

Theo. Longe Succumbs to Heart Failure

Services for Wayne County Farmer Held Tuesday Afternoon.

Theodore Longe, well known in the Wayne and Wakefield vicinities, passed away very suddenly early Sunday morning, August 16, at his home. He was stricken with a heart attack. As Mr. Longe had not been ill, his death came as a great shock to his family and friends.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon from the home at one o'clock and at two o'clock from St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church south of Wakefield. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

Rev. Gerdes read the English sermon and Rev. H. Hopmann of Wayne read the German sermon.

Theodore Ferdinand Longe was born in West Prussia, Germany, in November of 1872. He came to this country in 1875 as a child three years old. His parents settled in Wayne county, and he had lived in this vicinity ever since. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith by Rev. Welding.

In 1894 he was united in marriage to Lizzie Brudigan. Ten children were born to this union. He was 53 years, nine months and two days old at the time of his death.

He leaves to mourn his passing his beloved wife; his children, Mrs. Otto Gest, Mrs. Ed Frevert, Mrs. Herbert Echtenkamp and Clarence, August, Arthur, Ervin, Edwin and Alvin Longe; his brothers, Albert, Frank, Herman, Amos and Rudolph Longe; his sister, Mrs. Detlef Kai, and six grandchildren. One daughter, Elsie, and a sister, Mrs. Fred Utecht, preceded him in death.

Wayne County's State Tax Levy Is $77,849

Wayne county will be charged with $77,849 in state taxes in 1931, as compared to $97,304 in 1929, according to announcement made Saturday by Governor Charles W. Bryan.

The state tax levy for 1931 has been fixed at 2.04 mills on the dollar valuation, equivalent to $2.04 on each $1,000 of taxable valuation.

The total state taxes levied through the state in 1931 are $6,213,419.16, as compared to a total of $7,879,328 charged to the counties in 1929.

Of the 1931 state levy, 1.93 mills is for general fund purposes, and .11 mills is for the Capitol fund.

The law provides that emergency appropriations made by the legislature shall be provided for in the first levy after the adjournment of the session, hence the comparison of 1931 with 1929, as both levies provided for the emergency appropriations of the two sessions.

Building Activities Show Prosperity

With Miller and Stirtz building an apartment house on the lot just east of their service station, the Coryell Auto company building a new garage and showroom, on East Second street and the Miller and Strickland garage undergoing extensive alterations, Wayne gives evidence of being an increasingly alert and prosperous community.

Financial experts claim that building activity is a good sign of healthy business conditions, and if their belief is correct Wayne is obviously in a fortunate position.

Dr. S. A. Lutgen is building a fine new duplex; Ray R. Larson is building a new home; Carl Nicholas has started the erection of a new house; W. D. Hall is building a new house; Homer Seace has a number of houses under construction and plans to build more in the near future.

Considerable employment is being offered by these and other Wayne building activities. Money is being put into circulation, and Wayne builders deserve the thanks and congratulation of the community.

YOUNG INTOXICANT DRAWS JAIL TERM

Ernest Olson Gets $100 Fine for Possession of Liquor.

Ernest Olson was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail and was fined $100 and costs of $5.05 in County Judge J. M. Cherry's court Monday when he pleaded guilty to charges of intoxication and possession of intoxicating liquor.

He was given the 30 day sentence on the intoxication charge, since this was his second offense. The $100 fine was levied on the possession charge.

The case was heard on complaint of Chief of Police W. A. Stewart.

Olson had been a student at Wayne State Teachers' college, but it is understood that he had not been attending classes for some time. He had been a cornet player in the Wayne municipal band until he was dropped from membership in that organization a short time ago.

Thompson Case Is Continued to Friday

The case of Chas. B. Thompson, charged with intoxication upon complaint of Chief of Police W. A. Stewart, came up for hearing in County Judge J. M. Cherry's court yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and was adjourned until four o'clock upon request of Harry Siman, attorney for the defendant.

At four o'clock, Attorney Siman reported that he had not been able to get necessary witnesses, and the case was continued to Friday.

Thompson is fighting the case, since a previous conviction on an intoxication charge in 1929 would make jail sentence compulsory if he were found guilty of a second offense.

She has been engaged in beauty parlor work in Wayne for a number of years and has many friends here who will hate to see her leave this community but who rejoice with her at her opportunity to accept the foreign position.

KIWANIS STARTS SOON

GAS COMPANY GETS JEFFRIES BUILDING

Representative Says Gas to Be Ready Here in 30 Days.

The People's Natural Gas company leased the Jeffries building, just south of the Crystal theatre, yesterday afternoon, the lease to become effective on Tuesday, Sept. 1. The deal was transacted through Martin L. Ringer.

The gas company representative said yesterday that his organization would move into the building as soon as possible, and that the company would have gas available to Wayne people within 30 days.

The building had been vacant for four months. With its lease by the gas company, no vacant buildings are available on Main street. The Jeffries place has an attractive brick front, and has been redecorated inside and repaired since the Jeffries store stock was closed out.

Mr. H. R. Best has been elected president of this organization for the coming year. He has served this past summer as secretary and his very efficient work won for him the higher office. ## PENDER OFFICIALS FACE COURT ACTION

Clerk of District Court and Sheriff Are Under Fire.

Attorney General C. A. Sorensen filed an original action in the supreme court yesterday asking the removal from office of Ed Farley of Pender, clerk of district court for Thurston county.

The complaint was based upon a recent audit conducted by the Thurston county commissioners that revealed shortages of $4,083.60. Sorensen said that about $2,000 of the amount represented fees the clerk failed to collect from lawyers for filing of legal actions. He charged that the rest of the shortage was appropriated by Farley.

Sorensen said Farley had admitted to the commissioners that he was short about $3,000, but refused to resign and told the commissioners he could not make restitution to the county.

The attorney general also disclosed that Sheriff Iler C. Jensen of Thurston county had been charged with embezzlement of fees and funds, that he was recently bound over to the district court and will be placed on trial in September. Despite the action, Sorensen said, the sheriff has continued to hold his office.

DAVID HERNER

two o'clock Friday afternoon at the home and at three o'clock at the Presbyterian church in Wakefield. Interment will be in the Wakefield cemetery.

Mr. Herner had celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday on Monday, Aug. 10.

He was a well-known resident of the county for nearly 50 years and had taken an active part in Wayne county politics throughout his residence in this territory. He was an ardent believer in the principles of the Democratic party and had been prominent in Democratic circles. He was always well-posted on matters pertaining to state and national politics and took an active interest in civic affairs.

Mr. Herner was born in Canada on Aug. 10, 1854. He came to America while still quite young, and had been a farmer in Wayne county for about 50 years. On Feb. 8, 1882, he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Park. Mr. and Mrs. Herner had looked forward to celebrating their Golden Wedding anniversary in 1932.

Besides his loving wife, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Orville Puckett, and one sister, as well as many more distant relatives and a host of friends.

The Fremont committee in charge of convention arrangements has assured local Legionnaires that every Legion member who desires to come to the state meeting will be welcome. Plans have been made to make the 1931 meeting a more elaborate one than any ever before held, and unusually elaborate entertainment plans have been made.

