active in making the drive successful.

Band Gives Concert Saturday Afternoon

Wayne's municipal band, under the direction of Prof. F. C. Reed, added to the holiday spirit in Wayne last Saturday afternoon. The band, in uniform, marched down the street at 2:45 o'clock in the afternoon and played a number of selections on Main street prior to the appearance of the free attraction.

At the conclusion of the free attraction, the band marched to the poultry car and played a few more selections there. Moving pictures were taken of the band, and these will be shown at the Gay theatre along with other pictures taken on Poultry Relief day.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the poultry campaign voted to extend a vote of thanks to the band for their co-operation. Members of the committee said they believed the band concert attracted many people to town Saturday afternoon.

Committee Votes to Thank County Papers

At a meeting of the committee in charge of Wayne county's successful campaign to send a car-load of live poultry to the Arkansas and Texas drought area, held Sunday morning, Feb. 15, it was voted to extend a vote of thanks to The Nebraska Democrat, The Winside-Tribune and The Carroll-News "for the good publicity given this drive." The motion was made by Carl Wright and carried unanimously.

Organizations Aid in Poultry Fund Success

Wayne organizations which contributed to the campaign to send a car-load of live poultry to the Arkansas-Texas drought area are as follows:

- I. O. O. F., A. F. and A. M., Eastern Star, Kiwanis club, Country club, County officials, Professional Womens' club, University Women, U. D. club, Acme club, Coterie club, Fortnightly club, Monday club, Wayne Womens' club, Minerva club, College Y. W. C. A., Alpha club, Wayne fire department, Child conservation league, W. O. W., Walther League, Methodist Brotherhood, Wayne Gun club, P. E. O. society, and the American Legion.

Many of the organizations contributed crates of chickens, and other groups donated cash gifts.

PRISON WELFARE MAN IN WAYNE

Longnecker Asks Funds for Penal Institution Relief Work.

Lloyd W. Longnecker, secretary of the Nebraska Prison Welfare society with offices in Omaha, has been in Wayne since Monday raising subscriptions for prison welfare work.

Mr. Longnecker says that the purpose of the Nebraska Prison Welfare association is to aid those who have made a mistake in life and are now behind prison bars; especially the first offender who has been led into crime through old criminals. "Many of these young men have left good homes and parents who do not know where they are," Mr. Longnecker says. "In such cases we urge them to write home, for many parents are going to their graves worrying about wayward sons."

Mr. Longnecker explains that in many cases, when a man is sent to a penal institution, there is a family left to shift for themselves without any means of support. In such cases, he says, the Nebraska Prison Welfare society tries to give immediate help.

He says that much of the work of his organization is in finding employment for men who have served time and are released. The society tries to get business firms to employ paroled men. He tells of the case of two boys arrested for robbing a Catholic church poor box in Omaha a few weeks ago and says that his society succeeded in taking care of the case.

He says that the organization is non-sectarian and has both Catholic and Protestant pastors on its board of directors.

The Book Box

The Book Box doesn't have time to function properly this week, if the Book Box can be said to function at all—ever. What with work on the Wayne county poultry fund and writing news and scurrying hither, thither and yon, the book box writer just doesn't have time to devote to a discussion of current books.

But a book box should stimulate desire to read, shouldn't it? Maybe a few excerpts from books that this writer has enjoyed might lead someone to investigate the books these little scraps are taken from. With a desire to create desire for reading (and without any thought of shirking the task of turning out a column of literary review) we herewith humbly submit these gleanings:

"Here," she said as he was turning away from the door of her apartment, "you've got a kiss coming to you. When you live up as far as 168th street you've got to do at least that much for any fellow that takes you home."

"And say, listen," she added, just before she closed the door, "Next month I'm going to move up to 242nd Street."

