WILDCATS TROUNCE KEARNEY CAGEMEN

"Six-Footers" Responsible for Wayne's 39-28 Victory.

Basketball of the Wayne Wildcats staged a come-back Friday night when Coach Ray Hickman's cagers gave Kearney Teachers a neat trouncing to the count of 39-28.

Kearney was out in front, 18-16, at the half, with Coach Hickman's small, fast team unable to stop the Kearney offensive. The Wayne team started the second period with five "high-boys", all over six feet tall, in the lineup, and Kearney found difficulty in keeping possession of the ball for any appreciable length of time.

Evans, Brandt and Lamson led Wayne's scoring drive, Evans wickered 13 points and Brandt got 12 to lead the scoring. H. Fitz, Kearney forward, made deadly accurate basket shots whenever he got a chance, which was not often enough.

Johnston of Doane college refereed. The Wildcats go to Omaha tomorrow to meet the Omaha U cage team in an effort to avenge a defeat earlier in the season.

Travel Talk Is Feature of Ladies' Night

Edwin B. Haakinson Tells of 10,000-Mile Trip.

About 175 members of the Wayne Kiwanis club, their wives, guests and members of the Norfolk Kiwanis club attended the Wayne club's annual Ladies' Night at Hotel Stratton Monday evening.

Edwin B. Haakinson, city editor of the Sioux City Tribune, told the audience about a 10,000 mile trip he and his wife took around the western half of the United States last summer. Mr. Haakinson interspersed his descriptions of the places visited on the trip with entertaining human-interest sidelights, dwelling particularly on the more colorful figures in the Olympic Games and on a trip through the moving picture studios in Hollywood.

Allan Burkhardt, superintendent of schools at Norfolk and president of the Norfolk Kiwanis club, aroused considerable laughter with several humorous anecdotes. "Norfolk Kiwanians," he said, "recognize that the Wayne Kiwanis club is one of the finest organizations in the Iowa-Nebraska district. We are glad to see your guests this evening and we hope to have Wayne Kiwanians as our guests some time in the future."

Toastmaster T. S. Hook introduced C. L. Pickett and said that Mr. Pickett would give a short talk. Attorney H. E. Sman immediately jumped to his feet and denounced Mr. Pickett in no uncertain terms.

When he expressed the wish that Mr. Pickett leave the room, Mr. Pickett complied. Then Mr. Sman made a dramatic exit, after smashing a water glass. The crowd laughed when Mr. Sman and Mr. Pickett came back into the room, arm in arm. The "fight" had been a hoax.

Henry Tegt and Braden Carhart gave two trumpet and vocal duets. Wm. Beckenhauer lead the group in community singing.

Following the dinner, dancing offered diversion, with music furnished by the Blue Kings orchestra.

The Inquiring Reporter

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Do you think the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States will be repealed? Minister: "I doubt it very much. Increasing opposition to the repeal move is developing all over the country."

Lawyer: "It seems improbable. Our legislators have no precedent on which to work in repealing an amendment to the constitution. There will be much involved procedure in connection with the repeal movement."

Retired farmer: "It's as good as repealed right now. It never was a success, and people will be glad to eliminate a failure from the constitution."

Bootlegger: "I doubt it. It's a cinch that Nebraska will never vote for repeal. They've got to have all but 12 states, and they'll have a tough time getting them. People who drink don't want four per cent beer, anyway."

Merchant: "It seems almost certain that the amendment will be repealed. Sentiment is being firmly crystallized in favor of repeal, and the liquor interests will spend plenty of money to get rid of the prohibition."

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 39. Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, February 23, 1933. Vol. 7

Another thing that doesn't turn out just as it should is the auto ahead of you.

Another thing that turned out all right for us was a big battle between the roofing material manufacturers. They were selling roofing at less than cost, so we took a bunch of cash and bought plenty. We're unloading this low-cost roofing now. See us for this material.

We are told that John Marshall once said, "The power to tax is the power to destroy." A lot of us taxpayers are beginning to wake up to that fact.

Yes, dear reader, many ladies are envious. When one lady installs one of our tall or made kitchen cupboards in her house, for example, other ladies in the neighborhood just can't help being envious.

We asked a farmer friend this week if he thought the automobile is a benefit to mankind. He replied, "When I try to find a parking space, I sometimes think the automobile is a blamed nuisance."

We unloaded another car of Hot Nut stove coal this week.

"I promise to pay" given and kept is the life of business. "I promise to pay" given and repudiated destroys the faith on which credit is built.

They say Russia is now trading steam coal and gasoline to Switzerland for cheese of corresponding horsepower.

You can trade us cash for CERTIFIED SAHARA coal with the full assurance that you will receive more heat units per dollar than for any other coal of equal price or near it.

Speaking of March first settlements, there is the man who said his father was an old settler. "Even yet," he says, "people are writing my father to come back and settle."

Notice our advertisement in another spot in this paper. It tells how we loan money to home owners who want to remodel and repair.

We claim that excessive taxes are gradually sapping the energies of this once-prosperous and economically-governed land of ours.

We all acknowledge that George Washington was the father of our country, but we also have to admit that if it had not been for Abe Lincoln, Washington would have been the father of twins.

EDUCATION

"The first and most obvious disadvantage of being educated," says George Jean Nathan in the February issue of The American Spectator, "is that one is exposed at an early and defenseless age to the strange ministrations of educators. An educator is a person who calmly undertakes to teach subjects, whether they be interesting or not, to people who may or may not be interested in them."

Mr. Nathan is wont to wise-crack. There are educators and educators. Or rather, there are educators and there are teachers. If you distinguish the difference.

