

HT OR A FLUNK.

AS THOUGH BRITAIN COULDN'T NOW BACK DOWN.

view of the British-Venezuelan situation—Venezuela Is Ready to Bring the Thing to a Head as Soon as Our Congress Is in Session.

J. Bull and Uncle Sam. Great Britain's radical steps toward Venezuela continue to excite the liveliest interest in official and diplomatic circles.

THOMAS FRANCIS BAYARD.

The American Ambassador in London Upon Whom Devolves the Duty of Defending the Monroe Doctrine.

Uran incident is independent of the boundary question, and that the United States can take no part in the former incident.

have 'got it right' the question of what the Monroe doctrine means is approaching a solution pretty rapidly for a subject in the hands of diplomats.

The trouble between the two Governments is that they don't interpret the doctrine the same way—at least that is how it looks from the alleged information at hand.

The British claim that they favor the doctrine, but they don't define it quite as broadly as it is alleged the Cabinet here does.

Transgressions of the Monroe doctrine are by the doctrine itself declared in unmistakable terms—unfriendly acts toward the Venezuelan coast.

Next is that somebody will have to "think" or fight. That is next. There may be a series of diplomatic pour parlers, but they will be only the preliminary to the "flunk" or fight.

While officials and diplomats in Washington do not go to the extent of saying that war is probable or even possible between this country and Great Britain, they do not see how it can be avoided without the complete humiliation of one of the two countries.

British View of the Matter. There are intimations that the British Government would at first have been inclined to take no active steps, pending the consideration of the note from the United States.

GROVER REACHES ATLANTA.

Presidential Party Pays a Visit to the Exposition City.

For the present, at least, the seat of the Government of the United States may be said to have been transferred to Atlanta, for says a dispatch from that city, the city harbors the President, the Vice President and six members of the Cabinet.

Ten thousand people had assembled in the vicinity of the station, crowding the streets as thickly as the space would allow and overflowing for several blocks in every direction.

At the Aragon the party was made comfortable until 8:30 p. m. At that hour the ladies were escorted to the Grand Opera House, where they were the guests of Mrs. Hoke Smith at a box party to see Rice's "1492."

BIG FIGURES ABOUT MAILS.

Annual Report on Postal Revenue and Expenditures Is Made.

Kerr Craig, Third Assistant Postmaster General, in his annual report for the past fiscal year, shows that postal revenue from all sources was $76,083,128, the expenditures being $96,790,172, an excess over receipts of $20,707,044.

Mr. Craig also submits some statistics relative to the increase of second class mail matter, upon which subject Postmaster General Bissell made a vigorous report last year.

Sometimes the audience came to see a race, sometimes to see gladiators fight each other, until the people, compassionate for the fallen, turned their thumbs up as an appeal that the vanquished be spared, and sometimes the combat was with wild beasts.

For an amphitheatrical audience Paul refers when he says, "We are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses."

Your lion is the passion for strong drink. You may have contended against it twenty years, but it is strong of body and thirsty of tongue.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

HIS FIRST SERMON AS A WASHINGTON PASTOR.

Preached Before a Vast Multitude—Eloquent and Picturesque Discourse—on "All Heaven Looking On"—Paul Standing in the Amphitheater.

New Field of Work.

Those who know that no church in this or foreign countries has been able to hold the audiences that have assembled here, it was announced that Dr. Talmage would preach will not be surprised that vast multitudes attempted in vain to hear his first sermon as pastor in Washington.

In this my opening sermon in the national capital, I give you heartfelt Christian salutation. I thank myself for the privilege of standing in this historic church so long presided over by one of the most remarkable men of the century.

Where Paul stood. Crossing the Alps by the Mont Cenis tunnel, you are in a few hours set down at Verona, Italy, and in a few minutes again examine one of the grandest ruins of the world—the amphitheater.

The gala day has come. From all the world the people are pouring into Verona. Men, women and children, orators and senators, great men and small, thousands upon thousands come, until the first gallery is full, and the second, the third, the fourth, the fifth—all the way up to the twentieth, all the way up to the top, all the way up to the top.

Now, bring on your lions. Who can fear? All the spectators in the angelic gallery are our friends. "He shall give his angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

Though the arena be crowded with temptations we shall, with the angelic help, strike them down in the name of God and leap on their fallen carcasses. Oh, bending throng of bright, angelic faces and swift wings and lightning feet, I hail you to-day from the dust and struggle of the arena!

