Morgan, Simpson Marry Saturday

Former Associate Editor Weds Sioux City Man In Home Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Mary Jane Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Morgan, and Donald C. Simpson of Sioux City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Simpson of Goodwin, was solemnized Saturday morning at nine o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. F. C. Mills of the First Methodist Episcopal church read the marriage lines in the presence of 20 relatives and friends.

The ceremony was performed in the living room, where a pair of tall green baskets holding pink roses, blue delphinium and baby breath formed an effective setting. Pink tapers burned in seven-branch candelabra, which stood on white columns at either side. Bowls of pink sweet peas and blue bachelor buttons flanked a third seven-branch candelabrum in which pink tapers burned on the piano.

Jack Morgan, the bride's brother, lighted the candles. Mrs. Carrie Welch played Mendelssohn's wedding march as the wedding party took their places. Miss Rhea Schmedeskamp of Walthill and Willard Wiltse attended the couple.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of blue lace with a sash of pink chiffon velvet. The pink ornament which closed the high neck matched her bracelet. She carried a white linen and lace handkerchief which her mother had carried at her wedding. Her bouquet, which was tied with white ribbon, was of pink roses, blue delphinium and white sweet peas. Miss Schmedeskamp wore a three-piece dress of pink taffeta and lace. Short knife pleats formed the bottom of the skirt and her brief, circular cape had a gathered, standup collar. She carried a blue-tied bouquet of blue delphinium and pink roses. Mr. Simpson wore a gray suit.

Margie Morgan, sister of the bride, had charge of the guest book. She wore a blue organdy dress with pleated collar, cap sleeves and peplum, belted with coral ribbon.

Following the ceremony Mrs. Welch played "Liebestraum" by Liszt as the couple received congratulations. Three-course breakfast was served to the guests at four tables. A crystal basket of roses, forget-me-nots and baby breath on a mirror plateau formed the centerpiece at the bride's table, which was lit by blue tapers in a pair of three-branch candelabra. Small silver baskets of the flowers centered the smaller tables. Mrs. W. P. Canning, Mrs. A. T. Cavanaugh, Mrs. D. H. Cunningham and Mrs. Paul R. Mines served the meal.

The couple left after the breakfast for a week's trip to Detroit Lake, Minn. They will be at home after July 29 at 905 Twenty-seventh street in Sioux City, where Mr. Simpson is a partner in the Simpson Weatherstrip and Insulation company.

Mrs. Simpson was graduated from Wayne high school in 1931 and for three years attended the Wayne State Teachers college, where she joined Pi Beta chapter of Sigma Tau Delta, honorary English fraternity. For the past three and one-half years she has been a member of the staff of The Nebraska Democrat, first as society editor and for the past year as associate editor.

Mr. Simpson was graduated from high school in 1927 at Bonestell, S. D., and received his B. S. degree from Wayne State Teachers college in 1931.

Guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Simpson of Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Simpson of Sioux City, Mrs. Wiltse, Mrs. Mary Jane Strickland, Miss Nell Strickland, Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Welch and R. G. Fuelberth.

Hubert Stamm of Yutan visited with Robert Gulliver at the A. F. Gulliver home from Tuesday until Friday.

Berry Files For Fees; Hendrickson Remonstrates

Fred S. Berry, Wayne attorney, Tuesday filed a claim with Wayne county commissioners for legal fees amounting to $252.50 which he charged due him for the defense of Ronald Young, who was convicted and sentenced to prison on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Nancy Alford, Wayne State Teachers college coed in May, 1934.

C. H. Hendrickson, who claimed to have been retained as council for the defense, filed a remonstrance as a taxpayer, stating in his objection that the claim could not be considered a proper charge against the county inasmuch as Ronald Young already had two competent attorneys, H. E. Siman and C. H. Hendrickson.

According to court records, Ronald Young filed an affidavit of poverty and the court appointed Berry as his defense council at a fixed fee of $250. After a stormy discussion, Wayne county commissioners took the matter under advisement.

All Set For Big Races Next Week

FERA Labor Puts Track in Good Condition; Builds Paddocks

Preparations are nearly completed for the pari-mutuel races which will take place at the Wayne fair grounds on the evenings of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, July 16, 17 and 18.