Nebraska today is coming face to face with the problem of bargain-counter education. Some rural school boards, with a lack of acumen which would not ordinarily be attributed to a ten-year old, are becoming so fanatical in their desire to save money that they plan on hiring worthless incompetents to turn on the light of learning for their youngsters. This might, it may be predicted, will be a feeble, distorting glimmer.

"Hogs are cheap," seems to be the battle-cry from many rural school war fronts, "and if we have to sell our hogs at a low price, we'll buy our teachers on the same basis."

During the next school year, if present indications are any criterion, a girl who has spent a reasonable amount of time and money in perfecting herself for the commendable job of teaching, is going to be expected to fill a responsible position for the laughable stipend of $45 a month.

If the girl is smart enough to carry out the duties of a good school teacher, she is going to be un lady-like enough to tell the school board to go straight to hell!

But every school board that wants a $45 a month teacher will be able to find one. The world still has a substantial number of incompetents and many of them are teachers who never were able to get—let alone hold—a job during better times. They are the teachers who managed to cram a technocratic sort of learning down their throats, although they never digested it. They know—or at least passed examinations on—what the books had to say about teaching. Concerning the problems which were not covered in the books they have not the slightest idea. They are, always and always will be, ineffectives. The profession of teaching seems to attract this type of person. To the credit of our school boards, however, let it be said that most of this type have been kept "at liberty."

But a new era has come. Numerous rural school boards have already announced that their maximum teacher salary for next year would be $45.

Perhaps it is just as well. Forty-five dollar school teachers will turn out students that the rural school board directors who hire $45 a month teachers can understand and appreciate.

We have no time to pick with the school boards that can manage to get good teachers for such an absurd figure. They are wizards, and deserve to occupy more important positions.

Neither do we expect them to pay their teachers the same amount of money they have paid in the past. Every sensible rural school teacher will be willing to take a fair cut in pay, realizing that the farm income has been greatly depleted and the ability to pay for services has been lowered.

THE FARMER SEES RED

A substantial group of Nebraska farmers indulged their liking for exhibitionism last week when they participated in a children's march upon the state capital. Whether we like it or not, we must face the fact that the current low schedule of farm prices is making life out of a vast number of our agriculturists.

cause red is a brilliant color and attracts attention. It gives a hitherto powerless and disorganized group of individuals a chance to exert far more influence than they were ever able to produce by means of sane action and clear thinking.

Most farmers in the Wayne territory are laughing about the state capital march. "It was a grand stand play," they say. "What good can it do?" But we suspect that the instigators of the parade were not so much interested in its ultimate achievements as in the chance to display their vanities. "I Love a Parade" said.

The writer has an uncle who is a farmer in the violently red territory around LeMars, Iowa. During the Farm Holiday fiasco last summer, this uncle was an active picketer. Now that is all over, he has this to say about the highway picketing: "It was a lot of fun. We forgot all about our work and had fun for a few weeks. Gosh! Talk about a good time! You should have been there when we stopped some of those tough guys."

This uncle, who looks back and sees the absurdity of the highway picketing movement, is now deeply interested in the anti-foreclosure sale proposition and will be ready to join the gang is stopping any forced sale of property. This plan of action, he now feels, is the only logical solution to farm problems. By late spring, he will probably have some new diversions.

Despite anything they may say to the contrary, we do not imagine the legislators of our nation are very deeply worried about the farm situation. The agricultural belt has made loud vows of denunciation before. It has mouthed loud words about what it was going to do. And it has done precisely nothing. Farmers have gone to the polls year after year and voted for the same principles (principals hopelessly against their cause) that they have always voted for.

The politician regards the agriculturist as the prize sucker in a pond that is full of suckers. He knows that the farmer has bitten, not once, but many times. So the politician is not overly alarmed at the present trend of things.

However, there comes a breaking point—and the midwest farmer has begun to see Red. It's time to put away the plaid robes and the torch lights and the brass band and the "deen people" ballyhoo, Mr. Politician. Your farmer friend will not accomplish much for himself, but, unless you hurry up and offer him some remedy for his troubles, he will reduce the country to a state of chaos with his ever-increasing Red movement.

OUT OF BALANCE

Lucy Cotton Thomas, aged 7, must contrive to get along this year on $3,000 a month. A New York court, called on to survey the income the girl can get from a trust fund established by her grandfather, ruled that this sum would have to be sufficient.

It is budgeted so that she can pay $800 a month for her apartment, $475 for chauffeur, maid and governess, $300 for clothing, $100 for traveling expenses, $600 for food, and so on.

The same newspaper edition which told of this affair, also told how Daniel A. Pöhling, addressing the New York Rotary club, had asserted that the effect of the current hard times on the nation's youth constituted a great and pressing problem.

"No war for which the nation gave her full energies," said Dr. Pöhling, "has ever invited a greater tragedy than the present depression invites now in the area of America's young life."

By a further freak of incongruous chance, this same newspaper also contained a cable dispatch from San Julian, Argentina, relating that Argentine sheep breeders commenced the slaughter of some 60,000 sheep and the burning of their carcasses because they are unable to sell the animals at any price.

We get a picture, here, of a world that seems to be more than a little bit cock-eyed. Good mutton goes to the bonfire while thousands of men go hungry, one child gets $3,000 a month to live on while innumerable others skid across poverty to the very edge of disaster—somewhere, somehow, things have gone sadly out of joint. Yet there is no nourishment in simply sitting back, wringing our hands and wailing that there is blood on the moon. The value of these little stories is that they help us to realize that some sort of reshuffle is needed. They prepare us for change, and when some leader in government or business offers us a new program we shall be ready to give it a sober, unbiased examination, unperturbed by the fact that it may be something which a few years ago we would have dammed with the label "radical." —Columbus Telegram.

