Nelson Grimsley has received an extended communication from D. T.
Thayer, of Blackstone, Mass., in which he expresses a desire to build a beet sugar factory in Wayne and sets forth plans for obtaining resources to carry out the scheme. He asks for information as to the probable cost of buildings and has written for figures on the machinery. Mr. Thayer suggests an amount of $50,000 in bonds and to apply whatever amount is necessary for the construction of the plant and putting in machinery; he to furnish a like sum and the city to take a lien on the plant for security of interest and bonds. As it will require only about $40,000 to put in a plant such as is needed here, bonds to the amount of $20,000 would be all necessary. It would be a paying institution from the start, in addition to the fact that from $36,000 to $40,000 or more would be left in the city yearly,
and if it be possible to vote such bonds wherein the interest and bonds are to be paid by the plant in 10 years, it seems to us that the suggestions are worthy of the earnest attention of the citizens of Wayne. An opportunity is offered. Can we afford to pass it by?

I have used "Sedgwick's Croup Lin-always gives relief immediately. I much prefer it to internal remedies as it is easier to use and a great deal more pleasant for the patient and is not followed by the disagreeable effects of sugar syrups and other remedies used internally.

A wild and piercing scream reached them at that moment, echoed by Cherubine, who raised her head and let it fall heavily again, striking the table before her as if her bones were of wood.

Paul staggered as the wall rose again from outside, recovered himself and followed Bart who had dashed through the door, and following his footsteps he staggered into the white draped room which Nousie had prepared with such loving care for the advent of her child.

Paul clutched at the door as he grasped the scene in the shaded room. Nousie on her knees frantically clasping the white form of her child extended on the bed, her face buried in her white bosom, while all around over the pillow and coverlet the poor girl's long black hair lay tossed.

She had evidently been seized by some terribly agonizing pain in whose clutch she had writhed and tossed, for her bared arms lay apart, and her head and shoulders were over the side of the bed, where Nousie knelt. Bart was on the other side rapidly making his examination, at the end of which he went round and whispered to the stricken mother, who rose obediently, and like one in a dream helped him to compose the cramped and distorted limbs, before, with a despairing gesture, he signed to Paul to approach.

Paul reeled like a drunken man, and stared wildly at his friend, then at the beautiful face upon the pillow, from which the distortion of pain had passed, leaving it already calm and peaceful as if she slept.

"Bart—no, no, not that—not that!" whispered Paul at last, hoarsely. "God help you, old fellow!" whispered Bart with a deprecating gesture, "I can do nothing. It is too late."

"What?" cried Paul, fiercely. "And is this year boasted knowledge? Helpless, miserable pretender! Aube, Aube, my darling!—gone, gone. God help me, what shall I do?"

He flung himself on his knees by the bedside, and passionately kissed the soft, cold lips again and again, heedless of everything, as by all the terms of endorsement he could command, he called upon her to come back to him, for he could not live alone, till his passionately uttered words grew faint and husky, and he turned round fiercely, for a hand was laid upon his head.

He laughed bitterly, then, as he gazed up in Nousie's wild face.

"Well," he cried, "you have killed her. Are you happy now? You fetched her away from all who loved her, and for this?"

"But I loved her, too," groaned Nousie, "my darling, whom I could have died to save. Have some pity on me," she wailed, as she held up her clasped hands to her accuser. "Yes, I loved her, too."

Paul uttered a low hoarse cry and clasped the suffering woman in his arms. "Yes," he said. "I am mad. I do not blame you—her mother—for you loved her, too."

At that moment in regular dirge-like mourning cadence came the wailing chorus of the blacks, sending a thrill through Bart, as he bent over Aube once more, touching her hands which he felt it a sacrifice to lay upon the fast chilling form, and ending by taking those of the mother and his friend, leading them to either side of the couch, and joining them so that they lay theirs upon the half-closed eyes once so full of sadness and loving tenderness, to close them in the darkness until the coming light.

And once more the low moaning wall rose from without for the death of Nousie's child.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"I dare not tell him," muttered Bart a few hours after, as he walked up and down the room, Aube's little nest; for Paul had sternly refused to leave the chamber, and was now seated with his head bowed down and buried in his hands, just as he had been led there tenaciously by Nousie, for only to her would he yield when it was whispered to him that he must go.

"I dare not tell him," said Bart again to himself, "but if ever poor girl was poisoned that was her death. I must get him away from here, for the tragedy is at an end."

"Poor lad!" he mused. "The knot has been cut indeed. But in what a way! Whose cursed hand gave her that? May it rot from the owner's limbs."

He started, for there was a ghastly face looking up at him—a countenance that in its distortion he hardly knew.

"Paul, old fellow," he said, gently, "had we better go?"

"Bart!" came in a hoarse, fierce whisper, "they must have poisoned her."

"What? Oh, who would have had the heart to do that?"

"Poisoned her," continued Paul, "and you know it, but you will not tell me. Who could have done this where all seemed to love her? Oh, it is too hard to bear."

"You may be wrong in this," said Bart, quietly, feeling startled, though at the way in which his friend had seemed to read his thoughts.

"No, I am not wrong. She was poisoned. I feel it. This cursed land. Some one must have been envious and hated her."

"That we shall never know. But, Paul, old fellow, we can do no good here. Come away now. Let me go back."

"Paul shook his head sadly. "No," he said. "You forget. We are in this strange land where one lives to day and is forgotten to-morrow. Not yet. Bart, I am going to see them lay my darling, my sweet, innocent darling, in her bridal bed. I'm not jealous, old fellow—not jealous of him. Death's own To-night—to-night!"

"Ah, yes," said Bart, sadly. "I had almost forgotten—here we are. It will be to-night—to-night." His mother whispered him to it and brought me from the room. We

Paul looked at him hopelessly, and then his eyes fell upon the writhing woman. "Let me come, Madame Dulau," said Bart, quickly, after carefully placing the pistol in his own pocket. "Have you ever seen her like this before?"

"No, no," said Nousie, this new trouble rousing her from her despondent state. "What shall I get you—water—brandy?" "Wait a moment, let's see. Hysterical fit, I suppose," said Bart, trying with all a doctor's calmness to examine the woman's eyes. "I don't know. Here, Paul, man," he continued, as the poor creature writhed and shrieked horribly, "hold that hand for me. Kneel down. That's right. Bestir yourself, or we shall have some fresh catastrophe."

"It is not hysteria. She has been drinking herself mad to drown her sorrow, I suppose. What would it be, madam—arrest?"

"Oh, no, no," cried Nousie. "She would not touch anything of the kind."

"In an ordinary way—no, madam; but now—pan! you can smell her breath. Hold her firmly, Paul, man, or she will clutch at me."

"Cherubine, speak to me," cried Nousie.

The answer was a wild shriek of agony, and the poor wretch heaved herself up, so that it required all the strength of the two men during the terrible paroxysm to hold her down.

"It is spirit!" muttered Bart to Paul. "A woman not used to it. Ah!" he cried, suddenly, "what's this she has got clenched in her hand?"

The dragged open the fingers which were contracted round a small glass phial, started up, held it to the light, and smelt it.

"Poison," he said quickly, "without a doubt. Here, Madame Dulau, help me."

He gave her his instructions; the simplest of remedies was given, and the agonized cries and struggles at last grew less terrible, and by degrees ceased, the woman lying utterly prostrate, apparently too weak even to breathe.

She was sensible, though, and her eyes opened from time to time, to gaze imploredly at her mistress, who knelt by her holding her hand.

"Will she live?" said Nousie, at last.

Bart was silent, for he was in doubt, the pulse was so feeble and intermittent. "Don't let her die, too," cried Nousie, pitifully. "She nursed my darling when a babe. Cherubine, my old friend, don't leave me now."

The walls of the blacks rang in his ears, and the sun sank, the darkness was coming on fast as Bart whispered to him:

"Come."

In a dreamy way still, as if he would wake from it all soon, he was about to follow, but a cold hand touched his hand, and a piteous voice said to him in almost a whisper:

"Don't leave me yet, dear. I am so lonely now."

Bart drew back and gave up his idea of taking Paul back to their place as he saw him gravely bend over Nousie, draw her arm through his, and, followed by a group of weeping people, lead her to her home, the young doctor coming almost last.

CHAPTER XXV.

Paul Lowther looked so wild and strained that his friend trembled for him.

