Kiwanians Hear Two Speakers

State Lieut. Governor and Kearney Librarian Give Talks Monday

"Kiwanis is young enough that it isn't cynical", said Glenn Cavanaugh, lieutenant Governor of Nebraska, when he spoke briefly before members of Kiwanis club Monday noon at hotel Stratton. "This week marks the twenty first anniversary of Kiwanis and by its record Kiwanis has now come to maturity. It embraces the social, civic, philanthropic and spiritual phases of life."

Mr. Cavanaugh's talk preceded the main address which was given by Miss Anna V. Jennings, head librarian of Kearney State Teachers college, who told the club some of her impressions gained from several visits to Russia. Miss Jennings was introduced by Dr. J. T. Anderson.

"We Americans are so often under the impression that our country is the biggest in the world", Miss Jennings began, "but it doesn't compare in size with Russia, or the U. S. S. R. which contains one sixth of the land area of the globe and one twelfth of the people. Russia's standing army is the largest in the world and they are certainly preparing for war even though they talk peace."

Concerning native Russians, Miss Jennings said, "I found no special Russian type among the people. They take on the characteristics of the adjacent countries."

"Feverish excitement to industrialize Russia," said the speaker, "has resulted in its working overtime and doing nothing well. Even the new buildings look old. It appears to me as if they will have to take the next five years repairing what went on in the first."

"Life doesn't begin at forty in Russia," Miss Jennings continued. "The older people all appear sad and worn out; those under forty, or the younger persons, appear happy and hopeful."

The Russian standard of living is very low and many are allowed to starve, the speaker said. More people are being sent to Siberia than ever before, practically all of them belonging to the intelligentsia. Everything in Russia is on a competitive basis, privileges going to those excelling in a thing. Factories are very well organized. Because it is essential to carrying out the Russian program women had to be given equal rights, construed mainly as equal rights to do heavy work. Russian women are now doing work of men. "Marriage", according to Miss Jennings, "is about as interesting as buying a ticket at a railroad station. It takes but a few moments. There are no illegitimate children in Russia."

After visiting the collective farms and observing the poverty and sordidness so marked among peasantry, Miss Jennings advised anyone who "imagines the benefits of collectivism as practiced in Russia to go there and then appreciate our American form of government."

"The perfect building never was built", said Mr. Grabe, "but Beckenhauer has done some wonderful work on this one. I'm proud of it and glad to have had a part in building it."

What have we here? We have an automobile. How big is the automobile? It is a four-passenger automobile. How many people are in the automobile? Eight people and a dog. How can eight people and a dog get into a four-passenger automobile? We've got a dog on the roof. Are the passengers comfortable? Certainly. When are you going on your winter trip? These are the necessary accessories for a winter trip. How do you like the weather there? They are enjoying it very much. Why? On account of the traffic congestion. Will they enjoy the outing? No, in fact they will be pretty miserable every moment, and about midday the suffering will have become pronounced. Then why do they take this trip every Sunday? It's an old American custom.

THE STORY OF OSCAR

1-Oscar's parents had great ambitions for the boy. 2-When he was a little fellow they used to take him around the house and point out the oil paintings of his ancestors. 3-Most of them had been statesmen. 4-They sent him to the best schools and then to a university where he would get the democratic touch. 5-They never ceased emphasizing that in the United States every boy had a chance to become President, and they liked to impress upon him that his chances were better than average. 6-Their idea was that he should get a broad education and then enter the Law. Most Presidents came from the Law, they said. 7-He inherited certain statesman-like instincts and the ability to mix well on necessary occasions. 8-After graduation, he went into politics and his folks saw that he had the right sponsors. 9-He was soon locked upon as a rising young man in the affairs of the state and won a state senatorship in no time. 10-Everybody liked Oscar. He had a way with him. 11-After a few years he became governor and served with distinction and the attendant publicity. 12-Then they began to talk of him as a favorite son. 13-He looked like a cinch for the White House. 14-Then came the 1929 collapse and chaos. Oscar observed the troubles of a President with a considerable cooling of his ambitions. 15-But the party went on booming him until there seemed no way out. 16-Oscar fooled them, however. 17-He suddenly quit the state and became a professional tester of experimental parachutes over the Grand Canyon. 18-He left a note saying that he figured it was less strain and worry. MORAL-Now and then you find a man who can sidetrack an ambition.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THESE SENTENCES?