"Funnies" in Next Week's Democrat

Hot dog, kids! Next Thursday's a red letter day!

Starting on that date and continuing every week thereafter, The Nebraska Democrat will publish four pages of four-color comics. "Slim Jim and the Force," "Yarns of Bos'n Bill," "The Outline of Oscar," and "The Kelly Kids" will delight you with their funny antics every week. There is no extra charge for the added feature, the price of The Democrat remaining $1.50 a year.

In case your folks aren't taking The Democrat, tell them that this newspaper publishes a number of other features every week which they can secure in no other publication and which they will enjoy. Tell them that if they want a live, snappy newspaper they're missing a good bet in not subscribing to The Democrat.

Tell them that you want to read the comic section. Don't suggest to Dad and Mother that they might like the comic section, too, but just between ourselves, the chances are that they'll get a big kick out of it.

WINSIDE'S ANNUAL CELEBRATION TODAY

Many Wayne People Plan to Attend County Reunion.

Many Wayne people are going to Winside today to attend the annual Wayne County old settlers' reunion. Winside has made plans for what is said to be the finest program in the history of the celebration.

The feature of the program will be a baseball game between the Cuban House of Davids and the Sioux Falls, S. D., Canaries. Both teams are rated high in semi-pro baseball circles, and committee members feel that the game should be an exceptionally good one.

The Cuban team will present a "Shadow Exhibition" immediately before the game starts. A free ball game will be played this morning at 10 o'clock between the Pierce and Winside Junior Legion teams.

Other features of today's program will be the free attractions: the Musical Swaggles and Cogwell's High Still clown act; a full program of minor sports; horseshoe contests; water fight and a free dance in the evening, with a seven-piece orchestra furnishing the music.

Music for the celebration will be furnished by the Winside Concert band, under the direction of Prof. Eric Ecklund.

Doctors Exhibit Skill in Shooting Contest

Dr. W. A. Emery and Dr. L. W. Jamieson defeated County Attorney H. D. Addison and Henry Ley in a rifle match late Monday afternoon. The losers complained that they had no second, whereas Don Larson acted as second for the winning team. Mr. Ley and Mr. Addison said that the counsel given the winners by their efficient second was responsible for the Emery-Jamieson victory.

Addison and Ley then secured a second and challenged the "Doctor" team to a return match, which was played last night. The Addison-Ley team won by a score of 122 to 101, but the Emery-Jamieson team's second, Don Larson, was not present so the Doctor team had an alibi equal to that offered earlier by the Addison-Ley combination.

Prof. J. M. Pile's Students Hold Picnic Sunday

Nebraska Normal College Reunion Draws 150 Reminiscers.

Old memories were revived and days gone by were lived over again when about 150 former students of the late Prof. J. M. Pile held their annual Nebraska Normal college reunion picnic Sunday on the lawn of Dr. U. S. Conn's home.

Mrs. Pile was unable to be present on account of illness, but James H. Pile was present as a representative of the school founder's family.

Following a picnic lunch, a series of talks depicting Professor Pile's struggles and hardships in establishing the Nebraska Normal college and Pres. Conn's ability as his successor were given.

The speakers were J. J. Steele, Mr. Burke, '94, member of the state board of education and finance, Dr. Conn, James H. Pile, L. Powers, Rose Rundquist, Claude Wright, Ella Williams-Holmes, and Prof. E. J. Huntermer.

Mr. Pile's talk, in which he revealed his father's ideals and desires, was of special interest to the group. Mr. Pile threw an intimate light upon the early day experiences of his father and told his listeners much that they had not heard before.

Dr. Conn recounted the hardships undergone in maintaining the school in its early years. He mentioned having received as tuition corn which had to be burned as fuel, since the school had no other use for it. Following the various remarks about the past, Prof. E. J. Huntermer linked yesterday with today by giving a description of the newest improvements about to be made on the campus.

Officers elected for the coming year were as follows:

President, J. J. Steele of Wayne; Vice Pres., Elsie Robertson Anderson of Wakefield; Sec.-Treas., Myra Andrews of Stanton; Historian, Mrs. John McIntyre of Wayne, and Ass't. Historian, Mrs. S. B. Whitmore of Wayne.

Attendance at this year's picnic was the largest it has been for some time. Congratulations were extended to ex-president Mrs. John McIntyre on her efforts in making the picnic a success.

The group accepted Pres. and Mrs. Conn's invitation to meet on their lawn next year.

Rain Tuesday Night Is Merely Dampener

One-tenth of an inch of rain which fell late Tuesday night gave little relief from the heat to Wayne people. It was the first rainfall since Saturday, Aug. 8, when .71 inches of rain was recorded here.

Total rainfall for July was .86 inches. Rainfall in August-up to Aug. 20 totals .81 inches.

The weather bureau predicted continued warm weather for today.

WHY SEEK SYMPATHY?

There are always whiners why not be something different? Why not take the bad breaks as a part of the general scheme?

One may be tempted to tell of hard knocks endured, feeling that if people knew about them they might show more sympathy for the victim.

The fact is that many seek sympathy largely because they are looking for an excuse for not doing their best.

In the event of death of loved ones there is a place sacred to sympathy, provided it comes from true friends or is in itself genuine. Yet in a case less than life and death even close friends have a right to think that one should pull himself or herself out of the trouble.

Sympathy in such a case is a reflection on one's ability or stick-to-it-iveness in running personal business.

The best way is to keep troubles to oneself, for even the best of friends get weary of hearing about them. Incidentally, it is easier to help a brave and courageous man or woman than a whiner.—Omaha Bee-News.

Poultry Farm Offers

Few Points on Culling

Roselawn poultry farm, specializing in Leghorns, furnishes a few points on culling which should be of interest to farmers:

1. Early production with good heavy bodies. To set an exact weight might be deceptive, but the feel of the bird will not be. If a pullet feels solid and almost like a piece of lead when picked up, she should be kept. If, on the other hand, she is light and thin and does not have the heavy feel, she should be thrown out. Most pullets that have been raised right will have the heavy feel.

2. Red or pink in the shanks.

Have Your Eyes Examined

Your eyes are important. Don't abuse them. Several Wayne men are splendidly equipped to give you a thorough optical examination, without charge. If you need glasses, they will be glad to make them for you at reasonable prices.

The appearance of your car is important, too. Expert body and fender repairing, top refinishing, and automobile painting is our line. Give us a trial.

O. B. HAAS BODY AND FENDER SHOP HEADQUARTERS FOR AUTO GLASS

Watch for pullets that have a tinge of red pigment on each side of the legs. Among these pullets you will find your best layers. Such pullets will not always have the deepest yellow legs, but the presence of red denotes vitality and heavy production.

3. Appearance. Keep all pullets with bright, alert eyes and vigorous appearance shown by smooth plumage and the look of vigor. Discard those with crow heads and sunken eyes.

4. Extremely knock-kneed pullets are usually weak in vitality and should be discarded.

5. Any birds with bad deformities should be culled as they cannot compete with normal birds.

6. The ideal pullet to put in the laying house has legs set wide apart, a deep full body, smooth plumage at time lay starts, and a big comb. She is active and first off the roost in the morning and last on the roost at night.

