County May Secure C.C.C.

125 Farmers Have Erosion Projects, Service Clubs To Study Extent of Need

In view of the fact that several CCC camps have completed their work in various locations throughout the state, new camps sites are under consideration by camp headquarters. Agricultural committees of the local service clubs and the Wayne county farm bureau are now studying the need of soil erosion control in the county to determine the extent of need for the location of a camp in this vicinity.

One hundred twenty-five farmers have already indicated their farms have serious erosion problems and that they would welcome the help of the CCC boys.

Completes Red Cross Drive

The Wayne county Red Cross drive was completed with the roll call to membership amounting to $292.45.

Wayne Wins Two From Randolph

First Team Wins 34-5; Seconds Take 34-6 Win; Wayne Shows Promise

Wayne high school's basketball teams won their second victories of the '37 schedule Tuesday night by wide margins over Randolph teams.

The second team set the pace for the first stringers when they finished over Randolph seconds 34 to 6 in the curtain raiser. The first team managed to display an identical burst of basket shooting and did a wee bit better on defense, holding the Randolph first to a single basket and three gift shots.

The score hardly indicates the superiority of the Wayne teams. Their passing and advancing the ball was far superior throughout the game and their defense was practically airtight. Seldom did the Randolph forwards get a chance in the vicinity of the basket and their long shots were so hurried that few came near the bucket.

Wayne showed possibilities of developing into a classy outfit and they were backed by a peppy band and a live crowd of fans.

Good Buys for Late Shopper

Ample Merchandise in All Wayne Stores to Meet Your Needs

Late Christmas shoppers need not be discouraged. There is still an abundance of choice merchandise to be found in every Wayne store. So the buyer who has found it impossible to get in early will find many selections to choose from in any Wayne store. All a buyer needs to do to convince himself of this fact is to begin at one end of Main street and go window shopping. Follow through to the end of one side of the street, cross over and go back to the starting point. Doing this he will refresh his mind with gifts for every need at prices attractive to his pocketbook.

Come in Thursday or Friday

Thursday and Friday will be busy days in all Wayne stores. Last minute buying will probably be brisk. Those who wait until Thursday or even Friday to buy Christmas gifts will not be disappointed. Once inside the stores, courteous clerks will help you. Come in and see the merchandise, not sometime, but today or tomorrow.

Initiated Into Dance Group

Josephine Ley of Wayne is one of twelve girls recently initiated into Orleans modern dance group at the University of Nebraska.

Christmas Vacation Begins

Christmas vacation of Wayne State Teachers college and college training school began Wednesday. Classes will resume Jan. 2.

Observing Christmas Should Enrich Our Lives

Saturday is Christmas. We live again the season when Christ's birth is the only theme in the pulpits. His life and influence proclaimed in story and song throughout the Christian nations of the world.

Christ's conception of individuality was unlike either of the common conceptions known to the world today. "Every man for himself" or "The group is everything and the individual is nothing" which so characterizes the competitive system in this country and the social order of the Soviet state.

The Saddest Christmas Story

Few of us care much for sad, tragic stories of any kind and much less for sad Christmas stories. But here is one that must be told. Over in the good old state of Iowa is a family, a farm family. They own or just about own a quarter section of land.

What Size Crop Will Make The Most Money?

1922 - 43,000,000 head, $905,000.00
1923 - 47,000,000 head, $417,000.00
1924 - 36,000,000 head, $795,000.00
If farmers of the United States were to try to set annual corn production at a figure that would bring in the greatest farm income, how much would they want to raise?

He is above petty industrial-political skillfulness. He is far above the type of capitalist who bring out of harmony with the present administration, would stoop to most any un-American trick to embarrass the administration regardless of the hardship it might work even on himself.

America is greatly in need of an inspirational idea. There is at least a lag in our individual spirits. We lack something - some quality which possessed the pioneer or the average citizen during the World War.

When a strange malady hits a community in epidemic proportions what do we do? Our memory and observation tells us that we usually hospitalize the sick, or at least segregate them from the well ones; we then get at the source of the disease and sometimes the best minds and resources of the entire country grapple with the problem for years before it is entirely checked.

000,000, we could probably sell those hogs at country points from $7.50 to $8 per hundred. That's not so much. Couldn't we do better than that on price? Certainly. In 1926, we sold 26,000,000 head for an average of over $9. Yet the total paid by packers was only $795,481,000. But in 1922, we sold 43,000,000 head for $7.50 and took a total of $905,000,000. And in 1927, we sold about the same number for $8.50. The total sales amounted to $1,021,000,000.

You mean that a moderate crop at a moderate price brings in more money than a small crop at a high price? Usually. And a moderate crop at a moderate price brings in more money than a big crop at a small price. In 1933, federally inspected slaughter was 47,000,000 head, but the total receipts were only $417,353,000.

But what if national income rises and city people have more money to spend for pork? Wouldn't we get higher prices then? We would have a choice of raising more corn and selling more hogs at around $8, or raising the same amount of corn, the same amount of hogs, and getting a high-crop price.

But if corn acreage of 93,000,000 acres will produce all the hogs we can sell at $8, what will happen if we go back to the 1928-32 standards and raise 103,000,000 acres of corn and feed most of it to hogs? Probably what happened in 1932 and 1933. Three and four-cent hogs. And total sales, as in 1933, of federally inspected hogs of only $417,353,000. About half what we would get from a moderate crop of corn and hogs.

Which are we going to do next year? General farm participation in the soil conservation plan could hold down corn acreage to the right point.

Poking Fire Bed From Above Forms Clinkers, Smothers Fire, Wastes Fuel

...A poker frequently is a handy implement to use on a furnace. Let me caution you against using it for the purpose of agitating the fire-bed from above! That results in a lot of trouble for you and for your furnace.

Stirring the fire through the furnace door opening only mixes ashes with the live coals, creating clinkers. As you know, clinkers choke a fire and prevent the coal from burning freely and completely. Also, they clog the grates, making it difficult to shake the fire properly.

Owing to the odd size and shape of lumps of coal at the point that is poked from above, the fuel-bed becomes packed, and this packing prevents the free passage of air, thus forming clinkers. Clinkers formed this way, however, cause less trouble, for ordinarily they can be broken up and dropped into the ashpit by gently shaking the grates.

SEEN and HEARD around the NATIONAL CAPITAL By Carter Field FAMOUS WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT

Washington. — William Jennings Bryan was fond of using the Biblical story of the Hebrew king who, when his lieutenants told him he was vastly outnumbered in an approaching battle, was able to show the skeptics, when by divine aid the veil was lifted, a host of angels ready to fight on his side.

Telling the story does not always prove that the Lord is on your side. The last time Bryan used the story in a speech was at the San Francisco convention, when he talked about the "angels" as the women vote, in the battle over prohibition. If he had lived a little longer he might have been terribly disappointed, but up to his death, during the Dayton trial, he was perfectly satisfied.

At the moment it is the ardent New Deal advocates who are worried about the choir invisible. Their real concern, of course, is over gentlemen who are very much in the news — the Southern conservative senators and representatives, and the allies which have been driven to them because of motives having nothing to do with economic and social ideas.

But they know perfectly well that there are a good many Democrats, many of whom have never parted with their party regularity, who are in sympathy with the conservatives, and who are still very potent in their respective states. The importance of all this is that, while these former luminaries are not figuring in the news stories of the day, and have been, perhaps, almost forgotten by the public, they still have their friends. The reasons that made them important a few years ago are still there. Allied with the conservative group, which is against a third term for Franklin D. Roosevelt and against the nomination of a New Dealer to take his place, they may become very important indeed.

Case of Douglas

Best known to the public of all this group, perhaps, is Lewis W. Douglas, who went into the first Roosevelt administration so strong that it was said that if he were to die when it became known that the health of William H. Woodin was failing, he would be made secretary of the treasury.

