Mr. Jewell, of the Norfolk sugar factory, was in Wayne yesterday inspecting the beets and giving instructions as to how to top them. He believes the crop here will average ten to twelve tons per acre after being topped and including shrinkage.

The ladies union prayer meeting will be held at the Baptist church next Sunday at 4:30 p. m. We wish every woman would feel that this is her meeting and plan to come for when one plans to go any place, generally they go. Our subject will be "Ruth." Secretary.

While going home about dinner time Tuesday, little Otto Voget stopped at the barn of D. S. McVicker to look at some strange horses. As he stepped to the door one of the animals evidently became frightened and kicked him, cutting a bad gash on his chin and loosening his front teeth, and when striking the ground the side of his head was terribly bruised. He was discovered by Henry Myers while walking around in a dazed condition and taken home. Dr. Blair was summoned and the boy is slowly recovering.

A majority of the citizens of Wayne viewed the total eclipse of the moon Tuesday night, but many went home disappointed because there was no fire. Arrangements had been made by the Mayor and Fire Marshal to test the alarm bell; also to test the efficiency of the fire department, and at about 11:30 the bell pealed forth. In a few minutes people were running toward the fire, and in a remarkably short time the hose company was playing a stream on the fire built for the occasion. A good many citizens were dissatisfied over the matter but after understanding the object of the alarm they changed their views somewhat. A better method might have been resorted to, but the plan taken had been previously agreed upon by the Mayor, Fire Marshal and some of the council.

EXHIBIT OF FARM PRODUCTS.

The ever enterprising firm of R. W. Wilkins & Co. who take especial interest in fitting up their show windows, have this week capped the climax by arranging a fine exhibit of farm and garden products and fruits, with a lot of corn stalks and sheaves of wheat and oats for a background and canopy.

Two folds of Nebraska's emblem the "Golden rod" is suspended to the rear, while to the top back in large corn letters are visible the words Wayne County. Another sign crosses the center upon which is emblazoned the famous Nebraska term "Corn is King." Beneath this and suspended to a 10 1/2 lb. sugar beet brought in by J. W. Maholin, are the words "Beets Beat Corn." A corn stalk of the Texas variety, thirteen and one-half feet high, from the field of Mark Stringer, guards the entrance. Mr. Stringer also contributed some fine sugar cane and flax.

Farmers and others at the solicitation of this firm have materially aided them in the enterprise by contributing some splendid specimens of the farm and garden—which go to show what a magnificent exhibit could be gotten up for Wayne county for the State Fair if the members of that committee but do their duty.

As to the contents of the window one must see it to appreciate it. The following persons have contributed to the display: J. W. Maholin, sugar beets, three of them weighing 20 lbs, a mammoth head of cabbage, rhubarb and onions; Mellor & Olmsted, sugar beets prize winning sod corn and squash; McMiller, sugar beets; S. B. Russell, imperial sugar beets, winter radishes, onions and Maple Dale pop corn; M. N. Connor, sugar beets; Geo. Lehmkuhl, peerless potatoes; W. W. Hardy, rye; Will Sears, wheat, oats and tame plums; Ole Hagan, wheat; Mark Jeffrey, oats; W. O. Gamble, calico corn and specimens of first and second crop alfalfa; August Piepenstock, endive and chicken; Geo. Divin, sugar beets; F. W. Spornberger, corn; J. S. French, white spine cucumbers; J. G. Mines, table beets; Will Weber, table beets and parsnips; Pat Dixon, tomatoes, potatoes and carrots; Jas. Barbour, white and yellow and checked corn; P. M. Corbit, millet; Mrs. Cross, beet kale; H. Gregory, beets and kale; I. O. Richardson, apples; Dan Baird, flax; Henry Meyers, oats; Wm. Logan, 7 lb sugar beet.

Photographer Craven made a negative of the window to-day.

The firm has received an offer from Paxton & Gallagher, of Omaha, for the display during the state fair.

Towels, Towels, Towels, from 5c to 25c for all linen Damask. The Racket.

If the managers of the Wayne County Fair are not afraid to permit a Dixon county man to compete for premiums in the line of vegetables, Prof. Garrow, of this place, is prepared to attend with a full exhibit and take the sweepstakes. He will also take pleasure in exhibiting an 150-foot well that he recently dug and at the bottom of which the dust is still blowing. Since the Wayne contestants for the premium on sugar beets won by exhibiting from the professor's own patch, he would naturally prefer to exhibit his vegetable wonders himself.—Wakefield Republican.

Never mind Wayne County can produce sugar beets that will beat anything raised in Dixon County without resorting to the "professors" garden! See?

An elegant double breasted suit for Boy's school wear, at $100. Harrington & Robbins.

My patients will find my office open at all times and in charge of a competent dentist. W. A. IVOR.

We can't begin to tell you all about our fall stock—you must look us over and get prices. The Racket.

Wakefield Republican.—P. M. Peterson, of Hunter precinct, Wayne county, informs us that in his opinion 50 bushels of sound corn to the acre would be a fair estimate of the yield for his section of the county.

Cut This Out. The Wayne County Sunday School Association has planned for the Sunday school rallies as follows: Carroll, Sept. 8th; Winside, Sept. 23d; La Porte, Sept. 29th; Wilbur, Oct. 13th; Hoskins, Oct. 27th; Wayne, Nov. 6th. Come and help.

Nebraska State Fair, Omaha Sept 13-20, '95. For the above Fair excursion tickets will be sold September 13 to 20, good returning until and including September 23, at one fare plus fifty (50) cents, for the round trip. This rate includes an admission ticket to the Fair. Children over five and under 12, half fare. We expect to run an excursion train daily leaving Wayne about 6:30 a. m. running direct into fair grounds. Returning leave fair grounds about 7:00 p. m. arriving at Wayne at 10:30. T. W. MORAN, Agent.

DON'T MISS THE FAIR.

All roads lead to Wayne next week and one and one-third fare is the rate on all railroads. It will be the best and biggest fair ever held in Northeastern Nebraska. Remember, beginning Wednesday, September 11, and ending Saturday, September 14, on which day the best and swiftest bicycle riders in the country will be present. The bicycle meet will be the principal event, and the racing program has been carefully arranged so that patrons of the fair will receive their money's worth. Come, come, come, and bring your neighbors, and also bring some of the best produce of the farm. You will be made thrice welcome.

FOR SALE—A fine improved farm within a mile of Wayne. There is a big bargain in it. Inquire at the HERALD office.

Exhibitions will be given at Wayne, Wednesday Sept. 11th.

WIGHT-WILKERSON NUPTIALS.

Mt. Ayr society was on dress parade Wednesday. The Methodist church, beautifully decorated for the occasion, was the scene of the most brilliant and elaborate social event which ever occurred in the city, the marriage of Miss Kate Olive Wilkerson of Mt. Ayr, to Rev. Edward VanDyke Wight of Wayne, Neb.

About 400 invitations had been sent out, but many of these were to relatives and friends at a distance. About 250 of the invited guests were in attendance, including the intimate friends of the family and many of the young society people of the town.

Promptly at high noon the bridal party entered the church and proceeded up the east aisle. Little Misses Lena Dunning and Lillie Collins, the flower girls, led the way. They were followed by the ushers, Messrs Lloyd Talley, W. H. Beall, J. C. Berkey and Arthur Dunning. The bride entered on the arm of her father, Prof. J. W. Wilkerson, and was attended by Miss Edith Keller. The groom entered by the west aisle, attended by his brother Rev. Calvin Wight, of New Hamburg, N. Y., and waited for the bride party at the altar, where he received his bride from her father. The solemn ceremony which made the two one was impressively pronounced by Rev. Wight, occupying about five minutes. At its close the party proceeded down the west aisle, the flower girls again leading the way and strewing fragrant flowers in the path of the bride. During all the time from the entrance of the party until its exit, Miss Laura Dunning drew softly from the piano the sweet strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march.

The bride was attired in a white silk dress with train, simply made, and a white tulle veil. She wore white rosebuds in her hair and dress. Miss Keller wore a dainty Nile green silk with pearl trimming, and rosebuds in her hair.

Immediately after the ceremony the immediate relatives and attendants proceeded to the home of Prof. and Mrs. J. W. Wilkerson, where an elaborate wedding breakfast was served. A most delightful time was had by all present. At two o'clock the wedded pair took their departure followed by showers of rice and slippers. They go to the lakes in northern Iowa to spend the honeymoon, and will be at home after September 12th, at Wayne, Nebraska, where Rev. Wight is pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

The bride is the only daughter of Prof. J. W. Wilkerson, for so many years the efficient principal of our public schools. She is a lady of great refinement and strength of character. Mr. Wight's parental home is at New Hamburg, N. Y. He is a courteous and estimable gentleman. Both the contracting parties are highly educated, Mr. Wight being a graduate of Princeton and his bride of DePauw.

Mr. and Mrs. Wight were the recipients of many valuable and handsome presents.—Mt. Ayr, (Ia.) News.

CAPTURED IN THE WOODS NEAR TOWER, MINN.

Insurance Companies Forced to Pay $58,000 Insurance to His Heirs—Alfaro's Latest Victory Practically Settles the Trouble in Ecuador—A Swimmer's Neck Broken.

Dr. Fraker Found. Duluth special: Dr. George Fraker of Topeka, Kan., supposed to have been drowned in the Missouri River two years ago, was captured in the woods near Tower, Minn. He was insured for $58,000. The insurance companies fought the payment and the case went to the supreme court, where the heirs won and the companies were compelled to pay. It became known recently that Fraker was near Tower, where he is known as Schnell. Detectives from Topeka came on, located and arrested him. He confesses his identity and will go back without requisition. He says he did not leave home on purpose to defraud the companies. He happened to fall in the Missouri River and swam across. The next day he read in the papers that he was drowned and concluded to carry out the deception and allow his heirs to collect the insurance.