—Heywood Brown, "The Boy Grew Older"

A man once went up in my esteem under the following circumstances. Speaking of a certain critic, I said that what I objected to in him was that his necktie was always crooked. When I went upstairs before dinner I noticed that my own necktie was conspicuously crooked. My friend and not mentioned the fact, or even hinted at it. He knew that I was bound to discover it for myself. An example of masterly self-control—Arnold Bennett, "Things That Have Interested Me."

The art of life is to be so well-known at a good restaurant that you can pay by check.—E. V. Lucas, "Over Bennerton's."

An open mind is all very well in its way, but it ought not to be so open that there is no keeping anything in or out of it. It should be capable of shutting its doors sometimes, or it may be found a little draughty.—Samuel Butler, "Notebooks."

Women, music, poetry, art science, and pure speculative philosophy all requiring lazy days... to them all, Lincoln's answer was spoken in the quaint gingerbread story, the Indiana boy blurring out mournfully, "Abe, I don't s'pose there's anybody on earth likes gingerbread better'n I do—and gets less'n I do."—Carl Sandburg, "Abraham Lincoln."

...I sail on Satire's wings. Satire, who dares to box the ears of kings,

And comes to statesmen as to roguish boys, To snatch from them their baubles and their toys.

—Roy Campbell, "The Waygoose."

Poets must not mock themselves, for mockery is easy;

Rhyme is always tempted to do stage falls into farse; The poet begins humbly, but recoiling from his knees he is too likely to amuse himself by sliding.... (Cetera indesunt)

If poets have to mock themselves, let mockery be bitter:

Avoid the merely comic and the grossly jocular—

My dear, it's always easy to make the public titter.

Every belly-laugh of emos dims the brightness of a star.

SCOTT SHOTS

by "SCOTTY"

Heigh-ho, everybody. No, this is not Rudy Valee, the grape-fruit king, speaking. Well, you certainly did it! We asked you to fill the poultry car to be sent to Texarkana, and you stepped right out and did your stuff.

When Rudy Valee sang, "Give Me Something to Remember You By", someone in the audience threw an over-ripe grapefruit at him, but when starving thousands of men, women and children in the Texas and Arkansas drought area asked for food, we really gave them something to remember us by. And it wasn't words of sympathy, either.

Wayne county let other folks do the talking. Wayne county residents didn't say much, but they sent a car-load of poultry and a lot of canned food that will do more than all the sympathy in the world to help people in the stricken area.

M. S. G. who runs the Chaff for Dinner column in the Waterloo Courier, might be called the elusive columnist.

The Scott Shots household and the M. S. G. family have always been on pretty friendly terms, and when we got word that the M. S. G.'s were going to be in Sioux City Sunday, we got into the car and started for Sioux City. When we got there, we discovered that the M. S. G.'s had started for Waterloo fifteen minutes before.

That didn't mean anything to us, however. We got into the car and started towards Waterloo ourselves. M. S. G. has never been noted for physical speed (although he gets over some pretty fast ones in the mental line.) We caught the M. S. G. family about six or seven miles out of the city. We drove up behind him, honking the horn furiously. The shining light of the Gaffney family thought hi-jackers were after him, but he decided not to put up on fight. He pulled off to the side of the road and we had quite a visit, talking about the things that columnists talk about when they get together, while our wives talked about the things that columnists' wives talk about when they get together.

"We've got (and that's just what he said, too—imagine a columnist using 'have got') a new house rented," said M. S. G. There's ROOM for a garden. Clever people, these columnists. He didn't say there was going to be any garden.

Of course the conversation was not all so trivial. We talked about Einstein's theory of relativity and the Quantum theory and the waning of the nebular hypothesis and the present economic condition in Argentina and current conditions in eastern trade centers and the latest developments in the field of literature. Oh, yes. Bologna is pork, but baloney is hull.

While we were talking about the more serious things in life, Mrs. M. S. G. was telling my wife about how she'd been able to wangle a new davenport and easy chair out of the Chaff for Dinner boy and my wife was trying to think of something I'd bought, but without much success.