1-The gas company made a mistake and read the meter so that the customer benefited. 2-The middle-aged lady passenger on the ocean voyage did not make a fuss about the location of her steamer chair or ask which side of the boat was the sunny side. 3-"We can't use a skit like that," said the musical show producer. "It is too suggestive." 4-The newspaper editor refused to print another picture of Al Capone, saying, "We have used him enough." 5-"You're right," said the baseball umpire when the pitcher disputed him. 6-The man who had planted his lawn with grass seed had no trouble at all keeping the neighbors' dogs, chickens and children off. 7-The speakeasy proprietor showed great alarm when he saw that police were in the neighborhood.

CURIOUS FACTS FOR CURIOUS PEOPLE

The happiest people in the world are members of a tribe in the interior of Africa. They have never heard of a contract bridge. Ninety-seven per cent of all automobile owners never talk about testing the air in a spare tire until they have a blowout nine miles from nowhere. The average life of a sponge diver is 35,078 1/2 dives. Statisticians have figured that less than 1/2 of 1 per cent of all men who go flounder fishing do so because they like it. They merely find it a good way to get away from their wives. George D. Phillips, of Gadgetville, Mont., has a fountain pen which has never failed him. The ancient Greeks did not know what strawberry shortcake was, which may account for their physical fitness. A straw hat blown off in a wind will roll under a truck in seven out of ten cases. Watch fobs are gradually disappearing from American life. This is also true of buggy whips. The idea of making a cruller with a hole in the center was thought up by a man named Pooksey. HEALTH RHYMES Masticate each mouthful well, Never overeat; Always wear your rubbers in Snow or rain or sleet! Brush your teeth quite carefully, Don't neglect you sleep; And in anything you do Look before you leap! Watch your calories and don't Strain or hurt your eyes; Bear in mind that you must have Abundant exercise! Guard your health from morn to night— Over your diet fust; And you'll probably expire Underneath a bus!

SCRAMBLED LETTERS TEST The names of what leaders in American politics are spelled if the following letters are correctly rearranged? Mstih, Dnsoy, Davsi, Oorsstey, Mnyrra, Rahob, Rekkab, Gnuoy, Ragner, Rehtlie, Dnoouca, Rashoc.

OUR FEATHERED FRIENDS The Robin The robin is a harbinger of spring, but you can get influenza through trusting it too implicitly. It comes north in early April and people who have been sitting around in heavy underwear waiting for it promptly get into lighter weight apparel and begin raking the lawn, planting flower seeds and developing a cold in the head. No bird has been responsible for more pneumonia. The female robin has a duller coat than the male, which has a very red breast, or maybe it is vice versa. Anyhow, most of the poetry is written about the one with the red breast. The robin stays north all summer and makes life miserable for worms. It goes south in time to escape the first biting blasts of winter. All things considered, it leads a swell life.

Place of Fighting Mombasa, on the coast of British Kenya colony, which borders both Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland, is known by the natives as M'vita, literally, "the place of fighting." It has been the warring battleground of peoples for centuries. Portuguese have fought there with natives, Arabs with natives, and it has been a place of call for pirates, ivory traders, and one of the great centers of the African slave trade.

Though editors ranted and raved, told their readers the country was going to hell following a highway marked with alphabet signs, belly-ached their heads off about the awful plight of the laboring man due to the NRA, the farmer due to AAA, and business in general due to other helpful governmental agencies, we notice that these same editors are extremely careful about what they say now that AAA has been ruled out. They know that AAA was of untold benefit to the farmers. They know that they themselves profited in a direct manner through benefits of AAA. It is indeed interesting to know that they apparently know enough to keep still at the right time. They cannot afford to go too strongly against public opinion and they know only too well where public opinion stood with regard to the AAA.

"Municipal Auditorium
Federal Emergency Administration
Of Public Works"
Project No. 2381

This Building
Erected A. D. 1935
And

Dedicated to the people of the community for those activities that promote the public welfare.
May it serve to exemplify the adventurous spirit of pioneers who laid the foundation upon which the community has developed.

