'King Kong' Gets Away from Show

King Kong walked away. At least, that's the only explanation Phil March, manager of the Gay theater, can offer for the disappearance of a giant ape cut-out on display in his lobby until yesterday morning.

"Or maybe King Kong didn't walk away," Mr. March said yesterday. "As a matter of fact, I think somebody stole him—although I can't see how such a thing could happen."

Mr. March assured The Democrat that the ape cutout had really been stolen. "This is not," he said, "a publicity gag for that excellent moving picture, 'King Kong,' which is to appear at the Gay for three days starting Sunday."

So if you see anybody carrying around a giant ape, let Mr. March know about it.

The Inquiring Reporter

THIS WEEK'S QUESTION

Do you think, in the event of the state's passage of the beer bill, Wayne should legalize the sale of beer?

Farmer: Yes. If Wayne doesn't legalize it, Wayne will lose an awful lot of trade.

Merchant: Yes. From what I have been able to learn, the 3.2 beer is really non-intoxicating. Its sale would stimulate business for those who would sell it and would keep trade from going elsewhere.

Restaurant man: I know that it would ruin my business for the rest of the state to have beer and for Wayne not to have it.

Housewife: If the rest of the state has it, Wayne might just as well follow suit. Not to have it would just mean a continuation of present problems.

Here's the Dope!

Tremendous technical resources were employed in producing "King Kong," the picture which upholds the cinema's boast that there is nothing the mind of man can imagine which films cannot reproduce.

"King Kong," more than two years in the making, fantastically juxtaposes prehistoric monsters and modern man in a New York City setting—alone against the other in an epic struggle for supremacy. From a purely technical point of view, the film is the most difficult translation of an idea into a motion picture structure yet attempted.

The production shows prehistoric monsters fighting each other and recreates the sounds they must have made while living.

A giant ape, 60 feet in height, is seen hurling automobiles at steel buildings and making his last stand against civilization atop the tower of the tallest edifice on Fifth Avenue in New York.

There's this giant anthropoid, "King Kong," with a fragile young woman in his paw, none other than the Hollywood screen star Fay Wray, fights a squadron of army pursuit planes remorselessly pumping bullets into its body. In a futile but magnificent gesture, it plucks a plane out of the air and hurls it into the streets far below.

The process for making "King Kong" required the ultimate in precision craftsmanship. Never more than a total of 20 feet of film could be photographed in the best ten-hour day, so laborious was the task. The chief problem involved was how to place the monstrous ape in association with human beings and animate them all against the moving background of a bustling city. Fay Wray, Robert Armstrong and Bruce Cabot are featured in this production that has been getting reams of publicity.

The story of "Zoo in Budapest" zoologically has about a continental zoological park, where animals are kept in as nearly a natural state as possible. With this atmosphere established, the plot reveals a romance between a young man who has always identified the park as his home, and a girl who visits the park as one of a group of students from a state orphanage. The love between these two youngsters is an ingenious one, taking its tone from the examples of rugged nature around them. But back of it and constantly establishing its rhythms is the primitive surge of the wild animals who inhabit the park. Critics have said that "Zoo in Budapest" is an excellent psychological study and that it possesses high entertainment value.

Now You Know Where "Red Dust" Came From

"Where did that red dust come from?" was the common question in Wayne Sunday morning, because of a heavy layer of brick-red dust which covered the town.

Explanation of the dust given by the weather bureau is that it came from the Red river valley plains between Oklahoma and Texas and was carried north by the strong winds which accompanied rain and hail storms Saturday afternoon. The dust, it is explained, sifted quietly to the ground in Nebraska.

Reports of numerous dust and sand storms in Kansas and Oklahoma were prevalent Saturday evening and were later authenticated. So thick was the dust that lights were turned on at noon in many Oklahoma and Kansas cities. The storms were only additional dust storms in a series which have prevailed with only brief interruptions since January over drought stricken plains in Oklahoma and Kansas. They are attributed to drought which has existed for 10 months in some western areas.

EDGAR LEADS REVOLT Edgar Howard, congressman from this district, wants to have nothing to do with anything that smacks of Andy Mellon or "Mellonite rule," as was evidenced in Washington last week.