ROOSEVELT'S PROBLEMS

Probably no president even entered the White House in peace time with the international horizon so black with storm clouds as well Franklin D. Roosevelt. Here is a partial catalog:

1. Europe is lined up solid for virtual cancellation of her $11,000,000,000 war debt to this country, and is already preparing the way to default or repudiate if she can not bring America to terms.

2. The World Arms conference is deadlocked for reasons which would make unpleasant reading. France and Britain are quietly determined to save their army and navy, respectively, by frustrating any attempt on the part of America to make disarmament the price of war debt reduction.

3. The World Economic conference faces almost insuperable obstacles before it even gets started. International differences on tariffs, gold monetary problems and war debts are among the obstacles.

4. The United States is threatened with economic isolation by the debtor nations of Europe which seek to use this as a club to force a drastic scaling down of the war debts.

5. Another club is the threat to prevent Germany from paying some $2,500,000,000 private debts to American investors if the United States insists upon war debt payments, by the simple process of reverting to the Young plan and demanding reparations to the Allies.

6. Instead of abating, the political quarrels of Europe are more than ever a menace to peace, blocking disarmament and holding back world recovery. France and Germany; Germany and Poland; France and Italy; Italy and Yugoslavia, and Russia and Europe generally, are danger spots.

7. Japan and China, daily threaten to set the Pacific ablaze with distinct peril to American interests while the Soviet goes about preparing for any eventuality.

8. The Kellogg pact, Nine-Power treaty, covenant of the League, pact of the Pacific and other peace structures are tottering, requiring leadership on the part of Mr. Roosevelt, if they are to be saved.

9. The peace of South America is threatened. Bolivia and Paraguay are at war in the Chaco and Columbia and Peru are mobilizing on the upper Amazon with chances of dragging in Brazil and Ecuador.

10. Cuba is in the grip of a reign of terror bloodier and more revolting, according to a steady stream of refugees, than under "Butcher" Weyler. Intervention may be forced upon the United States.

11. Russian recognition is likewise a problem. Events in Asia and in Europe, tending to isolate the United States as well as Russia, may soon make it to the advantage of both at least to be on speaking terms. —Wright County (Miss.) Journal-Press

They had all written letters to their former teacher, Miss Minnie Will, and watched the letters go through the routine necessary to their mailing. Postmaster J. H. File conducted them through the various departments and let them watch letters go through the cancelling machine. A room postoffice is being built at school out of packing boxes and cigar boxes.

HI-Y LUNCHEON

Hi-Y members of the Wayne high school held a luncheon meeting Wednesday noon, with 30 in attendance. Rev. P. A. Davies was the speaker for the occasion. Topic discussion was led by Richard Moses, with a Washington theme featuring the meeting.

SCOTT SHOTS by "SCOTTY"

Whether or not it's true, you'll go for that story one Wayne property owner is telling. A tenant told this p. o. he'd have to move out because he had lost his job. The tenant had been a good renter and was a good worker, so the p. o. told him he could stay on rent free until he could afford to pay the usual stipend.

A month later he was surprised to see his tenant's belongings being loaded onto a truck.

"What's the matter," this property owner asked. "Why are you leaving? I told you that you wouldn't have to pay any rent."

"I've received a better proposition," the parting tenant replied.

"Manhattan," that new news magazine sponsored by Norman Anthony, reports the following as the three current song hits: My Darling, Willow Weep for Me, River Home, Pit As a Fiddle, Night and Day, and I'm Playing with Fire.

WE GOT A RISE

"R. R. Allison, editor of the Laurel Advocate, imbued with the spirit of 'Buy American,' is trying to get the femmes of his community to start a Cotton Stocking Club. You may know your newspaper, Al, but you don't know your women if you expect 'em to mask what has come to be their crowning (?) glory with cotton socks. And I'll betcha that you'd want 'em to change right back to silk as soon as you saw a few beautiful legs marred by wrinkled socks. At least, I don't THINK you're too old to be interested in beauty and art." —Scott Shots in Wayne Democrat.

"Oh my, oh dear, mercy goodness! Scotty, Scotty, how could you be so cruel. Here am I trying to save all good married men such as you and I a neat little piece of jock and you hold me up to the world in this manner. Don't know my femmes, eh? Listen, old timer, if you have any down in your village that you want properly judged and classified, just send for ME.

I'll show you some speed. And Scotty, while the old pate may be a little wee bit bald, and the gait may not be quite so rapid as it was once on a time, we are still interested in the beauty and art you suggest. You young fellows think you have a corner on judging beauty, be it legs, faces or what have you, but I know a lot of us old timers that can give you plenty of start and still kick dust in your faces before the finish line is crossed. Send for us any time you need us in the matter of beauty and art. We are always at your service. And the cotton sock club is coming along nicely, and we understand an auxiliary is now being formed in our beautiful little suburb of Wayne." —The Safety Valve in The Laurel Advocate.

Mr. Allison's affirmation of his ability as a judge of beauty and his expression of youthful ideas reminds me of that story about the time he came upon a beautiful girl who was sobbing piteously.

"What's the matter, little girl?" he asked, showing at once his interest in beauty and his kindly spirit.

"Oh, kind sir," she sobbed, "I want a dashing young cave man—a youth with fire and vigor. Someone who can give me love. Romance." She went on sobbing.

And Mr. Allison, too, started sobbing. For he is a kindly man and knew he could be of no help.

BIDDLE ON DOGS

by Glenn E. Bunnell (Do not reprint without permission of the author. All rights reserved.)

Miss Helen Biddle had been entertaining at afternoon bridge, and her guests were just beginning to stream homeward, with jaded appetites from too many macaroons. Dwight from loom any macaroons. Dwight was sitting on the side lawn in the shade, where he had gone to seek relief from the babble of shrill voices at bridge, which penetrated his den like bullets. When about half of the guests had gone, Biddle heard a commotion on the front lawn and walked around to see what the excitement was.