War is Near an End. Panama special: The province of Loja, Ecuador, has surrendered to Gen. Alfaro's forces without resistance. It is also reported that Alfaro's victory is practically complete and that the war in Ecuador may be regarded as drawing to a close. It is possible, however, that some of the forces of the Quitto Government may be in the province of Cotacachi, where they are a last resort, to attack Alfaro in Quito. Defeat in this event would be inevitable, unless Colombia should act as an ally of the Quitto faction. President Caro of Colombia has officially stated, however, that he will remain neutral unless Gen. Alfaro should commit, or permit his followers to commit, any overt acts favorable to the liberals in Colombia and tending to weaken the government of the President.

Swimmer's Neck Broken. Chicago special: William Kline had his neck broken in a peculiar manner. He is an expert swimmer and had taken his wife to the lake to see him do some fancy swimming and diving. Donning his bathing costume, he ran to the edge of the embankment where the water was about seven feet below, and jumping into the air came down head first into the lake. The water was two feet deep and his head struck the bottom with terrific force. He managed to regain his feet, but as he did his head fell to one side and a second later he was lying on his face in the water. Mrs. Kline screamed for help and the man was brought to the shore. Then it was found that his neck was broken and that life was extinct.

Arrested at Guatemala. Danville, Ky., special: R. J. Breckinridge of this city, brother of ex-Congressman Breckinridge, has just received a letter giving the particulars of the arrest and detention of his son, Robert J. Breckinridge, jr., at Livingston, Guatemala, in connection with the murder of Cashier Brooks, of the big transportation company for which Breckinridge was bookkeeper. Breckinridge is held that it is held as the chief witness. His relatives have asked the United States authorities to see that he gets proper protection and a fair trial.

$100,000 Fire in San Antonio. San Antonio, Texas, special: A fire broke out in the four-story furniture store of L. P. Peck & Co., and burned until the entire stock was consumed and the building destroyed. The loss on furniture is valued at $90,000 and $100,000 on fixtures $10,000. The loss on the building is $45,000. The Alamo trunk factory adjoining suffered damage to stock of about $5,000. The Texas Millinery Company also suffered heavy damage to stock. The losses were partly covered by insurance.

Caught in Balloon Ropes. Lincoln, Ill., special: Prof. Fry gave a balloon ascension and parachute jump in connection with the Labor holiday. James Irving acted as pilot in the ropes when the balloon was released and went by with it. The aeronaut ordered him to still and hold on. The balloon ascended to 2,600 feet, when the parachute was out loose and the aeronaut and the lad landed safely.

Perry Relief Expedition. St. Johns, N. F., special: The schooner Mackenzie, from Greenland, reports that it met the Perry relief expedition on board the Kite at Holsenburg July 15. There is very little ice south of Greenland and it is thought the Kite will have no difficulty reaching Perry's headquarters. The return of the party is expected about the end of this month.

Pose Shoots a Murderer. Vinings, Ind., special: Hall Carter, a colored ex-convict, shot and fatally wounded his divorced wife. He was only captured after a hot chase by officers, during which he was shot and mortally wounded.

Organic and Irish Question. London special: In a long letter to the Times Andrew Carnegie urges that paper to exert its influence to bring about a pacific solution of the Irish question.

Shot His Head Off. Hickman, Ky., special: At 2 a. m. a moblock William Burcher, as desperate negro, from jail, shot his head off and rid itself of his body with bullets.

Man in Boat Drowned. Rochester, N. Y., special: A fire in the East Block caused a loss of $110,000.

Eastern. Dr. Fraker Found. Duluth special: Dr. George Fraker of Topeka, Kan., supposed to have been drowned in the Missouri River two years ago, was captured in the woods near Tower, Minn. He was insured for $58,000. The insurance companies fought the payment and the case went to the supreme court, where the heirs won and the companies were compelled to pay. It became known recently that Fraker was near Tower, where he is known as Schnell. Detectives from Topeka came on, located and arrested him. He confesses his identity and will go back without requisition. He says he did not leave home on purpose to defraud the companies. He happened to fall in the Missouri River and swam across. The next day he read in the papers that he was drowned and concluded to carry out the deception and allow his heirs to collect the insurance.

ness with jobbers in staple lines at such places as New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and to a more moderate extent at distributing points in the south, Atlantic and gulf states. In dry goods, millinery, shoes, hats, clothing and groceries the autumn demand is making itself felt, with the prospect for a further improvement in immediately succeeding months. All winter's lines of goods have been ordered and the merchant exporters and jobbers are preparing to handle a large trade. Exports of wheat from both coasts of the United States and from Montreal this week (four as wheat) amount to only 1,371,000 bushels, against 2,388,000 bushels in the week one year ago and 3,602,000 bushels two years ago. During nine weeks of the current cereal year the total wheat (flour included) exports from the United States and Canada amounted to only 16,000,000 as compared with 25,000,000 in a like period of the preceding year.

New York special: It was rumored that there would be trouble in Chinatown owing to the differences existing between the rival factions known respectively as the "San Yip" Society and "Sue Yip" Society which are branches of two powerful organizations of similar names in San Francisco. The trouble originated over a business quarrel between the two organizations, the mother organizations, and the fear of discord spread to this city, and there has been a desire on the part of the rivals to boycott each other. Chin Fong, a well known Chinese merchant, who owns a restaurant in Pell Street, came out on the sidewalk and addressed a large crowd of his countrymen. Acting Capt. Jonny, of the Elizabeth Street Station, in anticipation of the trouble, had stationed a number of policemen in the vicinity, and soon as the crowd became demonstrative Chin Fong was ordered to desist. The police dispersed the crowd. This put a damper upon Chin and his followers, and they gave up the attempt to hold an open air meeting. Considerable excitement prevailed in the neighborhood for some time, however.

Hartford, Conn., special: In pursuance of an order from the police court Deputy Sheriff Foote turned into the gutter a number of beer kegs which had been ordered from the local brewing company under the recent liquor seizure act. Several hundred thirsty residents of the East Side were on hand, many of them carrying cans, with which they scooped up the fluid as it ran beside the curb. The kegs were seized from the delivery wagons of the brewery on the ground that they were being sold without a license. The beer had been held about a week in the ambulance room at the police station and was a little staler. The crowd became demonstrative that Patrol Driver O'Brien turned the hose on them to clear the street.

Pont Huron, Mich., special: An accident occurred on the St. Clair River near Marysville during a small rain storm, in which four persons lost their lives. A picnic was being held at Stag Island, opposite Marysville, and Mrs. M. Deruff, Frank Deruff, her brother-in-law, and three young ladies, Misses Cella Choniska, Minnie Schenhardt and Edith Conner, rowed over early in the day. When the storm was coming they started back for home, but when within a few miles they saw a small straggle the craft upset it. All but Miss Schenhardt, a girl of 15, were drowned.

New York special: The weekly bank statement shows a reserve increase of $1,683,230; loans decrease, $2,720,700; specie decrease, $844,900; legal tenders increase, $2,176,400; deposits increase, $1,375,400. The banks now hold $38,149,925 in excess of the legal requirements.

St. Joseph, Mich., special: A telegram from Beaver Island says the body of a man which had been in the water several months was washed ashore. The impression is that the body is that of James Clark a member of the crew of the lost steamer Chicora.

WESTERN. ANNA, Ill., special: The Southern Illinois Fair closed here with a brutal and cowardly murder. John Jones, a notorious citizen of this place, beat and kicked to death a woman named Mendahl. Jones had an eating stand on the fair grounds and Mrs. Mendahl was cooking for him. She asked for her pay and an altercation ensued which ended by Jones knocking her down and kicking her so that she died in an hour. Mrs. Mendahl, who is said to be a respectable woman, lived at Carbondale, and was seven months advanced in pregnancy. She had a husband and children. Jones was promptly arrested and is in the county jail at Jonesboro. There is great indignation here over the outrageous deed, and Jones has always been a dangerous and quarrelsome man.

Chicago special: Health Commissioner Kerr has begun an open war against the milk dealers. He filed charges in the office of the prosecuting attorney against ninety-three milk dealers whose milk or cream had been examined by the city chemist and had been found wanting. In many cases the milk had been skimmed and the dealer was presumably selling it as good milk, because his cans were not otherwise tagged when the inspector took the sample. In some cases the milk had been merely watered, and in others it had been both watered and skimmed. In many cases cream had been found colored, lacking in butter fat or otherwise deficient.

Quincy, Ill., special: Jealousy was the cause of what will probably prove to be a double murder. Henry Boling and Rosa Swearingen shot and fatally wounded by each other. Boling was paying attention to both women and was being ridden with Mrs. Swearingen. Miss Helwig, accompanied by a woman named Belle Jones, followed them in another buggy. On the road just north of the city she drove up close to the buggy in which she sat, and Boling, who was a fair but faithless lover and rival. It was a bright moonlight night and as the buggies ranged along side she drew a revolver and shot them both. She drove rapidly away and has not yet been caught.

Chicago special: Word was received from Libertyville, thirty miles north of Chicago, that the town had been totally destroyed by the place. The Chicago fire department was asked for aid, and was preparing to respond, when it was ascertained that there was no water in the burning village, and consequently the fire engines would be of no service. There are about forty houses in Libertyville, and the message said that fifteen had already been burned, and that fifteen more were being burned, the other fifteen were being saved. The cause of the conflagration is not given.

San Francisco special: The steamship Moinowid brings advices that the steamer Chatterbox was wrecked off Sydney. She had eighty-one souls on board, of whom not over twenty-five were saved.