As a result of this caucus, Democratic leaders of the House beat a most undignified retreat and abandoned their demand for emasculation of the discharge rule.

The insurgents made it clear they were not fighting the Roosevelt administration. They declared that they wished to help the administration by curbing the arrogance of leaders who seemed intent on returning to the "Mellonite rule" which prevailed when "Uncle Andy" Mellon was seeking to out the taxes of the rich and which made the ordinary member of the House little more than a rubber stamp.

Here's a little trick with which you can mystify your friends. It doesn't call for any sleight of hand. The effect is as follows. You are holding a deck of cards. You ask your subject to name a color, which he does. Then you ask him to select any odd number from 1 to 10 which he does. You then proceed to show that you have known in advance what he was going to say.

On the bottom of the deck you have a red 7. On the top of the deck is a red 9. Turned over, reversed, in the center of the deck is a red 5. And in your pocket you have placed, a red 3.

Eighth Grade Students Give Funny Answers in Exams

Once upon a time a smart publisher got the idea of publishing an annual book of "Boners," and made a good deal of money thereby. The "Boners" were compiled from school examination papers and gained their humor largely from the fact that they were originally intended to be serious.

County Superintendent Pearl E. Sewell had the same idea long before the smart publisher got it. She derived a good many hearty laughs from some of the answers by young hopefuls in eighth grade county examinations. Instead of capitalizing on her humorous find, however, she decided to release the humorous answers every year to a too-solemn world.

U. S. Farm Exports Boosted by Cotton

Volume of Products Leaving Country Is 120 Per Cent. Pre-War Record.

The index of the volume of exports of American farm products in November was 120 per cent of pre-war, reports the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture. Cotton exports continued to bolster the exports index, since if this commodity is omitted the index of exports would be only 85 per cent of pre-war.

The index of all farm products exported in November, 1931, was 137 per cent of pre-war, and with cotton omitted the index was 114 per cent of pre-war. A smaller volume of nearly all agricultural products was exported in November, 1932, than in the preceding month when the index of exports was 123 per cent of pre-war.

Fruit exports in November were in volume 423 per cent of pre-war, cotton 147 per cent and unmanufactured to 144 per cent of pre-war. All other commodities were exported in smaller volume than pre-war, viz: Grains and products, 73 per cent; animal products, 63 per cent; dairy products and eggs, 68 per cent; wheat and flour, 97 per cent; hams and bacon, 27 per cent; and lard, 91 per cent.

Cotton exports for the five months ended November 30, 1932, totaled 3,873,000 bales compared with 3,287,000 bales for the corresponding period of 1931. Total exports of wheat and flour in the five months ended November 30, last, were 25,087,000 bushels, which was a decrease of 64 per cent from exports for the corresponding period in 1931. Although exports of unmanufactured leaf tobacco were 144 per cent of pre-war in November, the bureau says that the volume exported in that month was smaller than in any corresponding month since 1924.

World Wheat Bins Groan; Shipments May Be Larger

The world wheat market is burdened by heavy stocks which are largely the result of restricted demand in importing countries, says the bureau of agricultural economics, United States Department of Agriculture, in its report on world wheat prospects.

Shipments of wheat and flour from July through mid-December, from the principal exporting countries, have totaled 281,000,000 bushels as compared with 355,000,000 bushels in the corresponding period last season.

This low level of shipments, the bureau continues, has left the principal exporting countries with somewhat larger stocks of wheat as of December 1, 1932, than on December 1, 1931. Total stocks available for export and carry-over from the old crop in the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina are estimated to have been about 745,000,000 bushels. December 1 compared with 705,000,000 bushels on December 1 last year. Also, the new crop of both Argentina and Australia is estimated to be somewhat larger than last year.

World shipments, it is expected, will be larger during the second half of the crop year because supplies of wheat from the large European crops in 1932 are being reduced, and although some countries have such large crops as to make it unlikely that they will import significant quantities, other countries, says the bureau, will have to depend more largely upon supplies of foreign wheat.—Missouri Farmer.

