Morningside Defeats Wildcats Saturday, 7-0

Wayne State Teachers college football team went down to defeat after a stubborn defense which lasted for almost four quarters. The final score was 7 to 0 in favor of Morningside. The fine punting of quarterback Murray of Wayne kept the visitors in their own territory most of the game. Wayne's line allowed very little yardage through it. Morningside threatened in the first quarter but an incomplete pass into the end zone on the fourth down lost the ball for them. Just before the half ended they were again within striking distance but fumbled and Wayne recovered.

With two minutes left to play and the ball on the 49 yard line Morningside's ball fourth down and two yards to go, Karroll called a quarterback sneak and took the ball 27 yards through the right side of Wayne's line. A few plays later Hughes went over from the 2 foot line for a touchdown. Fodness kicked the extra point and the game ended 7 to 0.

Dienst Leaves Local Schools for State Job

Board Says 20 Applicants File for Wayne School Superintendency

The Wayne public school board accepted the resignation of Dr. Charles F. Dienst who resigned from his position as superintendent of the Wayne public school to become the new deputy state superintendent of public instruction. He will succeed Herbert L. Cushing who was recently appointed to the presidency of the Kearney State Teachers college, as announced by Charles W. Taylor, state superintendent of public instruction. Dr. Dienst was the superintendent of the Wayne public schools for the past one year and two months.

Twenty applicants have filed for the position of Wayne superintendent as announced by the school board authorities following their meeting Monday night. The applicants' qualifications are under consideration of the board but no definite information concerning the candidates has been released.

Mr. Dienst took the degree of Ph. D. from Columbia University, Department of School Administration with special reference to Public School and Institutional Trusts, under Professors Engelhardt and Strayer.

This is a patent question in Nebraska at the present time. It seems advisable to have one member on the cabinet who can speak with absolute authority. The Board of Educational Lands and Funds already has had a number of law suits on this question. This office has had three law suits bearing upon the question of endowments and the matter is up for discussion of the electorate of the State at the present time. Undoubtedly some new school legislation bearing on the question of school funds will be passed by the next legislature. It seems particularly fitting that this office should have a man of Dr. Dienst's qualifications Taylor indicated.

Dr. Dienst was a farm boy, born and reared and taught in the rural school for a number of years and passed on up through every position including instructor in School Supervision and associate in the University Schools, University of Missouri.

His services included the city superintendency of schools, Boise, Ida. As a boy he worked in the wheat fields of South Dakota. He served as time-keeper for a year in the Cudahy's Packing company, Omaha. He worked his way through college.

He served in the World War and was captain of Infantry in the Argonne field in France. He is author of "History of the 353 Infantry."

In a professional way, he has been prominent in the Phi Delta Kappa fraternity. He was a member of the Committee on Education in the Presbyterian Synod of Idaho; also a member of the Legislative Committee of the National Education Association and a member of the Resolutions Committee. He is chairman of the Nebraska State Teachers Association Committee on Lands and Funds in the Nebraska Planning Commission.

State Goes for Gallant Leadership

Wayne County Supports President in Sweep Of 46 States

Climaxing a campaign that ran at fever temperature for the last six weeks, American democratic donkeys literally romped over republican elephants and gave to President Franklin Roosevelt the greatest vote of confidence ever afforded an American. Forty-six of the 48 states sanctioned the Roosevelt New Deal, giving the gallant leader 523 electoral votes to his opponent's eight. Even Pennsylvania which has been considered a republican stronghold since 1876 cast aside traditional ties to support a democratic candidate for the first time. Iowa, Illinois, New York, California, in fact all states but the backwoods units of Maine and Vermont mounted the bandwagon to tell the world that they wanted Roosevelt and the policies he stands for again.

It was not entirely a democratic victory in America. There was nothing partisan about it. It was simply the voice of liberal America making itself heard after it had listened to the misleading misdirection of a defeated group composed of liberty leaguers and old guard reactionary republicans.

So far reaching was the landslide that Congress when it convenes with the beginning of the new year will be sympathetic with Roosevelt and the New Deal policies. For example of this state's five congressmen, four are democrats. The president's great friend of long standing, Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, will again be in the house of senate.

