Nature of Instinct.

The early philologists and later savants were a great deal disturbed by the nature of the phenomena called instinct, and their efforts to explain it...

As a matter of fact, the question is not something of a haphazard, and with a large and even intelligent class it will remain so until the truth of some fundamental and simple principles more thoroughly recognized.

The popular mind looks upon instincts as another form of intelligence, and strange to say, the popular mind has been great without realizing it.

This relationship is not the one of the popular fancy. The instinct develops out of the same class and calls on a higher form of the other. This what is called intelligence in mankind is held to be instinct in the lower animals.

The origin of instinct is a very simple matter, and apart from the complex laws of heredity is due, primarily to the condition under which the organism is reared.

There are many examples of the kind in the history of the world, and the business of their ancestors, without what might be precisely called good reason.

It is in every existence, an instinct is inherited in the form of a natural or artificial development, it grows in intensity until it becomes a characteristic, permanently fixed and transmitted with marked certainty.

Some of the most pronounced instincts are those displayed by hunting dogs. A well-bred setter or pointer will without any education whatever, point staunchly the first cry of a bird.

With the sound, the expression of the most pronounced instinct is a natural and necessary result of the heredity of the species.

Preasons of Instinct but cultivation and experience.

We can very easily trace the origin of the woodchuck and announced instincts to their source. There it will be found that they originated in intelligent action.

Men who apply themselves with effort to a particular class of work lay the foundation of a useful instinct that would be formed in some future generation of the same class.

THE WOODCHUCK WON.

A Veracious Narrative of "The Road" and the Sorry Tail of a "Bob."

"One fine lake morn'g, 'tho' Major" and "Bob," who had stopped off to get fishin' had enough impromptu sport to last them a week.

"I won't bet, but I just want to try him on small game at first," was the reply.

"All right," said the brakeman, and he let the woodchuck out on the floor.

The woodchuck at once backed into a corner, showing its teeth to the audience. "The pup was brought out and had to be held with some strength so as to give him confidence in future action."

"Guess the fight won't last long," remarked the station agent, as he held his pet toward the little animal in the corner and turned him loose.

The dog whined, snarled up to his eyes and tried to get at the woodchuck, but he was held back by the station agent and caught him on the eyebrow, his teeth meeting, as in the first clutch.

"It was getting warm inside the room and the dog was getting hot to let in air. This bold dog leaped for the woodchuck and by his ineptness gave his opponent a chance which was not lost of seizing him in the belly and the flank.

"A good many people are bitten by dogs when a very few need be. In the first place people are not meddlesome with dogs who do not know them."

STRANGE AND PITIFUL.

The remarkable history and wanderings of a certain animal, the woodchuck, has just passed through the pages of the Chicago Tribune.

The strange case of High Thompson has just passed through the pages of the Chicago Tribune. It is a remarkable story. Thompson left his home in Chicago, Ill., in 1875, and was reported missing and was a few months ago his family mourned him as dead.

Where he spent the interval he does not know. In that year he was walking near the little town of Cleveland, in Illinois, when the memories of the war returned to him.

"That's the very man I want!" said I. "I jumped on my horse and put the spurs to him and rode after him."

"I fear you are gone," said the man. "You're high, I reckon." "Yes, and you cannot afford to lose me."

"I'm afraid that you are not ready to die, my poor friend," said the preacher. "Death is a very serious thing."

Teaching the Deaf-Blind School.

It was one of those sunny days in August when every object animates and inanimate seemed keening for breath and in The little brown school-house at Mapleton, Kittie Markham took little Kattie to her teacher, who was having the last examination preparatory to closing school.

All day her scholars had been restless and uneasy, causing her nearly double the trouble they usually did. She had made a mighty good guess as to the cause, knowing that it was a great trial to remain quiet on so warm a day; but her patience was sorely tried, and her head throbbed with pain when the last class in spelling took their places on the floor.

Fifteen minutes more would resolve her from her duties, and thoughts of a quiet nap on a lounge, in Mrs. Barton's cool sitting-room, began to drift through her mind.

The words were given and spelled with alacrity, for the children were anxious to be "role-said" as was their teacher, until the last one in the class was reached.