Apples, Red Ripe to Core

You have no doubt heard the watermelon peddler yelling his wares. "Watermelon, red ripe to the rind." But did you ever hear of an apple, or see one, red ripe all the way to the core? After 12 years of experimenting in his back yard, F. H. Shoemaker of Minnesota, who resides at Red Wing, has produced such an apple. It is a russet apple with red pulp. The amateur Burbank produced his red apple by crossing several species. Horticulturists of the state agriculture college are planning to make further experiments with it in an effort to improve its quality.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Can Destroy Moths Now

The winter months offer apple growers an opportunity to strike a blow at their worst insect pest, says Leonard Haseman, chairman of the entomology department of the Missouri College of Agriculture, in discussing the ravages of the codling moth or apple worm. Much can be done to combat this pest right now by going through the orchard and removing all tree bands, scraping the scaly bark from all bearing trees, and collecting and destroying the bark scales and the worms found in their winter cocoons under the bark.

Pig Crop Larger

The 1932 fall pig crop in Indiana was 21 per cent larger than in the fall of 1931, according to Purdue university. Practically all of the increase was due to a larger number of pigs saved per litter. For the corn belt, the increase was slightly less than 4 per cent, but when considering both the spring and fall pig crops throughout the country, the farrowing in 1932 was about 4 per cent less than in 1931, according to the agricultural statistics.—Indiana Farmer.

Farm Income of $603 for Buckeye Farmers

Record-Keepers Find Dairy-ing Brought Most Cash.

From Ohio State University Agricultural College Extension Service.—WNU Service. About 1,300 Ohio farmers who keep records of their business made an average farm income of $603 in 1931, according to rural economists for the agricultural extension service.

These farmers, the economists say, lived in about 75 Ohio counties and co-operated with the college of agriculture in keeping their accounts and in having them summarized at a series of 124 meetings held throughout the state especially for that purpose.

The average size of the farms was 143 acres. The sources of cash income were distributed as follows: dairy products, $718; hogs, $440; poultry, $355; sheep, $93; cattle, steers, $77; crops, $418; and all other sources were responsible for $213. The total cash receipts amounted to $2,314 for the average farmer keeping accounts.

The sources of cash expenses were: feed, $284; taxes, $218; labor, $152; fertilizer, $38; and all other items, $557.

Information gained from the farm account records, according to the economists, are presented in various ways to groups of farmers, county agricultural agents, and groups of vocational agricultural teachers. In this way the data are used in helping hundreds of individual farmers who do not keep records of their businesses.

Tropical Insecticide Is Found in American Weed

The devil's shoestring, a common weed in the eastern half of the United States, contains rotenone, a valuable insecticide formerly found only in tropical plants, a United States Department of Agriculture chemist has found.

The discovery is significant for farmers, both as potential growers of the plant and as users of the insecticide; to insecticide manufacturers; and to importers who carry on the international trade in rotenone and other insecticides.

Dr. W. W. Skinner, assistant chief of the chemical and technological research unit of the bureau of chemistry and soils, first called attention to the probable insecticidal value of devil's shoestring following his observation that bees and other insects fed on nearby plants but avoided the blooms of this toxic weed. Doctor Skinner later investigated the research which led to the recent discovery of this weed's rotenone content by Dr. E. P. Clark of the bureau's insecticide division. Although the insecticidal value of devil's shoestring was demonstrated about two years ago by Prof. V. A. Little of the Texas Agricultural college, who found it effective against various species of insects, its value as a source of rotenone was not known until proved by the department's research.

Lumber From Cornstalks

Scientists at Iowa State college have perfected a process for making synthetic lumber from cornstalks. They declare every kind of lumber can be manufactured from this farm waste in sizes that even great trees cannot furnish.

The making of "wood" from cornstalks is not a recent discovery. Dr. O. R. Sweeney, of the Tall Corn State institution, has been working on the problem of utilizing the state's large farm waste for some time. He has succeeded in producing "lumber," not only from cornstalks, but oat hulls, sugar cane, straw and common weeds as well.

To make his synthetic "wood" Doctor Sweeney cooks cornstalks under pressure in steam until they are boiled up into fibers not more than two to three-hundredths of an inch long. This pulpy, pasty mass is then allowed to harden in forms. The more cooking the harder the resulting "lumber" will be.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Many Join Farm Group

Albany county leads the New York state county farm bureaus with 1233 members for 1932, 16 fewer members than in 1932, and reports an appropriation from the county supervisors equal to the 1932 amount.

