PURSING THE PENSION SHARES.

Secretary Hensley After Conscienceless Claim Agents—Kollow Horn Bears Complaint Against the Soldiers—The House Passes a Bill Over a Veto.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A sub-committee of the house committee on the judiciary which spent some time last session in investigating charges of illegal practices in federal courts in various parts of the country, submitted its report to the full committee. Copious extracts from the testimony taken are embodied in the report to show the character and extent of the practices indulged in. These practices, the report shows, embrace the general suspension of sentences pronounced on persons convicted of violating the internal revenue and the timber cutting laws, principally in the districts of West Virginia and northern Georgia, and in the north-east, middle and southern districts of Alabama, thus encouraging methods of law-making practices by United States district attorneys, marshals and their attorneys, commissioners, clerks of the federal courts, and other officers connected with the judicial department of the government. The committee says that this practice of suspending sentences has been carried to an extent that is reprehensible, and it recommends the revocation of the internal revenue and timber laws, upon conviction, the judge shall immediately pronounce sentence unless there is some good reason to the contrary. Evidence shows, says the report, that men are induced by deputy marshals and United States commissioners to make complaints against each other for violation of the internal revenue and timber laws, are arrested by the deputy marshals and brought before the commissioners, where after a hearing they are bound over to court, often becoming bail for each other, and appearing before the court as defendants, witnesses or bail. They come up in batches, and at one time in the district of Alabama eighty-nine men from Marion county pleaded guilty at Huntsville, and at another time two men from Lane county pleaded guilty at Birmingham of violations of the internal revenue laws, and the both fugitives, and were suspended and defendants discharged without punishment. It is shown by the report that a large number of witnesses are summoned in nearly every case, the federal officers claim to have no service performed in securing them, increasing their mileage allowances by taking the witness to court, and that they pocket allowances intended for witnesses and others who pay their own charges. United States commissioners by these means secure annual incomes ranging from $2,000 to $8,000. Commissioners in the district of Boston, Mass., are criticized for obtaining fees by practicing such schemes.

Mr. Feeble's Fiasco.

St. Louis, Feb. 11.—Last October when Miss Ross Coghlan was playing in this city, Mr. Robert Peattie, managing editor of the World-Herald, and a flesh and blood man, named "Nance Oldfield," a dramatization of Charles Read's sketch named "The Case of the Coghlan," was pleased with the play, and later on returned the manuscript, which is now in the possession of the publisher of New York. Mr. Peattie has been in the city since he returned from his trip, and produces a one-act play, "The Play," entitled "Art." It is very evident that the play is a dramatization of the case, and as he has received no credit for the play, nor no royalty for the rights in the play, it is possible that the efforts have been wasted. Had this transaction been between men, the action of the publisher would be regarded as most dishonorable, but now Mr. Peattie does not know what to think of it.

De Jure Surviving from Influenza.

Paris, Feb. 11.—The severe winter which has been experienced in Paris and throughout Europe has told heavily on General Pennington, an Englishman, who is 80 years old and not well able to resist the effects of such a season, notwithstanding his advanced age and excellent general health. He has been suffering from a severe attack of influenza, and for some time has had a "brotherly" attendance at his bedside to administer care and other stimulants. He is now recovering.

Only a Winter Story.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 11.—The story telegraphed from here in divers directions, questioning the explorer, purportedly giving all the prizes he had received from crowned heads and other monarchs, and that he had been killed by the death of the Salvation Army is a piece of fiction. At Akron, O., where Stannard would have been, it is said he "did not know anything about it," and denied the story in all its details.

Deaths Contradicted.

OTAWA, Ont., Feb. 11.—George E. Fowler, minister of finance, has made public a letter to his constituents in which he directly contradicts Secretary Blaine's recent statement that no proposals whatever have been made by the United States for a reciprocity convention with Canada. Secretary Blaine's assertion that Blaine did not carry such a proposition to Canada.