The column is in receipt of this letter:

Dear Scotty: Last Saturday when you introduced the magician you used a string of high-powered words that left me bewildered. I don't believe you knew what they meant, and I doubt if you can repeat them again, but if you can, let's have them and their meanings.

Mr. X—

It looks suspiciously like someone is trying to kid this scribbler. However, taking the letter solemnly, I will write this reply:

Dear Mr. X: In reply to yours of the 5th, I beg to state that the words you ask about are legerdemain, conjuring and prestidigitation. They are defined in Webster's New International Dictionary. If you are too lazy to look 'em up, we will be glad to render such clerical service on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope, accompanied by ten cents to cover packing charges.

Scotty.

"Haw! Haw! You'll DIE when you hear this one," laughed the jovial judge about to deliver a death sentence.

Watch Your Vocabulary

Rastus: We 'catched one of dem boys wid loaded dice.

His Boss: You should ostracize him.

Rastus: "Dat's what I wanted to do, but I didn't hab mah-razor wid me."

Clifford, the magician, who presented his program in Wayne Saturday tried to put this one across as a true story. He said that he was presenting an illusion in which he put a woman into a cage and changed her to a cage full of rabbits.

After the performance a Scotchman came up to him and asked, "Can ye do that rabbit trick wi' ma wife?"

"Certainly," Clifford replied. "But why do you want me to do it? Do you want to get rid of your wife?"

"Nay," the Scotchman replied. "But I ha promised the bairns some rabbits for a present."

Speaking of operations (and who was?) what this country needs is a good five-cent scar.

Graciousness and politeness are sound foundations to build business success upon. Aggressiveness must be accompanied by tact, or it will hinder rather than help. Positiveness should not often be apparent, but should always be in existence.

Sheriff Stephens pulled up beside a car parked on the road out by the pavilion about three o'clock Monday morning.

"Hey," he yelled. "What business have you got to be out here at this time of night?"

"This isn't business," came a voice from within, "it's pleasure."

"My friend," the minister said to the ossified drunk, "I wish you would quit drinking. Just think, every drink a man takes shortens his life three days."

"How do you know," the snozzled souse asked.

"Statistics, compiled from intensive research, indicate the truth of my statements. Furthermore, every time an habitual drunkard takes a drink, he shortens his life a week."

"My gosh," said the pickled stew "I've been dad for 12 years."

Many Give Presents to 'Arkansas Travelers'

E. E. "Bunt" Fleetwood and C. J. "Red" Perrin started for Texarkana with Wayne county's poultry car Sunday well fortified against any famine. Box lunches had been prepared for the "poultry-butlers" by Chas. Jeffreys, Carlos Martin, Emil Meyers, Mrs. W. A. Hiscox and J. J. Ahern.

Lou Winegar had given them a supply of milk and cream with which to prepare their meals on the trip, and Dr. T. T. Jones and A. E. Olsen had each contributed a carton of cigarettes. Milo Kremke furnished them with reading material ranging from Christian Business magazine to Captain Billy's Whiz Bang. The Wayne Greenhouse even sent a bouquet of flowers to brighten up the "office" of the poultry car.

The church and the Sunday school are presenting Miss O'Neil and Miss Urban in a benefit recital at the church on Tuesday evening, Feb. 24. This program is given in the interest of obtaining new hymn books for the Sunday school and evening service. The exceptional merit of the program consisting of solo's, duets and readings, (some of these are to be in costume) as well as the worthy cause should pack our church to its capacity. Remember to keep date open for this program.

Considering the fact that we have made no effort for numbers in our school of stewardship, we have had a goodly attendance and a fine spirit. Next Sunday is the closing session. If you have not been attending come on this last night and stay for the beautiful Pageant at 7:30 o'clock.

A meeting of Niobrara Presbytery has been called to be held in our church at 10:30 on Feb. 24. Friday is "The Day of Prayer for Missions". The union service of our churches will be held at the English Lutheran church. There will be two sessions. The first at 10 a. m. and the second at 2 p. m. Rev. Braisted will speak at the 2 o'clock hour.

