

Drought Relief Director Sends Thanks Letter

Expresses Appreciation of Arkansans for Wayne County Gifts.

Albert Evans, director of Arkansas Drought Relief for the American Red Cross, has sent a letter to Mrs. E. W. Huse, head of the local Red Cross organization, thanking Wayne county for the carload of poultry and the carload of canned goods sent to Arkansas as a result of a campaign sponsored by The Nebraska Democrat.

The Winside Tribune promoted the campaign in Winside, the Carroll News sponsored it in Carroll, and committees of public-spirited citizens had charge of furthering the work in Hoskins and Sholes.

The letter says: "During the past few months over one-half million people in the state of Arkansas have been fed by the American Red Cross. This enormous feeding program was made possible by the unselfishness and generosity of the American people who gave unstintingly of money and foodstuffs. No finer example of the spirit of service can be found than the fact that 364 carloads of donated supplies have been received and distributed through the Red Cross to the people of Arkansas.

"Carloads of donated supplies were consigned intact to each county until all had received two or three shipments. After these first consignments were made and the peak load was passed, it was possible to open up a warehouse in Little Rock, taking in all donated supplies at that place, and immediately making up carloads of mixed foodstuffs to be reconsigned over the state. The large variety of assorted foodstuffs made a well rounded diet and an over-abundance of one item was not placed in any community. I am sure that you will be interested to know that the carload of canned goods which was donated by the people of Wayne county was placed in our warehouse and that a portion of the supplies were sent into practically every county in the state. These splendid food donations have been distributed to Red Cross beneficiaries in addition to the regular food orders paid for by the Red Cross. The beneficiaries have indicated that they appreciate those donated supplies more than anything that has been done for them, not only because of the food itself, but because of the fine spirit of those outside of the state, who have made a sacrifice in order that their less fortunate neighbors might be helped.

"It must be gratifying to you to know that your donation played so large a part in bringing to Arkansas such a rapid recovery. The Red Cross is still in close touch with the entire population of the state and is administering aid to the emergency cases. However, it is now possible for practically all of those families who have received help during the past months to get their 1931 crops planted and cultivated, and to face the future with a spirit of optimism and a smile.

"I take this opportunity of thanking you on behalf of the American Red Cross for your splendid contribution to the people of Arkansas."

The carload of poultry and the carload of canned goods sent to Arkansas as a result of the campaign had a total value of approximately $3,500.

The goods were sent to Red Cross relief headquarters as a gift from Wayne county. Lodges, clubs, organizations and individuals of Wayne county contributed money and chicken to make up the donation.

Debaters Win Way to Final State Tourney

Wayne high school's debate team, winner of the northeast Nebraska district tournament at Hartington on Wednesday, March 25, will represent this part of the state in the state debate tournament at Lincoln next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 16, 17 and 18.

Members of the local team are Mary Jane Morgan, Max Hendrickson, Dean Winegar and Stanley Davis, alternate. A. W. Behl is coach of the group.

Indifferent Voters Cast Few Ballots

One of the lightest votes in recent years was cast at the city election Tuesday, with a total of 52 ballots cast in all three precincts. The only excitement of the election occurred Tuesday noon when the first ward election officials nearly lost their election equipment to a Wayne business man who appreciated the "solemnity" of the occasion.

City Clerk W. S. Bressler estimates that it cost the city approximately $110 to let 52 voters express their opinions.

In 1930, 80 votes were cast in the first ward, 44 in the second ward, and 34 in the third ward. In 1929, 97 votes were cast in the first ward, 124 in the second and 170 in the third. In 1928, 164 ballots were turned in at the first ward 261 at the second and 294 at the third.

In the first ward, 17 ballots were cast, 14 of them going to Walter Miller and three to alleged "opponents." In the second ward, J. S. Horney received 22 votes and in the third ward E. D. Bichel tallied 13 votes.

A. T. Cavanaugh, received 41 votes for the board of education, and L. A. Fenske received 46.

City "dads" were worried Tuesday that, with interest in the election so lax, someone might try to "slip over a dark horse."

HANSENS TO MOVE TO GRAND ISLAND

Will Leave Wayne Sunday to Accept New Position.

Lloyd O. Hansen, representative in this territory for the Liggett and Meyers tobacco company, is leaving Wayne Sunday to accept a promotion with his company. His new position necessitates his moving to Grand Island, and Mr. Hansen and his wife will establish their home in that city immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Hansen have lived in Wayne for about two and a-half years and have been prominent in the activities of the younger social set. A number of parties are being given in their honor in the short time prior to their leave-taking.

The promotion came as a complete surprise to the Hansens, but they feel that they cannot afford to refuse it. Their many friends regret their leaving Wayne, but rejoice with them in their advancement.

TWO SPEEDERS GET HEAVY FINES HERE

Emerson Men Not Fast Enough to Escape Officer.

Two young men giving the names of Art Lewis and Lloyd Davis, said to be from Emerson, nearly got away from Officer Wm. A. Stewart Monday night, when the Wayne officer started after their speeding car. The thing that kept them from getting away, according to Officer Stewart, was the fact that they ran into a ditch.

The young men were charged in County Judge J. M. Cherry's court with driving an automobile at an excessive rate of speed and with running past a state stop sign.

Davis was found guilty on both charges, and Lewis on the speeding charge. Davis was fined $10 on each charge and costs of $7.30, making a total of $27.30. Lewis was fined $10 and costs of $7.30, making a total of $17.30.

The young men spent Monday night in the county bastille.

DRIELING-ROHLFS

Annie Drieling of Scribner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drieling, was united in marriage to Albert Rohlf of West Point, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rohlf, on Wednesday, April 8.

The ceremony was performed at the Evangelical Lutheran church, parsonage in Wayne by Rev. H. A. Teckhaus.

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Explains Work

George Manton, secretary of the Cherokee, Iowa chamber of commerce, spoke to Wayne Kiwanians at their regular meeting Monday noon on the work of commercial organizations.

Mr. Manton brought out the idea that up until the formation of a Cherokee chamber of Commerce, Cherokee had never been sold on the idea of group advertising. The town had never been sold on the idea of selling the town itself to the trade territory, thus extending the trade limits, he said.

Mr. Manton contended that the trade territory of towns is determined by the distance from neighboring towns. The half-way point between any town and its nearest neighbor is the trade territory.

The average town, has no prospects as an industrial center, Mr. Manton explained. Wayne and Cherokee, he contended, can never hope to be Pittsburg or Chicago. The industrial facilities are not right. Therefore, he contended, since physical and natural conditions prevent middlewestern towns from achieving success as industrial centers, their only future is in trade and commerce.

The average town, if it is to advance, he maintained, must increase its trade territory beyond the natural limits. That such a thing is possible he showed by a survey of the work the Cherokee chamber of commerce has done.

The idea, he explained, is to sell the town. A community, to increase its trade territory, must appeal to the territory as a better place to go to, and a cheaper place to do business in. It is altogether possible, he maintained, to increase the trade territory from one-third to one-half by presenting the town to the surrounding territory in an attractive way.

WAYNE GETS SECOND IN DISTRICT CONTEST

Commercial Students Win Honors from Strong Competition.

Wayne high school's commercial students took second place in the district commercial contest at Norfolk last Saturday, with 20 schools from northeast Nebraska taking part. Norfolk, often winner of the state contest, annexed first place.

