A graduating class of 47 will receive diplomas at commencement exercises of Wayne high school on Friday, May 22. The most pretentious of all the affairs in honor of the graduating class will be the annual Junior-Senior banquet, to be held next Tuesday evening in the Presbyterian church parlors. The Senior class colors of orchid and silver will dominate the color scheme and red roses, the class flowers, will decorate the tables.

In keeping with the class motto, "We have crossed the bay; the ocean lies before us," the program of toasts will be based on Sir Hubert Wilkins' trip to the north pole.

Dr. Frank G. Smith, regarded by many as the outstanding speaker in Nebraska, has been secured to deliver the commencement address. Members of the Senior class were given the privilege of selecting their own speaker for the baccalaureate sermon, and have not as yet made their choice.

Sam Davies Passes Seventy-Seventh Year

Sam Davies was delivering his Norfolk papers Monday, despite the fact that it was his seventy-seventh birthday. Sam's numerous friends were offering him "Many more of 'em."

He suffered an attack of pneumonia this last winter, and doctors thought for a time that it would prove fatal. Sam says, however, that he is too tough to succumb to pneumonia. It will take a first-class buzz saw, he says, to do any damage to him.

Sam has been a resident of Wayne since 1885, and probably knows more people in the community than any other resident.

He attended an Elks club stag party at Norfolk last Thursday night, and was the oldest Elk there. "It's all right to be old," Sam says, "if you have young ideas."

Sam is an enthusiastic follower of sporting events. He has long been an ardent booster for local athletic teams and is always eager to see any athletic.

Natural gas is being installed at Walthill.

Mrs. A. D. Lewis in Auto Collision

Mrs. A. D. Lewis knows what it means to have a "head-on" collision in an automobile. She had one Sunday afternoon at about three o'clock, while driving on the highway about three miles north of town.

In attempting to pass another car which was traveling slowly, she misjudged the speed at which a third car was approaching from ahead.

The approaching car, driven by Carl Bagge of Wynot, was coming at a high rate of speed and was upon the Lewis car before Mrs. Lewis had time to get back on her right side of the road.

No one was injured, but the cars both showed marks of the collision, with the Wynot car sustaining the heavier damage. A broken fender and bumper were the extent of the damages to the Lewis car.

Doctor Tells Kiwanians of Health Work

Sioux City Specialist Says Poor Health Impairs Efficiency.

Dr. T. R. Gittens was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Wayne Kiwanis club Monday noon. Dr. Gittens, an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of Sioux City, Iowa, told of health conditions, particularly in their relation to the underprivileged child.

He said that the child whose eyesight is poor gets little from his school class work because of the fact that he cannot see what is going on in the class room. Many times, he said, a child who is branded as "dumb" is merely unable to see well.

He did not advocate a highly developed eye-testing system in the public schools, but said that he was heartily in favor of a group system of eye testing, whereby children are classified according to their vision. If a teacher had her class indexed according to the children's eyesight, he said, it would be easy for her to arrange the seating of the class so that the children with poor eyes would be at the front of the class room.

Many parents are afraid to have their children wear glasses, Dr. Gittens said, because they think that their children's eyes may be damaged by the glasses being broken. This idea, the doctor said, is a foolish one. He stated that he had never known of a person having his eyes put out because of wearing glasses. If a heavy blow is struck at the eye, he explained, the glasses will break (continued on last page)

TEACHERS SIGN NEW CONTRACTS FOR 1932

Two New Teachers to Be on Faculty For Next Year

Two new teachers have been hired for the Wayne public school faculty, and practically all of the teachers here this year have signed contracts to be back again for next year.

The two new teachers who have signed contracts are Miss Loula Avery, who will take Miss Florence Peterson's place, and Miss Helen O'Neill, who will take Miss Dorothy Felber's place. Miss Felber and Miss Peterson had both made other plans for next year, and refused to sign new contracts.

Those teachers who have turned in signed contracts for next year to Superintendent of Schools H. R. Best are:

Miss Minnie Will, Miss Colla Potras, Miss Ruth Ross, Miss Mae Gillies, Miss Eva Glimsda, Miss Louise Eggert, Miss Loula Avery, Miss Marjorie Pease, Miss Maude Curley, Miss Arline Urban, Miss Verna Mae O'Neill, Miss Helen O'Neill, Miss Ada Tollefson, Mr. R. K. Holter, Mr. Leonard Good, Mr. A. W. Behl, and Miss Anna Geisler.

Only one position on the teaching staff remains to be filled.

Lecture, Tour, Feature Better Homes Program

Charles Andrews, landscape architect, took several hundred local men and women into a veritable fairyland of beauty yesterday afternoon, when he gave his illustrated lecture on "The Outdoor Living Room" at the Gay theatre. The lecture was sponsored by the Wayne organization of Better Homes in America.

First, local people were given an opportunity to hear Mr. Andrews tell how "it should be," and then they were given an opportunity to see "how it is"; when a tour of Wayne beauty spots was made, immediately following the lecture.

Mr. Andrews started his lecture by showing a picture of a home. His slides illustrated a nice house and the landscaping that had been done to make the grounds beautiful. "What to plant—that is the question," said Mr. Andrews, and then proceeded to show his audience what should be planted for each kind of house.

He illustrated the difference between formal and informal plantings, and told his listeners that while one house would really need a formal landscaping, formality of planting layout would be absolutely wrong for another house of different style architecture.

Mr. Andrews illustrated different size lots; and his slides showed the different ways in which they should be planned from a landscaping standpoint. Straight lines or informal ones, there should be a definite layout, he admonished his listeners.

Beautiful colored slides of arbors and nooks brought "Ah's" and "Oh's" from his landscape-conscious audience.

Considerable interest was shown by those present in Mr. Andrews' discussion of height of different plantings. He discussed the circumstances under which tall plantings are advisable, and showed illustrations of low border plantings and their effective impression of neatness.

