Lincoln, Nebraska,
August 22, 1935
Dr. U. S. Conn, President,
Wayne State Teachers College,
Wayne, Nebraska,
My dear President Conn:
On the eve of your retirement, I want to take this opportunity of expressing heartiest congratulations and deep appreciation for the extraordinary service you have rendered to education and general progress, in Nebraska.

Twenty-five years is a long time for a man to live in and grow in a job. You have done this—done it in a superior fashion. You have been lauded for the material growth of Wayne, the campus extension and the increased faculty and student body.
I, too, want to voice my praise for these accomplishments. But I want to add sincerest praise for the aid,

1, 100, Want to voice my praise for these accomplishments. But I want to add sincerest praise for the aid, hoost, you have given education and the public schools through your inspiring contact with and guidance of thousands of teachers, school officials and patrons. You have builded a great college materially, and you have likewise builded character and life. You have made a contribution to our profession equalled by few. Nebraska teachers and schools are proud of you and your work. We wish you and yours many, many happy days in the future. We are glad to have been your friendly co-workers.

Cordially yours Nebraska State Teachers Assn., Chas. A. Bowers, Executive Secretary.

Drowning Claims Jennings Garwood

Funeral Held Yesterday for Well Known Carroll Young Man

Jennings Garwood, 30, of Kalama-zoo, Michigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Garwood of Carroll, drowned late Saturday afternoon in Pretty Lake near Kalamazoo.

late Saturday afternoon in Pretty Lake near Kalamazoo.
Garwood and a doctor friend, with whom he had been spending the week end at the lake, were out in a boat when they decided to dive into the water from opposite sides of the boat. Coming to the surface first, Garwood's friend noticed that his companion, an excellent swimmer, looked distressed when he appeared above the watr. Garwood immdiately sank and as the water was very deep at that place he could not be rescued in time. All efforts to revive him were futile.

Mr. Garwood is a well known allumnus of the Wayne State Teachers college, where he was outstanding in both athletics and scholarship. He also attended the University of Iowa where he received his masters and doctor's degrees.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the M. E. church at Carroll with the Rev. David Simpson, a former Carroll pastor, in charge. Following is an obituary:

TALE TELLING By The Tattler

So the Tattler will atttempt to tell you very briefly, a la Rogers, how much you might enjoy that peculiarly entitled book by the eminent Britisher H. G. Wells, Mr. Bullington of Bluv. The inelegant title suggests to the Tattler the painful seene of a drowning person gulping down great quantities of unwelcome water. No accounting for first impressions. But it is actually about the intimate thoughts and experiences of a sensitive child who grows to intellectual ligh, visited in the George Gabler and physical manhood right before your very eyes. The questions that perplex him become the reader's and arouse sympathetic curiosity. His eventually degenerate life unfolds with his growth and leaves a parting bitter taste in the mouth. But the character Mr. Wells has depicted in this psychological work is observed to be quite typical of those who wonder in our modern world. Take this stimulating plunge into the literary waters Mr. Wells has so thoroughly explored. You will like it.

Juicy Health

HEALTH Insurance comes in fruits! They not only taste good and stimulate the appetite but they are dietetically important as sources of mineral elements and vitamins. The modern generation wants to do things quick. They're all very busy at what interests them, and they want to drink down their health at one rulp.

at one gulp.

Fortunately for them there is a Fortunately for them there is a way in which they can imbibe health from fruits, if not in one gulp, at least in a series of rapid sips. That is by drinking fruit juices. And another fortunate circumstance is that they don't even have to spend the time to squeeze the fruits because the best of krapefruit juice, pineapple juice and prune juice comes, already squeezed, in cans.

The people further island, however, have the joke on their coastal consins. They can go quietly on enjoying their oysters at any season of the year, cysters that have been gathered in winter and safely, ensconced in tin cans which keep them just as good as at the moment when they are put in. Take for instance, this of the safe o Serve at once with oyster crack-ers. Serves four.

In Croustades and Ples But oyster stew is not the only ish, by any means, that can be made with these delectable or-sters. Try, for instance, these Oyster and Mushroom Crous-tades: Drain a 5-ounce can oysters and a 4-ounce can mushrooms. Make a sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour and the combined liquors from the oysters and mushrooms. Season to oysters and mushrooms. Season to taste, add one slightly-beaten egg mixed with one-half cup cream, pour over the oysters and mushrooms and heat in a double boiler. Serve as an entrée in very tiny croustades or pour over tiny spit baking powder biscuits. Serves eight.

In Maryland Style

Maryland is famous for its sea food and for its appreciation of delicate fish dishes concocted by its famous chefs. Here is one of the ways in which they serve oysters there.