Work is being done by FERA labor. The track has been dragged and disc harrowed, making a soft cushioned turf for the horses to run upon. This type of track is desirable according to horsemen and the Wayne track is said by racing officials to be one of the best in the state.

Paddocks have been built directly across the track from the grand stand, affording spectators the opportunity of inspecting all entries before placing bets. Betting booths are being installed in the north end of the underside of the grand stand.

Six windows are provided for parimutuel betting, three of which are paying windows and the other three will accommodate those who wish to place bets upon entries.

Temporary quarters for horses are being made by placing partitions in the horse, cattle and calf barns. Seventy entries can be accommodated in this manner and all others unable to find accommodations there will be placed in the livestock sales pavilion, south and east of the Ford garage, just off South Main street.

The Wayne Municipal band, which will furnish music for the races, will occupy the platform directly erected in the center front portion of the stand.

"All proceeds of the racing event over and above the actual expense of the races will go to the Wayne county fair association for helping to provide other improvements at the grounds.

Races will start promptly at 5 o'clock p. m. and will continue until about 8 p. m. Six races will be run daily and there will be a twenty minute interval between events for the purpose of those wishing to make bets.

One hundred horses will be here to take part in the races. Promise of favorable weather and a favorable time of day for the races cause of officials of the Wayne horse racing association to believe the meet will be well attended.

There were 220 bankers representing 37 states present at the school, Mr. Ley said. Ley was the only banker from Nebraska attending the school which was conducted from June 17 to 29 inclusive.

Prominent men on the faculty at the school included Dr. Eugene Agger, head of the Rutgers university economics department, Willard Atkins of New York university and George P. Borse, special assistant of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings. Mr. Ley said the graduate school of banking is something new and is in its experimental stage. He says its sponsors feel that the first session was a success.

Asked about feeling regarding business conditions in the east, Mr. Ley said the consensus was that conditions were improved but none of the bankers there were over optimistic.

Father Forgets

"Father Forgets" is one of those little pieces which—dashed off in a moment of sincere feeling—strikes an echoing chord in so many readers as to become a perennial reprint favorite. Since its first appearance, some 15 years ago, "Father Forgets" has been reproduced, the author writes, "in hundreds of magazines and house organs, and in newspapers the country over." It has been reprinted almost as extensively in many foreign languages. It has been 'on the air' on countless occasions and programs. Oddly enough college periodicals have used it, and high school magazines. Sometimes a little piece seems mysteriously to "click." This one certainly did. We are reprinting it for our many Democrat readers because we like this little article and think that you might also like it.

Listen, son: I am saying this as you lie asleep, one little paw crumpled under your cheek and the blond curls stickily wet on your damp forehead. I have stolen into your room alone. Just a few minutes ago, as I sat reading my paper in the library, a sniffling wave of remorse swept over me. Guiltily I came to your bedside.

These are the things I was thinking, son: I had been cross to you. I scolded you as you were dressing for school because you gave your face merely a dab with a towel. I took you to task for not cleaning your shoes. I called out angrily when you threw some of your things on the floor.

At breakfast I found fault, too. You spilled things. You gulped down your food. You put your elbows on the table. You spread butter too thick on your bread. And as you started off to play and I made for my train, you turned and waved a hand and called, "Good-bye, Daddy!" and I frowned, and said in reply, "Hold your shoulders back!"

Then it began all over again in the late afternoon. As I came up the road I spied you, down on your knees, playing marbles. There were holes in your stockings. I humiliated you before your boy friends by marching you ahead of me to the house. Stockings were expensive and if you had to buy them you would be more careful! Imagine that, son, from a father!

Do you remember, later, when I was reading in the library, how you came in, timidly, with a sort of hurt look in your eyes? When I glanced up over my paper, impatient at the interruption, you hesitated at the door. "What is it you want?" I snapped.

You said nothing, but ran across in one tempestuous plunge, and threw your arms around my neck and kissed me, and your small arms tightened with an affection that God had set blooming in your heart and which even neglect could not wither. And then you were gone, padding up the stairs.