In discussing garden or lawn pools, he told his listeners that the most common mistake people make in building pools is to try to put too much in them. "Don't try to fill your pool up with plants and fish," he said. "Water is pretty—let some of it show. A little life is more effective in your pool than too much of it."

Members of the audience commented on the rare beauty of Mr. Andrews' colored slides.

After the lecture, many availed themselves of the opportunity to go on the Better Homes and Gardens tour, conducted by F. G. Dale and C. R. Chinn.

The first place visited was Hall's nursery, where the tourists stopped to look at the rock garden and pool. At Fourth and Nebraska they viewed a wide spreading American elm. At 413 Logan, they looked at a European Larch, and at 521 Logan saw a large common Locust. Fifth and Nebraska was their next stopping point, and they saw a large sycamore there. On Seventh street, they saw a large cut leaf weeping birch, a horse chestnut tree, a row of large hackberry, a (continued on last page)

FORMER WAYNE MAN IS HOLDUP VICTIM

Donald Beaman Forced by Bandit to Fill Brief Case with Money.

Donald Beaman, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Beaman of Wayne, was forced at the point of a gun to fill a bandit's brief case with money on Monday morning, April 20. Donald is assistant cashier of the Fred Wolf-erman grocery store in Tulsa, Okla.

His parents received a letter Thursday in which he told of the robbery. He said that a man, carrying a brief case, walked into the store at about 7:40 o'clock in the morning and asked the way to the company's offices. Mr. Beaman and a girl were working in the office, and the girl was opening the safe.

The bandit waited until the safe was opened, and then said, "It's a holdup." He ordered the two to throw up their hands, and then ordered Mr. Beaman to fill his brief case with money. He kept Beaman covered with a gun.

The former Wayne boy tried to stall for time, and counted the money out into the bandit's brief case slowly, in the hope that someone in another part of the store might discover the hold-up. The bandit's assistant, however, was engaging the janitor in conversation to keep him away from the office.

After Beaman had counted out $1345 into the bandit's brief case, the hold-up man ordered him and the girl to lie down on the floor. As soon as he left, Beaman turned in an alarm, but no trace was found of the men. In his letter to his parents, Mr. Beaman said that the robbery had evidently been very carefully planned, as the hold-up man entered the office five minutes after the cashier had come to work and five minutes before the clerk's arrival time. He passed up about $500 that was in the cashier's office.

The building was rented through Martin L. Ringer's real estate office.

FORMER LUTHERAN PASTOR HERE DIES

Martin L. Ringer's Father Passes Away at Omaha.

Dr. Calvin J. Ringer, father of Martin L. Ringer of Wayne and pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church here for 13 years, passed away at Omaha, Neb., yesterday morning at six o'clock. He had been in poor health for some time.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 10 a. m. at the Kountze Memorial Lutheran church of Omaha, with Dr. Baltzley conducting the services. The deceased will be interred in Wayne Greenwood cemetery at about four o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Dr. Calvin J. Ringer was born on Dec. 4, 1859, at Somerset, Penn. In November of 1881, he was united in marriage to Miss Susanne Walters. He entered the Lutheran ministry, and was pastor in Wayne from 1899 to 1912. He served a pastorate at Benson from 1912 to 1916, and in 1916 went to Council Bluffs, where he served until 1929. In 1929 he assumed a pastorate in Omaha, which he held until the time of his death.

Dr. Ringer was a member of the I. O. O. F. and the Woodmen lodges. He is survived by three children, Mrs. W. W. Vaught of Little Rock, Ark., W. H. Ringer of Omaha, and Martin Ringer of Wayne; two brothers, and one sister.

Spring Fish Yarns Can't Be Far Off

Spring is here—and it seems to have bitten the followers of Isaac Walton to such an extent that the air is filled with fish stories.

B. E. Galley and C. E. Carhart unquestionably get the prize for fishing ardor, although they failed to get much in the line of fish. They went to Marsh lake, Nebraska, this last week to start the fishing season, and failed to get a nibble. Their explanation is that there was six inches of snow on the ground and ice on the lake.

Twelve hundred catfish of various sizes, from five to seven inches in length, have been deposited in a creek near Wayne, at the request of the Wayne Gun club. The fish were brought in by truck from the State fish and game department. The gun club is trying to get some Hungarian partridges put in Wayne county, and expects them to arrive next week.

Chas. Schroeder, who lives about seven miles northwest of Wayne, has had an artificial lake dredged out and plans to stock it for private fishing. The lake runs from 60 to 70 feet wide and is 300 feet long. His lake was constructed at great expense, and a fish and game warden who inspected it last week says that it will be entirely practical.

Yesterday morning, several local fishing enthusiasts, spurred on by reports of Mr. Schroeder's lake, were soliciting funds for another artificial fishing pond.

District Court Hears Forney Case Monday

Trumbauer Damage Suit Will Probably Go to Next Term.

In District court, Judge Clinton Chase, District Judge of the Ninth judicial district, ruled Tuesday that the plaintiff be given five days to file an amended petition in the case of Blanche Trumbauer, administratrix of the Irvin C. Trumbauer estate vs. the Rapid Transit Line et al. The defendants will be given 10 days to answer the amended petition. Faulty service of summons will probably throw the Trumbauer case over into the next term of court.

The case of the State vs. Claude Forney is slated to be heard Monday morning. Forney is charged with sale of mortgaged property. By a stipulation between County Attorney H. D. Addison and the attorney for the defendant, the county attorney was permitted to endorse a specific list of names of witnesses.

In the case of the State Bank of Madison on Madison, Neb., et al. vs. Carl H. Leonard, et al, Judge Chase found for the plaintiffs. The amount found due the plaintiffs was $1900; $2500 attorney fees less $650 paid plus $50 for expenses. $250 paid earlier to Dowling, attorney for the plaintiff, was not included in this item because it appeared to Judge Chase that this was paid for getting rid of a former judgment. The amount found due Van Donselaar was $650; $1000 attorney fees plus $300 expenses less $750.