The question was placed before the voters. They have answered in a manner that should convey to everyone the meaning of American public opinion. There is little doubt but what America will go forward with Roosevelt.

She is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Lena Westerhouse, one brother, Fred Westerhouse, both of Wayne and three sisters, Mrs. Minnie Redmer, Mrs. Henry Assenheimer, both of Norfolk, and Mrs. Carl Baker of Dalton.

A Health Service For The Average American

One month ago The Jamieson Clinic announced to the public a plan whereby entire families could avail themselves of a complete health service at a very nominal annual flat fee. The response has been most gratifying indeed. Persons residing as far as 200 miles from Wayne have visited Dr. Jamieson to learn of the plan and have left his office expressing the desire that such a plan might be placed in operation in their respective communities.

Among the many persons who have indicated a desire for the type of service the Jamieson Clinic offers its participants are many of your neighbors and friends. They have already signed contracts and made their initial payment of the yearly fee in order to take advantage of the special low price offer that is being made to those who act quickly.

Many of you who read this advertisement may be still wondering how this plan operates. In a nut shell it's simply this:

For a limited time only, the Jamieson Clinic is offering its large practice in Northeast Nebraska a plan whereby the Clinic contracts to provide for a nominal flat fee to each participating family for a period of one year the following:

1. Doctor's service, for any and all members of the family, in any illness.
2. Surgical operations for all members of the family without additional cost.
3. Service in confinement cases, including hospitalization.
4. Free hospital service.
5. Complete annual physical and laboratory examinations.
6. Consultation at any time with any member of the staff.

Suppose a member of your family were to be operated upon for appendicitis. The cost of such an operation would be much more than the fee for which the Jamieson Clinic is offering to provide a complete health service for the entire family.

When Dr. Jamieson launched out upon this program he had a definite goal in view. He felt that a certain number of participants in the plan would be necessary to make it successful. It was his idea to place his practice, as much as possible, under this plan in order that by drawing a specified yearly fee for keeping them well he could better serve his patients.

Already a nearly sufficient number of persons have shown their desire for it.

You need not feel under any obligation whatever in discussing this plan with Dr. Jamieson. He does not require that you pay your fee at once but will give you until January 1, 1937 to make your initial payment. After that you can have the remainder of it placed under a special financing plan that Dr. Jamieson has provided for the purpose.

The time is near at hand when the offer being made by the Jamieson Clinic will come to an end. The charter membership roll will have already been made up and the annual fee will immediately be raised substantially.

Upon you rests the burden of providing a health service for your family. What would the expense of an unexpected surgical operation do to your savings? How long would it take you to pay off the indebtedness? How sure are you that more sickness will not follow in the wake of one operation or illness? Is it not good economy for you to investigate a plan whereby you can provide a complete health service at a nominal fee? Do you feel that as breadwinner for your family you are doing them justice without investigating the Jamieson Health Plan?

It is to your advantage as well as to those dependent upon you that you see Dr. Jamieson today and learn more of the plan that assures you that the cost of providing health service for you and your family will not be in excess of the one very nominal flat fee.

MR. PINCUS, the delicatessen dealer, was visiting Mr. Rabinowitz, the retailer in second-hand garments at the latter's flat in Allen Street on the East Side. To the host came his little son, Isadore, aged six.

"Popper," he asked, "would you give me a quarter?"
 "Sure," said the parent. He hauled a coin from his pocket, dropped it, with a generous gesture, into the outstretched hand of his offspring and, as the child trotted away, made as if to resume his interrupted conversation with the caller. But Mr. Pincus, who had been observing the byplay with disinterested eyes, was the first to speak:
 "Rabinowitz, how you gone crazy or somedings? Your boy asks you for a whole quarter and right away you give it to him! Vot an extravagance!"
 "That's right," said Mr. Rabinowitz, with a proud smile. "Every night comes my Isadore and asks me for a quarter, and always I give it to him."
 "But ain't it teachin' him bad habits, having all that money to spend on himself?" insisted Pincus.
 "Pincus," said his friend, "I tell you a secret: He ain't spendin' it on himself; always he goes and puts it in his savings bank only, it ain't a savings bank—that's only vot he thinks it is. It's the gas meter."