I look again, and I see the gallery of the prophets and apostles. Who are those mighty ones up yonder? Hosea and Jeremiah and Daniel and Isaiah and Paul and Peter and John and James.

These sit Noah, waiting for all the world to come into the ark, and Moses, waiting till the last Red Sea shall divide, and John and the apostles, waiting for the swearing of the angel that time shall be no longer. Glorious spirits! Ye were howled at, ye were stoned; ye were spit upon. They have been in the fight themselves, and they are all with us. Daniel knows all about lions. Paul fought with beasts at Ephesus.

I look again, and I see the gallery of the martyrs. Who is that? Hugh Lattimer, sure enough! He would not apologize for the truth preached, and so he died, the night before swinging from the bedpost in perfect gloze at the thought of em-pediation. Who are that army of 6,000? They are the Theban legion who died for the faith.

But why specify when every man and woman has a lion to fight? If there be one here who has no besetting sin, let him speak out, for him I lionize. If you have not fought a lion, it is because you have let the lion eat you up.

been reciting the names of Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Sarah, Isaac, Joseph, Gideon and Barak and then says, "Being compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses."

Before I get through, I will show you that you fight in a arena, around which circle, in galleries above each other, all the kindling eyes and all the sympathetic hearts of the ages, and at every victory gained there comes down the thundering applause of a great multitude that no man can number.

In all the anguish of our heart, The Man of Sorrows bore a part. Once, in the ancient amphitheater, a lion with one paw caught the combatant's sword and with his other paw caught his shield.

I look again, and I see the angelic gallery. There they are—the angels that swing the sword at the gate of Eden, the sun that Ezekiel saw upholding the throne of God and from which I look away, for the splendor is unapproachable.

I look again, and I see the gallery of our departed. Many of those in the other galleries we have heard of, but these we knew. They sat on our tables, and we walked to the house of God in company. Have they forgotten us? Those fathers and mothers started us on the road of life? Are they careless as to what becomes of us?

Now, bring on your lions. Who can fear? All the spectators in the angelic gallery are our friends. "He shall give his angels charge over thee to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands. Lest thou dash thy foot against a stone."

Though the arena be crowded with temptations we shall, with the angelic help, strike them down in the name of God and leap on their fallen carcasses. Oh, bending throng of bright, angelic faces and swift wings and lightning feet, I hail you to-day from the dust and struggle of the arena!

I look again, and I see the gallery of the prophets and apostles. Who are those mighty ones up yonder? Hosea and Jeremiah and Daniel and Isaiah and Paul and Peter and John and James.

These sit Noah, waiting for all the world to come into the ark, and Moses, waiting till the last Red Sea shall divide, and John and the apostles, waiting for the swearing of the angel that time shall be no longer. Glorious spirits! Ye were howled at, ye were stoned; ye were spit upon. They have been in the fight themselves, and they are all with us. Daniel knows all about lions. Paul fought with beasts at Ephesus.

I look again, and I see the gallery of the martyrs. Who is that? Hugh Lattimer, sure enough! He would not apologize for the truth preached, and so he died, the night before swinging from the bedpost in perfect gloze at the thought of em-pediation. Who are that army of 6,000? They are the Theban legion who died for the faith.

But why specify when every man and woman has a lion to fight? If there be one here who has no besetting sin, let him speak out, for him I lionize. If you have not fought a lion, it is because you have let the lion eat you up.

and (and they were pulled apart, they had their tongues pulled out by red hot pinckers; they were sewed up in the skins of animals, and then thrown to the dogs; they were daubed with combustibles, and set on fire! If all the martyrs' stakes that have been kindled could be set at proper distances, they would make the world bright all the way around; and now they sit round in the martyrs' gallery. For them the sword of persecution have gone out. The fires are sheathed and the mob lulled. Now they watch us with an all observing hardness. They know all the pain, all the hardship, all the anguish, all the injustice, all the privation. They cannot keep still. They cry, "Courage! The fire will not consume. The floods cannot drown. The lions cannot devour! Courage, down there in the arena!"

What are they all looking at? This night we answer back the salutation they give, and cry, "Hail, sons and daughters of the fire!"

