Kearney Takes Wildcats In First Conference Game, 31 to 30

In the first conference game of the season Kearney State Teachers squeaked out a victory over the Wayne Wildcats Monday night by a score of 31 to 30.

A rally in the last few minutes of the game by the Wayne men fell short of victory with only six minutes left to play Kearney led 29 to 20. At the half Wayne was out in front 16 to 12.

Retzlaff was high point man with 10 markers.

Following is the lineup and summary:

Rotary Snow Plow Gets Work-Out Near Wayne

It was Monday when the first rotary snow plow arrived in Wayne after clearing a path through gigantic drifts between here and Winslow. After filling up at the state yard here the ponderous equipment went to work on highway 35 between Wayne and Winslow, opening that road by 9 o'clock that night.

Highway opening crews were converging on Wakefield from three directions Wednesday as this is written. The rotary equipment which left Wayne late Monday had arrived in Wakefield at about 3 a. m. but snowfall of Tuesday night had partially closed the road already opened it was said.

The rotary plow is mounted upon a ten-ton four-wheel drive truck. A large engine immediately back of the truck cab drives the snow plowing equipment which consists of a gang of augers. The augers cut the hard packed snow loose from the drift, carry it back to a fan immediately below, which with a powerful blast throws the snow clear of the highway.

Huse, Former Norfolk News Editor Dies

Norris Huse Represented Third Generation of Publisher Family

Norris A. Huse, 54, of New York City, former editor of the Norfolk Daily News, and executive assistant to the manager of the Associated Press died last Thursday night of pneumonia and complications in a New York hospital following several months' illness. He was a nephew of E. W. Huse, editor of the Wayne Herald.

He became sick last fall and was taken to a hospital, where he remained several weeks. He returned home, but several days later returned to the hospital.

Funeral services for Norris A. Huse were conducted in New York Saturday. The body will be brought to Norfolk for burial. The date of the final rites have not been arranged as yet.

Mr. Huse was born Dec. 24, 1882 at Ponca. He had been engaged in one capacity or another with newspaper work since he was 6 years old when he started to carry papers with a route of twenty-five subscribers.

He graduated from the Norfolk high school in 1900 at the head of his class and enrolled in the University of Nebraska the following fall. In college he was active in student affairs and was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. While in school Mr. Huse was reporter on the Daily Nebraskan, the university paper.

On May 23, 1905, he was married to Miss Grace M. Losch of West Point and two children Elizabeth and William N., were born to them. Elizabeth is now a doctor of medicine in the hospital where her father died, and William, a law graduate, is with the Cincinnati advertising department of Proctor and Gamble.

Upon the death of his father, W. N. Huse, Jan. 13, 1913, Norris Huse became editor of The News. He directed his efforts toward building up of foreign advertising. He was the originator of a plan of bringing to Nebraska in a special train thirty New York, Philadelphia, and Boston advertising men to show them the resources of the state. The project was successfully carried out under his direction. For this trip he raised more than $3,000 from Nebraska newspaper publishers, and at the end of the trip there was more than $1,000 left in the treasury.

When Mr. Huse assumed editorship of The News, the foreign advertising amounted to less than $20 a month—usable mostly in wood type. When he left for New York in October, 1916, the foreign advertising volume had mounted to approximately $2,000.

Norris Huse was a representative of the third generation of Huses who have published newspapers in northwestern Nebraska. His grandfather, the late William Huse, founded the first newspaper, The Northeast Nebraska Journal, in northeast Nebraska in 1871.

Mr. Huse is survived by his widow, his daughter, Dr. Elizabeth Huse, his son, William N. Huse, his mother, Mrs. J. J. Kennedy of Sioux City, and his brother, Gene Huse, editor of the Norfolk Daily News.

Tom Johnson was a Wayne visitor last Tuesday.

Organized Farm Folk to Lincoln

Mrs. Moses Honored as One of Nebraska's Best Rural Leaders

The annual Organized Agriculture meetings held at the Nebraska college of agriculture last week were well attended despite the unfavorable weather that kept hundreds of farm people in estimated, was well above that of one year ago.

Honored at the Organized Agriculture meetings was a Wayne county woman, Mrs. F. I. Moses. Although not present her name was presented to the home economics sectional program as one of the state's outstanding rural leaders in her present position as county project chairman.

Every agricultural society in the state met during the week. Particular interest centered around the general sessions, hybrid corn, pump irrigation, a livestock program on rented farms, and discussion of the weather. Because of the blocked roads few people from Wayne county attended the meetings.

W. B. Kincer, the nation's best known weather authority, told the farm people that much "loose" talk about human activity causing changes in climate is utter nonsense. Long droughts, he said, have occurred before. He added that the basic consideration in farming dry areas should include the practical certainty that dry climatic phases at least as severe as in the past, will recur.

"Man is not responsible for drought or dust as sent by nature," Kincer declared. "But it is a tragic fact that the drier sections of the plains have been extensively plowed and cultivated where crop farming never should have been attempted. Much of the one time grassland is now under cultivation and has become an aggravator of dust storms. Man cannot make it rain but he can do the next best thing—restore the original natural conditions as far as possible and avoid repeating mistakes of the past."

"Many people think, because of the recent successive drought years, that the climate is permanently changing, either naturally or from some act of man. The popular fallacy is that man can basically change climate or that it is changing from some other cause is not a product of the 20th century. The belief is found in the log of one of Columbus voyages and in the weather diary of Thomas Jefferson."

Kincer sounded a more optimistic note by forecasting that "doubtless when the present drought definitely comes to an end there will be a period of years with comparatively heavy rainfall and little will be heard about dust storms and the like."

Wayne High Cage Team Play Pierce Friday Night

The Wayne public school basketball team are scheduled to play Coach Kermit Ambrose's team at Pierce this Friday. The next home game for the Wayne team will be next Friday evening when they meet Neligh on the municipal auditorium floor. The games scheduled with Bloomfield Tuesday and with Laurel last Friday were postponed because of weather and road conditions.

Drifts Hold Train for Nearly 30 Hours at Apex

Rescue workers after fighting snow drifts, broken down equipment and other obstacles for nearly 30 hours, early last Saturday morning freed a snowbound M&O passenger train bound for Norfolk from Sioux City. Fifteen passengers and a crew of seven were aboard. The train passed through Wayne late Thursday night and about two hours later, after bucking drifts, became hopelessly snowbound in a drift said to be about 22 feet deep in a cut near Apex siding which is located between Winslow and Hoskins.

On Friday morning a snow plow pushed by two engines passed through Wayne but at Winslow one of the engines pulled out a draw bar. Another engine was dispatched from Sioux City but developed trouble at Emerson, where it was forced to pause several hours for reconditioning. Meanwhile passengers aboard the train were anxiously and helplessly awaiting arrival of rescue parties.

Food eaten by the snowbound passengers while in their act of God prison, consisted of ice cream and some bakery goods aboard the train. When water in the engine boiler became low and the crew was faced with the possibilities of killing the fire in the boiler to thwart an explosion, snow from the drifts was shoveled onto the tender and melted for the boiler. In this way the coaches were kept warm which prevented serious discomfort for the passengers.

On being freed from the drifts, the train was backed to Wayne where the passengers were fed and water for the engine secured.

Rohwer Rites Held Here on Wednesday

Former Wayne Man Dies At Sioux City Home Friday

Funeral services for George Rohwer of Sioux City, former Wayne resident were held Wednesday at Our Redeemer's Evangelical Lutheran church with the Rev. W. F. Most in charge. Burial was in the Greenwood cemetery. He was 81 years old.

Mr. Rohwer who was born March 11, 1855 in Germany died at his home Friday of heart disease.

At the age of 18 years he emigrated to the United States and resided in Omaha for 12 years. From there he moved to Butte, Mont. In 1886, he married Miss Margaret Otto who preceded him in death in 1914. He and his family moved to Carroll, Nebr., in 1897. In 1913 they moved to Wayne and lived here until 1923 when Mr. Rohwer moved to Sioux City where he lived the remainder of his life. He married Mrs. Minnie Sodemans in 1910 and she preceded him in death in 1923.

He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith and while in Wayne he was a faithful member of Our Redeemer's Lutheran church. He is survived by one son, George Rohwer, Jr., of South Sioux City; six daughters: Mrs. Florence Wiegler, Mrs. Elizabeth Brooks, and Mrs. Frances Spidell of Sioux City, Mrs. Wilhelmina Barnett and Mrs. Clara Woodruff of Chicago, and Mrs. Elvira Brooks of Encampment, Wyo. Eleven grandchildren also survive Mr. Rohwer.