"The word was given as usual, and she saw a motion to open her book, made no attempt to spell it. "Did you not hear, Kattie? Please to spell 'artist.'" Kittie said timidly, although she knew full well the girl did her for, for it was not the first time that she had been asked to do anything but read and spell her, and to-day she had asked to be excused from this same lesson; but knowing no sufficient reason for so doing, Kittie had said she would do it. She was plainly that was the consequence of her and her head doubled its throbs of pain in anticipation of the long struggle before the stubborn will would yield.

The second and third time she was asked to spell it, she was plainly that was the consequence of her and her head doubled its throbs of pain in anticipation of the long struggle before the stubborn will would yield.

able flood of tears. Poor, lonely heart! Kattie Markham! Such sorrows as these were terrible trials to her shrieking nature and made her feel doubly her loneliness.

"He was so hard," she thought to be all alone in the world; neither father, mother, sister nor brother, to love or care for her—no one but distant relatives, who would not treat themselves with their loved or cold.

The Way We Prick Each Other.
O, the way we prick each other. Scatter each other's eggs. Gall each other's eyes. Spit each other's brains. How we sting each other. And they we sting a fretting. Pull out the hair on our noses. Try to make a hole in the skin. Not above men can it do. Pricking frets more and it's fun. When your sister's form takes roundness. You'll compliment her on it. While you add with great profusion. "Really marvelous, my dear." (How is that to sting a sister?)

When your sister's graceful outline By her own will is displayed, We can sit her down without letting: "How is that to sting a sister?"

When we tell Miss de-la-Jolie, See her slip with her brother, "Why's her brother?"—a pause—"Why's her father?"—a pause—"Why's her mother?"—a pause—"Why's her father?"—a pause—"Why's her mother?"—a pause—"Why's her father?"—a pause—"Why's her mother?"—a pause.

When you take your sister's hair, See her peek and stand it well; She'll stroke and pat it a while. "But I got her when I kissed her!"

A New Cave in Mexico.
Sig. S. Margilist, the well known archeologist, has discovered and explored a heretofore sealed cave, at an elevation of nearly 4,000 feet on the eastern side of the Sierra Madre mountains near the town of Chignahuapan, in the state of Oaxaca. In the far end of the cavern were found four desiccated human bodies in a sitting posture. Along the floor, about 200 yards from the entrance, were found the bones of a man and a woman, and a child. The bones were found in a sitting posture.

American Streets.
A writer in The Nation remarks that the new building styles have been laid out with the tape-line and not right angles. This, he observes, is very likely a result of the fact that the streets are laid out on a diagonal, and the distance is increased in the proportion of 40 per cent. He says that instead of walking 100 feet, we walk 140. Hence a loss of time, strength, and money. Salt Rheum.
Gentle water, great-great-great, in many instances, is the best remedy for salt rheum. It is a form of eczema, and is characterized by small, red, itchy spots, which are often accompanied by a discharge of a thin, watery fluid. It is most common about the eyes, nose, and mouth, and is often caused by a deficiency of salt in the system.

The president has again voted a bill providing for a public building at Sioux City.

E. P. Wetherby, of Knox county, was nominated for representative in congress from this district at the democratic convention at Norfolk Tuesday evening. Considering the certain result of the election it will prove an expensive luxury for Mr. Wetherby.

The Wayne Herald, in its write up of the Union-Labor convention calls our editor, Russell, in question. What will happen next? It may be the people will swallow every pill from whatever source. If the people's voice has not saved the county a cent it is best to let them know what the outcome of the convention here has been dispensed with. We are afraid it will take more than one crank to explain that so as to appear that nothing has occurred. Alliance News.

No, the Herald, as far as we're concerned, did not use a word about the county records in that report. What it did was to call attention to some very wild statements made at the Union Labor convention, and we have not yet seen any explanation of them either.

Mr. A. H. Carter, the republican nominee for commissioner in the third district, has been served with notice by a "reformer" who professes to speak for the union labor party in the county, that he can not have the union labor vote and that he proposes to use the entire strength of the organization to defeat him. And why do you suppose? Not because he is not honest, or competent, and would not make a good member of the board, for he admitted that, but because he is engaged in business in Winsde, And who is more interested in the people of the southern part of the county than Mr. Carter? Who would take more interest in securing them good roads and bridges, and in every possible manner looking after their interests before the board than one whose business will be good or bad in proportion as the people in his neighborhood are prosperous or otherwise? It is scarcely to be thought a sane man would make such an objection to a candidate, and we do not believe the sensible members of the union labor party will permit themselves to be led into any such foolishness by one of their self appointed leaders.