Ancient Wooden Locks

Burden for Strong Man

The most common lock now in use on exterior doors of buildings is the cylinder-lock developed by Linus Yale, Jr., and this leads us back into history. Primitive prototypes of Yale's invention were in use in Mesopotamia and Egypt as early as 2000 B. C. These were huge wooden affairs requiring cumbersome keys, as we may gather from the Biblical passage (Isaiah 22:22) "And the key to the house of David will I lay upon his shoulder." This key, or muftah as it was and still is called in the East, is a stick of wood from 15 to 30 inches long, 2 to 4 inches broad and 1 to 2 inches thick. Into the face of one end are set a number of wooden or iron pegs about an inch long. These pegs correspond with as many holes in the wooden bar or bolt which locks the door and can only be lifted when these pegs enter the holes and lift a corresponding series of pins which drop home by force of gravity and keep the bar locked until pressed up by the key with its pegs. Such huge keys opened the way into the mighty palaces of Nineveh and Persepolis and admitted to "hundred-gated Thebes." Today in miniature and more refined fashion, the small key that enters the cylinder lock pushes up the little brass pins inside and permits the opening of the door.—Detroit Free Press.

Gas Pressure Used to Stimulate Flow of Oil

In the operation of oil wells a period usually develops when the well is not good enough, and yet is too good. When it has reached a point where the natural flow is too weak through lack of pressure below the ground to produce oil at an efficient rate, a period of real worry is encountered.

Ordinarily, while the flow is too light, it still is too strong to permit the employment of pumps of the plunger type. It is at this time that a new method is being attempted, the gas-lift method, of bringing the oil up. Some success has been attained in forcing gas under pressure down into the ground either through a concentric or parallel pipe. The pressure of the gas, simulating the natural gas pressure, throws the oil up with something like the original vigor. The method in question, however, is still far from perfected, as almost every well presents a problem of its own and no standard can be set for the operation of a gas-lift device.

Modern Kitchen "Slavery"

The aproned figure at the sink gazed sadly at the accumulation of plates and dishes, pots and pans. Was this all that marriage meant?

A heavy sigh, a rolling up of sleeves, and the kitchen was soon filled with the clatter of washing and scouring. The toiler paused from time to time to listen to the steady thrash of a typewriter in the next room.

STRENGTHEN YOUR STAFF OF LIFE

A WOMAN who had sailed the seven seas, seen the new moon rising from the morning mist half-way up the Alps and listened to the weird music of Timbuktu, returned to her home in Iowa. Someone asked her what impressed her most about these various countries she had visited.

"The bread," she replied. This statement would seem to indicate a singular lack of something which travelers are supposed to have—appreciation of the finer things, it is sometimes called. But over in remote sections of Russia, this traveler had sat in a little restaurant of the working people and studied them as they sliced their pumpnickel from the loaf—coarse unbolted rye with its peculiar aromatic flavor. She, too, had eaten it over a bowl of steaming bortsch. She had dined in exclusive boulevard cafes of Paris, where Pierre sliced sections of wheat bread from a loaf almost five feet long—pain ordinaire, as it is called, in contrast to the French pain riche—or rich bread. And from there she had gone into quaint little French provinces, where sea water is used exclusively in bread-making, for the mineral content it affords. Over in Milan she had delighted in the flaky Italian bread with its crunchy crust which accompanies the antipasto or frammaggo; in the chestnut bread of Corsican mountaineers; in the knackerbread or "hard-tack" loaf of Scandinavians. It seemed to student of breads and of human nature that not only had these people put something of their heritage, their crops and their labors, into their breads—but their breads had put something of their personality into the people.

Our National Breads

Here, at home, although we think of bread as a rather uninteresting essential of the meal, there are two typically American breads which are interesting to travelers in our country—the corn bread of the South and the Boston brown bread of Yankee fame.