I look again, and I see another gallery, that of eminent Christians. What strikes me strangely is the mixing in companionship of those who on earth could not agree. There I see Martin Luther, and beside him a Roman Catholic who looked beyond the superstitions of his church and is saved. There is Albert Barnes, and around him the presbytery who tried him for heterodoxy. Yonder is Lyman Beecher and the church court that denounced him. Strangers than all these are John Calvin and James Wadsworth. Why would have thought that they would sit so lovingly together? There are George Whitefield and the bishops who would not let him come into their pulpits because they thought him a fanatic. There are the sweet singers Topinady, Montgomery, Charles Wesley, Isaac Watts and Mrs. Sigourney. If heaven and had no music before they went up, they would have started the singing. And there the band of missionaries—David Abner, talking of China redeemed, and John Scudder of India saved, and David Brainerd of the Americas evangelized, and Mrs. Adoniram Judson, whose prayers for Burma took heaven by violence. All these Christians are looking into the arena. Our struggle is nothing to theirs. Do we, in Christ's cause, suffer from the cold? They walked Greenland's icy mountains. Do we suffer from the heat? They sweated in the tropics. Do we get fatigued? They fainted, with none to care for them but cannibals. Are we persecuted? They were mathematized. And as they look from their gallery and see us suffer in the presence of the lions I seem to hear Isaac Watts addressing us in his old hymn, only a little changed:

Must you be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease,
While others fought the battle here,
Or sailed through bloody seas?
Topinady shouts in his old hymn:
Your harps, ye trembling saints,
Down from the willows take,
Lend to the praise of love divine,
Bid every string awake.

While Charles Wesley, the Methodist, breaks forth in his favorite words, a little varied:
A charge to keep you have,
A God to glorify;
A never dying soul to save,
And fit it for the sky!

I look again, and I see the gallery of our departed. Many of those in the other galleries we have heard of, but these we knew. They sat on our tables, and we walked to the house of God in company. Have they forgotten us? Those fathers and mothers started us on the road of life? Are they careless as to what becomes of us? And those children, do they look on with stolid indifference as to whether we win or lose this battle for eternity? Nay, I see that child running his hand over your brow and saying, "Father, do not fret; mother, do not worry." They remember the agony of the last farewell. Though years in heaven, they know our faces, speak our names. They are ready to fight for heaven. No, I see them rise up and leap over and wave before us their recognition and encouragement. That gallery is not full. They are keeping places for us. After we have slain the lion they expect the king to call us, saying, "Come up higher." Between the hot struggles in the arena I wipe the sweat from my brow and stand on tiptoe, reaching up my right hand to clasp theirs in rapturous handshaking, while their voices come ringing down from the gallery, crying, "Be thou faithful unto death, and thou shall have a crown."

But here I pause, overwhelmed with the majesty and joy of the scene. Gallery of the king! Gallery of angels! Gallery of prophets and apostles! Gallery of martyrs! Gallery of saints! Gallery of friends and kindred! Oh, majestic circles of light and love! Through! Through! Through! How shall we stand the gaze of the universe? Myriads of eyes beaming on us! A rings of hearts beating in sympathy for us! How shall we ever dare to sin again? How shall we ever become discouraged again? How shall we ever feel lonely again? With God for us, and angels for us, and prophets and apostles for us, and the great souls of the ages for us, and our united kindred for us, shall we give up the fight and die? No, Son of God, who didst die to save us, No, ye angels, whose wings are spread forth to shield us, No, ye prophets and apostles, whose warnings startle us! No, ye loved ones, whose arms are outstretched to receive us. No, we will never surrender!

Subo I must fight if I would reign—
Be faithful to my Lord,
And bear the cross, endure the pain,
Supported by thy word.

When that illustrious day shall rise,
And all thine armies shine
In robes of victory through the skies
The glory shall be thine.
My hearers, shall we die in the arena or rise to join our friends in the gallery? Through Christ we may come off more than conquerors. A soldier dying in the hospital rose up in bed the last moment and cried: "Here! Here! His attendant put him back on his pillow and asked him why he shrieked. He said, 'I heard the roll call of heaven, and I was only answering to my name.' I wonder whether, after this battle of life is over, our names will be called in the muster roll. He was pardoned and glorified, and with the joy of heaven breaking upon you, souls we shall cry: "Heral! Heral!"

THE WITCH WIFE'S CHARMS.