Deaths While Still-Sitting.

MALDEN, Mass., Feb. 11.—While the school children of the New Boston school house, located near the New Boston Breaker, which was burned down Monday night last, were sitting around the stoves, the chimney, turned over, falling upon and instantly killing eight boys and injuring perhaps fatally, Tillie Craig, and internally injuring John Young.

Restriction in North Dakota.

FARGO, N. D., Feb. 11.—At a meeting of the board of trade a communication was presented by the county commissioners of Mitchell county asking aid for the destitute. While the board of trade finally decided that the matter was submitted to the people wrongly and returned to county officials.

Nebraska's Election.

NEBRASKA CITY, O. F., Feb. 11.—The Republicans have applied for an injunction to enjoin the county commissioners of Mitchell county from holding an election on the ground that no legal voters were cast, because there is no act of the several states giving the right of conferring the right to vote on any one. If this action is successful similar proposals will be made in other counties.

Don't Know What They Wanted.

CADIZ, N. E., Feb. 11.—The joint committee of both houses of the Nevada legislature met and decided that the voters of this state knew nothing of the constitutional convention when they conferred the right to vote on any one. If this action is successful similar proposals will be made in other counties.

RESUBMISSION IN NORTH DAKOTA.

The Australian Ballot Approved by the Nebraska House—Editor's Taxation Bill Passed by the Kansas House—Buckley Sings Harred in Michigan.

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 11.—A report reached Pierre from Chicago stating that there was a deal on foot between the Democratic and Independent members of the Illinois and Indiana legislatures by which the Illinois contingent expected to co-operate in electing a Democratic senator, and the Senate District retaining the governorship to succeed Moody's return. This scheme, which is said to be from the brain of Jerry Simpson, would mean the withdrawal of Tripp here, and the substitution of some Indiana Independent. It is agreed upon. Several Independents who would be informed in such a case professed entire ignorance of the new deal. One of the Democratic party workers seemed to be cognizant of the deal, but was non-committal only so far as the Indiana contingent was concerned. Further, that if any coalition should be formed to withdraw an Independent, the Democratic party would not be a Democratic party. He said both the Independent and the Democratic party were together and no trouble would disturb their parental relations. Nevertheless, the report has been made known among the Republicans who have already their wickerings to divide them along the senatorial fight. Consequently, they see in the scheme a prospect of their losing control of the legislature. The Democrats gain one, with a probability that the other would vote with the Democrats, and the Independent would be powerless to prevent its consummation. One ballot resulted; Campbell, 77; Fry, 23; Moody, 14; Malville, 14; McCormack, 4; Melette, 3; the remainder of the voters being scattered among many teen different candidates, none of whose names had not appeared before.

NEBRASKA LEGISLATURE.

Representative Gale Rejected and Treated—The Australian Ballot Bill Passed.

LANSING, Neb., Feb. 11.—After roll call in the house Mr. Gale of Brown, the Independent member who introduced the resolution inviting Governor Boyd to deliver his message, said: "It is requested that the members of the house during the session be to be protected from the intrusion of the house property shall be done. There is a union now between the United States and Brazil. The result is that the republican party always was great on union. Sioux City Journal.

When the legislature got ready they invited Gov. Boyd to deliver his message and he did, and ex-Gov. Thayer delivered a parting message likewise, and still Nebraska moves on.

James G. Blaine, reciprocity, protection systematized, are synonymous, and within a quarter of a century without the synonymy the deficit of the party is assured who so fails to recognize.

The Alphabet line is going to commence work in the early spring to fill up the latest railroad grade at the place west of Chicago. All their freight work will be done on this side after that—South Sioux City Times.

The contest for Governor of Nebraska has been settled. The resolution was read in the senate for the third time yesterday and was defeated. If it was honestly done, all well and good, otherwise it may rest on the head of those who passed it.

