

Hopper Poison Demand Increases

Two Carloads of Bait Will Be Received Within Next Week

The battle against grasshoppers in Wayne county still goes on. The second federal allotment of grasshopper poison was mixed at the precinct stations and distributed to farmers Thursday. This allotment was only one-half the amount of the first allotment and since the demand for the bait has increased all those who wished bait did not get their quota filled.

Altogether three carloads of sawdust, one carload of bran and 1000 gallons of poison have been distributed. The weather following the mixing days has not been very satisfactory for distribution of the bait, but in most cases very satisfactory kills are being reported. It should be kept in mind that the bait should be spread in the morning of a bright clear day and the bait should be held until such weather comes, the farm bureau advised. Holding the bait for a few days will not deteriorate the effectiveness of the poison. Actual results of kills are often mistaken because of the fact that the live hoppers eat the dead ones and ants and beetles carry the dead ones away. Many reports have been coming in stating that few dead hoppers can be seen but fields that were heavily infested with them are slightly infested after poisoning, the bureau reports.

Because of the demand for bait at the last date of mixing, requests for an additional two carloads of bait materials has been made and will be received in the county within the next week. This will be mixed and distributed in each precinct as it has been for the first two allotments and notices will be sent giving the time and place of mixing.

Services Held for Sheriff Sunday

Louis Smoyer Appointed to Fill Vacancy Left by Slain Brother

Three thousand persons gathered at the courthouse at Albion Sunday afternoon to witness the rites for Sheriff Lawrence Smoyer, brother of Louis Smoyer of Wayne, who was slain by gunmen last Tuesday.

An amplifying system carried the eulogy of the Rev. Joseph Klerem to the crowd in which American Legion members stood grouped at attention.

A procession of cars a mile and a half long followed the hearse to Albion cemetery.

The speaker referred to the slayers as unsocial beings and urged citizens to do their part in maintaining law and order.

The last definite clue in the search for the gunmen was the recovery of the car used and described by William Wathen, Albion constable, who is showing slight improvement from a bullet wound at Nicholas Senn hospital in Omaha. The car was located by officers west of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Louis Smoyer, student at Wayne State Teachers' college, has been appointed by the Boone county commissioners to fill the vacancy in the office at Albion.

Demonstrate Bindweed Eradication at Mellor's

Forty Wayne county farmers who were interested in eradicating Nebraska's worst weed pest visited the demonstration of cultivation as a means of eradicating bindweed at the William Mellor farm two miles west of Wayne last Saturday.

A field cultivation with duck-foot shovels is being used every eight to ten days for clean cultivation as a means of combating this weed. The results of the first two cultivations indicate that this method will prove quite satisfactory. Cultivations will be continued two years.

RA Office Makes Debt Adjustments

Agreements Reduce Farm Indebtedness Total To $2,629.98

Four debt adjustments between creditor and debtor through the resettlement office were made for May with the original total of indebtedness of $5,946.95 adjusted to $2,629.98.

Three were re-financed through the resettlement association and one through a private agency. Taxes totaling $13.51 were paid in these adjustments.

The adjustment of indebtedness helps farmers to re-finance their farm operations for the coming year. This debt out makes it possible for other lending agencies to function because of the added security of an RA adjustment.

In Cedar county which has been the scene of considerable debt adjustment lately, twelve cases were settled satisfactorily for both debtor and creditor. An adjustment of $5,933.31 reduced the original indebtedness from $25,719.70 to $19,786.49.

Wayne Man Weds Hastings Girl Friday

Miss Avis Merritt of Hastings and Oliver Shields of Wayne were married at the home of the bridegroom's parents Friday afternoon with the Rev. Guy B. Dunning reading the double ring ceremony in the presence of thirty-five relatives and close friends.

Bass Baritone to Present Concert

William Wright to Give Americana in Song Here Monday

William Wright, a young American bass baritone whose remarkable talents critics laud, will present a program of Americana in Song at Wayne State Teachers' college auditorium this coming Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Wright is a mid-western product. He was born at Columbia, Mo., where his parents are associated with Christian college. He received his training from various American teachers including Oscar Seagle.

Few American singers have a better genealogical reason for an interest in Americana than William Wright. His first American progenitor, Peter Wright, left England in 1650 for what is now Lynn, Mass. A grandson of the same name helped found Oyster Bay, Long Island. Among famous members of the Wright clan are Governor Silas Wright of New York, Orville and Wilbur Wright, aviators, Harold Bell Wright, author, and Joseph Wright, artist.

