Opera House this (Thursday) Evening.
Members of the Class Acquit Themselves in a Very Creditable Manner.

The exercises of the graduating class of '96 of the Wayne High School are over, and their work, in so far as the school here is concerned, is finished. But throughout the class motto. In the apparent distance the scene being retrospection of the happy days spent in the old school building.
By eight o'clock this evening every available seat in the opera house was occupied and the scene presented was a beautiful one. A profusion of flowers were noticed on each side of the stage entrance and above in gilt letters was suspended the class motto. In the apparent distance the moon was just peeping up over the water the opera house having been darkened presenting a delightful picture, the scene being retrospection of the happy days spent in the old school building.
The exercises were opened with a song by the fifth and sixth grades behind the scenes. The graduates then appeared by twos, the last two arriving in a boat. Soon all were seated in rustic chairs and benches.
The exercises were opened with the invocation by Rev. E. Van Dyke Wright.

"The Necessity of Universal Education" was the subject of an excellent oration delivered by Walden Tucker. "Education is recognized as useful and beneficial by all civilized powers of the earth and in no place is it more thoroughly understood than here in the United States. There are great forces continually at war in this world. One of these great forces is ignorance. It is here and now that we are laying the foundation for the generations that are to follow. We must guard well and carefully all that goes to make up the individual whose personality is ever and will be the standard of American citizenship."

conquered. To the man of woman what is defeat? Nothing but education, nothing but the first steps to something better. Opposition gives greater power of resistance. Success is not measured by what a man accomplishes but by the opposition he has encountered."
Miss Pearl Reynolds delivered the Class Poem which was well received by the audience. The poem was an excellent one and was well rendered. After giving a short history and prophecy of each member of the class the poem closed with these lines:
And as after tonight we'll begin our own row to be hoing,
I think you'll realize the statement, "We're green but still growing."
"Stepping Stones to Higher Things" by Miss Lulu Thompson, was well written and delivered in a very pleasing manner. "We cannot become great or renowned at a single leap, but must be patient and work hard. We must not undervalue the importance of little things. We must not become disappointed by failures. Our school life is but a preparation for the future, a stepping stone, as it were, to give us a start in our journey to something higher and better." The "Class Will" was given by Miss Thompson and was greatly appreciated by the audience.
"Self Education" was the subject of Edward B. Philleo's oration, and he certainly did justice to the subject. "As I look out upon the many subjects of living nature I see a new theme. It is 'Self Education' Observation is the door to education and application is the chair in which it reclines. The ability necessary to cultivation exists in every person. The educated man is always thoughtful, using judgment and weighing the matter before him with ration of the departed heroes of the late rebellion and nearly six hundred of our citizens assembled with them to do reverence to the old soldiers. Nothing can ever pay the debt the nation owes to the boys in blue but it is a blessed privilege the people have that at least once a year they may assemble together in remembrance of these veterans who have departed this life and those who yet survive the disease and ravages of the rebellion, but who must, sooner or later, pass to the great beyond.

The large stage was beautifully decked with flowers and on either side of the entrance had been suspended the national colors and a portrait of Abraham Lincoln.
Splendid music was rendered by the choir under the supervision of Prof. M. S. Davies. The invocation was presented by Rev. H. H. Millard, verses from the scriptures were read by Rev. E. Van Dyke Wright; prayer by Rev. W. C. Eckhart and the address by Rev. W. W. Theobald.

Decorations day services will begin promptly at 1:30 Saturday, the parade to be formed on Main street near third and march to the cemetery. The exercises will be held at the opera house immediately afterwards and the address will be delivered by Judge W. M. Robertson of Norfolk.
The following is the program and line of march for the Decoration day exercised. The parade will be formed on Main street near Third at 1:30 p. m.

DIED.
JONES—At his home in Sherman precinct, Sunday, May 24th, 1896, Oren Jones, aged 34 years. Cause of death, appendicitis.
Deceased was born in Wales and moved to Wayne county from Iowa four years ago. He was an earnest and faithful worker of the Congregational church and was also a worthy member of the Modern Woodmen of Carrol, which Lodge had charge of the funeral from the residence Monday morning. A large concourse of friends followed the remains to Carrol where they were your meals at Hoover's Short Order House. Also milk shake, lemonade and ice butter milk.

Mrs. J. Spurlock, matron of the Mothers' Jews' home of York, will probably speak at the Methodist church Sunday morning.
The HERALD is a few hours late this week in order to publish an account of the graduating exercises which take place this evening.
Mrs. T. W. Moran gave a party to a number of lady friends Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. W. J. Mettlen and Mrs. Sigworth.
Wm. Soenneken has just completed large pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hinrichs. They are done in water colors and the work is first-class.
There is nothing like feeling that your grain crop is safe. Insure against hail. S. H. Alexander, at the Wayne National Bank writes insurance.
The bicycle races at the fair grounds Wednesday, June 3rd, promise to be interesting as expert riders from Ponca and Norfolk will appear in the races.
W. H. Bradford leads the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday. Subject, Christ's Mission on earth. This will interest everyone; you can't afford to miss this meeting.
The Cycle Club will consider it a great favor if all persons driving teams at the fair grounds will drive outside the worn track about 15 feet during the next week.
At the Masonic election of officers Friday night E. Cunningham was elected. M. J. Lower, senior warden; J. M. Cherry, junior warden; Henry Ley, our own country is a part. Did it pay? She went on to speak of others who followed him to this country but more especially of those who came over on the Mayflower. She said: "On landing they founded the new government with education as its corner stone and freedom as its sound motto, and boldly started forward to win a place among the nations. Education has made the country what it is. It pays to educate but the value of a system such as ours cannot be estimated in dollars and cents."

"Un-American Americans" by Miss Elsie Morrison was the next oration and many good ideas were presented. "Thousands of people visit Europe every year and spend hundreds of thousands of dollars when they might enjoy themselves better visiting some of the places of interest in their own country. The most beautiful scenery in Europe cannot surpass some of the scenes in the Rocky Mountains. In natural beauty our own country exceeds any in the world, and could our people be induced to spend their money at home and aid in the development of what nature has so bountifully endowed us with, the glory of our country would soon spread to all the world. This custom of spending so much money abroad is un-American and should be discontinued."
"The Need of Strict Immigration Laws" was the subject of a very good oration delivered by Thos. E. Cook. "There is no question before the American people today of so vital importance as that of foreign immigration. I believe we need intelligent and discriminating restriction. Immigrants should know how to read and write before they are allowed to enter the United States. We must protect our class, to old associations and to all who had in any way assisted the class.