Mary Jane Morgan won first place in the spelling contest, and Sophie Damme took second.

Charlene Brown won second place in the novice typewriting division with a speed of 61 words a minute in the 15 minute test, and fifth place in the one minute accuracy test with a speed of 63 words a minute.

A team composed of Charlene Brown, Elaine Gildersleeve and Romaine Simmerman placed second in novice typing with an average speed of 49 words a minute. Jeanne Wright took sixth place in the spelling contest and Bertha Luders won sixth place in the champion typing division.

Mary Jane Morgan, Sophie Damme and Charlene Brown are entitled to compete in the state commercial contest to be held at Lincoln on Saturday, May 9. Wayne contestants were trained by Mr. Leonard Good, local high school commercial instructor.

John S. Carhart Is 82 Years Old Sunday

Easter Sunday, April 5, was John S. Carhart's birthday. He was 82 years old, and in due observance of the event he and Mrs. Carhart entertained at a family dinner at their home for Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Carhart and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Carhart and son, Braden.

The honored host and his wife came to Wayne 16 years ago from Marquette town, where they lived after retiring from the farm.

There are different ways, he said, of increasing the business prospects of a community. But, he insisted, there must be considerable organized group activity if the campaign is to be successful. The chamber of commerce or a commercial club is the usual group to work upon such projects.

Mr. Manton admitted that it would be impossible to get 100 per cent membership in a commercial club in Wayne. That, he said, would be practically impossible in any community. There will always be a few who will take advantage of the work being done by others, he said. While the unfair ones prosper along with those who are helping the commercial club along, enough men will organize to make a chamber of commerce pay, he contended.

The commercial club, he showed, should be democratic. Everybody should have a vote. The membership charge should be based on the individual's income from business. The peanut vendor and the banker should both be given an equal vote, but should be charged quite different amounts of money for membership, he contended. Both men have their livelihood at stake and both are entitled to equal voice, but one is capable of helping the organization along financially more than the other, he explained.

Mr. Manton objected strenuously to group organizations that are not democratic.

He mentioned different civic projects, such as the City Beautiful program, which the Cherokee chamber of commerce is promoting, and which any commercial organization should sponsor, the development of co-operation between the town and the country, handling of civic programs and various other things which the chamber of commerce does.

LET'S GO!

That Wayne is interested in the formation of a commercial organization became more apparent than ever when George Manton, Cherokee chamber of commerce secretary, spoke to Wayne Kiwanians Monday noon.

Mr. Manton was asked many questions as to the working methods of commercial organizations, and he answered the questions readily. Wayne business men who heard him talk were favorably impressed with the picture of commercial club activity which Mr. Manton portrayed, and many of them are falling in line with plans to organize a commercial club here.

That Wayne needs some sort of organization to increase its trade territory is undisputed. That a commercial club would do much to improve civic conditions in town is conceded by practically everyone. We have the need for the organization, and the impetus to start it seems to be growing.

A live town, working together for the best interests of the community, organized into a democratic group representative of every phase of activity.

Local Girl to Be in District Declam Meet

Mary Jane Morgan of Wayne high school won first place in the extemporaneous division of the sub-district declamatory contest at Randolph on Friday, April 3. This gives her the right to compete in the final district contest, which will be held in Wayne on Friday, April 24.

Miss Morgan, to win her way to the district finals, has had to win three elimination contests, representing a field of about 190 contestants.

James Davies, speaking in the oratorical division, represented Wayne high school at the Randolph contest, and Helen Swanson, in the humorous section, represented the college high school.

APPEALS DECISION

A. M. Haskell filed an appeal to district court on Friday, April 3, from a county court decision favoring the defendant in the case of A. M. Haskell vs. Lloyd R. Ruback and C. G. Ruback.

Morning Siren Is Back in Limelight

"Oh, how I hate to get up in the mornings" is the theme song for this story.

The 7 o'clock whistle is the villain. Some, however, say that the villain is more stined against than sinning.

Since E. O. Stratton, proprietor of the Hotel Stratton, asked the city council to move the siren away from its present proximity to the hotel, the old siren question has come back in all its glory. Mr. Stratton's complaint is that many of his guests become irate about having their slumbers disturbed at 7 o'clock every morning.

Wayne's fire department meeting Tuesday night, adopted a resolution asking the city council to have the siren blown only once a day at noon. Elimination of the 7 a. m. whistle would do away with the objections of the hotel guests, firemen believe. They believe that moving the siren to some other location would incur unnecessary expense.

Siren manufacturers recommend that sirens be blown once a day. Fire Chief Martin L. Ringer says, in order that the rotor blades may be kept operating freely.

And the discussion, to whistle or not to whistle, goes merrily on.

Stock Yards Will Play Ball at Celebration

Committee After House of David Team for Jubilee.

J. M. Strahan, Dr. J. C. Johnson and John Denbeck, members of the ball game committee for Wayne's Golden Jubilee celebration, announce that they have signed the Sioux City Stock Yards baseball team to play here July 2 and 3.

The committee is endeavoring to sign the House of David's Bearded Beauties baseball team to oppose the Packers. The House of David team, always a fast ball club, has an additional feature for the coming season in the person of Grover Alexander, temperamental former big league star.

Other committees are getting into action, and all have reported favorably to Martin L. Ringer, chairman of the celebration board of directors.

Prices on entertainment features are lower this year than they have been for some time, according to committee members. The celebration board of directors believes that Wayne's fiftieth anniversary jubilee will be the most pretentious thing of its kind ever attempted in northeast Nebraska.

Railroad equipment of 50 years ago, with the most modern equipment as contrast, will be one of the high spots among exhibits which are being arranged for.

Mr. Ringer is keeping a book of suggestions in which he notes all ideas for making the celebration a success and the names of those who make the suggestions. He says that his notebook is already a valuable storehouse of celebration ideas, but that he will welcome all the suggestions he can obtain.

Better Homes Group Holds Seed Exchange

Wayne's Better Homes organization will hold a seed and bulb exchange at Denbeck's market starting Monday, April 13. The exchange will be operated for one week, up to and including Saturday, April 18.

Members of the committee in charge ask that seeds and bulbs be brought to the exchange in labeled packets and bags.

No charge will be made to people desiring to trade seeds or bulbs for those of other varieties. The exchange is open to everyone, and the idea behind its operation is to encourage people to plant beautiful flowers.

High School Musicians to Contest Here

District Tournament to Be Staged in Wayne Saturday

Solo and small ensemble events for all schools, and large ensemble contests for Class C schools will make up the program of the division of the district high school music contest being held in Wayne at the college auditorium on Saturday, April 11. All class C schools will be entered, and solo and small group entries from larger schools will participate.

Five silver loving cups have been donated by Wayne business men to be given to the winners of the large ensemble events in class C. The cups will be awarded the winners in the boys' glee club, girls' glee club, mixed chorus, band and orchestra events.

Another contest, for large ensembles in Class B will be held in Newman Grove on Friday, April 10.

Arlene Urban, music instructor in Wayne high school, will enter 12 girls in the glee club contest at Newman Grove and will enter the Wayne high school boys' octette.

Wayne students taking part in the girls' glee club are: Letha Porterfield, LaVern Larson, Isabel Hanson, Lucille Wright, Elaine Yocum, Margaret Morris, Gwendolyn Mulvey, Fannie Beckenhauer, Sophie Damme, Charlene Brown, LaVerne Exleben and Ruby Surber. They will be accompanied at the piano by Mirabel Blair.