In high school, his big voice boomed out in school productions and won him two state contests. After graduation, he studied with John Parrish, American tenor, and later with Oscar Seagle in New York.

After hearing his first grand opera at the old Metropolitan, it was his desire to visit the Opera Comique in Paris. There he obtained an audition with J. Carleton Gould, director of this famous company.

He returned to New York and joined the famous Oscar Seagle singers. After leaving the Singers because of his increasing number of personal engagements, he developed his unique program, "America in Song," which resulted in many successful tours.

City Is Host to Munny League Meet

Conduct Memorial Services Sunday

Rites Held for Pender Crash Victims at Perry, Okla.

Memorial services were conducted at St. Paul's church at Perry, Okla., Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock for the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Krauleidis and youngest son, Herman, who were killed in a head-on collision of their car with an off tanker near Salina, Kan., last Tuesday. The ministers of the northern conference conducted the service. The Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Most attended from Wayne.

Funeral services for the crash victims were conducted at the same time at Perry, Okla. The bodies were sent from Salina to Perry, Okla., last Thursday for burial. Final rites for Mrs. Krauleidis' mother who suffered a fatal stroke Wednesday were conducted at the same time.

The Rev. and Mrs. Krauleidis and four sons were returning from Perry where they had been called by the critical illness of Mrs. Krauleidis' mother.

Rev. Krauleidis was killed instantly when the car met the tanker driven by Clarence Lipker of Holyoke, Colo. Mrs. Krauleidis died several hours later in a hospital to which she and her sons were taken for treatment of critical injuries.

The three sons, William, Walter and Gerald, were moved from the hospital Thursday. Their injuries were not serious.

The driver of the oil tanker told officers at Salina that Rev. Krauleidis was attempting to pass another car and crashed into his truck. The accident occurred shortly after midnight a few miles south of Salina.

As in former years, a buffet supper is served free to guests at the conclusion of the show, and dancing culminates the festivities.

Oberammergau "Mary" to Be Here

Anny Rutz of Bavaria to Lecture at College Next Thursday

Anny Rutz, a Bavarian girl who twice portrayed the role of the Virgin Mary at the Oberammergau Passion Play, is to lecture at Wayne State Teachers' college auditorium next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

After the 1934 Passion Play, Miss Rutz came to America to enroll as a student in Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla.

Ancestors of Miss Rutz were in the first Oberammergau Passion Play in 1634. Jakob Rutz, her direct forefather, appeared as the first Christus in the play of that year, which was celebrated in fulfillment of a vow of the villagers for relief from the ravages of the Black Plague.

Members of the family have been actively connected with the play ever since. Her great-granduncle, Rochus Dedler, composed the music of the play in 1811. In the last two revivals, Otto Rutz, an uncle, and Josef Rutz, a cousin, played the part of Apostles.

Let Mr. H. R. Rich of Chicago tell you why he got out of the "All Three" class!

"I'd been driving one of the 'All Three' cars. I've no complaints. It was a fine car. But with better times returning I wanted to get back in the 'big car' class again. The low delivered price on the Nash Lafayette '400' simply amazed me. Actually it cost me just a few dollars more than one of the 'All Three'."

Look at that car in the picture. It's a great big 117-inch wheelbase Nash Lafayette '400'. You get a 90 horsepower, six cylinder engine. You get larger hydraulic brakes, stronger all steel body, extra-wide seats, more headroom, legroom. Get the Nash extra value story today!

IT'S GOOD TO GET OUT OF THE 'ALL THREE' CLASS!

I'M SO PROUD OF OUR BIG NEW NASH... AND IT COST JUST A FEW DOLLARS MORE* THAN THOSE SMALLER CARS!

To Progressive Farmers

With the final survey of a Wayne county rural electrification project nearing completion, it is quite evident that our county will be successful in reaching its goal.

Application deadline has been set for June 30 and only those farmers who have signified their approval of the project will benefit from the completed program.

A summary of costs to the individual farmer has been set up so that there is no cash outlay from the farmer for the building of transmission lines, transformers or meters, and as Henningson explained the REA is building a connecting line from the main line to the farm home up to a distance of 1000 feet.

Wayne county would default its own end by refusing its cooperation in realizing the successful completion of a rural electrification program of its own.