Pallbearers were August Kruss, William Bleeke, Louis Rosacker, Walter Lerner, Louis Gramberg, and George Harder.

The Beckenhauer funeral home was in charge of funeral arrangements.

Building-Loan Company Pays 4%

Shareholders Receive Two Semi-Yearly Payments Of 2 Per Cent Each

Leslie W. Ellis, secretary and treasurer of the Wayne Federal Savings and Loan association said early this week that stockholders in the company received two semi-annual dividends of 2 per cent each for the year 1936.

Mr. Ellis pointed out that the company which is entirely owned by Wayne people, was under the protection of the Federal Depository Insurance corporation and that money loaned by the institution served persons building homes who reside in this part of the country at 6 per cent. He said the association, after settling up the required reserve and paying dividends amounting to 4 per cent, the earnings account showed a substantial increase over that of a year ago.

Officers of the association are: Rolle W. Ley, president; William Beckenhauer, vice-president; Leslie W. Ellis, secretary and treasurer. Other directors are John T. Bressler, C. E. Carhart, Burr Davis, W. R. Ellis and Carl E. Wright.

Rev. Whitman Accepts Call to Baptist Church

The Rev. James A. Whitman of Newton, Mass., has been called by the Baptist church officials to succeed the Rev. M. C. Powers who resigned in September to accept a unanimous choice to the Falls City pastorate. He will deliver his first sermon in the Wayne pastorate this coming Sunday. The Rev. Mr. Whitman is a graduate of the Newton Theological seminary and had been pastor of the Second Baptist church of Newton. While a student in the seminary, he was a supply pastor during the summer months in the Baptist church of Pilger and Beatrice.

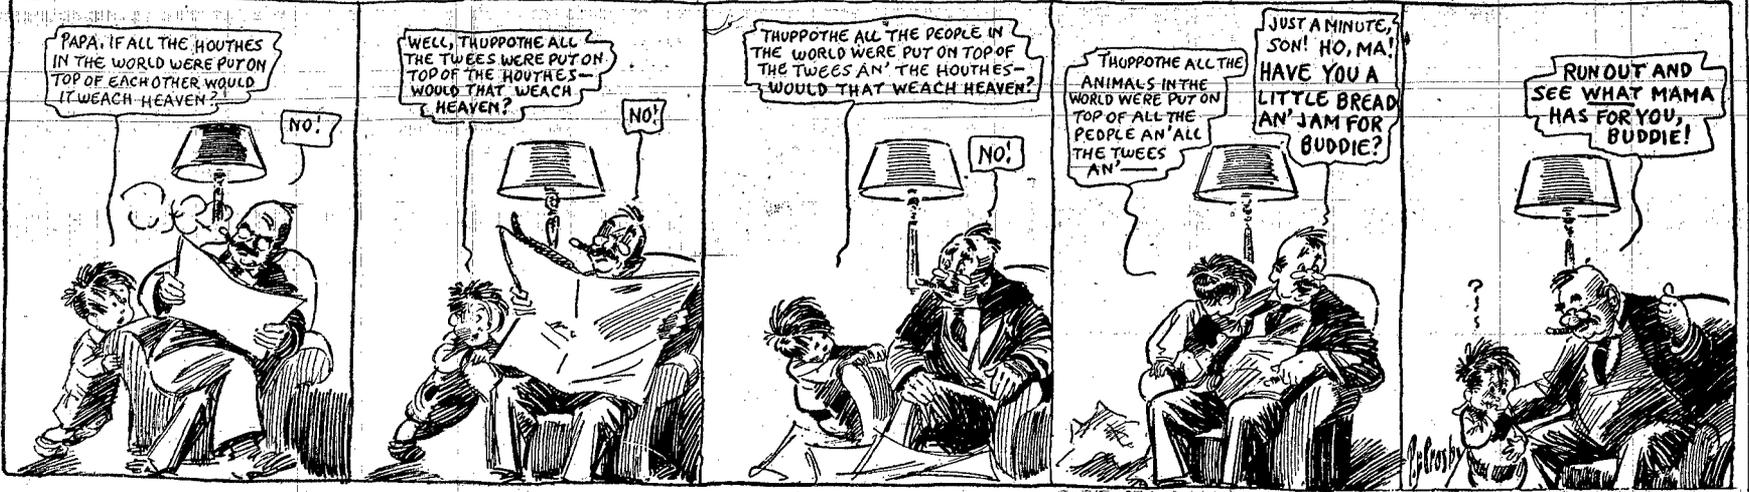

Mr. and Mrs. Whitman arrived Monday evening and are at home at the parsonage.

Gem Cafe to Add Booths John Meister, proprietor of the Gem cafe said early this week that he had made arrangements for installation of booths as soon as the new equipment arrives. The booths four in number, will each seat a person Mr. Meister said. He was of the opinion that the new equipment would arrive some time this week.

Borers Destroy Nebraska's Trees

As interest in spring tree planting quickened this week and farmers made application for Clark-McNary seedlings and transplants, the Wayne county farm bureau called attention to the damage done trees this year and in past years by insects and other pests.

Tree borers have been the most numerous and consequently the most destructive than in a great many years. Weather conditions and the weakening of trees by intense heat and lack of soil moisture have made them very susceptible to the attack of tree borers. During 1936 there was an unusually heavy infestation of red spider and they weakened the trees also.

Foresters believe that many American elms which have died in such large numbers would have survived had it not been for the presence of the flat-headed apple tree borer. This is probably true in Wayne county. Methods of controlling the borer and a description of its life history, appearance and habits are described in Extension Circular 1510 which is available at the Farm Bureau office.

Farmers are thinking about such control measures as they make application for the Clark-McNary trees through the same office. Last year a total of 27,800 were distributed locally for windbreaks and wind lots.

CONTOUR FARMING YIELDS BETTER CROP

Terrace Cultivation Gives Increased Return Over Square Farming

Every area of cultivated land on the A. H. Sibbersen farms produced crops in 1936. The farms, located southwest of Blair in Washington county, include 903 acres of crop and pasture land.

"I gave terraces and contour farming credit for the 1936 yields," Sibbersen says, "and I am sure I am giving credit where credit is due for on land adjoining mine, farmed up and down the slopes, corn made around one and one-half tons to the acre while my corn farmed on the contour that made from 3 to 4 tons per acre. I had corn listed on the contour that made from 5 to 6 tons per acre. To help clear away doubt G. H. Dungan, of the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station, recently aided farmers by explaining some of the things buyers should look for and others they should avoid if they wish to get good hybrid seed corn.

"Corn growers should understand," he said, "that good hybrid seed cannot be produced by crossing two open-pollinated varieties, by detasseling certain rows of an adapted variety, or by selecting seed in a field grown from commercial hybrid seed. And not all hybrids are good, not even all hybrids that involve four inbred lines."

Certain hybrids that have given outstanding performance over a period of years in a certain section of the state are no better in other sections than adapted open-pollinated varieties, say agronomists of the United States Department of Agriculture who cooperate in this corn work. The merit of a given hybrid depends on its ability to give a satisfactory yield of sound corn, to stand up until harvest, and to do these consistently year after year. Information as to these qualities can be established only by repeated tests in the general area in question.

Cites Pointers in Buying Hybrid Corn

Many growers have only a hazy idea of what is meant by hybrid per acre and it was not cultivated once.

"For the first time in my farming experience, I did not have to reseed a single acre of my land the past spring. Contour farming kept the seeds from being washed out on the hillsides and buried on the level areas. Farming on a large scale as I do, a crop failure costs me at least twenty thousand dollars and I can't afford to overlook anything that tends to insure a yield."

Working in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service camp at Blair, Sibbersen has instituted a complete erosion control program on this farm. In addition to terraces and contour farming, he is using crop rotation, grazing control, fire prevention on meadow land and cover crops to hold soil and conserve moisture.

Norfolk Company Gets Heating Plant Contract

Wayne city councilmen meeting in regular session Tuesday evening opened bids for steam heat equipment to replace gas fired radiators in the Clerk's office, Womens club rooms and custodian's apartment. The contract was awarded to W. G. Volkman of Norfolk, whose bid was for $1,555. Other bidders and their bids are as follows:

E. A. Seiffert of Norfolk, $1,585; O. S. Roberts $1,595 and H. B. Craven $2,145.18.

The contract included installation of steam radiators in the before mentioned portions of the building, a steam line from the boiler in the rear part of the building and a return line. Gas radiators in these rooms are being removed because they cannot be successfully vented.

