Now the weeds.
School begins Sept. 10.
The fall season begins with Sunday.
New Fall Dress goods and trimmings at Abern's.
We take orders for tailor made clothing, D. E. Smith & Co.
Let the business men get ready to make proper displays at the fair.
The merry-go-round has been doing a thriving business for several days.
Mel Norton rejoices over a nine lb. girl which arrived at his home Sunday.
A number of Wayne people went down to the Elkhorn after plums this week.
A nice line of children and boys' suits at Brady's, and at prices that will surprise you.
J. J. Diltz received the sad news of the death of his father who resides in Iowa, Tuesday.
The Love hotel has been treated to a coat of paint which improves the appearance very much.
We are closing out our lamps below cost. See our prices. Sedgwick Drug Co. West Side Pharmacy.
Manager Britton is making arrangements to secure the Nashville Students at the opera house during the fall.
Purchase for cash one dollar worth of goods at R. W. Wilkins & Co's, and get a piece of sheet music free.
The wedding of J. William Thompson of Dixon, and Miss Ida Alexander of this city, will be solemnized at the residence of the bride's parents this evening.
The smoky weather the past few days reminds one of Indian summer, and it can scarcely be accounted for as the daily papers contain no accounts of fires anywhere.
A dog of Alex Scott became afflicted with hydrophobia Monday and bit one of his horses. The dog was shot, but whether it had bitten any other animals or not is unknown.
The home of E. B. Chichester, south-east of Wayne, was the scene of a very happy family reunion last Saturday. It was the first time the entire family had been together for many years.
The offices of County Treasurer Rayburn and Judge Martin have been painted and papered the past week and present a little more respectable appearance, but that's all that can be said.
We are still in the lead on low prices. We are selling clean and new goods cheaper than you can buy old shelf worn stuff that is advertised to compete with our prices. J. Singer & Co.
A. B. Chard has purchased an interest in the Wayne Democrat we understand, and will take editorial charge in a short time. Mr. Chard will no doubt make perceptible improvement in the paper and will make an excellent citizen.
The Herald advises every citizen of Wayne county to investigate the court house question thoroughly and then you can vote intelligently on the proposition. Do not vote your prejudice, but let it be from a fair motive, and you will have done your duty.
The young lads of Wayne and Randolph played the second game of ball at Carroll Friday afternoon, the score standing 24 to 7 in favor of the Wayne boys. The little fellows are ball players and make up the deficiency of the regulars who can play ball pretty good for about six innings.
Tuesday, September 5th, the old soldiers of this county will join in a grand reunion at B. Cunningham's grove three miles south of town. Everybody and their relation are cordially invited to be present and enjoy a days recreation. Bring your lunch basket filled with pork, baked beans and coffee. An appropriate program has been arranged, consisting of speaking, vocal and instrumental music, etc.

New Fall Dress goods and trimmings at Abern's.
Coal Oil 15 cents per gallon now. Headlight 175. R. C. Osborn.
This has been an extremely dull week for the news gatherer of the Herald.
The Bicycle club is making arrangements for holding a tournament at Wayne this fall.
Henry Wolf of Carroll, shipped two car loads of hogs to Omaha yesterday and S. B. Sease one car.
Lyons will soon vote bonds for water works. This well, no town can afford to be without a system.
It will be a great benefit, to the ladies especially, if you will cut the weeds down along your sidewalk.
Geo. Fox, of the Democrat force, is taking a vacation this week, caused by the presence of a boil on his right hand.
Manager Smith is endeavoring to arrange a game between the Wayne and Winside or Emerson clubs Saturday afternoon.
Prof. Ashley returned Monday evening from his eastern visit and reports a very pleasant trip. He leaves to day for De Kalb, Ill.
Rev. W. H. Sparling will hold Episcopal services in the Masonic hall, Sunday September 2nd, morning and evening. All are invited.
Miss Lena Hitchcock and Miss Nelle Spears entertained a number of their young friends at the home of the former Tuesday evening. Those present report a very pleasant time.
The creamery at West Point was burned last Thursday morning. The building contained about 100 tubs of butter valued at $1,500. The entire loss was about $7,500 with $4,500 insurance.
L. M. Beeler & Co. expect to be ready for business about September 10th and will put in a fine line of dry goods in the building one door south of E. P. Olmsted & Co.
The hose and hook and ladder companies played a game of ball Friday afternoon and the latter hooked the hose boys about 23 times to 18, but the writer was playing in the hose team which accounts for it.
J. Singer's great Clearing Sale of Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes and Notions is now in progress. The goods are strictly new and stylish and the price at which they are offered will simply astonish all callers.
Mrs. Wheeler became suddenly ill in church Sunday and was removed to the residence of T. Collinson. Medical aid was summoned but it was some time before she recovered from the attack. At the time of writing she is slowly improving.
E. D. Perry, who built a hotel at Crofton on the proposed railroad from Yankton to Norfolk, has moved to Wayne as he became tired of waiting for the railroad to come. Mr. Perry has rented the Bennett house and will engage in the hotel business having had considerable experience in that line.
A big republican rally will be held at Pender next Thursday evening. Hon. John M. Thurston and other prominent speakers will be present. The republicans of Thurston county are making extensive preparations for the event. As many members of the Wayne County Republican Club as possibly can should attend.
The Wayne county delegation to the state republican convention cast six votes for MacColl on the informal ballot for governor, and two for Crouse. On the formal ballot eight votes were cast for MacColl, therefore the "associated press dispatch" from Wayne, wherein it stated that as between Majors and MacColl the delegation would be for MacColl, was correct.
School will begin Monday Sept. 10th. The Principal will be at the school house each morning next week from nine to twelve o'clock and will be glad to have any pupils, who failed to get their standings at the end of last year, or any pupils coming from other schools, who wish to enter the schools here this year, or any one who may have any matter to bring up before entering school, to call whenever it may be convenient. If you give your attention to this match time and possible confusion may be avoided.
While at the democratic congressional convention at Norfolk last week, Robt. Feski, one of the delegates from Wayne county, caught the attention of the chair, and marching to the front proceeded to deliver a protracted speech. The Wayne county people present say it was a circus, and with all the geying and roasting it was impossible to stop him. It is said his chief in stock consisted of cuss words, and the Wayne delegation felt that if the floor would open and swallow them they would be thankful.

BORN To G. E. Roe and wife, Saturday August 25, a son.
BOYS To James Stanton and wife, Monday, August 27, a son.
Have you seen that security Dupan at D. E. Smith & Co?