FOREIGN. MONTREAL, Quebec, special: The authentic statement that Hon. J. C. Patterson, minister without a portfolio, will be sworn in as Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba is creating great excitement here, especially among the French Canadians. The term of office of Dr. Schultz is finished, but it was generally supposed that the Liberal government would get a second term. It now appears that Dr. Schultz has refused to do this and that for these reasons Patterson has received the appointment and will be expected to hasten Greenway and his cabinet if they refuse to come to terms on the school question.

LONDON special: The Times' correspondence at Changhai says Chinese Christians are being brutally harried near Hing Hwa, province of Fu Kien. Houses have been burnt and property and cattle lifted. One person was fatally wounded. The magistrate refused to interfere, although he was five times requested to do so. He published an ambiguous proclamation referring to the Ku Cheng massacre and inciting a rising against the Christians. Worse troubles are expected.

HAVANA special: According to estimates by government officials during the days between August 16 and 24, fourteen steamers left the ports of Spain with 811,000 men and 1,000,000 common soldiers on board. Gen. Manriquez de Castro just arrived at Villa Verde. He is perfectly well and says that there is no truth in the alarming reports that have been circulated about the failure of his health and the failure of his campaign in Cuba.

LONDON special: The Berlin correspondent of the Standard says he learns on excellent authority that the result of the remarks of Hon. A. J. Balfour, First Lord of the Treasury, in Parliament, to the effect that he did not believe an international conference would result in an international agreement, is that Germany is unlikely to convene a bimetallic conference.

BIAHRTZ special: King Alexander of Serbia went swimming with an instructor. Both were carried off their feet by the strong current. The swimming-master was drowned. The King only reached the shore with the greatest difficulty.

CONSTANTINOPLE special: There was a cloudburst in the district of Sidisich, which caused enormous damage. An Arab village was destroyed. Fourteen dead bodies and sixteen injured persons were removed from the ruins.

CITY OF MEXICO special: Fifteen thousand pounds of silver currency representing the sum of $200,000, were shipped by express to San Francisco. It is principally for Oriental export.

LONDON special: The Times reports an alleged case of cholera in Wandsworth, London.

SOUTHERN. NEW ORLEANS, La., special: The grand jury has presented its report. It contained an accusation that twenty of the thirty members of the city council are criminally crooked. The report says: "We have labored industriously to unearth the corruption which has prevailed to some extent during the early proceeding of our present city council, a majority of whom appear to have been such willing tools in the hands of the tempter. The payment of large sums of money to certain members of the city council is palpable. It appears that $87,000 was received by about twenty members of the council for their votes in the passage of the ordinance extending the franchise of the New Orleans City and Lake Railroad, and that two or three members, exclusive of the twenty members, received additional large amounts for their votes. It further appears that large amounts were received by them for the passage of the Jubah, Harl and Crescent City franchises. We would advise the voters to support a committee of these investigations, and to ensure that their efforts will be crowned with success."

LARDO, Texas, special: Information regarding the fearful storm raging from Corpus Christi, Texas, and across the border several hundred miles into Mexico, is very meager. Scarcely anything definite can be learned, as the railroad officials are very reticent. Enough is known, however, to state that the storm is the worst in the history of northern Mexico. Five miles of American National telegraph wires were down, with numerous bridges washed away. In many places the Mexican national roadbed is washed out for several hundred yards. There is no telling what developments will bring to light. The Mexican wires are equally as badly damaged. As yet there are no reports of loss of life or homes.

PERRY, Oklahoma, special: Mary J. Pinner, widow of a Cherokee Indian, has brought suit for all the lands on which the towns of Blackwell, Virginia City and Cleveland are located. She declares that the lands were allotted to her husband, Joe Palmer, a half-breed Cherokee, herself, and her two children. She claims she was defrauded out of the allotments and implicates John W. Jordan of Cleveland, who was an important factor in bringing about a settlement between the United States and the Cherokee Indians for the Cherokee Strip.

EL PASO, Texas, special: It is understood that matters have been fixed at the City of Mexico with the Federal officials so that the forbidden Fitzsimmons fight can be held at Juarez, across the Rio Grande from El Paso. Governor Asmunda of Chihuahua favors having the fight at Juarez, but has been held back by President Diaz heretofore. Twenty thousand dollars Mexican money must be put up as a guaranty for local expenses and an evidence of good faith.

ATHENS, Ga., special: William Haygood, while profaning at the High Shoals, declared there was no God, no heaven, and no hell, had his tongue paralyzed. The matter has caused a great sensation in that community.

ROBBERS CAPTURED

ARRESTED FOR THE TRAIN ROBBERY AT BUTTERMILK HILL.

The Authorities Say That There Is No Doubt Whatever But That They Have the Right Parties—Will Be Placed on Trial for Obstructing the Mails.

Train Robbers Identified.

The two train robbers caught south of Broken Bow, were taken to Grand Island over the B. & M., and from there to North Platte on a special train. The party consisted of United States Marshal White and two deputies, W. T. Canada, chief of the Pacific coast, Brewster Rouse of Colorado with his three blood hounds, and the two burglars. Several hundred people gathered at the depot, curious to see the men. The latter would not say anything. Detective Canada says that there is no doubt whatever but that they have the right men and is feeling good over the capture. "We are very thankful to the papers of the state," said he, "for the assistance rendered in the hunt." Engineer Austin and Fireman Deke went to North Platte to identify the men and appear as witnesses against them. They will be given a hearing and then taken to Omaha for trial on the charge of interrupting the United States mail. The men both give their names as Knudsen, and are, tough looking customers. They belong in Dakota County, this state, and are about 22 and 25 years old.

The vest found in the grip one mile east of the robbery grabbed the pants of the prisoner. The morning after the robbery a Union Pacific mailfinder with the map of Nebraska torn out was found, and the map was found in one of the prisoner's pockets when arrested.

MAXWELL FOR JUDGE.

Nominated for the Supreme Bench by Nebraska Populists.

The State Convention of Nebraska Populists met at Lincoln. Chairman Edmiston was called to order by Chairman Edmiston, of the State Central Committee.

Senator W. V. Allen was elected permanent chairman and after numerous speeches, the convention adjourned until evening.

At the evening session the platform as reported by the majority of the committee was adopted.

The People's Party of Nebraska in convention assembled to put forth the following platform of principles:

"We hereby reaffirm the principles of the Omaha platform. We declare ourselves in favor of strict economy in conducting the affairs of the state government in all its branches.

"We believe the judicial affairs of the state should be conducted on the principles of justice and honesty without partisan bias and in the interests of the people."

The Omaha platform had recommended the initiative and referendum. It was the intention of the minority report to adopt the Omaha platform minus this recommendation. Upon this point debate was warm. The referendum won.

Then a resolution declaring the party opposed to establishing a religious test for office was introduced. A heated debate followed, provoked by a member of the A. P. A. who declared the resolution was aimed at the organization. The resolution was adopted. It declares for a public school system of a non-sectarian character. Nominations were made as follows:

For Supreme Judge—Samuel Maxwell. University Regents—James H. Thurston and E. W. Peattie.

Caught Skinning Steer Stock. Some excitement was created at Sidney by the arrest of Herman Barling for cattle stealing. Officers are now in pursuit of his brother, John, who is alleged to assist Herman in driving two head of cattle from Colorado, the property of the Box J outfit. Several farmers near the Colorado line saw them in possession of the cattle, and followed the Barlings to their ranch, where the arrested man was seen and identified Sheriff Danglerly. On arriving at the corral they discovered Herman in the act of skinning one of the animals, and the other was standing near the slaughter pen awaiting its doom. The sheriff arrested Herman, but the younger brother, John, eluded the officers and fled to the corn field, where he is still in hiding. Warrants have been sworn out, and the prisoners will be taken to Colorado for trial.

A large number of cattle have been stolen in that vicinity and detectives have been scouring the country for the guilty parties. The Barling boys have always borne excellent reputations, and it was a great surprise to hear that they were mixed up in this affair.

House Burned and Family Gone.

Word has been received at Springfield that the house of Judge W. W. Byington, ten miles southeast of that place, was found burned to the ground and the family missing. A heavy thunderstorm passed over that locality and it is thought by some that lightning might have struck the house and all burned in it. Some think there was foul play, as Byington is a gardener and uses irrigation from a creek which has been taken from the river above, which has caused a big law suit. Byington got out an injunction some time ago to stop the Porters from using the water. They disobeyed the injunction and Byington had them arrested, which caused suspicion that way.

Projecting a Railroad.

Representative citizens met at North Platte and perfected arrangements for the organization of a local railway company to build a railroad to Gering. The idea is to grade and tie the road and get permission of the federal court to allow the Union Pacific receivers to iron and operate it. The estimated cost of grading and putting down the ties is about $900 per mile for the 100 miles. Judge Neville, Lester Ellis, T. C. Patterson, Charles Iddings, W. W. Birge, M. C. Keith and A. P. Gering of Gering were appointed a committee on organization and get all possible information and assurance relative from the Union Pacific receivers.

Intercomplaint Equipment.

The joint intercomplaint of the G. A. R. of Nebraska and Kansas has begun at Camp Sherman, just outside Hastings. With the veterans of the two states are accompanied the members Interstate Association, Kansas National Guard and Nebraska Union. Fifteen thousand people have secured quarters and special trains are run on all directions.

The Awful Sufferings of a Schoolgirl

From the Journal, Detroit, Mich. Every one in the vicinity of Meldrum avenue and Champlain street, Detroit knows Mrs. McDonald, and many a neighbor has reason to feel grateful to her for the kind and friendly interest she has manifested in cases of illness.

Wrangle Over Gates College.

