Fortner Knows Cabinet Member

Wayne people have an opportunity to get first-hand information on at least one member of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt's cabinet. William H. Woodin, to be secretary of the treasury, was a boyhood acquaintance of George Fortner.

Mr. Woodin lived close to Mr. Fortner's boyhood home at Burwick, Pa. Woodin, Mr. Fortner recalls, was about 21 years old when Mr. Fortner left Pennsylvania. Mr. Fortner knew Woodin's father and grandfather and worked for five years in a shop with which the secretary of the treasury's father was connected. The newly-elected cabinet member, he says, comes from a fine family.

City Election Candidates to Be Selected

Nominating Convention to Be Held Tomorrow Night.

Convention of the Citizens party will be held at the city hall tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock to place in nomination candidates for two places on the Wayne board of education. The two school board members whose terms of office expire this year are Burrett W. Wright and Lester W. Vath.

Immediately following the convention, caucuses of electors of the three Wayne wards will be held for the purpose of nominating candidates for the city council.

The first ward caucus will be held at the city hall, the second ward caucus will be held at Sala's tire shop and the third ward caucus will be held at Fred L. Blair's clothing store.

James E. Brittain is chairman and L. B. McClure is secretary of the "Citizens party." Selection of candidates by this group practically means the election of those candidates, barring a "dark horse" movement, since the Citizens party is the only group placing candidates in nomination for the city elections.

Little excitement is expected at the city elections this year, aside from that which will probably be generated by the question of the purchase by the city of the Kay swimming pool and park. Voters will be called upon at city election to either approve or disapprove the city's purchase of this property at a price of $10,000.

The Inquiring Reporter

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Do you think the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States will be repealed? (It was requested that The Democrat repeat last week's question, asking local women.)

Housewife: "I don't think so. Women voters will be very emphatic in their disapproval of such a course. We fought hard for prohibition and we're going to keep it."

Clerk: "Well, I don't know. I used to be strongly in favor of its retention, but it doesn't seem to have been much of a success. If our law makers want to try something else, I'd be in favor of it."

Elderly lady: "It most certainly will not be repealed. We'll see to it the present good work of the eighteenth amendment is not lost."

Housewife: "It will never be repealed. To abolish it would require the vote of 36 states, and that vote can never be secured."

Housewife: "If it is not repealed, there's something wrong with the intelligence of our voters. It has been a flat failure."

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 40 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, March 2, 1933. Vol. 7

A word to the wise guy is foolish.

After all there is still a small profit in the poultry end of the farming game. We are showing brooder houses at greatly reduced prices.

We're telling this one on ourselves. A number of years ago we entered a highbrow cafe in Chicago. We pointed to a line on the French menu ca.d and said, "Bring me some of that." "Sorry, sir," answered the waiter, "the orchestra is playing that."

Sure we have glass cloth. The genuine Baden. It comes in two widths, 30 inch and 36 inch. Price 25c and 30c per yard.

It's a good idea to kiss the children good-night, if you don't mind waiting up for them.

Try our new furnace hard coal. We call it CONGO. It is priced at $12.50.

"Poppa, what do you call a man who drives a car?"
"It depends on how close he comes to you."

It has always seemed to us that creditors have better memories than debtors.

Patrons who have tried all the low priced coals claim our ECONOMY is the most economical lump coal they have burned. Price $7.50.

We heard a long story about the girls who work in a shirt factory in the button department and sew on and sew on, but we don't think you'd be interested.

The first martens showed up here Feb. 24th. We could hardly believe it as it is usually the month of April when the first scouts arrive. Must be we're to have an early spring.

Yep, it's a fact. We have at our disposal a million dollars to loan on repair and remodeling jobs. Are you interested?

On Saturday the United States will have a new President, and Franklin D. Roosevelt will have a new job. We don't envy him that job. Nobody since Lincoln has faced a tougher one. But we're convinced he's going to tackle it sincerely and capably. Here's luck to you, Mr. Roosevelt.

The diseases of business and the diseases of government can not be eradicated unless the policies and practices which have produced them are abandoned.