Well, son, it was shortly afterwards that my paper slipped from my hands and a terrible sickening fear came over me. What has habit been doing to me? The habit of finding fault, or reprimanding—this was my reward to you for being a boy. It was not that I did not love you; it was that I expected too much of youth. It was measuring you by the yardstick of my own years.

And there was so much that was good and fine and true in your character. The little heart of you was as big as the dawn itself over the wide hills. This was shown by your spontaneous impulse to rush in and kiss me good night. Nothing else matters tonight, son. I have come to your bedside in the darkness, and I have knelt there, ashamed!

It is a feeble atonement; I know that you would not understand these things if I told you them during your waking hours. But tomorrow I will be a real daddy! I will chum with you, and suffer when you suffer, and laugh when you laugh. I will bite my tongue when impatient words come. I will keep saying as if it were a ritual: "He is nothing but a boy—a little boy!"

I am afraid that I have visualized you as a man. Yet as I see you now, son, crumpled and weary in your cot, I see that you are still a baby. Yesterday you were in your mother's arms, your head on her shoulder. I have asked too much, too much.—From Readers Digest, May, 1935.

Just to be sure you are getting a square deal at all times, you would profit by patronizing Wayne merchants. They handle good standard brands of merchandise. They are your neighbors and friends. It's a good bet that they will stand back of every transaction if they care for your business and we're quite sure they do.

* * * * *

And there are too many reckless drivers on our streets and highways. Too few persons driving motor cars understand that their machine can well become an implement of death as well as a machine of convenience and pleasure if not properly controlled. Transportation modes have gone a good way in the last twenty-five years. Motor cars can be easily operated. Few driving them can realize the speed at which they go. Few persons know the hazards they face every time they sit down behind the wheel. Old Dobbin was faithful. He possessed good horse sense. Left to his own devices he could usually bring his passengers home safe and sound even though they chose to sleep or overimbibe in conversation fluid. Motor cars possess the qualities which go toward making time over our highways. They offer traveling luxury but do not have good horse sense. The man or woman who drives an automobile must be onto his taps. Things happen quickly. We must always be careful.

The Bystander by Stan

Just as I was about to go to work after a most strenuous celebration, one of the strangest bits of so called humanity strolled into the type farm, flopped herself into a chair, hoisted her feet to the top of my desk and for all good purposes seemingly made herself at home.

"Aha," says I to myself. "A wise dame, probably somebody whose name we spelled wrong last week. Well, I'll just pretend I'm terribly absorbed in my work. Can't let any hostile looking dame put me on the spot. Not on your tinfoil."

"Well," I continued to myself, "whatever she's got on her mind, she'll have to come through with it herself. I'll be shot full of holes before I'll start anything with a gal like that."

Finally she speaks. Not such a bad voice, either, but she shows me that she knows where she's going. "Who are you?" she asks, just like that, "and what sort of a dog and pony show do you think you're putting on over there behind that desk? Tryin' to make yourself look busy aren't you, smart guy? Well, get a load of this. You're not so many and you're not fooling anyone either. Mary Jane gave me the low down on you a long time ago and what she said wouldn't make you feel so darn superior either."

For a moment I fumbled for a snappy retort. The retort refused to come and I just knew when it did that it wouldn't be snappy. Life is like that, especially at crucial moments when you want the worst way to go your best.

I'll be aloof thinks I. I'll give her a patronizing smile, bow and speak oh so courteous like and maybe make her ashamed of the manner in which she's abused me.

Just as I am about to pursue this method of countering her first blast against my stronghold, she says, "Come, come, now, you know who I am. Mary Jane has told you about me and I think you were in here one day when I came in eating potato chips."

Then it dawned on me that my visitor was none other than Barbara. Babbling along like a brooklet flowing over a bed of clean pebbles she assured me that even though she was in doubt as to my alleged ability as a "colum" conductor she'd do her best to pull the thing, meaning my attempt, out of the fire and keep the flames from lapping it down.

Well, it was something of a relief to have Barbara come along at this particular moment when I was trying my best to forget there had ever been a Declaration of Independence signed or a holiday to commemorate it. So we'll let Barbara expound a bit of her own so called philosophy in her own inimitable manner. Take it away Barbara.