There is still quite a wrangle over the removal of Gates College from Neligh to Norfolk. Norfolk people have sworn out an injunction restraining the removal, and the case will come on for hearing on September 16. Meanwhile they are making every effort to keep the college. A committee has just been set up by Norfolk offering to release the Norfolk trustees from all liability for the indebtedness of Gates College if they would resign, but the feeling is that all the other nonresident trustees should also be released. Unless the matter is settled soon it will be doubtful if the college can be opened at the usual time.

Express Company's Safe Cracked.

By breaking the window glass in the Union Pacific Depot at Papillion burglars were enabled to gain admission, where with a heavy hammer they succeeded in breaking the lock of the Pacific Express Company's safe. The burglars secured very little booty, as the safe contained but a few dollars in change and the railroad checks. The latter were not touched. Had the safe been made any stronger they would have made a good haul. This is the second time the express company's safe has been cracked at Papillion during the past year.

Double Drowning.

A. J. Cabler and Mrs. Ada Vennum were drowned in the North Fork River at Norfolk while returning from the camp meeting grounds in a rowboat. No one witnessed the accident, but their failure to return led to a search which resulted in finding the overturned boat and later both bodies. Cabler was a banjo-artist and was traveling with his brother, E. J. Cabler of Waco, Texas, giving outdoor concerts and selling electric belts. Mrs. Vennum had been visiting at Norfolk with her husband, who is a railroad employe at Lincoln.

Church Convention at Lincoln.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the Christian Church organization of Nebraska closed here last night. It was presided over by T. P. Haley of Kirksville, Mo. Mrs. Clayton of Omaha, state secretary of the Women's Board of Missions, submitted her report. There are fifty-six auxiliaries, against sixty-four last year. Mrs. M. C. Nixon of Omaha gave the treasurer's report for the year. The total amount paid out was $135.99; total resources, $259.74; balance, $38.64.

Nebraska Short-Notes.

Logan County reports that prairie chickens are unusually numerous this year.

Mrs. John Ploof, a highly respected woman of Tekamah, has lost her reason over spiritualism.

Work on the new opera house at Pierce is progressing rapidly. It will be ready for opening October 1.

The Richardson County supervisors have complied with the new township organization law, and have restricted the county.

Alma people are indignant yet over the action of a woman of that town who spitefully cut off her cat's tail with a common pair of shears.

Old settlers in the vicinity of Madison are predicting early frost, because they recently witnessed a large flock of geese flying over the town.

A farmer near Alexandria turned fifteen cows into a cane patch after the crop had been cut and removed. Thirteen of them died within an hour.

The ladies Petring of Nebraska City saved the ladies aged colored woman who had in some unaccountable manner been thrown under a moving train.

Ravenna people report that a woman in a harvest field south of that town gave birth to a baby without interrupting the work of gathering a large crop.

Isaac Clark of Westerville now grinds wheat into flour right from the shock. He has harnessed the water wheel of his flouring mill to a threshing machine.

The Beatrice canning factory has resumed operations, giving employment to nearly 300 men, women, boys and girls. The factory will run eight weeks.

Mrs. W. T. Draper is the name of a Nebraska woman, 42 years old, who recently gave birth to her eighth child. Thirteen of her children are still living.

Emerson is enjoying a healthy building boom. The German-American Bank will erect a two-story building of pressed brick and the Methodists will erect a new church edifice.

W. H. Stearns of Humboldt, one of the best known citizens of southeastern Nebraska, has just died at the ripe age of 71 years. He has been a resident of Richardson County since 1866.

A firm of peach growers near Wymore will test 15,000 baskets of that fruit this year. When the orchards planted by the same company began to bear, they expected to gather 100,000 baskets annually.

Fred Kling, residing with his parents on the Buffalo flats, thirty miles south of O'Neill, was instantly killed by lightning during a recent storm. A man working beside him was uninjured, not even feeling the shock.

Norfolk people are interested in a renewal of the rumor that the B. & M. is to be extended from Schuyler to their city. They also suspect the Missouri Pacific of having designs upon the proposed York and Norfolk Road.

The Fremont binding twine factory has closed a successful season, having manufactured and sold 1,035,044 pounds of tow, or thirty-nine carloads. The factory expects to start up on the new crop of hemp about Sept. 20.

CHAT OF THE CAPITAL

SECULATION AS TO JACKSON'S SUCCESSOR.

At Present Bissell Seems to Be the Strongest Man—Marshes of the Potomac Are Being Abolished—The Great Congressional Library.

An Early Appointment Likely. Washington correspondence.

HERE is still a great deal of speculation as to whom the President will appoint to fill the place of the late Justice Jackson. Some people have wondered why the appointment has not already been made, but it is pointed out that there is no instance on record where a justice has been appointed during the interim between the adjournment and the reassembling of Congress.

The thing which is thought to weigh most with the President against making an early appointment is that it might subject the justice selected to the humiliation of sitting on the bench for a short time, only to find he was a persona grata to the Senate.

Potomac Marshes.

Little by little the marshes of the Potomac, which have so long rendered Washington unhealthy, are being abolished. When the agitation for the abolition of the marshes began it was maintained that the upper marshes rendered the White House unhealthy, while those on the eastern branch performed a similar offense to the United States arsenal and navy yard.

The plan which Maj. Twining, the engineer following in this part of the river will have the effect of straightening out the navy yard channel, which now winds around like a W, while the great mud marshes will be changed into water or high land.

Congressional Library.

When the great Congressional library is completed members of Congress will be able to get the books they need in a less space of time than by any other system on earth. Much of this will be due to the system of shelving which is to be adopted in the library.

Every kind of time-saving machinery which ingenuity can devise will be put into use to bring books to the tunnel which is to be put into operation between the Capitol and the library.

It is proposed to run a small cable through the tunnel upon which will constantly travel carriers large enough to hold books. These will move very rapidly, and will take up and deliver the books as they are needed.

Secretary of War Asks that They Attend the Services at Chickamauga.

Secretary Lamont has issued an order outlining the official program for the dedicatory services of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park. It is as follows:

"Pursuant to the act of Congress approved Dec. 15, 1894, the national dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park will take place on the 19th and 20th of September proximo.

"The exercises on the 20th will begin at noon in the city of Chattanooga. Orations will be delivered by Gen. William B. Bate, of Tennessee, and Charles H. Grosvenor, of Ohio.

"The act does not make provisions for transportation, quarters, or entertainments, and in view of the large attendance which now seems assured, it is suggested that all who expect to be present make immediate engagements for quarters.

LIVES LOST IN THE STORM.

Deaths Caused by Rain, Wind and Lightning—Crops Destroyed.

A tornado, accompanied by a genuine cloudburst, swept over Bloomington, Ind., and vicinity a city adjoining Miller Park, was filled with a raging torrent, which swept across and filled the valley traversed by the Morris avenue road.

An accident occurred on the St. Clair River, near Marysville, Mich., during a squall and rainstorm in which four persons lost their lives. A picnic was being held at Star Island, opposite Marysville, and Mrs. Michael Dorag, Frau Dorag, her brother-in-law, and three young ladies, Miss Celia Choniski, Minnie Schvenhart and Edith Connors, rowed over early in the day.

Blazing buildings and ruined crops showed a severe storm passed through Rock County, Wisconsin Tuesday night. Lightning caused a dozen fires, while many fields of standing corn were flattened out or washed away by the wind.

The suggestive remarks about bloomers have gone far enough. Cut them short. Before the troops are withdrawn from Jackson's Hole we hope they will drive the correspondents back to their reservations.

A cablegram says that Nat Goodwin is having a glorious time touring England on a wheel. We are glad Nat left his skates at home.

A dispatch from Philadelphia says that Holmes is looking thin and dejected. Well, it's enough to wear out any man to keep track of the detectives' clews in that case.

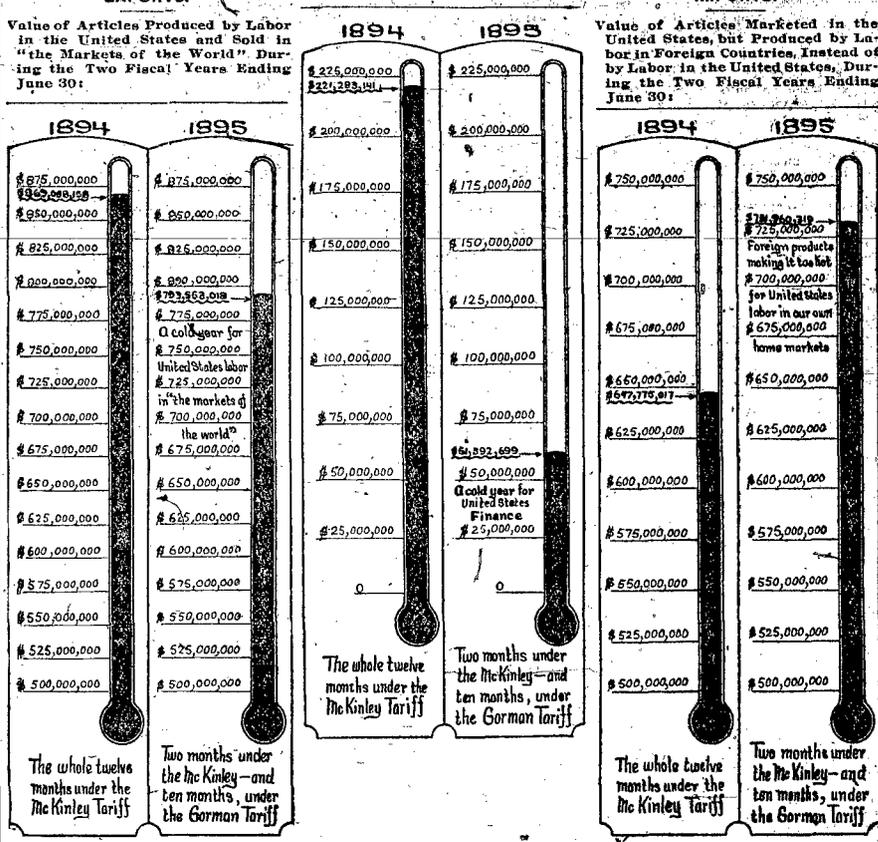

A Florida dispatch says that a picnicking party down near the coast saw a snake which in diameter resembled a beer barrel. Perhaps that's what it was.