Business on Upward Trend

The Annalist reports that "nothing has occurred to change the slightly upward trend of business activity except steel strikes, but they have been sufficient to cut to a point and a half off the business index."

Thus, in 1937, strikes are a major worry even as they were in 1936 and, to a lesser extent, in 1935. Until current labor controversies are settled, the business outlook cannot help be unsettled.

Production figures are fair. The federal reserve board reports that in a recent month manufacturing activity recorded more than the normal increase over the previous month.

Some industries are doing above the average. One of these is the electrical appliances—refrigerators, air conditioning systems, etc. These appliances have been improved in efficiency and reduced in cost, and their market is rapidly broadening.

Commodity prices have been declining somewhat in most fields. No one thinks there will be a big drop, however, and some will not be surprised if this fall witnesses a general advance all along the line.

Newest national industry—trailer manufacturing—is going ahead fast. Last year, Business Week reports, more than 350 makers were in the trailer business, and their gross came to $27,000,000. Over 18,000 trailers, averaging $325 each, were sold.

Right About Face

These generous rains in Nebraska, with the absence of scorching temperatures, may settle Nebraska's concern about unemployment and relief, with the exception of the aged and other so-called "unworkables."

back, there is now budding optimism. Unless such developments as rust or insect pest intervene, there is going to be a bountiful harvest of wheat, a splendid oats crop, rye and barley, hay and alfalfa, and the corn outlook improves each day as that rain falls.

This needs to be noted in connection with an amendment written into the relief appropriation by the senate economy bloc at Washington when the measure was under consideration by the appropriations subcommittee. The first move was to reduce the fund by cutting it from a billion and a half to a round billion. It failed by a vote of five to three.

The amount of local sponsorship in Nebraska since the start of the works program has been approximately 20 per cent. In Lancaster county it was 26 per cent up until April 1. In some counties it has been slightly higher and in others slightly under.

These figures are important, if they have an importance, only in setting forth a condition peculiar to Nebraska in the period from 1934 to 1937. It was the drought era with destruction of crops, the one source of wealth basic in the welfare of Nebraska's people.

Nor has Nebraska an apology to offer. Under the most severe conditions experienced, unless it was during the '90's, and in earlier drought and grasshopper eras, there is a record of self-dependence which ought to commend itself. At the high peak the aggregate relief load in Nebraska was only 67,000 families.

Sheriff Smoyer

Sheriffs of the Wild Bill Hickok type are not usually found in our modern times. We more often think of the sheriff as the holder of a pretty swell job, collecting fees for feeding swine, jail inmates and sending his deputies on routine duties, usually placed on occupations such as serving court orders.

Such was the case when Sheriff Smoyer of Albion and Constance, Wabasha, endeavoring to peacefully question two men in a car, were surprised and shot down, before they could fire an effective shot.

This challenge to Nebraska's will be answered with capture and conviction and another flint can be added to this act that "crime doesn't pay."

Sheriff Smoyer was highly regarded as a fearless and upright officer, and will be remembered as one of those who died in the faithful performance of his duty.

Diminishing Work Week

The United States News has made a survey of "America's diminishing work week." Its moral, if any, seems to be that evolution of industry and invention is the principal agent responsible for shortening the number of hours the average worker must put in at his desk or machine during each seven days.

During the last century, the work week has been cut almost in half. In 1882, the average worker put in six 12-hour days, for a total of 72 hours a week. In that year, the first organized revolt against a long week was felt. A machinists' union in Philadelphia demanding a 10-hour day and a 60-hour week.

This resolution got nowhere, and a long lifetime was to pass before the 60-hour week became standard in major industry—1890. And in that year, the A. F. of L. went on record in favor of the 48-hour week. As in the past, many years passed before this objective was reached. In 1914, the work week averaged 53 1/2 hours. By 1919, it had dropped to 50 1/2 hours. In 1929, at the height of the boom, it was 49 hours.

Depression naturally, shortened the work week, as the "work sharing" plan, whereby employees worked part time in order that others might also have jobs, came into effect in many large industries. Then came the NRA, which established a 40-hour work week for the bulk of industries. Today, in 1937, the 40-hour week has been generally maintained, even though the NRA is no more. And in a considerable number of industries, the 35-hour week has been put into effect for all or part of employees.

As the News points out, a number of factors are responsible for the declining working week. Perhaps the most important of these factors is science and invention. Technological progress, which means simply better and more varied machinery, enables a worker to produce as much or more in a short week than previously produced in a long week. Thus, they can work less and still maintain or increase their productive value.