I. O. O. F., Rebekahs Have Joint Installation Monday

Members of the Rebekah lodge and the Independent Order of Odd fellows held a joint installation of officers for the year at their meeting Monday evening at the lodge hall. Mrs. A. D. Lewis, and A. E. Davison were installing officers for their chapters.

"Life" is the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Christian Science churches for Sunday, Jan. 17.

The Golden Text is from Psalms mine inheritance and of my cup; thou maintainest my lot. . . Thou wilt show me the path of life.

A passage from the Bible in the lesson-sermon is from Psalms 90:1, 2: "Lord thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever before thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God."

Miss Vivian Felt of Wakefield spent from Tuesday until Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Larsen.

Nebraskans in the Nation's Capitol

By Lewis F. Shull

THE 75TH CONGRESS — COFFEE INTRODUCES BILL 1ST DAY — SIDELIGHTS ON THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH TO CONGRESS — ASSEMBLED . . .

The first session of the 75th Congress may appear to be merely a babe in its swaddling clothes howling lustily to cut its teeth upon an important piece of legislation but that it will grow rapidly and mature to be a serious minded thinking session is the general consensus of the scholars on Capitol Hill affairs.

Senator Robinson has expressed the belief that this would be a "leisurely session". We trust that the Senator meant leisurely in the sense of carefully debating and digesting; each measure on the calendar before approving and not a "do-nothing" session.

It is good that our government is so constructed that the legislative and executive branches can, in a time of emergency, unite and hurry into action any necessary measures. But it is better that it is also designed as a deliberative body.

Congress has met the past week under conditions vastly different from those of nearly four years ago. And today the atmosphere differs greatly from that which pervaded the capital in 1933 when Roosevelt first took office.

The convening of this Congress should call the signals for a change of pace. In '33 every thought was to cope with the emergency and congress instead of legislating merely turned the power over to various executive agencies. Now they must resume their true legislative function and carefully survey and review all past emergency legislation.

Congress must consolidate the gains made, eliminate over-lapping of many departments and retrace unfortunate steps. The prime requisite is for congress to revert to her normal practices in a democratic government.

Speed in an emergency is highly commendable but of no less importance is the employment of the critical faculty after the emergency has passed. The braking power in government.

With the over-whelming majority in both the House and the Senate, the Democrats could easily employ steam roller methods and legislate as they pleased. To do this would be suicidal to the best interests of the Democratic Party. They would lose a great part of their support and following. Their very strength makes restraint the more desirable.

Many measures of great import await the consideration of the 75th Congress. Those primarily affecting the people of Nebraska will be Crop Insurance, Government aid for tenant farmers and a varied group of proposals to renew Federal control over agriculture. The Resettlement administration says that 49 per cent, or 65,909 farms in Nebraska are operated by tenants.

Included in the list to come up on the calendar will be such far-reaching objectives as neutrality, economy, slum-reclamation, low-cost housing, legislation, civil service reform and a measure to improve conditions of unorganized and under privileged labor.

In addition Congress must pass the regular appropriation bills and decide whether to continue various emergency measures, including the President's power to devalue the dollar and to make reciprocal trade agreements.

A full calendar such as this starting the members in the face should tend to shape the course of the ship of state. There must be no aimless drifting.

The Seventy-fifth Congress will be judged by its ability to regain the balance of power and bring about a restoration of democratic procedure.

Representative Coffee introduced a bill on the floor of the House the first day of the session which provides for a levying of a 10 per cent tax of the value of articles imported from the 15 countries in default of interest on war debts due the United States. The duty imposed by this act will end when the President finds such a country is no longer delinquent in its interest payments due.

The duties collected under the Act shall be held and considered as payment by the country on its war debt. Coffee's bill upon closer analysis has several interesting angles. Your writer does not know whether Congressman Coffee believes the bill will pass or whether it is designated merely to stimulate the thinking and action among the citizens of the defaulting nations. The latter would probably be the nearer right. Everyone knows taxes are generally passed on to the consumer and that it is difficult to keep prices stable. We have all walked in a store one day and have seen, for example, a suit marked $50.00 and a week later the same suit marked $45.00. This ad valorem tax. Congressman Coffee proposes would probably make a British suit priced at $50.00 before the tax was imposed, sell for approximately $55.50 afterwards. Many people will exclaim, "They shouldn't buy British tweeds anyway — Buy American." True but still some people will buy the articles with the tax added and will pay toward the past due interest on the defaulted bonds for the foreign countries. Down the line from chemical imports to clothes the added price would logically be passed on to the American consumer who would purchase. Many articles we may need. Why should the American people pay more for these articles in order for the foreign war debts to be released, Congressman Coffee does not intend this in any sense.

Take the trade in Scotch as another example of how effective this bill, if passed would become. If the price of Scotch went up 10 per cent Americans would buy domestic bourbon instead. Home manufacture would be stimulated. The market for Scotch in the United States would be greatly decreased. Foreign exporters would notice this immediately and clamor for a settlement of the war debts. It would make them as a citizenry realize the actuality of the debt and desire to do something about it. It would bring the existing state of affairs forcibly home to them. In this light, Representative Coffee's plan to create greater interest and agitation for a settlement of the war debts is highly commendable. With this motive the bill (H. R. 225) is a most timely and worthwhile measure.

The Constitution provides that the Vice-president preside at joint sessions of Congress.

Dressed in frock coat, Vice-president Garner led the senators into the House chamber and took his seat at the Speaker's dais by Speaker of the House, Bankhead.

Three rows of seats in the House chamber were reserved for the Senate. They wore plain business suits. The whole ceremony for the counting the vote cast last November 3 took an even 30 minutes.

It seemed silly—still the fact that, officially the outcome of the election has remained a secret until now and the formality in which they carried out the constitutional procedure impressed one.

Promptly at 1 p. m. Garner called for order and briefly explained the constitutional mandate for the counting of the vote.

The Vice-president named Senators George, Demo., of Georgia and Austin, Rep., of Vermont as Senate Tellers. For House tellers he named Fletcher, Demo., of Ohio, and Tinkham, Rep., of Mass.

The two proudest lads in town were the two pages who had been selected to carry in the box containing the electoral votes.

As required by law, Garner opened the envelopes containing the electoral votes giving him and the President four more years in office.

He cleared his throat after giving the Presidential result and added modestly that Mr. Garner had been elected Vice-president. This panicked some of the boys in the press gallery who they tipped back into the press chamber to smother their mirth. Everyone relaxed to await the President's arrival.

He arrived at the capitol from the White House by car. His son James, Mrs. Roosevelt, and Whitehouse aides McIntyre and Early accompanied him.

T. S. Hook and G. A. Renard left Tuesday for Omaha where they attended a two-day annual convention of the Nebraska Agency. They returned home Wednesday.

Miss Marcella Huntener of Athens, O. who is attending the University of Ohio returned to her school Saturday after spending the Christmas holidays at the home of her parents. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Huntener. Mrs. Huntener accompanied her to Omaha where she spent the week-end visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. T. W. Moran. She returned home Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Charles Watson of Lincoln who arrived in Wayne Thursday is spending the week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White. Mr. White is confined to his home because of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Struve of Sioux City and Franklin Landmack of Emerson were week-end house guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude G. Mitchell.

Miss Katherine Lou Korff of Fullerton spent last week visiting at the homes of Mrs. Alvina M. Korff and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Korff. She returned to her home Monday morning. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Alvina Korff.

The Rev. and Mrs. Walter Brackensick were Sunday supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Echtenkamp.

Wayne Wildcats Take Easy Win Over York

The Wayne State Teachers college Wildcats after dropping a fast game to Kearney Monday evening staged a comeback Tuesday night by polishing off the York Panthers with a 42 to 19 victory.

The Wildcats scored 7 points before York finally came through with a free throw. At the end of the half Wayne held a 20 to 8 lead. Gragson led the scoring for Wayne with 10 points. He was closely followed by Lingenfelter who furnished four field goals and one free toss to the Wildcat's total. Chief scoring threat on York's quint was Wages.