Members of the boys' octette are: Donald Wamberg, Howard Kilborn, Walter Sand, Charles Berry, John Kemp and James Davies.

Dean Whittle of Wesleyan and Professor Colette of Morningside college will be judges for both the Newman Grove and Wayne contests.

TO ENTERTAIN KIWANIS

James Davies, Mary Jane Morgan and Helen Swanson will give readings at the regular meeting of the Wayne Kiwanis club next Monday noon.

The Inquiring Reporter

(Every week a Democrat reporter will ask a question of five people, picked at random. If there's any question you would like to have asked, let us know about it.)

Do you think there should be an ordinance to the effect that people having poultry in town should keep their chickens penned up? (Requested.)

Mrs. Dave Bahde: "Whether there be an ordinance to that effect or not, I do think that in town poultry should be shut up and kept off of other people's gardens and flower beds. However, I do not object to people having chickens in town if they keep them in their own yards."

Mr. Joe Baker: "Why... yes, I do. They are not allowed in the city, so why should they be in a town of this size? Chickens are of little or no profit in town, anyway."

Mrs. Henry Bush, Sr.: "Oh... No, I don't. Because I have some. I think it's all right to have chickens in town if we keep them penned up. I only have a dozen, and I never let them out of their pen."

Mrs. Henry Johnson: "Yes, I think there should be such an ordinance for the reason that chickens are such a nuisance to other people who have flowers or a garden."

Mrs. Don Fitch: "While I would not approve of an ordinance restricting people from having any chickens in the city, I do think there should be an ordinance whereby people who have chickens would have to keep them shut up in their own yards when there are growing things they might harm if they were allowed to run loose."

Life Is Worth Living with these Modern, Healthful Comforts.

- A screened or glazed porch.
- A bathroom finished in one of our tile effect walls—the color to be carried out as you like it.
- A breakfast nook, in or near the kitchen, makes a change for the family and adds to the ease of serving. It need not cost a great deal.
- An extra room in the attic, for sleeping room, sewing room, or a play room for the children on rainy days this summer.
- A lawn made useful and attractive by the addition of rose arbors, trellises, porch and window boxes and lawn furniture. We make them according to your own ideas and specifications.
- And we are not forgetting the kitchen. You can spend much or little here, but probably the thing that would be the greatest convenience is not so much a question of price as just getting it done.
- Why not begin to plan with us today?

Let Us Help You Prepare for Comfort in the coming hot days---

- The suggestions to the left are but a few of those that can be made for increasing the comfort of your home for hot weather.
- Much of the summer's heat can be excluded by better insulation and this is especially true as to the inner and outer surfaces of the roof. Your attic can be as pleasant as your basement.
- Changes in windows and doors will increase the ventilation and give added comfort on sultry days and nights.
- The basement can be equipped with better coal bins, fruit-closets and storage space.
- Home means so much that every family should make an effort to add to its attractiveness and comfort as circumstances permit.
- We are here to offer our help and suggestions.

LET'S GO PLACES

"Let's go places" seems to be the password of present-day America. Everybody wants to be doing something or going somewhere all the time.

Can the nation's mental advancement continue under the pressure of constant hub-bub? Can people who never rest be expected to be perfectly alert in the upper story?

Well, maybe so, but we doubt it. They tell the story about the man who saved thirty minutes on a trip by driving his car at the speed of sixty miles per hour.

"What will you do with that thirty minutes now that you've saved it?" an Englishman asked.

Wouldn't we all be better off if we'd stay home oftener? Wouldn't a little relaxation and time for thought do us all a world of good? We're reminded of an old poem, author unknown. It starts out something like this:

If I had the time to find a place
And sit me down, full face to face
With my better self that cannot show
In this daily life that rushes so,
It might be then I would see my soul
Was stumbling still towards a better goal.

I might be nerved by that thought sublime—
If I had the time.

We have lots of "weeks." There's Eat More Sauerkraut week and Save More Money week and Eat More Candy week and countless others. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to go the "week" business one better and have a "Stay at Home Month."

Editorial writers could make it attractive by publishing of such advertising blurbs as:
"Get acquainted with your home! Do you know how many rooms there are in your house? Have you ever known the thrill of eating three home-cooked meals in one day at your own table? Did you ever experience the luxury of bellling around in comfort by your fireside for an entire evening? How long has it been since you've lounged back in an easy chair and read a good novel?"

This is "Stay at Home Month." America wants something to do—and the plan for this month is to stay at home."

You think we're joking? That we're being sarcastic? Not at all. A Stay at Home Month would have as many recommendations as any of the special weeks and days. It would be beneficial to the nation.

The one flaw in the plan is that few people would observe the home holiday. People want to go places.

MODEL FARMS

S. Toledo Sherry of South Sioux City, author of the Model farm plan of education, issues a call to the boys and girls of America to enlist in a peace-time army of a million youths. The object of his plan is to afford practical, character-building chores to train a race of home makers by cultivating the homing instinct through play activities, to educate a new generation of farmers and home makers, to take charge of conditions where there shall be four small farm homes where there is but one large one today, and to provide a means to universal peace.

Here's what Mr. Sherry advises the boys and girls to do:
"Tomorrow morning start a model farm 33 feet square on any available vacant land.

"Put it in shape by spading or plowing. Divide it into 9 equal fields 11 feet square. Use the middle one on one side for the yard. In the field to the left plant 16 hills of potatoes 3 feet apart and in 4 rows. In each hill of the first row plant 1 eye of a potato. Plant 2 eyes in each hill of the next row. In the third row plant half a potato cut lengthwise in each hill. Plant a whole potato in each hill of the fourth row, alternating large and small.
"Adjoining the potato field plant 14 hills of Sweet Corn in 4 rows 3 feet apart. In the corner field next to the corn sow 16 hills of tomatoes and the same number of hills of cabbage in the field next to the tomatoes. When the tomato and cabbage plants are large enough, thin to 1 or 2 in a hill.

"Sow the middle field in Alfalfa and the corner field to the right of the yard in safflower or plant to melons or sunflowers. There will remain two more fields which will make a lovely garden 11 feet wide and 22 feet long. Mark the garden off crossways in rows 3 feet apart. Sow and plant 8 rows of vegetables in this order: beans, beets, carrots, peas, cucumbers, radishes, lettuce and onions.

"After the planting is all done, build a cottage 28 inches wide by 32 inches long and place it in the yard. Later add a barn and garage. Put borders of flowers along the walks and transplant little trees in the yard, then sow with lawn grass."

TO THE TEACHERS!

That Wayne high school must have a splendid faculty is evidenced by the consistency with which local students win competitive events from representatives of other schools.

Debate, always recognized as a fine extra-curricular activity, has claimed the attention of the local high school recently, and the Wayne debate team has emerged victorious from a district tournament which offered plenty of hard competition.

Declamatory contests have always been regarded as excellent training for young people. Wayne high school took two first places in the recent sub-district declamatory contest at Wakefield from a field of well-coached contestants.

The field of sports has been highly emphasized by practically every high school in Nebraska, but Wayne has set a record in football and basketball which compares favorably with that of any school in the state. High school sports followers anticipate a good season in track.

And now it has come to our attention that high school students acquitted themselves nobly in a district commercial contest at Norfolk last Saturday. With twenty high schools taking part in a close contest, Wayne high school annexed second place.