The music by the pupils of the school was much better than the average and the solo by Miss May Cunningham was much appreciated by the audience.
It may be said, in justice to the class, that the diplomas were presented by Rev. Millard in a few, well chosen words, after which he pronounced the benediction. The alumni will meet at P. M. Corbit Saturday evening and will enjoy a banquet at the Opera House in which the class of '96 will participate.
Herb Hopper is visiting with the family of R. Philleo.
Miss Cora Davis returned to her home at Randolph last Friday.
Considerable corn is being marketed at present although the price is lower.
The Daughters of the King will give a party at the Opera House on Friday evening.
Perrin Long has nearly recovered from a severe horse kick received last week Monday.
Miss Fannie Mason gave a party to a few friends last Saturday evening in honor of her cousin, Miss Edith Childs.
The members of the B. Y. P. U. gave Ed. Bartlett a surprise party last Thursday evening. A pleasant time was reported.
Miss Lulu Niehart, who has been teaching the past year at Emerson, returned home last Saturday, the school at that place having closed Friday.
A terrible cyclone swept over St. Louis yesterday and more than a thousand were killed and injured. The loss to property runs up into the millions.
Saturday being Memorial Day, a public holiday, the post office will be closed from 10:30 until 1:30 o'clock, and will close at 7:00 in the evening. A. B. Childs, P. M.
Everett Laughlin received a handsome new bicycle the first of the week. It is a '96 Phoenix and riding will no doubt do some fast riding Wednesday.
E. H. Mason came home from Winfield Saturday to spend the summer vacation at home.

The oil tanks of The Standard Oil Company are being put in position this week by Arch McIntosh who secured the contract. Wayne will sooner or later become a general distributing point for the surrounding towns in a number of lines of merchandise, etc.
Friction from the belt at Turner & Brenner's elevator started a little blaze yesterday about one o'clock which was soon extinguished, but not until an alarm had been given, and people were hastening to the scene, as the wind was blowing a stiff gale. Both fire companies were promptly on hand but luckily were not needed.
Mrs. J. Ingalls entertained in her own charming and hospitable manner the members of the M. P. F. on Wednesday evening. The rooms were prettily decorated with roses and it was a merry company that sat about the tables and did their best to win. Mrs. Neely took the first prize and Mrs. Crawford the second. At 11:30 the hostess served light refreshments after which a musi-

Sealed bids will be received by the county clerk on or before June 9, 1896, for the repairing of a county bridge for the year ending June 1, 1897, the county to furnish all material. The bids must be accompanied by a bond in the amount of $500.
The HERALD might mention how it will cost the county more than four hundred dollars this year for the county printing where it cost less than one hundred last year. These great "reformers" are only consistent to the extent of their own pocket.
The new "home trainer" for bicycle riders is on exhibition at the Phoenix Cycle Co's. office under the Wayne National Bank. By the new contrivance Everett Laughlin has been able to ride 30 miles an hour, almost double the time made by an ordinary railway freight engine.
The Sioux City running meeting commenced yesterday and will continue until Saturday evening. A great many fast horses are entered in the races and the meeting is proving a success. Daily concerts are given by the Fourth Regiment Band and there will be a great many special attractions Decoration day. The railroads have made a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip.
The school children in the departments taught by Misses Schultz and Brown were taken to the fair grounds by their teachers Saturday forenoon where the little folks spent a few hours very pleasantly. Well filled baskets were taken along and a regular picnic dinner indulged in. Misses Stringer and Dorman took their pupils to Crawford's grove and made the day a take for our subject tonight "The Old Woman." These were the opening words of the oration delivered by Miss Mae Cunningham. "In these days of bloomers and golf caps we must keep a close lookout or we shall lose sight of our old woman—the mother of our ancestors and earnest help mate in times of tribulations. It is true that the old woman may not have been so very intellectual as this bicycle woman, but she was certainly more brave and womanly." All through her oration she stood up nobly for the "Old Woman," and punctured the tires of new woman at every opportunity.

"Unwritten Biographies" by Miss Theo Soace, was well written, interesting and was delivered in an impressive manner. "Men of distinction who have won renown from some arena of life have their names engraved upon the history of ages. All glory to those heroes to whom the world owes so much, but in our gratitude to them let us not forget the mothers sisters and wives of these men. As the homes are, so will the nation be; if the children are taught love, loyalty and obedience to parents, they will be loyal and obedient citizens. The Father of our country and the Emancipator of the negroes were men whose lives were characterized by a strong sense of duty. Nowhere will we find more loyal citizens or stronger statesmen, yet they say they owe their success in life to the influence of their mothers."
Chas. Reynolds delivered his oration "The Value of Competition" in a clear, strong voice, and plainly showed the value of true competition. "Competition, as every other motive force, has a tendency that may produce disaster but at the same time there is scarcely

CHAPTER XVIII.

All that day Constance kept to her room. The duke was amazed at this, and late in the afternoon presented himself in his wife's boudoir. After all, fortune favored him; Alice was there alone.

"Where is the duchess, Miss Greybrook?" he asked quietly. "She is in the adjoining room," returned Alice, uneasily. "And I—I think she is asleep. Shall I call her?"

"No," returned the duke, "it is to you I wish to speak. You know, Miss Greybrook, in what high esteem I hold you."

"I should never have left my wife alone," he continued, "above all in London, if I had not found a holy person like yourself to place by her side, to counsel and direct her. Miss Greybrook, you have never yet hidden the truth from me."

"Never, I—"

"You merit some heavenly recompense," continued the duke, watching her very intently. "Let me beg you to accept this holy cross, brought by me from Rome."

He opened a small packet which he held in his hand and revealed a handsome crucifix. With a smile half of command, half of entreaty, he held this holy gift toward the girl. She hesitated.

"For me, my lord?"

"Oh, Frank, you are not—or dreaming!"

"Constance," he cried, "I tell you it is true. I received an invitation to come here this evening. If you did not send it, it came from the duke."

"Oh, do not speak so," she cried; "I tell you the ground is undermined beneath us. Frank, listen, turning her flashing eyes upon her cousin, she continued, 'I see how late it is getting. Alice has gone to fetch Monsieur de Santa Fe to take me to a ball, but I will be here directly, but I will pass you through that door and no one will see you go.'"

