First Day of Fair Brings Many People

Exhibits, Entertainment Features Win Plaudits of Spectators.

Wayne county's annual fair is on. Following a rain Tuesday, slightly cooler weather prevailed for the opening yesterday of the best show the local fair association has ever staged. The fairgrounds yesterday was a scene of bustle, with a bedlam of noises providing a discordant symphony that few can resist.

Children are an important factor in the fair, with Wayne's public schools dismissed at noon for its duration and other schools of the county all making arrangements to give their students an opportunity to see the gigantic exhibit. School children will be admitted free on Saturday.

The most interesting exhibits are those entered by boys and girls. Especially is this true in the pig club and baby beef club exhibits. There are 78 head of yearling heaves, showing the progress that farming is making.

Another feature is the exhibit in the educational department building. Handiwork of both city and rural children is shown, under the direction of Miss Pearl E. Sewell, county superintendent.

The swine exhibit is up to the usual standard, with the pens far better arranged than previously. Hampshires, Chester Whites, Spotted Poland China and Duroc Jerseys predominate. There are more cattle and horses of better quality than ever.

WINSIDE LADY DIES AT GRAND ISLAND

Services for Mrs. Sarah Archer Held Friday Afternoon.

Mrs. Sarah Bair Archer, widow of a civil war veteran and a Wayne county old settler, died at the Soldiers and Sailors home at Grand Island Wednesday, Sept. 9, at 2 p. m., following a two weeks illness preceded by a fall. Sarah Bair, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bair, was born at Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 23, 1847. With her parents she moved to Iowa, and was married to William Archer at Iowa City, Ia., in 1869. To this union were born two children, Mrs. Lena Kieffer of Winside, and Charles Archer of Bentonville, Ark. Mr. and Mrs. Archer lived on a farm near Iowa City for seven years, then in Western Iowa for eight years, and then came to Wayne county, where they farmed until 1911. At this time they moved to Bentonville, Ark., where Mr. Archer died in 1917. She moved back to Winside and made her home here until two years ago, when she went to the home at Grand Island. She is survived by her daughter Mrs. Lena Kieffer of Winside, and one son, Charles Archer of Bentonville, Ark. The funeral services were held Friday at 2 P. M. at the M. E. church at Winside with Rev. W. A. Mansur in charge of the services. Burial was at Pleasant View cemetery in Winside.

Max Hendrickson Is Paging Ripley

Believe it or not, Mr. Ripley, but Max Hendrickson of Wayne made a hole-in-one on the No. 2 hole of the Wayne Country Club golf course Sunday afternoon, Sept. 13, in the presence of witnesses.

You say, Mr. Ripley that there's nothing so unusual about that? That a number of other golfers have joined the select inner circle with hole-in-one shot? Huh! You ain't heard nothin' yet.

This same Max Hendrickson made another hole-in-one on the same course on Thursday, July 30.

Is that enough, Mr. Ripley? If it isn't, listen to this. He made the July 30 hole-in-one on the same No. 2 hole, with the same club and the same ball.

The ball and club, Mr. Ripley, are not for sale at any price.

SIoux CITYAN WINS GOLF TOURNAMENT

A dinner in honor of the visiting golfers was given in the evening by members of the local club. Forty-five prizes were awarded to participants in the various flights.

In addition to Krone and Rarick, first flight finalists, those who participated in the first flight were W. Johnson, Massara, Disbrow, Ahern, Dale and Hendrickson. J. J. Ahern won the first flight consolation from Disbrow, one up.

Stroke Takes John Britton

Last Rites to Be Held at Sanborn, Iowa, This Afternoon.

Funeral services will be held at two o'clock this afternoon, Sept. 17, at Sanborn, Iowa, for John E. Britton of Sanborn, former resident of Wayne, who died suddenly on his farm near here Tuesday, Sept. 15, when he fell as he was being pulled from a well that he had been cleaning.

The body was at Beckenbauer's mortuary until noon yesterday, and many of Mr. Britton's old-time friends paid solemn tribute to the pioneer Wayne county resident.

A doctor who investigated the death said that Mr. Britton probably suffered a stroke of apoplexy or a heart attack and that he was dead before he struck the bottom of the well. He added that the attack might have been caused from gas that had accumulated in the well.

Mr. Britton was 68 years old at the time of his death.

He was a resident of Wayne county before the town started. His father, De Grasse Britton, was county treasurer here and was killed in 1890 by a Negro, following an argument at the depot platform in Wayne. His nephew, Guy Strickland, was killed in an airplane crash here this summer.

Mr. Britton had been a resident of Sanborn for 38 years and left there Monday for the farm he owned jointly with his sister, Mrs. Dell Strickland of Wayne.

Besides his sister, Mr. Britton is survived by his widow, a son and two daughters, all of Sanborn, as well as more distant relatives and a host of friends.

Natural gas is now ready for Scottsbluff.

LITTLE GIRL HURT BY HIT-RUN DRIVER

Driver Flees After Car Strikes Lorraine Johnson.

Lorraine Johnson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Johnson, sustained a badly cut tongue and several severe bruises about the head last Saturday evening about 7:30 o'clock when she was struck by a car at the intersection at Seventh and Main streets. Her lower lip was torn loose from the jaw bone.

Lorraine was going south on Main street on her bicycle when a car from the south on Main turned west on Seventh, hitting Lorraine who had turned out of her way to avoid being run down. The driver of the car, evidently frightened by what had happened, sped away from the scene before he could be recognized.