There was something in the bereaved lover's eyes which told of a despair beyond words to portray; and longing for this terrible day to end, Bart endeavored to keep near his old companion, trying to find something to say to him from time to time, but owing to himself after any such effort that he had far better have left the sufferer to his silent grief.

It was strange how the great sorrow had brought Nousie and Paul together. The cabaret had soon grown deserted, for the blacks had stolen one by one away, till all was dark and silent without, while within hardly a word was spoken, and Paul sat holding Nousie's hand in his, their figures dimly visible to Bart, as they sat close by the open window, at which only a few hours before, Aube had stood tending the flowers the people around loved to bring for her acceptance.

From time to time a groan or a sigh would come from the outer room, where Cherubine was alone with her grief, unheeded by all there, till, growing startled by the woman's evident suffering, Bart softly rose and crept out into the large, dark, deserted saloon, to where the black servant half lay, apparently mad with grief and agony.

He said a few words to her and tried to induce her to converse with him, but it was in vain, and feeling that nothing but time would avail, he turned away with a sigh, and was going back to Aube's little room when he caught sight of a misty looking figure passing out of the door into the veranda.

"Paul!" he said to himself, "going without me."

His suspicions were aroused, and he followed him quickly to stand in the veranda trying to penetrate the darkness, and make out whether Paul had gone down the road toward the town.

He was not kept in suspense many moments for, all at once, a piercing shriek rang out as from behind him, and simultaneously there was a flash of light and the report of a pistol.

Bart rushed to the spot not half-a-dozen yards away and just opposite one of the end windows of the long common room.

"I was afraid of that," muttered Bart, as he rushed on, hearing the sharp click of the pistol as it was being cocked, and springing upon the indistinctly seen figure before him, he wrenched the pistol away.

"You madman!" he cried, furiously. "Is this my friend—the brother of that poor girl who is waiting in all love and trust for his return?"

"For my return!" said Paul, quietly; "why should I return? Why have you taken that away?"

"Because you are not fit to be trusted with it. Herel be a man and come and see what is wrong;" for a series of agonizing screams came from within the house, each more piercing than that which had made Paul Lowther start as he drew the trigger to end his weary life.

Weak as a child now in his despair, he yielded to the firm grip upon his arm, and suffered himself to be led quickly into the long room, where a light now gleamed, and as they entered it lit up the pallid, started face of Nousie, who was hurry ing toward the end.

There was no need to ask what was wrong, for there, just as she had fallen from her seat, lay Cherubine, writhing and groveling on the floor, still uttering shrieks which rang through the place and sent a shudder through Paul.

"Good heavens!" panted Bart. "What have you done? Your bullet must have struck the poor creature."

"No, no," cried Paul, excitedly, and he clung now to his companion; "she shrieked as I fired, and my shot was aimed the other way."

Nousie had gone down on her knees speaking wildly to her old servant and friend, and she looked up appealingly at the two young men for help.

"Isn't there trouble enough, man," whispered Bart, as the shrieks continued; "are you no better than this poor hysterical savage?"

Western Lakes Growing Smaller. Reports from the lake regions of Minnesota and the Dakotas announce that the lakes in that section are not only greatly diminished in quantity, but some are disappearing entirely. This state of affairs is largely attributable to the deficiency in rainfall for the past ten years.

CHEERING THOUGHTS

REV. DR. TALMAGE CONFIDENT THAT AMERICA IS FOR GOD.

He Believes That This Continent Was Referred To in Revelation and Presents a Glowing Picture of Our Future Possibilities and Prospects.

Sermon at the Capital.

This discourse presents a sublime theme and of national importance, and coming from the capital of the nation must have a stirring effect throughout the land. Dr. Talmage chose for his text Revelation xii. 11, "And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth, and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon."

In America mentioned in the Bible?

Learned and consecrated men who have studied the inspired books of Daniel and Revelation more than I have and understand them better agree in saying that the leopard mentioned in the Bible meant Greece, and the bear meant Medo-Persia, and the lion meant Babylon, and the beast of the text coming up out of the earth with two horns like a lamb and the voice of a dragon loath enough to make all nations hear the roar of its indignation. Is it reasonable to suppose that God would leave out from the prophecies of his book this whole western hemisphere? No, no. "I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth, and he had two horns like a lamb, and he spake as a dragon."

Wicked and Lazy.

Then there is what in America we call socialism, in France communism, and in Russia nihilism—the three names for one and the same thing—and having but two doctrines in its creed: First, there is no God; second, there shall be no rights of property. One of their chief journals printed this sentiment, "Dynamite can be made out of the dead bodies of capitalists as well as out of bogs." One of the leaders of communism left inscribed on his prison wall, where he had been justly incarcerated, these words: "When once you are dead, there is an end of everything. Therefore, ye scoundrels, grab whatever you can, only don't let yourselves be grabbed. Amen!" There are in this country hundreds of thousands of these lazy scoundrels. Honest men deplore it when they cannot get work, but those of whom I speak will not do work when they can get it. I tried to employ one who asked me for money. I said, "Down in my cellar I have some wood to saw, and I will pay you for it." For a little while I heard the saw going, and then I heard it no more. I went down stairs and found the wood, but the workman had disappeared, taking for company both buck and saw.

America for God.

I start with the cheering thought that the most popular book on earth to-day is the Bible, the most popular institution on earth to-day is the church, and the most popular name on earth to-day is Jesus. Right from this audience hundreds of men and women would, if need be, march out and die for him.

Am I too confident in saying "America for God"? If the Lord will help me, I will show the strength and extent of the long line of fortresses to be taken and give you my reasons for saying it can be done and will be done. Let us decide in this battle for God whether we are at Bull Run or at Gettysburg. There is a Fourth of Julyish way of bragging about this country, and the most tired and plucked bird that ever flew through the heavens is that America eagle, so much so that Mr. Gladstone said to me facetiously at Hawarden, "I hear that the fish in your American lakes are so large that when one of them is taken out the entire lake is perceptibly lowered," and at a dinner given in Paris an American offered for a sentiment, "Here is to the United States—bounded on the north by the aurora borealis, on the south by the procession of the equinoxes, on the east by primeval chaos and on the west by the day of judgment." The effect of such grandiloquence is to discredit the real facts, which are so tremendous they need no garnishing. The worst thing to do in any campaign, military or religious, is to underestimate an enemy, and I will have no part in such attempt at belittlement.

This land to be taken for God, according to Hassell, the statistician, has 14,219,067 square miles, a width and a length that none but the Omniscient can appreciate.

Four Europe's put together, and capable of holding and feeding, as it will hold and feed, according to Atkinson, the statistician, if the world continues in existence and does not run afoul of some other world or get consumed by the fires already burning in the cellars of the planet—capable, I say, of holding and feeding more than 1,000,000,000 inhabitants. For you must remember it must be held for God as well as taken for God, and the last 500,000,000 inhabitants must not be allowed to swamp the religion of the first 500,000,000. Not much use in taking the fortress if we cannot hold it. It must be held until the archangel's trumpet bids living and dead arise from this founders planet.

Freight by Trolley Cars.

A move has been made in Newark, N. J., which is significant in view of the present changing condition of general freight service. A bread bakery which runs out fifty delivery wagons daily to points within fourteen miles of the city finds that it can do much of its freight delivery in a simpler and better and cheaper way. Eighteen of its wagons are sent to Jersey City in the morning, loaded with hot bread, which is delivered to the locked boxes in front of the grocery stores before the stores are open.

To save a drive of from fourteen to twenty miles a day for each of these wagons, the firm has made a contract with the local electric car company to run trolley freight cars from the bakery to a new delivery depot in Jersey City. The cars will be run at an hour of the night when they will not interfere in any way with passenger traffic. If the venture is successful the firm proposes to rub cars to more distant cities. On the other hand, the traction company is now seeking to make similar contracts with the brewers of the city, who now deliver large quantities of beer in Hudson County and New York by wagons.

It is but natural that the strongest pressure should be brought against this innovation, but under its franchise the company has the right to run freight cars. Should the night trolley freight service become general it will readily be seen what an important modification of city and suburban delivery traffic will follow.

Western Lakes Growing Smaller. Reports from the lake regions of Minnesota and the Dakotas announce that the lakes in that section are not only greatly diminished in quantity, but some are disappearing entirely. This state of affairs is largely attributable to the deficiency in rainfall for the past ten years.