Mr. Bennett Again.

In your letter last week, Mr. Bennett you stated positively that "there is a set of men in Wayne county who threaten to prosecute our county treasurer if he attempts to handle the county funds for the good of the county." We do not believe that you would have made such a statement unless you thought it to be true. There is only one possible means of supporting such a statement, and that is their own declarations that they would pursue such a course. No one would make such a serious charge on mere suspicion. Either you, or the parties from whom you received your information, of course know the names of the parties. Now Mr. Bennett, the people of the county have a right to know who they are, and as you made the charge, you are the proper person to furnish their names. We shall expect that you will comply with the request to furnish them, and the Herald promises you that it will publish them, no matter who they may be, that the people of the county may hold them in the contempt and execration they deserve. A failure to produce the names will be taken by the people of the county as an admission that the existence of such a conspiracy against the treasurer and the people of the county is merely a figment of the imagination, conceived either by yourself or your informant. Let us have the names, or an honest confession that you can't give them.

Overseer thing Mr. Bennett. You talk of "farmers" and "business men" as though the community were divided into these two classes, with no common interests. You would not take it very kindly Mr. Bennett, if any one should say that because your occupation is farming instead of dealing in dry goods that you are no business man. The fact is that the attempt to divide such a community as this into two classes whose interests are opposed to each other is the purest folly. You, Mr. Bennett, have not a title of the financial interest in the success of your neighbors that the people who sell them dry goods, and groceries and lumber have.

The prosperity of the farmers is absolutely essential to the prosperity of the people of the town in an agricultural community, and they all recognize and admit this fact, but to a farmer who has good crops it makes little or no difference, as a matter of dollars and cents, whether his neighbors have good crops or not. In fact the chances are that he will get better prices in consequence of his neighbors' misfortunes. It is different with the people of the town, who are interested in the success of every farmer in the trade territory tributary to their town. You would probably not say that the people of the town are blind to their own interests, nor that they would intentionally do anything to injure themselves, yet in effect that is what is said when it is declared that the people in the town are arrayed against the farmers. Such talk is arraigned against Mr. Bennett, and if you will give the matter a moment's thought you will admit it, and that the wild ravings of such fellows as "reformer" Jim Elliott are the shallowest kind of demagogism, indulged in by cranks to give themselves popularity.

Stanton and Wayne counties form a Representative district. It is Stanton county's turn to name the candidates in both parties. We do not know the name of our Democratic statesman who has expressed a long desire to enter the race for legislative honors, and possibly, the opportunity may not be known to them. But we can assure our brethren of Wayne that the Republicans are already named, and are not sitting idly by and seeing their official front go unparaded for lack of pickers. The following named are mentioned as aspirants: Ex-Judge Bowman, A. Ayer, R. Layton, and C. T. Hughes. They are all good men and worthy of the places for which they have been named. Stanton Register.

CURRENT EVENTS.

The Price of Wales is forty-six. Gen. Sherman will soon be sixty-eight. New York city had a $150,000 fire last night. Natural is the key-note to good bread. Celluloid has almost driven ivory out of use. The locust plague in Algeria is becoming worse.

There are 10,000 Japanese Christians in Japan. They have natural gas and petroleum in Japan. The first railroad in Persia is being constructed. Statistics show that labor-saving machines increase production.

A Boston professor is embalming a whale for $1,000. General Bull's still in active business in Kentucky. De Lensey, the French explorer, is in his eighty-third year. Sen. Butler spends much of his time in his New York office.

Prince Roland Bonaparte is in Washington studying the natives. At Minneapolis, Minn., 30,000 barrels of flour were put on the water. An expedition is being organized in the relief of Bantu Bui. Ireland's latter export to England is 60,000,000 pounds annually.