The steel smoke stack, 40 inches in diameter and 70 feet high has been raised at Sherbahn's brick yard. It is one of the largest, in the state. We misunderstood the informant last week and stated that Mr. Sherbahn had commenced burning brick, but as the fuel has not arrived the kiln has not yet been fired.
A great deal has been said about the crops in Wayne county and the exact condition is not generally known, therefore little more can be said, but in conclusion it will not be out of place to mention that from all information we have been able to obtain, we are safe in saying that the corn will not exceed one third to one-half of a full crop. But when looking over the state and finding that Wayne county is in the best condition of any county in the state, we have much to be thankful for. Therefore, every loyal citizen should take something to the fair this fall and lend every effort to make it the best fair ever held in the county.
THE FAIR.
Wayne county can have a fair this fall that will redound to her credit. Our industrious farmers should put forth special effort to bring a display of cereals that all can point to with pride. It can be done. No other county in the grand state of Nebraska can make as good a showing this year as our own beloved county. Let your pride imbue with renewed energy and a determination to display the products of the soil before the public. The premiums this year will be about the same as heretofore and while there should be an earnest desire to compete for first place, the main object should be to present the county's resources. Do your duty.
Base Ball.
About 60 fans accompanied the Wayne ball team to Wisner Tuesday to witness the second game of the season. The people went in carriages and on bicycles, desirous of reciprocating for the large crowd that came from Wisner a few weeks ago. Not much can be said of the playing but the boys appeared in blue form in their new suits and the Wisner folk had no money to put upon the game. As usual the boys played well for three or four innings but after that put up a rather poor game although winning by a score of 31 to 23.
G. A. R. Encampment.
To persons wishing to attend the G. A. R. Encampment to be held at Grand Island from Aug. 25th to Sept. 1st; excursion tickets will be sold to Grand Island and return at $4.25 each. Tickets will be sold on Aug. 25th to 28th inclusive and not good after Sept. 2nd 94. T. W. Moran, agt.

THE SECOND TIME
About 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning, for the second time in a short period fire started in the Boyd hotel, and in a short time the department was on the scene. The fire originated in one of the rooms on the upper floor Mr. Roman was putting gasoline on the bedstead, when suddenly a spark from a cigar he was smoking started the blaze which spread rapidly. After turning in an alarm he set about to extinguish the flames, and with the assistance of others succeeded but not until the furniture in the room had been badly damaged. The fire department was promptly on hand, but other than throwing the burning bed clothing, etc. from the window, their services were not needed. It was a close call and plainly demonstrates that it does not pay to be careless with fire where there is gasoline.
MARRIED.
HUFF-ATKINS—At the home of the bride's parents four miles northeast of Wayne, Wednesday, August 29th, 1894; Mr. Roy Huff and Miss Ethel Atkins, Rev. Millard officiating.
The ceremony occurred at twelve o'clock and after the wedding dinner the happy couple came to Wayne and left on the afternoon train for St. Joseph, Mo., where they will visit for a short time.

The next Sunday School convention will be held in Winside Sunday, Sept. 2nd. Everybody invited.

THE PENNSYLVANIANS
Held their Annual Picnic in Crawford Grove Yesterday. Nearly Four Hundred People Present.
Never did the sun rise more dreamily, or a day dawn more auspiciously for a picnic day, than that on Wednesday, August 29th, 1894, when the Pennsylvanians met in Dr. Crawford's grove, two miles north of Wayne, for their annual picnic.
Early in the morning every Pennsylvanian was astir and by nine o'clock teams began to arrive from all directions bringing together one of the happiest, most congenial crowds of people ever assembled in Wayne county. The total number in attendance being estimated at nearly 400.
The program for the day was opened with prayer by Rev. Lodge which was very appropriate for the occasion. The male quartette, composed of Messrs. Cook, Simon, and the Messrs. Theobald was then introduced and rendered in a very pleasing manner that attractive song, "Auld Lang Syne." Next came the address by Rev. Kunkleman, which was able and eloquent, and graphically described the early history of the state, and its wonderful development to the present time. It was listened to with close attention and well received by all who heard it. This was followed by a song by the male quartette, after which dinner was announced. And such a dinner! It would discount any served for a King. That it was so would be attested to by all who partook thereof. It certainly showed beyond a shadow of a doubt that the ladies had lost none of their fine art in cooking by crossing the muddy, Missouri.
After dinner silence was restored by a song by the male quartette, entitled "Pie and Cake" or "Big Bass" which received such an enshore that they were obliged to return and rendered a beautiful piece entitled "Steal Away." Then came a poem entitled, "Pioneering," read by P. W. Oman. He handled the subject in a graphic manner and showed clearly the ups and downs of a pioneer's life in poetical language, unique and pointed. Mr. and Mrs. Simon then rendered a song entitled, "Mither and Robin" in a very pleasing manner. The pioneers were then enthused by the reading of an original poem entitled "The Heros of the Johnstown Flood" by Mr. F. M. Skeon, after which we were entertained by the male quartette singing, "The Blue Bells of Scotland."
A committee was then appointed consisting of R. B. Crawford, S. B. Russell and A. H. Carter to select a list of officers for the coming year. They made the following report:
For President, J. T. Mettlen.
Vice President, P. M. Corbit.
Secretary, E. Cunningham.
Treasurer, W. A. K. Neely.
Committee on arrangements, A. J. Ferguson, P. W. Oman and M. L. Kunkleman. This committee on arrangements to have full power to act in appointing other committees and preparing a program for the next annual meeting.
On motion the report was adopted.
Next came the call of counties. The first response being by Mr. A. J. Ferguson, representing Cumberland county, in which he said he answered for the six of all counties called before from which no response had been received. Juniata county, was responded to by E. Cunningham, J. T. Mettlen, D. Cunningham, Mrs. Milligan, and Miss Jennie Mettlen, all the speeches being bright, pointed and witty. P. M. Corbit, representing Lancaster county, gave a nice talk, complimenting very highly the women of the Key Stone state. Mr. Tracy of the same county, said he would prepare something to say at the next gathering. Lycoming county was represented by Rev. Swartz who postioned his remarks. Rev. G. M. Lodge spoke well of Mercer county, but said some of the adjoining counties raised sheep so poor that one man had to hold them up while another knocked them down, while they sorted their hogs through a sieve to separate them at killing time. Perry county was responded to by H. Hostetter in a short speech from a business standpoint. Dr. Crawford responded when Pike county was called and claimed the county had produced the second heaviest man in the world, Mr. Louis Cornelius. He also claimed for the county the greatest Indian fighter Pennsylvania ever had, known as Tom Quick. Snyder county was responded to by Mr. W. Howard, in a neat and pleasing speech, followed by remarks from J. F. Alexander, who claimed for Venango county the discovery of coal oil. S. B. Russell gave Washington county a great send off by paying tribute to her women. This closed the response by counties, and a vote of thanks was unanimously given the ladies for the elegant manner in which they had served up dainties for dinner.

