Ex-President Harrison will discuss our national finances in an article on "The Secretary of the Treasury," which will appear in the August issue of the Ladies Home Journal. He will tell briefly of the origin of our financial system; its expansion or development; how the nation raises its revenues, and disburses its moneys; and detail the faults of our system of financing. Referring to the methods necessary to maintain our gold reserve General Harrison expresses himself with evident disapproval, and says that "the present situation would be absurd if it were not so serious." The increase or the diminution of the gold reserve, the ex-President asserts, powerfully effects every interest, and the mending of existing conditions will be a task for the wisest and strongest statesmanship.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

The republican county convention was called to order by chairman Grimsley at about 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. J. R. Manning was elected temporary chairman and I. O. Woolston secretary.

On motion of R. C. Osborn the chair appointed the following committee on credentials: R. C. Osborn, Jno. Shannon, W. H. Gildersleeve, Perrin Long and E. C. Brooks. While waiting for the committee on credentials to report a committee consisting of M. S. Davies, Geo. Harrigfield and A. H. Carter was appointed on resolutions.

The committee on credentials reported every precinct in the county except Leslie represented. The temporary organization was then made permanent.

F. L. Neely made a motion that a committee be appointed to select delegates to the different conventions, said committee to consist of one member from each precinct in the county and each member of the committee to be allowed the privilege of naming one man for each of the different delegations, such list of names to be presented to the convention and voted upon. After slight amendments by C. A. Chace and Nels Grimsley the motion carried, each precinct selecting its own member to the committee.

While waiting for this committee to make its selections, the committee on resolutions reported the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, We believe in the integrity and ability of our distinguished fellow citizen, Hon. Frank M. Northrop, be it Resolved: That we favor his nomination as the republican candidate for congressman of the third congressional district, and

Resolved: That we use every honorable means to secure that nomination and hereby instruct the delegates of Wayne county to the congressional convention to vote for him while in their judgment such a vote will assist in his nomination.

Whereas, We as republicans of Wayne county have the greatest confidence in our fellow citizen, Albert M. Jacobs, as to his energy, integrity and business ability, be it

Resolved: That the delegates to the representative convention be instructed to vote for and use every honorable means in their power to secure his nomination as representative for this district.

Whereas, The republican party of Wayne county believes that we are living in a great, though partially undeveloped, portion of the United States, and that the wonderful resources can be better developed in the near future; therefore, be it

Resolved: That we favor the promotion of that great Nebraska enterprise the Trans-mississippi exposition, and will use our best means to forward its interests.

The republicans of Wayne county in convention assembled learn with pleasure of the nomination of their choice, William McKinley, for president, by the national republican convention. We recognize in him as our standard bearer the embodiment of all the requirements of the coming contest. And we hereby heartily ratify the nomination of William McKinley for president and Garrett A. Hobart for vice-president and enthusiastically pledge our united efforts to swell the majority by which the people will demand and elect them.

When the resolution in reference to McKinley was read three rousing cheers were given for the presidential ticket. F. M. Northrop and A. A. Welch were called upon and made short speeches before the convention and each speaker was enthusiastically applauded.

The committee on selecting delegates then reported and the following delegates were elected to the different conventions:

State:—I. O. Woolston, D. Cunningham, Geo. R. Bailey, Dan McManigal, Jno. Donner, Chas. Schulthies, E. C. Brooks, Nels Grimsley and B. F. Swan. Congressional:—Mark Jeffrey, J. H. Prescott, J. R. Manning, W. H. Gildersleeve, A. H. Carter, Geo. Harrigfield, R. C. Osborn, A. B. Jeffrey, M. S. Davies, and F. L. Neely.

Representative:—W. M. Gue, Benj. Wellbaum sr., Wm. Allbee, A. H. Carter, A. J. Swartz, I. W. Steele, Frank Spahr, A. W. Alter, Sam Friedolph and E. M. Smith.

On motion of C. A. Chace, Anson A. Welch was renominated by acclamation for county attorney.