What Wayne Needs

Every now and then as persons here find time and heavy thinking on their hands the thought of what Wayne needs comes to the fore. A lot of hot air is usually the outcome of such brainstorming and Wayne continues to be Wayne, the pretty little seat of Wayne college and Wayne county—just what it has been for years and very likely just what it will be in years to come.

True enough, a measure of progress can be made and no doubt will be made as time goes on, but progress here is going to be due largely to the efforts of the people who reside in Wayne. Any progress made here will in no way be due to the efforts of a professional "builder upper" it's going to be due to the united efforts of those whose heart strings are tied to the things most dear to them right here at home.

We have not lived in Wayne as long as many others but we have become attached to it in the few years we have made this fine little city our home. We have resided in other places both larger and smaller and in most instances we must be frank to admit that we have not noticed anything vastly different in the way of spirit here, than that existing in other cities of similar size. If there is anything different we would say that it favors the progress of this city.

We have found some persons who in our mind are a bit obstinate at times but we have found them in other places too. We have found cliques and groups here but we have found these to a far greater degree in other places. We have noted lack of enthusiasm but we have never known of a place where there was an over-abundance of it.

Wayne is quite well organized. It has its civic organizations and they quite likely accomplish as much as any "eat and drink" groups anywhere. As one business man said recently, "It's likely the things the civic organizations do NOT accomplish that justifies their existence more than do the things they accomplish." In several instances civic groups had stopped certain "steam roller" movements that might have been costly.

We have all heard the expression to the effect that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link. It is true as can be. If you do not believe it try to tow your car some morning, when it's hard to start, with a chain in which there's a link that's seen its best days. You'll be convinced. In a like manner, a city, no matter how large or how small, can be only as progressive as the people are who compose its business life.

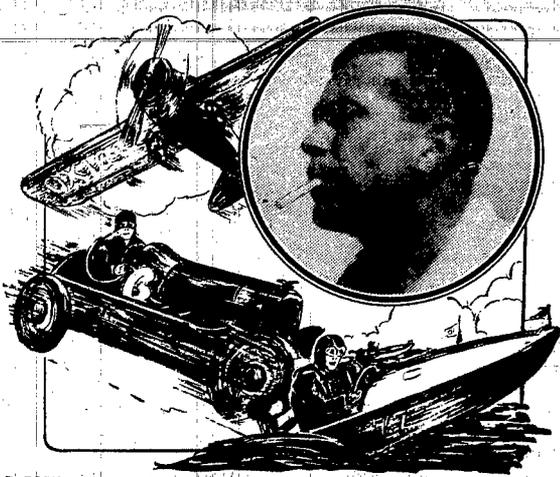

What does Wayne need? Ah yes, that's the title of this article. We wish we knew for sure. If we did we are positive our services would be in demand throughout the width and breadth of this nation. We could hire ourselves out as a professional "builder upper" but the greatest trouble with our job would be that we would have no opportunity to make use of our superior ability.

With the knowledge and ability we would have at our command we would be of so much greater value to ourselves in private business that we could not come close to being able to do so much as afford to work at the comparatively small figure any civic organization would feel able to pay.

What's the solution? Well, here's one we could make for what it might be worth. We recall that not quite one year ago, Wayne automobile dealers got to this territory one of the greatest bang-up automobile shows this portion of the infatuation has yet seen. They put the thing over because they organized themselves for the work and saw to it that every phase was handled in tip top shape. One of the auto dealers in commenting upon the success of last year's show summed up the thing by saying "We got the job done because none of us were smart enough at the outset that we were setting forth upon an impossibility."

There you have an idea of what a well coordinated group can do. Wayne auto dealers worked as a committee. The same thing can be accomplished for other promotional purposes. From the already existing civic groups a committee for a definite purpose can be formed. Members of this group would necessarily have sufficient confidence vested in them so they would be able to be a voice for their own group. From this nucleus all programs for civic improvement could be effectively be handled and if at the end of the year the group had accomplished what they should a generous Christmas present could be given each in the form of a check. Thus, pay that might go to account under other plans, could be given

Nickname Brought Him Success

HOW a detested nickname may lead to success is exemplified in the amazing career of Henry C. Olmsted, son of an old Pennsylvania family of social position and wealth, who has almost overnight become one of the leading lights in the theatrical firmament. Under two outstanding attractions under his wing and three more plays shortly to open on Broadway, this former Harvard student, who has made speed his hobby, gives promise of becoming one of America's leading producers.

After his graduation from Harvard young Olmsted devoted himself to affairs of speed—the driving of racing cars, high-powered boats and planes. As a consequence, he became known as "Speed" Olmsted. It was a designation that roused his wrath, but fight it as he might it stuck, and finding it impossible to free himself of the hated pseudonym Olmsted determined to make it a respected title.

To the amazement of those who thought him but a devotee to fast cars, boats and planes, the thirty-two-year-old speed hobbler launched himself into the theatrical world as the co-producer of "Mulatto," one of the most successful plays that Broadway has seen in many moons. Hard upon that he interested himself in another big success—"New Faces"—and before his friends had caught their breath he had taken over a theatre and put three new shows into rehearsal.

By the rigorous riding of his speed hobby Henry Olmsted is enabled to accomplish affairs that would otherwise be impossible. A skilled pilot and the owner of two fast planes, he makes use of the airways in his theatrical interests and as vice-president of a large wire and cable corporation. Whether his theatrical or corporation doings necessitate his going to Spokane, Hollywood or Kansas City, Mr. Olmsted gets there in one of his speedy planes. Often he takes a secretary along and dictates and takes care of business affairs in cloudland.

Thursday, Jan. 13, 1937—Testing of Wayne county cattle for tuberculosis was begun Monday with Dr. Purdy in charge of the work for this county. They began in Hunter precinct with Johnson and Hawkins assisting. It is planned to begin the work in Strahan precinct next week, with Dr. Peterson of Winside assisting in this territory. These two precincts will be finished without interruption and then others added in order.

The big annual social event of the year of the Wayne chapters of the Royal Neighbors and Modern Woodmen of America occurred last Tuesday evening at a joint installation of officers. There was an attendance of more than 200 members, and after the impressive installation, the hours were given over to sociability, dancing, and feasting, and it was not until the small hours of Wednesday were marked on the dial of the clock that they dispersed.

Sixteen men of the football team of the local college were awarded letters recently by F. G. Dale, head athletic coach for the college.

A joint concert is to be given here next Thursday night at the community house by the Wayne Ponce and Wayne high school bands which will include about forty-five pieces. The program will be given to raise funds with which to buy uniforms for the local band.

A message read by E. B. Young from his son, pianist of the Gypsy Smith evangelistic party, tells that they will shortly start east from Vancouver, B. C., where they are now conducting a series of meetings, after touring Australia and New Zealand.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Jacobs left here Wednesday morning for the remainder of the winter at San Antonio, Texas. Opinions seem to differ about the attractions at San Antonio as a winter resort but Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs made a trial of the place last winter and are willing to venture again. They have been in the southwest land of California and the south east land of Florida and usually spend their summers on the rugged coast of Maine, so doubtless they are at least familiar with some of the places and seem to choose the central land again this season.

Thursday, Jan. 20, 1937 K. J. Cabler of Boise, Idaho, was a visitor here last week while in Wayne looking after business interests. Two of his twenty-four Nebraska teams are in Wayne county.

The Carhart Lumber company of Wayne purchased the Farmers Lumber company of Randolph, recently from L. Schomburg. J. H. Henrichs of Carroll is the local manager and is now in charge of the business.

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen received honorable mention for one of her stories entered in a statewide writing contest sponsored by the Omaha Women Press club and was open to the entire state.

The forty-ninth convention of the Nebraska Volunteer firemen are in session at Columbus this week, and close their three-day session today.

Wayne members attending included Martin Ringler, Lester Vath, E. E. Fleetwood, Joe Baker, William Jenkins, John Bingold, and Harry Barnett.

Headed by the new training school, building improvements for Wayne and the immediate vicinity are estimated to be the greatest in recent years. The new college building costing approximately $115,000 was dedicated at the beginning of the school term. The Chevrolet garage building, the new home of the Wayne Herald, the John Lewis building, and the Scace and Horney building, all of which are fine brick structures costing large sums of money, have been built in the past year.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Anson B. Davis, Dec. 29, 1936.

Thursday, Jan. 29, 1927—

Tom Skoyhill, Australian war veteran, poet, traveler, and student of literature, political economy, and world affairs appeared at the college auditorium Tuesday night on the Lyceum course choosing for his topic the dramatization of "Mussolini, Fascist Founder and Ruler of Italy". A vivid insight into the life and characteristics of this well known ruler was presented.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Milliken left recently for Berkeley, Calif., where they plan to spend the winter.