In the matter of the estate of C. J. Lund, deceased, it was ruled by the court that the case be transferred to the equity docket.

In the case of Arthur M. Sonne-lund vs. Robert Penske et al., a motion to require the plaintiff to furnish security for costs was sustained. The plaintiff is required to furnish security for the costs of the case within 30 days.

Funeral Rites for Local Man Held Tuesday

William Dammeyer Passes Away Saturday in Sioux City.

Funeral services were held at 2:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, April 28, at the Evangelical Lutheran church for William Dammeyer Wayne resident for nearly 33 years, who passed away last Saturday after a brief illness. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery at Wayne. Rev. H. A. Teckhaus, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church here, was in charge of the services.

Local business houses were closed during the time of Mr. Dammeyer's funeral Tuesday afternoon.

William Dammeyer was born December 13, 1868 at Enger, near Bielefeld, Westfalia, where he was baptized and confirmed in the Evangelical Lutheran faith. He came to America in 1886, locating at Fremont, Neb., where he was married to Miss Caroline Steib on June 4, 1891.

Since 1899, Mr. and Mrs. Dammeyer had resided in Wayne where Mr. Dammeyer followed his trade as a manufacturer of cigars. He was successful in business and quite interested in all civic affairs. For over 30 years the departed had been affiliated with the local Evangelical Lutheran congregation and worked faithfully for its welfare.

He passed away suddenly on Saturday, April 26, at a Sioux City hospital where he had gone to seek relief one day previously. He had attained the age of 62 years.

He leaves to mourn his departure his faithful wife; one brother, Peter Dammeyer, who resides in Enger, Germany, and one sister, Anna Klostermann, also of Enger, and his cousins: William, August, Peter and Henry Saage, of Fremont, besides more distant relatives and a host of friends.

THRIFT CHECKS ARE NOT YET TURNED IN Better Homes Group Ask That $10 Vouchers Be Cashed.

Two of the four thrift checks which were issued in March by the two Wayne meat markets, at the request of the local Better Homes in America organization, have not yet been turned in.

The checks were due April 24. Two of them came in a short time after they were issued, and although it was reported that one of the others had 22 signatures on it, as yet neither of the other two has made an appearance at the local banks.

The Better Homes committee asks that the persons having these checks in their possession turn them in so that it may be ascertained how much in bills these checks have paid.

Better Homes officials ask that Wayne residents watch the newspapers to get the dates and hours of radio programs that are being sent out in observance of the National Better Homes in America Week.

EVERYWHERE you go you hear reports of the good performance and reliability of the Ford.

One owner writes—"The Ford Tudor Sedan I am driving has covered 59,300 miles through all kinds of weather. It is still giving perfect satisfaction."

Another owner describes a trip of 3217 miles in 95 hours over bad roads and through heavy rain and sleet in the mountains. "Throughout the entire trip," he writes, "the Ford performed excellently and no mechanical trouble of any kind was experienced. The shatter-proof glass undoubtedly saved us from serious injury when a prairie chicken struck the windshield while we were traveling at 65 miles an hour."

Which GASOLINE you use

DOES MAKE

a DIFFERENCE

It would not make any difference which gasoline you used—the lowest priced or the most expensive—if all gasolines were made to equal standards of excellence.

But gasolines vary widely in quality and worth—in the power and mileage they give—in their ability to start your motor promptly—in their freedom from sulphur compounds which attack metal—in their freedom from tar which gums valves and piston rings and carbons the motor.

Cut quality gasoline is more expensive to use than full price, full quality gasoline.

Balanced RED CROWN GASOLINE is full quality gasoline—made to scientifically correct specifications by modern refining processes. It is clean, powerful, big mileage motor fuel for truck, tractor and passenger car—no extra price for high quality.

Always ready to go when you are.

CHICAGO GOES PURIST

Chicago's political three-ring circus is at an end, the Chicago citizens are hoping that there will be no "great after-concert." Big Bill Thompson, America's most serious comedian, got badly whipped in the Chicago municipal election some few weeks ago by Anton J. Cermak—the representative of the immense Czech population on Chicago's West Side winning the mayor's job by the awesome majority of 194,000.

Questions people outside of Chicago wonder about are: Why did Big Bill hit the skids? And is there any reason for believing that the obvious gangster-government tieup will cease?

Did Thompson's own party abandon him? James A. Kearns, City Treasurer, was the only Republican candidate elected, and his election would lead one to believe that the Dencen faction, with Kearns as its only representative on the ticket, traded votes to Cermak.

Cermak, however, did not need that to win the election. His success was due to the collapse of Thompson's organization and to a move on the part of good citizens determined to close the regime which was making Chicago the laughing stock of the world.

Thompson had made Chicago the butt of humorous sneers. His nearly half-witted antics had furnished entertainment for the entire world. The man who wanted to fight King George was a ridiculous representative of the tabloid newspaper age. He carried demagoguery past plausibility. It's a wonder that he wasn't mobbed by indignant, upright citizens long before election time.

But Thompson was a politician, and in the primaries when his henchmen deserted him in favor of Judge Lyle, his skill in restoring his power in wards where his men had deserted was amazing. True, stray votes showed a rising majority for Cermak, but Thompson's personal vote-getting ability with the moron masses put the contest in doubt until the final election.

Cermak is a Chicago counterpart of Al Smith. Like the man with the brown derby, he has come up from small business to political power. He has headed the Cook County Board of Commissioners for six years. His administration has not been without spots. Erection of the Criminal Court building out in the prairie on Twenty-second street would be strongly suggestive of political manipulation.

Cermak is a Wet, and is former president of the United Societies. The United Societies was the organization of the old saloon faction. It seems to be assured that a "wide open" Chicago will serve as host to the World's Fair.