"What is the matter?" cried Constance in alarm. "Frank, are you ill?"

"Yes, I am a little faint," he gasped; "my wound!"

"Yes, did you not know? I was stabbed in the fray the other night; some ruffian had his clasp knife at the throat of my youth. I interposed and was stabbed in the breast—that is all. Constance, give me some water."

"I don't know, dear; is that all he says?"

"No, there is more," replied Constance, and lifting the letter again, she continued: "For yourself, let me beg you not to spend the evening at home, but to go to Lady Mortimer's ball. I have asked Lady Seaford to call for you. Therefore rest quietly at home until she comes."

"Oh, Constance, what shall you do?" cried the girl in terror.

"Do?" returned Constance, with a look of fixed resolve. "I shall obey the duke's command to the letter. At last he has honored me with his confidence, and I shall not betray it."

The "laws of war" as at present formulated by civilized nations forbid the use of poison against the enemy; murder by treachery, such as assuming the uniform or displaying the flag of a foe; the murder of those who have surrendered, whether upon conditions or at discretion; declarations that no quarter will be given to an enemy; the use of such arms or projectiles as will cause unnecessary pain or suffering to the enemy; the abuse of a flag of truce to gain information concerning an enemy's position; all unnecessary destruction of property, whether public or private.

OLD BIRDS' NESTS HAVE VALUE. Many Feathered Creatures Use the Same Ones Year After Year. "That common expression for worthlessness, 'It has no more value than a last year's bird's nest,'" said a bird fancier to a New York press reporter, "is often far from correct. The majority of our birds do leave their nests after raising a brood, but many do not, and their nests are used through a succession of years. I have known some birds to use their nests ten years in succession, and so persistent are they that many times the female will return even after the nest has been robbed and the mate killed. Among those users of perennial nests are the wrens, some of the swallow family, bluebirds, great crested flycatcher, some of the owls, eagles, chickadees and some woodpeckers."

Cancer Of the Breast.

Mr. A. H. Crausby, of 138 Kerr St., Memphis, Tenn., says that his wife paid no attention to a small lump which appeared in her breast, but it soon developed into a cancer of the most type, and notwithstanding the treatment of the best physicians, it continued to spread and grow rapidly, eating two holes in her breast. The doctors soon pronounced her incurable. A celebrated New York specialist then treated her, but she continued to grow worse and when informed that both her aunt and grandmother had died from cancer he gave the case up as hopeless. Someone then recommended S.S.S. and though little hope remained, she began it, and an improvement was noticed. The cancer commenced to heal and when she had taken several bottles it disappeared entirely, and although several years have elapsed, not a sign of the disease has ever returned.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO.

How To Cure Yourself While Using It.

The tobacco habit grows on a man until his nervous system is seriously affected, impairing health, comfort and happiness. To quit suddenly is to sever a shock for the system, and tobacco to an inveterate user becomes a stimulant that his system continually craves. "Baco-Curo" is a scientific cure for the tobacco habit in all its forms, carefully compounded after the formula of an eminent Berlin physician who has used it in his private practice since 1872 without a failure. It is purely vegetable and guaranteed perfectly harmless. You can use all the tobacco you want while taking "Baco-Curo." It will notify you when to stop. We give a written guarantee to cure permanently any case with three boxes, or refund the money with 10 per cent interest. "Baco-Curo" is not a substitute, but a scientific cure, that cures without the aid of will power and with no inconvenience. It leaves the system as pure and free from nicotine as the water you took your first chew or smoke. Cured By Baco-Curo and Gained 30 Pounds.

How to Treat a Wife.

(From Pacific Health Journal.)
First, get a wife; second, be patient. You may have great trials and perplexities in your business, but do not therefore, carry to your home a cloudy or contracted brow. Your wife may have trials, which though of less magnitude, may be hard for her to bear. A kind word, a tender look, will do wonders in chasing from her brow all clouds of gloom. To this we would add always keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house. It is the best and is sure to be needed sooner or later. Your wife will then know that you really care for her and wish to protect her health. For sale by Phil H. Kohl and Sedgwick Drug Co.

Whenever you make a mistake, make it teach you something.
Young mothers dread the summer months on account of the great mortality among children caused by bowel troubles. Perfect safety may be assured those who keep a hand DeWitt's Colic and Cholera cure, and administer it promptly. For cramps bilious colic, dysentery and diarrhoea, it affords instant relief. Sedgwick Drug Co.

For every quarter in a man's pocket there are a dozen uses; and to use each Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, a medicine that every family should be provided with. For sale by Phil H. Kohl and Sedgwick Drug Co.

Mr. A. L. Armstrong an old druggist, and a prominent citizen of this enterprising town, says: "I sell some forty different kinds of cough medicines, but have never in my experience sold so much of any one article as I have of 'Ballard's Horehound Syrup.' All who use it say that it is the 'most perfect remedy for Cough, Cold, Consumption, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs they have ever tried.' It is a specific for Croup and Whooping Cough. It will relieve a cough in one minute.

McKinley? Yes, an hundred times!
It's a cold day when a candidate for school bonds Tuesday resulted in a tie.

If any person has any idea that Eugene Moore is not pretty close to the nomination for Governor he will find his mistake later on.

There was a time when candidates for state offices scarcely went where northeast Nebraska was; but did you notice boys, they all get up this way now?

Disastrous cyclones visited Iowa, Michigan and Illinois Monday. Fifty or more lives were lost and many more are injured and the loss of property was very large.

Northrop is all right and will be the next representative from this congressional district, because there is but one logical situation to the affair. Did you notice where Wayne is on the map?
This is Wayne's lucky year.

Democracy gave us "free trade" and oh! what misery. Not satisfied with this they now propose to give us "free coinage of silver" to rub free trade in,
but the great American people will not be hoodwinked by this attempt to hide
the real issue.

The Ohio delegation to the St. Louis convention will carry a banner wearing this device: "No one need be in any doubt as to what the Republican party stands for. It stands now, as ever, for free trade."

The U. S. Supreme court unanimously declared that the sugar bounty must be paid and the obligations of the government upheld. This is a great victory for Chas. F. Manderson, especially as the verdict was unanimous. Nebraska is in the center of the United States and is strictly first-class in every respect.

Brother W. H. McNeal of the Wayne Herald is mentioned as a possible candidate for the legislature from his district and he denies that he has any such felonious intentions. However the republicans of Wayne and Stanton counties might search their territory with a fine tooth comb and not find a better or more deserving man to fill the place. - Niobrara Tribune.