According to E. A. Flansburgh, state county agent leader, 14 of the county farm bureaus reported 500 or more members up to the close of 1932, and 33 county boards of supervisors had made appropriations for 1933, to provide for the educational work in these counties in co-operation with the state college of agriculture.

The leading counties in membership are: Albany, 1,233, Dutchess 876, Wayne 810, Otsego 707, Monroe 688, Delaware 655, Montgomery 640, and Niagara 630. The total membership of 36 bureaus reporting is 19,242, he says.

Agricultural Slants

The value of all cows in Tennessee was $17,000,000 in 1930.

About a million farms in the United States now have electricity.

Vitamin C in apples lies under the skin. This is the vitamin that prevents scurvy.

The sheep crop of the Philippines last year was 26 per cent greater than that of the year before.

Steam Propeller Emigrant

Made Trial Trip in 1843

On June 3, 1843, Clevelanders had completed and made ready for her trial trip the steam propeller Emigrant. The town was justly proud of this ship and was now on equal terms with Buffalo. This city had built and was operating a steam propeller, Hercules. On the day of the trial trip one thing after another came up until it was 10 p. m. before the boat waddled out of the harbor. The craft was 120 feet overall and 25 feet abeam. On the trial trip everything worked to the satisfaction of the builders and owners and the ship developed a speed of eight miles per hour. It was thought that with a few adjustments and a little forcing that nine miles per hour could be coaxed out of the craft. On the 6th of June, loaded with flour and passengers, the Emigrant with sails furled slipped out of the harbor and started for Buffalo. A press notice copied from the Buffalo Gazette is as follows: "The propeller Emigrant, Capt. Abner Stone, arrived in our harbor yesterday (June 9) from Cleveland. This is her first trip. Friend Harris, we have been on board your propeller and find her as neat and trim a craft as we ever laid our eyes upon, with fixings to match. On the return trip Captain Stone and Captain Floyd (of the Hercules) may sail in company."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Noonday Sunlight 465,000 Times Stronger Than Moon

The noonday sun on a clear day gives 465,000 times as much light as the full moon at its zenith. It provides the earth with nearly 120,000,000 times more light than all the stars in the sky on a clear night.

These calculations of relative illumination are presented in the meteorological tables of the Smithsonian Institution.

The table for relative illumination intensities, prepared by the weather bureau, takes for its unit measure the foot candle—the amount of illumination received from a standard candle a foot away. The noonday sun, it is calculated, has an intensity of 9,600-foot candles at the surface of the earth. At sunset, this falls to only 33-foot candles.

The illumination from the full moon at its zenith is only two-hundredths of a foot candle, but this, in turn, is ten times as much light as comes from the quarter moon. Starlight amounts to only eight hundred-thousandths of a foot candle.—Taylor-Tycoos, Rochester.

Residence of Presidents

There is nothing in the Constitution to prevent men who are residents of the same state holding the offices of President and Vice President of the United States. The Twelfth Amendment to the Constitution reads in part: "The electors shall meet in their respective states and vote by ballot for President and Vice President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves." No party has ever nominated candidates for these two offices from the same state. Obviously it would be unwise to do so because the electors from that state could vote for both candidates.

When Drama Came

The earliest European drama is the Greek, which, growing up in connection with the festival of Dionysus, culminated in Attica, where the festival came to be celebrated by the performance of a tetralogy, consisting of one comedy and a trilogy of serious plays or tragedies celebrating a connected series of mythic episodes. In Medieval Europe of mystery, miracle and morality plays, acted in connection with the church festivals preceded the appearance during the Renaissance of the modern drama which has developed besides tragedy and comedy, tragedy-comedy, melodrama, opera, burlesque, farce, etc.

Cannon Recall 1807

Two muzzle-loading cannon with the words "Woolwich Arsenal" on them, together with the date 1801, found in the Riochuelo river, near Buenos Aires, are made of brass and are in a comparatively good state of preservation. They are believed to have been spiked and thrown into the river by the British forces when they were dislodged from their entrenchments during the second British invasion of the River Platte, in 1807. They were placed in the National History museum, in Buenos Aires.