More and more dietitians here, are making a study of bread. They have discovered that while our favorite white bread is not nearly so lacking in nutriment as it has been sometimes supposed, it needs some strengthening if it is to be our national staff of life. Recently an expert dietitian has made some interesting tests of various kinds of bread substituting canned tomato juice for milk—thus adding that vitamin wealth which tomatoes afford. She makes the following comment on these breads:

"Breads made with tomato juice have good texture and lightness and compare favorably with those made with milk."

New Recipes

Following are some of the recipes which she found nutritious and good:

Tomato Cheese Biscuits: Sift together the flour, baking powder and soda. Work in the butter and cheese, using knives or tips of fingers. Add tomato juice and pat or roll out, cut in rounds and bake in a hot oven—450 degrees—for twelve to fifteen minutes.

Tomato Bran Muffins: Sift together one cup flour, four teaspoons baking-powder, two table-spoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt and one-third teaspoon soda. Add one cup bran. Add two well-beaten eggs and one cup tomato juice and finally three table-spoons melted shortening. Bake in muffin tins in a moderate oven—375 degrees—for about twenty minutes.

Tomato Cornmeal Sticks: Sift together one and one-fourth cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-third teaspoon soda and one-third teaspoon sugar. Add one cup cornmeal. Add two well-beaten eggs and three-fourths cup tomato juice and then one-fourth cup melted butter. Bake in cornstick pans in a moderate oven—375 to 400 degrees—for twenty to twenty-five minutes.

Tomato Bacon Muffins: Sift together two cups flour, four teaspoons baking-powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one-third teaspoon soda, one table-spoon sugar and two well-beaten eggs. Add one cup tomato juice, then add two table-spoons bacon drippings and four table-spoons crisp, minced bacon. Bake in muffin pans for twenty-five minutes in an oven 375 to 400 degrees.

FARM STOCK

YOUNG PIGS NEED DIRECT SUNSHINE

Experiments Carried Out at Saskatchewan.

For years the value of sunlight to growing stock has been admitted without much argument, but just now and why it should be so, has not been so widely known. In an effort to get some definite facts along these lines, Prof. A. M. Shaw, dean of agriculture and head of the animal husbandry department of the University of Saskatchewan, has carried out a series of experiments with young pigs and has reported his findings in "Scientific Agriculture." Three trials were run in the winter and one in the summer, and the findings were unanimous in at least one respect—that direct sunlight prevented the development of rickets, or rapidly improved those that had it, and it also helped make greater gains in young pigs kept in the open than in those kept under any kind of glass. It was also shown that young pigs benefited by direct sunlight much more than those three or four months of age. The question of the kinds of rations the pigs got, that is whether they were balanced or not, did not seem to be so important as whether they included green legumes or other green plants. But the main fact deduced from these experiments is that all growing pigs, particularly those under three months of age, need access to a yard in which they can get plenty of exercise and obtain the full benefits of sunshine in order to make their most economical gains.

Hog Mange Infestation Causes Loss to Raisers

About 20 per cent of the hogs put on the market are infested with mange, according to Dr. G. S. Weaver, extension veterinarian at South Dakota State college. This infestation causes an immense loss to the hog industry because a first-class ham cannot be made from a mangy hog. Mange is caused by a mite and can be controlled by application of crude oil or lime and sulphur dip.

The common mange mite is known as the sarcoptic mite. It is of the same family of bugs that causes scabies in other animals, but this particular one will not live on other species of animals. The mite is too small to be seen with the naked eye. A new generation of these mites appears every 12 to 14 days. Each female will lay 10 to 25 eggs. The mites dig holes in the skin of the hog and cause an intense itching.