Wayne high school's instructors deserve much credit. It is not conceivable that the native talent in Wayne youngsters is any considerable degree higher than that of any similar group of students. Superior training, however, is bringing out the best that the local young people have to offer.

I BELIEVED

I was one of those who believed, perhaps because I wanted to believe, that the federal farm board would function despite my knowing that not a farmer of my acquaintance was at all in sympathy with the idea. I am a hero worshipper. I believed that Alex Legge could do the thing necessary to put the farm board idea over; sell it to the farmers. It was hard for me to imagine the head of the farm machinery trust teaching farmers to cooperate in the way I believe in co-operation, but I wanted to believe he would and I did so believe. I liked his ability, his rugged frankness. I went to Hastings to hear him tell the story of what the farm board intended doing. It sounded good. Again I was impressed with the farmer's non-interestedness. The audience that day was largely composed of county agents and grain dealers with a few visionists like myself who wanted to believe. Alex Legge is out of the picture. He threw up the job. I never could believe in Sam McKelvie or his kind and so another of my political dreams has dissolved. Chairman Stone and Mr. Teague talk about building co-operatives. But this for those of us who wanted to believe in the farm board see more evidence of tearing down real co-operatives than building them. Why if the farm board is really interested in building co-operatives doesn't it work on the farmers who belong to no co-operative rather than to try to coerce men who have given much of their lives to building their own co-operative to leave the group they belong to? In plainer words, why isn't the Farmers Union standing on its own bottom built from the grass roots by the farmers themselves, financed by these farmers, just as welcome to represent the farm board idea as some organization built from the top down, financed by forced taxation and other than farmers' aid?—Marie Weeks in the Norfolk Press.

airplane race for the Schneider Cup this year. The present record for speed in the air is held by Flight Commander A. H. Orlebar of the British air forces, who flew at 357.72 miles an hour in a seaplane in September, 1929, winning the Schneider trophy. That is the fastest any man has ever travelled, according to the records, though it was rumored that Orlebar had touched 450 miles in his trial flights. Airmen are predicting that an official record above 400 miles an hour will be made this year. The record of the Europa for the fastest ocean passage, 4 days, 17 hours, 6 minutes, Cherbourg to New York, will surely be shot at this year.

With so many speedsters turning their attention to flying and speed-boating, the older forms of competitive locomotion are being more or less neglected. No pacing horse has beaten the record of a mile in 1 minute 55 seconds, set by Dan Patch in 1906, while Peter Manning's trotting record of 1.56 3-4 for the mile, made in 1922, remains unbroken.

No human has propelled himself faster for a mile than Paavo Nurmi did in 1923, when he negotiated the distance in 4 minutes 10.4 seconds. Everybody has a chance at some world's records or other, but let us hope that the weather man won't try to break last year's drought record.—Cedar County News.

A FAULT OF JOURNALISM

American journalism is in many respects farther advanced than is the fourth estate in any other country in the world. British editors no doubt would disagree, yet the daily newspapers in the United States seem to offer proof of the original statement in a mere comparison of results. American editors and publishers, possess more initiative, enthusiasm, enterprise, industry and sheer ability as shown day by day and year by year in their publications.

However, there are faults attaching to American journalism that are not suffered in some other countries where daily newspapers are published. A grave fault in this country is that of overdoing the job. American newspapers go too far in their eagerness to obtain complete coverage of news events. Not only do they go farther than appears reasonable, but they keep it up longer than public interest seems to justify. To employ a homely, worn and trite phrase but one applicable to the case, they run things into the ground.

A good deal of this is the result of competition. Editors are constantly working under the fear that their competitors may surpass them in covering a news story. Instead of using their own ability and their own judgment as the yardstick by which they measure news values, they are in the habit of employing their contemporary as the tapeline for their work. They will not be outdone if they can escape it, and when this determination has seized all editors in a given community the result easily may be predicted.

Most of this indulgence has to do with the worship of heroes. If Babe Ruth died today newspapers throughout the country would publish dozens of stories about his life and his death. The Knute Rockne story may be cited as an example. The Lindbergh flight across the Atlantic is another. For three years American newspapers published everything the flyer said and did, if they could discover it. Only recently has there been a let down on the Lindbergh stories.

On the other hand, shabby treatment of a news story is upardonable. It proves incompetence more than anything else. Shabby treatment, however, is rare. Instead the other extreme prevails. It is piled on till there isn't room for any more. The editors evidently disregard the old saying that a surfeit of all things cloy.—Sioux City Journal.

TAX DISTRIBUTION

There is good reason in Nebraska, in every county in the state and in every city, to oppose any additional tax that can be avoided. That is not because, Nebraska, compared with other states, is overtaxed. It is because modern government reaches so far, has become so all embracing, that its cost has mounted, and distribution of the cost has not been equitable. There is much less waste of public funds here than in a number of other states. Nevertheless the tax burden is felt, has become heavy and is a perpetual issue. All the efforts to pare down state expense bills do no result in the saving of more than a few dollars to heavy tax-payers, and a few cents to home owners. Money is not equitably drawn from those who should pay the government. Many must pay more than their share. A study of the situation in this state scientifically and adequately made, might result in a tax revision plan that would lift the burdens from the over-taxed. Every citizen should be compelled to bear his share of the load. The trouble seems to be less in the total amount of tax levied than in its distribution.—Lincoln State Journal.

The year is only three months old, but already two of the world's speed records have been broken, and others are threatened. Gar Wood drove a speedboat 102 miles an hour at Miami the other day. Not long ago Captain Malcolm Campbell drove an automobile 245 miles an hour. If this sort of thing keeps up throughout the year 1931 will be the speediest twelve-month in history.

There are some high records to be challenged. There will be another

ISSUES OF THE DAY

At irregular intervals the National Economic league, composed of American leaders of thought and action in every field, takes a referendum to determine what, in the opinion of its members, are the paramount problems of the United States.

The result of such a referendum taken recently is of timely interest. The leading problems, with the number of votes cast for each, included the following:

Prohibition headed the list with 1871 votes, followed in order by administration of justice, 1760; lawlessness, 1514; unemployment and economic stabilization, 1434. Taxation was considered paramount by 966, efficient democratic government by 708, farm relief by 694, political corruption by 647, and the tariff by 624. Many other questions were suggested by fewer voters, but some of the issues about which a great deal of noise is being made received scant attention at the hands of the league. Only 301 were interested in Senator Norris' outcry against public utilities; even less were concerned with railroads, banking, speculation and divorce.

Inasmuch as the league is a non-sectarian body, drawn from a cross-section of the thoughtful citizenship of the country, it is fair to assume that its referendum represents a fair consensus of public opinion. If so, its findings may be of value to politicians who are now maneuvering for advantage in anticipation of the 1932 campaign.—Neligh News.

NEWSPAPER ADS

It has often been observed in the local postoffice, the circulars that go unopened into the wastebaskets and those that are opened, litter the streets. Very few of them get into homes. But have you ever noticed your home town newspaper in the postoffice waste basket? Not a copy can be found from week to week, nor can you find them laying around the streets. The paper is subscribed for and paid for, and the advertisers in the local paper have much advantage over the circular advertiser, because the paper is carried home and read by every member of the family. The merchant's ad is found there, and its chances of being read are much greater than those of the circular, because it does not get to the family reading table. Just the past week, circulars of Sioux City chain stores were distributed in the local post-office. The waste basket was full of them and the streets were littered. We will venture to say that only 10 per cent of the circulars get into the homes.—Homer Star.