Cermak's election has a bright side, however. It seems almost impossible that his administration can be any worse than Thompson's past ones have been. Cermak comes into office with the support of civic purists. He must keep in the good graces of bankers if he is to pull the city through the financial troubles brought about by a change in assessment values. It is fairly safe to hope that he will govern well and sanely.

EDITOR FANS RASBOB

After reading a statement by John Rasbob, self-appointed leader of the national democratic party, we are strongly of the opinion that he should go back to the republican party from whence he came. There is where he belongs. His advocacy of platform plank favoring big business and eastern corporations, is nothing more or less than old fashioned republicanism, and if he thinks for one minute the great democratic party is going to fall for that kind of leadership then he and his associates have another think coming. His views on the tariff, on the power question, on trusts and many other vital issues of the day are not in harmony with the teachings of democracy and we make the prediction that the gentleman in question is riding for a fall. If he wishes to advocate his theories let him get into the party he formerly belonged to to do it. In the coming election there is no question but that the vital issues of the day will be a revision of the tariff, a curb on the power interests, and enforcement of some of the anti-trust laws and some of the evils from which the country is now suffering. The democratic party does not want nor will it have the sort leadership he is advocating at the present time. Better again go down to defeat than to compromise one little bit on the questions that affect the entire nation. If Mr. Rasbob has formed the opinion that he has bought the democratic party body and soul, it is high time that he was being disillusioned on the subject. He is premature in his spouting off and if he thinks that he is in any way moulding the opinion of democrats that have long carried the brunt of the battles, we would remind him that the democrats in the private ranks are democrats because they believe in the principles of the party without hope of reward, and that it is going to take more than the rantings of a back-sliding republican with selfish aims to change their views. He may be gaining the favor of some of the eastern democrats with his views, but out in the wide open spaces of the west and all through the south he and his followers are going to find a vast army of democrats who refuse to be led by any such leader and it will be plainly shown to him in the coming national convention.—The Laurel Advocate.

THE ECONOMY PROGRAM

The Nebraska state senate leaders, having marched their army up the hill, found upon arrival that there was nothing to do but march it down again. The senate has reconsidered its rash decision to pass to general appropriation bill at all.

What the senate was threatening is something that just isn't done. A government has to have money to defray its current expenses. Without money there would shortly be no government. And even such hard-bitten partisans as Senator Rodman and Senator Perry Reed could hardly afford to toss Nebraska into two years of anarchy merely to attest how monumental is their hatred of Governor Bryan and his economy program.

The situation is simple enough. The legislature is obliged to vote funds for the support of the state government. It should vote at least as much as the governor recommends. It may vote as much more as it wishes—if it can command the required 60 per cent majority to increase the governor's budget figures. And that really is all there is to the problem. If the house and senate cannot get together on a program of their own there is no alternative but to accept the governor's program.

The governor's program may not be all it should be, but clearly it is infinitely better than no program, no budget, no appropriation at all. And the governor, as a matter of fact, stands on solid ground. He is trying to make good on the platform pledges of his party and on his own pledges as a candidate. He is standing after election where he stood before election he is seeking to effect a rather modest reduction in the expenses of state government.

As to various of the reductions recommended there are honest differences of opinion. Probably few legislators of either party agree with Governor Bryan throughout. Neither does this newspaper. It is altogether likely that an effort at revision and compromise might produce an improved budget, with both governor and legislator sharing in the glory. That, however, does not detract from the strength of Governor Bryan's position. He has taken a definite and courageous stand that is in line with good faith, with existing economic conditions, and with the popular will insofar as it was indicated by his own election.

The legislature has a right to monkey with the buzz saw. It is entitled to be just as generous, even as prodigal, with the people's tax money as it wishes—and dares. But if it will think twice before voting a single unnecessary dollar above Governor Bryan's recommendations. And it will finally abandon the absurd idea of permitting no appropriations at all because of the inability to agree with itself and an indisposition to agree with the governor.—Omaha World-Herald.

One of the hardest situations the small town publisher has to face is the cleverness of the paid publicity seeker who enlists the unwitting aid of a local person or organization to secure place for their stuff in the local paper. Not skilled in the analysis of propaganda, the local party falls hard for the appeal made in the interests, apparently, of some welfare project, some great educational scheme, some great home requirement of what have you, and when the local paper is obliged for self protection to refuse the stuff he is denounced as being greedy, unsympathetic, unenlightened, a drawback to the community advancement and everything else that occurs to the denouncer. It is useless to attempt explanation for the unsuspecting tools of the paid agents are no more able to understand the situation than is the layman to understand the doctor's technical diagnosis, the electrician's scientific explanations, or the chemist's laboratory terms which are used to indicate just why H2O is different from K2O. As a matter of fact every publisher welcomes promotional matter of any kind which has not back of it someone's selfishness.—Clay Center Sun.

PARKING SPACE

What would you think of a host who would invite a number of his friends to his home and then he and his family would occupy the only chairs about the table while the guests would be forced to seek other places?

You would not think he was a very good host, would you? Of course not. Yet in effect this same thing is done every day by many merchants and professional men who drive their cars to work and to their business.

In some cases all of the parking places in front of a store are taken by the cars belonging to the clerks and the proprietor, making it necessary for the customers who drive to town to seek other parking places.

Some times it is not easy to find a parking place and the customer drives about in search of a place to leave his car and then he and his family must walk back a block or two to the store where they desire to do their trading.

We believe it would be a better policy if the business and professional men of the town would find parking places on the side streets and leave the convenient parking places for those who come to town to trade with them.—Emerson Tri-County Press.

HOW MUCH!

We can't buy everything we need at home but what we can buy at home we should. However, loyalty to home business institutions can hardly be expected when one has to pay a fancy premium for the privilege.