One of the largest powder factories in the world is located in Chile. Large deposits of salt and gas have been found at West Point, Ky. Russia has signed the Convention for the abolition of sugar bounties. A trader across the English channel to cost $100,000 is contemplated.

Japan laborers are complaining of the growing arrivals of Chinese coolies. A gold mine near Sitka, Alaska, is said to be the largest producer in the world. A man at Fairfield, B. C., died last week of hydrophobia, caused by a bite of a cat. All the iron mines of railroad are cutting freight rates from Chicago to the westward.

One-half of the corn produced in this country are manufactured in Lancaster, Pa. King Charles of Roumania is said to be the most elegant social statesman of Europe. The mean temperature for June was higher than during any preceding June for 17 years. A wood-burn in town last week did considerable damage over a large area of country.

Every man is poor who spends more than he makes; no man is poor, who spends less. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., is a judge of the supreme court of Massachusetts. A large number of deaths by drowning occurred in different parts of the country last week. A forty-old journal of Robert Burns, which was bought in Toronto for $2, is now held at $2,000.

The French revenue surplus for the first six months of the year amounted to $3,000,000 francs. Garrett, once President of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, is only an ordinary millionaire now. 1,570 miles of railroad are to be built in the southern districts of Italy, where there are no roads.

In Holland women do the flagging for the railroads, and also many kinds of the most laborious work.

OVER THE STATE.

A White "Corn-Worm" Frequent special to the Omaha Bee: A short time ago a Dodge county farmer...

Your interesting letter of the 14th has been received, and has been carefully perused. It will be of special interest to the farmers of the state.

Over $300,000 worth of business and residence houses are in course of construction in the city of Detroit.

A new time table has just gone into effect on the Fremont, Elkhorst & Michigan railway.

General State Notes: On the 30th, during a heavy storm, lightning struck a barn on the premises of Beatrice, where Omer Bushman lives.

W. P. Parcell, a 19-year-old boy living near Fort Omaha, was killed last week. He got caught in the stirrups of a saddle and was dragged to death by a horse.

On the 17th, Francis Clark, an old resident of Mecklenburg county, was found dead in a field.

The old settlers picnic at Nebraska City was a grand success. The Nebraska City was called out and the people of Mecklenburg county were invited.

Farmas filled his place and delivered an excellent address. Full of interesting remarks on the condition of the country.

Sam Clark, son of Robert Oreston, of Lincoln, was poisoned by taking an overdose of Iva. The boy was two years of age and is not known how he obtained the dose.

Emulating the example of the sons of other states the children of Ohio, residing at Nebraska, propose to hold a picnic at the State Fair this year.

Holdrege's water works are now in operation and give general satisfaction. The water is of good quality and the operation has about completed four new buildings for horticultural purposes.

A negro named John Johnson was shot for larceny at York before his conviction. After being out of his cell for a few days he was shot by a jury.

John Gideon was run over by the cars at Briggs station, on the Elkhorst road at Omaha, last week. Gideon's head was crushed and he died through freight at Briggs to ride home.

Miss Julia Carpenter, of Lancaster county, recently became insane and has been sent to the insane asylum. Her mania was brought about by over-study.

The safe at the Nebraska City manufacturing company's office was blown to pieces by burglars last week. The safe contained a large amount of money.

A number of Missourians will attend the National Convention at Columbus, Mo., on the 21st inst.

The husband of Hattie Wood, of South Omaha, became a habitual drunkard and was arrested for robbing a saloon.

On the 21st inst. H. A. Lee brought his farm near Shelton for our readers to see. It is a fine place and well stocked with stock.

E. O. Edwards and Mike Sullivan, young farmers living a few miles east of Kearney, were arrested for robbing a saloon.

A new time table has just gone into effect on the Fremont, Elkhorst & Michigan railway.