Fire, which is thought to have started in the roof from a spark, burned the home of Andy Thompson to the ground last Sunday afternoon and most of the furniture was burned also. A hole had been burned in the roof and had gained considerable headway before being observed.

Willie Wittler who lives six miles southwest of Winside narrowly escaped serious injury last Friday when he was thawing out a frozen pipe with a torch. It seems that while he was thawing out the frozen pipe, the expansion caused it to burst and the concussion throwing the flame on his face. His eye was injured considerably, according to the report, but it did not prove to be serious.

Women Are Extremists; Easy To Handle, Says Conductor

Phil Spitalny and a Group of His "Charmers" He Makes Their "Dates," Picks Their Beaus, and Gets Away With It

NEW YORK.—Managing thirty beautiful young women, and all of them musicians, is a job for any man, but it doesn't seem to bother Phil Spitalny.

The noted maestro of stage and radio is the only orchestra leader who has ever attempted the feat in a big way, and for two and one-half years he has run the "roost" without a ripple, it seems.

"Women are easier to handle than men because they are extremists," says the baton leader. "If they hate, they hate harder; if they love it works the same way, and if they are real musicians they are better than most males."

He also claims that they can be more loyal, and by the same token more disloyal, than they memorize faster than the opposite sex, and are never late; that the smart ones are smarter than men and the dumb ones dumber.

Spitalny, an extremely vital person, with plenty of temperament of his own, not only waves the magic musical wand over his Musical Queens. He selects their clothes, arranges their coiffures, picks their beaus, and gets away with it. They are, however, often chosen his neckties, which are loud ones. Spitalny's favorite color is red but he likes his girls to wear white.

He taboos boyish bobs, jewelry, red finger-nail polish, too much make-up and décolleté gowns, and thinks girls look prettier with their hair parted in the middle. The top weight is 120 pounds and if a member of the band goes over that mark she is put on a strict diet. By a coincidence, the entire band is composed of brunettes, but according to Phil this doesn't mean that they make better musicians than blondes.

If a girl has a "date" she asks permission before accepting it. Phil must know his name and where they're going, and if a girl signs up with the band it's with a guarantee that she won't make any matrimonial vows for at least six months. With salaries starting at $75.00 a week and a percentage of profits for all, most of the girls stick to their jobs, Phil added.

While Spitalny acts as the "higher court," a committee of five lay down the rules and regulations in general. Evelyn heads the list as concert manager, assisted by Patricia, first trumpeter, Gypsy, star saxophonist, Maxine, soloist, and Rochelle, pianist.

Spitalny combed the country for talent, listening to more than 1,500 auditions before selecting his unique and celebrated musical unit which recently completed a coast to coast tour. Spitalny and his girls will be featured on the air in an "Hour of Charm" program, sponsored by dealers of the General Electric Company. Starting November 2nd over the National Broadcasting station-wide hookup, they will be heard every Monday from 4 to 4:30 p. m. (E.S.T.).

HOW I BECAME A RADIO STAR

by CHARLES BUTTERWORTH

It's always made my blood boil to hear people say, "Butterworth... Charles Butterworth... you know... that absent-minded fellow." And yet as I look back over my career, what else but amnesia could have caused me to drift from the throes of law, through newspaper work, to the musical comedy stage, then to the screen and now to radio.

but not satisfaction. Some scout thought my serious address had been amusing to him. He finally talked Believe me, my clients, when I say that I had always wanted to be a lawyer. You will admit the very thought of an English barrister with his rather attractive wig (which I later learned American solicitors never don) might appeal to any youthful imagination. And for some reason, so it was with me. I accepted law as a career. The Butterworth tradition held that the eldest son had always born the torch of his generation, but this time the whiskers of Old Man Time were due to be singed.

BUTTERWORTH

Picture me if you can, after admittance to the Indiana Bar, ready to hurl myself at the doors of justice. And now try to follow me still further. Almost overnight, Fate altered the course of a carefully planned career. In some manner just enough printer's ink had stained my hands, and I was lured into a New York newspaper office which catapulted me on my way towards the bright lights of Broadway, past rows of sardonic critics and up on the American stage of comedy and jest.

I wanted to be serious and write seriously, but my boss accepted all of my work as a joke. Things I said and did would dispatch him into gales of laughter. I got pretty discouraged. Then I was asked to make a speech at a Press Club luncheon. I spent sleepless nights preparing it, but I flopped. At least what I said in all sincerity sent everyone into fits of laughter. Now I was really beginning to feel low. The morning brought good news.

me into signing a stage contract. And so I appeared in "Americans," "Flying Colors" and "Good Boy" and woke up one day in Hollywood. My introduction to radio was provoked by more absent-mindedness. This time it was my old friend, Fred Astaire, who forgot that I was alleged to be a comedian, and engaged me as a talent scout for his Tuesday night series over NBC. But in truth the new assignment was second nature to me for I really discovered such stars as Greta Garbo and Carole Lombard. Say, I almost forgot—it was the Butterworth eye which uncovered Astaire himself.

Clark-McNary Trees Available to Applicants

With emphasis being placed on conservation of natural resources and wild life, farmers making application for Clark-McNary seedlings and transplants for 1937 planting believe trees and shrubs can be of big help in encouraging wild life development in Nebraska.

Many trees and shrubs furnish food for birds and protection for all forms of wild life, the Wayne county farm bureau pointed out this week also in calling attention to the availability of the Clarke-McNary trees. Throughout the state and in Wayne county the number of groves and thickets has dwindled down resulting in a lack of protection for game and birds of all kinds. This is particularly evident at this time. Fortunately there is a large number of trees and shrubs that are hardy and which furnish food for birds.

Mother and Son Begin New Year Together After 22 Years Apart

Mrs. Lee Reyman and her 22-year-old son, Robert Downing, pose in a New York radio studio before they return to the Valley Center, Kansas, home he left when eight-months old.

THE New Year should be a good year for Mrs. Lee Reyman of Valley Center, Kansas. She has just been reunited with her 22-year-old son, whom she hadn't seen since he was eight months old.

Just before Mrs. Reyman's son, Robert, was born twenty-two years ago, her husband died. His passing left the mother destitute. When Robert was five months old, she did the only thing left for her—took him to an orphan asylum.

That was twenty-two years ago. For the first few months, she was helped by the knowledge that Robert was at least close to her. Then, she learned that he had been adopted by a Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Downing of Waterloo, Iowa. She decided it would be best to make herself believe that her little boy had died.

Had it not been that Mr. and Mrs. Downing, in bringing up the youngster, told him that his real mother was still alive, it is likely that the two would never have seen one another again. However, young Downing insisted that he would some day find his real mother; and was still determined to locate her when, two years ago, he migrated with his foster parents to California. Six weeks ago, in examining for the thousandth time the small suitcase that had come with him from the orphanage, a letter bearing Mrs. Reyman's name and address fell out of the lining. Mrs. Reyman thanks not only her son but also "We The People," the NBC radio program, for the new hope that awaits her during 1937, she says. It was while listening to this Sunday afternoon broadcast that it occurred to him that the people, for whom and by whom the show is run, might be able to help him and his mother meet. He immediately wrote the Listeners' Committee, which controls the program. The Committee at once made arrangements for bringing Robert and his parent to New York, all expenses paid.

Mrs. Reyman saw her son at the rehearsal two hours before the show went on the air. As Robert entered the studio, Phillips Lord, who conducts the program, grinned at her and inclined his head. For a moment, as mother and son gazed upon each other's faces for the first time, they were silent. Then they embraced with a cry that was half-laugh, half-sob.

It will be a good year for Mrs. Reyman and her boy, all right. He is returning with her to Valley Center. He won't go back to his work in California until they have taken care of twenty-two years of talking.

These, the farm bureau believes, should be planted in great numbers. No other group of plants are more valuable for use in erosion control when planted for this purpose, they not only serve that purpose but provide protection and furnish food for wild life.

Many of the trees available through the Farm Bureau office can well be planted for wild life conservation. Thus far Wayne county farmers have made application for 500 seedlings and transplants. The leading tree planting county in the state in interest is Lancaster county where 14,900 trees have been applied for by farmers.