Oysters a Maryland: Brown one and a half tablespoons butter in a pan, add one and a half tablespoons butter in a pan, add one and a half tablespoons flour, and brown again. Then add one and a half cups milk slowly, stirring until smooth. Add three teaspoons anchovy paste; one-half teaspoon sait and a few grains paprita. Scalid the oysters from a 5-ounce cap, arrange on abuttered toast, and add thin liquor to the sauce. Add one slightly besten egg yolk to the sauce, stir till hot and pour over the oysters. Makes four servings.

AMERICA NEEDS NEW FOREIGN POLICY

Cooperation Seen as Road to Economic Prosperity

> Cy DONALD C. BLAISDELL University of Wisconsin

Back of the economic problems which face Americans today is a political problem of fundamental importance, shall we follow a nationalist or an internationalist course in our dealings with other nations?

Farmers display interest in the gov ernmental actions that affect them im mediately, such as the crop reduction program, benefit payments, processing taxes, and mortgage legislation. Yet there is likely to be little interest in such vital problems as the causes of economic depression and of internationwar, and especially in an approach to them through international rather than national methods.

Here, however, are the things which are of even more significance to the whole population than taxes, fiscal policy, tariffs, and unemployment. For their character is determined by the degree of success attained in dealing with the underlying problems of depression and war. And since these twin afflictions are universal in their effect and grow out of a social structure that recognizes no national boundaries, the only effective way of meeting them is through the use of international agencies.

Nationalist Method Pig-Headed

About one acre out of every six in crops in the United States from 1920 to 1930 was used in producing exports. About ten percent of our industrial pro-duction during the same period was disposed of abroad. In the face of these facts it is pig-headed to say that we can afford to choose the nationalist method of dealing with international problems. We delude ourselves if we interpret the recent tendency to economic nationalism in Europe solely in economic terms. While acts of this sort are often the result of pressure put upon governments by economic groups, yet, in recent years, political security rather than economic betterment has been the coal Germany found no security in a Europe which insisted on labelling her "inferior." From 1924 to 1932 this proud people followed the international course, only to find that the promises of political equality in a system of collective security came too late to counteract Hitler's appeal with its nationalist, anti-Semitic, and anti-liberal emphasis. Today the German people are buying national prestige and security in the currency of lost individual lib-erties, heightened prices, depressed liv-ing standards, and the lessened respect of other nations. Tariffs, import quotas exchange controls-all the devices of economic nationalism-have been utilized to achieve the political security which Germany thought it impossible to attain otherwise.

American Farmers Suffer

American farmers are now suffering from this reversal of German policy. A country which even as late as 1933 absorbed 126 million pounds of American lard has raised the duty on this important farm export and has set a quota of less than half of the 1931-33 imports.

It would be hard to find a more telling illustration of the far-reaching eco nomic effects of political policy. Americans often say that the treatment of European problems should be left to the European nations. Here is evidence that in America's own interest a closes contact with the agencies of interna-tional cooperation might have brought economic benefits to American agricul-

For Germany the nationalist course appeared the sole salvation from a trag-ic and unbearable situation. America, however, can make her choice free from such pressure, To follow the path of economic nationalism will undoubtedly entail vast alterations in our social structure. Fortunately the road to po-litical internationalism (and probably to economic prosperity) is clearer of obstructions than is generally thought to be the case.

Clauses Modified

Instead, such a would harmonize with the traditional American habits of recognizing the facts of a situation as they are and act-ing in the manner calculated to serve our interests best.

The problem of political security in The problem of political security in Europe can not be divorced from the problem of political security elsewhere. The two are inseparable and must be tackled by all the nations, including America, with the technique and the institutions that exist for that purpose. A New Dinner Deal

NOT a New Deal dinner, but a new dinner deal is what we are talking about. Times are too uncertain nowadays for us to eat up all the money we earn, but that doesn't mean by a long shot that we should eat less well. All that it implies is a little more careful planning on the part of the housewife, and there are a number of ways in which she is doing it now.

If she has a mechanical refrigerator, for instance, she is all fixed to take advantage of the weekly "bargain specials" in butcher shops and grocery stores, and she can keep the food she has "purchased at bargain prices safe and sweet in her refrigerator until it is eatien up. She can also buy large sized cans containing twice as much food, which cost usually only a few cents more than the small ones, and keep the unused part in her refrigers on package lemon gelatin in one than the small ones, and keep the unused part in her refrigera-tor. These devices may mean a saving of more than a dollar a week-fifty or sixty dollars a

Planning Is Fun

Another way she can economize on food is to plan more carefully the dishes she will serve, with price as a consideration as wellprice as a consideration as well is taste and appropriateness to the other dishes in the meal. It is real fun and a small triumph to be able to think up another dish just as tasty and appropriate as the one you first thought of but costing less. That these three factors can be successfully combined once you well the inree factors can be successinily combined, once you get the knack of it, is proved by the following tempting menu devised by a graduate dietitian to serve to six people at a cost of only a dollar and a half.