BALANCE OF TRADE.

Balance of Trade in Favor of the United States During the Two Fiscal Years Ending June 30:

DISHONESTY OF DEMOCRACY.

Trying to Cheat Members of Their Party in Louisiana.

In no instance has the dishonesty of the present administration been more barefaced than in its dealings with our sugar producers. When the McKinley tariff was passed in 1890 the Louisiana crop of that year was 180,000 tons. Under the protection then offered by Congress the sugar output of that one State almost doubled, increasing to 350,000 tons for the 1894 crop, which was cultivated, grown and harvested on the faith that the laws of Congress would be executed, and that the honesty of the American Government would not be impeached.

The hardship experienced, more particularly by the individual planters and manufacturers of Louisiana, has at length forced upon them the belief that the political party to which they have hitherto belonged is as dishonest as it is incompetent.

More than half a year has elapsed since that money was appropriated. It has not yet been paid, and obstacle after obstacle has been presented by the Democratic officials to prevent its payment.

Thus the hopes of the sugar producers were once more buoyed up. It seemed that the payment of the bounty was inevitable; that there was no escape from it.

But now one official sets himself up to overrule the action of Congress, and those sugar producers who were being helped temporarily by banks and capitalists must, many of them, succumb to the ruin and wreckage that had previously overwhelmed their neighbors and friends.

ana will, and can, never be sufficiently exposed.

The Battle of 1896.

Despite all Democratic efforts to befool the issue, the political battle of 1896 will be in the cause of protection. Complicated questions of currency that cannot be settled by a campaign, but rightly belong to a conference of expert financiers, capable of separating the false from the true, cannot displace the great policy of protection to American industries.

A healthy treasury has become an empty one, and the national debt has been increased by millions of dollars. Not only this financial distress, but every day adds an appalling quota to a monstrous treasury deficiency.

What the Vote Meant.

It was to bring back prosperity that the Republican party marched to the polls last fall and voted all but thirteen Northern Democrats out of the House of Representatives. It was to condemn the paralyzing of American labor that W. L. Wilson, the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, was voted out of Congress in West Virginia, and a solid Republican delegation sent to the House from that State in place of a solid Democratic delegation.

That which creates a demand for cheap goods creates a demand for wool substitutes, and the present tariff law and the depression which grew out of the pernicious and unwise legislation of the Democratic administration have so reduced the earnings of the people as to largely increase the consumption of low-grade goods.

pooling of wool substitutes, but increased importations of goods made from low stock.—Textile Manufacturers' Journal.

Pooling the Farmer.

It was as a sop to the farmers that the duty on burliaps and on grain sacks made from burliaps was repealed, and it was as a sop to the planters that the duty on cotton ties was repealed.

Common sense tells the people that the tariff policy of the dominant administration is at the root of all these commercial and industrial woes. Under protection everything flourishes exceedingly; under moderate free trade everything has depreciated.—Daily Saratogian.

What the Tin Trade Needs.

The trend of affairs in Wales will probably afford a partial relief to the strained condition in the American tin plate trade, but the greatest relief that can be expected will hardly place the industry here on a proper footing.

A Blow at His Wages.

Whatever diminishes the demand for labor of an American workman is essentially a blow at his wages. The important thing for the wage earner is that his labor shall be in active demand.

RUNNING—FOR BOYS.

Every Boy Can Become a Runner if He Tries.

Every American boy should learn to run. In Greece, in the days when men and women took better care of their bodies than they ever have since, every boy, and girl, too, was taught to run, just as the American child is taught to read.

By playing ball every day for hours in the open air; by exercising his arms, back and leg muscles in throwing, batting, running and sliding; by going to bed early and giving up all bad habits in preparation for the games, a boy stores up strength, which he can draw on all his life long—that is why every boy should be an athlete.

Every boy can play football or baseball. He may not be heavy or strong enough; he may never be able to acquire the knack of catching or batting the ball. Every boy can become a runner.—St. Nicholas.

Hunting the Giraffe.

The bush is horribly dense and thorny, and the thorns are of such a nature that the strongest cord breeches can scarcely withstand their assaults. The old giraffe bulls, with hides nearly an inch thick, care for no thorn in the forest, and plunge through the armed thickets as though they were black-currant bushes.

It is wonderful how such monstrous game can evade branches and tack this way and that among the interruptions and obstacles of the forest. It is a tough gallop, indeed, but in ten minutes the hunter has driven his pony right up to the tail of the nearest bull, and from the saddle, has fired his shot.

Dark chestnut of coats (almost black with age upon the back), this old bull, measuring nineteen feet from the hoof to the tip of the false horns, forms a noble prize indeed. As he lies there in the long yellow grass, he looks, surely, the strangest of all survivors of the fauna of the Dark Ages; a priceless and pathetic relic left to the modern world by the ravages of time.

Ice Cream in Oklahoma.

When the recent storm was over in Tina, Okla., the late householders viewing the remains, were greatly surprised at finding upon the supposed site of the grocery, a large and solid mass of excellent ice cream in bulk, melting rapidly away under the sun, but still good at heart.

A Cooling Subject.

The story of Arctic explorations is that earth nor sky nor ocean can have a terror that will be allowed to buffet man's fixed and intense desire to know. He is determined to tear from the heart of this world its every secret, and no wave so tumultuous and no cloud so black and no ice so cold, wide but he will make his way.

TEACHERS EXAMINATION.

I will be in my office at the court house every Monday and Saturday. Examinations third Saturday of every month, and the Friday preceding. CHALOTTE M. WHITE, County Superintendent.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for County Judge, subject to the endorsement of the republican county convention. Very Respectfully, PETER MEARS.

Republican County Convention.

The republican electors of Wayne County, Nebraska, are requested to send delegates from their several voting precincts, to meet in convention at Wayne, Saturday Sept. 23, 1895 at 2:00 p. m. for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the offices of County Sheriff, County Treasurer, County Clerk, County Superintendent of Schools, County Judge, County Coroner, Clerk of the District Court, and one County Commissioner.

And also to elect nine (9) delegates to the State Convention to be held at Lincoln, Nebraska, October 2, 1895.

Also delegates to the Judicial convention, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The several precincts are entitled to representation as follows, the apportionment being based upon the vote cast for Hon. J. A. Piper for Secretary of State, in 1894:

Brunia	Logan	3
Chupio	Leslie	2
Deer Creek	Sherman	3
Garfield	Wilbur	3
Hatcock	Winside	2
Huskins	Wayne 1st ward	4
Hunter	Wayne 2d ward	5
Plum Creek	Wayne 3d ward	5
Strahan		2
Total		39

It is recommended that no proxies be admitted and that the delegates present be authorized to cast the entire vote of the precinct.

Primaries to be held Wednesday evening September 25th, between the hours of seven and nine o'clock, subject to call of precinct committeeman.

FRANK FULLER, Chairman.

R. C. OSBORN Secretary.

The Stanton Picket with its last issue changed its politics, and will hereafter labor in the interests of the good old republican party. Editor Enos gives some good reasons for the change which will be interesting reading for the populists. He says:

"Time, the acts of populist leaders, and a close observation of existing conditions has convinced us that men of the populist party are no less selfish, no more honorable, and in some instances are more bigoted and fanatical than those of the old parties. Their acts, wherein they have been elevated to positions of trust, do not bespeak more honesty or integrity than the acts of others in similar positions. The rank and file of the populist party are no more and no less honest and loyal to the principles to which they cling than are the rank and file of other parties. But what of party conditions? The populist party was organized by men whose integrity and honesty of purpose we will give the benefit of every doubt. The platform adopted at

Omaha July 4th, 1892, may have advocated extreme measures and contained some fanaticisms, but in the main it had a ring that seemed to speak well for the interest of the masses. Voters were drawn to it from both the democratic and republican parties! They were anxious for reform and were led on by men who claimed to be large hearted exponents of the "people's" interests. With some it was an honest call but with others it was a false cry and given through selfish motives. The new movement has not swept the earth as its most sanguine advocates believed that it would do, but it did grow until last year the party had almost two millions of votes. This year they will have less and in 1894 still less, if indeed such an organization continues to exist, which to our mind is extremely doubtful. Last fall the staff of power was wrenched from their hands in every state where they had previously been in power. Kansas and Colorado gave up their populist governors and elected republicans in their stead. The former changed from a populist to a republican legislature, as did Nebraska. About the only thing left to the new party was a few congressmen and a governor for Nebraska who has proven himself half democratic, and that because of the mistake made by the republicans of nominating a man against whom so much could be sustained. The ranks of the party are sadly demoralized by the infection of democrats who are persistent in their determination to march with them but equally as persistent in refusing to become a part of them. In the accomplishing of this demoralization these same democrats are assisted by populists and so-called populist leaders and officials, and success is certainly crowning their efforts. The energies of Senator Allen have long been used to unite the populists and free silver democrats, and not as populists. In this he is being assisted by Congressman Kem and ex-Congressman McKeighan, as well as by almost every populist paper in this end of the state. * * * John M. Devine, the man whom the populists ran for congress in this district last fall and of whom they expected so much, has allied himself with the single issue fellows for the forming of a new party. Jerry Simpson, of Kansas, says a new party must be organized, and his colleague, Senator Pepper, has declared against silver and will take the stump to defeat it. Such are the conditions in a general way.