A committee consisting of Joe Jones, Nels Grimsley and Dan McManigal was appointed to fill any vacancies that might occur.

The following are the members of the county central committee for the ensuing year:

Chapin—G. A. Lewis.
Brenna—A. Lindsay.

Plum Creek—Star West.
Strahan—Geo. Porter.
Garfield—Frank Francis.
Wayne, 1st ward—C. A. Chace; 2nd ward—A. T. Witter; 3rd ward—George Fortner.

The manner of selecting delegates to the different conventions seemed to meet with the hearty approval of all. It gives every precinct in the county a chance to be represented on at least one of the delegations.

Anson A. Welch has made an excellent official and it was right and proper that he should be renominated by acclamation.

The Republican national convention completed its work Thursday night. William McKinley, of Ohio, was nominated for President and Garrett A. Hobart, of New Jersey, for Vice-President on a platform that declares for a protective tariff and the single gold standard. The total vote cast for McKinley was 601 1/2. Reed received 84 1/2, Quay 60 1/2, Morton 58, Allison 35 1/2 and Cameron 1. No sooner had Hastings of Pennsylvania and Thomas Platt of New York. Gen. Henderson of Iowa followed. Amid a storm of howls, tooting of fish horns, waving of banners and the playing of the band the motion was put and carried. The pandemonium was so great that the chairman could not be heard. It was after 2 o'clock when the roll call of States for nominations for President was begun. As the roll was called names were manuevered which had seldom been passed before in Republican conventions—Illinois and Indiana—and the monotony was broken only when Gen. Henderson rose at the call of Iowa to announce that John N. Baldwin, of Con-

Senator Lodge, who moved that the nomination of McKinley be made unanimous. This served to bring forth another uproarous outburst.

After McKinley's nomination had been made unanimous and the chair had so declared, the convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for Vice-President. The names of G. A. Hobart of New Jersey, H. Clay Evans of Tennessee, Lippitt of Rhode Island, Walker of Virginia, and Bulkeley of Connecticut were placed in nomination. The nomination of Hobart, like that of McKinley, was decided on the first ballot, and afterward made unanimous.

The third day's session of the Republican national convention was called to order by Chairman Thurston at 10:30 o'clock Thursday forenoon. Five thousand people stood outside the convention hall clamoring for admission and quarreling with doorknockers. Inside the hall there was a restless activity among the delegates and visitors and an eager desire to see the wheels move.

Chairman Thurston without any preliminaries plunged into business by announcing that the first thing on the program was the report of the committee on resolutions. Senator-elect Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, crowded to the front, climbed the steps and presented the platform, while the audience and delegates followed the reading with intense interest.

The preamble refers to four years of Democratic rule compared to thirty years of Republican rule as good grounds to appeal to the American people. The four years of unrestricted rule of the Democratic party is denounced as a calamity and a record of ineptitude. The adverse balance of trade, the deficit in the treasury and the piling up of the public debt and menace to the redemption fund are declared. "We are not pledged to any particular schedule," but the question of rates should be governed by conditions. The restoration of discriminating duties for the upbuilding of the merchant marine is favored. The money plank, which caused so much discussion and over which arose the contention, reads as follows: "We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the lifted his head at the conclusion of the prayer the crowd sank back in their seats and the convention was again under way. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, rose to ask for the committee on resolutions the privilege of sitting during the progress of the convention, reporting that the sub-committee had completed the platform and that it was being considered by the full committee. Minor matters were brought to the attention of the convention by Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, and by a colored delegate from Alabama. The chairman's call for the report of the committee on credentials met no response and that committee was passed. The report of the committee on permanent organization was received and adopted and loud protestations from some of the dissenters.

When the reading clerk, who intoned the committee's report to the house, announced the name of John M. Thurston of Nebraska to be permanent chairman, there was an eruption of flags and cheers from the delegates.