Diamonds have been found in fifteen or twenty different localities in California.

money is spent in this country for rum and how many drunkards die! But who will give us the statistics of how many hearts are crushed under the heel of this worst demon of the centuries? How many homes blasted? How many children turned out on the world, accursed with stigma of a debauched ancestry? Until the worm of the distillery becomes the worm that never dies, and the smoke of the heated wine vats becomes the smoke of the torment that ascends up for ever and ever! Alcoholism, swearing—not with hand uplifted toward Heaven, for from that direction it can get no help, but with right hand stretched down toward the perdition from which it came up—swearing that it will not cease as long as there are any homesteads to despoil, any insignificant men and women to destroy, any immortal souls to damn, any more nations to balk any more civilizations to extinguish.

Wicked and Lazy.

Then there is what in America we call socialism, in France communism, and in Russia nihilism—the three names for one and the same thing—and having but two doctrines in its creed: First, there is no God; second, there shall be no rights of property.

One of their chief journals printed this sentiment, "Dynamite can be made out of the dead bodies of capitalists as well as out of bogs." One of the leaders of communism left inscribed on his prison wall, where he had been justly incarcerated, these words: "When once you are dead, there is an end of everything. Therefore, ye scoundrels, grab whatever you can, only don't let yourselves be grabbed. Amen!" There are in this country hundreds of thousands of these lazy scoundrels. Honest men deplore it when they cannot get work, but those of whom I speak will not do work when they can get it. I tried to employ one who asked me for money. I said, "Down in my cellar I have some wood to saw, and I will pay you for it."

For a little while I heard the saw going, and then I heard it no more. I went down stairs and found the wood, but the workman had disappeared, taking for company both buck and saw.

Right from this audience hundreds of men and women would, if need be, march out and die for him.

Another thing quoted pessimistically is the vast and overtopping fortunes in this country, and they say it means concentrated wealth, and luxuriosness, and display and moral ruin. It is my observation that it is people who have but limited resources who make the most splurge, and I ask you, Who are endowing colleges and theological seminaries? Did you ever hear of Peter Cooper, and James Lenox, and sainted William E. Dodge, and the Lawrences, Amos and Abbott, while I refrain from mentioning living benefactors who, quite as generous and Christian, are in this assembly at this moment planning what they can do in these days, and in their last will and testament in this campaign that proposes taking America for God? The widow's mite, honored of the Lord, is to have its part in this continental capture; but we must have more than that, and more right away. Many of the men that expect to get the blessing for bestowing the widow's mite will not get the blessing. In the first place, they are not widows, and in the next place, they have no "right."

A Grand Assimilation.

The time is coming—hasten it, Lord—and I think you and I will see it, when as Joseph, the wealthy Arimathea, gave for the dead Christ a costly mansions, to the poor ship the foreign vagabondism—we are getting people the vast majority of whom come to make an honest living, among them some of the bravest and the best. If you should turn back from this land to Europe the foreign ministers of the land, the foreign attorneys, and the foreign merchants, and the foreign philanthropists, what a robbery of our puppets, our court rooms, our storehouses and our benevolent institutions, and what a putting back of every monetary, merciful, moral and religious interest of the land! This comingling here of all nationalities, that can see clear through body, mind and soul, can take of them an adequate picture. But the foreign population of America is less than one-eleventh of all our population, and why all this fuss about foreign immigration? Eighty-nine Americans to eleven foreigners! If eighty-nine of us New Jerseymen, or eighty-nine of us Ohioans, or eighty-nine of us Georgians, or eighty-nine of us Yankees, are equal to eleven foreigners, then we are a starving, illiterate group of humankind that ought to be wiped out of existence.

Spring Medicine

Your blood in Spring is almost certain to be full of impurities—the accumulation of the winter months. Bad ventilation of sleeping rooms, impure air in dwellings, factories and shops, over-eating, heavy, improper foods, failure of the kidneys and liver properly to do extra work thus thrust upon them, are the prime causes of this condition. It is of the utmost importance that you

Now, as when warmer weather comes and the tonic effect of cold, bracing air is gone, your weak, thin, impure blood will not furnish necessary strength. That tired feeling, loss of appetite, will open the way for serious disease, ruined health, or breaking out of blemishes and impurities. RIPANS TABULES

A gentleman of a methodical habit, who had adopted the practice of retaining a copy of every prescription issued by his family physician, became interested as time went on to note that the same ingredients were pretty certain to be prescribed at some point of the treatment of every case. For a poor appetite, or a sore throat, for restlessness which disturbed the baby's sleep, and for troubles which beset the aged grandparents, the favorite remedy was always turning up, although slightly modified from time to time and used often in conjunction with others. One day our friend happened to observe that the formula of a certain advertised remedy was identical with the latest prescription he had received from his own physician, and in some surprise he stated the case to him. The family doctor, after listening to what he had to say, replied: "The case is about this way: Whenever there is a disturbance of the functions of the body, no matter of what nature, it is pretty certain to be accompanied by a derangement of the digestive organs. When they are all right the patient gets well. That particular formula that you have observed me to write more and more frequently is the result of an age of careful experiment, and is pretty generally agreed upon now by all educated physicians who keep up with the times. The discovery of the past few years of the means of reducing every drug to a powder and compressing the powders into little lozenges or tablets, or tabules if you prefer, which will not break or spoil, or lose their good qualities from age, if protected from air and light, is the explanation of how it has come about that this prescription is now for sale as an advertised remedy.

It is the medicine that nine people out of ten need every time they need any, and I have no doubt that making it so easy to obtain, so carefully prepared, and without so cheap, will tend to actually prolong the average of human life during the present generation."

Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists, or by mail at the price (50 cents a box) sent to The Ripans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spring Street, New York. Sample 10 cents.

CHESS PLAYERS.

Not Over Fifty Skilled Professionals in the Whole World.

Professional chess players, considering the laborious nature of their work, the character of mind, and the long preparatory study required, are probably as ill paid as any kind of intellectual workers. The professional chess player who earns by his play more than a decent, modest living is a highly successful man. An expert may be hired to run a chess automaton and play with all comers at a salary less than some typewriters earn. There are in all the world probably less than half a hundred highly skilled professional chess players.

A few professional chess players are men of means, but for the most part the passion for the game leads the professional player to put aside material considerations in order to follow his bent. Some of the best-known players dress shabbily and live plainly. The ablest and most successful usually eke out their incomes made directly from the game by writing on chess, discussing problems, and the like. Books on chess succeed one another rapidly, but none has a large sale. They are costly to produce, and the stereotype plates are of small value. The aggregate of considerable prizes offered in chess contests throughout the world amounts in any one year to only a few thousand dollars, and a stake of a thousand is a large one. Amateurs, who far outnumber the professionals, provide the purses and meet the expenses of the match games. St. Petersburg is an important chess center, and there the traveling expenses of the professionals are made up by the local clubs.

Professional chess players are rarely men of liberal education, and usually men of one idea. Chess has been the diversion of great and broad-minded men, but it is commonly the business of men devoted to one idea. The professional chess player seems tireless in the pursuit of the game. One whose duty it was to play six hours a day with all comers at a place of amusement was accustomed to follow his day's work with two hours of laborious study of special chess problems.

Only a Stone Wall Stops Them.

By far the most remarkable pilgrimage ever observed among the lower animals was that witnessed in Norway, not once, but several times within this century.

A party of fishermen upon one occasion were encamped on the borders of a small ford, and were mending their nets when they observed a number of lemmings—a little animal allied to the beavers—coming out of the wood that skirted the shore. At first, seeing the men, they ran back; then others appeared, and more, until hundreds were upon the beach.

As the day passed the numbers continually increased until before night the camp of the men was alive with the little creatures, that now began to take to the water. Thousands came pouring from the woods in the ensuing days, followed by hawks and other predatory animals that feed upon them. They passed on into the water, swimming over it, scores being drowned during the passage, the rest reaching the opposite shore and moving on into the woods, impelled by the strange instinct.

It is said that nothing deters these pilgrims but a stone wall, which they cannot scale. Piles of grain and fodder they have been known to tunnel through, their instinct being to move ahead in a given line.

The fishes make remarkable pilgrimages from one shore to another, and in such vast bodies as to defy description.

THE HOUSEKEEPER

Is a semi-monthly domestic journal, of 20 pages, whose aim is to be helpful in the broadest sense of the word. Everything it contains is written especially for it, and can be found in no other journal. It is divided into nine departments, that appear in every issue, and as many others, which appear in alternate issues, all treating of subjects in which the housewife is most interested.