It's kind of amusing, to look at with hindsight. Actually Douglas stood for very few things that Henry Morgenthau, Jr., does not approve. The difference is that Douglas was intractable. He simply insisted on his own ideas, as to gold, for instance, and as to budget balancing being followed or he would not play. Down in his heart Morgenthau has followed very few of the New Deal ideas. But he is never defiant. He is just patient, and keeps on pleading. Stubborn very, but not to the point of making a nuisance of himself.

But Douglas has not passed from the scene. He is still potent in Arizona, which elected him as its lone congressman as long as he wished. But consider: Arizona elected him to the house—when Douglas stepped "upstairs" to be director of the budget—Mrs. Isabella S. Greenway, a close family friend of the Roosevelts. Mrs. Greenway would not run for re-election last time. She had voted against New Deal measures until it was socially embarrassing for a lady who had been a bridesmaid at the wedding of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Any one who knows his Arizona and who thinks Lou Douglas and Mrs. Greenway together could not elect a delegation which would go along with the conservatives had better not make any political bet!

Third Term Talk

It is astonishing how much more talk there is in Washington of a third term for President Roosevelt than almost anywhere else in the country. Nearly every hint about the third-term idea originates in Washington, whether it be by a magazine article by some Washington newspaper man, a confidential letter or tipping service or whatnot.

Visitors from various parts of the country coming to Washington and visiting around among their politically minded friends at once become heralds bearing the word back to their homes. Almost invariably they tell their Washington friends that "nobody at home has even thought of such a thing," and profess astonishment that there is so much talk about it here.

All this would seem to indicate that somebody, for some reason, is feeling out the third-term talk. It bears all the familiar earmarks of propaganda. In fact there are those—mostly folks very much opposed to Roosevelt—who think they understand its purpose. Their view is that the more the third-term idea is talked about the less shocking it seems to be, and hence if the New Deal could keep the subject to the fore, without seeming to be responsible, much of the resistance would be worn down by the time the 1940 convention rolls around.

There may be a grain of truth in this, but there is other logic to explain the persistence of this talk, which is much easier to accept than a deliberate publicity maneuver. Also, it is very much simpler to criticize the President on this than to explain how he could stop it if he wanted to do so.

What could he say or do which would really convince any one that he was not going to run, assuming that he had made up his mind not to do so?

Doubted Coolidge

Lots of people never believed President Coolidge when he said he "did not choose to run." Many think to this day he was very much disappointed that the nomination was not forced on him. The since published diary of Ike Hoover, White House head usher at the time, leaves no doubt that Ike thought Mr. Coolidge was not only disappointed but angry about it.

But aside from the futility of convincing any one, there is another aspect. The moment the political leaders became convinced that Roosevelt was not going to run, his influence would dwindle tremendously. Every Democratic leader would be laying his lines to be close to the new throne, if not to occupy it himself. Mr. Roosevelt, having enjoyed such amazing power for five years, would be very unhappy in his sudden impotency.

All this does not explain the amount of talk in Washington of a third term. Its answer lies deeper. It is based on the fact that a very strong group of Democrats, mostly southern, are working definitely toward controlling the 1940 convention, writing a conservative platform and naming a conservative candidate.

Washington, watching this development with interest, has virtually reached the conclusion that this is the major battle-front, rather than anything involving the Republican party. And one of the strong possibilities is that this group of conservatives will be so strong by 1940 that the only way the New Deal can stop the hands of the clock from being turned backward, as it views the situation, is to nominate Roosevelt again. The theory here, of course, is that the conservatives might be able to beat any one else, but could not beat F. D. R. himself.

Then There's Tin

There are whispers that there will be something about tin in the British-American trade agreement now being negotiated. The point here would be to protect American consumers against exorbitant prices, rather than to protect American producers, or open the door to more trade. In fact, it is a type of defensive international trading which so far has not entered into any of the reciprocal trade agreements.

The United States produces no tin. It is one of a very small group of very important metals which it is in most natural resources, does not possess. Control of the world's supply of tin is very tightly held, and Britain is big in the combination.

This combination, by the way, operates very much like a cross between a European cartel and a Wallace farm program. There is an international committee, which not only fixes the price of tin, but assigns quotas to the producing areas which they may not exceed. So far it has been eminently successful, unlike most of the world's attempts to control international production of any essential commodity.

This does not mean that the control is firm enough to prevent fluctuations. Perhaps it would be, but the international committee has made no attempt to be as rigid as that. For instance, the price of tin per pound last January was between 50 and 60 cents. By March it had soared up to nearly 70 cents. As this is written, the price is 42 cents.

Supply and Demand

This proves that the international committee has an eye to supply and demand, not to mention consumer resistance, in dictating the price of tin. During this same period the price of most metals had fluctuated on much the same type of curve, though a little more violently. In January, copper was 12 cents. In March, it reached 17 cents. As this is written it is 10 1/2 cents.

That 17 cents price in March did not give the American producers much comfort. As a matter of fact, in January, thinking 12 cents was a fine price, they made contracts running over long periods. So actually there was very little copper sold at 17 cents. The price was merely marked up following a spurt in the London market. Incidentally recent reductions in price have not stimulated sales. On the day the red metal was marked down to 10 1/2 cents, for example, only a few hundred tons were sold, and these, ironically enough, not by the company that initiated the cut.

But a price for tin of 55 cents, or even 42 cents, seems pretty high when it is taken into consideration that families of less than medium income probably use more canned goods than do the wealthy.

Greek Boy Holding Baby Squid. Many Species of Squid Found In All Oceans of the World

SQUID are distinguished from their relatives, the octopuses, by the possession of ten arms instead of eight, and therefore are grouped as the Decapoda, as contrasted with the Octopoda. Squid also differ from the octopuses in usually having an elongate cigar-shaped body adapted for rapid swimming in the high seas, while the shortened bulblike body of the octopus is better fitted for a less active, bottom life.

There are many diverse species of squid found in all the oceans of the world, including the huge giant squid. These magnificent creatures have reached the summit of cephalopod evolution. Though descended from fossil ancestors of sluggish habits because of a confining external shell, they have thrown off this prison house, or, rather, have reduced it to a horny structure embedded in the tissues of their elongate body to function as a stiffening spine.

The octopuses have gone too far in skeletal reduction, as their soft and flabby bodies have only a couple of small internal rods, or styli. Some species have lost the shell traces altogether.

In the streamlined squid, however, the internal "pen," or "cuttlebone," braces the body against water resistance and increases the locomotive power. Like all other cephalopods, the squid propel themselves backward by shooting a stream in the opposite direction, thus traveling on the principle of a skyrocket. By turning the siphon, they dart to one side, or by bending it toward the rear, they move forward, though the retrograde motion is the swiftest.

Rapid Siphon Propulsion

The squid wears its outer mantle almost like a coat. It is attached along the upper side of the body and is loosely open under the neck. From this space protrudes the siphon, like an inverted fleshy megaphone, with the narrow opening upward. The water is inhaled into the mantle cavity beneath the neck of the squid and around the outer side of the siphon, which is now in a collapsed condition. Then the muscles of the mantle wall contract. A pair of cartilaginous buttons on the edge of the siphon lock into corresponding hollows on the inner side of the mantle wall and the water is forced out through the small end of the siphon with great force.

This remarkably efficient method of propulsion is of great advantage to the squid, for by sudden bursts of speed in unexpected directions it is able to outstrip its prey with ease.

The squid has a distinct head connected to the rest of the body by a narrow neck. On either side a highly organized eye, equipped with transparent lens and circular iris, gazes coldly but intelligently at its surroundings.

The mouth, equipped with a black, parrotlike beak, is hidden in the center of the circle of ten arms, two of which are longer than the others, and may be shot out suddenly to seize a victim and then re-drawn so that the captive may be laid hold of by the eight shorter arms.

The inner side of each arm is equipped with a single or double row of cup-shaped suckers along the entire length, while the two long arms are furnished with them only at the club-shaped ends. The suckers are pneumatic in action, though in some species their hold is strengthened by a marginal ring of chitinous teeth. Some are mounted on narrow stems, though most of them are cylindrical.