A dramatic agent is the intelligence office of the theatrical profession. At one such office in New York there are over 2,000 names on the books. These are arranged according to the line of business, and an agent's first duty is to any department about which there is an inquiry.
A manager who wants a company gives an agent an idea how many people he needs, the respective lines of business and the salaries he is willing to pay. The agent goes over his books and submits a list of names, and the manager makes his selection, and then meets and arranges, and offers made and accepted or rejected, as the case may be.
Naturally, a great deal of power has become vested in the theatrical agents.
There are only two or three of any considerable importance in this city.
They have their likes and their dislikes, and practically have been for some time the arbiters of the destinies of many actors who have not become sufficiently famous to be in general demand. It is with a view of conducting this business with more equal justice to all that the actors' fund has established a high order of committee, and which, while offering superior advantages in some ways, will charge less commission than is exacted under the old system. As a rule, that was for a season's engagement one-third to a half of a week's salary, and on arrangements or "jobs," as they are technically termed, 5 per cent.
Leading men and women may be procured all the way from $40 to $250 a week. This is a wide range, but equally different is the amount of ability to be secured. For $40 a respectable actor may be obtained for cheap companies playing in small towns or in cities in what used to be called "the summer season," and company playing at the high places, these greatly leading men and women generally receive from $75 to $125 a week.
As a rule, the women get a little more than the men, and this is only fair, as their dress is considerably more expensive, and in hotels they need better rooms and more fires than men.
Juvenile men and women are obtained at from $40 to $60. Comedians at about the same rate, unless of exceptional merit. The leading man and character are the best paid after the leading people receiving anywhere from $50 to $100. Old men and women rarely get much over $50, and the small people or "fillers-up" are paid from $20 to $35.
An actor who is economical can rarely keep his weekly expenses below $15, and has therefore, all he can do to save enough to carry him through the long summer vacation. Husband and wife are seldom engaged in the same company, as managers have learned that any dispute or trouble with one means the same with both.
It is no easy matter to replace people when the management and principals at a distance of over a thousand miles from New York. Nearly all the principal companies are made up in this city, and the necessary work begins with the summer and continues till the opening of the season.—New York Tribune.

It Makes One Hungry.
Usually that means looking at a table covered with elegant appointments.
"A delusion," as Carlyle would say,
in this case we walked out a little way from the house and beheld an alkali of little boards, supported by stakes on each board was nailed, religiously nailed—the cooks will not even let you mention leak bread, or any other form of festering, but nothing was nailed a fat Potomac River shad.
Down through the ellipse roared and smoked a fierce fire of logs, and a man armed with a pair of butter and some sort of fire shaver in his hand, bedewed the freezing shad until they browned down to the mastic point where browning ceased and yet browning could not be allowed to begin.
This is a point harder to understand than any other feat of browning, as the cooks say. The plack will not reveal the state of the other side of the shad, and yet that side must be cooked thoroughly. It is harder to read than anything Browning has yet written—yet the wisest cook knows by a shad sees when it is proper to take it from the fire with unerring instinct. And the result is smad, firm and hard from his salt-water life, mitigated slightly by his brief stay in the fresh water of the river, and then exalted, sanctified by the fire whose treatment he could only sustain from the strength and flavor which an oak back has given him—the plank to which he is fastened.
The piece you can get on your plate makes you certain that "walls of oak" are necessary to a peace-loving nature like ours—necessary to the shad at least.—Washington Cor. of the Independent.

Hon. C. Edwards Lester,

author of "The Glory and Shame of England," "America's writes as follows:—

New York, August 1, 1886.
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., Gentlemen:—A sense of gratitude and desire to render a service to the public impels me to make the following statement:
My college career at New Haven, was interrupted by a severe cold which so suffered me that for ten years, I had a hard struggle for life. Memorizing from the hospital registers was the only result of almost every fresh exposure.
Four years I was under treatment of the best practitioners without avail. At last I learned of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,
which I used (moderately and in small doses) at the first recurrence of a cold or other cold, and from that time I invariably found relief. This was done for years ago. With all seasons exposure in all sorts of climates, I have never, to this day, had any cold which did not yield to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, as I had learned of it.
Of course, I have never allowed myself to travel, under any circumstances, without my bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and it has given relief to vast numbers of persons, while in my care, of pulmonary inflammation, such as croup and whooping cough, and has been proved through its effects.
I recommend its use in light but frequent doses. Properly administered, in accordance with your directions, it is A Priceless Blessing
in any house. I speak emphatically because I feel convinced, I have known many cases of apparently confirmed bronchitis and cough, with loss of voice, particularly among clergymen and other public speakers, perfectly cured by this medicine.—Baltimore, Md.