Cure for the "Blues"

If an attack of the blues has come upon you, try Emerson for a good nightcap. He will lead you into thoughts so far beyond your petty self that you will forget that such a malady ever existed. If he grows too ethereal, the book will drop of its own weight and sleep will seize you wholly. It may not be complimentary to an author to list his books as sleep-producing (Emerson will not care), and perhaps it would be as unwise to do so as to suggest the best ten books to those whose tastes are as far apart as the poles. But one could mention many delightful bedside books.—In-

Shelter During Winter for Stock Is Essential

It is essential to give thought and attention to the winter shelter of live stock. The principal need is for protection from cold weather and storms. Keep live stock in the sunshine as much as possible but provide a place for them to get out of the cold storms and wind. It is not advisable to try to house them in tightly closed dark stables, for sunshine and fresh air with plenty of exercise and a satisfactory ration makes the best conditions to insure health and good growth. Young stock closely housed will not grow nearly as well as those that spend most of their time in the open when the weather is not too bad.

Live Stock Facts

Fedgs grown on wornout soils, when fed to animals, produce what is known as pica or depraved appetite.

Colts should not be allowed to follow a mare that is working because they not only get in the way, but they get too tired, the exercise doing more harm than good.

Cattle do exceedingly well on early rye pasture in the spring, and it will stand heavy grazing before other pastures are ready. It is not a good summer pasture, however.

The need for a profitable market for grain on a farm devoted primarily to the production of grain will call for a larger number of brood sows or perhaps the purchase of feeder pigs.

A horse or a cow ought to receive an average of about 12 gallons of water a day, depending on the season, the work and several other conditions. A sheep or a hog ought to have at least one gallon per day.

Wild, homeless and stray dogs are responsible for most of the cases of rabies in this country. The disease is on the increase.

A poor weakened condition is often the result of the horses' teeth being too sharp, so they do not properly masticate their food.

Congestion of the lungs is responsible for 63 per cent of the dead hogs found in market shipments and is due to over-exertion and excitement of the animals before they are loaded.

Drive to Middle Ages

The only way to vividly describe a trip to the little republic of San Marino in Italy, say, from such a place as Rimini, is to say it is a carriage drive to the Middle ages. Here it is, just as it has been for centuries—the smallest republic in the world, and high up in the clouds, or as they say themselves, the nearest country to heaven. Its walls are precipices and it has about 13,000 citizens. Entering the ancient gate after the climb to this impregnable mount of city towers, it really seems as though the world below was of another age and time, for its people are still ruled by the old Roman laws.

Apple Sauce Cheap

ABOUT the cheapest thing a salesman can hand out is "apple sauce," but that's not the kind of apple sauce we mean. New York State has made a big pack of real, tangible apple sauce this year, and it is particularly delicious because apples grown in that State are high in acid and in flavor. Owing to the large crop and the unusually early season, apples have been cheap and the sauce is being sold at a lower price than at any other time within the memory of canners.

There are a lot of things you can do with apple sauce beside just open the can and eat it. You can serve it with meats, make muffins, biscuits, pudding and even salad with it, and here is a recipe for cake made with apple sauce that you will like to try.

It's Delicious

Apple Sauce Loaf Cake: Cream one-third cup butter and one cup sugar. Add one teaspoon soda to one and one-quarter cups canned apple sauce (one 11-ounce can), and add to creamed mixture. Sift together two cups flour, one teaspoon baking powder, a few grains salt, one-half teaspoon clove, one-half teaspoon allspice and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg and add, together with the grated rind of one lemon. Add one-half cup raisins and one-half cup nuts. (Reserve a little of the flour to sift over them.) Bake in a loaf in a 350 degree oven for from forty-five to sixty minutes.

Apple Cheese Biscuits: Mix and sift two cups flour, four teaspoons baking-powder, one-half teaspoon soda and one teaspoon salt. Cut in three table-spoons shortening and add one beaten egg, one-half cup canned apple sauce and one-fourth cup thick sour milk mixed together. Pat out on a floured board, cut into small biscuits and place in pans. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees, for ten to twelve minutes.