In some instances too much profit is asked and people nowadays are too familiar with prices to permit themselves to be "held up." This is the day and age of "we want to know what your prices are." People used to buy without inquiring usually charging almost everything they bought. But times have changed, especially since cash prices and chain stores have made their advent. The buyer wants to know and deserves to know prices of things. The housewife or the buyer of today wants the privilege of comparing prices.—Newspaper advertising offers the best advantages for furnishing this information to the consumer—it is effective and economical and when used consistently and intelligently proves that it is the best salesman the store has ever had on its payroll. Local merchants are beginning to realize some of the above facts and are putting a liberal amount of newspaper space to work for them—every week.—Winside Tribune.

MAIL BY ROCKET

The prediction that in two years German scientists will have developed rockets to carry mail across the Atlantic every half hour is one that in this day of miraculous discovery and invention the average man will not care to hold in contempt. For he has too many new things operating like magic before his eyes, things that have come into existence while he watched their development and perfection, for him to doubt rocket possibilities.

German inventors and scientists at work on rocket propulsion are making progress according to G. B. Pendray, vice president of the American Interplanetary society. Liquid power is now used for propulsion and rockets may be sent great distances in this way. Eventually, rockets may be shot across the Atlantic as mail carriers. More miraculous things already have been done.—Sioux City Journal.

SCOTT SHOTS

by "SCOTTY"

The Democrat staff has gone doggy! Jake's looking for a water spaniel and Glenn Bunnell's bought a Boston Bull pup (as a present for his kid brother) and the Scott Shot scooper has been trying all around to locate a Scotch Terrier. Nothing but a Scotch Terrier will do, and it must not be too expensive. I've tried to locate one in Sioux City and in Omaha, but, as usual, when you want something you have a hard time finding it.

It has to be a Scotch Terrier. There was a Scotch Terrier in Doc McGreevey's dog hospital at Sioux City that completely won the old hard-hearted Scott Shot Scooper's heart. It was such a homely mutt, and it looked so much like Calvin Coolidge, that I wanted it—but it wasn't for sale.

The Boss hasn't fallen for the dog idea—yet. But it looks to me like he's dangerously near succumbing. The three dog fanciers in the office are trying to lead him on—and you may see The Boss leading a little Pomeranian down the street on a leash any day before long.

O. O. McIntyre (another good columnist) is a real dog fan. Some of his best copy has been written about his dogs. It is his old cynic's opinion that McIntyre's best piece of writing is the column he turned out when his Boston Bull died.

Last Sunday I saw a Boston Bull that cost his owner $650. He was a little aristocrat, a thoroughbred in every sense of the word—but his owner couldn't love him any more than a kid can love a fifty cent mutt.

HOME TOWN FOLKS

Doc Quinn

Doc Quinn was an old country practitioner who never got into step with the modern trends in medicine. Somehow or another, though, he achieved amazing results in caring for the ailments of his people. He was a profane old buzzard, and had never been known to go to church, although he contributed generously and anonymously to several religious organizations.

It was Doc Quinn who took care of old Ad Johnson's wife after Ad had beaten her up. Ad, usually a perfectly harmless old sot, had come home in a more brilliant state of intoxication than usual, and had proceeded to administer a sound thrashing to his wife.

The poor old woman was just about dead when Doc Quinn arrived on the scene. He worked over her most of the night, trying to bring her back to life, and when she was resting nicely Doc invited Ad out into the back yard.

"How much is it, Doc?" Ad asked him.

"Just a minute, Ad," Doc Quinn replied, reaching into the buggy for his whip. He grasped the whip in his gnarled old hand, raised his arm and came down with a lash across Ad's face. He gave him a real horsewhipping and, after he had beaten the old toper unconscious, took him into the house, cleaned out the lash cuts, and spent most of the morning taking care of him.

One time Doc Quinn was called out to a farm house on an urgent case. One of the youngsters was sick in bed. Doc knew at a glance that it was pneumonia, and he knew he should have been called days sooner. The kid's mother was down on her knees, praying. The room was poorly ventilated and dirty.

"Oh, what shall I do?" the old mother wailed.

"Get the hell up off your knees and get some clean sheets on that blankety-blank bed," Doc roared. "Open the blank-blank such-and-so window and let a little fresh air in here. And then get the hell out."

He pulled the patient through, but the kid's mother never quite forgave him for his rough talk.

Doc was brutally frank. His speech was often vulgar. But he knew all his patients from the soul on out, and loved most of them.

One night his wife found him, sitting peacefully in an easy chair, with the evening paper on his lap. There was a little half-smile on his face. Doc had grown tired and the Lord had given him a long rest.

There were plenty of tears shed at old Doc Quinn's funeral, and I can just imagine old Doc cussing venomously at the show of affection his neighbors evinced.

Mary Marks

Mary Marks was my first high school sweetheart. It was all definitely decided in my mind that some day Mary Marks and I would get married. We knew that we were meant for each other, and the scintillating glances we cast at each other in our classes must have been either amusing or irritating to the teachers.

Dating Mary grew tiresome. It was nice to get out with the rest of the high school boys once in a while, but Mary demanded lots of attention. She was a spunky little devil, and wouldn't stand for any lack of attention.

The joys of bachelor-hood grew larger and larger in my eyes, and finally I decided it was time to assert my independence. I did.

I had given her string of genuine, imitation pearls. She pulled 'em off and threw them at me. The string broke, and I got down on my hands and knees and tried to find the pearls. It was an undignified position, and a high school boy's dignity is something not to be trifled with. I gathered up what pearls I could find and what dignity I could muster, and exited. I never went back.

Mary soon had another beau, but I wasn't jealous. It was a big relief not to have to worry about dates.

I've heard that Mary is "working out" by the month. The last I heard, about two years ago, she was working for Mrs. Feeley, a farmer's wife who has absolutely no romance in her soul. That would be tough for Mary.

"I don't mind facing the electric chair," the murdered observed. "It's sitting in it that has me worried."

