REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For Representatives in Congress,
G. W. E. DORSEY,
of Dodge County.

The tariff discussion is over in the house.

Vestibule trains now run between Chicago and Omaha.

The Wayne Chronicle presents the name of A. R. Graham of that place for state treasurer.

The worst blow given the Graham boom is the favorable opinion of him expressed by Voorhees.

It is safe to venture the prediction that Nebraskans will send a solid republican delegation to congress next term.

One of the officers of a big Blaine club predicts a big majority for him after a few ballots have been taken and the "favorites sons" are out of the way.

With half a dozen candidates for state treasurer in the field already the northeastern part of the state is likely to divide up its strength and let some other section walk off with the nomination.

The Omaha Bee announces that McShane will not be a candidate for congress again. The reason given is that his business needs him, but it is more probable that a disinclination to face the five thousand republican majority is at the bottom of it.

Some one, intentionally or otherwise, tacked on several resolutions from the democratic platform to the republican declaration of principles while they were in transit from the committee on resolutions to the printer, and they appeared the next morning as a part of the republican platform of faith.

Representative McKieley, of Ohio, introduced an object lesson in his speech on the Mills bill last week. Replying to the assertion that the entire wages of a working man for twenty days were required to buy a suit of clothes, he drew from his desk and passed around the house a suit of good quality which he had bought for ten dollars at the establishment of a Boston member who had distinguished himself solely by his constant advocacy of free trade.

It is generally understood that C. L. Lamb, of Stanton, will be a candidate for state treasurer. He came within a few votes of receiving the nomination nine years ago, and will go into the convention with a strong following. Charley has many friends in Wayne county and we have little doubt that it will give him a hearty support. With Mr. Lamb out of the race, A. R. Graham, of Wisner, who is also a candidate, would probably be the choice of this county.

If the northeastern counties of Nebraska expect any recognition at political conventions they must all unite for one object and throw the entire strength of their united delegations to accomplish it. There is not a single county in this section of the state that has a delegation large enough to give it any particular influence. In a convention, but uniting in a compact body they would be in condition to demand some consideration. There is no use in sending delegates to any convention where they are obliged to merely ratify the slate prepared in advance.

The democrats who a year ago were swearing at Cleveland for his mangy-wumpery cow join in the general yell for Grover. There is a strong suspicion that are for Cleveland because they recognize the fact that it is useless to oppose him, and so they assume an admiration they do not feel. With as good grace as possible they resign themselves to the inevitable. "Was your wife resigned to die?" was asked of a burly Teuton. "Resigned, mein Gott, she had to be!" So those democrats who have to be re-signed, willing or unwilling, openly applaud, and inwardly groan and swear.

Discussing the probable result of the presidential election the Omaha Republican makes the following classifications. It gives the democrats all the southern states, with a total of 153 electoral votes. In the list of sure republican states it places all the northern states with the exception of New York, 36 votes; Indiana, 15 votes; New Jersey, 9 votes; Connecticut, 6 votes. The states classed as surely republican cast 182 votes. There are a total of 401 electoral votes, 201 being necessary to a choice. Taking the classification of sure democratic and republican states as correct, as it apparently is, the republicans can win by carrying New York, or by carrying Indiana and New Jersey, by carrying Indiana and Connecticut. The democrats cannot possibly win if they fail to carry New York.

New York Herald: If the republicans were wise they would quickly make up their minds to abandon both the center and formidable areas like Iowa, and gently store them away.

Then, remembering that they have in their party, or, let us say, within reach of it, one glorious name, the embodiment of valor in war and patriotism in peace; a character ripened and rich in virtue, and adorned with all the chivalrous, national, liberal virtues, whose name would awaken the memories of the great days, an ideal American—remembering that such a candidate is within political hopes and possibilities, let them throw their flag to the breeze, and on its folds inscribe the mighty name of Sheridan.

Omaha is tickled. The committee to select a place for holding the next general conference of the Methodist church in 1892, has listened to the soft blandishments of the Omahans and recommended that Omaha be chosen. Evidently Omaha is more anxious to get the advertising such a convention will give her, than to secure the solid growth that would be gained by the building of the Omaha & Northern.

There is going to be a great scarcity of seats at the Chicago convention. The delegates will be allowed but three tickets each, and the alternates will be obliged to content themselves with one.

One benefit which the farmer who refrains from using arsenic in his grove will realize, and which should by no means be lost sight of, is that such groves invite the insect destroying birds, which are the farmers' best friends in protecting fruit or other crops from the ravages of destructive insects. It is true that we claim a share of the small fruits, but not a larger one we think than they are justly entitled to as remuneration for their work in destroying insects. Then again they are so companionable that their presence on the premises is worth a good deal.—Nebraska Farmer.

It is the opinion of those who are in a position to know that the period of low prices for cattle has reached an end and that the change for better prices is near. This conclusion is based upon the following facts, viz., that the enthusiasm and interest in the western ranch business is dying out, and that thousands of cattle from the western plains have been rushed into market before they were fitted for it, which is a tendency to run down the price. Owing to the feeding fewer cattle, but better breeds for beef, beef and milk. Good butter has not sold for less than 15 cents per pound within five years, while extra creamery butter brought from 25 to 40 cents. The demand for first class cows has always been in excess of supply. One hundred, one and two and three year old steers have found a ready sale at good prices.—Nebraska Farmer.

Rapid City Republic: A gentleman by the name of John Kiefer living on Bad river, where a large number of the Indians of the Sioux reservation spend most of their time, writes to a friend in this city that he has talked with a large number of the Indians and made more concession concerning the passing of the reservation bill and has yet failed to meet one who is not willing to give his consent to the opening of the reserve. Mr. Kiefer has lived on Bad river for many years, and is personally acquainted with many of the better class of Indians. He states that the Indians at Fort Pierre have signed their willingness to have the bill become a law, and feels confident that to obtain the necessary signatures will be an easy matter. There has been a great deal said and written concerning the reduction of the Sioux reservation. He says that he remembers that on the occasion of failure of the bill depends the progress or retrogression of southeastern Dakota it will not be wondered at that all Dakota people feel the interest they do in the opening of the reservation without delay, that the beneficial effects may be enjoyed at once. We have also heard of the Indians of the Black Hills asking the Indians to give their consent.

This is the season, says the American Artisan, when consumers are buying and beginning to use gasoline stoves. Stove dealers should spare no pains to explain to purchasers of vapor stoves the nature of gasoline and to impress upon them the importance of care in the use of it as fuel.

Most stove dealers are agreed that it is impossible to fill them while the burners are lighted; but if a stove is not so constructed, the purchaser should be urged never to fail to turn out all burners before filling. With lay-down tanks and other devices it is possible to overflow the tank or to allow it to roll on the floor. If this happens, the burner should be lighted until the fluid has been wiped up and doors opened so there be left in the room little or no gas from evaporation. It is only by the grossest carelessness or most wilful refusal to adhere to instructions in the use of gasoline stoves that accident is possible in their use. But accidents may happen when fire is present, whatever the form of fuel or construction of stove.

Occasional complaints are made that ovens of gasoline stoves do not heat well. When they do not heat well it is more than likely to fail to do so for a long time. The trouble in baking with gasoline stoves is that the bread, meat or pastry is put almost as soon as the burner is lighted, instead of waiting until the oven is thoroughly warm. It is impossible to obtain good results when this is done. It does not take nearly as much time to heat a gasoline oven as that of a coal or wood stove, but it is no less important that it should be well heated.