It was necessary to take eleven stitches to close the gash in the little girl's tongue and lacerated lower lip.

A torn hub-cap was the only evidence which the hit-and-run driver left. Chief of Police W. A. Stewart is in possession of the piece of hub-cap and is on the lookout for a Ford coupe carrying the remainder of it.

Natural Gas Ready Here by October 1

Distribution Firm Hopes to Complete Lines by End of Month.

Natural gas should be available to Wayne by Oct. 1, according to a bulletin issued by the Northern Natural Gas System.

The bulletin says: "In Nebraska, the line has been completed to Fremont and lines are under construction to Dakota City, Bancroft, West Point and Ashland, all of which will be completed before the middle of September. Right-of-way has been acquired and contracts let for construction of branches to the following towns, work on which should be completed about Oct. 1: Wayne, Wakefield, Emerson and Pender, Elmwood, Weeping Water, Palmyra, Adams and Johnson, Blue Springs and Wymore."

The bulletin adds that "In North-eastern Nebraska, Wayne has been selected as the district office with Emerson and Wakefield also to be served."

Natural gas is now being supplied to more than 17,000,000 of the United States' population living in more than 4,000 communities. The natural gas industry, except for its use by people who live in the immediate vicinity of producing wells, is practically a new industry.

There are now more than 100,000 miles of natural gas pipe lines in 20 states, some of them hundreds of miles long. In 1921 the consumption was 622,000,000 cubic feet. In 1929 this figure jumped to 1,900,000,000 cubic feet.

Work on New College Dorm Will Start About October 25

While official registration figures were not available Wednesday afternoon, Dr. U. S. Conn, president of Wayne State Teachers' college, said that he believed registration at the school this year would be somewhat larger than last year.

Teachers on leave of absence last year who are back at Wayne State Teachers' college this year are Miss Ida Fisher, Miss Enid Conklin, Miss Pearl Rutherford and Mrs. R. R. Smith.

Dr. Kathryn Huganir takes Miss Florence Teager's place in the English department, Dr. Maurice Griffin takes Dr. W. W. Phelan's place in the psychology department, and Miss Florence Drake replaces Miss Leonore Ramsey in the speech department. Miss Ramsey is taking a year's leave of absence.

Work on the new girls' dormitory will start as soon as plans are ready. Dr. Conn estimates that this will probably be by Oct. 25, and says that the building will be ready for occupancy by next fall.

Open Season on Pheasants October 13-19

Only Seventeen Counties in State to Be Closed.

Wayne county will have an open season of pheasant shooting for a seven day period beginning at 7 a. m., Oct. 13, and ending at 6 p. m. Oct. 19, it was made known Monday by Secretary O'Connell of the game commission.

All but 17 Nebraska counties will be declared open for pheasant shooting at the same time. This is by far the largest number of counties ever opened to ringneck hunting since the first open season in the fall of 1928. Last year there were 23.

In the past two years the season has been 10 days in length. This year it is limited to seven, partly because of the great number of counties to be open. Game commission officials believe that there will be less complaint from farmers this year because the hunting will be spread over a much larger area, with less concentration of hunters in a comparatively small territory.

Secretary O'Connell of the game commission explained that any farmer who does not want hunters on his land may post his land with signs to that effect. This has the effect of creating a closed season within that region.

A daily bag and possession limit of five birds, one of which may be a hen, will be the rule. The tag system will not be employed because of the wide territory opened, but checking stations will be set up on roads leading from open into closed counties.

The only counties which will not have an open season are Sioux, Dawes, Box Butte, Sheridan, Cherry, Washington, Saunders, Douglas, Sarpy, Cass, Lancaster, Otoe, Gage, Johnson, Nemaha, Pawnee and Richardson.

COUNCIL PURCHASES NEW DIESEL ENGINE

City to Pay $38,083.00 for 750 H. P. Motor and Generating Unit.

Wayne's city council deliberated until midnight Tuesday night on the purchase of a new Diesel engine and generating unit.

It was finally decided to purchase a 750 horsepower unit from the McIntosh-Seymour company at a price of $38,083. The unit is to be installed by Jan. 20, 1932. City clerk Walter S. Bressler was instructed to enter into a contract for installation of the unit.

The council was unanimous in acceptance of the McIntosh-Seymour bid.

Natural gas mains are being placed in Glenwood.

Breaks Skull In Accident Sunday

Lowell Gildersleeve of Wayne suffered a skull fracture over the right mastoid Sunday afternoon at about 4:30 o'clock at the Wayne county fairgrounds when a tire blew out on his motorcycle. Kenneth Johnson, who was riding with him, was knocked unconscious for about five minutes and suffered nose injuries, as well as minor scratches and bruises about the face.

Gildersleeve was practicing for a motorcycle race to be held at the Wayne county fair this week. It is said that failure of the oil feed to function properly, resulting in motor trouble, was responsible for the tire's blowing out.

Gildersleeve was taken to the Wayne hospital at 4:45 Sunday afternoon and is under the care of Dr. S. A. Lutgen. He was getting along nicely Wednesday afternoon.

Robert Swanson, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Swanson of Wayne, had his right leg broken late Sunday afternoon when he fell about nine feet out of a haymow. After he had hit the ground, a colt stepped on him, and Robert doesn't know whether the fall or the colt caused his broken leg. The break was badly splintered.