A vote of thanks was also given to B. Crawford for the use of his grove and to the committee on arrangements for the satisfactory manner in which they had discharged their duties and thereby made the picnic a perfect success. A collection was then taken up to pay incidental expenses and the picnic closed with a song by the male quartette who received a unanimous vote of thanks for the assistance rendered. We will not omit to add that Misses Maude Britton and Clara Phillips, and Frank Gamble were entitled to great credit for their assistance with the singing.
All in all this was one of the most enjoyable days ever experienced at a picnic by the people of Wayne county, and all wish heartily for its annual return.

CASE OF MOA BARRIOS

A Spaniard's American Story. Written for This Paper by Phillip Braggalan.

CHAPTER III.—Continued.
The stranger bade the conductor watch the pair and telegraph to him. The butler or valet, who had come to a certain point, and with very little difficulty found what he wanted. The box was three parts full of arsenic. He looked the box away, said nothing to anybody, but watched the papers carefully. He had not long to wait. On the fourth morning he rode here on a butler or valet, and deep for the sake of coolness, under the house where the prisoner had lived, had been found the dead body of a man whose appearance gave rise to suspicions of foul play, and who, on examination, was found to have in his viscera sufficient arsenic to kill three or four men. The man was well of the world, possessed, and in his pockets was plenty of money. He was identified as Henry Mercer.

We shall introduce a witness who will testify to seeing a man enter the house at seven o'clock the evening before the pair left, but he saw no one come out, though his work kept him near by till eight, when Dawers himself came to hear voices, though he could scarcely have heard a cry had there been one. He peeped, as could be shown in his evidence, but could see nothing. With what superhuman swiftness and strength must this woman have overcome her victim, so that not even a man of dry reading is his not over-famous strength must have been here. What self-control must have been hers, that she could meet her husband with a smile and sit at supper with him that night, however absolutely she might break down on the morrow. In one short hour she had done as much and more than a man could do, and she had done it in the presence of a man who, she thought, would never betray her. She had done more than a man could do, and she had done it in the presence of a man who, she thought, would never betray her.

On the ensuing day the case against Moa Barrios was completed in a single forensic session of the court. All the points for conviction were made as promised in the District Attorney's opening address. Was placed on the stand and made to produce the arsenic observed in the car. I no longer felt proud of my work, but as a mean fellow who had hounded down a possibly innocent woman. But for my possession about the poison seen in her possession, and that of her husband about the rope and the food, she would not have been suspected. Why had I not observed in the car. I no longer felt proud of my work, but as a mean fellow who had hounded down a possibly innocent woman. But for my possession about the poison seen in her possession, and that of her husband about the rope and the food, she would not have been suspected. Why had I not observed in the car.

CHAPTER IV.
The case against Moa Barrios was completed in a single forensic session of the court. All the points for conviction were made as promised in the District Attorney's opening address. Was placed on the stand and made to produce the arsenic observed in the car. I no longer felt proud of my work, but as a mean fellow who had hounded down a possibly innocent woman. But for my possession about the poison seen in her possession, and that of her husband about the rope and the food, she would not have been suspected. Why had I not observed in the car. But for my possession about the poison seen in her possession, and that of her husband about the rope and the food, she would not have been suspected. Why had I not observed in the car.

"He did come to me late that afternoon, as has been testified to," she said, speaking with dogged calmness. "I asked how he dared to, and what he wanted. He said that he loved me, and that he had always loved me, and all my life, and that he would love me in the sight of heaven, and I must be his wife. I wouldn't let him touch me. I told him he mustn't even talk to me any more. That I loved my real and true husband, and was just going to go to a distant part of the country, so as to be far away from the places that had sad memories for me. He blamed me. He said I had done an injury to him as great as he had done to me, and we both ought to forgive and forget."

"What did he refer to?" the Judge asked.
"He meant that I had destroyed some papers belonging to him," she replied. "He wanted them to be for safe-keeping, when we were living together in New York, and when we parted I brought them away. This loss was his ruination—so he said—and that was as bad as his deception of me. So he argued that one wrong ought to offset another, and we could be happy together if I would desert Albert."
"What was the nature of the papers?" the Judge inquired.
"I don't rightly know," she answered. "He was mixed up in a defalcation—I never understood it properly how. I think one of the documents was a confession. I'm sure he told me he was guilty of wrong-doing in the matter, but that the worst charge was false, and that he couldn't clear himself of the one without convicting himself of the other; so the time hadn't come to use the documents, and as he didn't care to keep them, he trusted them to me."

"And you destroyed them?"
"Yes, sir."
"Burned them?"
"No, sir; I threw them away."
If his Honor had persisted, he might have forced her to tell of the encounter at the Snow Hole, and of her accidental and unforfeited capture there, but she occupied thorough inquisition on the point.
"In one of the papers," she resumed, with a shrewd intention of making it clear that she was, in her present predicament, a loser by their destruction, "was his declaration that he was a habitual user of arsenic. I knew that was not true, but I thought it was a lie, and I took it medially, but in doses that had given larger and larger; and he always carried a box of it in his pocket. It was his box that I dropped in the car and that was found afterward where I threw it. When I told him, he said he despised me—that I wouldn't desert Albert to go away with him—then he brought out the box from his pocket, and vowed he would take enough of it to kill himself. He did swallow a big dose that would have poisoned anybody else to death, but he never vomited, and he was in the drug, and I felt sure it wasn't sufficient to harm him. But I snatched the box away from him."
"Do you believe that he meant to commit suicide?"
"I did then. A woman is ready to credit any recklessness to a man whose love she repulses. Anyhow, I kept the box away from him, and I suppose I pitched him. But I loathed him, and I felt that I must instantly get away, as I expected Albert if you will remember, I said, 'I'll promise not to tell that you've been here.' That wasn't altogether out of pity for him, but because any reminder of my connection with him always made Albert unhappy, and so I would have been glad to keep his name a secret. Well, he expected Albert home to supper, and I was looking out of the window, I saw him coming. He would be two or three minutes before he could get to the house, but there was no way for Mr. Mercer to escape without his seeing him. I was half-distracted, and I think Mr. Mercer was frightened at the idea of being caught, and he thought of the buttery as a place to hide him in. There wasn't any time to lose. It occurred to me that as the deep hole was a bad place to stay in, and as he might be compelled to remain there some time, he might be tempted to reveal him as the result of the landlady in my cupboard. I was there for toothache. Some whisky was there, too, and I poured out a glass of it, dropping in a safe dose of the laudanum. 'Drink this to keep you warm,' I said, 'and I will hide you in the cellar until after supper. As soon after that as possible I will let you out. I meant the laudanum to put him to sleep down there, so there wouldn't be any danger of his making a noise. I wanted to save my husband from any unfounded jealousy or sorrow on my account. Mr. Mercer did as I bade him. I lowered him into the hole—but he was alive—not dead; and it was no more than done before Albert entered the room, and he was a sleeper, and went to bed early. As soon as Albert was sound asleep I slipped away from him, opened the trap door, and called to Mr. Mercer. He did not answer. I made up my mind he was sleeping. Before daylight I called again to him, but didn't get any response. The landlady came and the doors and windows showed that he had not climbed up and gone away in the night. I was a little alarmed, but could not do anything to find out the truth—which was, I am sure, that he had died of the arsenic. Something in his condition had made a dose fatal that he could have stood any other dose. Well, Albert and I ate our breakfast and made ready to leave the house. Still there was no sound from the well. I was glad to get away without seeing Mr. Mercer again. But I didn't wish him to die down there. So I left the rope for him to climb out by, and the food for him to eat, just as he had been testified to. But I was the truth, your honor." She seemed to see incredulity in his face, and she solemnly repeated: "That is the truth, so help me, God!"