THE DESTRUCTIVE RAT
Of all the pests which infest the world, the rat is undeniably one of the worst. So great has the menace of rats become that an international association for their extermination has been organized.

Not only do rats destroy millions of dollars worth of farm products every year, but they are a menace to health through the fleas which infest them and spread diseases of various kinds, such as bubonic plague, trichinosis and hydrophobia.

It is said that one couple of gray rats will produce 800 to 900 offspring in a year, as the young become adults in four months. If all were able to find feed and shelter it can readily be seen that they would ultimately overrun a community.

The program recommended for combatting rats includes the building of rat-proof structures and cutting off their food supply.—Exchange.

THAT'S NEWS

"Edgar Howard Has A New Hat," said a headline in yesterday's Lincoln State Journal.

When a man bites a dog, that's news.

By the same reasoning, when Edgar Howard, who has made his black felt hat of Quaker type as well known a trademark in Nebraska as the Gold Dust Twins,—when Edgar dons a new skypiece, that's news.

One would be inclined to question the truth of the statement if it were not for the Lincoln paper's high standing for veracity. Edgar with a new lid? Tak, tak! It hardly seems possible.

That new hat may be a symbol of something or other off with the old and on with the new, or something. Maybe our usually conservative Edgar is going radical. Maybe that new hat is a proclamation to the world that Edgar Howard is to be watched—that he's going to try some new departures.

The hat, a white pith helmet, was made in England. Maybe Edgar is going in for international affairs. Maybe (perish the thought) Edgar is getting the Hoover interantional outlook.

The helmet was white. Maybe that means that Mr. Howard is going to start a campaign for Purity.

When a congressman as regular in his lid habits as Edgar Howard has always been suddenly runs amuck and blossoms out with a white helmet, people of the state of Nebraska should start showing signs of alarm. If this sort of things goes on, we can expect to hear about Governor Bryan wearing beach pajamas to his office.

But, at that, wouldn't it be wonderful if all the fevered brows of congressmen were satisfactorily cooled by pith helmets?

AVOID HYSTERIA

This country now needs the best efforts of its serious thinkers, those who will not be carried away by political nostrums offered and who will be able to detect certainly those who would advance their own interests at the cost of many.

Political spellbinders find their most fertile soil in the minds of many in times like these. Depressions, low prices, unemployment and resultant poverty put too many in a condition to listen to the eloquent and to accept the urge of the self-seeker. Much of the present trouble, while it affects individuals, does not result entirely because of the lack of individual capacity for self care.

"To what department of government should I apply for relief, now that the stock in which my money is invested is not paying dividends," writes a correspondent to an eastern paper. The inquiry, undoubtedly not made in good faith, illustrates nevertheless a regrettable tendency. When trouble comes we look to the government to get us out of it. We have had a quick acting, responsive government for so long that we expect it to deal with our personal affairs whenever pressure comes. This government has been going to the relief of this class and that, helping the afflicted here and the unfortunate there, until the primary purpose of government has well nigh escaped us. Even a Nebraska congressman busies himself in an effort to get government relief for Nebraska farmers who have been scourged by grasshoppers, when this state is well able and apparently willing to care for its own.

The eloquence of the politician medicine man will get us nowhere. We will recover from the depression. The good sense of the people of this country will penetrate the selfishly generated hysteria of agitators and value it for what it is worth.

The road back to normal business, normal living and usual conditions is not difficult to find. A little clear thinking and honest effort and the way before us seems plainly marked. —Lincoln State Journal.

Hooverism

Marie Weeks, publisher of The Norfolk Press and one of Nebraska's most brilliant editorial writers, has much worthwhile comment in her always interesting "Political Paragraphs" for the issue of Aug. 13. Mrs. Weeks usually knows what she's talking about, and a recent trip to Chicago has convinced her that political unrest is growing.

Some of her comments follow: "Hooverism is as dead as the proverbial doornail if the American political mind is to be judged by conversations of men and women on any street, in any mart, big or little, in the middle west.

"And by Hooverism I don't mean Herbert Hoover alone but anyone or anything that smacks of his ideas if it can be said that the president has ideas. No one believes that he has. What he sponsors is the idea of someone he represents.

"The republican party will commit party suicide if it permits the Mellon group to renominate the president or one of his school of thought.

"Talk about tariffs and reliefs and panaceas and platforms with meaningless planks won't feed the hungry or give jobs to the jobless, and the hungry are getting hungrier and the jobless are increasing by the thousands daily.

"I've spent two weeks at the listening post in city, town and hamlet, in farm, factory, mart and metropolis, questioning when I could, listening always for what is in the minds of men and I'm convinced that the American voter is fed up with politicians who play the game; with platforms that mean nothing; with party drivel and political policy that ends up in personal aggrandizement and nothing more.

"If I am any judge of human nature the American people are ready for anything that promises a change. They want it peaceably, but they will fight for that which they feel is theirs and of which they have been robbed while they slept through their prosperity-drugged jags of forgetfulness of American rights.

"You read horrible tales of communistic uprisings in New York, Detroit, Chicago. These are not communistic uprisings. They are the human reactions of hungry, jobless men with families who are being turned out of the hovels they live in because they have no money with which to pay rent.

"The newspapers don't tell half the story, and what they do tell isn't true. You could easily give away $10 were you to have it and be willing to stake those who ask you in the distance of a block square to give them a dime for a cup of coffee or a bowl of soup.

"So numerous are those without the price of even the cheapest meal that patrons of the cheaper eating places must show they have the money for what they order before the meal is served.

"You don't read about it, but wages are being cut constantly and days of employment are less and less numerous.

"It is only eight years since Hoover wrote his book: 'American Individualism.' He said then: 'None of us are either hungry or cold or without a place to lay his head and we have much beside.' If the president isn't in the condition Curtis accused the Iowa farmer of being he surely realizes that what he said in 1913 is as untrue of conditions under his administration as the statements of many of our now defunct banks."

WHEAT TO CHINA

The announcement that China is in extreme need of outside aid to save thousands from starving gives this government a new problem in international affairs. The matter reaches even closer to Nebraskans when it becomes known that appeals are being made for at least five million bushels of American wheat on credit to relieve the suffering.

A number of people will immediately point out that our security in this venture would be rather vague, since the Chinese government has been growing more unstable in recent months—with possible precipitation of more armed strife, this is true, but there are factors on the other side.

In the first place, such a shipment from this country would greatly reduce the surplus of wheat held by the federal farm board, thereby moderating one of our most difficult domestic problems.

Further than this, such aid to China would no doubt create a wealth of good will in that nation toward our own country. This feeling of friendliness might do much in the future toward promoting greater trade and commercial relations with the Chinese people.

America was the last great nation to enter the field of foreign trade with any commercial venture in China. In recent years our government has led the way in reducing harmful exploitations of the Chinese, breaking up the exclusive rights held principally by Japan, Great Britain and Russia, and giving China a position of prominence and equality in world affairs.

The present suggestion of aid to that country would be merely a continuation of our policy. It would be an act of humanity—alho this is probably submerged in more material considerations in our present materialistic age.