There was Miss Pettsworth on her knees, in a most unbecoming pose, by a large and thick clump of shrubs, pleading with her Chow to come out.

"Won't mama's little bittie Fifi come to mama before her get her nice coat all dirty," coaxed Miss Pettsworth.

Whether or not it's true, you'll go for that story one Wayne property owner is telling. A tenant told this p. o. he'd have to move out because he had lost his job. The tenant had been a good renter and was a good worker, so the p. o. told him he could stay on rent free until he could afford to pay the usual stipend.

A month later he was surprised to see his tenant's belongings being loaded onto a truck.

"What's the matter," this property owner asked. "Why are you leaving? I told you that you wouldn't have to pay any rent."

"I've received a better proposition," the parting tenant replied.

"R. R. Allison, editor of the Laurel Advocate, imbued with the spirit of 'Buy American,' is trying to get the femmes of his community to start a Cotton Stocking Club. You may know your newspaper, Al, but you don't know your women if you expect 'em to mask what has come to be their crowning (?) glory with cotton socks. And I'll betcha that you'd want 'em to change right back to silk as soon as you saw a few beautiful legs marred by wrinkled socks. At least, I don't THINK you're too old to be interested in beauty and art." —Scott Shots in Wayne Democrat.

"Oh my, oh dear, mercy goodness! Scotty, Scotty, how could you be so cruel. Here am I trying to save all good married men such as you and I a neat little piece of jock and you hold me up to the world in this manner. Don't know my femmes, eh? Listen, old timer, if you have any down in your village that you want properly judged and classified, just send for ME.

I'll show you some speed. And Scotty, while the old pate may be a little wee bit bald, and the gait may not be quite so rapid as it was once on a time, we are still interested in the beauty and art you suggest. You young fellows think you have a corner on judging beauty, be it legs, faces or what have you, but I know a lot of us old timers that can give you plenty of start and still kick dust in your faces before the finish line is crossed. Send for us any time you need us in the matter of beauty and art. We are always at your service. And the cotton sock club is coming along nicely, and we understand an auxiliary is now being formed in our beautiful little suburb of Wayne." —The Safety Valve in The Laurel Advocate.

Mr. Allison's affirmation of his ability as a judge of beauty and his expression of youthful ideas reminds me of that story about the time he came upon a beautiful girl who was sobbing piteously.

"What's the matter, little girl?" he asked, showing at once his interest in beauty and his kindly spirit.

"Oh, kind sir," she sobbed, "I want a dashing young cave man—a youth with fire and vigor. Someone who can give me love. Romance." She went on sobbing.

And Mr. Allison, too, started sobbing. For he is a kindly man and knew he could be of no help.

Hanging her husband's pants on a hook a northside matron told her daughter, "I sometimes grow so tired of housework that I must seek change."

Hard to please people. A bird who has been the most consistent complainer about the amount he was compelled to pay each year as tax on his net income is singing the blues this year because he will have no tax to pay.

I am still of the opinion that a fortune awaits the bright guy who first puts on the market a set of byds with telescoping legs which may be pulled down over the bare spot in cold weather and shoved back up on of the way when not needed.

For a real chuckle, you must read what X. Spence has to say in the Pender Republic about dogs and cold noses:

Walter Winchell "never knew 'til now" that the reason a dog's nose is always cold is because, so the story goes, when the old ark sprung a leak, Noah made one of the dogs aboard stick his nose in the opening to keep out the weather. So children, even since that time the dog's nose has been cold. But Walter didn't tell the rest of the legend. When the leak grew too large for the dog to handle, a woman was called and she placed her shoulder in the break, which explains the cold shoulder the female of the species is noted for. Bue, even then, the gap widened, so a man was called and he backed the latter part of his anatomy in the break to ward off the cold winds and water. And, believe it or not, boys and girls, that is the reason that a man always stands with his back to the fire in an eternal attempt to warm that hereditary chill.

"A VISION OF TAXATION" (With Apologies to "Pink Elephants"). Each day you may see me out working on the farm. I have a little forty, a chicken coop and barn. I love to work upon the farm and keep it neat and clean. But when I'm in my bed at night, I have an awful dream. I see taxes on the ceiling, I see taxes on the wall, I see taxes in the kitchen, I see taxes in the hall, I see taxes in the dining room, I see taxes on my plate, I believe I can taste taxes in everything I eat. I believe in paying taxes, I believe in being sane, I believe these unjust taxes are taxation of the brain. I see taxes on my children, I see taxes on my wife, I see taxes on my income, I see taxes on my life. The next sum rap that we predict with no other can compare; It's a meter on our windpipe, then tax us for the air. —G. A. Haywood in Chicago Daily News.

On Sept. 16, 1932, Bodenstadt was fined $100 and $4 costs and was jailed in default of payment. He was paroled three days later, on condition that he pay the fine and costs and abstain from the use of liquor. Senate Pushes Bryan's Mortgage Relief Bill Without much show of hysteria the Nebraska state senate appears to be determined to rush Gov. Chas. W. Bryan's two year moratorium bill on mortgages and notes to passage early this week and pass it on to the house of representatives.

The newly introduced bills now use the word "moratorium" in the title. By declaring that an emergency exists the promoters of the governor's bill hope to evade for two years the constitutional prohibition against passing laws that may impair the obligation of contracts.

The state constitution provides: "No bill of attainder, ex-post facto law or law impairing the obligation of contracts or making any irrevocable grant of special privilege or immunity shall be passed."

The governor's bill proposes to change the present remedies at law for relief of debtors on notes and mortgages or land sale contracts.