Above is the wording which appears on the bronze plaque which graces the north wall of the entrance to Wayne's recently dedicated municipal auditorium building. Briefly it tells the story of how the building was realized through local effort and PWA grants. Much credit is due the Womans club for that worthy organization's donation of $6,000 to the cause. Few of us realize the arduous task of raising so great a sum in comparatively small portions at a time, unless we have had a part in such a program. Dreams of these Wayne home makers that some day, somehow they would provide a home for the entire community, and making these dreams come true called forth a spirit within them which has never lain dormant since their pioneering ancestors laid the foundations for this young but progressive city.

Here in this building Wayne county citizens will henceforth join for educational, cultural and social pursuits. In this building everyone, at all times, will be welcome as this edifice is the property of all citizens in this area.

Probably no one Wayne citizen has played a more active part in realizing the dream which brought about construction of the auditorium than did Mayor Martin L. Ringer. When clouds hovered lowest and opposition was at its peak, Mr. Ringer was courageous and provided the enthusiasm with which the program was carried forward. Wayne with its new municipal auditorium, its palatial new post office, its modernized, fully equipped municipal power plant, its broad, clean, carefully kept streets, its fine library, beautiful churches and schools, its fine homes, modern business houses and progressive people who are responsible for these things, is in a class by itself. It is truly a city where mankind can live for the true pleasure of enjoying the more abundant life.

As a Republican newspaper, The Herald might be expected to exult over the death of the AAA, for it practically means the defeat of the New Deal; but it has no such feeling. Not all farmers agreed with this opinion by any means, but this newspaper favored the act as a substantial benefit to agriculture and we regret to see it abolished. At the same time, we can not but feel that this decision still further discredits the leadership of the president and his advisors, and its tremendous, far reaching political effect, it is impossible to estimate.—Hartington Herald.

The Bystander

Beginning this week H. I. Phillips assumes his duties as a writer for this newspaper. For a number of years Mr. Phillips has conducted a column in the New York Sun. He has also written magazine articles for publications appealing to the masses. Though Mr. Phillips would like to move to Wayne where he would be closer to his work, he will remain in New York for the time being, due largely to the fact his children are attending school there and it is this since he has not been able to secure a house to live in here. I have known of Mr. Phillips for some time, and have liked his stuff. I am sure Mr. Davidson drove a good deal when he hired H. I. Phillips to conduct his "McGoofey's First Reader and Ecclectic Primer" for this newspaper.

I thought it was just dandy to hear from Herman the other day. Herman is out on the west coast now having himself a big time. He tells me they raise some pretty good looking girls out there as well as a good crop of fruit and cold weather. Nice going, Herman, ol' boy ol' boy. Stay right in there and pitch. You have no idea how much I miss those big letters you used to write before you went on tour.

Musings: I like the voice of Ethel Shutte who sings with George Olson's music. I regret the passing of Rudyard Kipling. I think that tune "Mandalay" typifies him. Twenty thousand persons, $90,000—two boys fighting but not for long—Joe Louis again wins—History was made in just one minute and twenty-five seconds. America, the new home of Roman holidays. I think the story of Lincoln Ellsworth's adventure in south polar wastes is a hum-dinger. I have no reason to believe Herbert Hoover can ever mean anything to us little folk. I know of some of his cronies in Iowa. One of the best things radio has brought me in recent months was the program given by the Poor Richard's club in Philadelphia on Benjamin Franklin's birthday. That herd of whiteface feeder cattle just north of Hoskins is surely a fine one. I wish I might have some nice steaks from one of them. Quite often I have a hunger for hot apple or mince pie with cheese—for breakfast. The Waring boys get my approval for the best job of doing that freak tune entitled "he Music Goes Round and Round". These guys who go up and down the street in their shirt sleeves when the mercury is hovering around the zero mark. A letter from Norma Carpenter recently was most welcome. Bet Jake has lots of fun playing with all the brand new stage equipment over at the auditorium at odd times. Wonder why so many people in a peace loving country such as ours go around armed to the teeth.

It was something of a shock Monday for friends of "Fritz", the little old man who served beer in Carl's Tap room, to learn that he had gone on during the night. Eyes welled with tears and lumps grew in the throats of many pals as they stopped for a few moments in the frosty air to exchange comments on his passing.

One man who said he had known "Fritz" for the last 25 years expressed a desire to leave the world in a similar manner. He smiled as he told those about him that in all the time he had known the little bar tender he had never known of his making an enemy.