In county matters the Madison county convention nominated a ticket composed of everything but populists, will also apply to many other counties. In the ninth judicial district Judge Robinson, a democrat, was last week nominated by the populist convention by acclamation.

These are the conditions as they exist, and the only question is whether a man will allow himself to gradually, none the less surely, be forced into an alliance with men who are evidently working to confiscate both the democratic and populist parties and turn them to their own account. Every man has a right to his choice, and as for us we shall return to the republican ranks from whence we came. We have been sorely disappointed in populists whom we have helped elect to office in the four years since we became one of them. We believe that the pledges made to the people have not been kept except in a few minor instances, and where the party has elected one John C. Sprecher who as state senator so nobly championed the interests of the people and upheld the principles for which the platform declares, it has elected ninety-nine who cared only for self and the repleting of their own exchequers. * * * It is now almost two years since the paper was started and in that time we have received from populists $254.89. A part of this was cash, a part corn cobs, potatoes, onions, hay, grain, wood and labor. There were no chips or whetstones. This amount is not enough to pay the actual running expenses of the paper six months. But we do not want to complain. * * * In time, if not now, others will see and think as we do. * * * With malice towards none, and good will towards all, we leave the populist party for what we believe to be a more extensive field of labor and sugar and firmer foundation upon which to build."

In a recent letter to the manufacturers Mr. W. F. Benjamin, editor of the Spectator, Rushford, N. Y., says: "It may be a pleasure to you to know the high esteem in which Chamberlain's medicines are held by the people of your own state, where they must be best known. An aunt of mine who resides at Dexter, Iowa, was about to visit me a few years since, and before leaving home wrote me, asking if they were sold here, stating if they were not she would bring a quantity with her, as she did not like to be without them." The medicines referred to are Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cure of coughs and colds; Chamberlain's Pain Balm, for rheumatism, lame back, pains in the side and chest, and Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy for bowel complaints. These medicines have been in constant use in Iowa for almost a quarter of a century. The people have learned that they are articles of great worth and merit, and unequalled by any other. They are for sale here by Phil H. Kohl and Sedgwick Drug Co.

CHAPTER XI.

OUTSIDE A FISHERMONGER'S WINDOW.

In London, if folks fit together are put, a barge may be dropped, or a quiz may be cut, a horse may be won, and it may, or it may not, all ways are at hand, and all wishes at will.

A few days after this, as Belledun was strolling up Bond street at an early hour—he had been an earlier man now than he had been wont to be—he saw coming toward him Geraldine and Miss Corning on the same side of the pavement.

Who the latter might be he knew not; but he took off his hat, and half bowed, as he thought that something more than a mere bow might be forthcoming from the lady in future respects to him.

Nothing was said. The ladies passed on, and their appearance, or rather Geraldine's, having awakened a fresh train of thought becoming rapidly familiar to his (his) heart, he stood still for a moment, absent gazing into a favorite shop window, without, on this occasion, seeing what it contained.

The shop was a jeweller's, well known to all lovers of anything, and it was never passed by Belledun without a thorough survey of its cool, fresh, shining, tempting contents. His footsteps ceased accordingly of themselves, and he was to all appearances completely engrossed, when, just as he was turning to proceed, Miss Campbell came tripping back and alone.

She had dropped her companion at the Grosvenor Gallery, and was hurrying home in time to make ready for her ride. Belledun could hardly have avoided the meeting had he wished to do so, and, as it was, he looked her full in the face; and the look was such as could not be ignored. For there was something sad, affronted, almost piteous in it; and merciless and wholehearted as the young girl felt, she could not pass on without inquiring. It was the first time she had ever seen any man look at her like that.

On the Sunday Belledun had been cheerful and sociable, and she had no idea that he had not felt as brisk as he had looked, on the Monday she had not seen him at all; except in the distance. The eager moment forward had not indeed been lost upon her; and it had been delightful so coolly to frustrate it; but she had not supposed she had been able to cause a feeling beyond a faint twinge of mortification. From this she was now proving that she had really the capacity to do more!

"I was thinking of you just now," said he, looking down upon her. He could still look down upon her, tall as she had grown.

"Well, yes, I passed a minute ago," replied Geraldine promptly. "I suppose you are studying the fishmonger's window? Every one does, I think, I can never pass it by myself if I have a moment to spare—which I have not today," she was about to add, when he interrupted her.

"They remind me," he said, "of the whiting bank at Inchmarrow."

"Which? The cod? Or the turbot? Or the lobsters?" cried Geraldine, merrily, as she forgot. "We had done of these at Inchmarrow. We have only our own things there; but, of course, you have forgotten."

"No, really. But I must run, or they will think I have forgotten what o'clock it is. I am to ride with my cousin, and I only just took a moment to see my old governess off on a picture hunt."

"What is that your old governess?" said Belledun, with still the same dangerous, only retrospective tone. "I had looked at her with much greater interest had I known."

Whereat Geraldine—all credit to her—stared at him? Stared, as blankly and magnificently as though she had been born and bred in Belgravia. What on earth did he mean? The stars demanded. "What was he thinking of? The man must have gone crazy."

"Good-bye," she said the next moment, as she turned to go, and she had done of these at Inchmarrow. We have only our own things there; but, of course, you have forgotten."

"You would, you hypocrite?" blazed forth the little vixen in sudden fury. "You would? And you think to make me now believe you care almost openly to insinuate that you have kept up your interest in me through all these years? These years during which you have never glanced at me of us a word or thought? You would like to begin it all over again, would you not? You would get me alone, and bring me soft, pleasant tidings, and bring me gifts, and tell me to remember you by them, and draw me on to be so foolish and so hateful, that I cannot think of myself now, without a cringe, within myself. No, sir, not again. Not a second time, Sir Frederick Belledun, I think I am a match for you now. What is more, you shall have to own it. I will not avoid him, oh dear, no. I will speak to him, and dance with him, and be his friend. I'll not stir with him, because dancing would not like it. But if he ever tries again to be sentimental, or to make allusions, and give hints, as he did just now, let him beware! He does not yet know little Jerry's chances."

The next thing was Jerry's first ball, and a famous ball she had of it. Of course she could have had almost any partners she chose, but she had been to the ball, and the fashionable world was on the alert about the pretty heiress. Every one had heard of her name, and about her comings and goings, the genuineness of her charms, and the extent of her rent roll. Old and young alike thought that an introduction, even if it went no further, could do no harm. Lady Raymond, somewhat sourly warned her mother of the necessity of being careful.

"People are so outrageous," she declared. "Really one is ashamed of one's fellows nowadays. Directly a girl with money appears upon the scene, the men swarm after her like a hive of bees. And a fine, unencumbered estate like Inchmarrow is not in the market every day. Pray be particular as to whose acquaintance you permit."

It did just occur to Mrs. Campbell that her daughter might have been some attraction for the bees save in the fine, unencumbered estate, and that she spoke with some acerbity when she described Geraldine as "a girl with money. It made her bride up, and out Charlotte somewhat short in her next coming, that lady Raymond feared that she had not had on the whole done quite so well as she had expected. She had meant to suggest that application as to the character and tenets held by the bees in question should be made by her mother to her son, and that Cecil alone should furnish the password to Geraldine's good graces; but she was obliged to be satisfied with vaguely hinting at what she had intended putting into good round terms.

As for Cecil himself, he was perfectly satisfied with the situation as it stood. In the double character of his grandmother's aide-de-camp, and Geraldine's instructor and companion, he went about with the ladies everywhere; and on the occasion of the ball in question, had the honor of presenting his cousin with her bouquet, of facing her in the dance, and of showing her up the broad, red-carpeted steps into the festive halls.

The scene that here met her eyes was as new as all the rest had been to the little Highlander; but, true to herself, she now walked demurely through the banks of flower and shrub, and between the long lines of silver lamps, looking neither to right nor to left lest Cecil should see aught amiss in her demure. They were rather late, and dancing had begun.

Truth compels us to state that Geraldine was not a good dancer. All the running and climbing in the world will not teach the swing of the waltz without some pains being taken in its accomplishment; and, accordingly, although partners were rife, as we have said, they speedily discovered that the pretty heiress did not care to be long on the floor, and that they might joyfully change the fatiguing exercise for a quiet stroll through the galleries, or, better still, a lounge under the awning of the balcony.

The latter was the most affected by the lady. She had never seen anything of the kind, and had never done anything of the kind before.

To be sitting or standing outside a London ball room, amidst a crowd of ball-goers, in her brilliant ball-dress, and with the sweet music of the waltz, while the music went tinkling on within the vast saloons, and the dancers went circling round, and soft voices and light pattering feet filled the air on every side—it was like fairyland. She wondered if all the girls there were having as good a time as she.

Some of them looked at her rather hard, she thought, and so, for that matter, did she the men. What was it to her?

With all her shrewdness and her inborn share of native self-importance, it did not occur to her—that they were saying. "That is Miss Campbell. That is the great Scotch heiress. And that, thereupon, some fell a-musing, and some to picking her to pieces.

"My dear, you must positively stick a little closer to your grandmother, or to me," her Aunt Charlotte admonished her somewhat sharply at last. "Do as you are told, my child, and there are always coming rackwards and forwards to us, they show they are under our charge by staying with us when they are not dancing."

"But I have been engaged for every dance."

"Where then have you been? You have not been in the ball-room."

"Outside, on the balcony," began Geraldine, but could proceed no further.