He was brought to the Wayne hospital, where he is under the care of Dr. L. W. Jamieson and Dr. S. A. Lutgen. He was getting along nicely Wednesday afternoon.

The Inquiring Reporter

This Week's Question

Do you think Wayne county should have an open season on pheasants this year?

H. A. Haas: "Yes, but I think that two days would be a long enough time for pheasant hunting this year."

Ole G. Nelson: "An open season on pheasants would be all right with me. I like to hunt them, and think anybody who wants to should be given the opportunity for a short time."

L. W. McNatt: "If we had plenty of rainfall and cold weather to kill the grasshoppers and other insects, it would be all right. The farmers say that the pheasants do destroy grasshoppers."

Chas. McConnell: "Yes. I don't see any reason why an open season wouldn't be all right for a few days."

W. W. Crane: "Yes, I would be in favor of an open season."

GOODBY JAZZ AGE

The Jazz Age is gone. History will record 1930 as the last year of that crazy, post-war period when anything was possible.

What were the products of the Jazz Age? It would be impossible to name them all, but here are a few:

Tree sitting contests, rocking chair marathon contests, million dollar gate prize fights, jazz orchestra, blue-singers, short skirts, whoopee, one automobile for every four persons, tabloid newspapers, thirty thousand dollar a week movie stars, three million dollar movie palaces, bootleggers, miniature golf, Texas Guinan, synthetic gin, step-ins, cabarets, hi-jackers, tap dancing, nudist displays in the theater, strip poker, Charles A. Lindbergh, tourist parks, luncheonettes, one-room apartments, prohibition enforcement officers, Almeda McPherson, radio sets in every home, a dollar down and a dollar a week, Jack Dempsey, the New York city squad, Bishop Cannon, Earl Carroll, Helen Kane, Mable Walker Willebrandt, vo-deo-do, True Confessions, the Charleston, just bring an honest face, rolled hose, bare legs, four bucks a pint.

But why go on? The list is not even fairly started. It was the goofiest, dullest, fastest age the world has ever known. It is past.

Oh, yeah? The new cars will do ninety miles an hour.

COMPLAINT

Sometimes a newspaper bears a complaint that it has not given fair treatment to a certain group or organization in the matter of publicity. The fault is usually that of the publicity-seeking organization and not of the newspaper.

If you wish to have any information published in The Democrat, if you will either bring or phone your story in to this office, you'll find us very obliging. But if you ignore us and try to make it difficult for us to get the information for publicity that is to be of benefit to you, the chances are that you'll find us in a we-don't-give-a-darn manner.

When a newspaper gives publicity to the activities of an organization a certain amount of that publicity may be regarded as legitimate news, but everything beyond that certain small percentage is a favor to the organization on the part of the paper. No newspaper feels like doing favors for organizations that fail to indicate the slightest appreciation of the newspaper's services.

AUTUMN

Autumn days will soon be here. And Autumn, to this writer, is the most delightful time of the whole dog-goned year. In the winter it is hard to keep warm. In the summer it is hard to keep cool.

Autumn is the time of year when nature paints her most beautiful pictures. If you know of anything prettier than an Autumn scene, let me know and I'll go with you and try to see it. But I won't believe it until I see it. You can't think about you.

pretty green summer scenes all you want to. Give me the gorgeous reds, yellows, and browns of Autumn.

Do you know of any time when driving is more pleasant than now? If you're undoubtedly mistaken. Crisp, snappy weather! Beautiful Autumn scenery! Clear, blue skies! Boy!

HATS OFF TO THE COLLEGE

Wayne State Teachers' college opened again yesterday for another year, and it is brought home to Wayne that the college plays an important part in the progress of this community.

With construction of a $150,000 dormitory definitely approved, the permanence of the local educational institution becomes more and more apparent. The new dormitory will bring more students—more residents of Wayne. It will be an additional feature of an institution of which Wayne is already proud.

The college represents a big investment on the part of the state of Nebraska—an investment in the young people of the state. The local college is doing a service of inestimable value in giving a college course which incurs so little expense that it is within the reach of nearly every high-school graduate in the state.

ADVERTISING RACKETEERS

Our town may not have the blood-thirsty wops who flourish in the underworld of great cities, but there is nevertheless a class of racketeers who have their eyes on this city, and are continually slipping in and going out with a generous amount of coin for their meager efforts.

There are very few more harassed personages in the land than the country merchant. He is systematically coaxed, teased, cajoled and brow-beaten by these racketeers (who are looking for easy money) in taking on their advertising fakes, and these schemes are without advertising value.

They range from railroad time cards, hotel registers, cafe menus, door knob hangers, so-called booster write-ups, to almost every kind of bologna the mind of a human can conjure.

Several years ago illuminated sign boards with changing pictures were placed along roads adjacent to the city. Cars whizzing along at 40 to 60 had a lot of spare time to read these "advertisements." If they did take their eyes off the road they merely flirted with the ditch, a turn-over, or a smash-up.

Then there came a bunch that sold "advertising" on cards with the order of services of churches. They told the advertisers the local church was hard pressed for cash, and had asked them to help them out. The church got 75 cards that were never used, the printer got $5, and the fakers netted $120 for their profits.

The slicker with the circus shell game has nothing on these birds when it comes to their "con" games. —Hoxie, Kansas, Sentinel.