Carl Nicholaisen, for whom "Fritz" worked, said it was difficult for him to reconcile himself to the fact that the little old man was gone and told about knowing "Fritz" years ago when he worked for his father.

Though "Fritz" liked to have lots of customers and to keep busy serving them he would never stand for a rough house. He believed in temperance and when he had time or inclination talked it to those who visited with him. Few persons knew much about him himself. He was a good listener. He always had a friendly greeting and liked to tell about going along with a group of Wayne men as their cook when they fished at the lakes. Yessir, I for one will miss a friendly "Hello, Stan" or "Good morning, Mr. Stanley" from Fritz, and will remember him for a long time as being a real guy.

Wonder how long Eddie will remain a bachelor now that he is figure head of the largest corporation on earth. Be careful Eddie, you know it's leap year and there's lots of gals who would like to be queen.

Sometimes I wonder how many of us are out on limbs waiting for some thing, knowing not what, to occur while Father Time with a bright new saw works steadily 24 hours each day, sawing the limb upon which we sit. As we sit upon this limb watching the korf gape wider, we wait patiently and probably fearfully for the cracking sound of breaking sinews. I do not feel that this business of being out on a limb is limited so much merely to one generation or any one age group of mankind. I feel that some of our elders have been in a similar position. Some few improved their condition in time. Most of them did not. Some of us may better our status through constant study and application to our lessons.

Many more of us will sit out there on the limb, come what may. We will listen to the song of the birds, watch the golden sunset and kind of survey life as it passes to the accompaniment of the rhythmic beat of that sharp and ever moving saw which some day will sever the sinew that has preserved us momentarily from our ultimate.

Sounds rather morbid, doesn't it? It isn't meant to be. It is merely meant to call attention in a little different manner to something most of us are aware of but about which we poor mortals can do little.

Remember this attempt to entertain and inform is conducted by Serge Stanislaus Norrisky for his own amusement. Any and all contributions will be most favorably received.—STAN.

CULTURAL POSSIBILITIES OF THE NEW CITY AUDITORIUM

Editors Note: Because the address given by James E. Brittain, city attorney, at the dedication ceremonies Friday afternoon elicited much favorable comment from those who heard it, and because inclement weather prevented many from attending. The Nebraska Democrat here offers a partial text of Mr. Brittain's address. Space limitations prevent publishing the speech in its entirety.

James E. Brittain

You will note from the title of the subject which has been assigned to me, that I am to speak to you upon such an elusive topic as culture. Before I attempt to say anything about such an imponderable thing, let me make a few remarks about the more prosaic topic of city finances.

You are not unaware that voices are occasionally heard to say that the building of this auditorium was a mistake; that it will prove to be a white elephant in the hands of the city, and that in view of the condition of the city's indebtedness it should never have been undertaken. Let us examine these complaints.

At present the assessed valuation of the city of Wayne is around $1,600,000.00 and the indebtedness as we have before stated is about 430 thousand dollars. Men who are familiar with municipal finances in the state have really been surprised to see this steady decrease in the city's indebtedness from year to year. When the mayor and council appeared before the Public Works Administration Board at Fremont they were examined very carefully about this indebtedness and the city's ability to take care of the 25 thousand dollars in auditorium bonds which they proposed to issue. Probably the great selling point which convinced this board of the city's financial soundness and integrity was this very fact that for more than 10 years it had decreased its bonded indebtedness every year and had more than cut it in two since 1923. The secret of success has been the earning power of the light plant, and that is why I refer to it as the goose that laid the golden egg. Twenty thousand dollars have been transferred from the reserves of the light fund to the auditorium fund, a new Diesel engine has been installed the past year and there is still a small surplus left. Possibly with this introduction you can all feel that the city's finances are in fair shape, that we are not headed towards bankruptcy and you can sit back with some degree of comfort to hear about cultural possibilities of this auditorium.

In this community we are only 50 years removed from the virgin prairie, and the town is just coming out of the pioneer stage of its development. As you enter our magnificent state capitol building you will see a carving in stone of the ox teams and the covered wagons typical of the pioneers who settled this state. This sculpture is intended to convey the idea that the pioneers not only brought with them their courageous spirit, but they also brought that priceless something as their heritage from the east which we call culture.