At any rate, there would be less wheat here even if the whole kaboodle fell into the ocean on the way over. And that's what the farmers claim they want.—Cedar County News.

MURRAY MAKERS MERRY

Governor Murray of Oklahoma has carried out his threat and employed the national guard in an attempt to cut oil production. His orders were to shut down wells, except stripper wells, until the price is a dollar a barrel, unless, of course, the president or the federal supreme court interferes. The governor does not seem to recognize the authority of interior federal courts but he might be brought to do so.

The whole affair is typical Murray stage play. The picturesque Oklahoma governor is handy with his guardsmen and has great sport defying corporations and court orders.

Up to the present time he has not caused much damage and has reaped a ripe harvest of publicity for his efforts. His present stunt is absurd. The governor is employing a high handed method of price fixing that may have difficulty in standing up before more reasonable and less excitable authorities.

It would be nice for oil producers to obtain a dollar for their product. But Oklahoma is not the only oil producing state and the governor has handicapped the companies operating solely in that state by closing down their operations while producers in other states are more than willing to supply the demand the shutdown will leave unfilled. If the governor's ban is effective long, Oklahoma will be buying oil and gasoline produced in Kansas and Texas. That would be a blow to the governor's pride.

The conservation of resources is one thing while restraint of trade is another. The people of this country have been careful to guard against combinations which might force the price of commodities above a natural level. Now Governor Murray is forgetting the people of his own state and other states to the extent of helping oil producers obtain twice as much for their product as they would under present circumstances.

No one objects to Governor Murray having his fun. "Alfalfa Bill" would not be himself if he were not unorthodox. But there is no prospect of his guardsmen being long employed. The governor has tackled a difficult task from the wrong angle. —Lincoln State Journal.

STALIN CONFESSES

The five-year plan in Russia may be moving along smoothly to a triumphant success, but all is not so well with the principles of communism upon which the soviet experiment is based.

We have the word of Joseph Stalin, general secretary, Communist party of the soviet union, for it. Stalin delivered an address the other day at a conference of industrial directors in Moscow, in which he took some of the managers to task, strangely enough, for looking too seriously upon certain principles of the party.

The communists, as Stalin points out, have maintained that all labor should be upon an equal basis of pay. Wages should be based upon the needs of the individual, rather than upon his ability or his capacity or willingness to produce.

Stalin now finds that the rule won't work out. There has been much too large a labor turnover in certain industries so that instead of spending all their time producing, a large percentage of the laborers must devote a good proportion of their energy to learning their jobs.

To attach skilled laborers to their industry, Stalin finds by experience, there must be held out to them the hope of promotion and wage increase, which would be impossible under conditions of absolute equality for all workers. They must also be spurred by hope of improving their living conditions. The growing aspirations of the worker must be recognized.

This is just what defenders of the capitalistic system have been contending. They have been insisting that the way to gain efficiency in labor is to give the laborer a wage which depends upon the value of his contribution to the industrial output.

Stalin's speech sounds very much like an admission that this principle is true. —Norfolk Daily News.

THE HUMAN MACHINE

Every prudent person who owns and operates a piece of machinery is careful to see that it is kept in good condition. This is usually done through frequent inspections to detect unusual wear and tear, so as to have the necessary repairs made before the machine actually breaks down.

The most important piece of machinery of all, however, is often sadly neglected. We refer to the human body, the machine upon which all joy of living depends.

It is well that people are more and more getting the habit of having periodical health examinations, even though they be apparently in good health. By these examinations, incipient disease may often be detected long before the person examined would have felt any discomfort from it. This is particularly true of diseases which attack the internal organs such as the heart, lungs, liver and kidneys.

Every person, especially those getting along toward middle age, should have a thorough physical examination at least once a year, whether they feel any symptoms of disease or not. If no disease be found, it is a great satisfaction to know that one is sound physically, while a warning of disease in its first stages enables one to obtain treatment which may check its progress and materially prolong his life.

Most large life insurance companies now afford their policy holders free medical examinations once a year and this privilege should be taken advantage of by all means. If no insurance be carried, the fee for such an examination is small and may save much suffering and expense in the future. Watch your human machine. —Neligh News.

HIGHWAY MANNERS

Bad manners are considered abominable in any well-regulated household, but they're worse than that on the highways of the country—in fact, they're even death-dealing. A man with pretensions of being a gentleman will pardon himself when he walks in front of someone. But watch him meander slowly down the middle of the highway in an automobile, blocking traffic and growing angry when other motorists seek to urge him to the side of the road where he belongs. Where is the difference in acting the part of a gentleman?

According to traffic engineers and statisticians, the accident rate would drop to a minimum if drivers would display a little courtesy in operating their cars by giving way when other machines are passing. Other discourtesies, constituting positive danger, are the crowding of cars coming in opposite directions, the unnecessary use of loud horns, driving slowly in the midst of fast-moving traffic, carelessness in making right and left hand turns, making false signals, etc.

A survey conducted by the Albert Russel-Erskine bureau for street traffic research has shown that the automobile itself is least responsible for accidents. Poor breaks, steering and similar factors cause only a small percentage of mishaps. Human nature has not yet adjusted itself to take advantage of the full efficiency and safety of the modern car. Nine out of 10 cars involved in accidents are in perfect condition. Thus, in 90 percent of the cases, accidents result from human carelessness, incompetence or bad judgment. —Cedar County News.

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S STRENGTH

Gov. Roosevelt of New York is far out in front of all other candidates for the democratic nomination for the presidency next year. His strength seems to have increased considerably during the summer. Nor yet can anyone say that his boom has been deflated in the slightest degree. Instead it has been inflated more day by day.

There is no doubt that Gov. Roosevelt today is the strongest democrat in the party. Which is not to say that all factions are thoroughly pleased with the idea that he may be a candidate in the election next year. The south does not go along with the governor's known wetness. But the south is not disposed to set up much of a protest particularly when it appears that at last a democrat may really have a chance at victory.

The times will have a good deal to do with pacifying democratic factions, wet and dry. Any democrat will say a victory by his party is certain in 1932. That feeling may prompt aspirants for the presidency to hold on as long as possible in the convention, but delegates will not be so enthusiastic over them as they are. Instead they will think of one thing, and that will be to select a man who seems to have the best chance to win.

Because of this, Gov. Roosevelt's star appears to be high in the political skies at the moment. —Sioux City Journal.

IT IS UP TO CONGRESS

Everything the federal farm board has touched has gone down in price. Corn thus far has escaped the withering blight of paternalism and is about the only farm commodity that commands anything like a decent price.

Farmers should be convinced by this time that the federal farm board is a colossal bust. Most of them are convinced of it. Even the enthusiasts on co-operative marketing who went into the scheme are pulling out of it and calling the farm board names.

Seemingly there is no way to get this old man of the sea off the neck of American agriculture until Congress convenes next December. Congress can do the job by repealing the law by which the board was created, calling for an accounting of funds advanced and refusing further appropriations.

It is not too early for farmers, business men and others interested in the welfare of agriculture and in the preservation of the tradition of individual freedom from competition with government to begin writing their representatives in congress. Regardless of loyalty to the administration, they will vote the sentiments of the citizens they represent.