An Easy Job for a Colored Boy

By IRVIN S. COBB

MOST of us are familiar with the story of the colored brother in a Southern town who was approached by a labor agent seeking recruits for a construction contract in a nearby state.

"Look here, boy," said the white man. "Would you like to have a nice steady job of work?"

The darky stirred wearily, where he reclined against the sunny side of a cotton bale.

"Not if I kin get anything else to do," he stated, truthfully.

A somewhat newer variant of the same general theme has to do with a large black female who spoke proudly of her favorite son's present position.

"Henry, he's got a mighty nice job now," she said. "He gets plenty of money and don't even have to soil his hands. He's travelin' wad a circus. All he has to do is to git into a cage twice a day and put his head in de lion's mouth. De rest of de time he has to hisse!"

CIGARETTE PLAYED CUPID TO FAMOUS MUSICIAN

Antonio Modarelli, Conductor Of Pittsburgh Symphony Found Romance In Germany Through American Cigarette

AMONG the happiest couples in the world of music are Antonio Modarelli, the internationally known composer and conductor, who directs the famous Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, and his wife, Johanna. And—Mr. "Believe-it-or-Not" Ripley please note—they were introduced to each other by a cigarette.

It happened on a June day in 1929, on a train between Berlin and suburban Zehlendorf-West, where Modarelli was living at the time. Born and brought up in Pittsburgh, he had gone abroad seven years before to study music and composition, and, by the time of this particular train ride, had already achieved considerable prominence on the continent as a composer and conductor.

Deep in a musical reverie, Modarelli was scarcely aware of the presence of a fellow-passenger, an attractive young lady who was the only other occupant of the compartment, until he happened to glance up as she lit a cigarette. A look of particular interest flashed in his eyes as he noticed that her cigarettes were of a popular American brand, American cigarettes are, of course, expensive in Europe, too much so for a struggling young musician. Modarelli, who had not indulged himself such a luxury in a long time, couldn't resist the temptation of offering to trade his fellow-passenger a German cigarette for one of her American ones.

Gradually, she insisted on giving him the whole pack. A few minutes later the train stopped at Zehlendorf-West, and the musician discovered that the young lady was a close neighbor. Leaving the train, they found themselves marooned by a heavy shower. It was St. Anthony's Day, anniversary of the saint for whom Antonio Modarelli was named. He suggested that they celebrate the day and wait out the shower by having a cup of coffee together at a cafe near the station. They had the cup of coffee. The rain continued and they had dinner. At ten o'clock that night, five hours after their meeting, they were engaged. Ten months later, they were married. Shortly after that, Modarelli brought his blonde bride to America, with an eye on work in Hollywood for, while visiting in his own home town, Pittsburgh, Modarelli was offered the conductorship of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, a position which has since brought him to considerable national prominence.

A CIGARETTE BROUGHT THEM TOGETHER

Antonio Modarelli and his wife, who might have remained strangers in Germany if it weren't for an American Cigarette.

Mrs. Modarelli, known to her friends as "Hansi," had a considerable reputation in her native

Germany as a sportswoman and has several trophies to attest to her prowess as a yachtswoman, swimmer and skier. She is also adept at tennis and golf, and shares with her husband a fondness for sports and the outdoors which is all too rare in a musician.

Three times a year Modarelli observes without fail a sentimental custom. On June 13, on her birthday, and on their wedding anniversary, he gives "Hansi" a carton of the brand of American cigarettes which brought about their romance.

ences. On their return from Omaha they found themselves snow bound in Wisner. They remained there for a time and were impatient to return home. They were forced to abandon their car near Altona and remain over night at a farm house. Their cheeks and finger-tips were frost-bitten as they laboriously walked through and around large drifts and arrived in Wayne early Saturday.

Though behind on schedule, all trains were run on Saturday. A nearer "on time" basis was hit Sunday and now trains are again running on regular schedule.

The large, powerful rotary plow which is working near here has been drawing considerable attention from townfolk. It came to Wayne early Monday from Wisner, thus affording Wayne its first avenue of communication in the nature of an open highway since the paralysis set in. The plow then opened highway 35 to Winside. This road had already been opened from that point to Norfolk.

Late Monday the plow was driven through Wayne headed northward on 35 where it is working as I write this.

Progress is slow but quite certain with the type of rotary plow in use here. The machine is powered by a huge engine which sits on the frame of a ten-ton four-wheel drive truck. Large augers driven by the engine get the work done as the hard packed snow is literally drilled out and blown away.

All the while work is going forward to free county, state and district roads from snow drifts, there has been plenty of work done right here in Wayne. It is estimated that about 700 truckloads of snow have been hauled from the streets and dumped on the lots directly west of the sales pavilion. Though all snow has not yet been removed, the gutters and storm sewers are now clear so when chinook winds and a thawing sun take a hold the snow will not remain long.

I was interested to learn that snow removal in Sioux City for the recent storm alone will cost the city ten thousand dollars and that the municipality was forced to issue special bonds for the work.

Well, it will have been money earned by many laborers and it will quite likely be all spent right in the city itself so maybe a severe wintry spell has its good points too.

Have you ever wondered what became of the chain letter craze and its "send a dime to so and so at such and such an address" method of painless extraction? Well, the promoters made a pretty good thing of it as you may recall and then the postal authorities started picking up suspicious looking letters. Well, the dead letter office recently reported that nearly 32 thousand dollars had found its way to their office. Are any of your dimes among those present in Washington?

And now it's becoming easier than ever to become a senator. Nebraska's unicameral body is now known as the Nebraska state senate and its members are Senators, if you please. Well, there's not much in a name anyway. Now that you boys down there in Lincoln know pretty well in your own minds what you are, if not what some of the people think you are, let's see you get down to business and see if you know what you're to do and how soon you can do it.

The death of Farmer Burns in Council Bluffs recently brings to mind occasions when as a youngster I saw him sprung from a trap in a carnival athletic show. He would ask us to double our fists and hit him as hard as possible about the body, head and abdomen and then laugh at us and ask us to hit him hard. He was quite likely the most developed man, muscularly, that the world has ever known. The farmer was becoming childish before he died. His circumstances, like many of his kind, were none too good and he was an object of pity to many of his old associates who found it difficult to leave him when he talked of the "old days". I am wondering how many persons there are right in this part of the country who wrote to the farmer a number of years ago and asked him for his free book which told you of his course in learning to wrestle by mail.

I am indebted to one of my good friends for the following sale bill which evidently has been clipped from another newspaper. Were I able to give credit to the originator of this I would gladly do so. Anyway, here 'tis:

Public Auction
The Editor, Sir: The following described property has been consigned and will be placed on the auction block soon:

Complete soup house equipment, not used since March 4, 1933. One lot of breadline supplies, has been in storage over three years. Elephant harness last used four years ago. One steam roller in good condition, last used at Cleveland. One William Randolph Hearst baloney spreader, slightly worn from hard use in the past year. Lot of two-car garages built in 1929. Large supply of tear gas bombs, machine guns and riot sticks used to chase veterans out of Washington. One lot of special lawn mowers (for cutting grass that was to grow in the streets) never unpacked. One secret Hamilton steed, registered "national chairman" and also slightly worn from hard use in the handkerchiefs made for the Liberty League to wipe away tears they shed on account of liberty. A number of good platform planks, never used, consigned by William E. Borah.

Included in the sale will be a number of rare books, a copy of which should be in every American home. A partial list is as follows: "Running the White House for 12 Long Years," by Andrew Mellon, "Keeping a Family of Three on $1.08 a Week," by Alf Landon, "Moratoriums for Foreign Debtors" and "Foreclosures" for Americans," both by Herbert Hoover.—Auctioneer.

It is a beautiful day as I write this. The bright sunshine gleams against the snow and Wayne county continues to work tirelessly to wrest itself loose from the grips of winter. Cheer up, we'll be out soon and everything will be all right next week.—STAN.

Childs is Appointed to Teacher Retirement Group

Gayle B. Childs of the Wayne public school faculty was recently appointed to the state committee on teacher retirement of the Nebraska State Teachers association. The purpose of the organization is to work with the state legislature to draft a plan for teacher retirement.

Since teachers are not included in the federal social security act, it is definitely felt that some provision for retiring teachers should be made. Not only is it a part of the general security plan of the Nebraska State Teachers association to formulate teacher retirement plans but also to discuss increased tenure for Nebraska teachers.