Very early in the history of the state our university was established and very early in the history of this community the college was built upon the hill. I have long had the dream that Wayne should be known as the Athens of Northeast Nebraska. The town is and rightfully should be the cultural center of this part of the state. The word culture is difficult to define and it includes many things. Let me simply define it here as a "proper sense of perspective". The person who realizes that his short life is but a part of a long process of history, that there are certain values in human life that are important and others that are not so important, has this perspective. This knowledge enables him to live a richer and fuller life than he otherwise would without wisdom and culture. There are many ways of attaining it but it is something which each individual and each community must acquire for himself and itself. No one can give it to you. It may be summed up in the expression, "living the good life". But discovering just what the good life is, is a long process and lasts during the entire lifetime of any individual. I believe most men who have seriously considered the problem agree that just making a living is not all there is or to it, but that a portion of art, philosophy and religion adds considerably to the good life.

The city auditorium will be used quite extensively for athletic activities and exhibitions. It was an ideal of the Greeks that a sane mind could only be contained within a healthy body and all activities which conducted to athletic activities for the many will lead to the improvement of the public health, which is one of the foundations of the culture of any community along with its economic stability.

The auditorium will furnish a community center for all sorts of activity. It will provide a place where all citizens of this community can meet and rub elbows. With better acquaintance, animosities and unfriendly feelings should disappear, and the citizen should get the proper sense of perspective that we are all of us members of one large family, but in the long run our interests are identical. I think this attitude is typical of any community or person who claims or aspires to have wisdom or culture in the slightest degree.

If there ever was any question as to the cultural advantages of this auditorium in this community it was fully answered on the 15th of December when Handel's great oratorio, "The Messiah" was presented from this stage. It has long been a dream of the musically minded persons of Wayne that this oratorio might be presented each year. A start was made at Christmas, 1934, and at that time hundreds of people were turned away from the college auditorium where it was presented. During the past Christmas it was attempted upon a somewhat more elaborate scale with the assistance of the orchestra, and you are aware of the fact that at 7:30 o'clock there were more than 2,000 people in this building, and that many were turned away who were unable to find seats. I think the presentation of such a wonderful piece of art as the "Messiah" to the people generally, free of charge, to have the highest cultural possibilities.

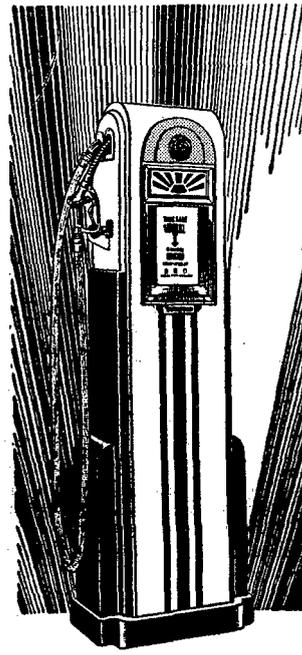

But there is another field which appeals to me as having great possibilities. It is the field of adult education. That is one of the great needs of this community or any community for that matter. As I have told you before, the matter of education and culture is not a thing which anyone can give you. It must be something that you get for yourselves. I understand that an opportunity is given by the Public Works Administration for courses in home economics; general academic courses, such as geography, history and economics; general cultural subjects such as art and literature; agriculture; citizenship and public affairs and many other subjects. This project may be set up locally without expense to anyone other than the expenses of the building and its lighting and heating. The class would meet once a week. It might also be possible to conduct an open forum on civic affairs once each week. It seems to me for the proper development of possibilities of this community center that the mayor should appoint a board of governors of five members who should be representative citizens of the community, who should be in charge of the details of developing programs.

It is my conviction that the ideal which inspired a million boys in 1918, expressed in the great slogan "to make the world safe for democracy", ought still to fly from the mast of the American ship of state. But that means two things to me. First, that we keep ourselves out of war by an intelligent control of our government. Second, that we make our democracy, such a success in the progressive organization of government to meet and (Continued on Page Seven)

Hybrid Corn Yields Highly

Testing Shows All Hybrids Outyielded All Other Corn Varieties

That Nebraska farmers are justified in showing increased interest in growing hybrid corn was indicated at the University of Nebraska college of Agriculture Wednesday by Dr. T. A. Kieselbach in reporting results of five big corn tests before the annual meeting of the Nebraska Crop Growers' Association.

