AN OLD TIME INDIAN TERROR.

An aged Indian who for ten years resided in the territory of Arizona.

I call you, gentlemen, that this Indian business is pretty serious. Way, down in Arizona we lived for fifteen years in a state of terror on account of a marauding band of Apaches.

Old Victorio was nearly 80 years of age when the troubles began. He ruled those redskins with a rod of iron in spite of his years.

He was constantly in the saddle, and had to be supported by his men.

Why, that band of redskins would sometimes plunder a wagon train right under the noses of the troops, and by the time the troops were ready to start in pursuit they would be out of sight.

The old war dog, however, was finally rounded up and shot. He died in the saddle, fighting to the last.

The repeal of the state sugar bounty by the legislature is certainly a wise move. With the national bounty of two cents there is no need of a state bounty unless it be one giving the farmer a stipulated amount per ton for raising beets.

The tariff speech of Hon. Wm. McKimley, Jr., at Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 22th, 1891, will give the democrats food for reflection, and the laboring men, farmers and all an insight as to the party that is working for their best interests. It disposes in masterly manner of the free-trade tariff theory, and in a way that can not be refuted. Thinking men will bear us out in this statement.

It has been suggested, and we believe the adoption of the plan would be a good thing, that the newspaper men of the counties of Knox, Cedar, Dixon, Dakota, Thurston, Pierce, Wayne, Madison, Stanton, Cuming and Burt assemble in convention at an early date for the purpose of forming an association that will be mutually beneficial both from a social and business standpoint. We would like to hear from other papers on the subject.

We have made arrangements whereby we can send our readers for one year the HERALD and the American Economist for the low price of $3.00. The price of the Economist is $2.00, which it is certainly worth. The presidential fight of '92 must be met by all lovers of home, labor and honest market. Millions of dollars will be spent by the Cobden club of England in purchasing the democratic leaders, and the people of this nation "must educate on this most of all important questions or they will be led as 'sheep to the slaughter.'" The Economist treats very largely on the tariff and other economic questions, and one who studies it is never at a loss in meeting the arguments of those who believe in free trade. This is an excellent chance to keep posted from a protectionist standpoint, as well as to become informed as to the worth of the tariff measure.

SPEECH OF HON. WILLIAM MCKINLEY, JR.

DELIVERED BEFORE THE OHIO REPUBLICAN LEAGUE, AT TOLEDO, OHIO, ON THE EVENING OF FEBRUARY 13, 1891.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Ohio Republican League: It is worth something in the history of economic questions to have an avowal from our political opponents of the real meaning and effect of their economic theories. It is always well in a political controversy to understand one another. It was therefore gratifying to the friends of protection to have the eminent Democratic leader from the State of New York, on a recent occasion in the capitol city of our State, make open confession of the purposes which he and his party avowed to accomplish by a Free Trade Tariff.

Assigned to respond to the inspiring sentiment, "American Citizenship," he made "cheapness the theme of his discourse, and counted it among the highest aspirations of American life. His avowal is only that which Protectionists have always claimed to be the inevitable tendency of his tariff policy, which exalts cheap goods from abroad above good wares of home.

The Tariff reformer gravely asks why we wage manufacturing establishments in the United States when we can buy our goods in other countries as cheap as we can manufacture them at home. He asks, "Why maintain a protective tariff at all? Why not permit foreign goods to come in unlettered by any customs duties or restrictions? Why not admit competing foreign products free of all duty?" The best answer—the most conclusive one—is written in our own experience under the last Free Trade Tariff regime of the democratic party when cheap foreign goods, invited by the low Tariff of that period, destroyed our manufacturing, checked our mining, suspended our public works and private enterprises, sent our workmen from work to idleness or to the already over-crowded field of agriculture, from remunerative to starvation wages or to no wages at all, extended our markets to the foreigner, giving work to his shops and his men by taking it from our shops and our men, and diminished domestic production and domestic employment, thereby increasing those of other countries and other peoples. This was an era of "cheapness" and of "poverty," to which the great democratic leader and foremost of the party wants us to return and which they have "coerced" themselves to secure. The masses of the people are in no temper for such a suggestion, and they will never consent to the inauguration of a policy which will scale down their wages and render it harder to obtain the necessities of life. The "cheap costs" to which the gentleman is so much attached do not tempt them, for many remember that in previous Free-Trade eras of our history they were too poor to buy them at any price. To master how low the nominal sum exacted for the merchandise was beyond their power to buy, for it was made cheap at the expense of their earnings and labor, the price of the merchandise never reaching in proportion to the reduced wages which labor was forced to take. It is to maintain this character of "cheapness" that the democratic leader raises his voice and offers his services once more to his countrymen. Hearken to his words:

"And when they (the laboring men) are bolted to all laws with barbed greater than they can bear, and are made the objects of scorn by hard task masters, we will not leave their side."

Can any man familiar with the history of his own country believe that such an utterance was made in soberness and good faith by a leader of the democratic party—a party which has proposed the only revolutionary tasks and burdens ever borne by American citizens; which for nearly three quarters of a century kept the labor of almost one-half of our great country in slavery, bought and sold as chattels, and which repeatedly, by the enactment of Free-Trade Tariff, undertook to place in industrial slavery the other half which straggles by every possible means to dedicate our vast public domain not to free labor but to slave labor; and which now offensively decries to labor in one section of the country the free-trade policy which is the freeman's defense against wrong and oppression? "However true," says this disciple of Cobden, "others have had my sympathy and the poor, we will stand forth in their defense." Strange words to those acquainted with democratic history and democratic practices; strange in the light of existing democratic purposes, which openly advocates a revenue Tariff policy to make the poor poorer, and which offers to them in its place, and no longer retreat to, the freeman's defense against wrong and oppression? They defend American labor, whose overwhelming and controlling majority has not now and never had any regard for it, who proposed in 1888, and again propose, if invested with power, to tear down the tariff barriers which alone stand between our labor and the cheap and less-rewarded labor of the Old World. Their professed defense is a delusion and a snare—the kind of defense which destroys and degrades the dignity and character of American labor, and forces it down to the level of the poorest paid labor of Europe. What think you of this policy to exalt the American home, the foundation of our corner stone of our citizenship, by degrading these?