The Tribune has our hearty thanks for the above kind words. However McNeal has no ambition along the line referred to. Our duty will be to work incessantly for the grand old party and its nominees, whoever they may be.

The People Want McKinley
The New York Dispatch, published in the home state of Morton and Platt, editorially gives the following reasons
why the people want McKinley:

"A high protective tariff is opposed by the international pawnbrokers, because it results in a constant stream of gold flowing out of this country. In times of golden influx of the yellow metal, the international pawnbrokers are enabled to buy up the property of the people at a low price, and to sell it at a high price to the people of other countries. This is the reason why the international pawnbrokers are opposed to a high protective tariff."

ective tariff and the election of Mc-Kinley. Three hundred thousand idle railway employees want McKinley and work to keep their families from starvation. When the mills are running, the farmers have a market for their produce, which the railways must handle and they buy things of home manufacture, which the railways must also transport. With McKinley and high tariff, the mills will start, setting skilled labor, now idle, at work; the railways will drop receivers and reemploy the idle trainmen and switchmen; they will be busy providing food for the people who have lived, under Cleveland, on fish and other of the cheapest foods; the mines will again be put in operation to provide a coin medium of exchange, and the vast area of mining industry will, as a natural result, become a hive of busy labor and again be a market of food products and clothes. Herein are the reasons why the people want McKinley. They have hibernated, economized and been idle while the government borrowed all the money in sight so that but little could be had to afford them employment. Americans are an industrious people. They have to work and provide their families with necessities and give their children an education.

Under Cleveland, bond issues and partial free trade they could not afford to send their children to school, and the youths of the nation have been held in the bondage of semi-ignorance in consequence. So, McKinley means everything to the masses, that everything of which they have been deprived these several years and for which all that is noble, inspiring and ambitious,
our people ever strives."

Ex-President Harrison's Prophecy.
(Washington Correspondence of the N. Y.
Press.)

When the attempt was made to "down" McKinley with Harrison at Indianapolis he thought was given to the existence of a paper written by the ex-President than which no better campaign document for McKinley had ever been or even will be published. "Yes," said Grover Cleveland, "had the election and Congress had assembled in the session which was to expire with the inauguration of a Democratic President that General Harrison, in his last message, bore testimony to the benefits of the Protective system. On December 6, 1892 he said:

"There never has been a time in our history when work was so abundant or when wages were so high, whether measured by the currency in which they are paid or by their power to supply the necessities and comforts of life. If any believe that wages or prices the returns for honest toil, are inadequate they should not fail to remember that there is no other country in the world where the conditions that seem to them hard would not be accepted as highly prosperous. The English agriculturalist would be glad to exchange the returns of his labor for those of the American farmer and the Manchester workmen their wages for those of their fellows at Fall River."

A PROPHECY VERIFIED.

Then, with a prophecy born of inspiration, Mr. Harrison discussed the result of the election which was to revitalize the republican party from power.
"That election," he said, "must be accepted as having introduced a new policy. We must assume that the present Tariff, constructed upon the lines of protection, is to be repealed, and that there is to be substituted for it a tariff law constructed solely with reference to the necessities and interests of the people."

duty is to be imposed as to bring to the Treasury of the United States the largest returns of revenue. The contention lies not between schedule, but between principle.

TASK FOR FREE TRADERS.

"When a system of customs duties
can be framed that will set the idle wheels and looms of Europe in motion and crowd our warehouses with foreign made goods, and at the same time keep our own mills busy; that will give us an increased participation in the 'markets of the world' of greater value than the home market we surrender; that will give increased work to foreign workmen upon products to be consumed by our people without diminishing the amount of work to be done here; that will enable the American manufacturer to pay his workmen from 50 to 100 per cent more in wages than is paid in the foreign mill and yet to compete in our market and in foreign markets with the foreign producer;
that will further reduce the cost of articles of wear and food without reducing the wages of those who produce them; that can be celebrated, after its effects have been realized, as its expectation has been, in European as well as American cities, the authors and promoters of it will be entitled to the highest praise. We have had in our history several experiences of the contrasted efforts of a revenue and Protective Tariff, but this generation has not new experiment.

EXPERIMENT WAS DISASTROUS.
What the results of "the new experiment" have been everyone knows.
Falling revenues, imports exceeding exports, gold disappearing from the reserve, a constantly recurring deficiency, repeated increases of the national debt, general depression, business uncertainty, universal bankruptcy, labor unemployed, wages reduced and an era of disaster unparalleled in the history of a great nation. That is the story of four years of "the new experiment."

MY PATRIOT BOY.

Did I tell you, O, friend, of a proud, sad day
When my beautiful boy went marching away
To a far-away battle-field?
For our country's call was heard by me
And all mothers whose sons were needed to Fight
For God and our country and the cause of right.
But my heart stood still and it seemed that I was dead.
Wrapped me as the world is wrapped by the night.
And I thought as I wrought while the days went by—
And I prayed to my God, whose throne is on high,
And who careth for me to care for my boy,
To bless our land and give us joy
In the light of liberty's sun.
Then victory came, but 'twas purchased dear.
The bells pealed out from far and near,
And I heard loud shouts ring in the air.
And the feet of men rush here and there,
I called aloud: "Is there news for me? What news for me?"
My tear-dimmed eyes can scarcely see—
And I heard for answer, so like a knell:
"It is well with your boy, it is well."
And then I knew my child no more
Would come to me as in days of yore,
And thus the Father had answered my prayer.
By taking from earth to the home over there
My darling child, my brave, so dear,
His sweet "My mother" I'll never more hear.
And yet 'twas a glorious death, and he Died for the life of our dear country,
And your children's children will peace enjoy,
Bought with the life of my precious boy.

WHERE THE BATTLE WAS FOUGHT.

OLD up your right hand, my man."
The witness held up his left hand, and the judge, believing that he was defiant, said with a show of anger:
"Hold up your right hand and take the oath!"

Again the left hand was raised, and the judge, turning to a deputy, shouted:
"Arrest that man for contempt of court. He refuses to hold up his right hand."
"Judge," said the man, a dilapidated specimen of humanity, "I will hold up my right hand—I left it at Gettysburg a good many years ago. But I can swear all right with my left hand."
There was a sensation in court. No one had noticed that the artificially stuffed sleeve was tucked into the coat pocket at the wrist, giving the figure that defiant air that had aroused the anger of the presiding officer. Now when they knew that no hand was there, a thrill of sympathy ran through the crowd, and the judge was visibly agitated and even apologized.