Tests conducted in Nemaha, Madison, Sarpy, Burt and Dixon counties on a cooperative basis between individual producers, the Agricultural Extension Service, and the Nebraska Experiment Station showed all hybrids outyielded all varieties by 14 per cent. Thirty-five different lots of seed were planted in three-row plots and replicated four times in the trials. The high 19 varieties in all tests were hybrids.

More than 15 years of testing by the Nebraska college of agriculture shows that good hybrids may be expected to outyield the best open pollinated varieties from 10 to 20 per cent, Dr. T. A. Kieselbach told the farm group here for Organized Agriculture. They are more lodge-resistant, less inclined to suckers and produce fewer barren stalks. The ears are more uniform.

"However, not all hybrids are superior varieties nor are they all equally desirable as to vegetable characteristics," he added. "Farmers wanting to grow hybrid corn should select those which have been tried and recommended by the college of agriculture of else first plant a small acreage of an untried hybrid to determine its value for local conditions."

Iowa 13, originated at the Iowa experiment station at Ames made the highest yield in the 1935 tests conducted on the farms of Arch Hosterman, Auburn; Amos Gramlich, Fort Crook; Honor Oschner, Madison; Ernest Peterson, Wayne; and John Moseman, Oakland. The corn, however, is not as desirable as other hybrids.

The five best hybrids averaged 9.2 bushel or 21 per cent more than the five highest yielding varieties.

Three Nebraska hybrids, Dr. Kieselbach said, are now being produced commercially by Nebraska farmers. In 1935 ten growers produced certified seed of Nebraska 252, Nebraska 253, and Nebraska 362. These ranked fourth, tenth, and thirteenth in the 1935 tests.

A MODERN REUNION

IT'S a long time since sauerkraut graduated from the old barrel which stood in a dark corner of the cellar where you used to go to lift the wooden cover, smell the savory aroma and taste its appetizing flavor. If you like your kraut crisp, reminiscent of a good firm tender head of cabbage, yet having all the pungent aroma and savory taste of the home-made kraut, you buy it nowadays in cans.

But it's a very short time since kraut's bosom friend, beer, has graduated from the brewer's keg and become also available in cans. These cans contain as much as a bottle, but the beer tastes better than bottled beer because it has to be subjected to a shorter period of pasteurization. The secret of this new way of dispensing beer is that the cans contain an inner coating which performs the same functions as the inner coating of a brewer's keg.

A Worthy Couple

This beer in cans is now widely available, and the two cronies can stand in comfortable juxtaposition on your pantry shelves. But this worthy couple won't stand there long if you have such recipes in your repertoire as the following:

Creamed Sauerkraut: Sauté two tablespoons sliced onion and four tablespoons shredded green pepper in three tablespoons fat until the onions are a pale yellow. Add three tablespoons flour, and stir until smooth. Add two cups milk slowly, stirring until thick and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add two cups of canned sauerkraut and heat thoroughly. This serves six persons.

Corned Beef and Sauerkraut: Place alternate layers of canned sauerkraut and canned corned beef which has been broken into large pieces in a baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees—for about forty-five minutes. This serves six persons.

Other wins were scored on Friday and Saturday of last week over Kearney and York. The university athletes were beaten by a score of 46 to 33. Kearney and York garnered 28 and 34 points respectively against Wayne's 31 and 41.

Ford
ANNOUNCES $25-A-MONTH TIME PAYMENTS AND A NEW UCC 6% FINANCE PLAN

Any New Ford V-8 Car
Can Now Be Purchased for $25 a Month with Usual Low Down-Payment

THIS $25-a-month time-payment plan enables you to buy a New Ford V-8 car through your Ford dealer on new low monthly terms.
After the usual low down-payment is made, $25 a month is all you have to pay for any type of new car, including insurance and financing.
Your cost for this extension of credit is only 1/2 of 1% a month on your original unpaid balance and insurance. This plan reduces financing charges for twelve months to 6%. For example, if you owe a balance of $400 for your car and insurance, you pay $24 for the year of credit; if the balance is $200 you pay $12. Your credit cost for one year is the original unpaid balance multiplied by 6%.
UCC plans provide you with insurance protection at regular conference rates. You have not only fire and theft insurance, but $50 deductible collision, and protection against other accidental physical damage to your car. The Universal Credit Company has made these plans available through all Ford dealers in the United States.