The Sioux City Journal says that the talk about a majority of 30,000 for Gen. Palmer in Illinois is the correct basis. There was not a single vote for General Palmer in the late election, nor one, and that ex-congressman Morrison is right in suggesting to the venerable demagogue "to come off."

Taylor, of Ohio, has reported to the house of congress a bill to protect the manufacture and exportation, and interstate transportation in violation of the local laws of alcoholic beverages, also a joint resolution of the committee on alcoholic liquor traffic, prohibiting the manufacture, importation, transportation, and sale of all alcoholic liquors as a beverage in the United States.

It never rains but it pours. We notice that Hon. H. P. Shumway has had his long list of honors an appointment to the executive position of the senate committee on fish and game. This dazzling eminence is however, deserved by long fidelity to field sports on the part of Mr. Shumway, and the blanking honors of the position will be suitably born by our "Adonis of the state legislature." It may be added that there is no truth in the report that condition will be barred out as not being aesthetic enough for the people of this great commonwealth.—Wakarusa Republican.

A VISIT TO OUR SCHOOL.

My visit bears the date of Feb. 4th, 1891. It was a cold day and that was just the reason I went so that I might be able to tell parents how their children are getting along in school during cold weather. A visit to the school will do any body good. It is a wonderful sight for multitudes of our people to see a school of five hundred children until they have tried my specific. It is just the reason why I like teachers. In visiting them and their schools, and higher than they, I am kept in sympathy with them.

The first room visited was the first primary. Here I found about fifty bright eyed, happy-hearted, merry-making boys and girls, just as eager to get their books as the present needs of a more manly manhood and womanhood. This department is successfully managed by Miss Minnie Sprague, who is a very rare success and endowed with the affection of the children. Not a child in this department can be other than happy and prosperous with such a kind and loving care for them. In a little while I quietly made my exit and approaching the door of the second primary, I gave a light rap, when the teacher, Miss Mabel King, thinking the rap had been at the outer door, came with a rush and had it not been for my avowals, I might have found myself "out in the cold" buried in snow and dirt.

After a merry laugh all became quiet and we proceeded with business. In this room we found about the same number of boys and girls, but a little more advanced in their studies. The room was in a very pleasant temperature, the mercury standing at 70° above. The lofty ambition of Miss King is to see her pupils advance in their studies. Her calm and peaceful spirit did not seem to become the least ruffled by the many youthful peccadilloes which are usually avoidable among so many of that age. All her scholars love her, as is evidenced by their closest attention to her wishes, and well they may, kind, loving and within her grasp, she holds the attention and commands the respect of all.

Our next visit was with the 4th and 5th graders. Having no acquaintance with the teachers of this department, we were kindly introduced to Miss Anna Connor, by Miss Sprague. We were at once received with the usual characteristics of dignity and grace of most people of this name. In a short time we felt quite at home. Here were assembled about forty scholars of ten and twelve summers of age, not one of whom but indicated the most perfect sympathy with, and love for the teacher. Miss Connor is certainly well calculated to handle scholars of that age. Mild, dignified and teach she is master of the situation, firmly holding the attention of all by a rare method of making the lesson interesting by bringing within the reach of all.

Having gone the rounds of the lower rooms, our next department to visit was that of the 6th and 7th grades. Here we found Miss Connor, No. 2, with a slight difference in the spelling as you will notice. Miss Sallie Connor, by way of distinction. Having gone the rounds of the city and pretty songs of old Eric, she decided to exchange the "o" for the "e" in the spelling of the name, as you see, which partakes more largely of the alphabet of her American sisters. Here we were greeted with open doors and windows, everything in confusion, so that my first thought was, likely the teacher had not entirely recovered from a nervous vision in which the radiant figure was not an angel, but some chronic school-kicker, who has been offended by the gods, and was now coming in the name of Medicine to punish all whose humble business in life it was to teach the rising generation. Well what was the trouble? She said, "Yes, I will, and the next turn will be yours." It seems that the remains of some animal that had been subjected to the painful process of vivisection, to teach some principle in physiology, had been put into the stove for final cremation, when for some purpose the stove door was opened, hence the unpleasant fascination. The odor all gave us were in position. There were present at this time about forty-five. Not one in this number but felt somewhat regretted as a result of the heavy lunch which followed next entrance. Miss Connor being some what of a dramatic turn, has the happy art of keeping her scholars on the tip-top of expectation. The visit was a most interesting visit between the teacher of this department and her pupils, and if all do not advance in their studies it will not be hard to find the cause in fact. This is the first room where we enjoyed the opportunity of speech-making, and we improved it as well as those present will testify.