Senator Sewell, of New Jersey, and Congressman Sereno Paine, of New York, were designated to escort the permanent chairman to the platform. They marched down the main aisle, while the delegates jumped as their feet fluttered flags and handkerchiefs, and cheering shrilly. Mr. Fairbanks met the trio as it ascended the steps, and grasped the Nebraska Senator by the hand. Thurston faced the arena with his hands clasped behind him and began to speak.

The punctuation of almost every sentence of the address was a period of yells, rounded off with a fringe of applause and Baldwin Names Allison.

When the roll of States was called in the national Republican convention for the nomination of presidential candidates, Iowa was the first to respond, and when it was reached John M. Baldwin arose to place the name of Senator Allison in nomination.

There is one, but only one, of those whose names will be presented to this convention who can claim that there has been placed for him in history's golden ring an estimate of his character and worth made by him or whom nature stamped her royal seal. God exhibited as his greatest design of American manhood, gentleness, manliness, and patriotism, one who, now in his old age, wears a crown of deathless praise, and whose great soul is a portion of eternity itself. James G. Blaine, writing of him, said: "Then comes Allison. He is true, kind, reasonable, fair, honest, and good. He is methodical, industrious, and intelligent, and would be a splendid aid to any man in any and every success." Compiling with the request of the Iowa delegation, I rise to propose to this convention that you confer the honor to whom this heritage was bequeathed, William B. Allison, and to ask you to make it on the old and new testament of Republicanism. With the most perfect knowledge of the details of all our political laws and their histories, with that statesmanlike judgment which distinguishes the great from the accidental and the immutable from the transitory, "with every look a cordial smile, every gesture a earnest," yet with a spirit of strength and vigor, he has for thirty-five years upon the floor of the House and Senate been the champion of the interests of the people, carrying upward and upward the nation's legislative work. Allison does not believe in a tariff for revenue only, but in a tariff for protection, and he would not build a platform for sound money, and I can assure you that the United States can no more make good money by covering its debt with gold than it can by marking off authority, on any kind of metal, regardless of its commercial value or relations to foreign countries, than it can extend its dominion by cutting and projecting the arm of a man and a thrill of joy will go from the West to the East, carrying on its trembling wave the songs of our people only to be lost in the roar of your factories.

Depew's Eloquence.

National Republican conventions have been epoch makers. They have formulated the policy, and suggested the measures of the hour. In the history of the world there has never been a more aggressive period. The United States is a part of the world, and the world is a part of the United States. The whole country, North, South, East, and West, without any division in our lines, or any of those lines which have appeared in the last three years, for the protection of American industries, for the principle of reciprocity, and for America for Americans. The United States is a part of the world, and the world is a part of the United States. The whole country, North, South, East, and West, without any division in our lines, or any of those lines which have appeared in the last three years, for the protection of American industries, for the principle of reciprocity, and for America for Americans.

Lodge's Speech for Reed.

We are gathered here to choose the United States. That we will win the election, we can not doubt. But let us not deceive ourselves with the pleasant fancy that we are to be a hard battle; it cannot be otherwise when so much is at stake. Let us not be deceived. Against the Republican party, representing fixed American principles, strength, progress and order, will be arrived not only that organized failure, the Democratic party, but the chaotic and conflicting forces of political chaos and social disorder. It is not merely the Presidency which is set before us as the prize. The prosperity of our country, the protection of our industries, the soundness of our currency, and the national credit are all staked on the great issue. To drive the Democratic party from power is the first step and the highest duty. We shall triumph in vain and in our failure shall meet heavy punishments at the hands of the people if we do not put our victory to right tests. Such a crisis as this cannot be met and such a victory as this cannot be won. We must face our future, face slavery and disunion. We want a President who will meet this situation as Lincoln met it, but with the aid of the Republicans about him and with party and people at his back. We want a President who on the 5th day of next March will summon Congress in extra session, and say that all else must wait until Congress sends to him a tariff which shall put money in the treasury and will not weaken the American workman. We want a President who will protect at all hazards the gold reserves of the treasury, and who will never forget that the nation has never done a penny's worth of business since the war, and that the nation has never done a penny's worth of business since the war, and that the nation has never done a penny's worth of business since the war.