Hum of Telephone Wires

Humming of telephone and telegraph wires is caused by the wind. The wire has a natural frequency of vibration the same as a piano string and the wind sets it to vibrating. The fundamental frequency is too low to be heard, but some of the harmonies are audible. The fundamental is given by the wire vibrating as a whole, the harmonies by the vibrating in sections; many of these are ordinarily set up at the same time.

Yellow

Yellow has always been the sun color, and since it is the sun which starts all things into activity, it stands also for human activities. It has always been so and even today, by its appearance warns the traveler by road or rail, that if he is to take advantage of life and green growth, he must act once he is up and going or doing.

Grasshopper Area Sees Less Trouble

Only One State Reports Increase in Number of Eggs in Ground.

The prospects for damage from grasshoppers over the infested area as a whole are much less alarming than they were a year ago, according to the results of the 1932 survey of grasshopper conditions reported by the bureau of entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture. Only North Dakota shows an increase in the number of eggs in the ground over the number deposited in the fall of 1931. If the weather this spring and early summer happens to be favorable for grasshopper growth, however, more than five and one-half million acres in eight western states may need applications of poison bran to save cereal and forage crops from wholesale destruction by the hoppers.

Detailed surveys in co-operation with state entomologists of the areas where the 1932 grasshoppers laid their eggs show that a big hatch may be expected in six counties in Colorado, 10 in Idaho, 65 in Minnesota, 23 in Montana, 42 in Nebraska, 50 in North Dakota, 48 in South Dakota, and four in Wyoming. The number of acres in these states that may need poisoning ranges from 30,000, with an estimated cost of $3,750 for material, in Colorado, to 8,084,736, with an estimated cost of $885,450 for material, in North Dakota.

Grasshoppers gained a firm foothold in the hay and grain fields of the West in 1930 and 1931, when the hot, dry weather provided conditions ideal for the hoppers and unfavorable for the disease and parasites that serve as a natural control of this pest. The infestation expected in 1932 from the millions of eggs laid in 1931 failed to reach serious proportions over much of the area threatened because the weather early in the season was cold and damp. Where the weather favored grasshopper growth many farmers—assisted by states or counties—took advantage of the warnings broadcast by entomologists and spread the recommended poison bait over their fields in time to destroy the young hoppers.

New Wool Test Is Good Guide for Sheep Breeders

By the application of a simple method, coupled with the assistance of dry-cleaning establishments, sheep breeders may determine, from a small sample, the clean-wool yield and density of the fleeces of their sheep.

This is the judgment of Dr. John I. Hardy of the United States Department of Agriculture, fiber technologist of the bureau of animal-industry, who has been seeking to develop a rapid and inexpensive test for the density of fleece and for clean wool yield.

The procedure consists in shearing, with clippers, a swath of wool 1 inch wide and 4 inches long from the side of the sheep, weighing the sample, dry-cleaning it by the ordinary dry-cleaning process, and weighing it again. From the difference between the two weights, the percentage of yield of clean, dry wool can be computed for the sample. This percentage, when applied to the weight of the fleece, shows approximately how much clean wool the fleece will yield. This information is of practical value in selecting breeding animals. The wool sample is taken from a measured area of skin and furnishes the basis for calculating the weight of clean, dry wool per square inch of skin surface as an expression of the density of the fleece.

When to Fertilize Grapes

Fertilizers, particularly nitrogenous fertilizers, increased the yield, stimulated wood growth, and improved the quality of the fruit in a 10-year test with grapes made by Prof. F. E. Gladwin, horticulturist in charge of the Vineyard laboratory maintained at Fredonia, N. Y., by the state experiment station. Comparisons were made of complete fertilizers and of various combinations of nitrogen, potassium and phosphorus. Wherever fertilizers were used marked benefits were observed, although nitrogen proved the most helpful of the three elements.

Farm Population Gaining

Estimates by the United States bureau of agricultural economics indicate that the farm population of the country will be 32,000,000 by the end of this year. The net gain in farm population in 1930 and 1931, plus the gains that are believed probable last year, will more than offset the decrease of approximately 1,500,000 people in the farm population from the years 1920 to 1930. Farm population reached its peak in 1910, when the figure given by the census bureau was 32,077,000.