SCOTT SHOTS

by

"SCOTTY"

Have you heard the sad story about the tattooed man who sued the osteopath for $10,000 damages? He claims the treatments threw all of his pictures out of focus.

Newspaper publicity is a funny thing. Sometimes it's the nice things that are said about men in a paper that cause them to doubt the truth of other published statements.

Well, the contest is on. Charlie Carhart and Elmer Galley have come to terms and have agreed to fight out the Wayne county Fishing Championship as soon as the season opens. Mr. Carhart says that Mr. Galley's claim to the championship is based on possession of a large sized stuffed fish. "I could buy one of them, too, if I wanted to," Mr. Carhart adds.

Don't kick about your opportunities. You have just as many opportunities as anybody else. You have more opportunities than the extremely rich man. His opportunity of praise-worthy accomplishment has been taken away from him. His future is behind him. Nothing he can do will bring plaudits from others. They'll merely say, "Oh, well, if I had his money, I could do the same thing."

When opportunity knocks, be ready to usher him in. Don't expect opportunity to call up and ask you to go to lunch.

The beautiful thing about opportunity is that its rewards always lie just ahead. "Beyond the Alps lies Italy."

Did I ever stop to think that you can praise a person innumerable times, day after day, year in and year out, thereby gaining the friendship of that individual—but one little knock will completely ruin the work of years?

Milo Kremke says that the story in last week's Scott Shots, intimating that he had a good chance for the Splitzger brass trophy for prevaricators, was untrue. The trophy, he says, is offered to professionals, and Milo maintains that he is not a pro. He has kept his amateur standing in preparation at great cost, he says, and intimates that he resents being classed with a bunch of professionals.

To Some Friends Who Are Leaving Wayne.

It's tough to see you leaving town. We hate to see you go. We're feelin' kinda all let down. We're gonna miss you so. We haven't known you very long, but you had a friendly smile. And a friendly, hearty handshake strong. That made life more worth while. You made strangers' lives less lonely. In your friendly sort of way, and we're glad you're rising, only—Gosh, we wish that you could stay. Grand Island's gonna like you, and you'll make the grade on nigh—But it's tough to lose some neighbors of the kind "that satisfy."

—Scotty.

We'll, we know now that Wayne is full of good sports. Last week, the Scott Shots scooper took some pretty stiff shots at a number of prety. He expected to get some acrid comment. But everybody who was made the recipient of one of the Scott Shots shafts laughed about it and took the joke with a grin.

A New York news writer says "Many girls in New York are getting men's wages." That's nothing. Lots of girls get lots of men's wages right here in Wayne.

Maybe a swelled head is just Nature's frantic effort to fill a vacuum.

"This is semelly a colorless street," one Chicago gangster said to another. "Yeah," tother replied. "It needs some new blood."

You've heard the old wheeze about women being found of gossip, haven't you? Of course. It's been a stock joke among men for years.

Well, the other day a gang of men were visiting in one of the local stores, and the amount of gossip that group put out would have put the combined ladies' societies of Wayne to shame. They knew all the dirt that's happened in Wayne in the past six months, and some that hasn't happened. But I'll bet every one of them would have said gossiping in Wayne was dealt out exclusively by women.

And another thing! I overheard a fellow the other day ranting about women bridge players in Wayne. "They spent most of their time playing bridge," he complained. I happened to know that this particular fellow spends a good many of his evenings playing poker. I'll give a prize for the best answer. Maybe you can figure it out.

Harold Humphreys of the Wisner News-Chronicle wins the prize for the most alliterative headline of last week. He carries a streamer line on the Wupper story which reads, "Wronged Woman's Wifely Wrath Walls Weary Wuppers Wary Whereabouts." Now, that's alliteration as is alliteration.

By the way, that same Mr. Humphreys puts out a weekly newspaper that has an individual style all its own. The makeup of his paper is distinctive, from start to finish. The News-Chronicle is a lively looking newspaper, and Mr. Humphreys is a five-wire editor.

Mr. Humphrey last week published a list of hints for farmers to give city visitors. The list reads as follows: No! Windmills are not large electric fans for cooling off the hogs and cattle.

We milk our cows at 6:00 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. A charge of twenty-five cents is made for children desiring to hold their tails fifty cents if they ask us if we are draining their crankcases.

Cut your initials on our fruit trees all you wish. It merely kills them.

Don't feel that you have to get up for breakfast when you hear the hired man calling the cows. He didn't want to get up, either.

There are no needles in our haystacks. Please ask your children to refrain from dissecting them.

Precinct Assessors

Hold County Meeting

Every precinct assessor in Wayne county attended the county assessor's meeting at the Wayne county court house last Saturday afternoon. The meeting was called by County Assessor J. G. Bergt, to familiarize the precinct assessors with their duties.

Only two new assessors have been appointed this year. L. C. Gilder-sleeve for the city of Wayne and Frank Youngmeyer for Plumb Creek precinct are the new men.

Assessors this year will take acknowledgement for intangible schedule, which they did not do last year.

Andrew Martischang spent the Easter vacation with friends at Pierce.

The Book Box

Jimmy Durante has always been one of this writer's favorite funny men. The team of Clayton, Jackson and Durante is the craziest trio of loons I've ever roared at. Jimmy Durante is the leader of the nonsensical triplets, but he's aided and abetted by two of the funniest stooges in show-business.

The trio made a funny-graph record, "So I Ups to Him," that has always made me burst forth into guffaws. Another recorded number of theirs, "Can Broadway Get Along Without Me?" has always made me laugh uproariously. But nobody else ever thinks my two favorite records are funny. I've put both records on the vic with a grin spread from ear to ear—only to see the other folks in the room register pained expressions.

That's why I'm hesitant about recommending the new book, "Night Clubs," to you. It is billed as being written by Jimmy Durante—kibitzed by Jack Kofod. Jimmy Durante, the long-schnozzle boy, wrote it—and so I think it's funny. But you might think it's terrible. Gosh darn it, I wish I could understand why my friends don't think Jimmy Durante's funny.

Here are some of the long-nosed philosopher's observations, taken from the book:

"Night clubs aren't the only places you can find broken-lives and broken romances. You can dig them up just as easily on Park avenue, in the Bronx or Union City, N. J."

"The hearts that beat under corsets were as hot with youth as those that hammer under brassieres."

"Broadway has time only for a winner."

"When you go 'Broadway,' something happens to your soul or your heart or your conscience that makes you pretty decent."

"The people who played the cabarets in those (old) days were more mature than the present-day whoopie makers."

"Seekers of joy have always found the night club best suited to their quest, for darkness is at once a breeder of romance and a curtain for sin."

"Dog eat dog is the idea along Bright-light Alley, and every body is a cannibal."

"Virtue and common sense are not so uncommon on Broadway as people would have you believe. There are good girls in night clubs and bad ones in church choirs."

Well, the records may be better than the book. Jimmy Durante's biggest trouble in his book was that he tried to be something besides the "funny schnozzle comic." But I still like his records.

Sh! Don't tell anybody, but here's a corker of a novel. It's called "Spotlight Madness" and it was written by Charles Grayson. It's a story of a boy who "tried to be Buddy Rogers," and throws merciless shafts into the moving picture industry and particularly the "artists" who draw salary checks for emoting.