THE VOICE OF GANDHI

The voice of Mahatma Gandhi reached Lincoln on Sunday, coming out of the ether for translation from waves to words by the mechanism man has provided a progressive world. It was a weak, strange, halting voice that urged the hearer to careful analysis. Attention was forced and what was said deserved thought. He inveighed against the mechanical age that was throwing his people out of employment and adding to the number of starving Indians. The same progress had made it possible for his appeal to be projected half the world's circumference. He discussed English government in India and the passive resistance of his people by which it was hoped to accomplish much without bloodshed.

Man's liberties, said Gandhi, possibly in other words having the same meaning, should be circumscribed only by his own weaknesses. He talked of the liquor problem. Among his people drinking is not a custom; it is a curse. He appealed for help for India. The liquor traffic was adding to the amount of assistance needed. "On behalf of India's semi-starved millions," he said slowly and with that emphasis and appeal that comes from well-chosen, deliberately spoken words, "I appeal to the conscience of the world to come to the rescue of people who are dying in order to regain their liberties."

Gandhi raised his voice against war, bloodshed, the killing of people innocent and misled, the fighting of nations "in the manner of brutes." "We in India," he said, "feel that the law governing brute condition is not the law which should govern the human race." Those who favor peace, who would abolish war and who would forever end the traffic in liquor, found inspiration and comfort in this plea from the east, a plea for the welfare of a people who comprise a fifth of the population of "the globe." The voice from India emphasized that the problems of that part of the world are the problems of all others. It was an appeal for universal brotherhood. —Lincoln State Journal.

PROPOSED REMEDIES

Labor day, quite naturally, was taken advantage of by a number of notable men as an occasion for discussing the depression and proposing remedies. Senator Borah arraigned the governments everywhere for their lavish expenditures for armaments in a world crying loudly for peace, and said that taxation has grown until it has discouraged thrift and menaces legitimate business. He declared that if the wealth of the country did not voluntarily provide money to take care of the needy during the coming winter the government would have to provide the money and collect it from the rich in the form of increased income taxes.

William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, said that labor in this country is opposed to the dole, regardless of any guise in which it is presented. Labor considers it demoralizing and degrading, taking from men self respect and independence and robbing them of pride. Yet he felt that in the face of hunger and desperation no other course is open. Mr. Green said that the cities, states and federal government should cut thru all red tape and enter upon large construction projects at once to provide employment. He wants a shorter work day and week, with a sharing with the willing idle the labor available.

John L. Lewis, president of the mine workers, expressed the opinion that the depression is being prolonged in order to give success to what he terms a ruthless assault on the wage structure of American workers. He insists that a more equitable distribution of profits is necessary to the success of capitalism, and that if greater efficiency is not shown by leaders the people will take over the instruments of production. Gov. Dan Turner of Iowa demanded legislation that would give a decent price to farm products. John R. Lawson, Colorado labor leader, suggests reducing hours of labor and at the same time raising wages, thus giving more men greater purchasing power. Many men of many minds, but emphasizing the seriousness of the situation and the importance of speedily finding a way out of the maze. —Lincoln State Journal.

THE GREATEST MAN OF HIS TIME

Sixty years ago a young telegraph operator named Thomas A. Edison invented a method of sending messages in both directions at once on a telegraph wire. It was the most marvelous human invention up to that time. The young man got $100,000 for his patent, which was a fortune in those days.

He began experimenting with other electrical inventions, and before the Centennial of 1876 his name was a household word all over the world. He invented, among other things, the waxed paper in which the package groceries you buy are wrapped. He invented the mimeograph, the first successful duplicating process. Sholes, first inventor of the typewriter, came to Edison with his crude model and Edison taught him how to make it work. Professor Bell had the idea of talking over a wire; Edison's invention of the carbon transmitter made the telephone a success. Dr. Brush invented the electric arc light; Edison conceived the idea of putting electric lights in small units into bottles, and invented the incandescent lamp. In the course of his telephone experiments he invented the phonograph. A little later he invented the movies. In between he invented new and economical methods of producing cement and developed the electric storage battery.

It is not too much to say of Edison that his inventions have revolutionized the world. They have changed our manner of living, our habits of thought, our whole scheme of things within one man's lifetime. His active brain never stopped working. The great electrical wizard's serious illness at 34 has again focused the eyes of the world upon him. We hope that he will recover his health and eyes of the world upon him. We hope that the world cannot afford to lose Thos. A. Edison. —The Wisner News-Chronicle.

DEFLATING HOLLYWOOD

An effort will be made by motion picture theater owners and exhibitors of films to deflate Hollywood. The attempt will be in the interest of the motion picture public, and it will concern itself with the prices of admission and of films. Producers have sent out word that they will advance the prices of films 10 per cent.

If that is done, admissions also will have to be increased in price, and it is on this feature of the whole proposition that the theater owners and exhibitors will concentrate their efforts.

The Motion Picture Theater Owners of America and the Allied States Exhibitors association are behind the movement to deflate Hollywood. In a meeting in New York where delegates represented 14,000 theaters throughout the country expression was given in criticism of the Hollywood policy of ruinous costs of production. David Barrist, Philadelphia attorney representing the theater owners and exhibitors, declared the motion picture industry to be suffering from big salaries paid to stars, directors, executives and others in Hollywood and from unreasonable sums paid to authors for stories.

Mr. Barrist offered an example of Hollywood's errors. He recalled that Warner Brothers paid Constance Bennett $30,000 a week but paid no dividends to its stockholders. "Our complaint," said the attorney, "is that these high salaries are not being paid by the producers and their stockholders—but by the theatergoing public."