Let congress know that it is the desire of the people that the government withdraw from the speculative grain markets, that they resent government competition with individuals and the whole paternalistic undertaking will become history as quick as the needed legislation can be put through. The easy way to kill it is to cut off appropriations. The more emphatic the demand, the quicker the job will be done. —Sioux City Tribune.

WE ALL PAY TAXES

Less than 3 1-2 per cent of the population of the United States pays more than 9 per cent of the federal income tax, and less than 7 percent of all corporations in the country pay more than 95 per cent of the corporation income tax.

The average person, merely glancing at these figures, might decide that taxation is merely a matter affecting the rich individual, or the big business, and so none of his concern. But, unhappily, taxes do not work that way. If a company is taxed a dollar or million dollars, there is but one way it can raise the funds to pay—by passing the cost on to those who buy the articles or services it sells.

Every person in the country is a taxpayer. When he buys food, pays rent, buys gasoline, takes out an insurance policy or goes to a theatre, he automatically pays some of his money to government. The old saying that death and taxes are inevitable is truer today than it ever was. And, as a result, tax reduction, far from being a matter that interests only the wealthy few, is a matter of tremendous personal importance to each of us. —Madison Star-Mail.

Suggests Adding Wheat to Dairy Cow Rations

With most Nebraska pastures dried up, many dairy herd improvement association members and other dairymen are finding it necessary to feed grain to their cows, according to E. C. Scheidenhelm of the state agricultural college at Lincoln.

Scheidenhelm, an extension dairyman at the college, suggests that Nebraska dairymen feed some wheat in their rations. Under present price conditions, he believes it is cheaper to feed wheat rather than corn. Some dairymen who have used wheat, however, say that it tends to slow up the milk production. Nevertheless, the agricultural college man says that a ration of one-fourth or one third wheat will not hurt the cows.

A mixture consisting of 300 pounds ground wheat, 300 pounds ground oats, 300 pounds ground barley or corn, along with 100 pounds of either cottonseed or linseed meal is suggested. Another mixture includes 500 pounds ground corn or barley, 500 pounds oats and 100 pounds of either cottonseed or linseed meal.

The more milk a cow produces the more grain she should be fed now, Scheidenhelm maintains. Jerseys and Guernseys producing up to 20 pounds of milk should receive one pound of grain for every seven pounds of milk while those producing from 30 to 35 pounds should get one pound of grain for every 4 1/2 pounds of milk.

Holsteins, Ayrshire and other cattle require about the same amount of grain for each pound of milk produced.

SCOTT SHOTS

SCOTTY

SOCIETY NOTE—Steve Auker has donated a plentiful supply of sand to the local Barnyard Golf club, said sand being used as a base for the horseshoe pits. Manager Billy Patterson lent a note of friction to the otherwise harmonious donation ceremony when he charged that the sand was especially prepared to aid Mr. Auker and act to the disadvantage of the Scott Shoter. Manager Patterson had been trying to arrange for a championship match between Mr. Auker and the champion, but negotiations are off until Billy secures a chemist's analysis of the sand.

From The American Press we lift the following perplexities which beset a newspaper publisher:

It is the duty of the paper at all times to be "constructive and thus attract the better element in the reading population:

But

When the political party with which you disagree does anything, it is your duty to expose the rascality and scoundrelism of its politicians and do everything possible to heave them into outer darkness by the scruffs of their (probably) unwashed necks.

Advertisers should have nothing whatever to say, in any circumstances, about the news-matter or policies of the paper; they pay merely for white space, not influence:

However

When a lady patron of a department store beauty shop is electrocuted while getting a permanent, it is not absolutely necessary to notify the populace with a 120-point banner.

Saturday night the Scott Shoter attended a formal church wedding over in Sioux City. It was a hot night and tuxedos were just about as much out of place as they could possibly be—but were worn because the occasion demanded it.

Edwin B. Haakenson, city editor of The Tribune and as good a city editor as any daily newspaper ever had, walked up to the altar, all six feet, four, of him, and took his stand, determined to do or die. If you've never known a hardboiled city editor you can't possibly imagine how much fun it was to see the lion turned into a lamb, and a pretty meak lamb at that.

From now on, Ed may be monarch of the city reportorial staff of the Tribune, but I have a faint suspicion that he'll be just plain "Hey, you, help me with these dirty dishes" around the house.

Even as you and I.

Glenn the printer has just purchased a "privately printed edition, limited to one thousand copies," called "Colors." It chronicles the amours of various women symbolized by different colors, ranging all the way from violet to red. The cover of that there new book should be made of asbestos. Milo Kremke, connoisseur of literature erotica, reports that Glenn's book is first class.

Have you ever noticed that the person who is afflicted with halitosis always insists on talking right into your face?

A comparatively recent Wayne private scandal, if exposed, would set the whole town buzzing. It's almost too much to keep—but then, no newspaper likes to be subjected to libel suits and the Scott Shoter would just as soon let somebody else break the news. The people involved in it are well and favorably known.

Does that set you thinking—or worrying? If it doesn't, you're all right. The above paragraph was just a little experiment in the psychology illustrated by Mark Twain in his story about the man who got his competitor to leave town by sending him a telegram which read, "Everything is discovered. Unless you leave town within 24 hours, I will expose all." Of course, if the little "Scandal" paragraph did arouse conscience qualms within your heart, you'll never let me know, so I've know way of knowing whether the little psychological experiment is a success or not.

The Democrat's comic section starts next week. It follows the trend of the times in that it will be printed in four colors. Color printing is coming to the newspaper field, and we predict that before very long every newspaper in the country will be printing ads and news copy in colors.

The experiment could be carried out to the extent of printing murder stories in red, scandals in yellow, garden stories in green, and so forth ad infinitum. If the experiment went that far, wouldn't color-blindness be a blessing?

Judge Says Misbehavior Worse Sin for Women

"Are women too good to be untrue. Are they, even at their rowdiest, merely plastered saints?" asks Greta Palmer.

They are, according to Judge Camille Kelly, of Memphis, who opened an address before the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Richmond, Va., with the remark that misbehavior "is just a little worse in women than in men," and went on to say that she believes that God holds women to a higher degree of moral responsibility because they are the mothers of the race.

Perhaps the most biting rebuttal which might be made to Judge Kelly by women on the other side of the fence would be a simple "Why?"

Why should a mother be held to stricter account than a father? Why should a sin seem worse if the sinner wears petticoats? Will a woman be more harshly judged by the arithmetic of the Recording Angel?

To many women, who are fighting for the equality of the sexes, it must seem that Judge Kelly's statement suggests that God is duplicating the same biased judgment which has influenced the human race in its verdicts. It is sufficiently obvious that a woman is punished severely by society for sins which would be condoned in a man. But is it not possible that this is one of the points where society falls sadly short of the demands of abstract justice?

A woman who expects to see her peccadilloes passed over with the mild "ehk-ehk" which would be the lot of an equally erring man is indeed deluded. It is still highly inexpedient for a woman to be found out in any moral transgression. A man may be forgiven by any but the most straitlaced—the discovery would spell social doom for a woman.