It's the story of an actor who will stop at nothing to advance himself. He throws aside his friends, his sweetheart—everything—to make the grade in Hollywood.

It's a story of a grasping, selfish human, and it's written in a smooth sophisticated style that will be appealing to the more sophisticated generation of readers (and I guess that generation is the one from 17 to 70 nowadays). It's a good lampooning.

"Tomboy," by Dianah Steavens, is a somewhat cheaply constructed story. It's pretty conventional in plot, character and action, but it's a book that will give the t. b. m. or the tired wife a few laughs and a pleasant couple of hours of relaxation. It will have an audience, because it is lively and has a flow of humorous dialogue that is generally and unaffectedly amusing. It aims, half-heartedly at a serious thread of story in leading a madeep heroine through a period of uncontrolled wildness into a serious ambition which finally brings her to a love story and a satisfactory culmination of the book.

Jane is the heroine, and you have to give her credit for being able to amuse you, as she dishes out her clever line of chatter.

New Filling Station to Open Here Tomorrow

Roy Langemeier is proprietor of a new gasoline filling station at the south end of Main street, which will be open for business on Saturday. The station will hold a courtesy and inspection day tomorrow. No gas or oil will be sold tomorrow, but candy and smokes will be given to everyone inspecting the place.

The station is constructed along the English cottage style of architecture and has been built along the most up-to-date lines of filling station construction.

MOTHER-DAUGHTER BANQUET SATURDAY

Troop Leader Gets Letter of Commendation from Headquarters.

One hundred thirty-seven persons were entertained at the Mother-Daughter banquet given at 1 o'clock last Saturday afternoon at the Stratton hotel for the local Girl Scouts and their mothers.

Activities were begun with flag exercises including the pledge of allegiance and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner which was sung by the scouts. Various songs were sung during the banquet.

Miss La Verne Larson acted as toastmaster and Miss Helen Vath gave the Welcome speech for the mothers. Mrs. L. W. Ellis responded to this. Miss Elizabeth Bealer, regional director, gave a talk on the general topic of scouting, discussing various phases of the work. Mrs. Art Ahern spoke on the topic, the Community Committee.

Miss Bealer presented a Letter of Commendation to Miss Marlon Jo Theobald, leader of the Goldenrod troop of Girl Scouts. This letter, which was obtained by the local scout committee, is one of the requisites to the obtaining of the Golden Eagle which is the highest award a scout may earn. It is a personal commendation from scout headquarters and must be approved by a national scout officer. The receiving of this letter is based upon tests which judge the person to receive it from the standpoint of community service, right living and general character.

The Goldenrod scouts are rejoicing with their leader and hoping she may soon obtain the Golden Eagle award.

The banquet was closed with the singing of taps.

WILL TEST CATTLE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Department of Agriculture to Begin Work Monday.

Testing of cattle for tuberculosis in Wayne county, required to maintain the county its status as a modified tuberculosis-free accredited area, will be commenced on Monday, April 13, under the direction of the Nebraska Bureau of Animal Industry, with Dr. D. M. Purdy in charge. Dr. Purdy will be temporarily located at Wayne while the work is being conducted.

It has been approximately three years since the cattle in the herds of Wayne county were tested, and the county certified by state and federal officials to be a modified accredited area. Under uniform methods and rules governing the work in Nebraska, it becomes necessary to test the cattle in accredited areas at the end of each three-year period in order to determine the presence of tuberculosis in the herds and thus be able to maintain the county free of the disease in cattle.

Each owner will be given a written notice of the date and approximate time when the veterinarians will arrive at his premises to apply the test. It is planned to test all breeding herds in Bronna, Hancock, Hunter, Logan, Sherman, Strahan and Wilbur precincts. In addition to the herds in these precincts, previously infected herds will be retested, and also dairy herds from which milk and cream are being sold to towns and villages in the county.

Further extension of the work will depend on whether or not the percentage of infection among those herds tested in the area and those named is found to be greater than one-half of one per cent; if not, the county will be re-accredited for another three-year period without further testing.

Howard Sees Roosevelt as Demo Leader

By Congressman Edgar Howard.
Official corruption stalks brazenly throughout the nation. Metropolitan cities, states, and indeed the republic officially speaking, are openly charged with having fallen under the sway of a combination of political official gangsters, who regard their license to rule as license to rob.

In Philadelphia and Chicago the robbing is accomplished by a republican machine.

In New York City the corruption must be laid to a democratic door, because of the fact that the democratic (or rather the Tammany machine) is in complete control.

In the nation at large the official corruption must be charged to the republican organization, because no democrat has any voice in the doings of the parent government, save only those democrats—not many of them—whose occupation prior to their reward was that of "hanging around the White House," crooking the pregnant hinges of the knee, that thrift might follow lawning.

It would be absurd to charge that the present reign of official graft and plunder is chargeable alone to any one political party, but the average citizen will agree that it is now the instant duty of both political parties to do a little purifying.

Older citizens will recall the days of corruption in New York City under the infamous Tweed ring. That ring was not part and parcel of the democratic party, but the country regarded it as a child of the party because it had stolen and was using the name of the democratic party in gaining and holding official control of that great city, just as today the infamous Thompson machine uses the name of the republican party in officially controlling and racketeering the great city of Chicago.

And older citizens will recall the clarion cry of the country in the early seventies for a national leader with courage and ability to fight the monster of official corruption. That monster, then as now, seemed able to defy all opposition. The cry of the people for such a national leader was answered by Samuel J. Tilden, who boldly entered the lists against official corruption, and so successfully that very soon he had Boss Tweed and many of his henchmen headed toward the penitentiary.

Following the success of Samuel J. Tilden in chasing the official Tammany corruptionists to their righteous prison-reward came the presidential campaign in 1876. Then, as now, the American people were ready to follow either national political party which would present a leader with courage and ability to attack official corruption. Upon the strength of the great work accomplished by Samuel J. Tilden in routing and destroying the Tammany corruptionists that splendid fighter, was made the democratic nominee for president of the United States and at the ensuing election he was triumphantly elected.

In these days when official corruption is stalking so brazenly through the land—when the Thompson-Capone machine seems able to laugh at the law—when the Vane machine holds Philadelphia in the hollow of its hand—when Tammany is charged with selling even the sacred judicial appointments to the highest bidder—when the Hoover national administration has become the obedient servant of the tariff barons and the financial bandits of Wall street—the good citizenry of the country is hoping and praying for another Samuel J. Tilden to meet and defeat in the 1932 presidential campaign the mighty hosts of official corruption.

Lives yet upon the earth another Samuel J. Tilden.

He has not yet certainly appeared, but multitudes of the American people begin now to believe that they have found him in the person of Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York. Within a few days it will be discovered whether or not this Roosevelt is the real thing. He is now meeting the crucial test which is to determine whether or not he is brave enough and big enough to win that measure of public confidence which Samuel J. Tilden won nearly fifty years ago. If he shall display the courage of Tilden—if he shall take up the challenge thrown to his teeth by the Tammany corruptionists, and shall employ his great powers as governor to chase the Tammany corruptionists toward the penitentiary—then, in that event, the country will hail Franklin D. Roosevelt as another Samuel J. Tilden, and an aroused public sentiment will compel his nomination for the presidency of the democratic party in 1932, with every assurance that in the election of that year he will be overwhelmingly elected to replace that gentle and good child who now sits in the presidential chair, having been appointed to that high service by the combined power of the tariff barons and the financial bandits whom he serves so devotedly.