The court adjourned until the next day, and Moa was taken back to her cell, with nobody except Albert Dowers and the landlady on account of the death of Henry Mercer.

he always carried a box of it in his pocket. It was his box that I dropped in the car and that was found afterward where I threw it. When I told him, he said he despised me—that I wouldn't desert Albert to go away with him—then he brought out the box from his pocket, and vowed he would take enough of it to kill himself. He did swallow a big dose that would have poisoned anybody else to death, but he never vomited, and he was in the drug, and I felt sure it wasn't sufficient to harm him. But I snatched the box away from him.

"Do you believe that he meant to commit suicide?"
"I did then. A woman is ready to credit any recklessness to a man whose love she repulses. Anyhow, I kept the box away from him, and I suppose I pitched him. But I loathed him, and I felt that I must instantly get away, as I expected Albert if you will remember, I said, 'I'll promise not to tell that you've been here.' That wasn't altogether out of pity for him, but because any reminder of my connection with him always made Albert unhappy, and so I would have been glad to keep his name a secret. Well, he expected Albert home to supper, and I was looking out of the window, I saw him coming. He would be two or three minutes before he could get to the house, but there was no way for Mr. Mercer to escape without his seeing him. I was half-distracted, and I think Mr. Mercer was frightened at the idea of being caught, and he thought of the buttery as a place to hide him in. There wasn't any time to lose. It occurred to me that as the deep hole was a bad place to stay in, and as he might be compelled to remain there some time, he might be tempted to reveal him as the result of the landlady in my cupboard. I was there for toothache. Some whisky was there, too, and I poured out a glass of it, dropping in a safe dose of the laudanum. 'Drink this to keep you warm,' I said, 'and I will hide you in the cellar until after supper. As soon after that as possible I will let you out. I meant the laudanum to put him to sleep down there, so there wouldn't be any danger of his making a noise. I wanted to save my husband from any unfounded jealousy or sorrow on my account. Mr. Mercer did as I bade him. I lowered him into the hole—but he was alive—not dead; and it was no more than done before Albert entered the room, and he was a sleeper, and went to bed early. As soon as Albert was sound asleep I slipped away from him, opened the trap door, and called to Mr. Mercer. He did not answer. I made up my mind he was sleeping. Before daylight I called again to him, but didn't get any response. The landlady came and the doors and windows showed that he had not climbed up and gone away in the night. I was a little alarmed, but could not do anything to find out the truth—which was, I am sure, that he had died of the arsenic. Something in his condition had made a dose fatal that he could have stood any other dose. Well, Albert and I ate our breakfast and made ready to leave the house. Still there was no sound from the well. I was glad to get away without seeing Mr. Mercer again. But I didn't wish him to die down there. So I left the rope for him to climb out by, and the food for him to eat, just as he had been testified to. But I was the truth, your honor." She seemed to see incredulity in his face, and she solemnly repeated: "That is the truth, so help me, God!"

The court adjourned until the next day, and Moa was taken back to her cell, with nobody except Albert Dowers and the landlady on account of the death of Henry Mercer.

CHAPTER V.
The case against Moa Barrios was completed in a single forensic session of the court. All the points for conviction were made as promised in the District Attorney's opening address. Was placed on the stand and made to produce the arsenic observed in the car. I no longer felt proud of my work, but as a mean fellow who had hounded down a possibly innocent woman. But for my possession about the poison seen in her possession, and that of her husband about the rope and the food, she would not have been suspected. Why had I not observed in the car.

ROB THE OLD SOLDIER

PENSION POLICY OF THE CLEVELAND LAND ADMINISTRATION.

One Man Who Has Been Made the Victim of Democratic Hatred—Thrown into Jail—His Pension Stopped.

Pension Infamies.
Nobody, probably, will ever know the depth and breadth of the infamy of the pension policy of the present Democratic administration, as this being carried out under Secretary Hoke Smith and his willing tool, Commissioner Lochran. Individual cases are coming to light, however, which illustrate in a measure the infamous methods that have been resorted to by the Democrats in their efforts to reduce the pension payments twenty million dollars a year, according to their program.

One man who has been made the victim of Democratic hatred is John T. Dodge of Bar Harbor, Maine. Mr. Dodge had an honorable war record. He served from the beginning of the war to the battle of Bull Run a full year, through his scolding at Antietam a rifle-ball bored a big hole through his leg; in the battle of the Wilderness he received a bullet in his side. These wounds were all made by the people from the side which Hoke Smith is now trying to represent in dispensing pensions. When Mr. Dodge left the army he was suffering from partial paralysis as the result of his wounds. In time he applied for a pension, and was granted $30 a month. Last summer Mr. Dodge secured a position as inspector of police on the World's Fair grounds at a salary of $20 a week upon the recommendation of General Miles and the editor of the Chicago Tribune. That sufficed to call the attention of the pension officials to him, and a charge of drawing an illegal pension and swearing falsely to a disease was trumped up against him. He was arrested on a warrant issued at the instance of a special examiner and Pension Commissioner Lochran. The officers thought they would prove that he had taken drugs to produce the symptoms of disease. He was therefore taken to Washington and thrown into jail, where he was kept handcuffed five days and fed upon bread and water in pursuance of the theory that he had taken drugs, and that such treatment would prevent him from continuing the practice. As the expiration of five days was determined by a medical board, which continued to keep watch of him. Finally his case was brought into court, but the pension office had no evidence to present against him. The district attorney reported that an examination had shown the man to be suffering from disease of the nervous system and the eyes. His bill was reduced from $100.00 to $100, and he was sent to a hospital where he remained ill for two months. When he had partially recovered he was again taken into court and discharged, no case having been made out against him.

In the meantime his pension had been taken from him and in order to have it restored Mr. Dodge went before three eminent physicians, Dr. C. C. Catlin, formerly Chairman of the Pension Bureau; Dr. Reyburn, who was one of President Garfield's physicians; and Dr. Anton Coe. They reported that the applicant was suffering from a nervous disease and an affection of the eyes. These facts were presented to Hoke Smith, but he decided that, inasmuch as the pension had been stopped, it could not be restored.