BAREFOOT BABIES.

I know a spot, a sunny nook,
Where barefoot babies come to play,
Where nature's best unfolded book
Reveals its teachings all the day.
There where the tiger lily lifts
Its haughty face to greet the smile
Of sky blue heaven's snowy drifts
Come naught of worldly care nor guile.
There, close beside a rippling stream
The barefoot babies laugh and prance
And toss their yellow locks that gleam
Like tasseled corn in breeze's dance.
Dear barefoot babies, reap the sweet
Of youth and life and dance your best,
Twill come dreamlike from years' retreat.

THEY WERE BEARS.

How a Hunter Bagged a Ton of Them In Thirty Seconds.

"I believe I got as big a bag of bears in as short a time as any man ever did," said Doc Studley, the ex-sheriff and bear hunter of Mendocino.

"A bag of bears?" exclaimed the young man who had just been telling about a bag of snipe he had once killed.
"What were they—little fellows? What is it you call them—kittens? No cubs;
that's it."

"No, sir. They were not kittens or cubs. They were bears," declared Doc.
"I think I piled up about a ton of bear meat in about 30 seconds. I was out hunting in the southern part of Trinity county about 17 or 18 years ago. We had killed about 40 deer and 3 panthers
and a bear or two in a couple of weeks,
and were pretty near ready to break
camp when I thought I would go out and kill another deer to take home fresh. It was late in the afternoon, and I was creeping along in the brush, when suddenly I came out into a little opening.
I stopped to see if there was any sign of deer, and while I stood looking about a big black bear climbed up on the trunk of a big fir tree that had been uprooted. He wasn't 80 yards away, and I plugged him in the ear. He rolled off the log and down the hill toward me, but before I had time to see if he was dead another bear climbed up on that same log to see what the row was about.
I shot it in the head, and it rolled down the same way the other had gone.
Up climbed a big 2-year-old to take its place, and after I had shot it two big yearlings, one after the other, climbed up on the log to be shot.

"Every one rolled down the hill toward me and was kicking and thrashing around not ten steps away. By that time I came to the conclusion that I was in a bear country, and I didn't lose any time climbing a sapling. When I got well braced up among the limbs, I sat
and pumped lead into that pile of bears.
Every time one kicked I gave him a bullet, till they all stopped kicking. I had five bears in one pile, and I think they must have weighed over a ton altogether."—San Francisco Post.

Learning a Foreign Language.

Some interesting statistics might be collected on the effect upon linguistic power and accent of the possession of a musical ear. It would seem that a person with a good ear for music would be more rapid in the acquirement of a foreign tongue, and having acquired it would possess a more perfect pronunciation of the sounds than would a person not having the same ready musical gift.

Similarly such a person would be quick to attain the dialect of the country in which he might be living and to adapt his speech to the brogue or provincialism with which he found his ears surrounded.

The greater rapidity with which Germans, Poles and Russians learn the English language is surely not to be accounted for merely by stating that their own more nearly resembles our language than does that of the French or Italian.
A Greek, for instance, learns English in about half the time it takes an Italian to acquire French, and a Russian will speak French, English and German in the same period that a Frenchman will acquire a mere smattering of the two latter.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Southern Aurora.

On Feb. 1, in latitude 68 degrees, longitude 172 degrees 31 minutes, we ran into open water again, having this time spent only six days in the ice pack.
On the 17th the aurora appeared, stronger than I ever saw it in the north. It rose from the southwest, stretching in a broad stream up toward the zenith
and down again toward the eastern horizon.
The phenomenon this time had quite a different appearance from what we saw on Oct. 20. It now presented long shining curtains rising and falling in wonderful shapes and shades, sometimes seeming close down to our mastheads. It evidently exerted considerable influence upon the magnetic needle of our compass.—C. E. Borchgrevink in Century.

One Drawback.

There's no such thing in this life as complete satisfaction. If a man has no money, he is miserable, and if he has lost it, it is next to impossible to invest it remuneratively. There is no business which is sure to pay, not even the business of stealing, but that's because there are so many persons in it, and there would be many more in it if the penitentiary did not prevent it from being open to everybody, and so be utterly ruined.—Boston Transcript.

influence of amiable feelings acquires a beauty of the highest order from the frequency with which such feelings stamp their character upon it.—Mrs. S. C. Hale.

The Security Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Fremont, Nebraska, have added to the regular policy which they are issuing on the whole life plan a feature by which the insured may pay for 10, 15, 20 or 25 years a specified amount in addition to the regular mortality assessment, which payments, if continued through the period for which the policy was written, convert it into a paid up policy, payable to the beneficiary named, together with the amount of his payment to the guaranteed fund and the amount of the additional payments, all of which are payable at the death of the insured. The policy also provides that after three full years, payments have been made, should circumstances arise making it impossible for the insured to continue his payments he will be carried for the full amount of his original insurance for such time as his payment to the trust fund, together with compound interest, will pay his regular assessment on a whole life policy. Or he may receive a paid up policy for such an amount as the earnings on his payments to the trust fund at 4% per cent will pay for this amount of reduced insurance, to be paid to his beneficiary at his death.

They are writing this policy and giving the insured the privilege of saying any time during the term whether he wishes the full amount paid to his beneficiary at his death or whether he wishes a stated amount paid at his death, the balance to be paid in annual installments. Three per cent interest on the deferred payment would be added to each year's payment. This last named feature is one that is desirable in many cases, as it provides a certain amount of money being paid to his beneficiary for a given number of years, which in many cases avoids improper investments at a loss to the estate.

The law under which the Security Mutual Life Insurance Co. is organized provides that all money held in trust for the maturing or fulfillment of policy contracts shall be invested as prescribed by law and the securities held by the auditor of the state of Nebraska in trust for the policy holders. This makes it impossible for any misappropriation of funds, or the use of any fund for any purpose except that for which the securities were deposited.

The Security Mutual Life Insurance Co.

should have the hearty support and assistance of every insurable man who is interested in Nebraska or Nebraska enterprises, and is the only assessment company issuing a paid up policy and granting the above features. Insure in this company.

If the people are for McKinley their voice should be law, but too often the majority is handicapped.

If any one should tell you that Protection and Reciprocity is not the issue
he is entitled to the "horse laugh" even if it is cheap.

Governor Holcomb is now mentioned as a possible populist presidential candidate. The announcement will imbue Senator Allen with that tired feeling.

The populist and democratic parties do not seem to take much interest in politics. In fact they don't seem to have any candidates for state offices.
Why is this?

Major Brostoch of Omaha, has declared himself as a candidate for Governor, subject to the consideration of the republican state convention. The candidates are getting thicker than bees.

It is said that A. E. Barnes of Ponca, is a candidate for Attorney General.
If this is true the HERALD heartily proclaims, all hail to Alf! May he capture the coveted prize. Of his ability to fill the position there is no question.

The Inter Ocean says: "Politicians may be very politic and diplomatic, but if "aid to Cuba" could be submitted to a vote of the American people it would be no use to count the negative ballot.
The "no's" could simply be recorded as "scattering" and hardly enough for that."

The press association of Northeast
Nebraska should enroll Hon. Geo. W.
Wiltse, of Randolph, as an honorary member. George roasts the boys unmercifully, in fact to a turn, but it's the kind of a roast they like, such only as good nature and a big heart could offer.

The Nebraska Maximum rate cases appeared from the decision of the federal court at Omaha, were taken up in the United States Supreme court at Washington last week. The cases attracted a great deal of interest and the outcome is of considerable importance to the state of Nebraska. The freight rates are exorbitant in comparison with rates in other states and it's to be hoped that the appeal to the State Board of Transportation will not have been in vain. Nebraska was represented by Hon. John L. Webster as counsel and Attorney General Churchill as member of the Board.

The congressional central committee of the third district met at Norfolk, Tuesday evening, and selected Norfolk

as the place for holding the District convention to elect two delegates and two alternates to the national convention, and fixed Wednesday, April 22nd, at 8:00 P. M. as the time. Columbus was selected as the place and August 27th at 7:00 P. M. as the time for holding the convention to place in nomination a candidate for Congress. The representation is based on the vote of Congressman Meiklejohn at the last Congressional election, and makes a total of 203 delegates; Wayne county is entitled to ten delegates.

NEBRASKA REPUBLICANS.