In the bill introduced by Governor Bryan's request it is asserted that "the provisions of the act are made necessary by emergencies growing out of the present economic crisis, worldwide in its scope."

DOES PASTEURIZATION PAY

Dr. E. V. McCollum of Johns Hopkins university, in illustrating the value of research to mankind, traces it from its very beginning with the discovery of fire—the adaptation of animal furs for clothes—light, electricity, etc., pointing out that every industry is influenced by fundamental independent research in the realms of physics and chemistry. He cites particularly the discovery of Pasteur and what they meant to the dairy industry through the adaptation of pasteurization of milk in its prevention of the spread of diseases such as typhoid and tuberculosis in raw milk. State Auditor Issues Warning on Expenses

Warning of a marked decrease in the amount of taxes collected during the last three years in Nebraska has been sounded by State Auditor William B. Price.

Collections have fallen from a total of $6,395,258 collected in June, 1930, to a total of $4,447,448 collected in June 1931. Delinquent taxes have increased annually from $1,474,003 in 1929 to $1,941,108 in June, 1932.

The delinquency has grown from 18 3-4 per cent in 1929 to 20 2-3 per cent in 1930 to 30 1-2 per cent in 1932. Mr. Price anticipates a 50 per cent delinquency in 1933. He made no comment on the possibility of the state being compelled soon to register warrants for lack of funds.

Here's the Dope!

Lee Tracy will be back again tomorrow and Saturday in "Private Jones," a picture of a har- oile- army private that is said to help Mr. Tracy's already enviable popularity.

The picture which was selected for the opening of the RKO Roxy theatre in Radio City, New York, will be at the Gay on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. It is "The Animal Kingdom," starring Ann Harding and Leslie Howard. The picture has received rave notices from the critics and was selected for the Radio City opening only after inspection of dozens of pictures.

It's theme is a bit, well-unconventional. Its hero makes the discovery that the "other woman" in his life has more of the attributes of a wife than the wife herself, so what is he to do?

The screen play has been kept true to the original stage play by Philip Barry, retaining all the whimsical dialogue, which made the show such a charming success.

The element of pathos in the Barry play is always felt acutely because of the gaiety, gallantry and wit with which it is so plentifully sprinkled.

Those of you who liked Barry's play, "Holiday," in the screen version of which Ann Harding starred, will like "The Animal Kingdom" even more. It is smart, sophisticated and enjoyable.

Here's the dope on Ann Harding: She was born Dorothy Gatlery. Her father was the late Brigadier General, George G. Gatlery. She rides a horse or flies an airplane with equal skill. She takes a morning airplane flight in her Bellanca plane to work up an appetite for breakfast. Her first ambition was to be a writer, and she is still ambitious to write rather than act. She once worked as a stenographer. She is an excellent pianist. Her daughter's name is Jane.

She was reading books for a film company when a writer interested her in the Provincetown Players and she got a chance part. Following that were stock companies, Broadway plays, Hollywood.

Admirers of Jim Tully's writing, and they are legion, will thrill to "Laughter in Hell," a picturization of one of his novels which comes to the Gay Wednesday-Thursday. Pat O'Brien, Marna Kennedy, Berton Churchill, Gloria Stuart and Tom Brown are featured in the cast.

Jim Tully is one of the most picturesque figures in American literature. A stocky red-headed Irishman, from a vagrant prize-fighter, he became almost overnight one of America's most widely discussed authors. He spent much of his youth in an orphanage. Living as a hobo for years, he secured first hand knowledge of the poverty classes which his books deal with.

The film traces the youth of a young Irishman who marries a faithless girl and finds his life blasted when he discovers her in the arms of his enemy since childhood. His passionate online sends him to the Hell of a prison chain gang whose foreman is the brother of the man he has killed. Interest is heightened when the prisoner makes a break for life, and his efforts to evade the reaches of the law provide the tense film with unlimited suspense.

28,698 Will Study Farming by Mail

Free Correspondence Course Draws Students From Various Occupations.

Prepared by Ohio State University, WNU Service.

To study farming by mail, 28,698 persons have enrolled in the correspondence courses conducted by the college of agriculture since their inception in 1915. Enrollments in the 24 courses offered to residents of state include business men, farmers, mechanics, policemen, bankers, inmates of state penal institutions, teachers, and scores of representatives from other occupations. All correspondence courses are offered free with the exception of the course in poultry farming for which a fee is charged to cover mailing and other costs.

The most popular course is that on vegetable gardening, next in popularity is poultry farming, which is followed by small fruits, and soil fertility in the total number of enrollments.

The courses contain from three to fourteen lessons. Each lesson consists of a number of mimeographed sheets, and a set of examination questions. The courses have been prepared and revised by members of the faculty of the college of agriculture. Each course deals with one particular subject in as brief a manner as is consistent with clearness and has, in most cases, a special application to Ohio conditions. Many of the courses are illustrated.

At present, 13 courses are offered by the college. They are in the following subjects: pork production, beekeeping, corn culture, farm accounts, farm lighting systems, farm water supply and sanitation, orchard fruits, potato growing, poultry farming, small fruits, soil fertility, vegetable gardening, and writing for the community newspaper.

Small Streams Furnish Power for Farmers' Use

Harnessing the small streams on the farm to produce electrical power for the farm is becoming more common in North Carolina and furnishes the means of lightening many farm jobs.

"The slopes of western North Carolina furnish excellent conditions for the establishing of small power plants for home use," says David S. Weaver, agricultural engineer at State college. "North Carolina has a large area where streams flow rapidly and where the water may be harnessed by water wheels. Some farmers are using overshot wheels, undershot wheels, turbines and impulse wheels, but for average conditions the overshot wheel is the most desirable. In some instances, the results have been unsatisfactory because of variation in the stream flow and a poor estimate of obtaining flows."