"I didn't know whether I should keep on with this calamity column any longer, since Mary Jane has left us flat to dwell on the Sioux City river bottoms, where she will be Queen of the Quay (that one fools you—it hasn't much alliteration.) If she'd only devise some way to get across the river without giving "the man" about all the money you have, I might go over to see her quite often. I could come regularly, like the Seven Year Itch."

"Don't girls look funny just after they've had their hair waved and it hasn't been combed yet? Oh, wouldn't it be fun to muss it up? Another thing I always want to do is to trip pompous people. And I always stand witness watching window decorators—that is, until they discover me and make frantic gestures of dismissal until I slink off and leave them be."

"Our new roomer continues to leave his Libebuoy soap in the bath tub. After reading the soap people's accusing ads, I wonder. Maybe in his little way he is trying to tell us something. I will say that it is an awfully pretty shade of pink—matches my toothbrush!"

"We have two goldfish and a sardine in our pool. The little neighbor boy threw in the sardine. It is awfully dead, poor thing. I just love gold fish. They take life as it comes, never complaining. They don't say much, but they are such companionable little rascals. And smart, too. Huey (we call him that because he thinks he's the Kingfish—Louisiana papers please don't copy) actually stands on his tail and begs for food. If you don't want to believe that, you don't have to.

And thank you, Barbara. I hope you don't forget to call on me again next week even though you apparently think of my being one of those, "I don't know whats." I like your contributions and would like to have contributions from others who might take a moment to tarry over this bit of nonsense and decide to go crazy along with me.

And now they say that the Italo-Ethiopian controversy has been settled. Pshaw, we thought all the time that that little matter was all washed up a couple of weeks ago in Madison Square Garden by an Ethiopian named Lewis when he showed up the man mountain, Carnera. Going a bit further we might add that three famous Ethiopians made names for themselves in an A. A. U. track and field meet at Lincoln on July 3 and 4. Great folks, these Ethiopians.

Then there was the linotype operator down in Missouri who went to a fourth of July picnic empty handed just to make sure he wouldn't have to go crazy setting up that trite phrase, "all brought well filled baskets."

Well that will be all for the first blast from the bystander standing alone. Lousy as my attempt is, it's the best I could do and if you don't like it, write it yourselves. Don't forget, I'll be seeing you all at the races next week. Love and kisses, stan.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 16 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, July 11, 1935 Vol. IV

There was one thing the Supreme Court did not take away and that was the bill for the cost of the NRA experiment.

The fellows who sleep in the upper rooms of homes these hot nights are wishing the roofs and ceilings had been insulated. The cost of insulation is comparatively low.

It is always a pleasure to figure your bills. It is often your advantage to have us do this.

A rickety step ladder has caused many a broken leg. We offer a six foot step with shelf, safety grip, rodded under every step at $1.75.

A three legged pig has been born in Arkansas. This is evidently a compromise of some kind with the AAA.

New hay racks are in great demand again this year. We'll be glad to build them for anybody.

Urges Wayne Farmers To Take Care of Trees

Pointing out that this year has unquestionably been the most favorable year for starting trees since 1915, Earl G. Maxwell, extension forester at the college of agriculture, this week urged Wayne county farmers to give their trees a little extra care so survival may be high. Such care, he said, will pay big dividends in the future.

An unprecedented large number of Clarke-McNary trees were planted this spring and up until the present time the percentage of survival has been exceptionally high but with abundant moisture, weeds have grown rapidly and threaten to crowd out young trees. Moisture now in the ground should be conserved as the next few months may be rather dry.

Clean cultivation and conservation of moisture which has made so many farm windbreaks successful plantings cannot be over-emphasized. Maxwell believes. A splendid example of how clean cultivation has saved trees is found on the farm of Harold Buethe of Johnson county, who in 1932 planted several hundred Clarke-McNary trees. Even during the following years of highly unfavorable conditions, he lost but few seedlings and transplants and the growth has been satisfactory. Clean cultivation, Buethe found, meant success.

Farmers Receive Many Benefits From Triple A

The Triple A first began to function May 15, 1933, just a little over two years ago. On May 1, 1935, receipts from processing taxes totaled $825,430,579. On the same date, expenses chargeable against these processing taxes reached a total of $790,062,385.