Antlers Grow Quickly

Deer's antlers are shed completely every year, between January and March. It takes about four months, or until about August, for the new ones to reach full growth. When the antlers are dropped, the roots or pedicles exposed are rough disks of bone belonging to the frontal bone of the skull. In a week or so this is covered by the dark brown skin of the head and then the new antlers begin to develop. The material of which they are composed is similar to that which forms hair. The antlers of a healthy vigorous elk or caribou will grow at the rate of one-third of an inch per day, or more, once they are fairly started.

His Noise Brings the Coin

Begging for the funds with which to rebuild a temple, an old Chinaman has for 23 years been traversing the streets of Peking. As an evidence of his holy character he wears a skewer passing through his cheeks and protruding on either side. His method of extracting the coin is unique. He carries a huge wooden gong which is known as "Buddha's Ear," and taking up a position in front of a native home he makes a deafening noise until some member of the family comes out and gives him an adequate coin. If the amount meets with his approval he will move on, otherwise he remains until the sum is increased.

A Dollar Dinner for Four

Do your thrift dinners cry out "thrift"—or do they look so attractive and taste so good that no one can guess the cost? It's all a matter of careful planning. First, get an appealing menu, like the one given below; second, prepare the foods carefully; third, deem them worthy of your pretty china and table covers. Then you can say with sincerity to your casual guest "Do stay for dinner!"

BRAIEST TALKS TO WAYNE KIWANIAN'S

Discusses Internal Strife of Various Parts of United States.

Rev. W. E. Braiest spoke to the Wayne Kiwanis club Monday on the subject, "1776-1861-1931." Rev. Braiest was pinch-hitting for Fred Berry, who had been scheduled to give a talk on "Lincoln and Washington" but was called out of the city on business.

Rev. Braiest said that people living in the United States should realize that this country belongs to everybody and should not be divided up into factions. America, he said, should not be as Europe, divided up into small states and empires. We have, he contended, some of that European feeling in this country.

He spoke of the banishment of slavery in the south and the hardships it worked on southern people. Slavery was wrong, he said, and had to be done away with. Nevertheless, he explained, the abolishment of slavery embittered the south against the north.

At present, the speaker pointed out, there is a trend toward bitterness of the middle west towards the east. Mid-westerners feel that the eastern manufacturing and capitalistic centers are taking the money away from mid-western producers.

He said that ten per cent of the people in the United States control 90 per cent of the money. This might cause internal strife in our country if it is not remedied, he said.

Rev. Braiest spoke in favor of prohibition, and said that he did not ever want to see the American flag waving over a saloon.

Men Donate to Send Helper With "Bunt"

"Bunt" Fleetwood thought Sunday morning that he would need some help with the poultry car, and tried to get C. J. "Red" Perrin to go along with him and assist in handling the car-load of chickens going to the Arkansas drought area. "Red" didn't mind paying a few expenses, but hated to spend $30 for transportation.

A number of Wayne business men believed, with Bunt, that someone should go along, but did not think money should be taken from the poultry fund, since it had been specifically stated in previous publicity that money would not be used for incidental expenses.

These men decided to start another cash drive, and began soliciting subscriptions to send "Red" along with "Bunt". Enough money to pay "Red's" transportation was secured in short order. The following contributed:

Nebraska Fourth in Seed Potato Growth

Nebraska's rating for the production of certified seed potatoes has risen from twelfth to fourth in five years.

Certified seed potatoes meet rigid requirements of planting, cultivating and harvesting. The seed is inspected for quality before it is planted. The fields are inspected while the crop is growing for mixtures of varieties and diseases. At harvest time the crop is inspected for diseases and imperfections. And finally the crop is graded. The potatoes that reach certification are as near perfect as can be grown.

Nebraska's potatoes are mostly of the Triumph variety. This is one of the most popular varieties in the southern states and so the demand there for Nebraska certified seed potatoes is great. Nebraska produced last year about two-fifths of the country's available supply of Triumph seed potatoes. Some Cobbler and Green Mountain potatoes were certified.

Western Nebraska produced one of its best potato crops last year. While prices were not as high as expected, the returns were satisfactory.