"That does not do, my dear; it does not do," frowned her aunt, with a terrific whisper. "I though you would have known better. Ethel and Alicia never go out on the balconies—never. I ought to have told you. Cecil ought to have told you."

"Why, I have just been there with Cecil," said Jerry, opening her eyes.

"Oh, Lady Raymond, you had she had held her tongue," "Oh, Oh—," she said, not knowing what else to say. "Well, of course, my dear, of course, that—ahem!—makes a difference, to be sure, in an entirely completely alters the case. It is only my anxiety that you should be the same as one of my own daughters, you know, Geraldine;—no, no, doubt, Cecil, no, no, doubt, and there is no danger, he took care to whom you were with," concluded tamerly.

"He introduced nearly all of them."

The next moment, however, brought a new introduction. "Geraldine, my love," said her grandmother's voice, "General Dacre wishes to know you. He was a friend of your poor father's," added she, lower, he asked of himself to be presented; and there stood a fine, soldierly-looking man, with crisp, gray hair, a thick, gray moustache, an auline nose and a magnificent star of diamonds on his breast; Jerry had never felt prouder in her life.

A general with a star, at whom, for all her eighteen summers, she would only have ventured to gaze in humble admiration, had he not himself pointed out her acquaintance, she did indeed feel honored, as she took his arm, and moved about here and there, fancying all around must gaze at the pair with wonder and awe.

among the dandies of the day, and in consequence, to be seen in attendance on any pretty girl who was the mode. That she retained the hall of the evening changed to be the daughter of an old friend dead and gone, was a piece of luck not to be stepping away; but having made a stepping-stone of the fact, he had not had her ear many minutes ere he had thrown it aside. He had no notion of being longer looked upon in the light in which he had first presented himself; indeed, soon afterwards he was to be seen, as if disappointed, that the poor child, disgusted and ashamed, begged to be taken back to her chamber, with a peremptoriness which admitted of no denial.

She was very short and reserved with her next partner, an elegant youth, who forthwith began the usual prattle about Ascot Sandown, Hurlingham, and the like, which she was not becoming accustomed to. She would make quick work of him. Jerry thought, and with the tip of her pretty nose in the air, she all at once volunteered a piece of information which she had not hitherto been eager to impart.

"I know nothing of these places," she said. "I am just come up. My home is in the Highlands of Scotland."

Wonder of wonders, the effect was precisely contrary to that expected. The Highlands of Scotland? The Scottish Highlands were his Paradise, his Elysium. His whole face lighted up at the mere mention of their name. He was a torn Highland 'er himself, born and bred within the wilds of Lochaber. Of course he had known that Miss Campbell must be Scotch, probably from Argyllshire—with a smile—but he did not know, he did not think, he had not cared for the name of the Highlands of Scotland? CAN CURE ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER.

A Leading Physician at Last Discovers the Remedy.

The majority of sufferers from asthma and kindred complaints, after trying many doctors and numberless advertised remedies without avail, have come to the conclusion that there is no cure for these most distressing diseases, and no doubt these same persons will be the more in doubt and skeptical when they learn through the columns of the press that Dr. Rudolph Schiffmann, the recognized authority, who has treated more cases of these diseases than any living doctor, has achieved success by perfecting a remedy which not only gives immediate relief in the worst cases, but has positively cured thousands of sufferers, who were considered incurable. These were just as skeptical as some of our readers, who are thus afflicted, now are. His remedy no doubt possesses the merit claimed by the doctor or he would not be willing to authorize this paper to announce that he is not only willing to give free to each person in this city suffering from asthma, hay fever, phthisic or bronchitis, one free liberal trial package of his cure, but he would not be willing to send him their name and address and receive a package, absolutely free of charge, knowing that in making the claim he does for his cure, a strong doubt will arise in the minds of many, and that a personal test, as he offers to all, will be more convincing and prove its merits than the publishing of thousands of testimonials from others who have been permanently cured by the use of his asthma cure. "Dr. Schiffmann's Asthma Cure," as it is called, has been sold by all druggists ever since it was first introduced, although many persons have never heard of it. The doctor has certainly made a most generous and fair offer, and all who are suffering from any of the above complaints should write to him at once, and avail themselves of his offer. Address Dr. R. Schiffmann, 314 Rosabel St., St. Paul, Minn. Write at once, as no free samples can be obtained after Sept. 15.

An Irish Student's Witty Reply.

An Irish student, who some years ago attended the University of Edinburgh called upon one of the most celebrated teachers of the German language, desiring to know on what terms he would give him a few lessons. The fute player informed him that he generally charged two guineas for the first month and one guinea for the second. "Then, by my soul," replied the cunning Hibernian, "I'll come the second month."

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative, effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

SORTIN' THE MAIL

I've been sortin' the mail at Jonesville fer goin' on fifteen year, An' know'er about what's comin' fore they throws their sack off here; Hey seen their same handwritin' on their letters, big an' small, Till I kind uv feel familiar like an' friendly with 'em all.

Lord bless ye, yes, it seems jest like they's speakin' out ter me, A-givin' up the kindest words 'at's not fer me ter see, An' I get ter feelin' restless, it seems so long ter wait. 'Fore their mail train comes er-whistlin' us ther clock is strikin' eight.

Then ther neighbors come a-burryin' in, fer four they may be late; Most-on 'em 'er spectin', but they like ter stan' an' wait, Jest ter see ther ones 'at's lucky get'er letter once'er week, Maybe watch 'em tear it open an' ther holder take a peek. Widder Tomkins stan's er-lookin' till they drop out one by one, Like she says fer my bes' knowlege fer ther past five years an' gone; When she says at last so wistful: "Is ther anythin' from Ned?" Bless if I kin get er word out, so I on'y shake my head.

Yer see her "Ned" was reckless like an' run er-way ter sea, Was jest ther likeliest lad in town an' han' some ez could be. That's five years back, an' every night ther widder without fail Comes er long ez patient like, with every evenin' mail. "The Lord 'll send it some time," was what she often said, But when she asks, night after night, I on'y shake my head. I somehow think like she does 'at her letter's sure ter come, But 's her so long time on ther way my faith is dwindlin' some.

Polly Perkins "jest drops in" when all ther rest hev went, Then blishes ter herself an' me, pertendin' she was sent Ter buy some rashers uv bacon ir er half er dozen eggs, If she ketches er glimpse uv er letter, why then she fairly begs. Her feller's in ther city, an' 's doin' first-rate, they say, So we're a-spectin' purty soon ter hev him name ther day. Jonesville's sort uv dull like, but yer hit it on ther mail. If yer say it's mighty interestin' er sortin' out ther mail. —Chicago Record.

A RUNAWAY MATCH.

MR. SHELDON was the principal merchant in the important manufacturing town of Torment. He piqued himself on his wealth, but he piqued himself more on the fact that he had made it all himself, and he piqued himself still more because he had made it by never allowing anybody to get ahead of him. "That's the secret of success in life, Harry," he said one day to his favorite clerk. "Sharp, is the motto, if you wish to rise. I don't mean you should cheat; that, of course, is both wrong and ungentlemanly." (Mr. Sheldon piqued himself, also, on being what he called "a gentleman," and above all little meannesses.) "But always be wide awake, and never let anybody cheat you. I've noticed, by the by, that you've seemed rather down-hearted lately. If it's because you're your fortune yet to make, don't despair; but follow my advice. An opening will come at some time for something better than a clerkship, and though I shall be sorry to lose you, yet I'll give you up, if it's for your interest."

"Thank you," said Harry, apparently not a bit cheered up by this cool way of being told that he had nothing to expect from Mr. Sheldon; "but it's not exactly that. I suppose I shall get along somehow."

"What is it, my dear boy, then? I really take an interest in you, as you know," and he did, so far as words were concerned. "Perhaps I can give you some advice."

"Well," said Harry, with some hesitation, "I'm in love, and—"

"In love?" exclaimed the rich merchant. "In love, and with only a clerk's salary to marry on? It will never do, never do, Harry. Marriage for one like you is fastening a heavy millstone round your neck; unless, indeed, and he stopped, as if a bright thought had struck him—"unless, indeed, the girl is rich."

"She is rich, or will be, I suppose," answered Harry. "For her father is a wealthy man. But that's just the difficulty. Her father would never let her marry a poor man, and she won't marry without his consent."

"What a miserable tyrant!" said Mr. Sheldon. "Gad! if I was her lover, Harry, I'd run off with her! I'd checkmate the old curmudgeon in that way;" and he chuckled at the imaginary triumph he would achieve. "Pon my soul, I would. I never, as I told you, let anybody take a rise out of me."

party the other night, and when I joked about it with my daughter the next morning she as good as admitted that it was true, saying it would be a very good match for you. Now, I owe old Meadows a grudge. He tried to do me in those railway shares last winter, and I mean to pay him for it somehow. I'll tell you what I'll do. I mustn't ask, mind you, who the girl is. Mum must be the word. I mustn't, of course, be known in the affair; but I'll give you a leave of absence for a month, and a check for fifty pounds to pay for your wedding trip, if you'll make a runaway match. Is it agreed? Well, there's my hand on it. Here's the check. Gad! won't the old rascal howl when he hears how we've done him?"

Harry seemed to hesitate, however, and it was not till Mr. Sheldon, eager to see his old commercial rival put at a disadvantage, had urged him again and again, and promised to stand by him, that he finally consented and took the check which his employer persisted in forcing upon him.

The next morning Mr. Sheldon came down to breakfast in high glee, for a note had reached him just as he was shaving, which ran as follows: "Dear Sir: I have, with much difficulty, persuaded her to elope. It was not, however, till I showed her your check that she would consent to do so. She said that she was sure you would not recommend anything that was wrong; that you would advise her as if you were her own father; and she hopes you will stand by us. We shall be married to-morrow, before Mr. Meadows is up. Very thankfully."