"I did not know that you had been a soldier," he said gently, as if that fact were excuse enough for any lapse of duty on the present occasion.

"I am a soldier yet," said the man in the witness box; "once a soldier always a soldier, in my creed. I'm under marching orders and likely to join my regiment any time. It's many years since I first went soldiering. I was a likely chap then, judge."
"Yes, yes," said the judge, who had been staring fixedly at the man while his face, flushed and pale with some secret emotion, "but this is hardly the time or place for reminiscences. Your testimony in the case on hand is all that is required now. Counsel for the defense will examine this witness," and the judge turned to other business as if the subject no longer interested him.

But he had not done with it. When he went out of the court house on his way home, the one-armed soldier was waiting for him, and he stopped with an impatient air to hear what he had to say. It was evident that the man had been drinking, and his general appearance was more down at the heels than before.
"Judge," he asked, with tipsy gravity, "might your name be Shields?"
"Yes, my name is Shields. Have you any further business with me? I am in something of a hurry."

"So'm I, Judge Shields. I've been waiting over thirty years to ask you a question and get an answer. You don't happen to know me, judge?"
"No," came the low answer as the judge looked into the face of the soldier with a shifting earnestness, taking in the whole figure in that uncertain way, "I don't think I ever saw you before."

"Think again, my friend—you are my friend, ain't you—did you ever know a young man—a robust, strapping fellow—named Leonard Hurst?"

"My God, man, Leonard Hurst died during the war—he was killed in the battle of Gettysburg; and is buried up in yonder cemetery."

"Is he? That's news to me, friend—Shields, and his name. He had a friend—a young man like himself—and not like him, for Leonard Hurst would have given his life for that friend, and thought it no sacrifice—but the friend didn't enlist. He staid at home, and while Hurst was fighting the enemy at the front, Shields, his friend, won his promised wife away from him, married the girl Leonard Hurst had loved all his life."

"I'll hear the story at another time," said Shields, who was in a panic of nervousness over this strange recital.

"You'll hear it now," retorted the other man, swaying back and forth, yet speaking with the utmost distinctness. "Leonard Hurst went away with drums beating, and flags flying, and he was gone three years. One of those years he spent in a Southern prison—the fortune of war. He came home a wreck, to be nursed back to life and strength by those for whose sake he had suffered—he came home to find himself a dead man!"

"CAUGHT HIM BY THE THROAT."

The dry lips of the judge worked convulsively, but he said no word.

"His friend had buried him. A stone at the foot of his grave had his name and number on it. He was dead and buried, and his wife—He was dead and buried, and his friend had married his sweetheart."

"You are excited," said Shields, finding his voice; "come home with me and—"
"You haven't heard it all yet. Maybe you think it was hard to stand in front of a fire of shot and shell, and be torn asunder by cannon balls. Why, man, that was nothing, to the soldier, to what he suffered when he came home and found himself shut out of the ranks of living men—read his own name on a gravestone, and heard his friends talk of his death. And that was nothing to the fact that the girl who swore fealty to him had married his false friend. When he knew that the bitterness of death had passed. It was there his first and last real battle was fought, when he conquered himself, and let the man live who had made earth a hell for him."

"THE SOLDIER LIFTED HIS SHABBY CAP WITH REVERENCE."

"Have you no pension?" asked the judge suddenly.

"Pension? Do they pension dead men?" The judge was trembling violently.

"The effects of the liquor wore off, the soldier became more excitable, and erratic lights flashed from his sunken eyes. His whole expression was a menace to the man who stood trembling before him. But when his strange companion with a sudden swift motion caught him by the throat, Shields made no resistance, and the other holding him thus a moment, threw him off contemptuously."

"Tell me to my face I am dead," sneered the soldier with livid lips, "you who looked me of the dearest thing I had in life—and of life itself! Assassin! She, too, is dead—perhaps you killed her?"

"Hurst," said Shields, wiping the drops of ghastly fear from his pallid face, "if you are indeed a living man, listen to me. It may be some satisfaction to you to know that Mabel never loved me, although she was my wife. She died with your name on her lips. She believed you dead, and kept your grave green with her tears."

"Say that again!" cried the soldier. "Oh, my God, it pays to have been dead and buried all these years, to know that after all she was true. I had it in my mind to kill you; yes, I meant it when I had my hand at your throat, but those words have saved you! God will settle the account between us!"

"He has settled it," answered Shields solemnly. "He closed the account when he refused me Mabel's love—when he took her from me as the worst punishment He could inflict. But I honestly believed that you were dead—that it was your shattered form I brought from the battlefield, and buried you under."

"That gave you a right to love Mabel?"

"No," Shields hung his head in bitter grief and shame—"I had tried to win her before that, but she would not listen to me—she never would have listened, but for your death—and, Hurst, that knowledge killed her. She was my wife in name, but her heart was with you."

The soldier lifted his shabby cap with reverence. He raised his eyes to the blue canopy of heaven, and his lips moved in prayer.

"I have fought my last battle," he said, extending his one poor hand to Shields, "we are friends from this hour, comrade."
"You have called me comrade," said Shields, his eyes filling with tears; "I am no soldier, but I know what that word means. We are comrades for the rest of the march—we will part no more. From this hour my home is your home."

Thus it came about that these two became to each other even as David and Jonathan, united by a friendship surpassing the love of woman. Nor is the unknown soldier who sleeps far from home and friends forgotten. On each Memorial day flags wave and flowers bloom over his dust and a white-haired man and a one-armed soldier sit there to talk over the strange enigmas of his last resting place.

"Enough if on the page of war and glory,
Some hand has writ his name."

THEY ARE BROTHERS NOW.

The Spirit that Exists Between Veterans of Both Sides.

Although the horrors of war are the more conspicuous where the conflict is between brothers and the struggle is a long and desperate one, the evidences are numerous that, underneath the passion and bitterness of our civil war, there were counter currents of kindly feeling, a spirit of genuine friendliness pervading the opposing camps. This friendliness was something deeper than the expression of mere human instinct; the combatants felt that they were indeed brothers. Acts of kindness to wounded enemies began to be noted at Bull Run, while in every campaign useless picket firing was almost uniformly discontinued, and the men shook hands at the outposts and talked confidentially of their private affairs and their trials and hardships in the army. This feeling, confined perhaps, to men on the very front line, culminated at Appomattox, where the victors shared rations with their late antagonists and generously offered them help in repairing the wastes of battle.