School Plans First Issue of Harbinger

Plans for the first issue of this school term of the Harbinger, Wayne public school newspaper, are being completed and the first issue is expected to be in the mails this week as reported by school authorities. Miss Betty Wright is editor-in-chief. Managing editor is Miss Betty Ellis and Miss Betty Hawkins is associate editor.

The paper is under the supervision of Miss Leone Westover and Mildred Barrett.

City Clears Snow from Streets at Cost of $477

Providing employment for 44 men, twenty-two of whom were working at a time, the city of Wayne in little more than four days cleared between six hundred and seven hundred truck loads of snow from the streets and hauled it to the vacant lots just east of the sales pavilion in the south portion of town. The work was done at a cost of $477, Mayor Martin L. Ringer said.

Both Mayor Ringer and Walter Miller, street commissioner gave liberally of their time to helping with supervision of the work. By clearing of the vast amount of snow from Wayne's streets, city traffic was restored in almost record time. Though all snow was not removed, a sufficient amount was hauled away to leave the gutters and storm sewers open for carry away the water when thawing begins. Removal of the snow at this time also insures against damaging of pavement likely to take place when torrents of running water accompanied by heavy traffic start working havoc with streets.

Wayne High School Notes

The kindergarten class are beginning to build a grocery store and are using Patty Hill floor blocks. They are bringing grocery store pictures and supplies. They have a traffic signal. Reading readiness signs have been placed on objects in the room. The class is completing a booklet illustrating the three hours.

The first grade is compiling lists of underweight children who need milk. During the recess period, the pupils are learning new indoor games.

The second grade is organizing a writing club which includes the airplane, automobile, horse and buggy, and wheelbarrow divisions. The airplane club is the cover club and pupils with the best penmanship exercises are rated in this club. The pupils are studying a unit of work on dogs. Donna Smoleky and Francis Mitchell brought dog books and the class is reading these stories and are cutting out pictures of dogs for booklets.

Third grade pupils are having a Good Manners campaign founded on the Mary Gay stories. The stories concern a three-headed dragon which does all the things that children shouldn't do such as using bad grammar and having bad habits. They are writing verses and making posters in connection with this campaign.

And finally the much talked of rotary snow plow arrived and as this is being written, this portion of Nebraska is beginning to wiggle a bit beneath one of the heaviest mantles of snow to have fallen here in history.

It was early Saturday when the snowbound train with 15 passengers and a crew of seven was dislodged and brought back to Wayne for water and food and rest period for those 22 persons who had been prisoners of an act of God since late Thursday night.

I was interested in hearing Jerry Drennen popular traveling salesman of Norfolk, tell of his experiences in a radio interview. The thought of that train becoming snowbound did not enter my mind as I talked with Mr. Drennen shortly before he started for home. Another train which had come from that direction a short time before and headed by a snow plow, had come through with little difficulty.

Jim Ray was aboard that train. He had come up from Columbus that day and said he felt uneasy in Norfolk when railroad men at intervals, kept waiting passengers advised of the extent of delays.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith were among those who left Wayne that night, bound for Omaha. Mr. Smith had received word of his father's death and was called to the old home near the Missouri state line between Marysville, Mo., and Creston, Ia.

The Old Globe players, H. H. Hachmeier and Don Beaman were among those fortunate enough to be at their destination when they arrived in Wayne that night aboard the train which was later destined to become snow bound. Henry Hachmeier had been transacting business in Sioux City and Don Beaman had answered a gas company service call in Emerson.

Phil Briggs and Willis Noakes are thankful to be around so they can answer questions about their experiences.

Training School Notes

Due to the severe storm, the program which was to be given by the training school, glee club and orchestra this Thursday evening has been postponed until Jan. 21.

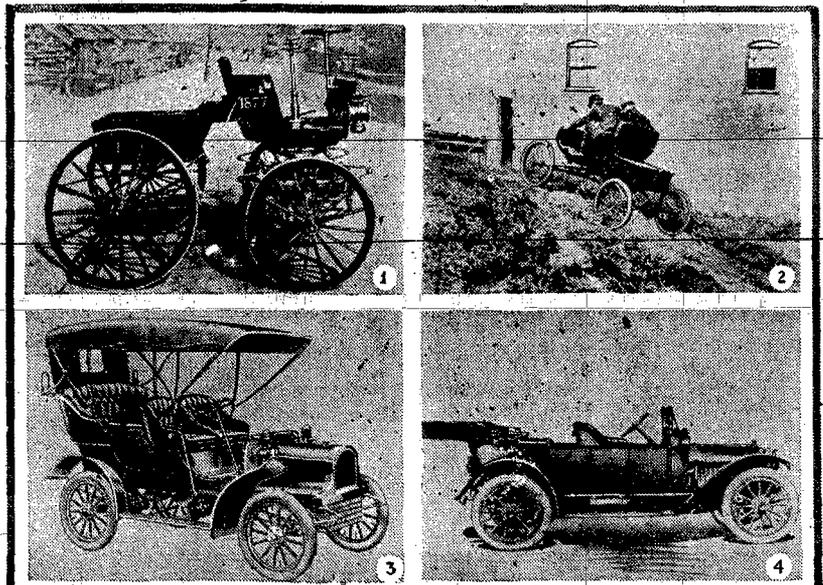

The college high school Pilger game which was scheduled for last Friday on the Pilger floor has been postponed until Jan. 20.

LeRoy Anderson as assembly program chairman was in charge of convocation Wednesday morning. Several extemporaneous numbers were given.

The next home basketball game for the college high five will be played this Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock when they meet Rising City on the college gymnasium floor.

The high school attendance record is reported normal following the drop in attendance at the beginning of the week when Wayne students were storm bound at their homes.

Evolution of the "Horseless Carriage"

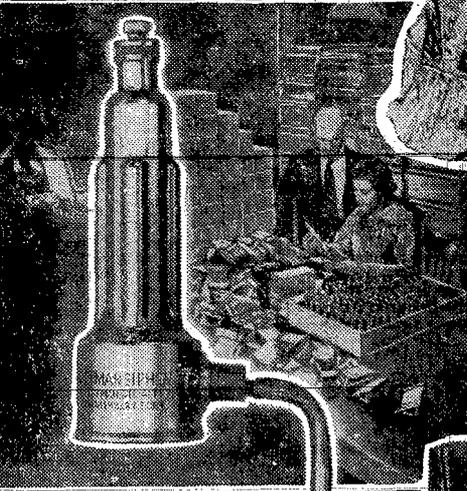

FROM "horseless carriage" to the "advanced" motor car design of 1911 is the story of progress in the automotive industry, as told by the pictures above. Picture number one, at the upper left, shows the first automobile, invented by George Selden in Rochester, N. Y., in 1877. "Get a horse," Selden's friends advised him when he introduced this strange contraption on the streets of his home town. But the inventor actually made his machine run, and it was no coincidence that the first petroleum lubricants to be used in an internal combustion engine were those used in Selden's car. Unable to get satisfactory results with the animal fats and tallow then used as lubricants, Selden went to Hiram Everest, a fellow townsman who had just founded the Vacuum Oil Company, forerunner of the present Socony-Vacuum Oil Company. Everest, a manufacturer of harness oils, developed the petroleum lubricant which insured the success of the first automobile and adventure in a 1901 Oldsmobile. A few more grunts and the two passengers in the racy model at the upper right will make the top of the hill. They don't seem to be exactly sure where they're going, but judging from the design of the car, automobile manufacturers didn't know where they were going either. No wonder people had to hold their horses when one of these machines took to the highway. The 1905 Buick, number three, had a top. Very luxurious, isn't it? The owner of this puddle jumper could probably dismount the hood and use it for a bath tub on Saturday nights. And there were other handsome gadgets including fenders, a rear door, overstrutted fenders, and a horn of the "squeeze" type. The Cadillac of 1911, number four, looked more like the automobile of today that did any of its predecessors. Designers hadn't thought about streamlining yet and the early cars had very angular lines. But this was back in the days when a radiator cap was a radiator cap, and not a piece of statuary. These early cars are a far cry from the modern, streamlined 1937 models which are being introduced at auto shows throughout America this week. But the automobile of today operates on the same principles that Selden used in the manufacture of his car, even though the new models incorporate beauty, safety and efficiency to a greater degree than George Selden could ever have dreamed possible.

THE DEMOCRAT SNAPSHOTS

The only place in the world where the tropics can possibly meet the north—on a Hollywood lot where these scantily clad beauties are frolics on the snow.