Felix Feist, sales manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, defended the decision of the producers to advance film prices. He declared his company had failed on 20 films to receive a return equal to 50 per cent of production costs. This is seen as an admission by a producers' executive that something is wrong with the Hollywood end of picture making and exhibition. For if at present prices of admission theatergoers will not attend in sufficient numbers to justify a higher figure paid for films, then the solution must be found at the production end. Street car companies could explain this to film producers, for as they increased fare in the hope of collecting more profits they encouraged people to walk.

Prize fight promoters also could tell the motion picture producers a thing or two, one of which would be that no star in any line of entertainment is worth more than he can draw at the box office. Deflation of Hollywood seems to be the thing to do in his case. —Sioux City Journal.

"SCOTT"

Marlen Pew calls attention in Editor and Publisher to a number of breaks appearing in the daily and weekly press of the United States, which have been compiled in a book, "Breaks," by W. W. Scott.

His list brings to mind an error which appeared in a Wayne newspaper just last week. An advertisement for the Wayne County Fair carried the line, "Live Rock Parade Saturday 2 p. m."

It happens in the best regulated of newspapers, and what is comedy to readers is deep tragedy to editors.

Here are some of the errors which Mr. Pew picked from "Breaks":

"Among the first to enter was Mrs. Clara Adams of Erie, Pa., lone woman passenger. Slowly her nose was turned around to face in a southwesterly direction and away from the hangar doors. Then, like some strange beast, she crawled along the grass."

Mrs. Annie Besant, 80-year old theosophist leader, was confined to bed today at the home of friends at Wimbledon. A severe child forced her to cancel all lecture engagements."

"By an unfortunate typographical error, we were made to say on Tuesday that the departing Mr. .... was a member of the defective branch of the police force. Of course, this should have read 'the detective branch of the police force.'"

"This is the first picture taken showing Europe's other famous Queen Marie with the infant Prince Andria, her third son."

"It is proposed to use this donation to purchase new benches for our parks, as the present old ones are in a very dilapidated state."

Mrs. Thurston Gaylord and daughters are planning to tour the Black Hills, Yellowstone park and other places of interest. They are taking a tent and cooking utensils and will camp by the side of the road."

"Germans are so small that there may be as many as $1,700,000,000 of them in a drop of water."

"New York, Mar. 4—Helen Hayes, whose work on the stage was interrupted by maternity, is to return in a manless play."

"Calvin P. Foulke of Whitemarsh won two distinctions at the annual class election of the seniors of seniors of Princeton. He was voted the 'most likely bachelor' and the 'greatest woman hater.'"

"The skipper spat disconsolately down the engine room ventilator and stopped the engines."

"Apartments to share. W. 86th st. Lady, pleasant, sunny, (3 exposures)"

"One of the most pleasant occasions of the season was the coming-out party of Miss Dorothea Wempe of Third av. S. The beautiful deb was attired in an imported creation of jade green crepe trimmed with erucalace around the punch bowl."

"Jenkins, it is claimed, was driving at a high rate of speed and swerving from side to side. As he approached the crossing he crashed into Miss Miller's rear end, which was sticking out into the road about a foot. Luckily, she escaped injury, and the damage can be easily remedied with a new coat of paint."

Not all newspaper errors are reprintable. I know a few, if you'll drop around some afternoon. Rose's are red. Violet's are blue. When the wind is high You can see 'em, too.

Joe O'Furey, in his Cedar County News, tells the funny story of a newspaper which was looted by a burglar. All the letter "S's" were stolen from the composing room. The editor explained the loss in the next issue as follows: "Last night thome thneaking theoundril thole into our compositing room and piferred the cabinetth of all the eththeth! Therefore, we would like to take thith opportunity to apologize to our readerth for the generally inthpidd appearance of your paper. We would altho like to thtate that if at any time in the yearth to come we would thee thith dirty thnake-in-the-grath about the premethth, it will be our complete and thorough thithfaction to thoot him full of holeth. Thank you."

Milo Kramke says that too much rope is being used to make cigars and not enough to hang gangsters.

Didja ever stop to think what a wonderful book a Doctor's diary would make? I mean, any honest doctor's diary—If a physician would record the actual happenings, the confidences bestowed in him, the confessions made to him—what perfectly terrific reading it would make.

I was talking with a Wayne doctor about such a project the other day. He had often thought about it, but said that no doctor would ever dare to publish such a book. He said he sincerely believed that the doctor who published an authentic diary would make a fortune and would be killed by one of his patients.

It is a remarkable and a true thing that a doctor seldom violates a confidence. Some people say that your minister knows a lot about you. I don't think that's true. Most people are on their good behavior around their pastor.

But your doctor knows you like a book. He knows the neurotic old maid. He knows the old man who sowed too many wild oats and is reaping too big a harvest. He knows the unfaithful wife. He knows the optimistic t. b. patient. He sees the desperate struggle for existence through a microscope. He probably knows you better than you know yourself, because he looks at you impersonally.

A Free Ad

A Wayne man writes in to this column that he is stepping out with another man's wife. He says he loves her and wants to know what to do.

About the best advice I can give him is this: See T. S. Hook, who represents the Northwestern Mutual life insurance company.

You can forgive any man for being fooled once by a woman, but when the same woman fools a man twice, he is hopeless. Even as you and I.