Before going to the expense of establishing a plant of this kind, Mr. Weaver suggests that the site be studied in careful detail and the possible horse power available be estimated. For large installations, an engineer should be secured, but for smaller streams, the preliminary estimates may be made by the landowner himself.

Hog Saved by Treatment

A striking illustration of the effectiveness of vaccination in treating hogs for cholera is reported by L. E. McMillan, Mankato, Blue Earth (Minn.) county agricultural agent. Mr. McMillan was called to inspect a herd of sick hogs on the farm of John Vastrow, Vernon Center township. Ten brood sows that had been double treated for cholera were not affected, but all of the spring pigs were sick. Only one showed any signs of activity. Mr. McMillan had some serum with him and suggested giving this one pig a dose to see what would happen. The pig's temperature was found to be 106 degrees. Forty cubic centimeters of clear, concentrated serum were injected, with the result that this pig has not missed a single feed since and is fine and dandy, while all the rest that were not vaccinated died or had to be killed.

Colorado Farm Youth Active

Fifteen thousand, nine hundred twelve Colorado farm boys and girls and young men and women were trained in agriculture and home economics as members of 4-H clubs during the past two years, according to C. W. Ferguson, state club agent for the Colorado Agricultural college. This is an increase of 8,276 over the 4-H club membership during 1929 and 1930—an increase of more than one-fourth. These young men and women were engaged in growing and feeding live stock, dairy cattle and poultry, the production of field crops, fruits and vegetables and the study of different phases of foods, nutrition, sewing, clothing and house furnishing.

To Aid Farm Owners

Gov. George White of Ohio has appointed a Hancock Farm and Home Protective committee, the first of a series of 88, one for each county in the state. The duties of the committees are to render assistance to hard-pressed mortgagees, both home owners and farmers. All who wish may bring before each county committee the details of mortgage foreclosure actions or anticipated actions. The committee then will investigate each case and recommend a course of procedure.

Majority of Headaches Traced to Eye Strain

Seven out of ten headaches are caused by eye strain due to neglect of ordinary eye care, pointed out M. J. Julian of the Better Vision Institute, in a speech in Boston before a group of ophthalmologists. Other ills, such as insomnia and indigestion, are also traceable to this cause, he pointed out, and yet 40 per cent of the people of this country need glasses and are trying to do without them.

"The eyes are such faithful servants that we are inclined to forget the burdens we put upon them," said Mr. Julian. "Particularly in this age where men are pushing their investigations farther and farther into the realms of stars and atoms and where most manufacturing processes depend upon fine precision, the tax upon the eyes has become far greater than we realize. The nervous energy possessed by the body is limited, and the eyes, if they perform this additional labor unaided, steal some of the energy required for other functions. Lenses especially adapted to the work in hand are necessary to relieve the strain on the eyes and release the stolen energy through the intended channels. Proper eye care is more needed in this age than in any other."

Greek Legend Gave Us Augean Stables Story

In Greek legend Augeas was a king of Elis who possessed a herd of 3,000 sacred oxen whose stalls had not been cleaned for 30 years. The cleaning of these stables in a single day was one of the 12 difficult and dangerous labors imposed upon Hercules by Eurystheus, king of Argolis. Hercules, who was promised a tenth part of the cattle in payment, succeeded in performing the task within the required time by turning the rivers Alpheus and Peneus through the stables. Augeas refused to turn over any part of the cattle to Hercules on the ground that he had carried out the commission in the service of Eurystheus, whereupon Hercules sent an army into Elis and destroyed the insolent king and his sons. Figuratively, cleaning the Augean stables means to clear away an accumulated mass of corruption or filth or to reform wrongs almost past the power of man to remedy.

Manila Up to Date

Venice of the Orient is one of the names given to Manila of the Philippine islands. The name comes to it because it is situated on both banks of the Pasig river and enjoys some of the life from the river. These waters provide a lot of bridges for the city suggestive of the Rialto of the Old world.

Thirty-five years ago the city had no drainage system and a heavy rain made boats on the streets a necessity. Around the Intermuros, or walled city, which is most typical of its Spanish days, were walls and a moat dating back to 1500, two miles long and 26 feet high. Today the moat is given up to fine driveways and only the bridged river and canals remind the tourist of a city of islands.

The Postgraduate Wife

She asks her husband occasionally if he thinks there is any real danger in the political situation. The time most favored by experts for this question is when he has only five minutes in which to make his train.

She never unfolds his morning paper. Few, even from the post-graduate school, develop sufficient technique for this important detail within five years.

She takes charge of, reads and returns all books lent him by his friends and gives him a few sentences which enable him to talk about them if cornered.—Kansas City Star.

Vienna Old and Beautiful

Vienna, founded 2,000 years ago by the Romans, destroyed and rebuilt several times, is still a queen among modern cities, although it is no longer the residence of an imperial court. It has a famous opera, by many considered among the best in German-speaking lands. It certainly has the oldest tradition, dating back into the Seventeenth century. The public buildings, palaces, galleries, educational institutions, theaters and museums offer an inexhaustible fund of beauty and instruction.

Shiny-Headed Monster

At three o'clock in the morning we were awakened by a loud knocking at the door. On looking out of the window, we saw a queer looking beast about six feet long, having four legs, no neck and a shiny head three feet long. Before we could get a gun it disappeared in the darkness. We thought it an escaped animal from the circus. The next morning, cautiously walking, we found a big stray pig with its head tightly wedged in a gallon milk can.—Farm Journal.

Permission or Command?

The first-grade teacher in Sheridan, Ind., was drilling her pupils in the use of "may" and "can" and was directing a game wherein the pupil designated asked some one a question using either of the words as he thought best.