We've always noticed that the man who buys advice is usually smarter than the man who gives it.

THE SAP BLOOMS

The boobus Americans still lives, even in Nebraska.

Consider the case of Oscar Hartzell, promoter of the "Drake estate," now out on $10,000 bail in Sioux City, as a result of fraud charges preferred against him by federal officials.

"Baron" Hartzell followed a simple formula, one by which any individual who cares to may amass a great sum of money. He promised credulous midwestern simpletons great wealth if they would invest their funds in his Sir Francis Drake estate promotion. And a great army of our simple-minded rose to the bait.

Not only did they bite, but they became irate when sympathetic government officials tried to take the bait away from them.

When the postal authorities ordered that Hartzell's agents be allowed to receive no mail, Iowa and Nebraska contributors fooled the government's Guardians of the Simple by sending their money to newly-appointed agents.

Information from a reliable source indicates that citizens of the Nebraska town of Wausa sent thousands of dollars to Hartzell after the newspapers had turned the searchlight of publicity on the Hartzell machinations.

"There'll be a great scandal when Hartzell comes to America," one Wausa man is supposed to have said. "He'll have all these postal officials put into jail. He's coming over here with millions of dollars."

There's something of the Pixey in our simple folk who never tire of the quest for "something for nothing." The old-time medicine show with its "All sold out, doctor" is gone, but Doctor Brinkley ministers to the ailing from his Mexican radio station. The shall game and three-card monte are things of the past, but Wall Street's pulse flutters feebly and will undoubtedly swell to a vigorous beat again before long. A prize in each and every package is about worn out—but our magazines constantly remind us of the many free prizes we can get with purchases.

We still bite when somebody does something not for personal gain but "for the good of the town." Astrological horoscopes are selling better this year than they have at any time since 1900. We buy the latest patent medicine and all the newest physios with never-diminishing faith. Our hope of winning a free automobile through the purchase of a dollar's worth of cigars is constant. We patronize elyster bargain sales in nearby cities and get shoddy merchandise at "steal" prices which are only about twice what we would pay for the same junk at home.

And we laugh at the credulity of little children who believe in Santa Claus.

PRECIOUS LEARNING

A member of a rural school board, who stopped in at The Democrat office Saturday afternoon to pay his compliments to this paper for an editorial in last week's issue, relative to salaries of rural school teachers, demonstrated a sanity of thought which is gratifying to find.

"While I believe that taxes should be lower," this gentleman said, "I do not feel that the right way to lower them is to put our children under incompetent teachers. It is hard enough to get a decent teacher at a fair wage; a good teacher won't work for $5 a month."

This man told of experiences his district had encountered with teachers. One, he said, was a charming young lady of excellent breeding. She had plenty of money, she was not worried by low salary. She looked like a bargain to the school board. Unfortunately, he continued, this young lady was very popular and was invited everywhere. Some of the places to which she was invited, he said, were not the best places—and this school district received no little notoriety. The real blow came, he continued, when she had to quit teaching on account of an unfortunate brawl in which she received some adverse publicity.

He told of another teacher, secured at a bargain price, who had an education which was far superior to that of most rural school teachers. The trouble with this teacher, he said, was that she didn't know enough to come in out of the rain. (I quote him.) She had no discipline. The children had little or no idea of what she was talking about during many of her lessons. She was a dud.

He related another incident of a teacher who was able to work at a greatly reduced price because her folks lived in the district. "Before the year was over," he said, "half the people in the district weren't speaking to the other half." She got into the blameworthy bunch of school politics mix-ups you ever saw.

"We don't want any more cheap teachers," he concluded. "They're too expensive."

EDITORIAL POWER

We doubt the power of heavy, wordy editorials in the weekly newspapers of the United States. In them, the editors deal with subjects which are being more ably discussed by more competent magazine and metropolitan newspaper writers, men who have had a better opportunity to come in contact with the subjects under discussion.

There is that type of weekly newspaper editorial which is an obvious rewrite of the opinions expressed by a metropolitan writer. It says the same thing that has been said before, only it doesn't say it as cleverly. It possesses an involved phraseology that leaves the reader lost in a mire of words. When the reader finishes it, he knows nothing that he did not already know.