The Pender Times is carrying some gosh-darned smart observations under the heading of "Jay Kay Says." Pender people get a kick-out of the column, I'm sure, because it's funny and contains a lot of logic. Here are a few smart ones lifted from the last issue:

If variety is the spice of life, the modern farmer must be well seasoned.

There is no harm in a girl cracking a smile—that is, if the smile isn't yours.

A New York physician recently offered a four word remedy for the wheat surplus. He said, simply, "Let's eat our wheat." The doctor suggests the farm board, instead of paying storage on the grain, distribute it among the poor and unemployed. And that isn't the worst idea to date, by any means.

What is the difference between a flea and an elephant? Well, an elephant can have fleas, but a flea can't have elephants.

Add definitions—Optimist: one who believes that radio programs will soon stop devoting half of their time to advertising.

Science has discovered a compound that is 500 times sweeter than sugar. One Wayne Hot Shot lowers his eyes romantically and says that so's his girlfriend.

Darn that Wright County Minnesota Journal-Press. It carried a puzzle last week, under the title of "How Old Is Ann ?" I read it, and I've been trying to figure it out ever since. Listen, you Journal-Press editor, if you're going to print a puzzle, PRINT THE ANSWER. Don't keep us worrying an already over-burdened mind. Here's the puzzle.

Sally Griffith's most recent beau, Silas Wiggins, came to meet her family on her twenty-first birthday, and incidentally to propose to Sally. Sally's mother introduced Silas to all of her family.

"My, what a regiment!" he exclaimed. "How old are they?"

"Well," began the mother, "Bob is two and one-third times the age of Goldie. Harriette's and Goldie's age add up twice the age of Bob. Conrad's age added to that of Bobby's equals twice the combined ages of Goldie and Harriette. Sally's age added to that of the other two girls is exactly twice the ages of the two boys. My age is precisely as much as that of all my children combined, while Jim, my husband, is six years older than I am. So you see—"

"I see," said Silas, who was a rapid calculator, "that the combined ages of all the family is just four times my own age."

The paper has the nerve to add that "from the above you can easily calculate just how old is each of the eight persons."

Go ahead and try to figure it out.

A paving crew has started to finish paving the last stretch of Highway No. 8 at the east end of Wisner.

A paving project is being started at Curtis.

FIRST DAY OF FAIR IS PLEASING TO CROWD

Handicraft of the home is displayed in the administration building, with one section given over to flowers, another to fancy work and sewing, another to baked and canned goods, and another to art work. Another portion of the building is given over to corn exhibits, which prove that there is good corn in Wayne county this year despite drought.

The industrial exhibits contain practically every new device designed to lighten the burden of the farmer. These exhibits have been assembled at great cost to local implement men. Then there are auto exhibits, radio exhibits, home heating devices and hundreds of other new and interesting features.

While those are happy carefree days for fair visitors, they are extremely busy days for the various ladies' aids and the horde of concession owners who are charged with the task of feeding the crowds. The cuisine and service have received favorable comment from those who have eaten on the grounds.

The free attractions are splendid, and the Happy Ray Revue gained the O. K. of first-day audiences. The Five Oyamas Japs, Russell Bros. and Josephine, and Will Morris, bicycle comedian, all were loudly applauded by the appreciative crowds.

mer. All of the features collected by Prof. Huntemer and put into Neihardt Hall will be incorporated into the new building. Mr. Huntemer felt that he wanted to be relieved of responsibility on the new dormitory, because he did not wish to neglect the work of his department.

The next urgent need of the school, according to Pres. Conn, is a library building. The school, he says, has outgrown its present library accommodations.

This is Dr. Conn's twenty-second year as president of the institution. When he took charge of the school, there were only two buildings on the campus. Since the start of his long term as president, seven buildings worth approximately $750,000, have been constructed, and the campus has grown from 10 acres to a 51 acre plant.

Of the 50 faculty members on the present roster, 10 have Doctor's degrees, 30 additional have Master's degrees, and the other 10 have Bachelor's degrees or the equivalent.

The administration of Wayne State Teachers' college has always tried to keep the enrollment cost for the student as low as possible, and students who have previously attended other schools are registering at the local institution this year because of inability to pay the higher tuition, room, board and incidental expenses at other schools.

Ole Buck Dies from Nervous Breakdown

Newspaper men of Nebraska were saddened this week to learn of the death Sunday night, September 13, of Ole Buck, secretary and field manager of the Nebraska Press association for the past 13 years, and editor of the United States Publisher.

Gun Shop is Feature of Splittgerber Bros. Farm

There's been lots of controversy over that old statement that if you build the best mouse trap on the market the world will beat a path to your door, even if you live in the most out of the way spot. Bill and Gus Splittgerber don't build mousetraps—although there's no doubt but what they could if they wanted to—but they have reason to believe the statement is true, because they have been kept busy in their spare time for years repairing, remodeling and rebuilding guns.

Their gun shop is an almost unbelievable place. Their parents started accumulating tools for it 50 years ago, and material has been added ever since until today the shop is a miraculous home of superior craftsmanship. The brothers paid over $500 for a screw-cutting metal lathe that will cut from two threads to the inch to 112 threads per inch. This intricate piece of machinery is only one of many.

In addition to the machinery that the brothers have purchased, they have made a great many of their own tools. They can show you a finely made, apparently costly tool and tell you that they made it in their shop. It's hard to believe at first, but when you see more samples of their work you are convinced that these men are unusual artisans and that nothing in the line of metal craftsmanship would be too difficult for them.