That was the end of the case. The prosecution of Mr. Dodge cost the government $7,000, and it had accomplished nothing but to bring reproach upon those who instigated it. Mr. Dodge has left Washington, broken in spirits, and practically without means of support. He has gone back to his wife and children and will try to restore the home that was broken up by the men who are responsible for the infamous Democratic outrage. He has the satisfaction of knowing, however, that his record is clear and that he and his three brothers—one of whom starved to death in a rebel prison, another losing his arm at Spotsylvania, and still another being an inmate of a soldiers' home—are still entitled to the respect and honor of all patriotic people, no matter who may be in charge of the Pension Bureau at Washington.—Burlington Hawkeye.

A Iron was Party.
By this time everybody must have remarked how differently the Republican party and the Democratic party go about making a tariff bill. The Republican party frames a tariff bill on the principle of protection, in which it practices what it preaches. No money-holders in the free-trade and protectionist principle accompany by breach of faith. There is no occasion for any investigation to ascertain whether Republican legislators have dallied with the stock ticker, playing the markets on inside information. There are no irreconcilable differences between House and Senate. The Republican President does not publish a letter charging Republican Senators with party perjury and party dishonor. There is no mud-slinging between the President and the Republican side of the Senate. The country is not kept on the anxious seat while a family row is fought out. The Republican party understands business and is expert in the business of legislation.—Wheeling Intelligencer.

Coal, Iron and Sugar.
The President of the United States, Mr. Grover Cleveland saw fit to recommend to Congress that coal and iron ore should be admitted into the United States free of duty and that sugar should be taxed. The extent of such an evil may be briefly stated as follows: The coal product of the United States in 1892 was 110,000,000 tons, worth $207,543,811 at the mine's mouth. It afforded employment to 311,944 workers, who each found remunerative occupation on 212 different days in the year. Their earnings amounted to $124,809,195, and all expenditures were $146,533,280. The total amount of capital invested in the coal mines was $250,000,000. The principal States of production, in their order of importance, were: Pennsylvania, Illinois,

MANY MILLIONS IN DIAMONDS

Enormous Increase in the Product Since the Discoveries in South Africa.

The discovery and working of the great South Africa mines has enormously increased the production of diamonds. During the past quarter-century ten tons of these gems, selling for $300,000,000 uncut, and for $600,000,000 after cutting, have been added to the world's wealth. According to the New York News this quantity of stones is twice as great as the sum total of all that were known to exist before, the value represented being in the most concentrated possible form. A single corporation controls more than nine-tenths of the entire world's output of diamonds, owning practically the whole of the mines in South Africa. Thus it is enabled to regulate and maintain prices, restricting the reproduction so that the supply may not exceed the demand. Up to date it has placed upon the market about 2,800,000 carats. During the last year it dug and sold $16,000,000 worth of diamonds. During 1993 diamonds to the value of about $15,000,000 were imported into this country. Since 1868 $175,000,000 worth of these gems have been brought into the United States. The cutting of diamonds is carried on in the United States by fifteen firms, employing 150 cutters, cleavers, and polishers. The American public demands a much higher quality of cutting than is required by the European markets. At the same time less is paid for the work than abroad, $2 being considered fair wages per diem. The pioneer cutter on this side of the water was Henry D. Morse of Boston. In 1869 he cut the famous Dewey diamond—the biggest gem of the kind ever found in this country—which was dug out of a clay bank near Richmond, weighing 25 carats in the rough. In his shop was invented the first diamond cutting machine, which made it possible to do the work faster and with more precision. It has not yet been adopted abroad to any extent as yet. Amsterdam, the greatest center of diamond cutting, has seventy-two factories engaged in that industry. The largest employs 1,000 hands. Next in importance is Antwerp. London ranks third. In the world there are 6,500 cutters of diamonds and 8,000 dealers. The latter carry in stock $350,000,000 worth of stones, representing probably one-third of all the diamonds possessed by human beings to-day.

ELOPED WITH A KURD.
An International Love-Affair that Threatened a Veritable War.
Thomas G. Allen, Jr., and William I. Sachtleben, the young American students who made a bicycle tour around the world, describe their experiences in Persia, in the Century. The following peculiar international complication came to their knowledge at Tabreez:
The English government, it seemed, had become embroiled in a local love-affair just at a time when Col. Stewart was off on "diplomatic duty" on the Russian Transcaucasian border. An exceptionally bright Armenian beauty, a graduate of the Armenian missionary schools at this place, had been abducted. It was claimed, by a young Kurdish cavalier, and carried away to his mountain home. Her father, who happened to be a naturalized English subject, had applied for the assistance of his adopted country in obtaining her release. Negotiations were at once set on foot between London and Teheran, which finally led to a formal demand upon the Kurds by the Shah himself. Upon their repeated refusal, 7,000 Persian troops, it was said, were ordered to Soak Bouk, under the command of the vice-consul, Mr. Patton.

The matter at length assumed such an importance as to give rise, in the House of Commons, to the question, "Who is Katy Greenfield?" This, in time, was answered by that lady herself, who declared under oath that she had become a Mohammedan, and was in love with the man with whom she had eloped. More than this it was learned that she had not a drop of English blood in her veins, her father being an Austrian, and her mother a native Armenian. Whereupon the Persian troops, with their much-disgraced leaders, beat an ignominious retreat, leaving "Katy Greenfield" mistress of the situation, and of a Kurdish heart.

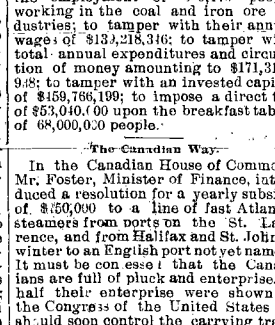

Fresh Air Prohibited.
There are many stories told of the great reverence in which the Scotch people hold the Sabbath. Their methods of showing their reverence, however, are sometimes so remarkable as to draw a smile from others, who may nevertheless be reasonably strict observers of the "day of rest." A minister of the kirk told an American clergyman, who was traveling in Scotland, that on one occasion he passed a Sunday in a little country inn, and as the tiny parlor of the house was exceedingly clean and stuffy, and the day was warm, he started to open one of the windows. "What are ye about mon?" inquired the landlady, with much severity, entering the room just in time to prevent the carrying out of the minister's design. He meekly explained that he had thought it would be pleasant to have a little fresh air. "Eh, mon!" said the landlady, with additional emphasis and severity, "ye can hae no fresh air in this house on the Sabbath. Six days are enow for that, mon!"