Then there is that type of editorial which takes a "safe stand." It is a rewrite of the Ten Commandments or copy-book maxims. It tells you, in several hundred words, that crime doesn't pay or that honesty is the best policy or that the snob gets his or that generosity is a virtue or that laziness is a vice to be shunned or that all Blanktown citizens should trade at home or that the home is the foundation of the nation. It says something that is safe, says it in an uninteresting way, and says it in as many words as possible.

The editor sets himself up as an authority. He asks people to believe that his judgement is better than theirs. And for what reason? The only subjects on which he can possibly be an authority are those which are of purely local interest. And he doesn't have the nerve to discuss those with any strong show of opinion.

Why, then, does he continue to write editorials at all? Because he honestly believes that the editorials are the most thoroughly read part of his paper. Because he thinks that his opinions are a great aid to community advancement. Because he believes others do less thinking than himself. Because of some peculiar sense of pride.

The Little Ads That Achieve Big Results

Do want ads come under the classification of advertising or are they news? "Both" might be a correct answer.

In this week's want ads, you'll find houses for rent and for sale, good lots for sale, farm products, a garage for sale, new and used merchandise at low prices and many other items of interest.

The Democrat calls its want ads "the little ads that get big results." Low in cost, they have mighty sales appeal—as is demonstrated by their popularity.

You can convert your "white elephants" into ready cash by simply inserting a Democrat want ad. Just call 145 and "tell your wants" to Mary Jane.

SCOTT SHOTS by "SCOTTY"

SCOTT SHOTS
A local young blade swears that this is a true story. He avers that he called his girl on the telephone and said, "Is that you, Alice?" To which a voice answered, "No, but this is Wonderland." Wrong number!

Main Street Murrurs (Saturday afternoon)—He come home drunk one night last week and his old man gave him a dose of strap oil. Where does the Coterie club meet next—I never can remember. She's one of those dreamy eyed girls that you can go nuts about. I hope we get five dollars back on our car license—we can use it. John's a real nice boy and I'm glad she's going with him. Sometimes taxes make you think that there isn't any use going on. I don't see why they have to have so many kids—there's something wrong somewhere. She hadn't oughta be in school, with her folks so hard up and all. As long as there's any new machinery on the market, he won't spend the money to paint the house. Art seen 'em, but he never done nothing about it. Let's get the fraps together for a round of contract tonight. Alcohol's only fifty cents for a half-pint in Sioux City. I feel good all over today. Doc said it was membranous croup or something like that. She's always burning incense an' it stinks up the house—something terrible. I says that's all-right, smart-guy, you can date all the girls you want to but you can't date them and date me too. Present-day taxes don't take much cognizance of unearned increment—they tax the man who improves his property. He smiles at you while he's getting ready to play you a dirty trick. Have you heard that Eddie Was a Lady number? Nuts to you with shells on 'em, as the guy said in the moving picture.

Fred Howard scatters these Sunbeams in his Clay County Sun: Clarence of the longrays says her idea of doing nothing is making underwear for screen favorites.

Guy Kirchner, auto expert, says that the most dangerous fault he knows of with a car is too much play at the wheel.

When a Fairfield lad told his honey bunch that he had a can with a new style clutch, she replied, "Gee, I can hardly wait to try it."

This depression business is not a one man or one community affair. Never in my life have I seen men with things to sell so eager to please as right now. The captain on a dining car Saturday evening would not accept pay for an extra lamb chop I had included with my dinner. He said when I called his attention to his not having made an extra charge, "Say, I am so glad to have anyone eat with me that I am willing to supply them with all they wish to eat."

Spring must be around the corner for already I begin to feel the desire to build something. At six and a half decades one does not speak of the mating time, but the yen to make a nest is not effected by hardening of the arteries, sclerosis of the liver nor other signs of senescence, so I am having my usual spring fever in its incipency. Wife knows the signs, and has warned the lumber dealers and carpenters that they sell me anything at their own risk.