We had one more room to visit and that was the department of the Principal and his assistant, Miss Sallie Craig. Here we were seated upon the platform where we could readily see all that was going on. Prof. Ashley has a principal, Mr. Ashley, and as we finished the round, getting ready to make our exit, we concluded that our visit had been a very profitable one. Professor Ashley is certainly entitled to great credit for the successful management of this school as we found it. It is a wonderful sight for any man could be found in the state, or in any other state, who would expect as much energy as he is expending for its success. This is his ruling passion. If he should make a mistake, it is the result of his burning desire to see the school the best that it can be made. One look at his wife while at his work, is sufficient to convince any reasonable mind, that his whole soul is absorbed in the work committed to his charge. Our school is a success and he who says it is not, proves to the public that he has not gone to the pains to weigh carefully the character and motives of the brains that are engaged in the different departments that the writer has. I have no children in this school, but had I a dozen, I should feel as certain that they were getting as good training in this school, as if they were in the highest institution of any state in the union. THAYER'S MESSAGE.

MEMBERS OF THE SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:
I have the honor to present to you the annual report of the Governor to the Legislature, and to submit herewith a statement of the condition of affairs in the State, and to make such recommendations as may be in my opinion desirable.

THE DROUGHT SUFFERERS.
The condition of a portion of the people of this State is such that a sense of public duty compels me to invite your immediate attention to it. The people of the most wretched condition of the people without the means of subsistence; others, with only partial means of subsistence. In some sections the crops were almost entirely a failure; in others less than a quarter of a crop was raised. Occasional reports received in the September of the fall, and partial failure of the products of the earth. They grow more numerous each October, and the relief which they each county would be able to take care of its own people, and I so advised the various counties. It may be of some utility to the people to organize measures of relief.

This action was taken in a number of counties, and carried out by the means were exhausted. In the early part of November the appeals for help were so numerous that I determined to appeal to the public for aid to relieve the pressing needs of the following counties:

In order to secure more definite information as to the condition of the people in the drought-stricken counties, and to obtain if possible, an approximate idea of the number of persons who were in some degree afflicted, through the coming winter, I selected two gentlemen—Rev. Dr. Geo. W. Macomber, of Lincoln, and Mr. J. A. Hartley, of Lincoln, and gave them instructions to visit some nine counties, and make a careful record of the conditions, and learn the condition of the inhabitants. They were directed to visit the most wretched, and to see the other, and see the situation for themselves. They performed the duty faithfully, and they found many cases of distress. Their reports were represented in the appeals which had been made to me.

It was also ascertained that in the counties named, about eight hundred families must be aided through the winter. Averaging $10 to a family, there are about eight hundred families supported in part or in whole.

Their reports also convinced me that the most effective way to be taken to prevent suffering; they confirmed all that had been written as to the failure of crops and the consequent distress.

My plan has been to rely upon voluntary contributions to meet the emergency, and to have the State contribute. Appeals have been made to the public, and as a result contributions have been forwarded as follows:

Coal, 84 cars; clothing, 197 barrels, 470 boxes, 70 sacks; boots and shoes, 777 pairs; 5 bales of wool; 139 bushels of corn; 316 pounds of flour, 247 3/4 sacks; meal, 155,800 pounds; rice, 11,875 pounds; beans, 29,901 pounds; wheat, 215 bushels; coffee, 399 pounds; sugar, 1,800 pounds; crockery, 1,494 pounds; salt, 1,600 pounds; corn, 5,293 bushels; 215 bushels of apples, 4 barrels; groceries, 18 boxes; oat meal, 234 sacks; Graham flour, 550 pounds; potatoes, 27 barrels, 1,800 lbs.