Tired, Weak, Nervous Could Not Sleep.
Prof. L. D. Edwards, of Preston, Idaho, says: "I was all run down, weak, nervous and irritable through overwork. I suffered from brain fatigue, mental depression, etc. I became so weak and nervous that I could not sleep. I would arise tired, discouraged and blue. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and now everything is changed. I sleep soundly, I feel bright, active and ambitious. I can do more in one day now than I used to do in a week! For this great good I give Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine the sole credit. It Cures."
Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold on a positive guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. All druggists sell it at $1.00 bottles for $5.00. It will be sent prepaid, on receipt of price by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Forty Populists! Socialism is making headway toward anarchy!
In the senate of the United States at the present time there are three Democrats—namely:
David B. Hill, N. Y. E. Murphy, Jr., N. Y.
James Smith, Jr., N. Y.
And in the senate of the United States at the present time there are two cowards:
A. J. Gorman, Md. George Gray, Del.
There are other cowards whose names might go with these. But these cowards are conspicuous—so conspicuous that they deserve to stand alone.—New York Sun.

THE SOUTH IN THE SADDLE.
Look Forward, Not Backward, and Prepare For the Coming Victory.
Seven southern senators and congressmen, with one northern senator of southern sympathies, have been intrusted with the industrial destinies of 70,000,000 of people. Jones, Wilson, McMillin, Turner and Montgomery come from villages with less than a combined population of 10,000. "What can northern industries expect from these men? Not one of them knows anything of the needs of labor and industry, and yet they are to shape a tariff bill that must overthrow our whole splendid network of industrial activity and progress. And where lies the blame? With the northern Democrats who in 1892 voted for Grover Cleveland and a Democratic free trade congress.
The lesson must be learned, and it will prove a bitter experience. It is too late to look back. We must look forward and repair the wrong as soon as we can. We must begin at once and labor incessantly till the bill which seems destined to become a law is replaced by a law of protection. Our country must recede, our laborers must be idle, our factories closed, our savings withdrawn and spent, our splendid progress, national and individual, checked, but next November and again in 1894 we can right the wrong, and we must do it so emphatically that the Democratic party will not again come to the front for a generation to come.
Another English Adviser.
The Liverpool Mercury comments editorially upon the position of affairs in the United States and says, "The shackles of protection were strengthened to an unprecedented extent by the McKinley tariff." With this opinion we cordially agree, and if it were applied to this one fact to the case of our recent labor troubles it would find that it was the very fear of the loosening of "the shackles of protection" that has resulted in the unfortunate condition of our "tens of thousands of men" who have not yet been ground down to a condition of mere existence, bordering on starvation, such as can be found in European countries, but who have been accustomed to live in comfort and prosperity under the belief that America was for Americans and not for foreigners.
An Object Lesson in Free Trade.
O God, look down with pity on this broken man! And send some work to save me from the open path to crime.
For ten long months I traveled in sunshine and in rain.
In search of some employment, but my efforts have been vain.
For many long and happy years I have earned in the mill.
The means to keep dear grandma.
I hope to keep her still.
Then all the girls were happy, we had money, clothes and homes.
Our song of joy was drowned by the music of the looms.
To the old mill every morning we marched in gay throngs.
Planning for the dinner hour to play our girl.
But early in the summer we heard the sentence passed.
The free trade plague is coming; we must shut down at last.
The savings I had treasured from the wages I had made.
I have paid out as a tribute to the nation's scourge, free trade.
My old grandma in the pawnshop. I am now ashamed to meet
In the happy hours of daylight the friends I had so loved.
The loom that I had furnished with many a fond device.
The free trade scourge has robbed me of that humble paradise.
I have nothing now to live for but a duty to fulfill.
My hopes in life were buried with the closing of the mill.
But I cannot leave dear grandma. She took me to her bed.
And nursed me in my infancy when my own dear mother died.
The purpose of free traders now to wreck our lives is plain.
Our lives shall be the sacrifice; our honor we'll retain.
—Jennie Farrell.

A PROSPEROUS HOME.
Husband.—"Why, it's just a year ago tomorrow that we were married."
Wife.—"So it is; and, do you know, I am wearing the same pair of shoes that I was married in, and they are not half worn out."
Husband.—"So am I."
Wife.—"Why, how strange. Mine were made by the Hamilton Brown Shoe Co., of St. Louis—their Ladies' Hand Sewed."
Husband.—"And mine are their Men's $4.00 Shoe."
"Well, let's stick to them for shoemakers for the rest of our lives, for their shoes wear as finely as they look."

The republican state convention will go down as the largest and most eventful in the history of the state.

There will be six republican congressmen elected from Nebraska this fall. Keep this in remembrance.

The entire republican state ticket is worthy of your support, and especially should every old soldier cast his ballot for it.

It now occurs that 400 or more errors appeared in the sugar-trust-tariff bill, but that is nothing. In national affairs the democratic party is but a mistake.

There are some things about the state convention of which the HERALD does not approve, but we believe the wishes of the majority should be respected.

Superintendent Coney, of Stanton, received a very complimentary vote for state superintendent by the republican convention, and in the future Mr. Coney may secure the coveted prize.

The selection of John M. Thurston as national committeeman, by the state convention, in the place of Rosewater, resigned, was an action that will meet with the hearty commendation of every republican in the state.

"The deed is done and the dog is dead" says Colonel Watterson. "What about the future of the party?" Why not bury it head down? It has certainly done mischief enough to be, like Satan of old, "chained for a thousand years." Inter Ocean.

Judge Robinson wasn't in it to any alarming extent at the democratic congressional convention at Norfolk last Thursday night. George L. Thomas of Colfax county, was placed in nomination for congressman. Last week was a chilly one for Allen, Robinson & Roedism.

Week before last the HERALD notified the Madison Reporter that "there's many a slip and the plotters of a few cowardly tricks might learn of things, said to come home to roost in politics," and they did, according to the populist and democratic congressional conventions at Norfolk.

The Winside Tribune, successor to the Watchman by Dorr H. Carroll, made its appearance at the Herald office last week. An improvement is plainly discernible and it is chock full of local news. The HERALD predicts success for the Tribune if the business men of Winside know anything or two, and we believe they do.

The republican state convention did a wise thing in nominating Eugene Moore, for state auditor, and Joseph Bartley for treasurer, as they have been tried and found not wanting. They are men to whom the people can look for an honest fulfillment of the duties required of them by our great commonwealth.

The populist convention at Norfolk last Tuesday sat down on Judge Robinson very hard after they had made him swallow plank after plank of the adopted platform. Mackay, of the Madison Reporter wept and Windy V. Allen sighed and "wore it weariest look" and it was an extremely cold day for Wayne's aspirant for judicial honors. "Three and three quarters availed him naught."

On returning from the state convention Governor Majors found one of his family, a bright young boy of sixteen years, at the very verge of death. There is said to be no hope for the boy's recovery. Two years ago during the session of the legislature he lost suddenly a little girl baby on whom his heart was set. The cup of sorrow has been many times put to his lips just at the moment when the public weal demanded most of his energies. No man in Nebraska has had a more tragic or eventful life. From the time he went out, a slender youth of nineteen, as lieutenant in the First Nebraska thirty four years ago, until now, there has never been a day when he was not a striking figure in Nebraska history, around which has clung a commingling of sensations, joyous and pathetic, of victory and defeat, of persecution and praise, but above all of which has always stood up, conspicuous and indomitable courage and personal energy that has made him the hero of many battles. On the farm near Peru where he has lived for thirty years, and where his children were born, he has spent many happy hours in domestic peace and content, but when sorrow has come to the Majors' home it has always come at the hour when his friends were awaiting his presence at the banquet hall.