Blushes When It Is Angry. When the squid is excited, it changes color, in the manner of the octopus or argonaut, except that in its anger it appears to blush almost to the point of apoplexy. In the common squid of the Atlantic coast, the pigmented spots on the body surface are largely arranged in groups. These are red, purple, and orange. Ordinarily the squid is flesh-colored, spotted with pink. When swimming over a white, sandy bottom, it suddenly fades to a corresponding paleness, rendering it almost invisible. As the creature rises through the water, it becomes translucent. When irritated, it blushes through pink, orange, red, and purple. If alarmed, it suddenly squirts out dense clouds of inky fluid, forming a "smoke screen" under cover of which it beats a retreat. As the inner horny shell remnant forming the "skeleton" is shaped like an old-fashioned quill pen, and is so called, our friend the squid is literary enough to possess pen and ink!

The common squid of our coast vary from about eight to fourteen inches in length. They prey on the smaller food fishes, especially young mackerel, swimming backward into the schools and striking vigorously right and left. They often get into the fish pounds and create havoc there. Thus they are a problem to the fisheries.

But there is a compensation, for the squid is a delicious and well-qualified delicacy as bait for larger fish, especially for cod. Bluefish, striped bass, and black bass are very fond of them and feed on them when alive.

The largest of all of these monsters is the giant squid. This largest known invertebrate far exceeds the great octopus of the Pacific coast in size and power. The most familiar of these gigantic mollusks are the Architeuthis princeps and Architeuthis harveyi of A. E. Verrill. This eminent naturalist has recorded more than a score of instances in which these two species were seen in the neighborhood of the banks of Newfoundland, while observations by Japetus Steenstrup and others have been published.

Among the giant squid noted by Verrill was a specimen which measured 10 feet from tip of tall to mouth, while the tentacular arms were 42 feet in length, thus totaling 52 feet for this enormous denizen of the ocean! Many of the specimens taken were stranded in shallow water after storms; others were captured by cod fishermen in the open sea and cut up for bait.

Apparently the giant squid are inhabitants of deeper waters and have come to the surface through accident.

Sepia From Cuttlefish

The common sepia, or cuttlefish, of the Mediterranean is abundant where it is sought for its rich brown inky fluid, the India ink, or sepia, familiar to artists. The internal calcareous shell, or "pen," is an oval structure often used in canary-bird cages as "cuttlebone."

The broad, flat body is striped like a tiger, and it is indeed a tiger of the seas, for it lies in wait, hidden by the submerged eelgrass, swimming slowly forward, undulating the ruffled fins that border its body on both sides.

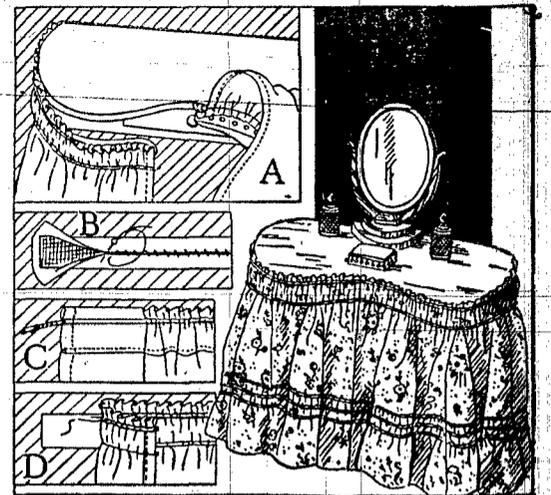

Suddenly it shoots backward, propelled by the siphon in true squid fashion, and, dodging quickly sideways, seizes an unwary fish, darting out a pair of tentacles ordinarily concealed within a sheath. The unhappy victim is then grasped by the shorter arms and devoured head first, the cuttlefish preferring the brain and fleshy part of the back.

The creature often erects the first pair of tentacles as it noses about the submarine jungle of water plants, and then its aspect suggests an odd sort of double-trunked elephant. The outer arms have broad, ruffled, and fantastically mottled expansions, which spread out like the cowcatcher of a locomotive.

The eggs are laid in bluish-black grape-like clusters lashed about the stems of eelgrass, gorgonians, or various species of algae. The animal often lies on the sea bottom with the broad outer arms outstretched like a striped tent, and, if the substratum is sandy, the changeable color scheme of the creature fades out to harmonize with the sand, within which it partially buries itself, blending completely with the environment.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

A Dressing Table Skirt With Corded Shirrings. This dressing table has a curved front and hinged arms on which to mount the skirt so that it can be opened to permit access to the drawer. To mount the skirt it must first be sewed to a band of covered buckram. Cut the buckram in a strip 2 1/2 inches wide. Cover it with a straight piece of material as shown here at B.

Make the heading at the top of the skirt just the depth of the thickness of the table edge so that it will cover the edge of the table when the arms are closed. Use 1/4-inch cable cord for the shirring. This is sewed to a safety pin and run through tucks stitched in the material as shown here at C.

The top of the ruffle is also shirred with cords. When the shirrings are all finished, sew the top of the skirt to the covered buckram strip as shown at D and then thumb tack it in place as at A. Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

Betty Crocker's KITCHEN CLINIC

prepared by NEBRASKA DEMOCRAT— BETTY CROCKER HOME SERVICE DEPARTMENT

TODAY'S RECOMMENDED RECIPE

AMERICAN PLUM PUDDING

Not all Plum Puddings were born in Merry England. We've developed a few right here in the United States of America that can hold their own way with the noblest Old World concoctions. In fact you may prefer this American Pudding. It's so much more fluffy and airy than its sturdy English ancestor. You know that distinctive "light" quality which belongs to "potato" bread? Just imagine it transferred to a pudding—along with the usual raisins, spices, suet, brown sugar, etc. Can't you see how delicious it might be? Well, potatoes and carrots, as well as our tangy American cranberries, have gone into this pudding. You see, it's really economical, as well as delicious. And you'll love its partner—the smooth luscious "Amber Sauce." A sauce that particularly recommends itself for a thrifty Christmas pudding.

- American Plum Pudding 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour 1/2 cup salt 1 tsp. soda 1 tsp. cinnamon 1 tsp. nutmeg 1 tsp. cloves 1 1/2 cups brown sugar 1 cup chopped raisins 1 cup chopped raw cranberries 1 cup ground suet 1 cup ground raw carrots 1 cup ground raw potatoes

Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, salt, soda and spices together. Blend in the sugar. Chop raisins and cranberries. Put suet, carrots and potatoes through coarse knife of food grinder. Combine all ingredients and mix well. Fill well-greased pudding mold 3/4 full, cover and place in a regular steamer over boiling water (or arrange on rack over boiling water in a large kettle). Cover steamer tightly and steam, 3 hours. Size of Pan: One round 8-inch pudding mold or two 1 lb. coffee cans. Amount: 8 generous servings.

- Amber Sauce 1 1/2 cups brown sugar 1/2 cup light corn syrup 6 tbsp. butter 1/2 cup thin cream or top milk

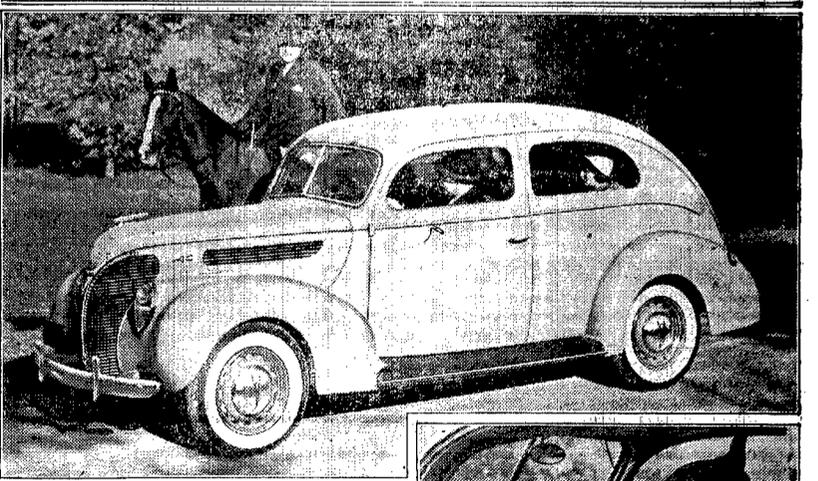

Combine all ingredients and cook slowly for 5 minutes. Serve hot over Plum Pudding or other steamed pudding. Amount: 8 generous servings.