When the Union veteran returned to the North he did not disguise his faith in the good intentions of the Southern fighting man.

"The spirit that moved Lincoln to say in his last inaugural, 'With malice toward none,' has continued its holy influence. That which must appear to the world at large a startling anomaly, is in truth the simple principle of good-will, unfolding itself under favorable conditions. The war, that is, the actual encounter on the field, taught the participants the dignity of a truer, more fraternal relationship."

Their Annual Reunion.

The Man of the Musket.

Soldiers, pass on from this rage of renown,
This ant-hill, common and strife,
Pass by where the marbles and bronzes look down
With their fast frozen gestures of life, Oh, out to the nameless who lie beneath the dome!
Of the pitying cypress and pine;
Your man is the man of the sword and the plume.
But the man of the musket is mine.

I knew him! By all that is noble, I knew

This commonplace ere I name!
I've camped with him, marched with him,
fought with him, too,
In the swirl of the fierce battle-fame!
Laughed with him, cried with him, taken a part.

Of his canteen and blanket, and known
That the throb of this chivalrous prairie boy's heart
Was an answering stroke of my own.

I knew him, I tell you! And, also, I knew
When he fell on the battle-swept ridge,
That the poor battered body that lay there in blue
Was only a plank in the bridge
Over which some should pass to a fame
That shall shine while the high stars shall shine!

Your hero is known by an echoing name,
But the man of the musket is mine.

I knew him! All through him the good and the bad
Ran together and equally free;
But I judge as I trust Christ will judge, the brave lad.

For death made him noble to meet
In the cyclone of war, in the battle's eclipse,
Life shook out its lingering sands,
And he died with the names that he loved
on his lips.

His musket still grasped in his hands!
Up close to the flag his soldier went down,
In the salient front of the line,
You may take for your heroes the men of renown.

But the man of the musket is mine!

The Bourbons in Spain.

In none of their many sovereignties had the incapacity of the Bourbons been more completely demonstrated than in Spain. With intermittent flickerings, the light of that famous land ever since Louis XIV. growingly declared that the Pyrenees had ceased to exist. Stripped of her colonial supremacy, shattered in naval power, reduced to pay tribute to France, she looked silently on while Napoleon trafficked with her lands, mourning that even the memory of her former glories was fading out in foreign countries. The proud people themselves had, however, never forgotten their past; with each successive humiliation their irritation grew more extreme, and soon after Trafalgar they made an effort to organize under the crown prince against the scandalous regime of Godoy. Both parties sought French support, and the quarrel was fomented from Paris until the whole country was torn by the most serious dissensions—Century.

REMEYNI AND HIS FIDDLE.

It Was Restored by the Skill of John Birch, the F Street Hermit.

"The illness of Remenyi, the violinist, out in Iowa, and the greatest of them all after the famous Ole Bull," said a well-known local musician to a Star reporter, "recalls to my mind a visit he made to this city some years ago. When performing in Paris, his principal violin and the one on which he relied the most suddenly became dumb. It flattened out so in sound that Remenyi could not make its music heard in the large concert halls in which he appeared, and the loss of the instrument seriously interfered with his business. He consulted a number of artists of renown in violin circles as to the cause of the trouble and a remedy for it, but he failed to get any valuable advice or assistance. Ole Bull took the violin in hand and tried his utmost to make it 'speak,' but it was no use, the violin did not respond, even at the master's touch."

"Lay it aside for six months," said Ole Bull, "and it will cure itself. I have had the same thing happen to me several times and the rest cure did the work."

"My engagements are such," answered Remenyi, "that I cannot spare it for so long a time. Can't I hurry its cure up any way?"

"The only possible thing I can recommend in the case," replied Ole Bull, "is that you take it to the United States and to Washington. There is one man there who can put life into it, if anyone can. I don't remember his name, but the music stores there will tell you his name, and where you can find him."

Remenyi returned to Paris, finished his concerts and started in less than ten days for this city in search of a man whose name and address were unknown to him. On arriving here he was directed to the haunt of John Birch, a hermit, who had for many years lived in a tumbledown shanty on F street, two or three doors east from 10th street. The rear part of the lot ran down to the old Ford's Theater. The front on F street was a bill board, and was covered up by show bills. In this place Birch and his sister lived for many years. Though the sister, Mary, was now and then seen on the streets, John never put in a public appearance except on Christmas and the Fourth of July. He was generally regarded as insane, though there was not much evidence of it in his conversation or manner, except that he persisted in living the life of a hermit.

"His pastime was music, the invention and repair of musical instruments, though his leisure hours were devoted to the working out a machine for perpetual motion. One of his inventions was a bass instrument, in size not much larger than the ordinary accordion, by which he thought sounds equal in volume to the bass violin could be produced."

"Though Birch had lived in the same house for over forty years, there were but very few persons who had ever seen or ever heard of him."

"In an hour after Remenyi had arrived in Washington," continued the speaker, "he was in Birch's shanty, and had produced the dumb violin from its case. Birch looked it over carefully, and said it could be cured."

"Return in a half hour," he said to Remenyi, "and I'll have it fixed." But Remenyi declined to allow his violin to be that long out of his personal control, and urged Birch to fix it while he was present. This Birch consented to do provided Remenyi would not look at him while he was at work on it. In less than five minutes he banded the violin to Remenyi, with the remark, 'Now try it, and see if it is not as good as ever.' Remenyi did try it, and to his great pleasure he found that it was as good as ever.

"He feared to let Birch touch it again, think that possibly he might take the charm of life out of it, but played several of his best selections for Birch. Though Birch had been repairing violins as well as other instruments nearly all of his life, he had never before heard a great performer play. In the enthusiasm and excitement of the moment, Remenyi packed up his violin and walked away. In talking about the incident afterward, Birch told me that Remenyi, in his indescribable pleasure, had actually forgotten to pay for his cure."

"That fellow," said Birch, "is the wisest fiddler I ever heard of or saw. The only thing the matter with his fiddle was that the bridge was too high. He had put in a new bridge without thinking of it, and supposed the old bridge was in all of the time. 'All I did was to take it out and sandpaper 't off at the bottom.'"

Thousands of Hens on One Ranch.