As there was no organized body to take hold of the business of affording relief, I recommended to the Governor to move in this matter. Consequently I organized a committee of relief, and appointed George W. Macomber, of Lincoln, and J. A. Hartley, of Lincoln as superintendents of distribution; C. W. Mosher, of Lincoln, as the Cashier; and J. A. Hartley, of Lincoln, as the Secretary of the State Relief Board.

W. N. Mason, secretary of the Board, has done an excellent and efficient work, and with thorough assistance from the State Relief Board, all these gentlemen have labored with untiring zeal in furthering this good work.

The public generally have responded generously to the appeals, and they have the satisfaction of knowing that they have aided thousands of people from suffering.

The B. & M., the U. P., the Elkhorn Valley and Mo. Pac. roads have transported free of charge all contributions to the State Relief Board. The roads in the State were ready to render the same service without charge but they were not obliged to call upon them.

The course of these roads in giving free transportation to the contributions distributed them to me, is a credit due for humane and valuable assistance. Without their aid we should not have been able to do so much for the deserving poor commutation.

The most reliable information has been obtained so far as to the number of people who must be aided in whole, or in part, by the State. This information is contained in the following table, worthy information to guide your action.

obtained that six thousand and eleven families will require full and provisions during the winter and spring, and seven thousand and eleven families will require full and provisions during the summer and fall. The number of families needing provisions is 13,722. The number of families needing grain and seed in the amount of $1,011, and the number of families needing grain and seed in the amount of $1,938.

I recommend an appropriation of two hundred thousand dollars for the relief of the needy. It is necessary, the necessities of those people require it in the highest sense. Christianity itself sanctions it. Altho' I command it. The injunction "Remember the poor and the needy," is as binding now as it ever was, by the Holy One two thousand years ago.

I recommend the creation of a board of relief to be composed of citizens well known for their integrity and uprightness, whose duty it shall be to make a just and impartial distribution of the relief; to receive the relief, and to see it need of aid.

They must be held to a rigid accountability, and their expenditures must be guarded with scrupulous exactness, and the most complete impartiality.

I do not too strongly urge upon you the necessity for immediate action, for while you linger and hesitate, some of the most wretched of the needy, and the most complete impartiality.

With the exception of the counties named, Nebraska is enjoying a high degree of prosperity from the time of the late crop. The relief which it has been greatly blessed. It has advanced steadily and rapidly in its progress, and the relief which it has been greatly blessed. It has advanced steadily and rapidly in its progress, and the relief which it has been greatly blessed.

But there is another need which presents itself in the State. It is the need of relief for the needy. It is the need of relief for the needy. It is the need of relief for the needy.

A large amount of money must be furnished to enable them to put in crops this year.

It is also necessary to provide for the needy in the State. It is the need of relief for the needy. It is the need of relief for the needy.

Let me indulge the hope that your session will be prompt and decisive.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONER OF THE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' HOME

There has been an average attendance of twenty-eighty-eight, or since the home was opened, of six hundred and thirty. To the credit of the commission it should be said, the legislature four years ago appropriated the sum of $100,000 for the purchase of a home for the unfortunate, but true men who defend the honor of our country.

Appreciating the hardship of separation of husband and wife and actuated by a humane instinct, a provision was inserted in the law for the admission of the wives and children under fifteen years of age, of course, of course, of course.

DEPARTMENT OF SECRETARY OF STATE.
 The report of the secretary of state presents a complete showing of the business of his department during the past two years.

The report contains conclusive evidence of the remarkable enlargement of all business transacted.