Whatever be the issue of this, his present domestic sorrow, out over the plains of Nebraska are scattered, a great army of loyal friends, comrades of the war and companions in many a struggle since the war, who know the strong heart of their leader and will follow his cause as no man has ever been followed in the state by the common people.—Bixby.

The Republicans of Nebraska in convention assembled, have chosen Tom Majors as their candidate for governor. The selection could not have fallen upon a more worthy candidate for one who will poll more votes or make a better executive. It is the ambition of the nominee to make the best governor Nebraska has ever had. Those who are acquainted with the man know that he will fill the office with credit to himself and the party. For nearly forty years Tom Majors has been a resident of Nebraska. He pitched his tent here in territorial days when the population numbered less than 20,000. With the exception of that time he was absent assisting in chastising the south and forcing the rebellious states back into the union, he resided constantly in the commonwealth. He is a plain man a farmer—a genuine western hustler with a heart as big as an ox, and as honest as he is noble hearted. Tom Majors will be the next governor of Nebraska by 20,000 plurality.—Norfolk News.

At the populist state convention at Grand Island Friday, the following candidates were placed in nomination: Governor, Silas A. Holcomb; Lieut. Governor, James N. Gaffin; Secretary of State, H. N. McPadden; Auditor, John R. Wilson; Treasurer, John H. Powers; Attorney General, D. B. Casey; Commissioner, Sidney J. Kent; Superintendent, W. A. Jones. While the HERALD does not agree with the populist platform in any sense, it is of the opinion that Mr. Holcomb is a better man in every way than Senator Windy Allen, but the next Governor of Nebraska will be that gallant soldier, Thos. J. Majors.

John M. Thurston addressed the Swedish (Gartfeld) club of Omaha, Friday evening, and during the course of his address, stated it had been said that no republican in Nebraska was brave enough to stand up and face "Billy Windmill Bryan" on the stump. Mr. Thurston said that if the "pops, or the demo-pops, or pop-democrats, or the guerillas between party lines, had a man whom they wished to pit against a republican before the voters of Nebraska, let them send on their challenge and it will not be refused."

It was clearly demonstrated at the state convention that the republicans of the south Platte country proposed to capture about everything in sight, but after a very pretty fight Churchill of Douglas county, was nominated for attorney general, defeating Wm. Summers, who would have been nominated had the S. P. fellows been less glib, yet, come to think about it, four of the candidates are from the south and four from the north Platte country.

A dramatic scene in the republican state convention occurred when Rosewater's letter resigning as national committeeman was read, and Thurston was elected to the position, followed by remarks from Thos. Majors, in which he refuted the charges of the Bee and showed where Rosewater had drawn pay for forty days while in the legislature, when he had been absent 12 days of the 40.

It is true, perhaps, that some dissatisfaction may arise through the nomination of Thos. J. Majors, for governor, but from information the HERALD has been able to obtain, the reports about his legislative actions are mole hills, transformed into mountains, and are the product of enmity and a desire for revenge on the part of the Omaha Bee. If this is true all republicans should be loyal.

Republican Financial Policy
 As one Republican convention after another meets it becomes more and more evident that there is to be no deviation from the financial, any more than from the revenue, policy of the party. There is no longer the faintest trace of free-tradeism left in the Republican horizon. Even the Chicago newspaper which wanted the national Republican convention of 1883 to follow the line of policy marked out by President Cleveland in his annual message of 1887 seems to have recovered entirely from the infirmity of intellect, giving no indication of a relapse. Hardly, if any, less definite, harmonious, and outspoken is the party in monetary matters. There is no disposition to accept the practical monometallism of Cleveland as final. On the contrary both metals must be employed as money in supplying, together with paper based on coin, the country's medium of exchange.

Nebraska and Tennessee were the latest States to hold Republican State conventions, and both adopted substantially the same financial plank as Illinois. Each convention has its own way of phrasing it, but they all mean the same thing. The greatest variations were in Ohio and Kansas, which held their conventions early in the season, but boiled down both come to the same thing. Of late there is less disposition to go into details and more rest content without a definite result rather than attempting to outline a method of reaching that result. This is sensible.

The Nebraska plank runs thus: The Republican party in Nebraska has always been the consistent friend and aggressive champion of honest money, and it now takes no step backward. While favoring bimetalism and demanding the use of both gold and silver as standard money, the convention insists that the parity of the value of the two metals be maintained, so that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the government shall be good as any other.

If the people want that doctrine carried out let them say so by their ballots for Congressmen and Legislators to elect United States Senators. They hold the key to the situation. The financial issue may be overshadowed by the tariff, but it cannot be put out of sight. It is too vital to the welfare of the country to be thrust in the background.—Inter Ocean.

When the votes are counted it will be found that State Auditor Eugene Moore will have more votes than any other candidate on the ticket. That is the kind of men to place in nomination and the party campaign will always be an aggressive one.

A cuckoo organ says "the political platforms this year have a silver lining." The chief misfortune is that the people, owing to the reckless maladministration of the democratic party, have no "silver lining" to their pockets.—Inter Ocean.

The President will doubtless prefer juicy crow, with "perfidy and dishonor," to the McKinley law and portherhouse steaks. It is party necessity that confronts him—an awful dose, but he will swallow it.—Inter Ocean.

The Senate tariff bill has become a law, but it was not made so by the signature of President Cleveland. He wrote another private letter, and he has not done anything since.

At last, but after terrible results, the fifty-third congress adjourned Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, and a misused people are thankful.

There-nomination of Geo. D. Meiklejohn is an assurance that the third district will again be represented by a republican in congress.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS.
 What will Contribute to the Success of the State Fair.
 Here is a partial program of what will be in reserve outside the regular fair routine:
 Major Hendershot, the famed drummer boy of the Rappahannock, with his son the fifer, will entertain free, daily on the fairgrounds.
 Jeakle's pony hippodrome, chariot races, Roman standing races, trotting dog Sheppe, free daily on race track.
 Soldiers' day, children's day, and state day, on Tuesday, 11th. This will be the day this year.

Other entertainments are being considered, and in all probability will be added. Lillian Cody, the champion rifle and revolver shot of the world, is among the possible performers free in front of the grand stand daily.
 Each evening during the fair, the "Carnival of Venice" will be presented at Burlington beach, and the "Siege of Algiers" at Lincoln park. These are most thrilling and entertaining spectacular entertainments.