If the present excitement is continued until the conventions, over who shall have the presidential delegates from Nebraska, the state is likely to witness a very serious split in the Republican party. There is already too much heat over the matter, and unless cool heads get control of the state and district conventions the result is likely to be disastrous. Fractionalism within the party would be the most serious blow which could befall it, and every effort should be made to avoid the condition which has practically wiped the power of Democracy out of existence in this state. It is a palpable fact that nine-tenths of the Republicans believe that McKinley is the most logical candidate for president, and many had so expressed themselves long before the name of Gen. Manderson was mentioned in this connection. When he was first spoken of it was believed by many that his candidacy was for the object of drawing the state from McKinley—
some believe this yet—but Gen. Manderson says that he is a bona fide aspirant for the position and believes that with the help of his own state he may secure the nomination. The average Nebraskan is loyal to his home, and could he become convinced that Manderson had any prospect whatever he would gladly lay down his personal preference and do all he could to push Manderson to the front as a matter of state pride. The News sees but one way out of this complicated condition of affairs, and that is, to send an instructed delegation—instructed for Manderson provided he develops a showing of strength which gives any encouragement of nomination, which he believes very doubtful, and instructed to go to McKinley either on the first or subsequent ballots, whenever convinced that Manderson has no show.
If Manderson's candidacy is genuine and not in the interest of Reed, Morton or some one else, this arrangement ought to be satisfactory to him, but in no case should he be allowed the privilege of throwing the state to any other than McKinley, should he develop no pronounced following.—Norfolk News.

That Free-Trade Blessing.

(Sir Edward Sullivan in Manchester, England.)

Cheapness, cheapness, cheapness and competition! These have been the parrot-cries of Free-Traders; and excellent cries they are for the million and a half lucky individuals with their fixed incomes. But how about the thirty-five millions without fixed incomes?
How does it affect them? What does competition and cheapness do in their case? It means this—it means that when by home competition a starving needle-woman is found to stitch shirts at 4d. a dozen, straightway a starving foreign woman is found to stitch shirts at 3d. per dozen, and her work is brought over here to drive English women below starvation point. This is competition! This is cheapness and does it benefit the community? The first condition of vaunted cheapness, this panacea of the Cobden Club, is cheap labor; do not let the operatives forget this when they have dinned in to their ears the virtues of mere cheapness. Is the low price of wheat that is secured by stimulating foreign production a national blessing? Is it a national blessing when the English and Scotch laborers are deprived of their employment in favor of the ill-paid labor of Russians, Poles, Wallachians or Coolies? Are shirts stitched by starving women at 4d. a dozen a blessing to the community, or the cheapness of bricks made by over-taxed children at nominal wages, or the cheapness of nails and cables made by over-worked women and children, a blessing? Is the waste of human life, the misery and suffering and demoralization and immorality inseparable from cheap labor a benefit to the country? Is the cheapness that is caused by cheap foreign labor a blessing? No, it is not, and in spite of all the writings and preachings of the Cobden Club, I maintain that the more we examine the meaning of mere cheapness, the more distinctly we find that it means a "low standard of life."

The Ohio State convention yesterday instructed the Buckeye state delegates to McKinley amid the greatest enthusiasm ever witnessed in a state convention. The Kansas state convention yesterday also instructed the delegates for McKinley as follows: "We recognize with pride and comfort the spirit of growing Americanism, and in Wm.
McKinley the incarnation of that spirit,
the defender of the American home,
the protector of American industries and labor; the embodiment of the republicanism of Washington, the father; Lincoln, the savior; and Grant, the defender of the republic. Representing the people of Kansas, we voice a public demand in hereby instructing the delegates to the republican national convention chosen by us, and we appeal to the delegates from the respective congressional districts to vote and use all just means for his nomination to the presidency of the United States."

MUST LIVE IN EXILE

CASE OF LEPROSY DISCOVERED
IN NEW YORK CITY.

More Anti-American Riots in Spain
—The Report that Minister Taylor
Had Left Madrid Proved to Be Untrue—Other Items.

Must Live in Exile.

NEW YORK: Joseph Cummings, 54 year old, applied February 25 for admission to the Presbyterian hospital. The physicians, upon examination, found a number of reddish brown patches on his body and a thickening of the skin of the face, particularly on the lower part of the forehead, which gave him a sullen and morose expression, which the doctors call "lemonine." As the symptoms indicated leprosy, the hospital authorities notified the health department, and another examination was made. This left no room for doubt as to the real character of the disease, and Cummings was sent to New York Motor, on North Brother Island, where he will spend the remainder of his life. Cummings' case is almost unprecedented, because he is an American, and because, to all appearances he must have contracted the disease in this city.

In a Turbulent Mood.

MADRID: The turbulent element in the city of Bilbao which created such disturbances Sunday continued them on Monday and made violent demonstrations in spite of the presence of the gendarmes. The disorders were renewed near the American consulate and resulted in a serious collision between the mob and the gendarmes, in which twenty of the former are known to have been injured. Nine of the gendarmes were also injured.

The inhabitants of Bilbao are still in a turbulent mood and the police authorities find it necessary to take every precaution to guard against injury being done to the United States consulate. Elsewhere in Spain the situation bears a more tranquil aspect and the question of the action of the United States on Cuba is regarded in a calmer mood.

A report found currency that the United States minister, Mr. Taylor had left Madrid, but this proved to be wholly without foundation.

A Murderous Maniac.

BROCKVILLE, Ont.: Eight men were shot at this place by a man named Lapointe. The first person he met was an old man named Moore, whom he deliberately shot dead. Chief of Police Rose, who was just coming from his office, ran in the direction of the report. As soon as Lapointe saw him he took steady aim and fired, the shot entering his breast and head. A man named Dickson standing near received a charge in the neck from the other barrel.

When Policeman Tinsley appeared on the scene Lapointe was shooting right and left at random. Tinsley got behind a door in a grocery store and was just taking aim when Lapointe fired, the charge taking effect in Tinsley's neck.

The others wounded, but not seriously, are: Robert Boyle, Fred Stagg, George Stagg, Robert McCormick and Thomas Deveraux.

Interstate Electric Line Sure.

WABASH, Ind.: The interstate electric line from Celina, Ohio, to Rochester, Ind., will be built this year. The line will be constructed between the points named by way of Geneva, Warren, Lagro and this city, a distance of 105 miles. Information was received from Charles Everett, who has charge of the enterprise for an eastern syndicate, stating that all the money needed is provided for and that he had secured the right of way from Celina west for twenty miles. He soon begins procuring right of way through this country. Twenty public meetings have been held in as many towns along the route and elections will be ordered at all points within sixty days to vote aid. The road will be a freight and passenger route and have first-class equipment.

Durrant May Die of Old Age.

SAN FRANCISCO: On April 20 next a year will have passed since the murder of Blanche Lamont, yet Theodore Durrant, who was convicted of her murder last November, is yet in the county jail awaiting the final action of the supreme court in the case.

Immediately after Durrant's conviction an appeal was taken, but the case has not been presented to the supreme court owing to the requests for additional time made by both sides. The last postponement took place a week ago, when the prosecution was granted twenty days in which to file a bill of exceptions. At the end of this time it is believed the case will be presented to the supreme court, but a decision is not expected for several months.

Race War Is Imminent.

PADUCAH, Ky.: Mayor Eiser has sent to the city marshal at Fulton, Ky., in response to a private telegram, 200 Winchesters. There are great fears of an uprising in Fulton. The trouble was caused by a policeman attempting to arrest a negro and having to club him before he could do it. The feeling in Fulton between the whites and blacks is very bitter. The authorities are trying to keep everything quiet and refuse to answer telegrams. It was rumored here that a serious encounter had already taken place, but this could not be confirmed.

Death Warrant Read to Holmes.

PHILADELPHIA: The death warrant was read to H. H. Holmes, the murderer of B. F. Pietzel, by Sheriff Clement. Holmes appeared perfectly cool during the reading and appeared less concerned than did the sheriff. Holmes expressed himself as willing to die.

K. of P. Supreme Lodge Meeting.
LIMA, Ohio: Supreme Chancellor Richie, of the K. of P., has issued a proclamation that the supreme lodge will meet in Cleveland August 25, and saying that if satisfactory arrangements can be made in encampment of the military branch may be held there.

Regard It as a Trick.

CHICAGO: Postoffice officials regard the alleged attempt on P. D. Armour's life, as a case of a bomb sent through the mails as a trick. Whether intended for a practical joke or otherwise has not yet been determined.

Bradstreet's Review.