One little girl asked a ruddy-faced boy opposite her: "Jack, may I wash the dishes?" "Yes, you may," Jack retorted; "and make it snappy!"—Indianapolis News.

Magic in the Salad Bowl

IN winter when we are all eating heavy foods, we need light salads to balance them, or, if we are going easy on other foods, we need nourishing salads to keep up our strength. Either way, it is often with a properly selected salad that the successful hostess works the magic that makes the meal. So here are some recent tested recipes for salads of both sorts. The first are of the decorative and lighter variety designed to balance heavy foods.

Dainty Salads

Dolly Varden Flower Salad: Arrange five nice cup shaped hearts of lettuce on each plate. In the center one put mayonnaise. In another place four halves of canned apricots, and in another eight or nine pineapple tidbits. Stone ripe black cherries, and put five or six in another lettuce cup. In the last one place about six watermelon balls.

Lily Salad: Pare and core ripe pears, then cut down not quite to the bottom, thus making six or eight "petals," and spread slightly. Place this "lily" on a green lettuce leaf or on a thin round of green gelatin. Place one and one-half tablespoons of canned crushed pineapple in each "lily," and top with one and one-half tablespoons tiny cubes of orange gelatin. Sprinkle chopped candied orange peel over that. The dressing for this dainty salad should be made as follows:

Salad Dressing: Mix together two tablespoons lemon juice, six tablespoons olive oil, two tablespoons bottled lime juice, two tablespoons confectioner's sugar, salt, pepper, paprika to taste, and a few grains of mustard. Shake or beat until well emulsified.

Frozen Symphony Salad: Drain the contents of a No. 1 can of pears, and cut in small pieces. Buy a glass jar of stuffed oranges, chop one-half a stuffed orange fine, and add, with two tablespoons of the stuffed orange syrup. Add one-fourth cup white grapes, skinned, seeded and cut in halves or quarters. Beat one-half cup cream, add one-half cup mayonnaise and a few grains of salt. Fold into the fruit, and pour into a fancy or a loaf-shaped ice cream mold. Cover with wax paper and the tight-fitting cover. Pack in ice and salt till frozen. Remove, slice and serve on lettuce. Serves eight. Delicious.

Frozen Star Salad: Combine half the contents of a No. 2 can of crushed pineapple, one-fourth the contents of a No. 2 can of apple sauce, four tablespoons white corn syrup and one-third cup chopped blanched almonds. Soften one teaspoon gelatin in one tablespoon cold water. Dissolve in two tablespoons boiling water, and add

Beat one-half cup cream, add one-half cup mayonnaise and a few grains of salt, and fold into fruit. Pour into individual round or star-shaped ice cream molds, and cover with waxed paper and the tin covers. Pack in ice and salt until frozen. When ready to serve turn out into nests of lettuce. Have a very ripe firm watermelon cut in small wedges and marinated in French dressing. Arrange five of these wedges around each mold, like the rays of a star. The melon should be icy cold. Serves eight.

Heartier Salads

Chicken and Fruit Salad: Marinate the contents of two 6-ounce cans of chicken thoroughly in French dressing. Add two-thirds cup canned grapefruit pulp, two-thirds cup canned diced pineapple and one-half cup nuts, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve in popover or cream puff shells. Serves eight.

Chicken, Sweet Bread and Pineapple Salad: Dice the contents of a 12-ounce cold diced sweetbread, one-half cup halved and seeded white grapes and the drained contents of an 8-ounce can of pineapple tidbits. Season to taste with salt and pepper and moisten with cream mayonnaise. Serve very cold in lettuce cups. Serves eight.

Lobster Salad a la Gelée: Dissolve one package lemon gelatin in one and three-fourths cups boiling water, cool and let set thick as honey. Add one-fourth cup mayonnaise, the shredded contents of a 6-ounce can of lobster, one-half cup diced cucumber and one-half cup diced celery (the last two having been marinated thoroughly in one-fourth cup French dressing). Chill for several hours in molds in ice box. Serve on lettuce with a garnish of sliced cucumbers and radishes in French dressing. Serves eight.

The Child Reader

by MARJORIE BARROWS, Editor, Child Life Magazine.

One afternoon many years ago a wharf rat on San Francisco Bay wandered into the Oakland Public Library. There, opening a bound volume of a children's magazine, he stumbled upon a story. It was a story about a boy like himself—a run-away, a gang leader of wharf rats, who had certain semi-piratical adventures, but who, after a hard lesson, learned of better ways of living his life.

Making of Jack London. The dramatic, exciting story awoke in the young reader the uneasy consciousness of his own wrong actions. He walked out of that library resolving to lead just as adventurous a life but one that carried with it a clear conscience. So he joined the Fish Patrol, cruised about the bay, fought poachers, and before long began to write stories about his adventures.

That boy was Jack London. The experience of this famous writer occurs, in a rather less dramatic fashion, in the life of every boy or girl. Careful investigators have discovered that next to persons, nothing has more influence on children than what they read. If a hero they admire acts under certain circumstances as they themselves would like to act, they'll remember it.

They imitate the hero. And when the time comes, they'll unconsciously be influenced by that hero's action and try to do likewise. The hero's kindness, ambition, steadfastness, loyalty, the hero's resourcefulness, quick-wittedness, painstaking qualities, courage, magnanimity, modesty—all these examples "sink in" and are emulated both now and later. One story with hidden character-building values is worth a dozen sermons from parents or teachers.

Let us try to see that this sort of a story, full of plenty of adventure for the boy, full of interesting plots and characters for the girl, is convenient for them to pick up. Jack London isn't the only one to be tremendously influenced by the printed word.