Betty Crocker Advises

- Question: I made a Carrot Steamed Pudding. I don't know if I measured the suet right. The pudding was delicious, but I had a terrible time cutting it. It fell to pieces as I was cutting off the slices. What was the trouble? Answer: It's possible that you did pack the suet too tightly in the cup, thus giving your pudding an excess of fat. We always pack it, but very lightly. However, most suet puddings are difficult to cut. They are hot and rich and filled with fruit. A knife with a sharp thin blade is a help. Cut the pudding with a light sawing movement. There are some who insist that heating the knife first will result in less ragged-looking slices. Question: Your recipes always say to "blend in" certain ingredients. Does this mean to stir hard or easily? Answer: "Blend" is a gentle turn and means to move the spoon about in an easy stirring motion until the ingredients you are "blending" in is absorbed completely in the batter or dough. Question: Does sugar lose its strength? I get that also in two 100-lb. bags. Answer: No, sugar does not lose strength. Of course, if it gets wet or dirty, it is unfit to use. Question: Could you tell me what is the comparison of the sweetening qualities of white and brown sugar? Can you substitute one for the other? Answer: White sugar is slightly sweeter than brown sugar. However, you can substitute the brown sugar for the white sugar in many cooky recipes and also in other recipes. But be sure to pack the brown sugar in the measuring cup. White (granulated sugar) is spooned lightly into the cup for measuring. But brown sugar should always be packed to get an accurate measurement.

If you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next meal just drop a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for this week's menus. Complete menus for the week with recipes for the main items will be sent to you at no cost. Please enclose 3 cent stamp to cover return postage.

Two 1938 Ford V-8 Cars Displayed

TWO distinct lines of Ford V-8 cars are now being displayed in dealer showrooms. One is a newly-styled standard Ford line in three body types, the other a deluxe Ford line in eight body types. The deluxe Tudor sedan is pictured above. The de luxe sedans are larger in appearance, with longer hood and sweeping lines. The de luxe cars are powered with the 85 horsepower V-8 engine, the standard cars with either the 85 or the 60 horsepower engines. Newly-styled interiors are pictured at right. New instrument panel has instrument group in front of driver, grille for radio speaker installation in center, flanked by engine controls and cigar lighter, and glove compartment at right. In the de luxe cars, the compartment locks, and a clock is recessed in the compartment door.

A headlight beam control is fitted on the toe-board, a tell-tale light on instrument panel indicates whether the headlight beams are raised or depressed.

News of Interest to Farmers

Sorghums Make A Lot of Feed Produces About Twice As Much Forage As Corn

Results of the 1937 cooperative sorghum tests and similar tests conducted at the Nebraska experiment station were received this week by the Wayne county farm bureau. They indicate there is a place for adapted varieties here.

The data shows adapted varieties of grain sorghum can usually be depended upon to produce more grain than corn. This is especially true in years when drought and heat make growing conditions unfavorable. Better varieties of forage sorghums can be counted on to produce approximately twice as much forage as corn.

Gresley kafir yielded the most grain in the experiment station tests at Lincoln, 23.5 bushels. Early Kalo was second with 23.4 bushels, Sooner milo, third with 22.5 bushels, Kalo fourth with 21.6 bushels. Corn on the same ground failed.

The 1937 tests at the college of agriculture further indicated that forage sorghums produced more tonnage than corn. Atlas yielded 8.97 tons to the acre while corn made 8.84 tons. Leod Red sorgho made 8.84 tons, Wagona Grange 8.15 tons and Black Amber 7.92 tons.

Results of cooperative tests conducted in 21 different counties are also included in the sorghum report. No state average was given out as no variety may be adapted to one section and not to another.

Tests in Douglas, Jefferson and Saline counties were grouped together. There Wheatland milo ranked first in grain production with 26.5 bushels. In second place was Cheyenne kafir and in second place was Sooner milo.

Counties included in a second district were Buffalo, Clay, Guster, Franklin, Gresley, Hall, Harlan, Hayes, Perkins, and Phelps. In that section Sooner milo yielded the most grain, 27.1 bushels. White corn produced 18.4 bushels. Cheyenne kafir was in second place and Early Kalo in third position.

Tests in Garden, Holt, Keith and Kimball counties are found grouped together. There Sooner milo and Kalo tied for top place with yields of 20.1 bushels. Early Kalo was in third position with a yield of 18.7 bushels. The fourth district included tests in Antelope, Morrill, Pierce and Thurston counties. Sooner milo there was at the top with a yield of 51.5 bushels. Corn made 36.6 bushels. Early Kalo was in second position with a yield of 47.7 bushels.

Sorghum Fodder vs. Corn Fodder

Tests Show Cheyenne Fodder Worth 50 Cents More Than Corn Fodder

Wayne county farmers wondering whether sorghum fodder is superior to corn fodder for lambs are referred to preliminary results recorded in a cooperative lamb-feeding test in the W. Marshall Ross feedlots near Gibbon. There Cheyenne sweet-stalked fodder proved superior.

The test, being conducted in cooperation with the Buffalo county farm bureau and the Nebraska agricultural college extension service, showed the Cheyenne fodder at current prices was worth 50 cents per ton more than corn fodder. Attention of local farmers is called to the data because much sorghum fodder was produced here this year and producers are wondering about comparative values.

Lambs in the test preferred the sorghum fodder to the corn fodder also, eating more of it. Equal gains were secured over a 16-day period in the two lots being started on feed for a test of the feeding value of sorghum grain and corn. The lambs will be continued on a full grain feed comparing Sooner milo with shelled corn. Ross expects twice as much daily gain on the full grain feed as on the fodder rations.

The two lots of 241 lambs each were equal in quality at the beginning of the feed. Ross believes they are uniform yet. Each lot received 80 bushels of barley. In one lot, 5390 pounds of corn fodder was consumed and in the other lot 6,270 pounds of Cheyenne fodder.

In addition to the fodder, 760 pounds of shelled corn was fed in the corn fodder lot to make the ration equal to the sorghum lot. In other words, to produce equal gains 760 pounds of shelled corn had to be fed with corn fodder to take the place of 880 pounds more sorghum fodder consumed.

A feeder meeting will be held later to inspect the Ross feedlots and see the lambs on test. Final results will be available then.

City, Farm Folks Study Soil Conservation

Farmers are not the only ones interested in soil conservation. The butcher, the baker, the family doctor, and the banker, on the corner are all keeping an eye on the new trend in agriculture.

Approximately 740,000 persons from all walks of life have visited demonstration projects and CCC camp areas in various parts of the country to inspect and study scientific erosion control measures being used by farmers cooperating with the soil conservation service in its demonstration program.

Of this total, about 500,000 have been farmers who wanted specific information about soil-saving measures and practices, says the department of agriculture. Others have inspected the demonstration areas because of public interest in the erosion control program.

Most Farm Fires From Commonplace Causes

Farm fires in the United States take about 3,500 lives and destroy $100,000,000 worth of property each year, says a recent United States department of agriculture publication, "Fires on Farms."

Eighty-five per cent of this loss is from such commonplace causes as defective chimneys and flues; sparks on combustible roofs; lightning; spontaneous combustion; careless use of gasoline and kerosene; defective and improperly installed stoves and furnaces; faulty wiring; and misuse of electric appliances.