As I came down the budding lane,
The birds a-singing free,
There came along an old witch wife,
And shrilly call'd to me.

"Oh, buy a charm, young maid!" she said,
"Oh, buy a charm of me,
To chain thy sweetheart to thy side
Though he is on the sea."

"I will not do it, dame," I said,
"If false at heart he be,
I'd rather have a charm to keep
His face afar from me!"

"Oh, buy a charm, young maid!" she said,
"Oh, buy a charm of me,
To break the curse of foes of thine
Who might work ill to thee."

"I will not do it, dame," I said,
"If foul of heart they be,
A deeper curse is laid on them
Than aught they lay on me."

"Oh, buy a charm, young maid!" she said,
"To bind the strong heart of thy friend
In love and loyalty."

"I will not do it, dame!" I laughed,
"The charm could never be
Could make or break the chain that binds
My friend's strong heart to me!"

THE CHURCH OF ST. SOPHIA.

It stands as the Masterpiece of Byzantine Architecture and Construction.

Materials were brought from far and near, Egypt and Greece uniting with Asia Minor and the islands, each contiguous to the capital, in supplying their quota of marble for the columns and walls of the church of St. Sophia. For nearly six years the work went on with unabated energy. Many difficulties were overcome and many experiments were tried and found successful, and at length, on the 26th of December, 1877, the church was dedicated amid the acclamations of the populace, and the emperor exclaimed in the fullness of his pride: "Glory be to God, who hath thought me worthy to accomplish so great a work. I have vanquished thee, O Solomon!"

The emperor's joy in his church was, however, destined to receive a rude shock some 20 years later, when the apex and part of the dome were thrown down by an earthquake, but the same energy which was shown in the building of the church again asserted itself. The damage was repaired—the dome being heightened 20 feet to give it additional security—and the church was reconsecrated on the 24th of December, 1893, 5½ years after the disaster.

The church of St. Sophia has never been surpassed in the unity and completeness of its design and in the daring nature of its construction. In this building the arch and dome assert themselves and dominate everything, and we have a lightness, a spaciousness and a grandeur that had never been reached in the finest of the basilicas and has never been surpassed since. During all the centuries which have elapsed since its erection, it has maintained its supremacy as the masterpiece of Byzantine architecture and construction, and it fixed generally the type on which most of the later churches in the east were based, but it has never been surpassed by any of them.—Scottish Review.

Hints to Book Canvassers.

A good story is told of one of the canvassers of a leading publishing firm in London. He found his way into the parlor of a branch bank, and saw the manager, who, as soon as he learned his business, ordered him out. Very quietly he said:

"I meet with so many gentlemen in the course of the week that I can afford to meet a snob occasionally," and took his departure.

Next day he called at the bank again, and wished to open an account. He was again shown in to the manager, and gave very satisfactory reasons for opening the account, and deposited £270. The manager could not do less than apologize for his rudeness on the day preceding, and ordered a copy of the work, an expensive one, and allowed access to the clerks, several of whom did the same. Two days afterward every farthing was drawn out.—London Tit-Bits.

Sitting Bull as a General.

"Do you know," said an army officer, "that if Sitting Bull, the old Sioux chief, had been a white man, he would have been called a great general? In fact, he was a great natural soldier—a sort of red Napoleon."

"Sitting Bull was not a real chief; that is, he wasn't a war chief. He was a medicine man, what the Indians call a medicine chief. But he had great natural capacity as a commander. His surprise and cutting off of Custer would have been called a great achievement if a white general had in some war performed the feat. It is significant of Indian character that Sitting Bull would never tell the story of the fight at all; wouldn't say a word about it, although I suppose the question was put to him a thousand times by all sorts of people."—Washington Post.

CHAPTER I.

Help! Help! Call louder, Nousie. There is no one to hear. But all the same, the speaker, as he seized a handsome milkmaid girl round the waist, clapped his hand over her lips and pressed it there in spite of her struggles.

"Yes, yes; so long, George—so long." "But—why you are overdone with the heat and carrying that child. You foolish little thing to come out in this roasting sun."

"You make me think you are mocking. I ain't not beautiful." "No?" he said tenderly. "Then tell me our darling is not."

PUFFED up, not by vanity of woman, but by a long reach after the aesthetic, the prevailing big sleeves on women's gowns have found new and strenuous endorsement.

A QUARTET OF NEW YORK LADY BICYCLISTS.