Some hopeful speculators who have been counting unmatched chickens are about to start a poultry ranch near San Francisco which is to be the largest in the world. It is to reach its full capacity in three years, when it is to put on the market annually 2,000,000 eggs and 90,000 chickens for brooding. The plant will include two incubators, with a capacity of 2,000 eggs each, and no end of houses and pens, which will be contained in a forty-acre ranch. There will be 900 hens laying for the incubators and 10,000 laying for the market.

It is a certainty that not a man alive will ever get into Russell Sage's office to throw another bomb at him. His outer room is furnished like a bank and the visitor's card is shoved through a small hole in the high fence—just such a hole as that through which the paying teller hands money for an honored check. Outside of the fence, against the white plastered wall, stands a long bench, upon which visitors sit.

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

In the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

RIPANS TABLETS

Harry M. Conrad, of No. 1744 Twelfth street, Washington, D. C., says: "I can speak in the highest praise of Ripans Tablets. I have been for years troubled with night-mare (an atrocious expression, but one that thousands are familiar with), and have suffered a thousand deaths, being caused directly by a torpid liver, thence stagnation of the blood. A short while after retiring I would experience the most terrible sensation that human can fall heir to, such as having heavy weights upon you, seeing horrible animals, burglars, etc., and being unable to get out of their reach. I have tried everything on the market that I could think would be of any benefit, but never struck the right remedy until I tried Ripans Tablets, and since that time nightmare with me is a thing of the past. I am fully convinced that Ripans Tablets are a good thing for suffering humanity, and I feel that I could not exist without them. And I will further say for the benefit of others (knowing there are thousands suffering in the same manner), profit by my experience and try them; you will never regret it."

Ripans Tablets are sold by druggists, or by mail at the price of 50 cents per box to the The H. J. Denison Co. Company, No. 10 Spruce Street, New York. Sample list, 10 cents.

GREAT SEED HUBBUB.

COSTLY TRASH SUPPLIED TO THE FARMERS.

Each Receipt of a Free Package Gets Two-thirds of an Ounce, Not Enough to Be Serviceable, and Uncle Sam Pays $105,000 a Year for it.

Congressional Extravagance.

Washington, D. C., April 15.—The bill which provides for the distribution of free seed to the farmers is a costly extravagance. It is not a single seedling that is being sent to the farmer, but a whole bushel of seed, which is not only useless, but a waste of money. The bill provides for the distribution of free seed to the farmers in the amount of one-third of an ounce for each receipt of a free package. This is not enough to be serviceable, and Uncle Sam pays $105,000 a year for it.

Not Enough to Be of Service.

The law prescribes that the seeds shall be of "pure and uncommon varieties." But the Congressmen will have nothing but ordinary garden and field seeds, such as corn, wheat, and rye, and they will be sent in the amount of one-third of an ounce for each receipt of a free package. been laid to rest and the agriculturist looks hopefully forward to a rich reward for his toil. Not only does the farmer expect a good crop this year, but the conditions thus far have been so much more favorable than in several years past that he expects a crop which will fully make up for a few short ones. Nor is the expectation without reason. There is not a single condition looking toward a crop of soil or weather which should bring this hope to the farmer. The soil has received more moisture in the shape of rain and snow than in many years and the weather has been all that could be desired for growing. Therefore, if all these signs count for anything, they indicate a year of prosperity throughout the great West. Even before the first week in May almost half the corn was planted, with considerable of it showing nicely above ground and doing well. In many localities it was even then several inches higher. As the rainfall has been fairly frequent in its visitations during the portion of the season which has passed and fully up to normal, it is but fair to assume that this season's planting will be fully realized. Reports from widely different localities in the great corn producing States point to the fact that moisture has saturated the soil to a much greater depth than in many previous years. This is particularly true with regard to Nebraska, where the favorable outlook of the present time has not, in many parts of the State, been exceeded even in the opinion of old inhabitants. In fact, the prospect is so encouraging that farmers all over the State are letting go their corn and grain to which they had been holding tenaciously since last harvest. In the great field the growth period was not at an end, and they are shipping it eastward in big quantities or feeding it to their stock and fattening pigs for the market.

CUBA'S AMERICAN PRISONERS.

Owen Milton and Alfredo Laborde, Who Were Condemned to Die. The American citizens who are causing all the trouble between Spain and the United States are Owen Milton, a newspaper correspondent, and Alfredo Laborde, who was in command of the schooner Competitor when she was captured by the Spanish gunboat. Milton is the son of D. W. Milton, who was a lieutenant in the Confederate army. He is but 23, a college man, of medium stature, with good features, a fair complexion and a slight mustache. Of late he had been lying in Florida. He went thither from Arkansas, where he had been teaching school. He drifted to Key West, and was there a correspondent for several western newspapers. When the war came in Cuba he determined to go to the island, reach the insurgent lines, and furnish true stories of the revolution to American newspapers. He had engaged himself to do this for a Jacksonville paper among others, and was furnished with the usual credentials. Before leaving Key West Milton stipulated that part of his salary be sent to his father, who lives at Aurora, Ark. All these facts go to disprove the Spanish claim that Milton was taken with arms in hand.

Domestic Exports Increase.

Gain Also in Imports for the Last Ten Months. The exports of domestic merchandise during April, as stated by the bureau of statistics, was $69,818,623, as compared with $63,958,041 during April, 1895. For the ten months ending April 30, 1896, there was a gain over the same period in 1895 of $56,673,690. The imports of merchandise during April were $58,705,299, as against $68,749,958 during April, 1895. Of the total imports a little less than 50 per cent was free of duty. For the ten months there was a gain in imports over the same months last year of about $62,000,000. During April the exports of gold amounted to $3,782,266, as compared with $2,893,010 for April, 1895.

Disgrace of Democracy.

If there is a deflection in the country, it is due to Democratic administration. It is due to dishonor in this country. It is the child of Democratic legislation. If there is an inability to pay the debts of the country, it is the product of Democratic statesmanship. And you stand here paralyzed by your own utter inefficiency. You stand by trying to partition, by scales, by notes and bonds, the responsibilities of this trouble, upon the members of your own party.

IN A SORRY PLIGHT.

DEMOCRACY KNOWS NOT WHAT TO DO.

A Distressed, Discouraged and Disrupted Party Beating the Bush for a Presidential Candidate—Leaders See No Show to Carry the Country.

What Will They Do?

