the memory of those hardy pioneers, who like to tell about the days "when it really got hot."

The old-timers had seen the thermometer jump past the 100 mark upon four different days since the first of June, On Saturday they had seen thermometers register as high as 100 and 110 degrees L. Monnois J. Monnois thermometers register as high as 109 and 110 degrees. J. S. Horney's recording thermometer, which probably is accurate, registered 103 for the high point, which keeps this from being as "hot" a story as it might otherwise be..but the thermometer in front of Mabbott's barber shop which has functioned for years succumbed to the rays of a blistering sun, hit 120 and broke. And that is a good enough hot weather story for anybody.

Showers amounting to about .04 inch brought welcome relief Sunday. Monday, too, was cool and Tuesday was still coolen, with a minimum temperature of 42 registered.

On Wednesday, the thermometer flirted around the 90 mark again and the weather man predicted "fair to probably cloudy" for today.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price. Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference. The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy. But with the purchaser it is different -- he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

Volume Production

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and of economies we enjoy in volume production. maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also -cost to buy:

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a quality car.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as customer to buy. to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively,

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.