But in denying herself the liberties which her brother may take, many women feel a pretty sound sense of being put upon. They are willing to forego the trivial and somewhat tawdry pleasures that are denied them because the price the piper pays is far too high. In most cases they would not indulge in the prohibition pastimes, even in no punishment were required.

But what, they ask the world, and what, they ask Judge Kelly with even ring of righteous indignation, is this? Why should the piper have a sitting scale of penalties? Why should sin for the goose be sauce for the gander?—Wright County Journal-Press.

Polled Shorthorn Cattle Feature H. J. Miner Farm

Two hobbies are apparent on the H. J. Miner farm, one mile south of the Wayne depot on the gravelled highway, and both hobbies have been successfully carried out. Mr. Miner's hobby is the breeding of Polled Shorthorn cattle and Mrs. Miner's hobby is her yard landscaping and rock garden.

Breeding of Polled Shorthorn cattle has been Mr. Miner's hobby for 18 years. At the present time, he has a herd of 60 head, all of which are beef type bred for milk production. All the cattle are of his own breeding, even to the herd bulls. The herd header, Imperial Marshall, is a four-year old, raised on the place and the product of four bulls Mr. Miner has had. Mr. Miner's name appears in Imperial Marshall's pedigree four times on his dam's side.

Imperial Marshall is a rugged animal that looks worthy of the title, "Imperial." His production record leads one to believe that Mr. Miner has bred well and carefully.

The quality of his Shorthorn stock is testified to by the fact that customers whom he has never even seen are using their third and fourth bulls from the Miner farm. He has sold by mail-order to customers as far away as Colorado and Illinois. His word is his bond, and he guarantees to satisfy his customers.

Many purebred cattle men have difficulty in selling their bulls before they have reached the age of approximately two years. At the present time Mr. Miner has only five on the place, and all are under a year old. He usually manages to sell his stock just as it is coming of serviceable age. One man from Fremont, Neb., and another from Fairfax, S. D., visited the Miner place this week to look at the available stock.

Mr. Miner exhibits his cattle only at the Wayne county fair. He has not found it necessary to cover the mid-western fair circuits to get a market. The reputation of his stock and his own reputation for integrity have always given him an adequate market, and he is constantly receiving requests from farmers throughout the middlewest.

While he has not exhibited at fairs other than the Wayne county show, he has bought prize-winning animals from many fairs. Some time ago he paid $750 for a bull that was judged first at the Lincoln, Sioux City and Huron, S. D., fairs. It had won over a bull that took first place at the Des Moines, Iowa, fair.

Mr. Miner belongs to the Tri-County Cow Testing association and has milk production records on his stock as well as beef records. He has tried to strike a happy average between beef and milk production, giving cattle that will be of the utmost value to the farmer.

In addition to his cattle, Mr. Miner has bred Spotted Poland hogs for a number of years, and has about 150 on the place this summer.

There are seven horses on the farm, used in working the 200-acre place.

Mrs. Miner is raising 300 purebred Buff Orpington chickens, from which she expects to show a profit.

There are two houses on the Miner place. Mr. and Mrs. Miner live in a pleasant seven-room home atop a gentle rise which is covered with pleasant shade trees, and the hired man and his wife live in another house. The Miner home is furnished with city electricity, and city electric lights furnish illumination for the other buildings.

Besides the houses, there are 11 other buildings, including two fine, big barns, a garage, hoghouse, wash-house, grainery, cattle shed, and three chicken houses, all neatly painted and kept in good repair. A supply cistern furnishes running water which is piped all over the place. The farm buildings have a floor space of approximately 10,184 square feet.

Eighty acres of the 200-acre farm are in corn, 45 in small grain, oats and barley mixture, 12 in alfalfa, and the rest in pasture, hay and yards.

No story of the Miner place would be complete without reference to the beautiful yard, which is Mrs. Miner's. Just as Mr. Miner is a master pride and joy. It must have taken an enormous amount of work to make a farmhouse yard such a thing of beauty, but as one looks at it he reaches the conclusion that it is well worth every ounce of energy expended on it.

The yard is a mass of gorgeous flowers, lily pools, bird baths, and rock garden effects, with a bank of hollyhocks as a background. A beautiful vine arbor adds much to the effect and fine old shade trees lend the finishing touch to the piece of artistry.

The rock garden is unique in that it contains rocks from 15 different states. Mr. and Mrs. Miner have traveled from ocean to ocean in visiting their three children, all grown up, married, and with positions of their own in Illinois, Georgia and California.

The rock garden has rock formations entirely foreign to this section of the country and is well worth taking a trip out to the Miner place to see.

Mrs. Miner's favorite flowers are the perennials, and no one could help but agree with her when she sees the beautiful effects she has created with them.

Just as Mr. Miner is a master cattle breeder, so is Mrs. Miner an expert landscape-gardener. Both of these people have handled their hobbies well—remarkably well.

Mr. Miner is not quite so pessimistic about the farmer's outlook as most are inclined to be. He says that he never had more inquiries for breeding stock than he received from a year ago this May until May 1 of this year. He has done his work well and his reputation for quality cattle will insure business for him.

Laying Pullets Should Have Clean Housing

One summer chore which cannot be slighted is getting houses ready for new pullets as they come into lay. A "clean house for clean pullets" should be the slogan. A good job is fully 90% cleaning, or the removal of infective material. Ordinary household lye is a cheap and effective cleaning agent, used in the proportion of three ounces to the pail of hot water. Spread it freely on the floor, and let it soak in until the dirt may be easily scraped and scrubbed away. A fire gun may also be used for killing disease organisms.

The following working plan is suggested:

1. Remove nests, feeding and watering utensils, and other portable equipment for cleaning, disinfecting and sunning outside the house.

2. Sweep, scrape and scrub the floor, walls and ceiling until the place is clean. Flood the floor with lye solution, four or five pails to a 20x20 pen. Swab it into the corners and upon the walls with an old broom. Then after scraping out as completely as possible, turn a hose into the pen and flush it out.

3. Paint roosts and support with carbolineum, red mite paint or creosote.

4. Spray thoroughly with some good disinfectant. One of the standard coal tar products used as directed by the manufacturer, is recommended.

Remember that time and material used in spraying is wasted if disease organisms are protected by layers of dust or caked-on dirt.—Locke James, Dept. Poultry Husbandry.

Officer Says Anthrax Danger Not Serious

Dr. H. L. Feistner, state veterinarian, said Friday after an inspection trip to anthrax infested areas that he believed the situation had reached its peak and was well in hand. He warned, however, against laxity in vigilance of cattle and livestock men in warding against the disease.

Dr. Feistner said that Nebraska areas have suffered small actual losses in stock, and farmers have readily agreed upon vaccination as a means of immunizing their stock.

Before returning to Lincoln, Dr. Feistner crossed the river from Blair to Missouri Valley, Ia., where he said the epidemic is serious and loss of livestock large. More than 400 head of stock, he said, have died with anthrax or were killed there.

Symptoms of the disease, the official said, are not easily detected in cattle, while in hogs it is detected in a swelling in the throat. In cattle, however, the animals are usually found dead before their affliction is noted.