Four simple precautions that the author, Harry E. Roethlis, the bureau of chemistry and soils, gives to reduce needless waste caused by farm fires are: Use of fire-resistant roofing; dispose of waste and rubbish; never use gasoline or kerosene to start a fire, and, guard against overloading of stoves and furnaces.

At least once a year, he also suggests that major buildings be equipped with lightning rods. In addition to removing the fire hazards, Roethlis suggests preparations to fight a fire should one occur, that is, fire-fighting equipment on every farm, kept in a handy place ready for instant use.

A copy of leaflet 44, "Fires on Farms," may be obtained by writing to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Poison for the Cockroaches

Recommends Sodium Fluoride to Eradicate Pests

A large proportion of the huge sums spent by apartment houses, hotels, hospitals, and business establishments for pest control is for one insect—the cockroach, according to records in the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine. Thousands of dollars also are spent each year to fight cockroaches in the home.

Where the cockroach hides is the key to his control, bureau entomologists report. Cockroaches are nocturnal. They hide in large numbers during the day—in the home usually in the kitchen near the sink, around cabinets, behind radiators, and under baseboards or the trim on doors and windows. If a light is turned on suddenly, at night, when the roaches are feeding, they reveal their hiding places by running from them.

These are the places to treat by dusting with sodium fluoride powder or pyrethrum powder. Before applying the powder, as many openings as possible should be closed with a crack filler, such as putty, plastic wood, or plaster of paris.

Sodium fluoride, the best all-around cockroach remedy, is poisonous to man if taken internally in sufficient amounts and should be kept out of food and away from children and pets. It is blown into the hiding places with a small dust-blower or with a modern electric powder duster, or it can be sprinkled by hand where roaches run most frequently.

Because cockroaches develop slowly and can exist for some time with little or no food, they usually may be found in all stages of growth.

REPORTS PROGRESS OF RURAL SCHOOLS

County Superintendent Visits Country Teachers Pupils During Month

(From The Wayne County Teacher) In district 1 there are only two pupils, both sixth graders. Marguerite Rees is the teacher. We were pleased to see the flag raised on the pole the day we visited in district 2. A new flag for the wall is needed quite badly.

There are 12 pupils in this school. All were present.

The school room in district 3 is long, and there are now so few pupils that a partition has been put in dividing it into two parts. There was one very nice picture in this school room. It was "Boy and Rabbit." They still have one of the old Waterbury Heating Systems in this school and it heats up well. There are not many of these heating systems left in the schools. A great many have heatloafs. The third and fourth graders here were good readers.

The school room in district 4 is pleasing in appearance. The walls and ceiling look nice and clean in their coats of tan. The woodwork is light green. Striped tan shades were at the windows. There were also tan sash curtains. There was a nice flag on the front wall, also a colored picture of George Washington in the nicest frame we have seen anywhere. The blackboards here are poor, though. They are very black and shining, very difficult to see the work on.

Twenty-two pupils are enrolled in district 6. This is one of the largest schools in the county. The walls are getting so they need a little attention. This is a Standard School. We attended the Patron's Day program here on the afternoon of October 27.

In district 7 there are 18 pupils enrolled, and all grades represented. There are 14 boys and 4 girls. The boys in this school play real football. We were pleased to see the flag was up on the pole, but there was no flag, nor no alphabet on the walls. The ceiling also needed some attention.

There are 10 pupils in district 10. A new porch step is really needed. There were 23 pupils in district 11 and I believe two more are coming in. There were 17 boys and 6 girls. Two nice looking flags were crossed on the front wall. This is a nice building. It is a Standard School. For opening exercises, in the afternoon, the pupils sang "America" with lots of pep and one boy gave a little talk on "Armistice Day." We happened to visit on November 11. Proda Weible is the teacher.

In district 12 we heard some good reading. Emil and Ernest Navekai, second graders, and Clarence Venhauer, third grader, read exceptionally well. Mrs. Hazel Rolston is the teacher.

There was no alphabet on the wall in district 13. A Harmonica Band has been organized in this district. They also have a Rhythm Band.

The appearance of the room in district 15 was very nice. The walls were light green, ceiling buff, with a darker green border between the two. Tan curtains were at the windows. A new alphabet looked nice on the wall. There was an Indian Project in the sand table. The little folks were doing some good work in writing.

Our visit to district 16 was also on Armistice Day. After the health inspection, the pupils sang nicely with the victrola, "America," "America the Beautiful," and "Battle Hymn of the Republic." This is a very nice building with everything up to date, but there are only 5 pupils to enjoy it all. The day of our visit the five modern desks were arranged in a semi-circle. Pupils all seemed to be busy and interested in their work. A little first grader, Bonnie Nielsen, read well and also seemed to be doing well with her writing.

There are 10 pupils in district 18.

There are eight boys and two girls. The room was neat in appearance. The front wall was especially pleasing to the eye. The arrangement of the flags, the Seal Seal Poster, the blackboard, and colors of walls made it so. The flag was floating from the pole at this school.

The Hallwe'n decorations in district 19 were nice. The pupils gave the flag salute nicely. The teacher said they did not do so very much, singing as they had no victrola. The flag was raised on the pole. There was a "Safety" project in the sand table. The second and third graders were good readers.

There are 8 pupils in district 20. They were pleased that their swings and two teeter-totters had been repaired so they could have the use of them this year. There was no alphabet on the wall.

District 21 is the only Superior School in the county. Blanche Johnson is the teacher this year. There are five fourth graders, two of them being the twins, Marvin and Marian Schroeder. There are 12 pupils enrolled. A Rhythm Band has been organized. A Pilgrim village was built in the sand table. Two of the new modern toilets had been put in here.

In district 25 the walls, ceiling, and wainscoting, all of wood, were painted green. Darker green shades were at the windows. It all looked neat and clean, but tended to make the room dark. There was no alphabet on the wall. A new flag for the pole is needed. There was no thermometer and no fire extinguisher. I think a few new textbooks were needed. There are 8 pupils in the school. They come from four families with a girl and boy from each family. There are five pictures in this school. They are: The Mill, Angel Heads, End of Day, Magloona and Child, and Lincoln. We planned to see that two new modern toilets had been put up here.

There are 13 pupils in district 26. We find here a nice reading table, with plenty of good reading matter on it. There is an alphabet on the wall. Walls are of a pleasing tan color. There were new set-in screens for the windows and pretty sash curtains. The window shades made worth while busy work. There are five eighth graders. A Pilgrim project was built on a small shelf. There were Pilgrims, a church, and corn shocks. They have a very fine Rhythm Band in this school. A new fence has been built in front of the school house.

We were pleased to see the flag floating from the pole in district 27. A different arrangement of blackboard is very badly needed in this district. The old front blackboard is not usable. There is some slate blackboard at the back of the room right close to the stove where it is often so hot that the pupils cannot work at it. The girls' toilet needs some repairs and some new hooks are needed. There are 11 pupils enrolled.

In district 28 North the room looked nice in its Hallwe'n decorations. There was a neat reading table. There was an Indian project in the sand table. Eight pupils enrolled.

There are 16 pupils in district 28 South. The blackboards were nice and were neat. There was a nice flag on the wall. There was an Indian project in the sand table. There are five eighth graders and two seventh graders in the school. For language work the second graders did nice work in filling blanks with the words "saw or seen." The third and fourth graders had chosen their favorite poems and read them in class. They were to learn the poems for the next day. The fifth graders did good work in telling different kinds of sentences, whether they were declarative, interrogative or imperative.

In district 31 is the largest rural school in the county. Twenty-nine pupils are enrolled. There are six beginners, five eighth graders and two seventh graders as well as all other grades. There was good order and all kept busy. The room looked nice in its Hallwe'n decorations. There was an Indian project in the sand table. Of the seventh and eighth graders six are boys and one a girl. The school was singing "Billy Boy" as part of their opening exercises as we came in. Work books furnished busy work and questions were answered between recitations. Irene Dangberg is the teacher.