On the same day, other expenditures coming under the Triple A amounted to $211,533,906 which came out of net appropriations of congress totaling $398,418,639.

This makes a total of about a billion and a quarter dollars appropriated to Triple A and collected in processing taxes compared to total expenditures of slightly over a billion dollars. Of this billion dollar ex-

Timely Suggestions About Peas

SOMETIMES you get tired of recipes with a multitude of ingredients and many different things to do. But, unless your taste varies widely from that of a large part of the public, you never get tired of peas. So it occurred to us to collect some simple ways of preparing this popular and excellent vegetable, and here they are:

Peas in Cream Sauce: Make a white sauce of one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour and the liquor from an 11-ounce can of peas with enough milk added to make three-fourths cup liquid. Season with salt and pepper and add the peas. Heat and serve. Serves four.

Scrambled Eggs and Peas: Turn one cup of canned peas into skillet. Season with salt, pepper and a few grains of sugar. Cook gently until all the liquor is absorbed. Add one tablespoon butter and, when melted, pour in five lightly beaten eggs and five tablespoons milk. Cook gently, stirring until creamy. Serves four.

In Salads, Too

Peas and Lettuce Salad: Drain a cup of canned peas and marinate them in two tablespoons French dressing for at least an hour. Add one-fourth cup chopped walnuts, one-fourth cup crisp shredded lettuce and one-fourth cup mayonnaise, and mix lightly together. Serves four.

New Books at Library

According to Mrs. E. S. Blair, librarian, four new books have been received at the public library for the international mind alcove from the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

"Peace and the Plain Man" by Sir Norman Angell is considered by some critics as the best thing Angell has done from the standpoint of the general public and is a splendid book for the alcove.

"Leaves from a Greenland Diary"

by Ruth Bryan Owen is a book everyone will want to read because of Mrs. Owen's unique position as our first woman minister. This is an informal daily account of her cruise last summer to Denmark's northern possession.

"Java Pageant" by H. W. Pouder

is written by one who has an exhaustive and intimate knowledge of this island. It has excellent reference value.

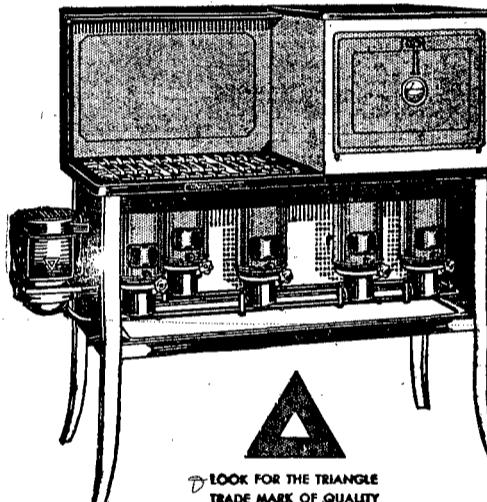

"To Nova Scotia" by T. Morris Longstreth is an attractive book concerning the whole province of Nova Scotia and picturesque Cape Breton Island. It is written in a readable style and the scenery is vividly described.

The library has also received the latest volume of "The New International Year Book."

A Word From Bunt About Fans

You know, it's the funniest darn thing, but people are complaining lately about the heat and asking about electric fans. Now, for example, a fellow came into the store the other day and bought one of those silent G. E. Electric Fans. You know those slick lookers with the blades that resemble an outboard motor propeller. Well, he took it home and hooked it up in the bathroom. He forgot to disconnect it when he left and returned later to find the pipes all frozen up and everything covered with frost. Then I took one home the other day. Not because I needed it myself but because the wife wanted it. But she learned her lesson. Just this morning she asked me to trade it back for something else as she was tired of having to sleep under blankets all summer. Well you may believe this or not just as you please but remember that we are the headquarters for fans. Take one of these fans home and you'll become the most ardent electric fan fan. Our fans are priced from

Noteeworthy Advice For Would-Be Pony Pickers

Due to the fact that many of you are planning to bet some of your hard-earned pennies betting on the ponies next week, here are some "sapien tips" on how not to do it according to Charles B. Farmer in a recent issue of "Liberty" magazine. "You need luck, of course, and the right slant toward the ponies as you saunter to the track. You are not trying to beat the races; you are too intelligent... You are going out for an afternoon's sport. Remember this as you swing your field glass jauntily: "Even though you don't know a horse from a spavined jackass, you can pick winners as easily as the shrewdest turfman. If you couldn't, professionals would win all the money. Your one need is luck on your shoulder."