May the gods inspire Franklin D. Roosevelt to heed and answer the call of the country for a leader big enough and brave enough to carry a righteous sword into the very den of the official corruptionists in Tammany hall, and thus insure his own nomination and election to the presidency in 1932.

QUICKER THAN EVER

THE Haag TWIN-TEX speeds up your laundering and assures even greater cleanliness in your clothes. Its twin-tubs double your washing facilities—that's why. Do two full-size washings at once, if you wish. Or, use one tub, with lukewarm suds, to loosen the dirt so the second tub, with boiling hot suds, may complete the job in a jiffy. The second tub may also be used for power-rinsing. However you use it, the Haag TWIN-TEX assures cleaner, whiter clothes in less time. Both tubs are equipped with the Haag patented agitator. Briggs & Stratton 4-cycle gasoline engine provides ample power. See this latest and greatest Haag washer today. Its low price will surprise you.

WITH THE WAYNE CHURCHES

First Methodist Episcopal Church
W. W. Whitman, Pastor.

Easter was one of the outstanding days of the present pastorate. Large congregations attended all services from 6:30 in the morning until 7:30 in the evening when, in addition to the regular seating capacity of the church, 60 chairs were placed in the aisles to accommodate the congregation. Many were received into membership of the church at both of the morning services; scores received the Sacrament of the Lords Supper and a number received baptism. The wonderful music of the organ and chimes played by Mrs. J. T. Bressler, the splendid Easter music of the choir directed by Miss Louise Rickabaugh also the solo by Miss Rickabaugh, the six young ladies who assisted in the Sacramental service, the beautiful Easter play given by the fine cast and directed by Miss Lenore Ramsey, all contributed to make this day, one, may declare to be an outstanding day in the history of this church.

The Rev. David Simpson of Carroll will preach at 11 o'clock. Rev. Simpson has spoken to several audiences in Wayne and has been most favorably heard. This arrangement is made in cooperation with a general District Exchange day when all the pastors of the Norfolk Dist. exchange pulpits.

The Chimes will be played at this service by Mrs. Bressler who always inspires us to worship with the wonderful organ music.

Miss Gladys Sulerud who has accepted the position of music director of our church will have charge of the choir at this service.

We greatly appreciated the visit of Rev. Davies and his congregation at the services last Sunday night and with pleasure accept the invitation to their services next Sunday evening when the play "The Dream That Came True," which they gave several Sundays ago will be repeated.

10:00—Sunday school.

6:30—Epworth League.
Sincere appreciation to all who contributed to the success of the services last Sunday and a cordial welcome to all the services of this church.

A number have requested additional bulletins of the service last Sunday. They will be furnished by the pastor, while they last, on request.

First Presbyterian Church
P. A. Davies, Pastor

At 7:30 p. m. next Sunday evening, young people of the church will repeat the beautiful play pageant, "The Dream That Came True". Many who saw it before have asked to have it repeated, not only that they might see it again, but also with the thought that those who were not present might see it. There were many present the first time from Wakefield, Carroll, Randolph, and Osmond and from the church, for election of officers, and business as the annual business meeting. Every member

We have the promise of delegations from Emerson and Laurel. We shall also rejoice in having the Methodists of Wayne as our guests. We are looking for a large crowd and as much interest as upon the former occasion. The play pageant is worthy of repeating.

Our congregational meeting for the year will be held next Tuesday evening. A covered dish supper, in charge of the wives of the Board of Trustees, will be served at 6:30 p. m. Following the fellowship supper each society and official board of the church will make a report. There will also be the election of officers. It is our hope that members of the church and congregation will be present for this time of fellowship and the business meeting.

We were happy to receive 29 into membership last Sunday morning. Ten coming by letter from other churches and nineteen on Confession of Faith. With this gathering in to our church, with a large congregation present, with the beauty of the Easter flowers on every side, with two inspiring and beautiful Easter anthems by the choir and a special Easter message by the pastor and then closing with the baptism of five little children, this Easter will be long remembered.

Next Sunday afternoon the men of the church will visit you in the interest of the church budget. We are asking for several things.

First: Help the cause by staying at home until after they have called upon you. Second: Make a double pledge, the Home work and Benevolences. Third: Make your pledge weekly and give as liberally as you can. Fourth: Remember to pray for this important cause during the day.

First Baptist Church
W. E. Braisted, Pastor

10:00—The church Sunday school for Bible study. Lesson: "The Church and the Repentant Sinner." That's worthwhile.

11:00—The Morning worship with preaching, subject: "Thomas Was Not With Them.... Thomas Was With Them."

Music by the Chorus, and Special number.

6:30—The young people's fellowship discussion group. Led by the young people. Topic: "How Far Dare We Practice the Brotherhood of Man?"

7:30—The evening good fellowship hour, chorus, special and congregational singing the folks do seem to enjoy and share. Its an inspiration. The pastor will speak a grippingly important message, every one must face, none can get away from: "What, then, shall I do With Jesus Who is Called Christ?" Yes: What?

7:30 Wednesday—The Life Enrichment hour: Bible study, prayer, testimony.

3:00 Thursday—The Women's Union and Missionary society will meet, at the church, for election of officers, and business as the annual business meeting. Every member

A PAT AND MIKE PARTY

WHETHER you are endowed with the sense of social security of the Irish gentleman about whom this old song was written, or whether you are just a little new at the art of entertaining—a Pat and Mike Party is sure to be a success. So send out invitations to the friends who will come in fivers and the people with the big foreign-make car whom you haven't quite made up your mind to entertain yet, for Pat and Mike make excellent mixers.

Shamrocks Will Tell

For your invitation—say it with Shamrock. Buy green cut-out card-board shamrocks with envelopes to match, and on the shamrock write your name, the time and place. If your crowd is a dancing crowd, clear the rooms and provide plenty of green—both growing plants and green carnations.

If your group prefers bridge, draw for partners, matching Mikes and Pats, and provide bridge score-cards of green to which are attached bundles of fagots—cigarettes which have bands of green pasted around the center.

But if the party is young enough, or old enough, to enjoy just an evening of games, this will perhaps provide the liveliest party of all. A good game to break the ice is Irish Ping-Pong. Draw a green chalk line across the center of the floor—or stretch a green tape—use green balloons for balls and the open hand for a racket. Any ball that touches the floor is out and scores for the side which succeeds in getting it over the boundary line to the side opposite. The losers must redeem forfeits.

The Battle of Erin is also a good laugh-getter. Two men—Pat and Mike—are seated on the floor, facing each other. They are told that they are to be blindfolded and that each will be given a "swatter" made of newspaper with which to take turns at hitting each other. Only Pat is really blindfolded—he sure to choose a good-natured Pat.

For the supper table a green damask cloth, especially if it is of the clover design, will be at-

"Mush, mush, mush, toora-lee-ay-lee
Mush, mush, mush, toora-lee-ay-lee
There's ne'er a gossamer in the village
Dares tread on the tail of me coat."

tractive. For a centerpiece, use a big mirror in the middle of the table, representing the ocean. Outline the map of Ireland with hard green candles. Then in the center place a tall hat of green cardboard with green streamers extending out to favors at each place—tiny pots of shamrocks, perhaps. With these ribbons, each guest draws a favor from the hat. Here is a menu of tested recipes. Each recipe serves eight persons.