When the roll of States was called in the national Republican convention for the nomination of presidential candidates, Iowa was the first to respond, and when it was reached John M. Baldwin arose to place the name of Senator Allison in nomination.

There is one, but only one, of those whose names will be presented to this convention who can claim that there has been placed for him in history's golden ring an estimate of his character and worth made by him or whom nature stamped her royal seal. Hastings Names Quay.

Pensylvania comes to the convention with great unanimity asks you to name a standard-bearer who will represent only the principles and conditions, but the highest hopes and aspirations of the Republican party. A man who has been a true supporter in every great movement; a potent factor in the life of his country; a man whose every vote and utterance has been the side of sound money, fair prices, and the strong and sturdy independence. Those whom I represent and who ask his nomination at your hands point to a statesman who has been in the forefront of every battle for his party; who has been its champion, its wise counselor, its organizer, and the successful leader of its foreign hopes. He was with those patriots who risked their lives for the Republic; he was among the first to comprehend the magnitude of the armed debate of '61 and to give himself to the "valley of the shadow of death" for the maintenance of American protection, American credit, and American policy. Let the people in the campaign which this convention inaugurates, elect the man who they are willing to live through another free-trade panic. Let the wage-earner and the wage-payer contemplate the bitter experiences which brought to the home of the Republic the ruin of the farmer. Let the American farmer compare your produce prices with free-trade prices. Let the man who works for a livelihood determine each for himself, if he craves to be paid in American dollars, disgraced and devalued, he will elect the man who will let the widow, the orphan, and the loving parent who gave up that which was as precious as life, behind the flag, and all its safety advanced to a foreign and domestic joint syndicate to raise temporary loans for the purpose of postponing the final financial ruin of the home of the Republic. McKinley Nominated by Foraker.

It would be exceedingly difficult if not entirely impossible to exaggerate the disapproval of our people in the last four years. The grand aggregate had resulted in a Democratic administration may be summed up as one unmitigated disaster; it has been disaster, however, not without at least one redeeming feature. It has been fair; nobly has it escaped it. It has fallen equally alike upon all sections of our country, and all ranks of our people. The Republican and the Democrat, the rich and the poor, the high and the low—have suffered in common. The misdeeds and its consequent poverty and distress have been the rewards of labor; distress and bankruptcy have overtaken business, shrunken values have disappeared, and efficient revenues have been denied the Government, brought about bond issues and bond syndicates, have discouraged and scandalized the nation. Over against this great compensatory result. It has destroyed the Democratic party. The proud colors which swept the country in triumph, 1862 are broken and noiseless in 1896. Their boasted principles when they came to the test of a practical application, have degenerated into warring chieftains of petty and irreconcilable factions. Their approach to the National Convention, and their approaching national nightmare. No man pretends to be able to predict any good result to come from it, and no man is seeking the annihilation of that convention to avoid any kind of public trust by proclaiming his willingness to stand upon any platform that may be adopted. The truth is, the party that could stand up under the odium of human slavery, opposition to the war, for the entire history of the Republic, and its resumption, at last finds itself overmatched and undone by itself. It is writhing in the throes of dissolution, superinduced by a dose of the most potent medicine that can prevent its absolute overthrow at the next election, except only this convention. If we make no mistake the Democratic party will go out of power, and the Republican party will be elected. No man pretends to be able to predict any good result to come from it, and no man is seeking the annihilation of that convention to avoid any kind of public trust by proclaiming his willingness to stand upon any platform that may be adopted. The truth is, the party that could stand up under the odium of human slavery, opposition to the war, for the entire history of the Republic, and its resumption, at last finds itself overmatched and undone by itself. It is writhing in the throes of dissolution, superinduced by a dose of the most potent medicine that can prevent its absolute overthrow at the next election, except only this convention. If we make no mistake the Democratic party will go out of power, and the Republican party will be elected. Scrofula

Is a deep-seated blood disease which all the mineral mixtures in the world cannot cure. S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) is a real blood remedy for blood diseases and has no equal.