The report contains the following tables:
 County and other bonds, incorporations, county officers, notaries, commissioners of deeds of Nebraska and other public elections and other statistics.

In all of these your attention is respectfully invited.

It also contains a constitutional provision which authorizes the transportation a commission, to be known as the

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL.
 The report shows that the business of his department has increased in the number of cases in the year 1899 over 50 per cent, but he has been able to keep the work up to date, to keep pace with the rapid increase.

As a member of the Board of Pardons and Parole, the attorney general favors the present system of awarding pardons, and recommends some amendments to the board of pardons of supplies. He recommends that the pardon school be reduced to a minimum, and that the amount of the payment on all sale contracts be reduced to the minimum.

He has extended the forfeiture on all leased lands without limit as to time.

PUBLIC LANDS AND BUILDINGS.
 The report of the secretary of state of Public Lands and Buildings furnishes in detail a large amount of valuable information regarding to the various lands and properties of the state. It shows that during the last two years there have been many improvements at the different state institutions that in any previous biennial report.

of their employees in general. A great deal of trouble existing between employers and employees was reported by the United States in Brazil, under the reciprocity clause of the new tariff law, has resulted in the signing of an agreement by Secretary Blaine and the Brazilian minister. The agreement provides for the removal of all duties on the importation of goods from Brazil into the United States.