NEW YORK: Bradstreet's Review says: General trade began the week relatively less favorably with the change from the high winds and extreme cold, which checked trading, to milder weather, increasing purchases and brighter prospects for business have appeared. Unfavorable conditions previously reported are continued, but they are less numerous than those pointing to improvement. Conspicuous among them is continued depression in the woolen and cotton goods manufacturing industries. Trade with manufacturers in those lines is very dull, some cotton mills running half time. Makers of woolen goods report spring trade over, fall trade not yet begun and much men's wear woolen machinery idle. Exports of wheat flour included as wheat from both coasts of the United States this week amounted to 2,906,000 bushels, against 2,906,000 bushels last week, $2,272,000 in the first week of March, 1896. Exports of Indian corn are 2,775,000 bushels this week, against 3,118,000 bushels last week, $498,000 in the corresponding week of 1895.

Bold Chicago Holdup.

CHICAGO: One of the most remarkable holdups that has ever occurred in Chicago took place Saturday night in Ashland Boulevard, the most aristocratic street on the west side. The victim was James W. Sheridan, a wealthy brewer, and he was relieved of a gold watch, about $500 in cash, and a pin valued at $200 more. The robbery was committed by three men, one of whom held a revolver against Sheridan's abdomen, while another pressed a gun against his side, and the third man did the collecting. While the robbery was going on several of Sheridan's friends passed by and said: "Good evening, Mr. Sheridan." The victim, persuaded by the revolvers which were held against his body, returned the salutation in a cheerful tone, and his friends thinking that he was talking to the three men, went on their way and left Sheridan to be robbed.

Burn the Flag of Spain.

LEADVILLE, Colo.: There was the most intense excitement in this city when the news was received of the burning of an American flag by the Spaniards.

The news came when the ice palace festivities of Irish day were in full blast, and the report spread like wild fire. The Irish-Americans and hundreds of others quickly assembled in front of the Herald-Democrat office. There was some difficulty in securing a flag of Spain, but finally one was discovered in the stock of a dry goods merchant, and the crowd quickly found kindling wood and the emblem of the haughty Castilian was laid on it. With a mighty cheer the wood was ignited, and while the crowd sang "America" and "Columbia," the flag of Spain was consumed to ashes.

Administration's Position.

WASHINGTON: The President to a representative of the press said regarding the purposed official statement recently given out: "I see it is assumed in certain quarters that a deliverance published a few days ago on the Cuban question may be taken as the definite attitude of the administration on that subject. I wish you would say that I never saw the statement, nor heard of it until I read it in the newspapers, and even then I neglected to read all of it, supposing that it represented nothing more than a newspaper guess. I do not know how it originated nor by whom it was constructed or inspired. But I do know I am in no manner responsible for it, nor in any way related to it."

John L. Days Numbered.

CINCINNATI: Harry M. Weldon, an authority on matters pugilistic, has the following to say regarding John L. Sullivan: "It is the opinion of several people very close to John L. Sullivan that his days on this terrestrial sphere are numbered unless he alters his present manner of living. No less a person than 'Parson' Davies, the manager of John L. and Paddy Ryan, is authority for the statement that Sullivan has developed the first stages of dropsy. When his attention was called to these signs the big fighter simply said: 'I guess it will land me. I can't help it. A short life and a merry one is my motto.'

Five Badly Burned.

NEW YORK: Five workmen, employed by the Standard Oil Company at Bayonne, N. J., were severely burned by the overflow of boiling tar from one of the big tanks at the company's yards. The men were at work at stumps, from which the tar was being pumped into a tank. The tar boiled over the sides of the tank in a torrent and flooded the floor. It was found impossible to close the pipes and the men made a dash to escape. The boiling fluid poured over them, however, before they could get away. No one was fatally burned, but all received serious burns.

Postal Union Mail.

WASHINGTON: The Government of the United States and all other countries comprised in the universal postal union will begin weighing all incoming and outgoing mails May 1. The weighing will continue twenty-eight days. This is done every three years by all governments, and on its result depends the amount of compensation given by every country for the carriage of its mails in the territory of others.

Hard on Russell Sage.

NEW YORK: The appellate division of the supreme court has affirmed the judgment of $40,000 obtained against Russell Sage by Wm. R. Lidlow for injuries sustained by the latter in the bomb explosion in Sage's office several years ago. The court also allowed Lidlow $2,000 for counsel fees and costs.

Stole Both Stock and Fire.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.: Thomas Huay of this city was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail for stealing a hot stove. He took the stove out of a neighbor's house, emptied the fire out of it, sold it for old iron, and bought whisky.

Holmes Day to Die.

HARRISBURG, Pa.: The date for the execution of H. H. Holmes, the convicted murderer of Benj. F. Peitzel, and alleged murderer of twenty-one others, has been fixed by Gov. Hastings. He names Thursday, May 7, as the date.

Feared They Perished.

ASPEN, Colo.: T. J. Tierney, agent of the Colorado Telephone Company, and an assistant left Thursday to inspect the line over the mountains to Leadville. They have not been heard from since, and it is supposed they perished.

Gen. Woodward Dead.

BROOKLYN: Gen. John B. Woodward died at his home in this city.

Head End Collision.

ST. LOUIS: As a result of the disengagement of orders by J. A. Aiken, motorman, a terrible head end collision occurred between two cars of the newly completed Kirkwood Electric Railroad, which connects the suburban town of Kirkwood with this city. Both cars were badly smashed, four men were probably fatally injured, twenty-nine badly hurt and between twenty and thirty others less seriously injured. An east bound car, with J. S. Peasey as conductor, and J. A. Aiken as motorman, stopped at a siding about a mile from Kirkwood. The west bound car not appearing, the car men decided to make the town in a dying trip. They had almost reached the end of their journey when the other car came around a curve and both crashed together. The east bound car was running at least thirty-five miles an hour, while the other had attained a speed of fifteen miles an hour. The passengers were thrown in a pile by the impact, which was terrible. J. A. Aiken, motorman of the east bound car, and Sam Smith, motorman of the west bound car, were taken out of the wreck with many bones broken and injured internally. It is thought they will die.

Believe She Is Lost.

SAN FRANCISCO: The Pacific Mail Steamship Company's big liner, the City of Rio de Janeiro, which left this port for the orient heavily laden on the 6th of last month, should have arrived at Yokohama on the 23rd of February, yet not a word has been heard of her. At least the agents of the company declare they have received no information regarding the steamer's welfare or whereabouts since she glided out of the bay on the afternoon of February 6. The company has been wired incessantly by the local agents, but reply comes regularly and monotonously that nothing has reached them by cable concerning the vessel.

The Rio left here with 156 people on board, all told. Of these, four were cabin passengers, and there were in the steerage ten Europeans, ten Japanese and twenty-two Chinese. The crew consisted of thirty white people and seventy-nine Chinese.

He Feels at Home in Every City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.: H. C. Wilmoth, who has various aliases, and who was recently arrested in Terra Haute Ind., and carried to Kansas City, Kan., charged with bigamy, pleaded guilty in the circuit court. The trial developed the remarkable fact that Wilmoth has, in the last nine years, married nine different women, all of whom are said to be living, and that in each case he deserted them after having secured their money. The various wives live in Chicago, Duluth, St. Paul, Cincinnati and other cities.

Big Rice Firm Fails.

NEW YORK: Dan Talmage's Sons, the largest house in the rice trade, made an assignment to J. Gill, with preferences amounting to $104,459. The creditors of the concern number about seventy.

The firm are merchants and millers of rice, and they were always classed as a house of excellent standing and credit. The firm consisted of John F. and Dan Talmage. It had branches in Savannah, Charleston and New Orleans, and had conducted business from April, 1890.

Five Times for Murder.

OWENTON, Ky.: The fifth trial of Dr. J. L. Massie for the murder of Jesse Hollister is in progress here. Dr. Massie has four times been convicted, and thrice the extreme penalty has been assessed, but the court of appeals each time found cause for reversal. As each trial has shown the crime was deliberate and there was apparently no provocation, the feeling of indignation here against the court of appeals is much greater than against the prisoner.

Make a Corn Crib of a Chapel.

LACON, Ill.: Arnold's Floating Chapel has been towed down the river and a number of farmers whose corn cribs are partly under water, will store their corn in the boat. It is an immense hulk 40 by 160 feet.

NEW YORK: Lewis G. Tewksbury a well known Wall Street Broker, has purchased of Monroe Salisbury the queen of trotters, Alix, with a record of 3:03%. The price is said to be between $12,500 and $16,000.