The Randolph Times-Enterprise is one of the newspapers in these parts that carries a feature column. It's called the "Pollyanna" column, and is loaded to the brim with wise cracks and jokes. There are usually some sage observations interspersed with the laughs, and Randolph people must get a lot of chuckles out of "Pollyanna."

The Randolph paper also carries an American Legion column, and is a newsy sheet from start to finish. We like it's typographical makeup and are always impressed by the healthy amount of advertising copy it carries.

As a way to relieve the national depression, why not have a National Make More Money Week?

DARK gentleman who advertised in this column for further acquaintance with lady in fur coat, passenger on Eastmoreland bus, better stick to street cars. If persistent he can have date with husband of said lady any time.

In the Wausa Gazette we run across a jingle for which the publisher of that paper disclaims authorship. It is headed:

That Early Bird Parody

When the frost is on the plumbing and the bathtub and the sink; when you hear icicles clinking as you draw yourself a drink, that is only what's expected in the winter, but by jing! It's enough to give you shivers when the time has come for spring.

Here last week I shed my heaves, took my rake, my spade and hoe, and put in my early garden—lettuce, onions, row on row. "Gee, I'll soon be eating green truck" to myself I gaily said, but today a snowy blanket lies atop my onion bed.

Ain't that just the way with mortals—always getting in a jam—never waiting for the signal, got to take it on the lam; instead of doctoring our chillsblains, thawing out our frosted toes, we go hunting for a sunburn, growing freckles on our nose.

Let us gird our loins with patience, hold our horses, so to speak, say Manana! to the sunrise. "Call around some day next week." Oftimes premature beginning tollsome industry defeats, and the worm that rises early is the one the robin eats.

Well, the Galley-Carhart fishing tournament finally took place—and what a fizzle it turned out to be. Both men had done a lot of talking about what wonderful fishing skill they were going to show. Each had predicted an overwhelming victory over his opponent.

What happened? Well, believe it or not, but it's true—neither Isaac Galley nor Walton Carhart caught a single, solitary fish. Now the fishing rivalry of years should be at an end. Each man knows how rotten the other one is at getting 'em on the hook.

The Book Box

All right—if you don't want to take my word for it—that certain books are good, we'll get somebody else's judgment.

10 Modern Poets "a very excellent book, which has been badly needed," says the New York Times. "Here are biographical and critical accounts of De La Mare, Frost, Housman, Kipling, Amy Lowell, Massfield, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Alfred Noyes, E. A. Robinson and Carl Sandburg. The author writes well and sympathetically, telling what readers of poetry like to know about poets." Sounds good, doesn't it? Harcourt, Brace published it, and the price is $2.50.

You've probably been hearing a lot about "The Adams Family," by James Truslow Adams. The author, a distinguished historian, is not in any way related to the family about which he writes. In "The Adams Family" he has pictured a great dynasty with a combination of sympathetic understanding and critical insight that is rare among present day biographers and historians.

Allan Nevins, well known historian says of the book, "It is not merely a delightful history of the most distinguished family America has produced, rich in interpretive ability and humor, but a narrative which mirrors the development of American politics, manners and intellectual tastes during a century and a half. The reader is shown in a striking way how the knotty, upright, unyielding individualism of the Adamses acted upon democracy, and how democracy reacted away from it, leaving it isolated. It is a book full of philosophy as well as political and diplomatic drama."

To follow the careers of the Adamses from John Adams, president of the United States, through five generations down to Charles Francis Adams III is to witness the panorama of America's growth and to live history over again. By all means, read it.

Nebraska Lakes Yield Many Muskrat Skins

Demand for muskrat skins from the sandhill lakes of Nebraska is good, and the quality is such that furriers quote a separate price on Nebraska muskrat skins.

The shipping season for muskrat skins closed a few days ago. From Hyannis, county seat of Grant county, where trapping is carried on extensively, 476 bales of skins were shipped this season. The value of the skins was $70,000.

Nebraska muskrats from the sandhills came into notice during the World war when furriers were compelled to look to new fields for furs, especially the high priced seal. The muskrat fur proved so good a substitute for the more expensive furs that it has since been in high demand not as a substitute but on its own merit and in its own name.

Grant county has a large number of fresh water lakes, free from alkali, and these are native haunts for millions of muskrats that build their reed and rush houses partly under and partly above the water. They are not difficult to trap and many trappers enjoy a profitable winter's occupation around the Grant county lakes. The business is now so systematized that ranchers rent their lakes either on a percentage or cash lease basis for the season for trapping purposes. A large lake will bring the owner as high as $1,000 a year, on a royalty basis.

Muskrat is Nebraska's most numerous fur-bearing animal. Others that yield some revenue for trappers are: southern mink, found all over the state; long-tailed weasel, not very popular resident of the muskrat country because he kills too many muskrats; three species of skunks found chiefly in timber areas; and raccoon, badger and beaver.

WITH THE WAYNE CHURCHES

Presbyterian Church
P. A. Davies, Pastor
Work is what we do of ourselves, but fruit is what we do of God.
Services for the coming Sunday are as follows: Sunday school, 10:00; Morning worship, 11:00; Evening choir 6:00; Intermediate and Young People C. E. services at 6:30; and Evening worship, 7:30.

The young people last Sunday evening voted to make no change in the hours of evening services and surely if they are satisfied to attend six and six-thirty o'clock for the choir and C. E. services, it should be no hardship for others to attend at the evening hour of seven-thirty. One of the strongest arguments in favor of the earlier hour is the earlier hour of closing.

Mrs. J. H. Kemp, Mrs. P. A. Davies, Mrs. Mae Young, Mrs. R. R. Larson and Mrs. E. Beckenhauer attended the Nobrara Presbyterial at Osmond this week. Mrs. Taylor, who gave us such a wonderful Mission talk last Sunday morning, is to be one of the several speakers present.