Newspaper Proposes Novel Wheat Scheme

The Lincoln State Journal for Friday, Aug. 14, presented an idea on its editorial page which has been receiving considerable comment, both pro and con, from farmers in this territory. The editorial follows:

THIS PLAN MIGHT PAY

"The Kansas farmer who decided to buy his next year's wheat crop at present prices, to put it in his bins and to give his wheat land a year's rest has come in for more than the usual amount of editorial analysis. Because his situation is so much like that of thousands of eastern Nebraska farmers what he has done will bear some discussion.

"C. C. King, living near Hiawatha, usually grows about 160 acres of wheat. This year with wheat near twenty-five cents a bushel in his locality, he decided to buy rather than produce. The market was glutted, prices reflected world conditions, and wheat could be bought for less than half its cost of production. He reasoned that he could make a profit on production by buying next year's crop now and that by so doing he could give his land a year's rest, a chance to increase its fertility and therefore its value.

"It is interesting to speculate on what would happen if a large number of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado and Montana extensive wheat farmers would follow the lead of Mr. King. The year old advice of Alexander Legge to grow less wheat would be followed, wheat crops would be reduced and the farmers who buy now would stand to make more money next year than they can make by growing wheat. The land would gain a year's rest and the farmers could devote the time usually given to wheat growing to other interests, secure in the knowledge that their 1932 wheat crop was in the bin, insured against drought, hail and crop pests.

Much is heard about the financial troubles of big wheat growing farmers and concerns. They have had a bad year. Normally next year's acreage will be less than it was this year. The pressure of market conditions will see to that. If production can be further reduced and still keep the surplus wheat on the farms, it would be an experiment worth trial to a great many. It might bring big returns."

Survey Shows Rise in Farm Electricity

The National Electric Light association recently made what may be considered the first attempt to arrive at a national estimate of use of electricity on American farms.

The survey showed that on Dec. 31, 1930, 644,421 farms were receiving service. During the year they purchased 1,779,947,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy—three times the amount sold for railroad electrification. The total revenue from this service was $46,187,600.

Of special interest is the fact that the average farm used 5 per cent more power in 1930 than in 1929, but paid a total bill 4 per cent smaller. As in the case of domestic service, increased use of power is accompanied by lower rates.

The future progress of farm electrification will, to a large extent, represent the future progress of agriculture.

Pointers For Work Around Farm Homes

Put the pullets in their laying pens a few weeks before they are ready to begin laying. They will soon become accustomed to their new surroundings, and then the change will not interfere with egg production.

Horticulturists used to head back their young fruit trees each year, in the belief that it made them stocky and well-branched. It is now known, however, that heavy cutting back of annual growth of young trees removes quantities of stored-up plantfood material needed for the future development of the tree. This results in decreased size of tree and delay in coming into maturity. Horticulturists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture advise pruning young fruit trees just enough to train them correctly.

MORE HORSE POWER

There are fewer horses on American farms, but there is more horse power. Thirty years ago there were 11.6 million horses and mules and 31.1 million horse power applied to farm production. In 1918, when the use of animal power was at its maximum, there were 26.4 million horses and mules and 43.7 million horse power. Today there are fewer than 10 million horses and mules, but horse power on the farm has risen to 55 million.

Today there are a million tractors on American farms, another million motor trucks, five million passenger cars and a vast equipment of electricity and gasoline engines used for power other than motive purposes.

In two generations, the department of agriculture estimates, farm labor efficiency has increased 500 per cent.

Mechanical equipment has done it. Fewer people work and live on farms but they produce more.

The logical conclusion is that the farmers should be rolling in prosperity. If one man and a machine can produce more than two men without the machine he ought, according to all the theories of machine efficiency to be reaping the benefit of his greater productiveness. And yet apparently he isn't. It is during this very period, when horse power has been so rapidly increasing, when productive efficiency has become multiplied, that agriculture has become most oppressively class conscious, that it has felt most acutely a disparity between itself and urban industry, that it has urged most persistently and emphatically some form of political relief to remedy the situation.

Mechanization of the farm has tended to alter its situation from a way of life to a business. There has to be more money to carry on the normal operations of the farm and therefore more attention to money crops. Along with the tractor and the mechanical corn picker it has been necessary to introduce the balance sheet to the farm. And the balance sheet is telling the farmer things that he never guessed before.

The experts commissioned to apply relief seem to take the attitude that all that's the matter with the farmer is too darn much efficiency. He has been producing too much for his own good and unless he quits it they hold out to him little hope of doing anything substantial for him.—Omaha World-Herald.

No Danger in Wheat as Sole Hog Ration

Prof. H. J. Loeffel of the Nebraska State Agricultural college at Lincoln says wheat may be fed as the sole grain to hogs without any danger of developing abnormal conditions. Hogs fattened at the college, Loeffel says, have been fed wheat for periods of upwards of four months without any of the pigs going off feed. Experience at the college shows that ground wheat is more palatable than shelled corn.

Farm For Sale!

A Big Bargain in a 294 acre rough farm located about 10 miles North of Sioux City in Plymouth County, Iowa.

There is 130 acres under cultivation. It is on a good road, 160 acres of good pasture with plenty of good water and some shade. Farm is fenced hog tight. Taxes are low.

Improvements, house 26x24 by 16, water in house. Good barn 48x80-14 well built and in good condition. Silo 45 feet high with feed shed between silo and barn. Shed 24x14, granary 20x24, hog house 16x28, good chicken house, waterworks over the place with an exceptional large reservoir. This farm at one time was mortgaged for $27,000. The Company holding the mortgage failed and its assets were sold for 30 cents on the dollar. Now the owners want to sell. The price is $10,000.00. They want $2500 or more paid and the balance they will carry for 5 or 10 years at 5 1/2%. The pasture alone if properly stocked will pay for this farm and it would carry 60 cows and their calves the year around. It has some good alfalfa on it. Right now there are 62 cattle and 25 horses in the pasture.

ANCESTOR WORSHIP
Honoring of parents or other worthy forbears is most commendable; the extremes to which some people carry their pride of ancestry is somewhat amusing.
We see many worthless offspring from high-class parentage, while on the other hand many persons born in obscurity have made notable successes in life.
The divine right of kings was founded on ancestry, usually beginning with some political or military upstart. The American "400" was founded on the wealth of shrewd, uncouth traders and schemers of the early days.
While the fetish of ancestry is still worshipped by many, it is becoming out of date and nowadays a man must amount to something in his own right if he would be held in high esteem.
As a recent writer has well said: "Humanity's sense of justice would be outraged if descendants of a criminal justly hanged, say, three hundred years ago, should still lie under the infamy of that ancestor. Why, then should glory attach to the worthless descendant of a hero?" Exchange.

KEEPING FIT FOR SUCCESS

SUNLIGHT

(Democrat readers may receive answers to questions regarding general health by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with their questions to Dr. Victor E. Levine, Creighton University, Omaha, Neb.)

In spite of the fact that benefits of sunlight were known to the ancients it is only in very recent times that the sun has come to be used as a factor in the maintenance of health and in the treatment of disease. The advent of sunlight in modern scientific medicine is no less glorious than that of the microscope, antiseptics and anesthesia. Its re-introduction into modern therapy is, indeed, a new chapter in medical progress.