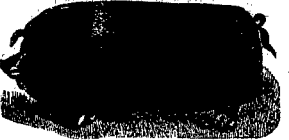

Mrs. Y. T. Buck of Delaney, Ark., had Scrofula for twenty-five years and most of the time was under the care of the doctors who could not relieve her. A specialist said he could cure her, but he filled her with arsenic and potash which almost ruined her constitution. She then took nearly every so-called blood medicine and drank them by the wholesale, but they did not reach her trouble. Some one advised her to try S.S.S. and she very soon found that she had a real blood remedy at last. She says: "After taking one dozen bottles of S.S.S. I am perfectly well, my skin is clear and healthy, and I would not be in my former condition for two thousand dollars. Instead of drying up the poison in my system, like the potash and arsenic, S.S.S. drove the disease out through the skin, and I was permanently rid of it."

A Real Blood Remedy.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO.

How To Cure Yourself While Using It

The tobacco habit grows on a man until his nervous system is seriously affected, impairing health, comfort and happiness. To quit suddenly is to sever a shock for the system, as tobacco to an inveterate user becomes a stimulant that his system continually craves. "Baco-Curo" is a scientific cure for the tobacco habit in all its forms, carefully compounded after the formula of an eminent Berlin physician who has used it in his private practice since 1872, without a failure. It is purely vegetable and guaranteed perfectly harmless. You can use all the tobacco you want while taking "Baco-Curo." It will notify you when to stop. We give a written guarantee to cure, permanently any case with three boxes, or refund the money with 10 per cent interest. "Baco-Curo" is not a substitute, but a scientific cure, that cures without the aid of will power and with no inconvenience. It leaves the system pure and free from nicotine as the day you took your first chew or smoke.

Cured By Baco-Curo and Gained 80 Pounds. From hundreds of testimonials, the originals of which are on file and open to inspection the following is presented:

Clayton, Nevada, Cal., Ark., Jan. 28, 1895. Eureka Chemical & Mfg. Co., La Crosse, Wis.—Gentleman: For forty years I used tobacco in all its forms. For twenty-five years of that time I was a great sufferer from general debility and heart disease. For fifteen years I tried to quit, but couldn't. I took various remedies, among others "No-To-Bac," "The Indian Tobacco Antidote," "Double Chloride of Gold," etc., etc., but none of them did me the least bit of good. Finally, however, I purchased a box of your "Baco-Curo" and it has entirely cured me of the habit in all its forms, and I have increased thirty pounds in weight and am relieved from all the numerous aches and pains of body and mind. I could write a quire of paper upon my changed feelings and condition. Yours respectfully,
P. H. LABURNY,
Pastor C. P. Church, Clayton, Ark.

HERE—it is always cool in Colorado.

Colorado is nearly a mile higher than Nebraska and Iowa. That is why its summers are so pleasant—why thousands annually exchange the sweltering heat of the plains for the delightful, invigorating, life-giving atmosphere of the mountains.

The quickest and most comfortable way to get to Colorado is to take the Burlington's "Denver Limited," which leaves Omaha every afternoon at 4:35, reaching Denver at 7:30 the next morning.

Scrofula

Is a deep-seated blood disease which all the mineral mixtures in the world cannot cure. S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) is a real blood remedy for blood diseases and has no equal.

Mrs. T. Beck, of Delaney, Ark., had Scrofula for twenty-five years and most of the time was under the care of the doctors who could not relieve her.

A specialist said he could cure her, but he filled her with arsenic and potash which almost ruined her constitution. She then took nearly every so-called blood medicine and drank them by the wholesale, but they did not reach her trouble. Some one advised her to try S.S.S. and she very soon found that she had a real blood remedy at last. She says: "After taking one dozen bottles of S.S.S. I am perfectly well, my skin is clear and healthy and I would not be in my former condition for two thousand dollars. Instead of drying up the poison in my system, like the potash and arsenic, S.S.S. drove the disease out through the skin, and I was permanently rid of it."