To Control Insect Spread

Simple changes in routine farm operations to deprive insects of food or shelter at critical periods in their life cycle offer a valuable control method, according to United States entomologists. Timely forecasts of the probable performance of many insects, based on the results of entomological studies, now make it easy to outmove these pests by advancing or delaying seedling or harvesting by thoroughly cleaning up a threatened area or by changing crop rotations.

Meaning of Soviet Given by Webster's Dictionary

The following information is given in Webster's New International Dictionary: "Soviet: A council, specifically, either one of two governing bodies (Village Soviets, town Soviets) in the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, established as a result of the Russian revolution of 1917 and by the constitution of the republic of July, 1918, and later by the constitution of the union, July, 1922. These Soviets are the primary organs of a government based on the principle of communism, seeking to give the powers to the government based on the principle of communism; seeking to give the powers to the working classes. They are the supreme local authorities; consist of representatives, chosen annually, of workmen (elected by shops, organizations, etc.), soldiers and peasants; and send deputies to the higher Soviet congresses; volosts (rural districts), uyezds (county), guberniyas (provincial), oblasts (regions), and the congresses of the constituent republics. All these Soviet congresses meet annually. The highest governmental body of all is the Union Soviet congress, composed of representatives of town Soviets and of representatives of the provincial Soviet congresses. This congress elects the union central executive committee.

State of Liechtenstein Made Principality in 1719

The minute European state of Liechtenstein was constituted a sovereign principality in 1719 by Emperor Carl IV of Austria. It contains two districts, Schellenberg and Vaduz, and its geographical area of about 65 square miles would amount to 100 or more if it could only be fastened out. The country lies east across the Rhine from Switzerland and stretches along the upper course of that famous river for above twelve miles, beginning some fifteen miles above Lake Constance, Vaduz, the capital, and Schaan, the only railroad station, together with the villages of Balzers, Bendern, and Ruggell, etc., house the major part of the ten thousand inhabitants.

From 1815 to 1866 it was a part of the German Confederation, but at the close of the Austro-Prussian war it again became independent. Up to the end of the World war its postal affairs were entrusted to Austria, and at first ordinary Austrian stamps were used.

Leap Year Intervals

Our present (Gregorian) calendar provides for 97 leap years in every 400 years, not a leap year every fourth year. The last year of a century, such as 1800, 1900, 2000, and 2100, is not a leap year even though it is divisible by four without remainder, unless it is also divisible by 400 without remainder. Thus 1900 was not a leap year, while 2000 will be a leap year. The length of the solar year, or the time taken for the earth to make a complete revolution around the sun, has been found to be 365.24224 days. If there were 100 leapyears in every 400 years, that is, a leap year every fourth year, the average length of the year would be 365.25 days, an error of .00776 days. Under our present system of 97 leap years every 400 years, the average length of the year becomes 365.24224 days, an error of only .00024 days. This error will take about 6,540 years to amount to one day.

Fish and Earthquake

Fish were biting well for a party of New Plymouth fishermen in a launch in a choppy sea off Monkah. Three, four and five fish at a time were being hauled in on lines with numerous hooks. Suddenly the biting ceased. After vainly fishing for some time the fishermen returned to New Plymouth, to discover that an earthquake and the cessation of biting had coincided in time. They were not aware of the earthquake until they went ashore. The origin of the earthquake is said to have been under the sea.—Montreal Herald.

Coinage of Gold

According to the superintendent of the Philadelphia mint, there is no coinage charge imposed by this government for coinage of gold. Gold coins of standard weight contain gold equal to their face value. There is no seigniorage on gold coinage. For instance, an eagle of standard weight weighs 258 grains and contains 232.2 grains of pure gold. The difference between the weight of coin and weight of the fine gold content is the copper alloy.

Paste Jewels

Although imitation jewels have been made for many centuries, the manufacture of paste jewels has been stimulated enormously in modern times. A special kind of glass, known as "strass" is used, which is made by fusing white sand, red lead, borax and several other elements. When colored gems are desired pieces are crushed into a fine powder and coloring substances added, and the mixture is then fused and annealed.

Desert Animals

Animals found in desert areas are almost always closely related to forms of fauna found in green, fertile lands outside these areas. This is thought by some authorities to indicate that the desert dwellers are outcasts of species living in more favorable environments and that they have adapted themselves to desert life as a matter of necessity rather than from choice.