"You hear that racing is crooked. What of it? You are no moralist. Maybe one of the horses you select will be a 100-to-1 shot the boys are putting over today. It will—if luck is with you."

"I wish I could tell you how to win at the races. I wish I could win myself. I can give a few suggestions; but the hazards of racing may overturn everything."

"Let me remind you: even those bright chaps in the Smithsonian admit they can't foretell future happenings. If they can't, what chance for the sure-thing gentry who side up to you with tales of "This race is in the bag, cap; we can tell you the winner?" Why should they divulge valuable information to you, a stranger?

"Over your breakfast coffee you might glance at the sporting columns of your paper. To see which horses are running. Perhaps you've heard. This paper has a good handicapper. He picks two or three winners every day."

"Yes; but which two?"

"A race horse is an temperamental as a movie star with her third husband. He has moods—likes and dislikes. At a morning trial he burns up the track with his speed. In the afternoon—against inferior horses, too—he breaks your heart and purse with a miserable showing."

"What's the reason?"

"Perhaps the groom plaited his tail too tightly."

"This is only one of the many things which may cause the best horse to run a poor race."

"Some will tell you, always play the outside horse in a three horse field. Excellent advice, if the long shot wins. They do—once in a decade. But don't make a habit of despising outsiders. Sometimes they take terrible vengeance."

"Fillies and mares are not good bets in the springtime. Their minds are on love, not racing. Still, when one wins, that's the time to have a bet on her."

"Maiden races—maiden horses which have never won—are bad gambles. Some horses never win."

"Of course you won't play two-year olds. It's the maddest of mad gambles to play the baby racers. Likewise aged horses—five years and older—should be left severely alone. I'll grant there are exceptions."

"The first race at all tracks usually is a cheap one. For mediocre horses. Any horse may win. Lay off. The last race is a cheap one, too. Lay off."

"Which races and which horses should a person play?"

"I don't know. No one knows."

For a SAFE FOURTH serve plenty of SANE FOOD

AN eminent psychologist tells us that we are going through a time of change, and that people who slump down in their chairs and worry about the future are going to be all worn out before the change is effected. His advice is to do the next thing cheerfully, and let events take their course.

One reason why we should celebrate this Fourth of July cheerfully is that the form of our government has not changed. So let's do it right merrily, and hope that it will not change for another hundred and sixty-four years, although history does not record any form of government that has lasted that long. Do you realize that our form of government in these United States has lasted longer than that of any other country without definite change?

A Sane Celebration

It is not necessary to burn fingers, blister noses or endanger young eyes in order to show how enthusiastic we are over our own form of government in contrast to the dictatorships and social experiments that are going on beyond the seas. So be sure to have only the safest of fireworks, and grown-ups to supervise the youngsters when they set them off.

One way to keep your celebration safe and sane is to devote as much as possible of it to the eating of safe and sane foods. There are few things that even the most adventuresome youngsters would rather do than eat. In order to help you with this idea, here are suggestions for a menu and recipes that will take a lot of eating and do no one any harm. It is meant, of course, to serve outdoors, but if Nature is unkind and the skies weep, it will still taste just as good in the house.

Here's News for Meat Lovers

THERE is a shortage this year, so they say, of two and a half million pounds of meat. There are fewer hogs on the farms than at any time within the last fifty years, and the largest decrease in the number of cattle that has ever occurred is in one year.

Does that mean that good meat dinners are going to become a rarity? If it does, now is a good time to clip the following menu, for a good meat dinner for six people which costs only about $1.50. Fortunately there is still a lot of nutritious corned beef in cans, and a plentiful supply of pineapple. This last is a fortunate circumstance, too, as pineapple is helpful in the digestion of meats.

How Do You Like This?