Rev. Allston has asked for the use of our church the afternoon of May 8 for a conference of Vacation church school workers. It is our hope to have a Vacation school this summer.

The pastor has been asked to take part in two installation services during the month of May—one on the sixth at Norfolk, where Rev. Dickie is being installed and one on the twenty-sixth at Ponca, where Mr. Fowler is being installed.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon read at all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, April 26, was "Probation after Death." The lesson shows that the experience commonly called death is not to be regarded as a friend, and that mortals do not by that means become freed from materiality, but that whatever errors of thought and life that they may cling to still have to be overcome by right understanding of God and obedience to divine law. A part of one citation that was read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 290) is as follows: "The sin and error which possess us at the instant of death do not cease at that moment, but endure until the end of these errors. To be wholly spiritual, man must be sinless, and he becomes thus only when he reaches perfection."
The following is one of the Biblical references read: "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.—For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God."

Roadside Market Is Gaining Popularity

Attractive Display, Steady Supply Requisite.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.)

A successful roadside market must front on a road with heavy traffic and must sell high-quality, fresh produce at fair prices, says Miss Caroline B. Sherman, associate agricultural economist of the United States Department of Agriculture. Attractive display, steady supply and courtesy to customers also are recommended.

That roadside markets have not invariably possessed these qualifications is attested by several investigations cited by Miss Sherman. She says, however: "Apparently the stage of mushroom growth in the roadside-market business as a whole has nearly passed. The time has come when farmers, as a group, are inclined to make a fairly careful study of the question before putting much time, money or energy into roadside markets."

Miss Sherman finds that the business of the better roadside markets is increasing. She cites as an example a study in Michigan in which many of the better markets reported increases of 10 to 15 per cent in volume of sales in the second year of business. Co-operative roadside markets also are reported as being successful in some localities.

To aid farmers who contemplate entering the roadside-market business, Miss Sherman has summarized the principal factors of success and of failure in Leaflet 68-L, entitled "Roadside Markets," just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The leaflet contains a list of state publications which set forth the results of roadside-market investigations in specified localities and indicates the states in which state or self-regulation has been tried. Leaflet 68-L may be obtained from the office of information, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Important Advantages of Well Planned Garden

The farm garden can be made to produce more than $300 worth of vegetables each season, according to specialists in vegetable gardening of the Ohio State university. The farm garden produces vegetables for immediate consumption, and also for storage and for canning. One of the most important advantages of such a garden, however, is the fact that it will yield vegetables for immediate use, at the time when they are at their best.

Planning the garden is a most important phase of its management.

One-fifth of an acre, properly planned and managed, will supply the needs of the average farm family. It is suggested that the garden be arranged in straight rows running north and south, and far enough apart to permit the use of a horse-drawn cultivator. Each plant in a north and south row receives the maximum of sunlight.

The rows should be arranged in the order of the dates of their planting so that on the maturing of an early season crop it may be replaced with another crop, and the entire garden kept in production throughout the season.

Fertilize Fruit Trees Shortly Before Bloom

Nitrogenous fertilizer applications for fruit trees should be made two to three weeks before bloom. The fertilizer does most good if it gets into the tissue of the tree early in the spring when it may influence the size of the leaves, the set of fruit, the length of shoot growth, and the development of fruit, says Prof. A. J. Heinicke of the New York state college of agriculture.

While the tree may absorb nitrogen even after the leaves and fruit has been formed, it is not always best to have too much available late in the growing season.

The new growth in a mature apple tree requires about one and one-half pounds of actual nitrogen in a year. About one-third of this is contained in the fruit crop, and the rest is used in the leaves and shoot growth. Much of the nitrogen in the leaves is recovered and used again the following year. The quantity of reserve nitrogen in the tree and soil varies from year to year, and the plant must depend more on fertilizer one year than another.

Agricultural Squibs

With the drought in mind provide a better watering system this year.

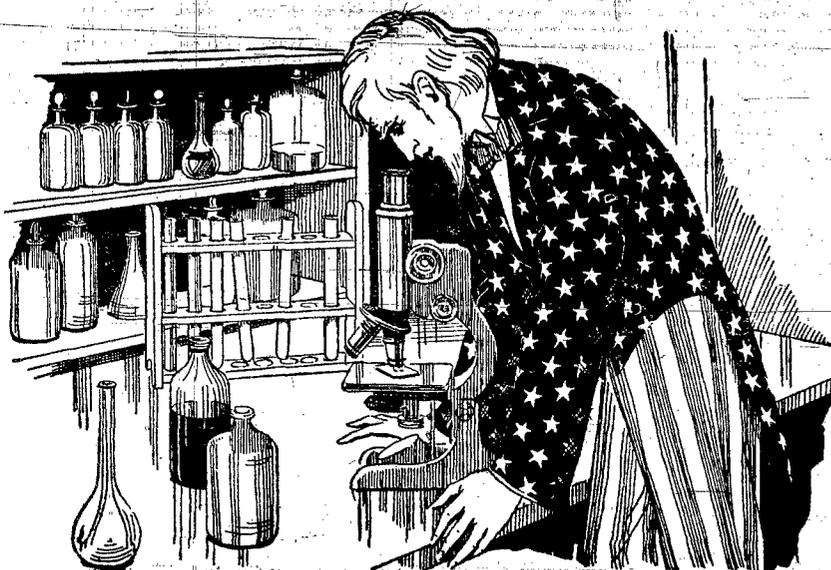

A well-grown chinchilla rabbit will weigh four pounds when eight weeks old.

It is a waste of time to plant trees or shrubs without fencing the plantings to keep out live stock.

In most parts of the country there is great need for increasing the acreage of the leguminous crops.

Cultivation to be effective against quack grass must be thorough, frequent, persistent, and properly timed.

Dig enough parents or oyster plants the first thaw to last for some time. It may freeze solid when you want them again.

