Intelligent Chapter on Alfalfa - Valuable Hints for the Home, and Useful Recipes for its Household.

ALFALFA.

Having recently received a number of letters and inquiries in regard to alfalfa, and now going to answer some of the numerous questions asked, we writes a Garden City, Kan., correspondent of the Practical Farmer...

Now gentlemen, you have seen all there is to be learned in very layman's terms. I'm no Heller, nor am I a Hermann. I'm a simple plain, three-cent-a-day, old-fashioned, old-fashioned country-out soap peddler...

Just then a stout, energetic little woman, with light hair and a very pushed her way through the crowd. Her face was flaming red, her hands were clenched, and she was shouting to the bystanders that there was trouble in store for somebody...

When the fairer, looking at the woman, he said: "Not one word could he say. He blew out one of his nostrils, and he looked at her with a look of intense indignation."

"There, you ugly, devilish wretch!" "There" meant a lash in the face, which the soap peddler received with pain. The crowd looked on with interest at the woman's action. The woman herself disappeared among the throng on Market street, and the soap peddler, with his remaining stock, touched up his antiquated steed, and started to the west.

THE SOAP-PEDDLER'S WARNING.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

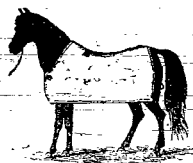

Ladies of the W. C. T. U., awake! We fear you do not realize the situation. Will some of you call on our president and request her to call a special meeting for the purpose of making arrangements, and appointing committees for the purpose of properly receiving our benefactors? We would propose that Mr. Hammond as the most appropriate place for the public reception, as it is on the main street; and we should strictly send off for a fine orator who would assist our ministers. Money of course is no object in this reception, for the town will receive such a financial and moral boom that we can afford to spend a few hundred dollars in making the public spirited men we welcome to our city. You know ladies, how dull and dead the town has been for the last year. No improvements going on, building practically ceased. It is walked down into the business street a week ago, Saturday afternoon and we saw quite a number of places where more teams could have been hitched by comparison. This state of things will not happen after the first of May, every place in town will then be tiled up. The license money paid into the town treasury will so enrich the farmers that they will come to town to trade not only on Saturday but every day in the week, and we will have flagstone walks and paved streets and electric lights and Weyns will be alive with business and prosperity. Just think of the revivals that will be in the churches and the increased salary of the ministers and church work advance. Then ladies we will have a real no more need for teas or festivals in the church work. Those unmerry men will see to it that church work and educational work goes on. They are exceedingly anxious for the education of the children and the rising generation. The children will all be safe in their hands. No more need for mothers to worry or wonder if their boys "won't" they will be looked after. Oh! of course, there will be some families who will be without shoes and and possibly without bread or clothing, but what matters that, the money must come from somewhere and it is the general good we are after. Look at Covington, on the Missouri, in this state. Gentlemen of this honorable and prosperous calling, rate at their own sweet will in that town and please note the fine churches and buildings in the place; also take into consideration the high state and morals of the town. Perhaps it gives those honorable gentlemen a proper respect, and kind treatment in our town we may attain to the high state of morality and religion of our sister city.

True, there is a murder committed there occasionally. We heard of one being committed there a few nights ago, but what of that. What is that to the common good, prohibition of meritor doesn't prohibit anyway, and ought to be repealed. Well, ladies, we think we have made your duties plain, so please not let those honorable gentlemen, the saloon keepers who will come here at the bidding of these people, enter our town without a large delegation of the townsmen who voted for them to come here and cast their lot among us, to meet them and escort them to a sumptuous banquet prepared expressly for them.