Briggs Leaves to Attend National Dealers Meeting

Phil Briggs left today for Omaha where he will board a special train bearing Ford dealers bound for Dearborn, Michigan, where a national meeting of dealers is taking place this week-end. Seven thousand dealers are expected to attend.

Unveiling of the new Ford V-8 cars for 1937 and presentation to Henry Ford in Greenfield Village of the historic three-centuries old Cape Cod windmill which one stood at the four corners at West Yarmouth, Mass., are the high spots on the program.

The dealer meeting is scheduled to take place in the Coliseum at the State Fair grounds in Detroit. It has been transformed into a huge theatre in which the new cars were to be presented in a spectacular setting, created by Walter Dorwin Teague, noted industrial designer.

Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, famous Ford dealer radio band was to furnish music and entertainment prior to the car introduction, while brief addresses were to be made by Edsel Ford, W. C. Cowling, sales director, and J. R. Davis, his assistant.

This afternoon the dealers were to visit Henry Ford's Greenfield Village for a tour of the historical sights there. Later they were to make formal presentation of their gift to Henry Ford. The old mill, moved intact from its original site on Cape Cod, was purchased by individual contributions of Ford dealers in 1935. In its Greenfield village site, it has been re-erected, just as it was when built by the Pilgrims in 1633.

Returning to the Coliseum in the evening, the dealers were to be guests of the Ford Motor Company at a banquet. A huge floor show featuring the regular Fred Waring nationwide broadcast and other acts famous in the entertainment world were to be presented.

Detroit staged an enthusiastic welcome for the dealers. Flags and pennants line the streets, giant signs bear messages of greeting.

ghout the United States. Two car-loads of the new cars are already here for the Coryell Auto Co., according to W. C. Coryell, head of the local concern.

The two series, known respectively as the Master and Master DeLuxe, are identical except for front spring suspension, rear axle and steering gear ratios, and accessories and trim.

On the Master De Luxe models, knee action, formerly optional at extra cost, is not only continued as a major feature, but furnished at no extra cost. Master models are available with semi-elliptic front springs only. All models of both series have safety plate glass all around at no additional charge.

Although the cars are described as new from bumper to bumper, the change most obvious outwardly has to do with body lines. A new treatment, described as "diamond crown speeding styling," represents a distinct departure in design, and produces an impression of added fleet-ness and grace. The change, however, goes deeper than appearance, for the bodies are entirely new. They introduce unit-steel construction, in which solid steel turret top, steel side panels, steel double cowl, and steel floor are welded together to form a silent unit. Even the doors are all of steel.

The bodies are mounted on a chassis which is also new, with the new six cylinder high-compression valve-in-head engine developing 35 horsepower, new box-girder chassis frame combining rigidity and lightness, and hypoid rear axle drive.

School Children Will Act As T-B Seal Messengers

Children of the rural schools of Nebraska will have an important part in conducting the thirtieth annual Christmas Seal Sale in their respective communities, this year, by acting as "messengers" for 75 county school superintendents who are serving as rural Seal Sale chairmen.

According to plans announced by Miss Alice Marshall Executive Secretary of the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association, the system to be used is called "The Messenger Plan."

By this plan, Seals are folded and placed in an unsealed envelope, accompanied by an explanatory letter. When the Seal opens on Thanksgiving Day, these envelopes are distributed among the school children, who act as messengers in delivering them to homes in assigned districts. A week later the messenger returns to the home, picks up the envelope, which should be sealed by the householder, and returns it to school.

By this means each family is given an opportunity to buy Christmas Seals, the children have a part in their distribution, and the sale of these little penny stamps which mean health and happiness to every community is facilitated.

Miss Marshall stated that by necessity the same quantity of Seals is placed in each envelope. "We hope that all who can will pay for each of the Seals received. If all cannot be bought, those not used should be placed in the envelope and returned, along with the money paying for those taken. If more seals are wanted than the quantity sent, the messenger will deliver the additional number."