HELEN HAYES has just completed the first year of her brilliant reign as Queen Victoria. She is starring in the Broadway play dealing with the revered British monarch. Photo shows her in a second act costume. The popular actress also is on the air Monday nights in "Bambi" over the NBC-Blue network.

Watching the packing of the thirteen-millionth Hoffman siphon air valve. Mr. Arthur M. Coons, who made the original valve over 23 years ago, is shown as an interested spectator. Hoffman valves have been made in the same plant during all these years.

A different type of coronation—This pretty girl was crowned Potato Queen of Michigan in celebration of a $27,000,000 bumper potato crop.

"You mean me?" queries Charles Butterworth. The befuddled comedian has just received his cue from Fred Astaire during their Tuesday evening broadcast over the NBC-Red chain. One of the reasons Charley is popular is that no one knows what he will say next. It doesn't look as if he does himself.

The Coming D. L. Moody Centenary

THROUGH a series of international Moody Centenary celebrations the attention of the Christian world will be directed in 1937 toward D. L. Moody and the work which he established while engaged in his extensive evangelistic campaigns.

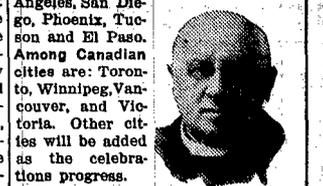

D. L. Moody

According to an announcement made by Dr. Will H. Houghton, President of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, founded by D. L. Moody in 1836, the Institute will be foremost in the observation of the Centenary of Moody's birth. Through its British Centenary Committee, of which the Marquis of Aberdeen is the President, Sir Leon Levison the Chairman, and Maurice Elington the Secretary, together with many outstanding Christian leaders of Great Britain, plans are now being made for a simultaneous observance abroad. Among the American speakers who will represent the Moody Bible Institute in Great Britain will be Dr. Harry A. Ironside, Evangelist "Mel" Trotter, Dr. Max I. Reich, and Dr. Will H. Houghton. Meetings are already scheduled for the principal cities of England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. Beginning in January, forty-five great metropolitan Bible conferences will be held throughout the United States and Canada. Bishop Taylor Smith, of London, England, who was Chaplain-General of the British forces during the World War and is very close to the Royal Family, a strong evangelistic leader, Jock Troup, who was the center of the revival among the Scotch fishermen fifteen years ago, and the Rev. Herbert Lockyer, Liverpool, England, will supplement an American team of speakers, which will include Dr. William Evans, of California, Dr. Harry Rimmer, of Duluth, Minnesota, Dr. Will H. Houghton, and others.

These outstanding Christian leaders will speak at each of the metropolitan conferences, tentative plans for which have been made for the following cities: In Eastern states, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Buffalo; in the South, Atlanta, Birmingham, Louisville, Nashville, Little Rock, Memphis, San Antonio, Houston; in Central states, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Detroit, Cleveland, Kansas City, Tulsa, Wichita; in the far West, Seattle, Spokane, Portland, Salem, Eugene, Carson City, Sacramento, Stockton, San Francisco, the Bay cities, Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix, Tucson and El Paso. Among Canadian cities are: Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria. Other cities will be added as the celebrations progress.

This occasion presents a unique opportunity for a re-emphasis of the things for which D. L. Moody and the Moody Bible Institute, for the past half-century, have stood — Bible teaching and soul-winning, and Christian leaders everywhere are being invited to co-operate.

UNKNOWN BEAUTY IS "CELLULOSE GIRL"

Cellulose, made from wood and cotton, form base of her negligee and all dressing table appointments.

NOTHING gives a woman quite so free a rein in expressing her own individuality as far as her appointments are concerned as the appointments of her dressing room. New fabrics and new plastics made from a common substance known as cellulose, all combine to put fresh charm and color at her disposal.

An example of the trend toward femininity is the dressing table photographed above and chosen by Miss Betty Delmar, young stage star recently selected by a leading fashion magazine as one of New York's seven loveliest "unknown beauties."

"Cellophane" fabrics are used to drape the dressing table as well as to make Miss Delmar's spectacular negligee, which endows her dressing room with a billowy lightness that is always gay and pleasing. But much of this charm would be lost if heavy, ungainly toilet articles were placed on the mirror top.

Plastic materials such as Pyralin are fashion's newest contribution to tempt feminine taste. Pyralin, which is used to make articles of every variety from tooth-brushes to toys, is particularly well adapted to styling and coloring for attractive toiletware, and many women prefer to replace old silver or scratched enamels with this smart new material.

The set selected by Miss Delmar has been styled by Howard Ketcham, the color engineer and brilliant industrial designer. The design is known as "Palette" and its simple chic lines are accented with intricate gold-colored motifs. Crystal clear handier and a sparkling glass tray lend a refreshing accent to the opaque Pyralin backs of the brush and comb and opaque lid to the crystal powder jar. For the white boudoir "Mediterranean Turquoise" was chosen, but the same pattern comes in coral, lilac and gold—all high fashion shades this season.

Choose Pyralin toiletware in your favorite color—for its lines are so good and the styling so advanced that you may be sure it will be an exquisite accessory as long as you need it. Drape your dressing table and choose your lampshades—the pleated one in the picture is of washable plastic—in harmonizing shades of gay inexpensive materials. Then see what fun it is to makeup and relax in a dressing room that expresses your very up-to-the-minute self!

NEW YORK—High small-crowned hats are leading the style race, and the smartest of smartly dressed women seen in Gotham's bright spots are wearing modern versions of a hat, which I am certain, was stolen out of the Arabian nights!

SNAKESKIN FINGERNAILS are the newest creation of Schiaparelli. They are bright red—and are built right into sooty black antelope gloves!

TWO-TONE NEW TONES—Smartest new upholstery fabric is a two-tone mohair velvet in rich colors offset by a new contrasting yarn known as heathertone. The heathertone gives a three-dimensional effect. And it's said to wear like iron! You can get it on production furniture, too—as well as on custom-built pieces.

THE LAST WORD—Tomorrow's style leader will be—the Dalmatian motif! Jerkins, jackets and blouses, all gay with embroidery in the manner of the Tyrol! The influence will be felt all winter.

SHE STARTED SOMETHING

HISTORY would be richer if we had record of the first person who ever drank a commercial airplane, who ever drank a coca-cola, or the first to climb up a commercial stepladder—but those "firsts" are lost. Here is a first—one Miss Emily Horn of Elmwood Park, Ill.—that won't be lost to history. Miss Horn drove her car around the corner to a service station and was the first person to buy one of the new glass-clad batteries. Since that time, less than three months ago, nearly 100,000 more of these batteries have been purchased by housewives, doctors, grocery clerks, lawyers and others in every walk of life. They were originally designed to operate drawbridges, battleships, submarines and airplanes, but have been adapted to automobile use under the name of kathanode, and are guaranteed "as long as you own your car." They have been purchased to revive everything from a 1914 Pierce Arrow to late model low priced cars.

Heroic Battle to Save Girl Fails
Jean Frey, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Frey of Emerson and at a Denver hospital Friday following, an operation for a ruptured appendix.

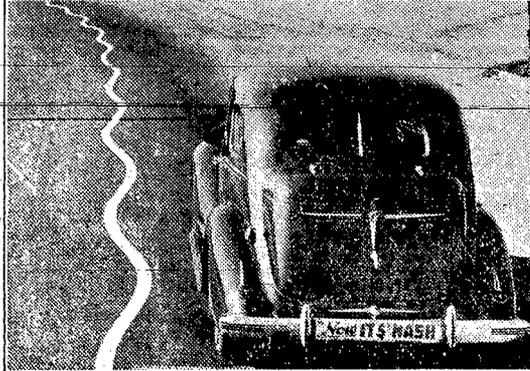

Snow blocked roads delayed getting the little girl to the hospital. She was taken to Emerson by car and from there the car took to the railroad track and aided by a horse hitched to the front and a shoelling crew of fifteen or twenty men the party reached Fender.

Funeral services for Miss Frey were conducted Tuesday afternoon at Fender.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Conger were in Norfolk Monday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hoskinson of Orchard are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gayle B. Childs. They are Mrs. Childs' parents.

When White Line Wiggles—Danger!

This Nash Ambassador is shown beside a new highway safety device that is appearing in various parts of the country. The white line marking traffic lanes begins to wiggle as a dangerous intersection or bad curve is approached, giving the driver ample time to reduce his speed if he has been going too fast to negotiate such hazards safely.