Fifteen pupils are enrolled in district 32. The first, third and fourth graders were all good readers. A new flag rope is needed here, as are new shades for the windows.

In district 34 the classes passed quietly without being called. There was a Pilgrim project in the sand table. At dismissal time the pupils sang a song and marched out nicely.

Twenty-three pupils are enrolled in district 35. There are six fourth graders and six sixth graders. They have plenty of nice, slate blackboards. This is one of the new buildings but is not yet a Standard building. I believe a new flag is needed for the pole and the desks seemed to need varnishing.

For opening exercises in district 36 the pupils went through their dialogues and recitations that they were preparing for their Thanksgiving program. The walls and ceiling were nice. The ceiling was buff colored and walls were white with a pretty brown border joining them. There were three nice pictures on the wall and plenty of new slate blackboard. There was no thermometer.

In district 40 a new hydraulic well has been put down and two new modern toilets installed. The twins, Erna and Ervin Jaeger, aged 5, are in this school.

The interior of the school room in district 41 was nice. The walls and ceiling were light blue and the wainscoting tan color. There were nice slate blackboards. There was a large cut up map of United States made worth while busy work. There are five eighth graders. A Pilgrim project was built on a small shelf. There were Pilgrims, a church, and corn shocks. They have a very fine Rhythm Band in this school. A new fence has been built in front of the school house.

We were pleased to see the flag floating from the pole in district 27. A different arrangement of blackboard is very badly needed in this district. The old front blackboard is not usable. There is some slate blackboard at the back of the room right close to the stove where it is often so hot that the pupils cannot work at it. The girls' toilet needs some repairs and some new hooks are needed. There are 11 pupils enrolled.

Diplomas of Honor

Pupils who have recently received Diplomas of Honor for the three years of perfect attendance are:

Eric Marquardt and Betty Peterson of district 11, Betty Nilsson of district 34, Iva Pearson of district 45, Wendell Johnson of district 47, Bonnie Bruggeman of district 68, Jarvin Valkamp of district 81, Darwin Nimrod of district 13, Vera Pedersen of district 74 and Donald Anderson of district 12.

Of General Interest

Alfred Awiszus entered the school in district 16. He had been attending in Wayne. Evelyn and Virginia Rohlf left this school on October 22. They will attend the Trinity Lutheran school at Altona.

Marvin and Dorothea Andersen, Lois and Billy Holtgreve, Leona and Elaine Lettman, Norma Nilman and Fred Mann have had perfect attendance for the first three months of school in district 28 south.

Raymond Reeg, an eighth grade pupil in district 11, had to be absent from school a month on account of getting infection in his thumb from a sandburr. He had to have the thumb amputated at the first joint.

Dale and Shirley Miller left the school in district 18 on November 5. They moved into district 88 near the Wayne fair grounds.

Mrs. Evelyn Hendrickson resigned her position as teacher in district 56. Mrs. Alice Meiners was elected to fill the vacancy.

Some of the pupils of district 26 have won Palmer pins and buttons in their Penmanship. Orville Peeters, Edward Martens and Clifford Humphrey each earned a gold plated progress pin for completing 112 drills. Marjorie Caauwe and Betty Martens earned Palmer Buttons for completing 25 drills. Mrs. Ray Philbin is the teacher.

Delois and Duane Ulrich left the school in district 3 on October 23. They moved to Stanton County.

A program is being arranged for in district 6. New shelves have been placed in the south side of the library in this school.

Darlene and Derald Utecht entered the school in district 7 on October 23. They came from district 42.

"The Sleep of Death"

BY FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Before the G-Men started mopping up on Public Enemies one of the most dangerous things that could happen to a person was to accidentally witness a gang murder. It didn't matter who you were. If you just happened to be unlucky enough to see the faces of the killers you were immediately marked for slaughter. The hoodlums had nothing against you personally. They just didn't like the possibility of your being able to identify them some day in court.

Mrs. Bessie Bronsky, of Bronx, N. Y., had just such a bad break with the result that her whole family was "put on the spot!" Some years ago before she was married, Bessie lived at the corner of Rutgers and Water streets. "The Water Street gang," a tough mob of hoodlums, made that neighborhood their headquarters at that time. One night, Bessie says, when her parents were out and she, her two little sisters and little brother were playing in the front room, they suddenly heard shots in the street. The children rushed to the windows to see what was the matter—and saw too much for their own safety.

They Had Reason to Be Frightened.

Two men were chasing a third man—firing at him with revolvers as they ran. The girls saw the victim fall and the two men pause for a second under the street light in front of the house. As the girls stared horror-stricken at the sight before them the killers looked up at them. Bessie quickly pulled her sisters away from the window, but not before the men had seen them and what was worse—KNEW THAT THEY WERE RECOGNIZED!

Bessie was frightened—so frightened that she warned the children against telling anyone about the murder and didn't even tell her parents when they returned that night. Six weeks went by and Bessie began to think she had been unduly frightened. Perhaps the gunmen hadn't seen them after all, or perhaps they realized that they would have to kill three people—all little children—and hesitated for that reason.

One hot night just as she had decided that there was no longer cause for worry, the blow struck. She had gone to bed late this night in the bedroom occupied by all the children. The bedroom had two large beds,

The Man Caught Bessie by the Throat.

Bessie says, in one of which she slept with her little brother, while her two sisters slept in the other. Their parents slept in another part of the house. Let's let Bessie tell it in her own words.

"I don't know how long I slept but in the wee hours of the morning I suddenly awoke with a choking sensation in my throat. I tried to lift my head but I felt so dizzy that my head fell right back on the pillow. I had a strange feeling of terror that I could not explain. At first I thought that I had had the nightmare but after awhile I had a strong sensation that somebody who meant us harm was in the room!

Death From Gas Was Planned.

"I was terribly sleepy and felt sick at my stomach but the feeling that a stranger was in the room was so strong that it kept me awake. I lay there shivering and pretending I was asleep. My little brother I knew was asleep and I wondered if my sisters were. Something told me to look around, so I finally succeeded in raising my head. The light from a street lamp in front of the house lit up the room fairly well but my eyes were so blurred that for a few seconds I could hardly see. I made out my sister's bed after awhile and as I looked a SHADOW MOVED ACROSS IT!

"I was so frightened now that I could not move. Cold chills went up and down my back and it seemed to me that my scalp was moving. The shadow moved again and then I saw what caused it.

"A man stood bending over my sisters' bed! The man was dressed in only an undershirt and trousers but I knew at once it could not be my father. He was taller than my father but it was too dark to really see him. As I lay there wondering what to do I smelled something that nearly drove me frantic with terror.

"The room was full of gas—that's why I was dizzy—I smelled it plainly now and the whole murderous plot came to me. I got up my nerve as well as I could. 'Who's there?' I said.

"In a flash the man sprang across the room and caught me by the throat. 'If you don't keep quiet I'll choke you,' he growled in my ear. I kept quiet for a second but the thought that my whole family would die if I remained quiet, nerved me. I made up my mind to let go one good scream even if he killed me after.

Bessie's Screams Saved Them.

"I screamed at the top of my voice—a scream loud enough to wake up the entire neighborhood. I thought the man would kill me then but he let go of my throat and swearing at me ran out of the room. I kept up screaming. My sisters and brother never even woke up, but my mother and father did. They came rushing into the room and then something seemed to explode in my head and that's all I remember.

But that's not all Bessie's father and mother remember—not by a long shot! They found that a rubber hose from the kitchen stove had been placed over the gas jet in the children's room and the other end lay on the pillow of the two sisters' bed!

And gas was pouring into the room from the open gas jet! Another few minutes and this story never would have been told. The papers would have told another story of the "accidental death by gas of four children."

Fortunately all recovered and the first thing Bessie's father did was to move away from that neighborhood and they were never bothered again.