It would require the gift of prophecy to name the man upon whose shoulders the Chicago convention will cast the burden of distressed and discouraged and dispirited Democracy. Candidates are plentiful, and those that are mentioned are not well enough known nationally to make any decided impression. The death of candidates would be ample indication that the Democrats themselves are fully conversant with the situation, but Mr. Cleveland, by his extension of the classified service to 30,000 Democratic officeholders, by which he secured a reputation as a great and good and true statesman, added additional weight to the mass of evidence that the leaders of that party know there is no possible chance for carrying the country. Mr. Cleveland, having made the use he deemed proper of the federal patronage, leaves behind very little official pay to be distributed by his successor. A magnificent and wholly beautiful reformer he is.

But there is a complete appreciation throughout the country of the total lack of sincerity in Grover Cleveland's civil service performances, and here and there can be found a Mugwump or two ready to admit that Mr. Cleveland has acquired a great reputation at no personal sacrifice. The hypocrisy of his action is understood. Therefore it is not of immediate concern. What is more pressing is the question of "What will the Democracy do?" That it will nominate candidates and adopt some sort of a platform is settled, as is the fact that they will enter into the campaign with as much enthusiasm as possible and make a sufficient noise to create an impression that they are really in earnest, whereas they will be performing but a perfunctory duty. They are a sad and troubled set of incompetents, to be sure, and were their record not so palpably bad it might be possible to pity them a little.

Not counting ex-Representative Bland of Missouri, Colonel William R. Morrison of Illinois and Secretary John G. Carlisle of Kentucky, there are now four candidates for the Democratic nomination. Ex-Governor William E. Russell of Massachusetts and ex-Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania have been in the field for the fortnight. The two most recent additions are ex-Governor Campbell of Ohio and Governor Matthews of Indiana. Thus the Democrats have four Governors, three of them "exes," from whom to choose. It is noticeable that three of them, Russell, Pattison and Campbell, have been Governors of Republican States, while one is a Governor of a doubtful State. Probably the fact that these men, under certain conditions, have been victorious, is supposed to add to their availability, but this year "any old thing" will do.

Mr. Russell carried Massachusetts three times by his personal popularity, though once he was elected by a scratch. That would make him formidable if everything were equal. Ex-Gov. Pattison was elected Governor of Pennsylvania because there was a split in the Republican party in the Keystone State. He was just lucky. Ex-Gov. James E. Campbell, of Ohio, has had a varied career. He wants to be nominated and pants for it impatiently. Campbell has been elected and defeated for Congress and has served as Governor of the Buckeye State for one term and been defeated for re-election twice, once by Maj. McKinley and again by Gov. Bushnell. He is a Democrat of the Hill stripe. With him the word "Democracy" is far more important than the principles it represents. He has run for Governor on a free silver platform, on a straddle and as a goldbug. It is the office he seeks, and "hanged be the issue." Gov. Matthews, of Indiana, is the latest addition to the list. He has had long eyes on the presidency ever since Minister Gray died in Mexico. For awhile he was retiring, but modesty has disappeared and Mr. Matthews is running a bureau. He is really a silver man, a protégé of Senators Voorhees and Turpie, but he is anxious to subordinate finance and to "rennate" the party. Bland, of Missouri is a silver man. He commands attention as such and must not be overlooked. He served in the House for years and was defeated two years ago by a Republican. Morrison, of Illinois, is an agnostic in politics, a man with whom a presidential ambition has been a hobby for years. He is neither a goldbug nor silver man, proposes not to veto any financial measure Congress passes, and hopes to be taken up on that issue. Carlisle, of Kentucky, is an ex-silver man converted to "sound money" by Grover Cleveland. He is almost as modest as Russell, but is quite as anxious. The trouble is that his conversion to "sound money" is so recent that "goldbug" trusts him, while the silver men call him a Judas and hate him. Cleveland is still a possibility, but the Mugwumps are beginning to weaken on him. But "What will the Democracy do?"

are made part of the decoration that follows them. They are the same length from collar to hem all around, so when they hang long in front and at the back then they do at the sides where shoulders and sleeves take in their fullness. The example of this type of cape that was chosen for today's second picture was of white cloth, stiffened to set out well over the shoulders and lined with white satin.

TAILOR FINISH TAUNTES.

It was applauded with cut-out green gaiters, the design matching at shoulders and front. Like ornamentation can be gained by embroidery in white silk, santonche or in lace, braid, either Honiton or Rembrandt, and black single or jet embroidery would also be appropriate. Around the neck was a narrow satin band covered with a full pleated ruching of black chiffon. There is more variety in caps than in jackets, and the truth of the matter is that every well-dressed woman needs and it is quite the notion for even very young girls to wear black lace-covered capes. About the neck white lace may be filled on with the black, and perhaps the silk under the cape is bright, but there is a fancy for all black, especially if a light cloth dress is worn, if the hat is all bright with flowers, and if the face beneath makes one think that some of the flowers have fallen off the hat brim and been caught by the collar. Many a maid has sacrificed a handsome umbrella cover of rich lace, cutting out the center and setting the rest on a yoke. One indulged in makeshifts, who, having cut out the center, could

JACKET AND CAPE OF ELABORATENESS.

Free Trade Creates Them.

Free trade offers no protection to trusts.—New York World, April 11, 1896. Just four years later, under a free trade tariff, the same paper occupied nearly a full page of its issue of April 29, 1896, to describe "Five Great Monopolies that Are Now Raising Prices."

Money in the United States.

Per capita of population. 1892.....$36 21 Largest on record. 1895.....24 38 Less than in 1888. Democratic decrease.....$1 83

Hopes It Is Untrue.

It is to be hoped that there is no truth in the rumor that Mr. Reed will decline a renomination to Congress. His absence from that body would be a favor to the Democrats that he cannot afford to grant.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Its correspondents have been warned that reports of political mass meetings, conventions, etc., must be written without personal, factional or party bias, and that all candidates, factions and parties must be treated with absolute fairness. It is the aim of the Times-Herald to print the truth and nothing but the truth, and this rule applies to and includes political as well as other news matter.

During the Presidential Campaign the Times-Herald will be especially valuable to all who wish to survey the field of battle and form their opinions from an impartial standpoint. On the staff of the Times-Herald are found the most renowned writers of the day, some of whom are under commission in distant lands, and it is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Lakes to the Gulf as America's most progressive, most liberal and most interesting daily newspaper.