I like that comment in The Scribner Rustler: "The reason slickers can make money without working is because suckers are eager to do the same thing."

They're telling a story about a panhandler who accosted a Wayne man and asked for nine cents. "Why nine cents?" asked the Wayne man.

"Well," the panhandler replied, "here's one guy that's willing to take a ten per cent reduction without squawking."

"I suppose," said the city banker who was visiting the farm, "that's the hired man."

"No," replied the farmer, who had visited city banks, "that's the fifth vice-president in charge of cows."

This is contributed by Walter Savidge. It's the classic story of a pack of cards (devil's pasteboards to you): "A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee was taken before a magistrate recently for playing cards during divine service. It appeared that the sergeant commanded the soldiers at the church, and when the parson had read the prayers, he took the text. Those who had a Bible took it out, but this soldier had neither Bible nor common prayer book, but pulling out a pack of cards, he spread them out before him. He looked at one card and then at another. The sergeant of the company saw him and said, "Richard, put up the cards; this is no place for them."

"Never mind that," said Richard. "When the service was over, the constable took Richard before the mayor."

"Well," said the mayor, "what have you brought the soldier here for?"

"For playing cards in church."

"Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?"

"Much, sir, I hope."

"Very good. If not, I will punish you more than man was punished."

"I have been," said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have neither Bible nor common prayer book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and I'll satisfy your wish of the purity of my intentions."

Spreading the cards before the mayor, he began with the ace: "When I see the ace, it reminds me there is but one God. When I see the deuce, it reminds me of Father and Son. When I see the trey, it reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost. When I see the four spot, it reminds me of the four evangelists that preached, Mathew, Mark, Luke and John. When I see the five, it reminds me of the five wise virgins that trimmed their lamps—there were ten, but five were wise and five were foolish and were shut out. When I see the six, it reminds me that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth. When I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day He rested from the great work He had created and hallowed it. When I see the eight, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons that were saved when God destroyed the world; viz: Noah and his wife, with three sons and their wives. When I see the nine it reminds me of the nine lepers that were cleansed by our Saviour; there were nine out of ten who never returned thanks. When I see the ten, it reminds me of the ten commandments which God handed down to Moses on tables of stone. When I see the king, it reminds me of the King of Heaven, which is God Almighty. When I see the queen, it reminds me of the queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he a man. She brought with her fifty boys and fifty girls, all dressed in boys' apparel for King Solomon to tell which were boys and which were girls. King Solomon sent for water for them to wash; the girls washed to the elbows and the boys to the wrists, so King Solomon told by that."

"Well," said the mayor, you have given a good description of all the cards but one."

"Which is that?"

"The knave," said the mayor. "I will give your honor a good description of that, too, if you will not be angry."

"I will not," said the mayor, "if you do not term me the knave."

"Well," said the soldier, "the greatest knave I know of is the constable that brought me here."

"I do not know," said the mayor, "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count how many spots in a pack of cards, I find 365, as many as there are days in a year. When I count the number of cards in a pack, I find 52, the number of weeks in a year; and I find four suits, the number of weeks in a month. I find there are 12 picture cards in the pack, representing the number of months in a year, and on counting the tricks, I find 13, the number of weeks in a quarter. So, you see, sir, a pack of cards serves for a Bible, almanac, and common prayer book."

- Sixth grade—Marlon Comstock, Maxine Connors, Richard Gildersleeve, Billy Jones, Ray Larson, Dale Meyer, Vern Newberry, Wm. Seymour, Margaret Jean Studley and Marian Vath.

Here's the Dope!

Vina Delmar's story, "Uptown New York," starring the wise-cracking Jack Oakie, comes to the Gay tomorrow and Saturday. A new Jack Oakie makes his appearance in the picture—Oakie that is, by reason of a sterling performance an important addition to the list of Hollywood's juvenile leading men.

There is no lack of the old breezy buffoon in his role of Eddie Doyle, chewing gum machine impressario. But there is in addition an actor who can play dramatic scenes with fine feeling. The story presents a difficult problem, handled in an unconventional manner.