Wolf, Cunning Animal

Nature knows few beasts more cunning, more elusive than the wolf. There are trappers who have lived all their lives in wolf-infested territory, caught many of the animals in traps, yet have never seen a live wolf. That is easily explained. Wolves fear men, recognize them as their greatest enemies. The wraiths of the timber generally refuse to approach any place man has been. When hunters find a caribou that has been killed by wolves, they sprinkle the carcass with strychnine, hoping the wolves will return and be poisoned. Usually, it is a vain hope. Only the unwary of wolves will touch the meat for the man-scent is there.

Order of the Garter

The Order of the Garter is the highest order of knighthood in the world. It is believed to have been instituted by Edward III about 1343, says London Answers Magazine. The story goes that, at a court ball, the Countess of Salisbury of that day stepped her garter. To cover her confusion, the king picked up the pretty thing, bound it round his own leg, and said: "Honi soit qui mal y pense" (Evil be to him who evil thinks of this). This afterwards became the motto of the order and of the crown of England. The Order of the Garter is limited to the sovereign and other members of the royal family, with 25 knights and such foreign royalties as may be admitted.

What Irvin S. Cobb Thinks about

Vanishing Wild Life.

VARNER PLANTATION, Tex.—Thanks to woe legislation, the wild fowl are coming back to this gulf country. True, the flocks may never again be what they were; yet, with continued conservation, there'll again be gunning for one and all.

But when I think back on the ducks I saw down here 10 years ago—in countless hosts—I'm reminded of what Charley Russell, the cowboy artist said to the lady tourist who asked him whether the old-time r's exaggerated when they described the size of the vanished buffalo herds. "Wellum," said Charley, "I didn't get up to this Mon. Irvin S. Cobb tana country until after the buffaloes started thinning out. But I remember once I was night-herding when the fall drift got between me and camp and I sat by and watched 'em pass. Not having anything else to do, I started counting 'em. Including calves, I counted up to 3,009,065,294, and right then was when I got discouraged and quit. Because I happened to look over the ridge and here came the main drove."

Becoming a Head Man.

LET an unshorn dandruff fancier claim he's divine and, if nobody else agrees with his diagnosis, the police will jug him as a common nuisance and the jail warden will forcibly trim his whiskers for him or anyhow have them searched. But if enough folks, who've tried all the old religions and are looking for a new one, decide he is the genuine article, then pretty soon we have a multitude testifying to the omnipotence of their idol.

Let another man think he is a reincarnation of Julius Caesar or Alexander the Great, and if few or none feel the same way about it he's bound for the insane asylum. But the majority, which is a large body of persons entirely surrounded by delusions, agrees with him that he is what he says he is he becomes a dictator and rules over the land until common sense is restored, if at all.

Let the writer of a daily column begin to think his judgments are perfect and his utterances are infallible—but, hold on, what's the use of getting personal?

Grandma's Toss.

WE LAUGH at our grandmothers who believed that, for a lady to be properly dressed, she should have a little something on anyway.

Maybe those mid-Victorian ladies sort of overdid the thing—bustles that made them look like half-sisters to the dromedary, skirts so tight they hobbled like refugees from a chain gang, corsets laced in until breathing was almost a lost art, boned collars so high they seemed to be peeping over an alley fence. Still, wearing five or six starched petticoats, the little woman was safe from Jack the Pincher unless he borrowed some steamfitter's pliers.

And later when, for a season, blessed simplicity ruled the styles, her figure expressed the queenly grace that comes from long, chaste lines. Probably the dears never figured it out. Just the natural cunning of their sex told them 'twas the flowing robes which gave majesty and dignity to kings on the throne and judges on the bench and prelates at the altar—and shapely women-folk.

How old-fashioned those times seem today when every dancing floor is a strip-tease exhibit and every bathing beach a nudist show; and a debutante, posing for snapshots, feels she's cheating her public unless she proves both knees still are there.

Reading Dickens.

I'VE been reading Dickens again. This means again and again. I take "Pickwick Papers" once a year just as some folks take hay fever. Only I enjoy my attack.

Dickens may have done caricatures, but he had human models to go by. He drew grotesques, but his grotesques had less highly-colored duplicates in real life. And readers recognized them and reassured them as symbols of authentic types. The list is almost endless—Sam Weller, Sairy Gamp, Daniel Quilp, Uriah Heap, Mrs. Nickleby, Mr. Micawber, Mr. Pecksniff—oh, a dozen more.

What writer since Dickens has been able to perpetuate one-tenth so many characters? There is Tarkington with his Penrod and his Alice Adams; there was Mark Twain with his Huck Finn and Colonel Mulberry Sellers. There lately has been Sinclair Lewis with two picturesque creations to wit: Babbalanza and Sinclair Lewis.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

by Thornton W. Burgess

SAMMY JAY PUTS ON HIS THINKING CAP

SAMMY JAY had a great deal to think about and so he went off by himself to a certain thick hemlock tree in the Green Forest where he could be quite alone. Now, whenever Sammy Jay goes by himself that way to put on his thinking cap you may make up your mind that mischief of some kind is brewing in that small head of his. Just now Sammy was thinking about what he had overheard Buster Bear say to Jumper the Hare, and he was wondering how he could get something out of it for himself. You know, Sammy is one of those people who try to profit by the troubles of other people. He is never so happy as when he can find some one in trouble, because he is almost sure to find some way to get something for himself out of it.

One time Sammy happened along when Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack and Gray Squirrel were quarreling about some very fat choice acorns. Each claimed them as his. Sammy just urged them to fight for them, and this is what they did. While they were fighting Sammy carried away all the acorns, and when finally they agreed to stop fighting and divide the acorns they found none to divide. Sammy had hidden every one where only he could find them. That was dishonest, very dishonest, but, you know, Sammy has always been a thief. He thought it was smart. You and I know better, but he didn't, and there are a lot of people in this world just like him.

Now, Sammy knew very well that Buster Bear was the strongest and biggest of all the people who lived in the Green Forest, and when he had first seen Buster Sammy had been very much afraid of him. Now he wasn't afraid, because he knew that his wings would keep him out of reach of Buster's cruel claws, but he had a great deal of respect for Buster, just the same and he wanted to do something that would make Buster his friend. When he overheard Buster ask Jumper the Hare to try to find out for him where he could get some honey Sammy smiled. He knew that the only way Jumper could find out was by asking questions of those who lived in trees, for it is in hollow trees that Busy Bee stores up honey. To be sure, Busy's big cousin, Bumble, who makes such a fuss about everything he does, has a little storehouse in the ground, and possibly Jumper might find this. But if he did it wouldn't be a taste for Buster. What he wanted was the storehouse of Busy Bee.

"Now if I can find it for him," thought Sammy, "he'll always be my friend. I think I'll have a look at all the hollow trees I know of in the Green Forest."

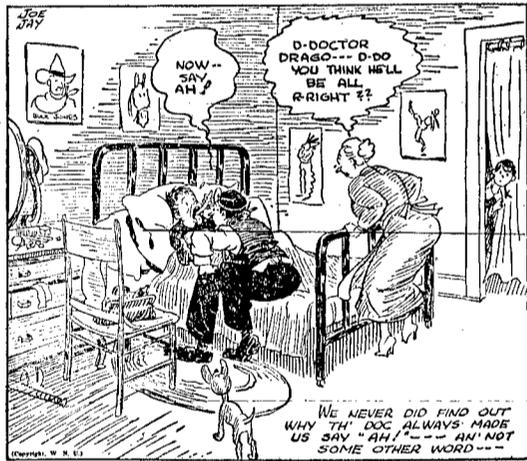

Just then another thought popped into Sammy's head. He and Reddy Fox were not the best of friends. In some ways they were very much alike, and perhaps this was the reason that they were forever falling out. Sammy had been one of the first and loudest to jeer at and make fun of Reddy the time he seemed to be running away from Jumper the Hare. Then he had seen Reddy run from Buster Bear only that very morning, when Buster had suddenly appeared just as Reddy had thought to catch Jumper the Hare, and he knew that Reddy knew that he had seen and laughed at him. So now Reddy was sure to be his enemy.