'Wreck in California.

SAN DIEGO, Cal.: A telephone message from Delmar said the passenger train from Los Angeles had been wrecked near Delmar and was burning. It is thought many passengers were injured.

Killed by an Explosion.

BUTTE, Mont.: Matt Maguire and Jacob Bauer were instantly killed by an explosion of powder in their cabin at the Madison mine, near Sheridan. The cause of the explosion is unknown.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.: An epidemic of mumps is becoming serious in the Illinois Wesleyan University at this place. Twenty-five students are afflicted.

OF A GREAT STATE

NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF NEBRASKA.

The State Auditor Reports a Decrease of Over $9,000,000 in Mortgaged Indebtedness for 1895—Farmers Getting Out of Debt.

Mortgaged for Millions.

State Auditor Moore has completed the record of the mortgage indebtedness of Nebraska for the year ending December 31, 1895. The total farm, town and city and chattel mortgages filed for that year show a decrease of $9,183,977.94 from that of the year of 1894. To offset this, however, there is a corresponding decrease in the total amount of satisfactions, the satisfactions of farm, town and city and chattel mortgages for 1895 being $9,289,577.42 less than for the same period in 1894. The total decrease of farm mortgages is $4,118,022.75; total decrease of chattel mortgages, $3,237,287.02. In town and city mortgages for 1895 there is a decrease of nearly $2,000,000, and a corresponding decrease in the amount of satisfactions. The number of sheriff's deeds and other deeds in foreclosure are about the same for the two years.

HEAVY FALL OF SNOW.

Two Inches Reported in Many Sections of the State.

Irvington, Feb. 29: Two inches of snow have fallen since last evening, with indications of more. Ground in fine condition to receive it.

La Platte, Feb. 29: Sarpy County was treated to a snowfall of two inches today. The moisture was needed.

Freemont, Feb. 29: Nearly two inches of snow fell here last night and this morning. It was very damp.

Benningsen, Feb. 29: Fully three inches of snow fell here last night and today, it being the first snow of any consequence this winter.

Wahoo, Feb. 29: About two inches of snow fell here this morning and indications are that more will fall to-night.

Dunbar, Feb. 29: Snow commenced falling here about 4 o'clock and continued all forenoon, with prospects of lasting all day.

Ord, Feb. 29: All day yesterday a furious storm of wind was raging from the northwest, and to-day there are indications of snow.

North Bend, Feb. 29: The first snow in this vicinity since December 1 commenced this morning.

Weston, Feb. 29: A fine shower fell last night, followed by a fall of six inches of snow. This moisture was much needed, as the ground was very dry and dusty. Some of the farmers in this locality have finished sowing wheat, and the rain and snow last night puts the soil in a most favorable condition.

Peru, Feb. 29: Snow to the depth of four inches fell here last night and it is still snowing.

Plattsmouth, Feb. 29: A heavy snow commenced falling at an early hour here this morning and continued steadily until noon, when the snow slackened up and a heavy mist set in. Winter wheat has a stand never heard of before. The ground seems in splendid condition, the moisture extending down as deep as eighteen inches. The creeks through this country that have been dry all summer and the rain and snow last night puts the soil in a most favorable condition.

Omaha Canal Knocked Out. The supreme court has disposed of what is known as the Omaha canal case. By the terms of the opinion the act of the legislature of last winter, under which it was sought to submit a proposition for the voting of bonds, is declared null and void. The opinion was written by Commissioner Ryan, concurred in by Justice Norval and Harrison, Commissioner Irvine not sitting, and Chief Justice Post dissenting.

Frozen to Death While Injured. Coroner Holoyoke of Lincoln held an inquest over E. G. Johnson near Martel, whose body was found in the public road. The investigation disclosed the fact that he was moving his household goods and was thrown from his wagon. He was stunned by the fall and expired from the cold.

Pupils Given a Scare. While the chemistry class was experimenting in the Bloomington high school laboratory with acid, a scholar applied a match to one of the tubes and an explosion followed. Prof. Bowers was badly cut in the face and considerable damage done to the laboratory.

Buildings Burned at Arapaho. At Arapaho fire destroyed the Bennett block, the Reynolds block, and a small one-story frame building. The fire originated in Dean's drug store in the Bennett block. Its loss stock is about $3,000 to $4,000, with $2,000 insurance. A Mr. Hill's family, who lived upstairs, lost its entire house furnishings, including all wearing apparel. There was no insurance on the Reynolds building. There was a slight loss on the drug stock, with $500 insurance on the building. On the Bennett block there was no insurance.

Two Girls Collide with a Car. Misses Shickley and Mills, young unmarried women, residing at Lincoln, had a narrow escape from death on the street car track. In company with another young woman from Grand Island, they tried to cross the track in front of an approaching car. Misses Shickley and Mills lost their heads, ran back and forth and were struck and knocked down by the car. They both suffered severe scalp wound and bruises about the body, but will recover.

Misrepresenting Nebraska. Frequent reports are received from the eastern and middle states that persons are soliciting aid for Nebraska sufferers and making deplorable statements about existing want and destitution. The representations are untrue, and the solicitors are almost without an exception impostors and are acting without proper authority. The secretary of the State Board of Agriculture has made exhaustive inquiries throughout the state and ascertained that no relief is needed.

Abolish Terminal Charges.

The first step of the railways toward satisfying Nebraska cattle shippers was taken when the Missouri Pacific withdrew all terminal charges in the Omaha stock yards. This has been a great source of trouble, as shippers thought it unfair.

The Rock Island also abolishes terminal charges.

Given Membership in A. R. A.

The Cass County Agricultural Society has been given membership in the American Racing Association, and is making great preparations for the races to be held at Plattsmouth in September.

Terrible Trip of a Woman. A few days ago as Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gleich, who live near Doniphan, were returning home, their team became frightened and upset the buggy. Mr. Gleich was thrown out on his head and shoulders and sustained a few slight bruises, but Mrs. Gleich was less fortunate. Her foot and knee became entangled in the wheel and she was dragged for a distance of one and one-half miles and crossing seven bridges over the hard rough oak planks. Every particle of clothing was torn from her body and her entire body is covered with bruises. Both limbs and abdomen were lacerated and bruised, but impossible as it may seem, no bones were broken. The worst injuries are internal. During the entire trip she remained conscious. The team, after running this distance, ran into a barbed wire fence, throwing one of the horses and holding him fast.

This was near the residence of a Mr. Gallagher. He hearing the struggling horses, went out to investigate. She was then unconscious and was carried into the house and a physician called.

Stamford Citizens Indignant.

The citizens of Stamford and vicinity have become very indignant over the manner of some parties living near that place who are continually writing to Iowa and Illinois for aid, claiming that their families are destitute and in a starving condition. It is said these parties are known and if they do not desist sending such libelous and misleading letters to other states for the sake of personal gain they will be prosecuted. That part of Nebraska has plenty to spare this year without soliciting aid.

Litigation Over a Wrecked Mill.

At a special session of the district court at Bloomington the most important matter to come up is the Franklin mill case. Last spring, during the high water, the dam was washed out and the mill fell into the river. Nothing was done toward getting it out until a month ago, when the judge appointed a receiver. The property was sold at auction and now the numerous judgments and mortgagors come into court all claiming first right.

Norfolk Gets the Trophy.

The Governor's Cup, which created so much trouble in state militia circles the last encampment, has been made the subject of a general order by Gen. Barry. Under the order the cup is to be delivered to the Moore rifles at Norfolk in accordance with the award made at Hastings. The rifles are in good shape to retain the trophy, and as soon as their new armory is built will have the very best facilities for drilling.

Seeding Well Advanced.

A little over three inches of snow has fallen in the vicinity of Holdrege the past week. The ground was in good condition before, and this wet it down so that small grain will sprout and grow without any moisture for some time. Quite a good deal of seeding has been done already, the ground in all instances being in a very fine condition; in fact it is in the best condition that it has been since 1892.

Awful Death of a Farmer.

While Peter Stonberg, a farmer living nine miles west of Stromsburg, was cutting corn stalks, the horses he was driving became unmanageable, and in the runaway Stonberg fell in front of the cutter and became entangled in the knives and was horribly mangled. When the horses were stopped by neighbors it required some fifteen minutes to extricate the body from the machine. He lived but a few minutes after being released.