The labor unions have also been a factor. They have won many concessions from management, and out the working week without cutting wages. Management has also done a great deal to make shorter hours possible. It has improved the technique of production in many ways, to the end that less employe motion be wasted, and that each worker produce more in his working time. It has often voluntarily reduced hours even as it has raised hourly rates of pay.

Finally, in recent years government has been a factor. A number of states, of which Oregon was the first, have specified the maximum hours per week which women in industry can work, and these statutes have been upheld in the courts as being necessary to the public health and well being. The federal government has also stepped in, as happened with the NRA. A federal law now in effect refuses government contracts to manufacturers whose employes work more than 40 hours a week.

Sex Appeal Pavement

Some color psychological expert has said that different colors tend to stimulate different emotions in people.

Some colors have quieting effects while others tend to stir up action.

We wonder if this is what is being done at San Francisco's 1939 Golden Gate exposition. They say they are having their pavement colored to add glamour.

Reflected light from the magenta-tinted asphalt, according to J. E. Stanton, the color expert, "will raise the emotional level of visitors—keep them gay, vivacious." Instead of looking at the world through rose colored glasses one will be able to look at it over rose tinted pavement.

Mr. Stanton says this will make the women appear more beautiful and the men more romantic and incidentally induce them to spend more freely. This is probably the catch in the whole scheme. They had better be careful not to make it appear to the visitor as though he were in the red.

Bygone Days

Dec. 13, 1903

James Baird was in town yesterday and speaking about the cattle proposition said he was feeding 160 head but would not sell at present prices. Mr. Baird said it took more corn than one could husk every day to feed his bunch having 250 hogs in the lot.

The supreme court has found the new revenue law good in every particular. The opinion was written by Chief Justice Sullivan.

Homer Wheaton was an arrival from Iowa Wednesday night. Homer is looking finer than frog hair but is still working for his health only. He is on his way back to California.

John Barker is meeting with fine success in teaching a juvenile band. By spring time we'll hear from the youngsters.

W. F. Nieland, ex-landlord of the Union hotel, had a bad accident. He was working on a barn for D. A. Jones and in climbing up a ladder with some timbers on his shoulder, the ladder slipped on the frosty building and W. F. fell to the ground getting a bad gash in his forehead and twisting his wrist.

Sheriff Meads accompanied the burglar from the battle fields of Hoskins to the pen Thursday of last week and from there made a trip to Omaha, Cheyenne, and Grand Island arriving home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Allburn and little son are here from Missouri visiting Mrs. Allburn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Tidrick.

Dec. 11, 1903

The Woodmen of the World had an election of officers and a banquet at the Elite cafe last evening. Following are the new officers: George R. Wilbur, C. C.; F. A. Berry, A. L.; A. E. Brown, banker; W. Rickabaugh, clerk; John Harmer, escort; Fred Berry, secretary; D. W. Legan, watchman; Henry Klopping, manager, and Dr. J. J. Williams, camp physician.

Miss Eva Hitchcock left yesterday for Chicago where she will visit friends for a few weeks.

Henry Lage was in town Tuesday getting repairs for a wagon that was smashed up in a runaway on his farm. Jackrabbit hunters shot off their guns close to his team in the corn field and the horses ran to the barn, going over a gate and demolishing the wagon.

Mrs. Will Erickson who will be better remembered as Susie Edwards is visiting her grandmother, aunts and uncles, the Davies. Mr. Erickson is on the road for an Omaha packing house and has just been transferred from Billings, Mont., to Sioux Falls, S. D.

The new telephone company is already laying out the several rural routes and President John Liveringhouse says it is a sure thing.

Will Baird suggests that the Democrat put the people of the country on their guard against a band of petty thieves who drive around in an express wagon, four in number, and burglarize houses where no one is at home. Last Wednesday these rascals went into George Montgomery's place and stole a new fur coat, cloth, and several other articles valued at fifty dollars. The men pretend to be hunters but are trying to break into jail.

Dec. 4, 1903

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilbur arrived home from the west yesterday morning. They will reside with Mrs. Wilbur's parents for the present.

The Democrat understands that Dr. Ivory is contemplating moving to Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Charley Hughson, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Rickabaugh, returned to Sioux City this morning.