The first modern institute for the scientific treatment of certain diseases by means of light was established by Niels Finzen in Copenhagen. For years his work remained unnoticed and unappreciated. After publication of his book, physicians began seriously to turn their attention to his methods.

Finzen demonstrated beyond doubt that lupus vulgaris, which is tuberculosis of the skin, can be cured by the action of the ultraviolet rays on the affected parts. When Finzen died in 1904 his work had become sufficiently recognized to induce the Danish government to establish the Finzen Medical Light Institute. It is now directed by Dr. Axel Reyn and continues to be a center of attraction for physicians and patients the world over.

Another mighty personality that looms large in the development of sun treatment is Dr. A. Rollier. In 1904 he established his institute for treatment by sunlight. It is situated in Leysen in the Ormonts Valley in the Swiss Alps. His famous sunbaths have proved most beneficial to sufferers from chronic ulcers, from anemia, from rickets, and from tuberculosis of the skin, bones, joints and glands.

Rollier has gone even a step beyond attempts to cure. He has entered the more vital field of prevention. Children with reduced powers of resistance brought on by various diseases, such as measles or whooping cough, and who are in danger of developing tuberculosis, are boarded at the Rollier school.

These children conduct their studies in the open air for two hours every day and with clothes consisting of no more than a loin cloth, linen hat and a pair of shoes. They rest for two hours every day and fill in the remainder of their time with nature study and with Swedish drill.

SUNLIGHT

The sun has ever exerted a profound influence on mankind. To the race in childhood the sun was a god. In the old mythologies the sun was personified and given human attributes. It was also believed to be the chariot wheel of a vehicle driven by the sun-god, Phoebus Apollo.

Sun worship is not a thing of the past altogether. There is yet extant a religious sect in Persia that still adheres to the practice. The American Indian still carries on his sun dance and prays to the great Sun Power. The soulful prayer of the Shoshone chief living near Pocatello, Idaho, reveals the faith held in the potentialities for happiness and health possessed by the sun:

"Great Sun Power! I am praying for my people that they may be happy in the summer and that they may live through the cold of the winter. Many are sick and in want. Pity them and let them survive. Grant that they may live long and have abundance. May we go through these ceremonies correctly, as you taught our forefathers to do in the days that are past. If we make mistakes, pity us. Help us, Mother Earth, for we depend on your goodness. Let there be rain to water the prairies, that the grass may grow long and the berries be abundant. O Morning Star, when you look down upon us, give us peace and refreshing sleep. Great spirit, bless our children, friends and visitors through a happy life. May our trails be straight and level before us. Let us live to be old. We are all your children and ask these things with good hearts."

Sunshine is a very old remedy. The same instinct which led ancient people to worship the sun as a god led them also as a belief in the therapeutic value of sunlight. The ancient Egyptians recognized sunlight as a healing agent. On one of the islands in the Greek archipelago, where Hippocrates, the father of medicine, practiced, the citizens erected a health temple, and dedicated it to Aesculapius, god of sun, medicine and music.

The colossal statue at Rhodes was a monument to the sun-god, Helios. The romans built sun parlors without windows. Pliny is reputed to have made the statement that "the sun is the best remedy." Herodotus, the Greek historian, states that Greek physicians laid down specific directions in the sun treatment of the sick.

The use of sunlight as a therapeutic agent was also known to the Arabians. Avicenna, the famous Arabian physician, who was a poet and who is believed to have participated in creating the "Rubaiyat," also favored sun treatment in disease.

Wayne Boy Returns to Philadelphia, Pa.

Leo McMurphy, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. McMurphy, left by auto Friday morning for Philadelphia, Pa., where he is working with the General Electric company. He picked up a friend at Cedar Rapids who is returning with him. They expected to arrive at Philadelphia on last Sunday, making quite a rapid drive.

Tin Can Matinees

"Oh! Mother, give me a can of tomatoes, will you please?" If your small son makes this request, instead of the usual plea for cakes or candy, don't feel hopeful that he is out after vitamins or intent on body-building. He is out to go to the movies—and a can of any kind of food is the price of admission.

Newspapers Co-operate
Tin Can Matinees are the newest contribution of enterprising movie managers toward the need of food caused by unemployment. The Public movie theaters in the Indianapolis district were among the pioneers in the Tin Can Matinee movement, and other theaters throughout the country have continued the good work. In co-operation with the Public theaters the Indianapolis Times announced that "any youngster who brings a can of food to the Indiana, Friday night or Saturday afternoon, will be admitted to the theater without other charge.

Tomatoes, corn, beans, peas—anything in the canned goods line will be received gratefully." The food was turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution.

The Palace Theater, Ridgewood, N. J., during Thanksgiving week put on a canned food specialty in connection with a charity program, which crowded the theater and collected a worth-while donation of canned foods for the needy. The Ogden (Utah) Standard-Examiner recently co-operated with its local theater obtaining more than 600 cans of food for its "Good Fellows" Organization. Mothers whose pantries are being besieged for canned foods are for the most part, contributing large cans of foods that are sustaining, such as pork and beans, hominy, pumpkin, corn, corned beef, roast beef, sausages, succotash, clam chowder, chicken creamed-soup, and also fruits which are healthful and energy giving, such as pineapple, tomatoes, peaches and prunes."

State Crop Forecast Indicates Lower Yields

Forecast of corn for Nebraska is 232,208,000 bushels; all wheat, 50,900,000 bushels; oats, 55,614,000 bushels; barley, 17,081,000 bushels; tame hay, 2,718,000 tons and wild hay, 1,674,000 tons, according to the August report of the State and Federal division of Agricultural Statistics. The average yield of winter wheat is 18 bushels per acre.

Production of spring wheat and other small grains is considerably below the average. Hay production is low. The forecast of corn yield is 23 bushels per acre, and the acreage is 10,096,000, the highest acreage on record.

Corn in that section of the state south of the Platte river is generally in good condition, but has sustained drought injury in some localities. Damage has occurred to the crop in Clay and Nuckolls counties and adjoining areas. In the section north of the Platte, corn is somewhat poorer and varies from fair to very poor.

Most of the corn in the extreme eastern and southeastern parts, have good prospects.

In general, condition of corn is very spotted, showing considerable variation. Rains received since August 1 have greatly benefited.

Forecast of potatoes is 8,125,000 bushels, as compared with 9,900,000 bushels last year. Potatoes in the Panhandle district where most of the potato crop is grown have suffered unfavorable growing conditions until the first of August.

Engineers are engaged in preliminary work on a river navigation program at Plattsmouth.

Main for a new water system are being laid at Odell.

Doctor Who Practiced in Wayne 45 Years Ago Returns for Visit

Dr. and Mrs. E. Bradford of Rock Island, Ill., were in Wayne Thursday and Friday of last week, renewing old time acquaintances.

Back in those days, Wayne was a typical western "new" town, with little to appeal to an Easterner. Mrs. Bradford got homesick, so the Bradfords went back to Rock Island, in 1893.