With that preamble, what do you think of the following menu and recipes? Wouldn't you invite some pretty good friends of yours to help you eat it? The prices, of course, are only approximate, as the costs of foods vary in different localities, but you'll find them a fairly accurate guide.

Chilled Tomato and Sauerkraut Juice 17¢
Scalloped Potatoes with Corned Beef 33¢
Perfection Salad 33¢
Baking Powder Biscuits 17¢
Strawberry Shortcake 40¢
Coffee with Cream 10¢

Scalloped Potatoes with Corned Beef: Slice five medium potatoes thin. Put in a buttered baking dish alternate layers of the potatoes, dots of butter (you will need four tablespoons of it), and sprinklings of salt, pepper and flour. Pour over two cups hot milk. Cut the contents of a 12-ounce can corned beef in six slices and lay these on top. Bake about forty-five minutes, or until the potatoes are tender, in a 350 degree oven.

Perfection Salad: Dissolve, one package lemon gelatin in one and a third cups boiling water. Add one cup canned crushed pineapple (not drained) and cool. Add one cup shredded cabbage, one-half cup sliced celery and two tablespoons chopped green pepper, turn into a flat wet pan, and chill. Cut in squares and serve on six leaves of lettuce with a garnish of six tablespoons mayonnaise.

SPINACH makes for IRON MEN

IRON men is slang for dollars, but it may also mean a number of other things. Husky boys and girls, for instance. And one way to make both boys and girls husky is to see that they eat their due proportion of spinach. For the iron content of this vegetable is exceptionally high, and it is an excellent source of vitamins A and C, a fair source of vitamin B and a good source of vitamin C.

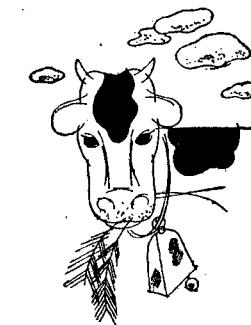

Eggs, too, are high in iron content, so let's try combining these two foods in some recipes, and see whether we can't turn out some boys and girls of the same grade as those eleven "iron men" who played through the Yale-Princeton football game last fall, and won for Yale.

A Strong Combination

Raked Spinach and Eggs: Drain and chop contents of a No. 2½ can spinach, reserving the juice for soup. Make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, one and a half tablespoons flour and one cup milk, and season with salt. Add three chopped hard-cooked eggs. Put alternate layers of spinach and the sauce in a buttered baking dish, cover with one-half cup buttered crumbs, and brown in a hot oven. Serves six.

Cheese and Spinach Omelet: Make an omelet of four eggs, one-half teaspoon salt, a few grains pepper, four tablespoons cream and one-third cup grated cheese, folding in the grated cheese with the egg whites, beaten stiff and then folded into the yolks. Heat the contents of an 8-ounce can spinach, season to taste with butter, salt and pepper, and spread on the omelet just before folding it over. Serves five.*

If You Were a Cow

If you were a cow, and took an interest in the good, rich milk for which people feed you and pamper you to furnish, you might be puzzled by the growing change in the way in which it reaches the public. It reaches them, of course, principally in bottles or bought at a store, but the per capita consumption of evaporated milk has doubled since 1920, while the consumption of bottled and market milk or cream has remained at a standstill during the same period.

Perhaps cows are not interested in the milk after they have been relieved of it, but, as a matter of fact, you are not a cow, and the subject of milk ought to interest you a great deal. And, since the consumption of evaporated milk has grown rapidly, you ought to be interested in just what sort of milk this is.

What the Doctors Say

Among the statements about evaporated milk which the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association has accepted according to Hygeia, the health magazine published by that association, are the following:

"Evaporated milk is pure, fresh cow's milk with approximately 60 percent of the water removed by evaporation under reduced pressure. It is not a patented or proprietary food but a staple commodity."

"Evaporated milk is sterile and therefore is the safest milk obtainable."

"Evaporated milk is equal to pasteurized milk in all important food values; it supplies those vitamins which milk can be depended on to supply."

"Evaporated milk is more speedily digested than raw or pasteurized milk or milk boiled only a short time."

"The uniform composition of evaporated milk is a tremendous help in infant diets, since the baby's delicate stomach is so easily disturbed."