Markets today are: Wheat, 58 1/2; corn, 28; hogs, $3.90 to $4.00, and cattle "any old price."

Miss Lottie Matthews, a former Wayne girl and daughter of the late Captain Matthews and ex-partner of A. J. Ferguson, was married this week to Harry Krumann, a popular young business man.

In the bowling contests decided last Saturday night Art Norton had the high score in teppins, 268, which is very fast work. Ed Merrill won in rubberneck with 124, and June Conger fiveback, score 67.

Nov. 27, 1903

One of the social functions of last week was the reception tendered the ministers of this district and Mrs. Pile. Bishop McCabe of Omaha was the guest of honor. The large parlors were made more beautiful by a profusion of cut flowers. Mesdames Dawson, Parr, and Beebe assisted Mrs. Pile.

J. M. Strahan came over from Malvern to eat Nebraska turkey.

The supreme court of Nebraska has knocked out that portion of the new revenue law pertaining to insurance companies and will no doubt find the whole bill unconstitutional for the reason it now appears to be of material benefit only to the republican party.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Eunch and children of Carroll ate turkey with Mr. and Mrs. Walt Cook.

Trees Prevent Erosion

Farmers cooperating with the soil conservation service in its program of erosion control have retired 250,000 acres of steeply sloping or severely eroded croplands to trees and shrubs. Under proper management, farm woodlands are not wastelands that many farmers have considered them to be, according to J. F. Perston, director of the soil conservation service. Proper management means first, prevention, adapted trees, thinning, and protection from grazing animals.

Many music students of small talent took advantage of Liszt's kindness and induced him to waste his precious time teaching them. One time, when he had to be absent from his studio a few weeks, Hans von Bulow took his place. The first thing the irascible Hans did was to assemble all the pupils and give them a plain talking-to, denouncing them for imposing on the master, when they were not prepared for his advanced teaching. Many of them kept away after this scolding; but when Liszt returned they all came back.—Musical Laughs, by Henry Finck—Funk and Wagnalls.

In 1650 some settlers from Bermuda made a gift to Harvard of ten tons of Brazil wood. Last June Mrs. J. J. Storrow of Bermuda commemorated this event by establishing an annual scholarship to that college for Bermudians.

POOR MAN'S GOLD

"It's a knock-out," Hammond exclaimed, picking out the serrated piece of mineral. Then, as though the better to appraise its worth, he reached into a pocket for his prospector's magnifying glass.

Beside him, Kay talked on of her hopes. She couldn't understand, she said, why this claim didn't pan out more values. Day after day, the output seemed the same—enough for expenses, enough to keep the cottage going and to pay Mrs. Carewe, the woman of all work—but little more. Hammond hardly heard her. Again he was confirming what he had confirmed every day since McKenzie Joe had pulled out—the fact this was true nugget gold and that there was not the slightest indication of snipe material.

That had been a serious charge. It had meant that Kay was pretending to find gold when such had not been the case. Why she should do this, Joe Britten had not fully explained. He had only insisted that the tiny flakes and nuggets were "sniper gold," gleaned by scraping along the flat, ledgelike rocks of the true current of Loon Creek, where, acting in the same manner as the riffles of a flume, these ledges had picked up stray bits of new metal, washed down from the hills by spring freshets. The old prospector had insisted that they were not true nuggets, that the force of water, driving them between thin ledges of stone, had to a degree flattened them and so marked them that the eyes of his deep experience could identify them, thus making it impossible for them to have come from Kay's gravel bar claim. Hammond himself had not been given a chance to look; Kay, in her anger, had thrown them away.

But here was no doubt that Kay's acquisition was true gravel gold. The same had been true on two-score other surreptitious investigations. It was as though Jack Hammond had put Joe Britton on trial, and day after day was repeatedly proving him guilty.

"Pretty good nugget," he said at last. "It must be about a penny-weight."

"All of which helps," the girl answered, with a casual shrug of her shoulders. "Maybe I'll get down to real money some day—you never can tell."

"Nobody can, with gold mining," Hammond answered. After a time he returned to his own labors, again feverish, again driving in his intensity. He knew that this claim of his was beginning to weaken; the nuggets were not as large or as frequent as when he and Joe first had slashed into it. Doggedly he told himself that it could not, must not, flash out. There must be money to keep that work going above, and he knew that Kenning could not furnish it. In truth, Kenning was providing little in the form of funds; they had thrown their holdings into one pot, share for share. But the cash to keep development going must come from Hammond. Kenning made up for his lack of it by his advice.