All these side shows as it were, in comparison with the great combined exposition of the state fair, state horticultural exhibit and manufacturers and consumers association's presentation all showing the wonderful resources industries, advantages and possibilities of Nebraska. Managers of these respective organizations are leaving nothing undone to make the exposition far in advance of anything of this kind ever before seen.

IT HAS BECOME A LAW

THE TARIFF BILL DISPLACES THE MCKINLEY ACT

It Becomes a Law Without the President's Signature - Carlisle Kept Busy Sending Instructions to Customs Collectors.

The Tariff Bill a Law. Washington, Aug. 23. At 12 o'clock last night the McKinley tariff law, which has been in operation since October 30, 1890, "practically" four years, died on the statute books and the new Democratic tariff bill, passed by the Fifty-third Congress, became a law without the signature of President Cleveland.

The Secretary Carlisle has decided and will instruct customs collectors that goods placed in bonded warehouses under the McKinley law and made free of duty under the new tariff act are entitled to free entry and need not be exported and reimported in order to get the benefits of the new act.

The Secretary yesterday sent the following telegram to custom officials at all ports in the United States: "Vessels with cargoes not discharged or entered for consumption may be made bonded warehouses temporarily for such goods as shall be entered in bond."

WHISKY TRUST LOAN

Couldn't Raise the $5,000,000 to Get Its Stuff Out of Bond.

Peoria, Ill., special: The whisky trust, on the very last day for getting its goods out of bond, was as much of an enigma as ever. It was reported that the trust would pay the taxes on its goods to the amount of $5,000,000 by 11 o'clock, but up to 1 o'clock not a move was made.

JAPS MADE HAPPY

Important Treaty with Great Britain Consummated.

Washington special: Japan has at last succeeded in an object very dear to her people and for which the Government has striven with all the arts of diplomacy for many years. News has been received here by the diplomatic corps that a new treaty has just been negotiated between Japan and Great Britain by the terms of which the claims of extraterritorial jurisdiction by the latter is abandoned.

Mysterious Murder of an Onlooker

Mentone special: Considerable excitement has been occasioned in this city by a murder committed here. M. Rulisco, secretary of the police commissary, while entering his house, was shot by an unknown man. Very few people were in the vicinity of the house at the time and the murderer effected his escape unmolested.

Dynamite Explosion in Mexico

Zacatecas, Mexico, special: A courier from the mining camp of Minillos brings news of a dynamite explosion which occurred in one of the mines there. Six persons were killed and great damage done to property.

Car Has Influenza

Peabody special: The car is afflicted with influenza.

Man Shot a Bullet

Peabody special: A letter from the Peabody special, received at Che. Peo.

reports that nineteen Japanese warships and thirteen transports arrived at the Tating River on the 18th inst. They landed 6,000 men, who, while proceeding inland, were attacked by 1,000 Chinese cavalry who succeeded in dividing the Japanese force into two parts.

AWFUL STORM IN EUROPE

Probably a Thousand People Swept Out of Existence.

St. Louis special: A cablegram from the Globe-Democrat from St. Petersburg says: A wind of death—no other name can describe the cyclone that swept across the Sea of Azov. It will be impossible for days yet to compute the damage done; but it is almost certain that at least 1,000 persons perished, some by drowning, others by being crushed under falling houses and trees.

The wind was first felt at Nogaisk. Nogaisk is peopled by fishermen who were out in the water. The village was razed and returned as if an immense plow had pushed through it.

THIRTY-SEVEN ARE KILLED

Terrible Mine Disaster in the State of Washington.

Seattle, Wash., special: A terrific gas explosion occurred in breast No. 62 on the sixth level of the Franklin Mine, at Franklin, near this city. Sixty-two miners were imprisoned and thirty-seven killed.

SUGAR PLANTERS WILL SUE

Have Not Yet Surrendered All Hope of Securing a Bounty.

New Orleans special: The Louisiana Sugar Planters have not yet surrendered all hope of securing the bounty on the growing crop. Preparations are being made for the filing of a suit in the fall by one of the wealthiest planters in the state to test the legality of Congress' abrogation of the bounty, after it was partly earned.

Chinese Missionary Outrages

London special: A Times Tientsin despatch states that an imperial edict has been issued in connection with the outrages perpetrated on missionaries, and the murder of Rev. James Wyle, Presbyterian missionary, who was recently killed by Chinese soldiers.

Kentucky Woman is Crucified

Louisville special: A seemingly authentic story was received here of a revolting crime committed near Goose Creek, Clay County, in a rough, unsettled section. A woman, whose name is not given in the dispatch, was found by some lumbermen hanged to a tree, her hands and feet pierced by nails.

Coal Strike Hot in Scotland

Glasgow special: In connection with the coal strike serious rioting has occurred and several pits have been wrecked by disorderly mobs.

Herr's Dove Reported Wounded

Berlin special: Herr Dove the inventor of the bullet-proof coat was said to have been wounded during a performance at Aachen, a bullet having pierced his waist.

THE WEEK IN TRADE

Business Tends to Improve in Spite of Many Adverse Conditions.

New York special: Bradstreet's will say: Serious industrial disturbances in New England, drought in central and far western states, curtailing nearly all staple crops, and a disposition in all lines to continue to buy for nearly wants only, fail to greatly influence the general trade throughout the country.

Big Tariff Blunders

In addition to the long list of errors found in the Gorman tariff bill, the surprising discovery has been made by the Treasury Department officials that no appropriation has been made for putting into effect the income tax provisions.

Kenneth Easemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some which he gave to Geo. W. Baker a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Phil H. Kohl, Drugist.

You should try our Mocha and Java coffee, 40 cents per lb., D. E. Smith & Co.

Irrigated Fruit Lands.

Did you see the fruit in the Idaho Exhibit at the World's Fair? Nothing finer, first premiums and all raised on irrigated land. Its abundance, its profitability, its your opportunity. The country is new, the lands are cheap, and the eastern market is from 500 to 1,500 miles nearer than to similar lands in Oregon, Washington and California.

MEIKLEJOHN NAMED!

The Unanimous Choice of the Republican Congressional Convention at Norfolk.

The republican convention of the Third congressional district occurred at Norfolk Tuesday evening, and in spite of the warm weather the opera house was crowded. The convention was called to order by Chairman McNish. After reading the call, Judge Jackson of Neligh, was chosen as temporary chairman and H. E. Swenson of Pender, as Secretary. The list of delegates enrolled by the secretary was accepted and the temporary organization made permanent. Hon. Geo. D. Meiklejohn was then unanimously renominated for congress amid cheers from the vast assemblage. Speeches were made by Capt. Russell and Judge Robertson after which the following central committee was selected:

Chairman, C. C. McNish, of Wisner.
Secretary, Bert Mayes, Norfolk.
Antelope—N. D. Jackson.
Boone—M. J. Thompson.
Burt—H. E. Swenson.