Sunday, Monday and Tuesday we get to see one of those pictures that comes once in a blue moon—Eddie Cantor in "The Kid from Spain." In the few theatres in which "Kid from Spain" has appeared, it has played to standing room.

The picture presents the pop-eyed comedian in what he believes is his greatest offering to the cause of amusement. It continues Cantor's plans with Goldwyn to produce one film a year. Last year there was "Palmy Days" and the season before, "Whoopee," but, successful as these were, Eddie believes he has more than topped them with "The Kid from Spain."

It is the story of a button-eyed lad who, getting kicked out of school with his roommate for suspicious goings-on in a girls' dormitory, gets involved in a bank robbery and escapes to Mexico disguised as a prominent bullfighter, there accepting the acclaim due to the man he is impersonating until forced to go into a real bullfight.

Nonsense and song make up most of the picture and make of it a gay, romantic fable of love, shot through with dark, smiling eyes and matadors. Eddie made tests for several weeks in the selection of his heroine, and he made other tests for other weeks in the choice of 76 beauties to serve as a background.

There are three distinct divisions in the cast. Lyda Roberti, electric Broadway comedienne, plays opposite Cantor and sings three songs with him. Ruth Hall and Robert Young are the romantic leads, and there are all sorts of villains, including John Miljan, Carrol Naish, Noah Beery and Stanley Fields. In fact, there's a fourth division, too, this being occupied entirely by Sidney Franklin, world-famed bullfighter, who portrays the role of Sidney Franklin, world famed bullfighter.

For the bullfighting sequences, bulls were imported from Mexico and a hundred experts of one kind or another put the arena into operation. The result is one of the most authentic bullfight scenes ever brought to the screen.

Samuel Goldwyn insisted on having the entire picture completed before he would let Eddie Cantor into the arena for the bull-fighting sequences. He held it for the last, so that his work would be done before the head-eyed comic essayed the role of matador.

Each day, Eddie brought each bull an apple. "Just so there wouldn't be any hard feelings," Cantor claimed.

See Wheat Immune From Rust Injury

Experiments by Specialists Indicate Old Trouble Is Inherited.

Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Wheat breeders of the department are a step nearer their goal of producing rust-immune spring wheats. Several years of intensive experiments by department workers at the Northern Great Plains field station at Mandan and the Langdon substation at Langdon, N. D., proved almost conclusively that near-immunity from stem rust is a plant character definitely inherited in wheat crosses.

The recent results were reported by J. Allen Clark and H. B. Humphrey of the division of cereal crops and diseases at the annual meeting of the American Society of Agronomy held in Washington.

This principle is significant both for wheat breeders and wheat farmers. The breeders are convinced that there is such a character as near-immunity from rust in wheat, which is inherited in a different manner than the character of resistance. They have a long way to go before they can breed this near-immunity in all wheat sown by farmers, for they must cross near-immune varieties with resistant and susceptible ones that have all the other desirable characters such as high yield, good milling and baking quality, resistance to hot weather, drought, and diseases other than rust. However, the knowledge that near-immunity is a hereditary character, and not merely a growth or plant condition is of tremendous importance in wheat improvement.

In the early experiments to produce rust-resistant wheats, breeders crossed common and durum varieties. Most of these crosses were sterile, but when they grew and were rust-resistant they were like the durum parent. Discovery of resistance in Kota common wheat in 1919 removed these difficulties. This resistance was a step forward but it was not sufficient to eliminate all possibility of loss.

In the first experiments, crosses of hope with marquis and reliance behaved similarly. The first plants grown from the cross had only a trace of rust. In the second generation the plants grown from the seed of the first crop varied, some being nearly immune from rust, some resistant, and some susceptible, but it was evident that the population tended toward near-immunity. In the third generation, about 25 per cent of the strains bred true for near-immunity, but only about 6 per cent bred true for susceptibility. There were also true-breeding resistant strains like Ceres and segregating strains.

In these wheat-breeding experiments, the government scientists delve deep into the genetic factors governing the near-immune, resistant, and susceptible rust reactions of wheat. They interpret their results in genetic language by saying that hope has a single dominant inhibiting factor for near-immunity, that marquis and reliance have a major dominant factor of susceptibility, that H-4 carries both of these dominant factors, and that the resistant Ceres is represented by the double recessives.