HEALTH AND UNCLE SAM

NOT only through the Federal Food and Drugs Act but by means of his own vast purchases of food Uncle Sam constantly safeguards the health of this nation. He tests every bit of the latter which he buys, as well as having the Food and Drug Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture enforce the above mentioned act, and the effects of all this regulatory work are far reaching. A pamphlet entitled, "Marketing with Uncle Sam", issued by that Department, states:

"As an indirect result of the administration of the food and drugs law, the packers, jobbers, canners, manufacturers have reaped substantial benefit. The honest manufacturer has been taught how to bring his products and his labels into compliance with the law, while the dishonest competitor has been forced, sometimes not too gently, into the path of business rectitude. The result is better foods and better business. The majority of manufacturers market an honest, high-grade product. The same administration of the law helps them to this end."

Feeding a Huge Family

But it is not by law alone that Uncle Sam helps to keep all the foods offered to his nieces and nephews wholesome and healthy. Here is part of what the pamphlet has to say about his purchases for his official family:

"When Uncle Sam counts noses, or rather stomachs, he is apt to start with large organizations, like the Army and Navy.

"During 1929, the Army led off with 118,000 enlisted men to feed, and in addition, purchased food for Philippine scouts, over 6,000 of them, for general prisoners, employees on cable ships, mine planters, the vessels of the Army transport service, etc.

"The Navy marches a close second, having subsisted 72,000 during 1929. This number is exclusive of 15,200 marines who are provided for directly by the U. S. Marine Corps.

"Next comes the Department of Justice with 24,000 prisoners to feed. Then the Department of Commerce under whose jurisdiction come employees of the vessel service of the navigation and lighthouse branches, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Fisheries, Mines, etc."

"The magnitude of the problem involved in the selection and purchase of food for these veterans is apparent when it is realized that there are 18,000 of them in fifty hospitals in as many towns, and that food for these shell-shocked, war-torn boys must be chosen to nourish and strengthen, as well as satisfy the vagaries of the sick.

"And even yet we have not mentioned all of the official family. There are forest rangers who patrol the vast domain of the national reserves and parks, the inmates of Indian schools, of prisons and reformatories, and institutions for the mentally deficient and physically incapacitated.

"The supplies include practically every known food that comes in a can, besides such staples as flour and cereal foods, cocoa, coffee, cheese and dried fruits, and offer a complete cross-section of all the processed foods produced in the United States, thus affording wide protection to the general public as well as their consumption in Uncle Sam's official family."

A Complete Cross-Section

The supplies include practically every known food that comes in a can, besides such staples as flour and cereal foods, cocoa, coffee, cheese and dried fruits, and offer a complete cross-section of all the processed foods produced in the United States, thus affording wide protection to the general public as well as their consumption in Uncle Sam's official family."

"The only thing lacking to complete the picture of commercial supremacy was railroads. Ambitious citizens of great vision saw ten important lines converging there. The ten finally became two and neither of them trunk lines of great commercial importance.

In 1871 the states made attractive inducements to railroad builders. It offered a grant of 20,000 acres of state land to any railroad that completed ten miles of road by December 31 of that year. So luring an offer did not go unheeded. The Midland Pacific was already organized and during the winter of 1870-1 the contractor transported a large amount of material into Nebraska City across the river, a great deal of it on sledges over the ice, to complete his contract before May 1. A trial run was made over the line in February and the final trip of approval April 22.

On April 22, 1871, fourteen years before Governor Robt. W. Furnas proclaimed the first observance of Arbor day on the birthday of J. Sterling Morton, the advent of that famous citizen into his career of usefulness was celebrated by running the first train on the Midland Pacific between Lincoln and Nebraska City.

About that time Nebraska City, whose ambition to be the state capital had been quenched by the establishment of the capital at Lincoln, began to have dreams of being a great commercial city. It was already an important river port. It was place of entry for thousands of settlers and travelers and trade center for a vast area that stretched from the Missouri far into the interior of the state.

Minutes of meeting held April 7, 1931, read and approved. Report of J. O. Webb, Justice of the Peace for Hoskins, showing amount of fees received by him for the quarter ending March 31, and from April 1st to 7th amounting to $4.00, and the payment of the same into the county treasury, was examined and on motion duly approved.

Comes now Sam Saden and says that for the year 1930 he was assessed in the City of Wayne with a valuation of $4500.00 on Lots 11 and 12, Block 4, Original town of Wayne that part of such assessment included improvements which were assessed at $1000.00—that the tax on said improvement amounts to $40.40 and that he paid said total tax of $181.80 under protest as shown by Protest-tax receipt No. 113. For the reason that such improvements were totally damaged by fire on August 5, 1930 and he now asks that the county treasurer be ordered to refund to him the tax of $40.40 on the improvements, and distribute the balance of the tax.

On motion such protest is rejected and the county treasurer is ordered to distribute the funds.

The following claims are on motion audited and allowed and warrants ordered drawn on the respective funds as herein shown. Warrants to be ready and available on Saturday, May 2, 1931.

the blow and keep the eye from being seriously damaged.

Most of us, Dr. Gittens revealed, have some degree of defective hearing. Very few people have perfect sense of hearing, he said. He complained that the average person does not give the ear specialist a fair chance to cure his ear trouble, because the average person waits until his ear trouble has become acute before he tries to remedy it. Few people visit an ear doctor, he said, until they have lost 30 or 40 per cent of their hearing. When a case has reached that stage, the doctor said, it is almost impossible to cure. The only thing that a doctor can do in such a case, he said, is to delay total deafness.

Dr. Gittens said that the greatest advances in eye and ear work in recent years had been made in the line of physics. He told of the audiometer, a device used in the larger schools of the United States to test the hearing of many children at one time.

Children, he said, do not get a square deal in the field of health in many instances. The fact that health standards are being raised and increased care is being taken of the physical side of a child's growth, he regarded as favorable insurance of better conditions in the future.