"If I can think of some plan which will make Reddy think he can make friends with Buster Bear, why Reddy will forget all about his anger with me," thought Sammy. "I have it! I'll tell him how Buster wants some honey and set him to hunting for the storehouse of Busy Bee."

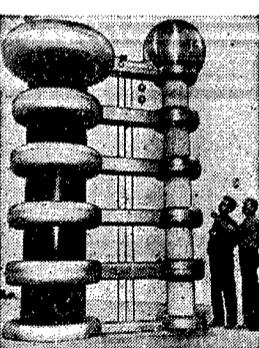

With that off Sammy Jay to hunt for Reddy Fox and tell him how he could make friends with Buster Bear.

Giant X-Ray Tube

Containing what is asserted to be one of the world's most powerful X-ray tubes, a new five-story building erected to house complete facilities for treating cancer with radium and million-volt radiation was opened recently in Los Angeles. Organized by Dr. Roscoe Smith, former director of a high voltage cancer clinic in Lincoln, Neb., the Los Angeles Institute of Radiology contains enough scientific apparatus to outfit several technical laboratories. The tube which is designed to be operated at 1,600,000 volts, measures fourteen feet in height and weighs over two tons. In the picture the upper half of the X-ray tube is at the right and the transformer at the left.

High, Low Points in Missouri

The highest altitude in Missouri is atop Taum Sauk mountain in Iron county where the barometer registers 1,000 feet above sea level. The lowest point is the St. Francis river in Dunklin county, the altitude being but 230 feet above sea level.

Catch Up on Chic

IF YOU'RE a bit behind in the thrilling game of Sew-Your-Own, Milady, why not take advantage of the holiday season and catch up? Today's trio is especially right for "vacation sewing" because it consists of simple practical pieces that require little time and trouble. Make all three and you'll have gone a long way toward putting the old punch back in the game.

Streamlined Styling.
The slip at the left is all you could wish for from the standpoint of styling. It offers superb lines from the moderately low-cut V-neck, through the dart-fitted waist right down to the very hem. The clever overlapping back is light proof and provides an action pleat so necessary for complete satisfaction. Important, too, is the fact that you may choose the material you wish in your own color. Better make it in duplicate many meticulous months ahead.

Pretty in Sheer Wool.
The two-piece in the center is, like the slip, heavy on style. The defined waist is effectively young as is the flowing skirt and little round collar. It is just the frock to give one lots of git-up-and-git for the second semester, or "to break the ice" whenever one is anxious about one's appearance. It can be the height of chic in sheer wool—very pretty in flat crepe.

Modern Home Dress.
When it's home you're thinking of you naturally turn to a frock like the third member of the trio at the right. This button-all-the-way model is different enough to delight you and simple enough to set you sewing at sight. It is cut for comfort but with an ever watchful eye on that elusive little thing called chic. Crisp contrast may be had in the collar and cuffs and in that trim row of buttons that march down the line—and then back again. Look fresh in your version in pretty percale.

The Patterns.
Pattern 1946 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 44 bust). Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch fabric. One yard of ribbon is required for shoulder straps.
Pattern 1404 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material.
Pattern 1390 is designed for sizes 34 to 48. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch material. The collar and cuffs in contrast require 1 1/4 yards material.

Path of Virtue
The path of virtue is closed to no one, it lies open to all; it admits and invites all; whether they be free-born men, slaves or freed-men, kings or exiles; it requires no qualifications of family or property, it is satisfied with a mere man.—Seneca.

Were you ever alone in a strange city?

If you were you know the true value of this newspaper
Alone in a strange city. It is pretty dull. Even the newspapers don't seem to print many of the things that interest you. Headline stories are all right, but there is something lacking. That something is local news.
For—all good newspapers are edited especially for their local readers. News of your friends and neighbors is needed along with that of far off places. That is why a newspaper in a strange city is so uninteresting. And that is why this newspaper is so important to you. NOW is a good time to get to...

Grange Aided Pros

It seems a long time since Red Grange hung up his togs at Illinois and chaperoned by C. C. Pyle, sped to Chicago to flash his "77" for George Halas' Chicago Bears. Then Grange was a five-day wonder. He played to 70,000 in New York and drew a gate of $56,000. After the hot flash of publicity cooled he didn't pull them through the turnstiles in such numbers, but he had a notable career and helped make the game what it is today.

Red Grange

Surviving the depression, pro football is enjoying increased public acceptance. Because of seasonal handicaps and the very nature of the game, it can never be a rival of professional baseball. But it undoubtedly is taking some of the play away from college football and the average seasoned fan will tell you he'd rather see an ordinary pro game than a good college one.

As you may know, the National Football league, formed in 1921, consists of two five team divisions—the Western, which includes the Green Bay Packers, Cleveland Rams, Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals and Detroit Lions; and the Eastern, embracing the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers, Washington Redskins, Pittsburgh Pirates and Philadelphia Eagles. Eight of the nine clubs are in cities that support major league baseball teams.

Play Once a Week

Teams play but once a week on a schedule calling for only 11 games. Each team plays a home-and-home series with every other team in its division, plus three inter-divisional games. The winners of each division meet for the world's championship.

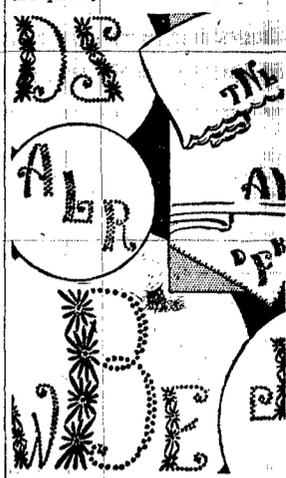

With such a midget schedule it may seem miraculous that the league is able to stay in business. But the pro boys have an advantage in the matter of overhead. They have no investment in grounds. Parks are rented usually from baseball clubs for a flat sum, or as the Giants and several others do, for 15 per cent of the gross receipts. No scouts are hired.

In the season just closed, the world's championship went to the Washington Redskins, winners of the eastern division title, who defeated the Chicago Bears, leaders of the western division in a game in Chicago.

The salary of players is a major item. Linesmen usually receive from $125 to $175 a game. Big-name players, either All-American collegians or league high scorers who have gate-swelling prowess earn anywhere from $5,000 to $7,500 a season, or approximately $400 to $650 a game. "Slingshot Sam" Baugh, who pitches passes with such hair trigger timing for the Washington Redskins, Dutch Clark of the Detroit Lions and Tuffy Leemans of the Giants all collect $7,000 or more a year—which is better than the average mine-run big league baseball player drags down for playing 154 games.

Initials on Linens Stamp You as Chic

It's smart to "be personal" when marking linens, for towels, pillow slips, sheets and even personal "dainties" make known your ownership when embroidered with your very own initials. These are quickly worked in single stitch and French knots, either in a combination of colors or the same color throughout. Pattern 1553 contains a transfer pattern of an alphabet 2 3/4 inches high, two 1 1/4 inches high and one 3/4 inch high; information for placing initials and monograms; illustrations of all stitches used.

Send 15 cents in stamps or coins (coins preferred) for this pattern to The Sewing Circle, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York, N. Y.

Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Salt and Pepper Shaker—A large shaker containing six parts salt to one part pepper and kept on the stove will save steps when seasoning cooking foods.

Lining a Coat—Lining a coat, put the coat on inside out. Have the lining all ready stitched up, and slip it over the coat. It will fall into position naturally. Pin it in place, and finish in the usual way.

Baking Escalloped Mixtures—Time and fuel will be saved if escalloped mixtures are baked in shallow, wide dishes or pans.

Watch Your Step—Painting the bottom step of the cellar stairs white makes it more conspicuous and often helps to prevent accidents.

Preventing Rust in Oven—After using the oven, leave the oven door wide open, to allow it to cool down thoroughly. This allows all moisture to escape and prevents rust.