Under the provisions of the agreement Brazil reduces her import charges upon American products, farm-factory and mine, to the extent of about $5,000,000 annually. It is expected that the reciprocity clause of the new tariff law will be increased so that in five years Brazil will be able to furnish to the United States, under the United States. It is expected that, in three years, Brazil will pay the United States $25,000,000 in return for our manufactures and products. Not only does Brazil place a great many American articles on the free list, but it is the most popular remedy known.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
 C. C. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was afflicted with Bronchitis for two or three weeks. I tried many remedies, but she did not improve until I procured Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which she commenced to use at once. It was pronounced by her mother to be the best medicine she had ever used for her ailment. It was so effective that she was able to go to school in a few days, and was free from the cough. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and we were very much surprised to find that it was so effective. After taking a few doses she was free from the cough, and within a week was out of danger. We contained finding the Pectoral well sustained the fact that it is a most valuable and effective remedy for the cure of Bronchitis, and the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been its safety to the young. STRUGGLING FOR LIFE.
 A SHIPWRECKED CREWS VAIN EFFORTS TO REACH LAND.
 Three Men Drowned on the Rocky Shores. Found Within Ten Feet of the Vessel's Mast.
 A vivid description of an awful storm.
 William H. Burns, an eye witness of the wrecking of the three masted schooner A. H. Hurlbut, of Gloucester, tells a thrilling story of the battle of the vessel's crew for life. She was trying to make for New York, but was unable to accomplish this, dropped anchor at about a quarter of a mile off the shore. She was then struck by a Black Point about 4 o'clock, and in twenty minutes was a kindling wood. The crew consisted of six men. Three were drowned, including the captain and three were saved. Every man of them was on the rocks at one time, and the captain and several were swept away when but five feet from shore. It was an awful struggle for life between those six men and the merciless waters. Burns tells the story as follows:
 Black Point, where the vessel struck, is three miles south of the Casino. It is a bare, rocky point, the only one on the shore, but descends into a sharp pointed reef with jagged protruding edges at its farther end. It is not one solid body, but a series of the waves, but deep and deep crevices in it, where the water forms pools. On the north side of the point, there is a small bay, where the sea in a gale has a full sweep.
 I have charge of the cottage of S. S. Rogers, of Buffalo, where I live with my family, and where I was the night of a mile from Black Point on the bluff. I was informed about twenty minutes to five o'clock, when the vessel was on the shore, that a schooner was going on the point. I immediately rushed out, and was on the bluff about fifty yards from the rocks when the schooner was on the shore. The wind was blowing thirty miles an hour and the sea had built out into the full sea breeze.
 I was quickly on the shore. The vessel was scarcely 100 feet away, and was right on top of the rocks. The waves were exposed by each receding wave. The men were plainly visible, huddled together, hanging on to the houses at the stern of the schooner. At five minutes to 4, fifteen minutes after she struck, the mizenmast toppled over with a crash that was heard above the other noises, and the mainmast and the foremast quickly followed. As the foremast went over the side, the vessel split in two, and the deck was seen, which she was loaded came pouring out.
 As the vessel parted, the men jumped for the rocks. They all landed. Young Lawrence, a mere boy, only 18 years of age, was the last to jump. He never reached the shore. The mate, John Brown, an elderly man, had a very good head, kept together. While Bernard Webers and another seaman, named Kuma tried to work their way over to the north and the other, the other three went straight ahead and more full sweep.
 I had run down to the shore while Kismet had gone after another man named Rowley. When they got to the beach, the vessel was in a very bad state, and the men struggling for their lives. I stationed myself toward the north side, and I looked and gesticulated for the men to come that way. I yelled, and could hardly hear my own voice. The group of three and the young sailor, however, kept right on. The sea was dashing over the rocks with terrific force, every wave completely submerging them. The men and canoes were filled with water, and though their heads were wedged or swam, clinging to the rockwork or the slippery rocks as each wave struck them.
 WASHED AWAY.
 Young Lawrence had scarcely covered twenty feet of the distance when a wave struck him, and he disappeared. He was the last to leave the vessel and the first to drown. Kismet and Rowley had not yet arrived at the Webers and the Land, who had crawled and swam in, were hauled ashore, while I ran over to the other side, toward the shore. The mate and steward were struggling. The mate had caught hold of a cable of ice and was endeavoring to keep afloat, but he got up.
 It was only five minutes since they had left the ship, but it seemed an age. The mate was struggling, and the mate's efforts were in vain. They fought their way along the treacherous, slippery rocks, looking and clinging to the crevices and by the weeds when the big waves dashed over them. As the waves receded, would rush down the slippery rock on which I stood in vain, like a man that they would not be long enough for me to seize them. The men succumbed the rocks, but still the reef held on.
 Now they were within ten feet, but another wave broke over them. If I had a ten foot rope I would have saved them all. The suspense was awful as the men, with their drawn faces and shut teeth, held on and held toward the refuge so near them. Now the waves were back. A strong effort and they are safe. They kept forward at least three or four feet more, when a monster roller bigger than the others strikes them. It tears their weak grasp from the rocks and hurries them toward the reef. All but Brown, he, dressed of his coat and boots, lies a better chance than the others, and the waves go back to his struggling almost as they feel. It is but the work of a moment to seize him and drag him safely on the rock.
 The others were washed up on the shingle and the driftwood of the vessel. They were all dead. The mate, who is entirely stripped of clothing, his chest smashed in and his skull torn off.

She Had to Kneel the Pets.
 A curious case of special interest to elderly spinsters and lovers of house pets is shortly to come before the Berlin court. A young woman was charged with the companion to an old lady's cat, who was run away from her place two days after entering the city.
 The mistress proceeded her arrest under the law that a servant must give notice before leaving her employment, but the police, after hearing the girl's statement, told the lady that she could not compel the girl to return, and could only claim damages in the civil courts.
 For the girl stated, and her statements have been proved true, that on entering the lady's flat four tinamous dogs jumped at her, although they did not do her any harm. In the next room another dog, with a litter of pups, met her gaze, while the third room was furnished by at least three dozen different varieties of birds.
 The kitchen of the old lady was given over to cats, and the girl's sleeping room was converted into a temporary hospital for invalid members of the animal world.
 "The old lady," said the girl, "was very kind to me, but as my duties consisted in washing all the dogs daily, and I had to do the work of a dozen dogs and cats, I was obliged to run away to avoid accidents."—London Telegraph.