Only Beginning Is Made in Developing Soybeans

Only a beginning has been made in developing the full possibilities of the soybean, that versatile crop which last year was a two-million-dollar one for Illinois farmers and which had a farm value of almost seven million dollars in 1930, according to a bulletin, "Genetics and Breeding in the Improvement of the Soybean," issued by the experiment station of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

C. M. Woodworth, chief in plant genetics at the University of Illinois agricultural experiment station, is author of the bulletin. The work is a product of the state which leads all others in commercial soybean production and which in 1931 produced more than 40 per cent of the country's total threshed crop. The 1931 Illinois crop totaled 6,055,000 bushels.

The bulletin brings together the essential information on soybean genetics available at the present time, discusses the principles of breeding that are applicable to soybean improvement and reviews the results of investigations at Illinois and other institutions with a view to improving the crop in certain special features.

Inbreeding

Results of a ten-year experiment on the College of Agriculture farm at Davis, Calif., appear to indicate that inbreeding in hogs did not lessen the vigor or the size of litters. Experiments elsewhere have seemed to show loss of vigor, but this has not been the case at Davis. The experiment will be continued in the hope of securing more information on the subject.

For Sproutless Potatoes

It has recently been found that if apples are stored in the same room with potatoes, that the potatoes will be kept from sprouting. Evidently there is something in the apples that makes potatoes keep better. The winter varieties of apples such as Winesap, Black Twig or Ben Davis can be kept until spring, providing the apples were in good condition when picked. If the supply is not too large, wrapping in paper will help preserve the apples.

Silver Dollar of 1804 is Rarest of American Coins

The 1804 silver dollar is the rarest of all American coins. There were some 20,000 of them minted, which seems to be a goodly number. But just why this coin is so rare is told by George G. Evans in his "Illustrated History of the United States Mint": "The scarcity of this dollar was owing to the sinking of a Chinabound vessel having on board almost the entire mintage of 1804 dollars in lieu of Spanish milled dollars. In those days American dollars were being carried to China to compete with the Spanish dollars which circulated in that country."

The history asserts that there are not more than seven or eight genuine 1804 dollars extant, and the coin has become known as "the king of American rarities." The originals are from but one obverse and one reverse die. A draped bust of Liberty faces right, the head bound with a fillet, the hair flowing. There are six stars before and seven behind the bust, and above it the word "Liberty." On the reverse is a heraldic eagle bearing on his breast a broad shield, in his beak a scroll with the words "E Pluribus Unum." In his right talon twelve arrows, and in his left an olive branch. There is an arc of clouds extending between the tips of his outstretched wings, and below this thirteen stars. This side is inscribed United States of America. The edge of the coin is lettered "one hundred cents one dollar or unit."

The best copy of this coin is in the cabinet of the United States mint. A few restrikes were made in 1858 and between 1890 and 1899. Many of these were destroyed, and dies were also, in 1899. The restrikes are also very valuable.

Asserts Ideal Bridegroom Is Man of Love Affairs

The ideal bridegroom is a man who has accumulated—and discarded—five or six love affairs, Prof. Erdman Harris of the Union Theological Seminary of New York declared.

Addressing a conference on the "ideal husband," participated in by 50 men and women students of eastern colleges, Professor Harris said:

"In studying the masculine side of marriage, I have considered 200 cases. I find that if a man can't fall in love without apologizing to his mother for it, he is not a good marriage risk.

"A man who has had sisters is a good marriage risk.

"The best marriage-risk is the man who has had at least a mild love affair. If he has had five or six affairs, it is better.

"It is necessary that the man have some knowledge of sex, too.

"A man who is easy to room with; easy to play with, is a better risk than one who isn't."