Back to Remote Times

Some of our older and most English words contain buried vestiges of the lives once lived in the forests; as weary, which is traced back to an old verb meaning "to tramp over wet ground," and learn, which goes back to a root which meant "to follow a track." The words cotton, gazelle, giraffe, masquerade, sirup and tar-borine come from the Arabic via Spanish and French, relics of Islam's settlements in eastern Europe. Test is an alchemist's word coming from the Latin "testa," an earthen pot in which the alchemist made his alloys.—Kansas City Times.

Pretty Lane Excuse

It looked as though the game warden had caught a hunter red-handed who produced his last year's license and admitted he had not obtained a new one. "But what's the idea of hunting with last year's license?" asked the warden. "Well, you see," stammered the hunter, thinking fast, "I was—er—was just shooting at the birds I missed last year, you know."—Capper's Weekly.

Mussolini's Vain Boast Women Exert No Power

"Women exert no influence upon strong men," Mussolini is said to have declared to Emil Ludwig, the German who specializes in intimate biographies of great men or those who fancy themselves great.

It is a statement with which, we suspect, Mark Anthony would have expressed the most complete sympathy before he sailed for Egypt and fell into the dusky and destructive hands of Cleopatra. It is the sort of thing that Samson probably told his friends as he permitted them to admire his biceps before Dallah came along. It is the complacent belief of every strong man who has reached maturity without ever finding time to fall deeply and helplessly in love. And when a man makes such a statement he is marking himself as one of the targets Cupid most puckishly delights to destroy.

Until a man has faced battle he is unwise to boast of his calm under fire. Until a man has felt a strong impulse to chuck everything he has built up for the sake of some woman he is tempting fate when he minimizes a woman's power. For no man who has ever been deliciously in love is going to dismiss woman's influence in quite the cavalier manner of Il Duce.

It is the strong man, indeed, who seem most often to become a prey to the maddest and most pathetic infatuations. The man of modest ambitions does not fight off the tender passion when he is young—he is apt to fall in love, quite naturally and gracefully, and either to marry the girl or to carry a healthy respect for the wounds by a new romance later in life. He is not going to be so surprised by it, however, that it has destroyed him before he realizes what has occurred.

When a man has refused to love deeply for the first 40 or 50 years of his life he is very apt to make a consummate fool of himself in his choice when the great passion finally arrives. A glance at some of our white-haired magnates in their hours of play gives you a fair idea. The golden chorus ladies on whom they pin their affections find it easy to awaken a tempestuous emotion in a heart which has been steeled to women for half a century.

Love may be a gentle and controllable affection. It can also be the most dangerous and destructive passion in the world, and it may strike an unsuspecting man or woman suddenly as a bolt of lightning.

The fates whom Mussolini has so lightly defied may leave him alone and let him carry his indifference to woman's powers to his grave. But no man can safely boast of his immunity to lightning or woman until he is dead.—Two Harbors Chronicle.

Better Breakfasts

WHEN the north wind it blows, and the cold nips your nose, and the branches are crackling with ice, then you need something warm to offset the bleak storm, and a good filling breakfast is nice. Then the food in your pot should be hearty and hot, and your overcoat heavy and thick, and the things that you eat should have substance and heat, or the weather will make you feel sick.

But let's get down to prose, although there's nothing prosy about a better breakfast. Here's one for a morning of bitter weather when you need the proteins of meat, the heat of oatmeal and the filling qualities of baked potatoes to help you resist the cold.

Compo of Pears and Apples Oatmeal
Creamed Chipped Beef
Baked Potatoes

Toast Coffee

Compo of Pears and Apples: Pare and core two large cooking apples, and cut them into eighths. Add one and one-third cups water and one cup sugar to the syrup from a No. 2 can of pears, add a few cloves, and boil for three or four minutes. Add apples, and simmer gently until tender but still in perfect shape. Remove apples, and add pears, whole or cut in halves, and cook until very soft and syrup somewhat thickened. Remove pears to dish with apples, and strain syrup over. Chill. Serves eight.

A $1.50 Dinner for 6

THE following dinner has another advantage beside its extremely low cost of only twenty-five cents per person. All the dishes except the dessert take only a few minutes to prepare, and if you have an automatic refrigerator, that does most of the work in preparing the dessert. Here's the menu:

Minute Steak (1½ lbs. round at 39¢)
Mashed Potatoes 10¢
Russian Beets 20¢
Cheese Biscuits 13¢
Strawberry Ice Cream 42¢
Demi-Tasse 5¢

Most of these dishes are familiar to every housewife, but here are the recipes for the Russian Beets and dessert.

Russian Beets: Mix together four tablespoons sugar and two tablespoons cornstarch, and add three tablespoons vinegar and three-fourths cup of the liquor from a No. 2 can of whole beets. Boil a few minutes, or until creamy. Add one-fourth cup thick sour cream, then the beets, and heat thoroughly.

Strawberry Ice Cream: Press the contents of an 8-ounce can of strawberries through a sieve, and add to the contents of one can condensed milk. Add one cup cream, one cup water and three tablespoons lemon juice, stirring all until smooth. If desired, you may tint this a pale pink. Turn into refrigerator trays and freeze, stirring several times during the first hour.

Teacher Gives Talk on "Washington Country"

"The Washington Country" was the subject of a talk given in chapel at Wayne State Teachers college Wednesday morning by Miss Margaret Schemel.

She described Wakefield, the estate on which Washington was born, and from where the family moved to Washington, later known as Mount Vernon. George Washington's father died at Mount Vernon when Washington was 11.

The family, Miss Schemel said, then moved to Ferry Farm, on the Rappahannock river, where George lived with his mother and attended school. Here, she said, he became interested in mathematics, and this led to his taking up the profession of a surveyor. When Washington was 23 she said, he inherited Mount Vernon.

She described the Washington country, pointing out the various ways in which it influenced the life of America's first president.