Late afternoon arrived. Abstractedly, as he worked, Hammond became aware that there was a great deal of loud conversation of a joyous type from upstream, where Olson seemed to find a new pocket only that he might dig into another. Several of the more successful placer miners from more distant claims were there, poking about. Mrs. Joyce also was present; for that matter, it was seldom that Hammond looked toward Olson's claim without finding her somewhere in the picture.

It was not a new strike, he knew that—there was no shouting and running about, no concerted movement of curious miners from other diggings. After a time Jack forgot the matter. Then the work day ended and his men made the clean-up. Hammond pouched the nuggets therefrom, walked a bit with Kay on the trail to the cottage, and finally cut away from her that he might lead upstream and find Kenning at the new development—some dozen shafts, driving deep into the earth upon a broad front, far from the last test pit which McKenzie Joe had dug, over against the slope, in the forest. This was abandoned now and covered with logs. Jack had not been near it since the day McKenzie Joe went away. At last, sighting Kenning on the flat, he shouted:

"Anything good today?"

The geologist shook his head. Then as Hammond approached:

"Can't expect much yet. We're still twenty or twenty-five feet above where the stuff ought to be."

Hammond laughed.

"It's got to turn out."

"How can it help turning out?" Kenning asked. "That river ran over here somewhere. Unless," he sure. Then, when it's done, I'll draw out that acreage and get rid of that English syndicate. Send 'em what they're looking for—" he laughed abruptly—"Something we don't want."

Hammond laughed with him.

"Put down a test pit and then we'll be sure of it," he answered, and headed slowly back toward camp. But within sight of his cabin, he began to hurry. Mrs. Carewe, the Joyce maid, was there. Kay had sent her to bring him up the hill. Hammond finished the ascent of the trail on a run. He never before had received a summons like this.

Kay was in the living room, walking about her hands clasped tightly before her. From a distance came the faint drone of an airplane.

"You're late," she said.

"I came as quickly as I could. I was at the upper workings. What's happened?"

She gave a brittle laugh.

"Well, it came abruptly, 'I'm alone."

"Where's your mother?"

"That's it."

"You don't mean—"

"They're in that airplane, bound for Wrangell."

"She's gone with Olson?"

The girl laughed again, that queer, thin-drawn laugh.

"Yes, she's gone with Olson. He sold out this afternoon, to a bunch from up the creek. I tried to get hold of you—thought maybe you could argue with her. But it wouldn't have helped. She's wanted Olson and his nuggets ever since she saw him. So they're gone. Timmy's flying them to Wrangell."

Another month went by, blazing hot days, deepening into chill nights, with the dusk creeping over the valley more swiftly with each passing day. The bears had left the rock slides; berries were gone and leaves withered. The little town became more careful of sparks. Autumnal dryness was upon the North, growing more and more brittle and menacing each day. With every cloud, miners turned their eyes skyward in search of evidences of the first snowstorm. But the clouds passed and the sun blazed anew. Then, one day, shortly after the lunch hour, a workman came running down Loon Creek, shouting for Jack Hammond.

"Mr. Kenning wants you up there at the bench shaft!" he exclaimed. "He's found something!"

Hammond hesitated only long enough to summon Kay. Then, with her breathless beside him, they hurried to the upper diggings. Kenning nervously impatient, awaited them.

"Don't ask me why it happened!" he said bluntly. "It's against everything I've figured. It's there—that's all."

He extended his clutched hands, opening them. Kay gave a half scream and moved forward, Hammond close behind her. The man's palms were heaped with yellow gold; the wet sand of deep gravel still clung to the hulking nuggets.

"The gravel's choked with them!" Kenning said, in a queer voice. Hammond stared at the yellow wealth.

"But how did it get there? Away over on this bench land—this has been solid earth for—"

"A thousand years!" answered Kenning. "But there's gravel beneath."

"Certainly. You can find gravel almost anywhere. But for gold to be in it—have you struck bedrock?"

"We're not anywhere near bedrock!" Kenning answered.

"You needn't shout," Kay suggested.

"Bruce laughed. "Well, what are you shaking about?"

"I guess everybody's nervous," Hammond cut in. He wiped the back of a hand across his wet forehead. "So we've found it—here. Where we least expected it." Again he asked, "Listen, Kenning, don't think I'm crazy. But are you sure? Are you really sure?"