HARRY CONRAD.

The old gentleman brought the note to the table, opened it out before him, adjusted his spectacles and read it over and over again. "I'd give a ten pound note," he said, chuckling, "to see the old fellow's face when he hears how Harry has done him."

It was the custom of Mr. Sheldon to read his newspaper at breakfast, while waiting for his only child and daughter, who, a little spoiled by over-indulgence, was generally late. But this morning Mattie was later than ever.

The banker had read all the foreign, as well as the home news, and even reread Harry's note again, and still she had not made her appearance. "The lazy puss!" he said at last. Then he looked up at the clock. "Half an hour late! Now this is really too bad, John," he cried, addressing the man servant at the sideboard, "send and see why Miss Sheldon doesn't come down. Tell her," with a severe air, "I am tired of waiting."

John came back in about five minutes looking very much flushed. "If you please, sir," he stammered, "Miss Sheldon is not in her room, and the maid says, she says, that the bed looks as if it hadn't been slept in all night."

The rich merchant's jaw fell. "If there was one thing he loved better than money, better even than life itself, it was his motherless child. What had become of his darling? What awful tragedy was about to be revealed to him? Had she gone out for a walk the evening before and stumbled into the river? No; he remembered parting with her at 10 o'clock. Had she been looking from the window of her room and fallen out?"

He started up, with a cry of agony, to go and see, beholding, in imagination, her mangled and lifeless form. But he was prevented by the footman appearing at the door with a telegram. "A telegram?" cried the merchant, unfolding it with trembling hands. "What can it mean? Has she been found dead anywhere?"

"This was the telegram: Dear Father—Harry and I were married at 8 o'clock this morning. I would not consent to an elopement till Harry assured me you had advised it, and had shown me your check as proof. He says you promised to stand by us, and I know you pride yourself on never breaking a promise. We wait for your blessing. MATTIE.

"Well, I never!" ejaculated Mr. Sheldon, when he had recovered breath. "The impudent, disobe!" But here he stopped—stopped and mopped his bald head, which, in his excitement, had broken out into great drops of perspiration. He remembered in time that both the butler and footman would overhear him. He remembered also that he had himself advised Harry to elope, and that if the story got wind he would be the laughing stock of the town, including, hardest out of all, Mr. Meadows. He remembered, too, that he had but one child, and that she was all in all to him. So he accepted the inevitable and telegraphed back:

You may come home, and the sooner the better, so as to keep the fifty pounds for pin money. Tell Harry he's too sharp to remain a clerk, and that to-day I take him into partnership. Only he must remember that partners never tell tales out of school. God bless you. H. SHELDON.

The runaways returned by the next train. The marriage proved, too, an eminently happy one. The story never got out. We only tell it now in confidence.—Hours at Home.

Precise in Prayer.

Barlow asserted (writes Henry A. Beers, in "The Ways of Yale") that he was present once at morning chapel when Tutor Cosgrove, whose duty it was to conduct the exercises, began his prayer as follows: "O Thou who dost cause the planets to revolve in their elliptical orbits—the force of attraction varying inversely as the square of the distance."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

An English Department Store.

Baywater, London, boasts of one of the largest stores in the world. The name of the establishment, however, rests not so much on its size as on its ability to meet every want of civilized society. As an instance of the comprehensiveness of its scope, if a man wishes to start housekeeping he fills in a form stating his tastes, social aspirations, domestic requirements and means, and the time he wishes to take possession, and on the day appointed the house, furnished throughout and provided with servants, will be ready. Should he be matrimonially inclined, a wife, with fitting trousseau, will be on hand. Although it is not surprising that such a Bazaar firm as this should stretch out, as it now announces, to the electrical supply business, a sign for a public thoroughfare in Oldham, Lancashire, strikes one as amusingly incongruous. Over the doorway is emblazoned in gilt and electric light letters: "Overcoats at 15 shillings, ready made; overcoats to measure, 25 shillings; splendid beaver cloth, cheap line; electric lighting; high-class installations only; the new three-Watt lamp uses 25 per cent. less current than ordinary lamps; sole agents for Oldham and district." Then comes the name of the firm, with the superscription, "Tailors, clothiers and electrical engineers."—New York Times.

Strangely Affected by Storms.

Mrs. Alonzo Campbell, the wife of a wealthy farmer and undertaker, is said to be the most reliable weather prophet in Bergen County, New Jersey. Mrs. Campbell, a few years ago, received a slight shock from lightning, and since that time she has been able to distinguish the slightest indications of the approach of a thunderstorm. She is affected in a peculiar manner, becoming irrational and entirely losing her senses just before the storm. Several doctors have prescribed for her, but none of them are able to relieve her in the least. She is generally given an opiate and put in bed until the storm has passed over. At the time of the heavy hailstorm which passed over the section July 13 Mrs. Campbell was entirely free from her affliction and declared there was no electricity in the air. When the heavy electric storm of July 20 struck the neighborhood Mrs. Campbell was badly affected, and, after taking a sleeping potion, was put in bed and remained unconscious for thirty-six hours. Mrs. Campbell enjoys the best of health at all other times in the year.

Waiting for the Hen.

They tell some good stories on southern railroads to illustrate their slowness, and the following, although it is an old story retold, is not bad: A passenger train on an Alabama crossroad line stopped near a small farmhouse. An old lady wearing a sunbonnet and shawl, and with a basket hung over her arm, was seen to accost the conductor. A few words were exchanged and the old lady went back to the chicken yard in the rear of the house. The train stood still for about ten minutes, and as there was no sign of the train starting a northern passenger hanted up the conductor and asked him the reason of the delay.

"We are waiting in the interest of business, sah," said the master of the train. "The lady living in that house, sah, wants to go to town to market a dozen eggs. She has 11 eggs in her basket and is waiting for the hen to lay the 12th. When the hen does her duty we shall steam onward."

Do Not Want Money.

According to Captain Younghusband, lately assistant English resident at Chitral, a mountain district of India, which has just been attracting considerable attention, the principal evil in the mountains outside of his station is the want of desire for money. The mountaineers, secluded from mankind amid their hills, have never used any money, and consequently have no idea of the value of coins. They took the rupees to be ornaments, and were greatly aggrieved when, after carrying loads up the hills, they were paid only in little bits of silver. But the Government wanted work done, and, not being willing to force labor, had to train the people to the use of money, so they brought peddlers up from the plains. Then, when the people found they could get the goods they wanted with their rupees they were willing to take them.

Dangerous Rat Poison.

A favorite method of killing the huge rats that infest the lumber camps in Northern Pennsylvania, is rather hazardous for the lumbermen themselves. They catch a big rattlesnake alive, hold it to the ground by putting a forged stick across its back, and then place in front of it a piece of calf's liver. The rattler is teased, and in its anger bites the meat over and over again. In fact, all of its poison is thus injected into the liver, which is then put where the rats can get it. In a Potter County camp last week eighteen rats were killed in one night by nibbling at snake poisoned meat.

Fathers Must Be Careful There.

Among the Indians of British Guiana usage bids the father go to bed when a child is born and allows the mother to return at once to her household duties. James Rodway's recently published book on that country explains the custom by a superstition which attaches the spirit of the child to the body of the father. The author says: "The father must not hunt, shoot or fell trees for some time, because there is an invisible connection between himself and the babe, whose spirit accompanies him in all his wanderings, and might be shot, chopped or otherwise injured unwittingly. He therefore retires to his hammock, sometimes holding the little one, and receives the congratulations of his friends, as well as the advice of the elder members of the community. If he fits occasion to travel, he must not go very far, as the child and spirit might get tired, and, in passing a creek, must first lay across it a little bridge or bend a leaf into the shape of a canoe for his companion."

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't reason, there's complete recovery and cure. Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Sheriff's Sale.

(Aug 29-5w)

By virtue of an order of sale to me directed from the clerk of the District Court of Wayne county, Nebraska, on the 16th day of August, A. D. 1895, in an action wherein D. C. Muir and J. S. French are plaintiffs and Wesley C. Wood, Elizabeth A. Wood, James Britton, C. W. Gurney and J. D. King were defendants for the foreclosure of a mortgage upon the real estate hereinafter described, upon which the plaintiffs on the 1st day of October 1894 obtained a decree for the sum of $830.50, with interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from the first day of October, 1894, and cost of suit taxed at $10.50, and that said premises be sold to satisfy the same which decree is still in force and unsatisfied. I will sell to satisfy said decree, amounting to the sum of $830.50 and interest at the rate of 8 per cent from the first day of October, 1894, and $10.50 costs and accruing costs, the real estate described in the said order of sale to-wit:
The south half (62) of the southwest quarter (25) of section eleven (11), township twenty seven (27) range two (2) East, Wayne county, Nebraska, to the highest bidder for cash, at the front door of the building used as a court house in Wayne, in said county, that being the building wherein the last term of court was held on Saturday, the 26th day of September A. D. 1895, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., of said day, when and where due attendance will be given by the undersigned.
Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, this 27th day of August, A. D. 1895.

ED. REYNOLDS,
Sheriff of said County.

Road Notice.

To all whom it may concern:
Notice is hereby given that a petition has been filed in the office of the county clerk by Mark Stringer et al, asking that the road running east and west through the center of sections eight (8) and (9), township twenty-six (26) range four (4) east, be 32 feet wide instead of 66 feet wide. All objections thereto, or claims for damages must be filed in the county clerk's office on or before noon of the 28th day of September, 1895, or such road will be narrowed in accordance with the petition now on file.

Attest: S. B. Russell, Clerk.