Gasoline Vapor

One gallon of gasoline at 60 degrees F. is said to average 615 pounds in weight. According to Mechanical Engineer's Handbook, one pound of gasoline vapor at 62 degrees F. and at atmospheric pressure has a volume of 4.2 cubic feet. At this rate, a gallon of gasoline would produce about 25.8 cubic feet of vapor. The gas ignited in an automobile cylinder is of course a mixture of gasoline with a very large amount of air. It has been stated that if one gallon of gasoline be completely changed to vapor, it will render the air in a room 21 by 10 by 10 feet explosive; or a quart for a room 8 by 8 by 8 feet. One authority has estimated that automobile engines are able to utilize less than 5 per cent of the tremendous energy stored up in gasoline, the other 95 per cent being either thrown away entirely or used up in friction.

Birth of American Navy

The American navy came into existence in 1775 after the close investment of Boston by Washington had cut off all supplies to the British troops, save such as might arrive by water. To intercept these, some small vessels were armed and manned by New England seamen, first under the auspices of Rhode Island and Connecticut, and afterward by authority of the congress which organized a naval committee with John Adams at its head. These little craft not only deprived the enemy of succor, but captured enough prizes to furnish the Colonial army with war material, without which it could not have continued hostilities.

Wealth Measured by Reindeer Herd

The wealth of the Laplander is measured by the number of reindeer he possesses. These animals yield to their owners milk, meat and leather which is used for making boots, clothing, tents and boats, and the sinews of the reindeer are used as rope. As a pack animal the reindeer has at least one advantage over the use of dogs; the reindeer finds its food where it rests, but the driver of a dog team must take food for his dogs along with him.

Land-Grabbing

Washington, D. C., was created from a swamp when a group of men which included Jefferson and Washington sold off city lots covered with woods and corn fields; Patrick Henry had a hand in the Georgia land frauds; Benjamin Franklin took a flier in real estate and lost; Robert Morris made paper profits by the millions and ended in a debtors' prison—all this in the history of land-grabbing.

Farm Teaching in School Is Favored

Authority Says Education Is for Good of Masses.

From New York State College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

Dr. R. M. Steward of Cornell university deplored the trend toward book teaching and defended the old principle of "learning to do by doing," in addressing the agricultural section of the American vocational association.

"I cannot become enthusiastic about such a school problem as pruning an apple tree without having an apple tree. To make the problem difficult, vague, and indefinite adds no merit to teaching; the boy may learn about pruning without having an apple tree to prune, but only with extra effort. Real situations have more influence and beget a better type of thinking," he says.

He upholds the teaching of vocational agriculture, or special training, although he agrees that education should be designed for the good of the masses and not for individuals to "out-strip" their neighbors. However, until society takes a much different attitude on training lawyers, physicians, dentists, and other individual "out-strippers," agriculture is not yet doing violence to that principle. A high school course in agriculture, properly organized, provides the best means of a general education possible for many rural communities. Agricultural training may be called special, but the group of agricultural vocations touch life at every point and lend themselves better to human and social influences than any similarly related group of vocations.

Vocational education has no quarrel with general education; each has too much to offer the other and the sixteen years' experience of vocational training has contributed much to the general education field, he says.

"If we begin with the general, as we probably do, it remains barren and futile until vitalized by special experiences. If we begin with the special, as we probably do not, we shall soon discover that the principles from which fundamental values of life arise, are the same principles that other types of special education come to recognize. It is then the business of vocational education to check periodically its fundamental purposes, points of view, methods, and results with general education, of which it is an integral part, to find the common bases of mutual help."

Illinois Fruit Growers Thinning Out Orchards

Intent upon reducing wastes and losses and producing more economically, 25 southern Illinois fruit growers thinned 11,500 trees from their orchards the past year, according to reports collected by R. S. Marsh, horticultural extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. These same growers have almost 2,900 more trees labeled for removal during the coming year.

Growers throughout the state are taking up the tree thinning and culling campaign which the extension service of the agricultural college is conducting.

Thinning out crowded trees, even in well cared for orchards, is held to be particularly essential at this time if growers are to wage a successful fight against the growing menace of insects and diseases and thereby reduce wastes and losses and keep down production costs. Even more important is the culling out of more than 900,000 apple trees in neglected orchards.