They are altogether modest about it. Gus says, "It takes patience more than ability. Anybody could do this sort of work if they would just take the time to do it carefully."

The reporter disagrees with him. Not in 25 years could the average person learn to do the delicate, exact work that the Splittgerbers accomplish with such apparent ease.

The Splittgerber farm is located about nine and a half miles southwest of Wayne. The brothers, Gus and Bill, farm two quarter sections. The farm itself is an attractive place. There are 20 buildings on it, but the one building that has a distinctive personality all its own is the gun shop. Anyone who has ever done any shooting would be fascinated with the place.

The brothers get guns to repair from North and South Dakota, Sioux City, Omaha, Schuyler, Wayne, Winnsboro, Pilger, Stanton, and occasional jobs from more distant places. On certain occasions, guns from this territory have been sent into the factory for repairs and have come back from the factory to the Splittgerber shop. Even the gun manufacturers recognize the Splittgerber skill.

When the reporter visited the Splittgerber shop, Gus had just finished putting a beaver-tail fore-end on a shot-gun for John Siverson of Wisner, former mid-western trapshooting champion. He had previously constructed one of the fore-ends for another Wisner man, and now every trap-shooting fan in the Wisner territory wants one.

He showed the reporter a Springfield rifle on which he had built a complete new stock of native walnut, from trees on the farm. It was a magnificent piece of work that any rifle user could go into ecstasies over.

He has many rifles and shot-guns that he has remodeled, and all of them are improvements over the original models.

Bill has one fine rifle on which he made everything except the barrel. It's a gun which the average rifle fan would mortgage his soul to own.

The Splittgerber skill is not devoted to guns alone, however. They make their own tools. Gus showed the reporter a beautiful letter opener, made from an old hack-saw blade, an army shell, a ball bearing and a button from a soldier's blouse. Jewelry stores handle nothing that would compare with it for fine workmanship. He exhibited a tiny hammer, axe and anvil that must have taken infinite patience to construct. They were hand-forged. The Splittgerbers do all of their own lathe work and forging.

Almost unbelievable ingenuity has been used by the brothers in the construction of some of their machinery. Gus made a dandy mandrel from an old piece of a Buick axle. Bill constructed a forge, using parts from an old corn sheller, the gears from an old cream separator, and irons from an old binder frame. The forge has a coal bin underneath and is entirely practical.

They have an old band-saw with a wooden frame that was made in 1910. They used to use it to saw stove wood and lots of other things, but have abandoned it because of its lack of perfect accuracy.

Gus has constructed his own chambering tools for 22-cal. rifles. They attain micrometer perfection. An instance of their exacting demands for minute corrections is shown in the case of a lathe chuck which they bought from a national machine works. A chuck-holder came with it, but Gus didn't like the quality of the metal. He made one of his own that threads on it. He didn't like the way it fit. He didn't like the quality of the metal. He made one of his own that is obviously far superior to the one marketed by the machine works.

The boys have been doing this sort of work ever since they can remember. Gus has been "tinkering" ever since he was big enough to handle a file, and can remember when his father used to tell him to quit dulling up the tools. He grabbed the tools, anyway, whenever he got a chance—and his father soon discovered that the tools were not being dulled up but were being used well.

People started bringing guns to them for repairs in volume after the World War. During the war, Gus was in the ordinance department.

A perusal of this story so far would lead the reader to believe that the Splittgerber farm is nothing but a gun shop, but such is far from the truth. It's a fine farm and is well taken care of. There are 20 buildings, most of which have galvanized roofing. There are two barns. Bill is the carpenter, and has built many of the buildings.

There is a ten-room house, which is presided over by the boys' sister Emma. They have a fine electric light system which runs the machinery in the gun shop and which illuminates the house, barns and outbuildings.

They have three tractors, and think that the tractor is the finest thing possible for a farmer's use. Two of the tractors were bought for farming purposes and the third, a Square Turn, was picked up at Norfolk at a ridiculously low price. It is used as a utility machine.

The two tractors used in farming are a McCormick-Deering 15-30 and a McCormick-Deering Farmall. Their Farmall was the first one to go west out of Sioux City into the state of Nebraska. They do all of their own repair work on the tractors, and don't see how they could get along without them. They have five head of horses, but say that the horses see very little use.

They farm two quarter sections. This year they had 44 acres of small grain, which went 38 bushels to the acre. They have 90 acres of corn, which is not so good. Gus estimates that it will go from 20 to 25 bushels to the acre. They were cutting a 40 acre field of corn when the reporter visited the place. They have been extremely short of hay this year and had to cut the corn for fodder. They have 20 acres of alfalfa, and the rest of the farm is in meadow and pasture. They are feeding cattle of their own raising, and have about 100 head of Black Angus, fine looking specimens.

They are raising about 250 head of Hampshire hogs, and hope to realize a profit on them. Emma Splittgerber is in charge of the poultry department, and has about 200 light Brahma chickens.

The brothers think that the dry weather has damaged their crops materially this year. A creek running through their place has been dry for two weeks. It is the first time it has been dry since 1894 when it stopped flowing for half a day.

The farm is a pleasant place, with a big grove and plenty of fine shade trees in the yard. A cistern and two 55-foot deep wells furnish the water supply. Two caves furnish them with plenty of storeroom for vegetables.

The boys' father died in 1917, and they have farmed the place ever since that time, but they had been doing much of the work for 25 years before that. They keep everything up in good shape, and have a pride in running the farm to the best of their ability.