This cry of "cheapness" is not new. It rung through England nearly fifty years ago. It was the voice and philosophy of Cobden; it was the false and alluring appeal urged for the reversal of Great Britain's industrial policy from Protection to Free Trade. It was the hypocrisy spent against which the bold Douglass thundered, and his bold denunciations—that dark and revered churchman, whose memory is cherished wherever the English tongue is spoken. Here is his characterization of it.

"Next you have the Manchester school, from which Heaven defend us. For all narrow, conceited, hypocritical and audacious schemes of the universe the Cobden and Bright one is exactly the worst. To pretend to be the workmen's friend by keeping down the price of bread when they want thereby to keep down wages and increase profits, and in the meantime to widen the gulf between the workman and all that is true honor and chivalrous in his nature, that they may make the men their divided slaves—that is, perhaps, all unconsciously, for there are excellent men among them, the game of the Manchester school."

I am charitable enough to believe that many of our Tariff reformers, blind followers of Cobden, are wholly unconscious of the end, the ultimate and disastrous end, of their doctrine and policy. Is American manhood to be degraded that merchandise may be cheap? Are cheap goods at such a cost worthy of our high purpose and destiny, and can we believe that he who would advocate them at such a sacrifice is the true friend of his countrymen, however loud his profession? Cheap coats at any price, at any sacrifice, even to the robbery of labor are not the chief objects of American civilization, and to make them so is neither praiseworthy nor patriotic, nor does such a sentiment represent a noble aim in American life. We scorn cheap coats upon any such terms or conditions. They are "nasty" at such a price.

Our philosophy includes the grower of the wool, the weaver of the fabric, the seamstress and the tailor. Our Tariff reformers have brought of these toilers. They can bear their hard tasks in pinching poverty for the sake of cheap coats, which prove by far the dearest when measured by cost and toil. Our Tariff reformers concern themselves only about cheap coats and cheap shoes. We do not overlook the comfort of those who make the coats and make the shoes, and who provide the wool and the cloth, the hides and the leather.

The Grip on the Jaw

The grip on the jaw is retained even after the body has been severed from the head. According to the Medical Review, the grip on the jaw is retained by a certain tribe of Indians in Brazil. When an Indian dies, he is cut out in his bed, and his head is placed in a box. The Indians in Brazil, when they die, have their hands severed together, as physicians do in this country. He proceeds five or six black quills, and holding their heads near the grass, they bring their jaws together in biting the flesh, and thus pull the two sides of the jaw together. Then the Indian places the quills in the mouth of the ants, and leaves their heads clinging to the grass, which is held together until perfectly healed.

A Light for Watchmen.

A new electric watch light, the lamp, is being manufactured by a firm of electricians in Leicester. It resembles an enlarged open-faced watch, and has in its interior an incandescent lamp and reflector. On placing the watch in the case and pressing a button, the face of the watch will be brilliantly lighted. A dry battery supplies the current, and may be placed in a closet with a flexible connecting wire that leads to the top of the head or stand on which the watch is placed. The battery will last for this purpose for years, and no chemicals are required.

Hunger and Intoxication.

The important fact that hunger increases liability to contract certain diseases has been demonstrated experimentally by two Paris doctors. Pigeons usually resist nuxtom, but after a fast of six days they proved amenable to the virus of cholera without being intoxicated. If food was withheld, but nuxtom was given at the same time as the virus, the disease was not prevented, but ran a slower course. Even birds well fed upon the virus of cholera, proved amenable to the virus if kept without food after inoculation.

Worms of the Intestine

The Department of Agriculture, during the past three years, has devoted considerable attention to the study of the worms of the intestine. This division was the first agency to study the worms of the intestine, and it is still the only one in the United States that has a large number of trained men in this line. The worms of the intestine are found in nearly all parts of the country, but they are most numerous in the South. The Electrical Vamp.

An instructive scientific toy sold in Paris consists of a number of electrical plugs inserted to make the chief wires. Questions at the sides of the map ask the student to find the location of the different departments, and also have an electric plug for each. A small electric plug and a dry pile are provided. The child puts one of the conducting wires over any question plug and moves the other end and the two plugs will give a slight shock when his town is correctly indicated.

There's a good deal of guarantee business in the store.

Half the time it means nothing. This offer to refund the money, or to pay a reward is made under the hope that you won't want your money back, and that you won't claim the reward. Of course.

So, whoever is honest in making it, and works—not on his own reputation alone, but through the local dealer whom you know, must have something he has faith in back of the guarantee. The business wouldn't stand a year without it.

What is lacking is confidence. Back of that, what is lacking is that clear honesty which is above the "average practice."

Dr. Pierce's medicines are guaranteed to accomplish what they are intended to do, and their makers give the money back if the result isn't apparent.

Doesn't it strike you that a medicine which the makers have so much confidence in, is the medicine for you?