Best Handling of Manure

If manure is left in the stall or feed yards where it will be kept moist and thoroughly tramped, so as to exclude air, there is no better method of storing. Some of the liquid manure may be lost when earth floors are used and it may be economical to provide concrete floors to prevent this loss. This method of handling manure is advisable mainly where well-bedded stalls are provided for horses, and in cattle sheds or mule barns where the animals run loose and the tramping is very thorough.

It is best to have a system of cropping so that a place to scatter manure will be available during most of the year. This will avoid the necessity for storing any great amount of it about the farm. Thus, in a rotation of corn, oats, wheat, and clover, the manure would usually be applied to the clover sod and plowed under for corn.—Missouri Farmer.

Ohio Ton Litter Club

Nine 4-H club youngsters have become members of the Ohio Ton Litter club. Each litter of pigs raised by six of the nine boys attained a weight of 2,300 pounds within 180 days from the time of farrowing. The best record was made by a young man who fed a litter of 12 Poland Chinas to a weight of 2,818 pounds.

Agricultural Shorts

Prospects of big crops at higher prices are brightening business in Argentina.

A total of 26,283 women and girls are enrolled in 1,395 farm demonstration clubs in Tennessee.

One thousand farmers of Mitchell County, Georgia, have expressed a willingness to sign an agreement not to sell their products below cost of production.

Priceless Peas

IN soups, with fish, with meats, with fowl, alone and mixed with other vegetables, and in salads and soufflés, canned peas form a priceless ingredient of every meal. They are gathered in full freshness and rushed to the canneries so fast that the taste has no time to escape; and that is the reason why they are so delicious when served in such recipes as:

Cream of Carrot and Pea Soup: Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and three cups of milk. Add the contents of an 11-ounce can of peas pressed through a sieve (reserving a few for garnishing) and the pea liquor. Add one-fourth cup boiled, sieved carrot pulp, and season to taste. Add the whole peas you have reserved for garnishing. Heat. Serves six.

Sautéed Salmon Slices with Creamed Peas: Add one-half teaspoon salt to one and one-half cups boiling water, add one-half cup cornmeal, and cook until thick. Add half the contents of a tall can of salmon, salt and pepper to taste, and a few drops of lemon juice. Pack into a greased loaf pan and let chill. Cut in slices, dip in fine crumbs, and sauté in fat until a nice brown. Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour and one and one-half cups, diluted evaporated milk, season to taste, and add the peas from an 8-ounce can. Serve with this sauce poured over the slices. Serves four."

COMMISSIONER PROCEEDINGS

ing a school tax of $4.10; that he was not a resident of School Dist. No. 81 but a resident of School Dist. No. 23, and that the school tax for School Dist. No. 23 based on $8725.00 would amount to $13.95, and on $1520.00 would amount to $2.43. He now asks that the difference in tax between the two school districts be refunded to him.

On motion the county treasurer is ordered to refund the sum of $9.60 on a $8725.00 valuation and the sum of $1.67 on a $1520.00 valuation, and distribute the balance of the tax.

Comes now E. F. Winter, local agent, and Geo. B. Sedgwick, Secretary of the American Alliance Fire Insurance Co. and make affidavits, stating that such company was assessed with a valuation of $2990.00, tax amounting to $1.48 in Hoskins village. E. F. Winter, local agent, further states that he wrote insurance in the amount of $208.44, but through error reported to the precinct assessor premiums in the amount of $299.02. He states that the sum of $299.02 was incorrectly filed in the county clerk's office in the amount of $2990.00; that on February 14, 1933, Clive E. Kecklenively paid under protest as evidenced by receipt No. 202 the tax of $1.48 which is the tax on $2990.00. Such company, through E. F. Winter, local agent, and Geo. B. Sedgwick, Secretary, asks that tax be levied on the sum of $208.44, which amounts to $5.72, and that the difference in tax be refunded.

On motion the county treasurer is hereby ordered to refund the sum of $75.64 and distribute the balance of such tax.

The following claims are on motion audited and allowed and warrants ordered drawn on the respective funds as herein shown. Warrants to be available and ready for delivery on Saturday, March 4, 1933.