They are "all around good fellows" and have built up a wide circle of friends in the territory through their hobby of gun repairing and their good natured, friendly attitude.

Poultry Income Comes Largely from Egg Sales

Farm poultry growers are primarily interested in egg production. In a study the extension specialists of the Ohio State University made of more than 400 farm flocks in Ohio, less than 2 percent of the income came from the sale of breeding stock and hatching eggs. With the light breeds such as Leghorns, it was found that 82 percent of the income came from eggs and 18 percent from the sale of meat.

With the general purpose breed such as Rocks, Wyandottes and R. I. Reds, 69 percent of the income came from eggs. In other words, the egg income is from 2-1/2 to 4 times the meat income, depending upon the breed kept. In no flock did the sale of meat alone pay for the cost of feed. In every case, the sale of eggs paid for the feed and left some profit.

The heavy breeds averaged 15 eggs per hen less than the light breeds. The extra value of the meat marketed, however, made up for this lower production. The profits from the heavy and light breeds were practically the same. No matter what breed was kept, there was little profit in any flock where the egg production was low. The high egg-production flocks yielded almost three times as much profit as the low egg-production flocks.

With both the high and the low producers, the profits from the heavy breeds equalled the profit from the light breeds.

In no case, however, was the big profit in meat, for no low-production flocks came anywhere nearly equalling a high-production flock. The Mississippi valley, because of its cheap feed, is ideally situated to produce the medium heavy breeds which the poultry meat market demands. Meat breeds are, and should continue to be, popular in the great grain-growing section of our country, but farmers keeping these breeds should remember that their flock should come from high egg-production strains for the big end of farm poultry profit is in eggs.—Cedar County News.

Winnebago Man Succeeds Jensen, Charged with Embezzlement.

Ray Elliott of Winnebago was appointed sheriff of Thurston county last Thursday, to succeed Iler C. Jensen, who resigned on Saturday, Sept. 5, his resignation to take effect Sept. 15.

Jensen is facing an ouster and embezzlement charge, and has indicated that he will plead not guilty when the case comes up in Pender court. It will probably come up for trial at the Nov. 9 term of district court in Pender.

Charges were filed against Jensen about five weeks ago as a result of investigations by the Thurston county board and the Thurston county attorney. The complaint charges embezzlement of $2,400 in fees and funds and $1,300 in proceeds from the sheriff's tax sales and personal tax collections. His resignation was demanded immediately thereafter.

Jensen, who is 40 years old, was serving his ninth year as Thurston county sheriff at the time ouster proceedings were instituted.

A quo warranta action against Ed Farley, Thurston county clerk of district court, is pending in the supreme court. County board members accuse him of discrepancies in fees, which he contends are entirely uncollected items.

Forty Days Rain Is Forecast by Indians

An item appeared recently in the Yankton Press stating that it had been rumored that the Indians who live on the bottom lands of the Missouri river at Santee opposite Springfield are getting ready to move to higher ground in preparation for flood waters that will follow the forty day rains which are coming, according to Indian signs.

The Indians base their forecast of heavy rains upon signs of the stars, the moon, and other astronomical observations as well as deductions from what has happened in the west. Whether the Indians are right or not, there is no doubt that a rain coming down gently would need practically forty days to properly wet up this old earth of ours through-out the northern part of Nebraska and South Dakota.

IN THE AFRICAN JUNGLE

In my last yarn I told you about th' time Perky Swipes and I had gone ashore in Africa to hunt lions, how a lion had chased us, and how, just as he was about to grab us, we had tripped over a log near where our boat was moored; how th' lion had sailed over our heads, landed in th' boat and drifted out, while we were stranded in th' jungle with no way to get back to our ship.

Well a'r, th' only way to get back to th' ship was to hike through th' jungle, so off we went. But later on we traveled another way, and that's what this yarn's about. We saw lots of wild animals, but we were shy and didn't let 'em see us if we could help it. But a daddratted elephant spotted us and then th' fun began—for th' elephant.

He sort of rumbled over th' ground, and was gainin' on us so we shinned up a tree and were just goin' to give him th' raspberry when I'll be kicked if he didn't wrap his trunk around th' tree, pulled it up by th' roots, galloped away with it and dumped tree and all in to a nearby river. And there we were hangin' on like a couple of scared coons, driftin' along. Wasn't that a pretty fix for a couple of lion hunters to be in?

In my next yarn you'll hear something that'll make you snicker

LOVES COMFORT.

NOW REMEMBER, HUBBY, DONT COME OVER THERE IN YOUR SHIRT SLEEVES — WEAR YOUR COAT —

YOU'D THINK COATS WERE INVENTED JUST SO THAT COAT HANGERS COULD DO THEIR STUFF —

DADDY HAD HIS COAT ON WHEN I WAS UPSTAIRS

OHI DID HE.

YEAH, BUT I'M AFRAID HE WILL COME ALONG WITHOUT IT —

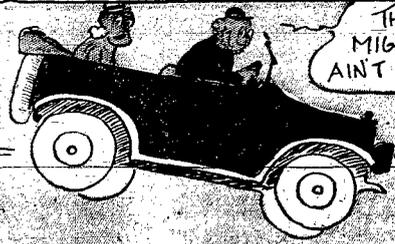

WHAT MAKES YOU THINK SO? YOU SAID HE HAD IT ON —

YEAH, BUT HE SAID HE WAS GOING TO BRUSH IT OFF.