The calculations have been reduced to paper by a leader in the Chicago dry-goods trade. He has included in his estimate nothing but silk goods.

One of Our Women. Mrs. Zerelda Wallace, whose fame as an apostle of temperance reform and woman suffrage has made her name a household word, almost as familiar all over the country as that of her stepson, (general) Lew Wallace, the author of Ben Hur, is quietly spending the evening of her life on Cataract farm, a country seat near Greencastle, Ind., so thickly overspread with beautiful hills and valleys, tangled woods and waterfalls, that it seems in the heart of a mountain range.

Warm poppy reds are gaining early prestige. Fichus with deep shoulder frills will be worn quite a little. Plaid braids, in two colors or as many shades as wanted, are found on all sides.

French Tomato Soup. Collect all the bones in the larder and put them on to boil with a pound of lean meat, all kinds of vegetables and as much water as will make six plates of broth.

Appte Marmalade. Wash your apples, quarter them and cut the cores out. Put on to cook with water to cover them. Cook till soft, and pour into a cheese cloth bag.

Japanese Varnish. A Japanese furniture polish, said to be exceptionally valuable, is prepared by mixing well together one pint of linseed oil, one pint of strong cold tea, the whites of two eggs and two ounces of spirits of salt.

Grandma's Candlesticks. She who haunts antique shops is wiser than she who spends her money in modern bric-a-brac.

Ripe Grape Catsup. Five pounds of grapes, one pound of sugar, one pint of vinegar, one tablespoon of pepper, one-half tablespoon of salt, one tablespoon each of allspice, cloves, cinnamon. Cover the grapes with water, cook ten minutes, then rub through a sieve so as to remove skin and seeds.

Selecting China. In selecting china for painting only that which is absolutely free from imperfections should be bought, as sometimes a flaw in its smoothness as slight as a grain of sand in freestone itself to gain room to expand will result in an explosion, breaking not only that but a number of pieces.

Cream Cake. Three eggs, one cup sugar, 1 1/2 cups flour, 2 tablespoons water, teaspoon baking powder. Bake in two layers. For the batter, boil nearly one pint of milk, beat together two tablespoons flour, add one egg, one cup of sugar and 1/2 cup butter. Then stir into the milk and boil until thick.

Death of a Queer Man. A Bainbridge, N. Y., dispatch says: Thomas Foote, 22 years old, died at his home, seven miles from Hancock, under peculiar circumstances. He was affected by what he ate to such an extent that when he indulged in beef he would become restless, wander out and bellow like an ox, going down on his hands and knees to eat grass.

WITH THE DRESSMAKER. Warm poppy reds are gaining early prestige. Fichus with deep shoulder frills will be worn quite a little.

MRS. ZERELDA WALLACE.

Among the many anecdotes relating to the celebrated Doctor Chalmers, an amusing one was once told by a gentleman on his return from his first visit to Edinburgh.

Cure for Headache. As a remedy for all forms of headache, Electric Bitters has proved the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habit, sick headache, yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only Fifty cents at R. Who Should be Our Next County Superintendent?

Certainly, party lines should not be drawn in the election of our school officers. It seems to us that in this enlightened age, we should get out of this old rut, and elect the person who is best qualified in every respect, regardless of party affiliations.

We want a woman because she will give her whole attention to the work of the schools, while the man is apt to have some more paying business on hand.
 We want the woman who is well fitted from an educational point of view, who has the business ability and tact to advise and direct, who has had a wide experience in teaching country schools, and who will work for the best interests of the children who attend our schools.
 Now while Wayne county has many intelligent and pretty women, we believe there is none other who has the business tact, social standing, who is so peculiarly adapted to the work, who will sacrifice more in labor and money spent, to make our schools the best for all concerned, or who will receive so hearty and unanimous a welcome from both parents and teachers as Miss C. M. White.

Voters of Wayne county, give this matter your careful attention and our present worker the support that will make her our servant for the next two years. She is deserving for the very excellent work she has done in the past four years, which is shown by the decided improvement in our schools, and should be re-elected. A teacher,
 Mrs. M. Wolf.

While the Herald is supporting the republican ticket we wish to be fair with the opponents, therefore we print the above by request.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillonette, druggist, Beaver, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with the grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it. Get a free trial at R. W. Wilkins & Co's. Drug Store."