Menu
Shamrock Cocktail
Cream of Pea Soup with Whipped Cream
Shrimp and Green Pepper Newburg
Lettuce Sandwiches
Mint Jelly Sandwiches
Bread and Butter Sandwiches
Artichoke Hearts Parisien
Pistachio Ice Cream
Green Mints
Coffee
Nuts

Shamrock Cocktail: Cut one 7-ounce bottle green mint cherries in halves, one No. 2 can pears in quarters and four slices of pineapple in eight wedges. Arrange four wedges each of pineapple and pear, flower-fashion, around a center cherry. Garnish between each petal, near the rim of the glass, with halved cherries. Combine cherry and pear syrups and two tablespoons lemon juice. Tint the palest green with green coloring and pour over.

Cream of Pea Soup: Put one No. 2 can of peas, liquor from can, two cups water and one slice of onion in a sauce pan and simmer fifteen minutes. Press through a sieve saving out one-half cup peas for garnishing. Add one teaspoon sugar, two cups thin white sauce and salt and pepper to taste. Just before serving, add one lightly-beaten egg yolk, one cup cream and heat without boiling. Serve in cups with a few of the whole peas in each. Top each with a spoonful of whipped cream and sprinkle with minced parsley.

A Chaffing Dish Treat

Shrimp and Green Pepper Newburg: Melt four tablespoons butter in a chaffing dish, add two large, shredded green peppers and let sauté for five minutes. Add three tablespoons flour and stir until smooth, then add two cups milk or cream slowly, stirring constantly until smooth and creamy. Add one teaspoon salt, paprika to taste, two tablespoons sherry favoring. Add two 5-ounce cans of shrimps and let them heat thoroughly. Then add four finely-chopped hard-cooked eggs. Serve on toast which is prepared meanwhile.

Artichoke Hearts Parisien: Drain one can of artichoke hearts and chill. Arrange on eight individual salad plates garnished with crisp hearts of lettuce. Some time before serving to blend flavors and also chill, mix eight tablespoons oil, four tablespoons vinegar or lemon juice, two tablespoons minced parsley, two tablespoons minced pimiento, one teaspoon minced onion, salt and pepper to taste. Pour over artichokes and serve at once.

Sleeps Through Chinese Bandit Raid on Train

(From The Goldenrod)

Sleeping through the fierce bombardment of an impetuous and formidable array of Chinese bandits, while an occupant of a passenger train in north China, was the extraordinary experience of Dr. W. W. Phelan, instructor in the Department of Education. "I had just recovered from a harrowing time in the hospital in Peking," Dr. Phelan said. "In fact, I had not recovered. I hadn't a chance. Chinese hospital authorities were anxious to have me released, which is the usual ultimatum given patients in Chinese hospitals. You see, the Chinese people have hardened themselves so much to pain, that they have no respect for the Americans, who, they say, are a whining, complaining sort, unable to withstand bodily agonies as well as their yellow brother. "Knowing that they were desirous that I leave as soon as possible, I had told the nurses that I would be ready to make my departure the following evening. The girls at the Mission School in Peking, at the instigation of Mrs. Phelan, who had left several days before, and because of their friendship for both her and me, assured me that they would make all arrangements for my transport to the station, and see that I boarded my train in time. Needless to say, I was much relieved at their offer of assistance.

"When the next day arrived, it brought several disturbing elements with it. My train left at 9:30 in the evening, and so I anticipated a nice, quiet day of rest. Well, I did not get it. Long before the time for me to go, a gin-rickshaw boy came into my room to inform me that my conveyance was ready. I was rather taken aback. However, I finally got rid of him, only to be interrupted every half hour or so by the entrance of another of his tribe. Finally, there was a hull, several hours being free from their visits. Seven-thirty came, and still no rickshaw boy, and I was beginning to worry. What if I should not get to the station in time? Just at the height of an aroused nervous state, a coolie entered my room, a glib-looking fellow, and reported that he had been sent from the Mission School to dispatch me to the depot. So we went clattering up the streets, the wheels of the rickshaw bouncing tremendously at least it seemed so to me. I paid the fellow when he stopped, and he disappeared in a trice. I looked around, and discovered, to my great horror and dismay, that I was in the wrong station. Had I taken a train from here I would have landed somewhere in Manchuria. The depot agent took pity on my plight, and helped me to secure another vehicle. I could not have walked ten steps, I know, without toppling over. It was cold and disagreeable outside too. "It was a little after eight when I finally reached my true destination. I heaved a sigh of relief, and an instant later found myself surrounded by a group of a dozen Mission girls, who were all chattering like magpies. They had been in the plans and were most eager to see that I got off decently. A group of army officers saw them, and came sauntering up the platform toward us. Among them was Major Thompson of the United States Army, who, it transpired, was to occupy the same railroad compartment with me, along with two American soldiers. "Inside the compartment, I dumped myself most ungracefully into the first bed I spied. Major Thompson was very solicitous. 'I've just had the two soldiers put somewhere else, he said, 'and I am going to sit up all night and play cards, so you may have the entire compartment to yourself.' "I thanked him, then we commenced talking, and during the course of our conversation, the Major remarked, rather casually, 'Well, I'm hoping we don't have any trouble with the bandits tonight.' " 'Bandits!' I echoed rather blankly. The Major had been in China but a short month, I a year, and I had heard nothing of an uprising. 'Why, I argued, they were 700 miles away from this railroad just the other day.' "He smiled at 'my cocksureness, and advised me to go to rest at once. Worn out from my day's experiences, I almost immediately fell into a deep sleep.

"I woke many hours later to a sense of utter peace and stillness. I looked at my watch. It was nearly nine a. m. I had just commenced shaving, when Major Thompson stuck his head in at the door. He grinned at me, and said, 'So, you are awake? Hear anything during the night?' Of course, I hadn't and told him so. "Why? I asked. " 'Come along with me,' he ordered. 'I want to show you something.' At this point in the story, the narrator took a long breath, as if he remembered with anything but pleasure, the scene which greeted his eyes on that memorable morning. After a short pause, he went on. "Thompson led me to the opposite side of the car, the view here having been effectually cut off from my compartment. 'Look at that tree!' he ejaculated. "I peered through the window, and saw a sight which chilled the marrow in my bones. I saw suspended from a large tree, the heads of seven or eight Chinese bandits, dripping gore. The heads were fastened to the branches by the long queues. So hideous and unreal was the spectacle that I shuddered. I shall never forget it.

"The Major explained that at about 5 o'clock in the morning, the train had come to a standstill, and the engine and the box car, containing forty Chinese soldiers, with gatling guns, accompanied by French, English, Belgian and American officers delegated by the Chinese government as our official escorts, had been uncoupled, in readiness for the attack. When it came, a little later, the relief squad made things rather nasty for the invaders. "Now, as I gazed out of the window, as far as my eye could reach, I saw evidences of the late bloody encounter—camping accoutrement, smoking campfires, and in the distance the figures of thoroughly terrorized outlaws, feeling for their lives. "And to think," Dr. Phelan smiled, "that I slept through it all. If I had not seen evidences of it with my own eyes, I should never have believed the thrilling tale my friend, the Major, told me."