Miss Margaret Penhollow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Penhollow of Norfolk, became the bride of the Rev. Loren H. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albin Carlson of Wayne, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Norfolk Gospel tabernacle. The Rev. Paul Berg of Lincoln, former pastor of the tabernacle and a close friend of the couple, performed the single ring ceremony in the presence of 200 relatives and friends.

The church was decorated with baskets of flowers and ferns.

Miss Verna Carlson, sister of the bridegroom, and Homer Penhollow, brother of the bride, were the attendants.

The bride wore a floor-length princess-styled gown of white silk crepe with sleeves of white lace. Her veil was of white net and she carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid wore a floor-length dress of light blue lace. She wore a corsage of yellow roses.

Harold Sullivan and Arthur Carlson were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Penhollow home for forty immediate relatives and friends.

The bride is a graduate of the Norfolk high school and of the St. Paul Bible training school.

Rev. Carlson was also a student of the St. Paul school.

A reception was given Monday in their honor by the congregations of Center Grove and Marathon Free churches at Center Grove, Ia. The bridegroom is pastor of both churches.

Following a brief wedding trip, the couple will be at home at Marathon.

Dramatics Department Names Program Dates

Two programs consisting of four one-act plays each will be presented by the college dramatic classes under the direction of Miss Florence M. Drake. The dates for the programs have been arranged for July 7 and 14. The number and selection of plays is an ambitious program to be attempted. However, the caliber of dramatic talent is high with the largest advanced dramatic class enrollment in years.

The plays for the first program include "Queens of France" by Thornton Wilder under the student direction of Royal Barnell. "Menfolk," a tragedy of the sea written by Ryerson and Clements will be directed by Margaret Bruner. Eaton's delightful comedy, "Purple Door Knob," will be directed by Marjorie Eby. Miss Margaret Field will be the student director of the romantic comedy, "Ten Room Cottage," by Selleck.

The second program to be presented July 14 will include the following plays: "The Golden Rule of Courtship," a romantic comedy by Cook will be directed by Olive Smith. A comedy founded on a short story by Irvin S. Cobb entitled "And There Was Light," by Kennedy will be directed by Miss Wanda Smolsky. "The Siege," directed by Miss Ruth Hepfinger is an Oriental tragedy. The last play is Pettigrew's whimsical comedy, "There's Always Tomorrow," and will be under the student direction of Miss Bernice Sweeney.

The student directors will be selected from the advanced play producing and directors' class.

Lewis-Hicks Wed At Winside Thursday

Miss Wilma Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lewis of Winside, and Gerald Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hicks of Wayne, were married Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents at Winside in the presence of fifty guests.

Rev. F. C. Mills, minister of the Methodist church of Wayne, read the single ring service.

Miss Mildred Moses, accompanied by Miss Ethel Lewis at the piano, sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The bridal party entered to the accompaniment of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Ethel Lewis.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Donald Hicks of Wayne, and the bridesmaid was Miss Mabel Lewis, sister of the bride. Miss Jean avrene Lewis, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. The improvised altar was banked with yellow, white and pink roses. Baskets of peonies and daisies were at the sides.

The bride was gowned in white satin, the bodice closed with satin covered buttons in the back. The lace yoke was topped by a Queen Anne collar pinned at the throat with a white gold filgree pin which belonged to the paternal grandmother. The sleeves were puffed at the shoulders and fitted to a point at the wrists. The veil was fashioned of silk tulle, crowned with a satin bandeau and caught with a chin strap. The bride carried a bouquet of white and yellow roses.

The bridesmaid's dress was of yellow chiffon. She carried pink roses. The flower girl wore pink organdy with a pink hair ribbon. The men wore suits of oxford gray.

A reception for guests was held following the ceremony at which Miss Jerine Mote of Sioux City, Ia., played several instrumental numbers.

Refreshments at the reception were served by Mrs. Ben Lewis, Mrs. H. S. Moses, and Miss Mildred Moses assisted by Mrs. Cora Brodd, Mrs. F. I. Moses, Mrs. G. A. Lewis, and Miss Ruby Reed.

ROTATION CONTROLS PLANT DISEASES

Bureau Names Crops That Prevent Wilt Damage

Crop rotation is a simple way to keep plant diseases under control, but one of the best, according to United States department of agriculture crop specialists.