Fort Calhoun, Feb. 29: Snow fell last night in this vicinity to the depth of about two inches no wind accompanying.

Selling Fire Water to Indians.

On complaint of United States Indian Agent of Santee Agency, Deputy United States Marshal Tomlinson arrested Adam Farestor, proprietor of the brewery at Niobrara, on the charge of selling beer to Indians. He had his bearing before the United States Commissioner who bound him over to the United States district court in the sum of $300, which he secured. There has been for the past two years a reckless liquor traffic going on with the Indians, the claim having been that the Indians, having had their lands allotted to them, and are voters, are free to drink if they see fit. A test case is talked of, this point never having been fully settled. There is considerable unpleasantness about it, since the fines have been but nominal and the bootlegging and liquor traffic have continued for a quarter of a century without any let up.

Death Sentence Commuted.

Gov. Holcomb has commuted the death sentence of John B. Walker, the Dawson County murderer, to imprisonment for life.

THE BEGINNING—1892.

This is the beginning of a Democratic era, and Democratic Senators are chosen to attend to the public business, not to their own.—New York World, Nov. 25, 1892.

A STUDY OF DEBT.

The figures representing the Republican and the Democratic methods of treating the matter of public indebtedness are so impressive and instructive that they deserve to be urged strongly upon the attention of the people who pay the debts. Between March 1, 1890, and March 1, 1893 (when Mr. Cleveland returned to office), the debt payments of the Republican party amounted to $1,881,867,873. Between March 1, 1893, and March 1, 1894 (under the rule of Mr. Cleveland), the national debt was increased to the extent of $282,602,245. That is to say, since Mr. Cleveland's return to office he has put back upon the people just about one-seventh of the debt that his Republican predecessor took off. Give him a little more time and no doubt he would restore the whole of it. The American Economist presents the fact in another interesting form, as follows:

Republican monthly decrease of debt, 1865-1893.....$5,701,114.77
Democratic monthly increase of debt, 1893-1896.....7,502,921.28

This is the work of the great statesman whose soul burned within him, eight years ago, as he observed a surplus in the Treasury. In his letter of acceptance, in 1888, Mr. Cleveland said:

"In reviewing the bad effects of this accumulated surplus and the scale of tariff rates by which it is produced, we must not overlook the tendency toward gross and scandalous public extravagance which a congested Treasury produces."

And now the question is whether a tariff that produced surplus is really more dangerous or extravagant than a deficiency created by tariff legislation and made up by buying gold at 20 per cent premium from bankers who take it out again at par. The American people will supply an answer at the polls in November next.—The Manufacturer.

Down with Free Trade.

Protection is the great issue before this country. One of the main features underlying our very existence is that here in America the laboring man shall have a broader and a better life than was granted to his class in Europe; that he and his shall stand, in education, in influence, in respectability, and in every hope of life, shoulder to shoulder with every other man and with every other class in the body politic. He knows and, by his ballots of 1894 and 1895, he proclaims that he will no longer heed the wild theories of those misleading iconoclasts who have sought to enlist his beliefs and his services in the interests of free trade.

Study Them.

When manufacturers get revenue, workers get revenue. When the manufacturers close, and the work is done in Europe, as under the present rules, the workingman goes hungry and ragged, it matters not how cheap things are in the market. These are bottom facts.—Vidette, Valparaiso, Ind.

Another Costly Capture.

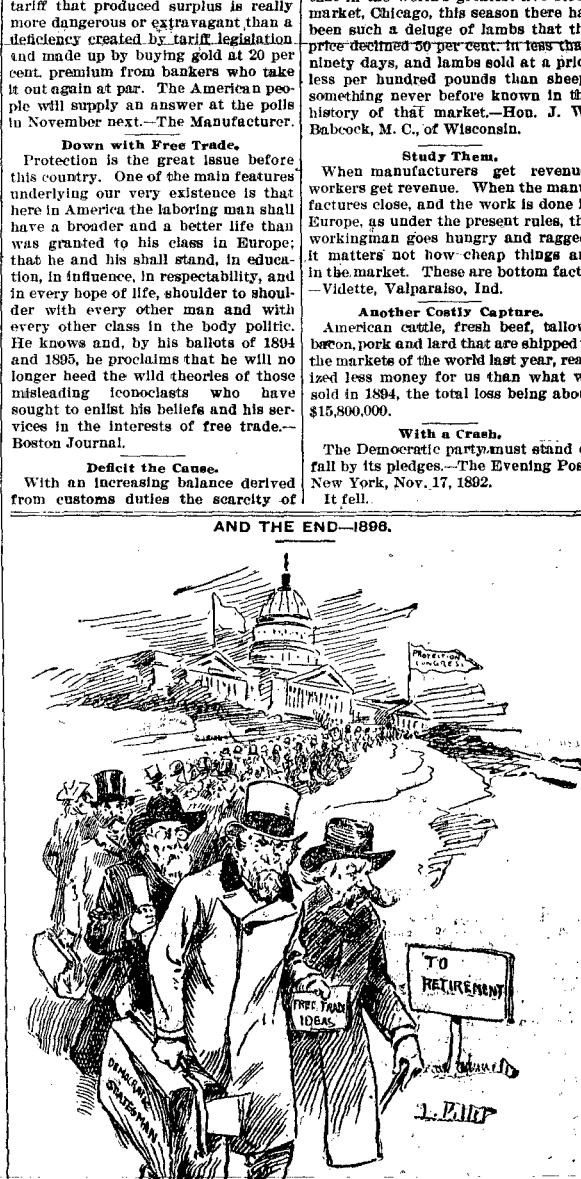

American cattle, fresh beef, tallow, bacon, pork and lard that are shipped to the markets of the world last year, realized less money for us than what we sold in 1894, the total loss being about $15,800,000.

With a Crash.

The Democratic party must stand or fall by its pledges.—The Evening Post, New York, Nov. 17, 1892.

It fell.

AND THE END—1896.

We may now add that this is the end of a Democratic era, and Democratic Senators are chosen to attend to their own business, not to that of the public.

GOWNS AND GOWNING.

WOMEN GIVE MUCH ATTENTION TO WHAT THEY WEAR.

Brief Glances at Faunies Feminine, Frivolous, Mayhap, and Yet Offered in the Hope that the Reading Prove Restful to Weary Womankind.

Gossip from Gay Gotham. New York correspondence.

PRING makes so many demands on purse and taste that it takes a lot of courage to consider furs at the present time, but fur collarettes are now selling for about a third of what they cost early last winter.

They will serve nicely with the spring gown, and they will also find usefulness in the summer over a thin dress for party occasion, when he wants to show you off the moon, you know. The fashion of collarettes is not going to change so arbitrarily that one carefully selected now will not serve next season; on the contrary, if you really buy a stylish one now it will be just so much money in your pocket next autumn. Still, it is possible to be stylish and trim without one. If you can only invent or induce your dressmaker to devise some novel jacket bodice of a sort that no one else is wearing, there'll be no need of fur accessories to make it cause envy in all beholders. It's safer and surer to do the inventing yourself, and it's really not a difficult matter, so great are the possibilities of the jacket bodice for gold would soon have come to an end, for experience has shown that when the government was operated on a surplus basis it was never menaced by a gold deficit. The revenue deficit is directly and indirectly responsible for the gold deficit.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Labor's Burden Removed.

Though many of the skilled workmen in the window glass factories of the country did not go to work till late in the season, all the window glass factories in the country are to shut down Saturday for four weeks' "rest." It is a Democratic "rest" just like Grover's, though when Grover "rests" he surrounds himself with good things to eat and drink, and the Government pays the freight. To the window glass workmen the Democratic "rest" will come as a hardship. Democratic prosperity has not permitted them to make preparations for enforced idleness. Many of them were badly in debt when the factories started up, and have not yet canceled their obligations. That's the way the Democrats remove burdens from labor.—Daily Telegram, Worcester, Mass.

The Value of Lambs.

The wool industry, which has made rapid strides since the passage of the tariff bill of 1890, under the provisions of which an increased duty was placed on foreign wool, is now threatened with extinction should this bill become a law.

As evidence of the threatened extinction of the sheep industry, I have but to call your attention to the fact that in the world's greatest live stock market, Chicago, this season there has been such a deluge of lambs that the price declined 50 per cent. in less than ninety days, and lambs sold at a price less per hundred pounds than sheep, something never before known in the history of that market.—Hon. J. W. Babcock, M. C., of Wisconsin.