Rotating a wilt resistant variety of flax with small grains and corn is one example. Flax, although grown like a small grain crop, belongs to a family of plants widely separated from the grass family to which wheat, oats, barley, rye and corn belong, and is not attacked by the same diseases that injure grains. Flax has its own diseases such as rust, wilt and leaf spot, but these in turn do not attack small grains. A variety of flax susceptible to wilt, however, must be grown on clean land, as ordinary rotations do not destroy the wilt organism in flax-sick soil.

Many diseases of cotton are checked by growing other crops. In cotton fields in Texas, where root rot is serious, losses may be reduced by rotating with grain crops and by deep tillage. Cotton wilt is one disease, however, which has not been successfully checked by changing crops through rotation with soil building crops is an important supplemental factor in decreasing wilt damage and increasing yields. Wilt has been found in cotton in a field that had not been in cotton for several years.

Root knot of tobacco is checked by rotating with peanuts, crotalaria, oats or a natural weed fallow. Granville wilt of tobacco is controlled by growing corn, cotton, or sweet potatoes. Department men have found that a four-year rotation with ordinary field crops checks black shank of tobacco in western North Carolina. This rotation does not work in Florida, however.

Disease specialists say that the very simplicity of rotations often cause them to be overlooked as a method of checking plant diseases. Many farmers keep on with a particular crop, the infection increasing year by year.

Grasses Check Soil Losses

More grass is being used for erosion control on Wayne county farms this year than before, reports Agricultural Agent Walter Moiler. Both native and tame grasses are included in the increased planting to check soil losses.

On severely eroded land suffering heavy soil losses grasses are being used to check erosion. Many such fields have been retired from cultivation and planted to permanent grasses.

Among the native grasses that are being most widely used in controlling soil losses are bluestem, little bluestem, blue grama, switch grass and

FARMERS SEED SUDAN ON PASTURE LAND

Rapid Growth, Cheapness of Seed Makes Grass Popular

Wayne county farmers are turning to sudan for summer pasturage and have seeded hundreds of acres to this temporary pasture crop. Reports to the farm bureau office indicate a greater acreage than normal of this crop.

Sudan has found favor this year particularly because seed has been about the cheapest in relation to other seed prices. Seed has been selling for around 5 to 6 cents per pound.

The crop is a hot weather one, ordinarily planted the latter part of May or early June. It comes on very rapidly and with even a very limited amount of moisture furnishes grazing until the fall months when frost comes. Many farmers getting some pasturage from weed-infested pastures now are turning to sudan due to the fact that down brome and little wild barley will furnish but little grazing from now on.

There is still time to plant a patch of sudan. In many cases, farmers will plow up a part of killed-out permanent pasture where the ground is tillable, work the ground down and seed sudan. This has the double advantage of furnishing summer pasturage and cleans up the ground so less weeds will be present when reseeding the permanent grasses, and legumes is made later.

The Sunshine club is having the annual picnic dinner this Sunday with their families as guests.

Stanton County Cattle Top Chicago Market

W. J. Freiberg, well known Stanton county stockman, topped the cattle trade at the Chicago stockyards Wednesday of last week with a carload of choice Aberdeen-Angus steers of his own feeding. They brought $15.60 per hundred-weight, and were the highest selling cattle on the Chicago market since May 10. There were 21 head in the drove; their average weight was 1442 pounds.

According to Mr. Freiberg, these cattle had been on feed on his farm west of Stanton for the past 17 months. They were bought as feeder calves in 1935 at a cost of about $8.50 per hundredweight.

Woven Wire Fencing

"Woven" wire fencing, first produced in 1883, was the invention of an imaginative man who had been a soldier in the Civil war. During the war, as his regiment helped itself to wooden fences for firewood, he became impressed with the need of a fence which would not cause waste of valuable farm land. He saw how a rail fence, zigzagging along the borders of a field, wasted a strip of land several feet wide. In his idle moments around camp fires, he twisted together pieces of wire, or else roots and grass when he could find no wire, in an attempt to find a way of weaving wire into a fence.

Finally in 1888 he produced the first real woven fence in a wagon shop on a farm in Michigan. The original process was crude, but the principle of continuous vertical wires wrapped around horizontal wires is still used in making fences today. — S. Steel News.

Contrary to popular opinion, battleships during the late World war, were not decorated with odd designs for the purpose of making them indistinguishable but to make the estimation of their course and speed difficult for the submarines to determine.