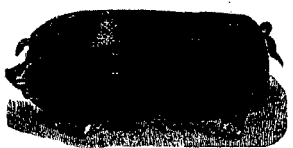

A Real Blood Remedy.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO.

How to Cure Yourself While Using It.

The tobacco habit grows on a man until his nervous system is seriously affected, impairing health, comfort and happiness. To quit suddenly is to sever a shock for the system, as tobacco to an inveterate user becomes a stimulant that his system continually craves.

"Baco-Curo" is a scientific cure for the tobacco habit in all its forms, carefully compounded after the formula of an eminent Berlin physician who has used it in his private practice since 1872, without a failure. It is purely vegetable and guaranteed perfectly harmless. You can use all the tobacco you want while taking "Baco-Curo." It will notify you when to stop. We give a written guarantee to cure permanently any case with three boxes, or refund the money with 10 per cent. interest. "Baco-Curo" is not a substitute, but a scientific cure, that cures without the aid of will power and with no inconvenience. It leaves the system pure and free from nicotine as the day you took your first chew or smoke.

Gentleman: For forty years I used tobacco in all its forms. For twenty-five years of that time I was a great sufferer from general debility and heart disease. For fifteen years I tried to quit, but couldn't. I took various remedies, among others "No-To-Bac," "The Indian Tobacco Antidote," "Double Chloride of Gold," etc., etc., but none of them did me the least bit of good. Finally, however, I purchased a box of your "Baco-Curo" and it has entirely cured me of the habit in all its forms, and I have increased thirty pounds in weight and am relieved from all the numerous aches and pains of body and mind. I could write a quire of paper upon my changed feelings and condition. Yours respectfully,

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

Public and Private Life of the Man from Ohio.

NO BLOT ON HIS 'SCUTCHEON.

From Boyhood to Manhood His Record Has Been Without a Stain.

HIS BRIGHT CAREER AS A STATESMAN

Did Magnificent Work in the House of Representatives.

QUIET, dignified, modest, considerate of others, ever mindful of the long service of the veterans of his party, true as steel to his friends, unhesitating at the call of duty, no matter what the personal sacrifice; unwavering in his integrity, full of tact in overcoming opposition, yet unyielding on vital party principles, with a heart full of sympathy for those who toil, a disposition unspoiled by success and a private life as spotless as self-sacrificing, William McKinley stands before the American people to-day as one of the finest types of courageous, persevering, vigorous and developing manhood that the republic has ever produced. He is, perhaps, more than any other Presidential possibility in touch with those whom Abraham Lincoln loved to call the plain people of the country.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY AS BREWET MAJOR OF THE TWENTY-THIRD OHIO VOLUNTEERS.

He has marched in the ranks side by side with the private soldier. He has tasted poverty and learned useful lessons of frugality as a young man and struggling lawyer. He has had an insight into the woes and sufferings of sorrowing folded. Here he remained until his 17th year, when his father sent him to Alleghany College. His studies here were very soon interrupted by the outbreak of the war.

The Call to Arms.
When the call to arms came, the slight, pale-faced, gray-eyed, earnest and patriotic young student flung aside his books and decided to shoulder a musket for the preservation of the Union. To be sure, he was young, but there was splendid Scotch-Irish fighting stuff in him, and so without much consideration as to the result, the college student enlisted as a private. He had no particular influence, no powerful friends, nothing but a clear mind and a stout heart brimful of patriotism and love for the Union, to help him in the weary marches, dangerous expeditions and the fierce conflict of war times. He joined a company which had been quickly formed at his home, and which had assumed the rather pretentious designation of the "Poland Guards."

He was mustered in with the company at Columbus. The company had previously selected its officers. A young man named Zimmerman, who was older than most of the others, and had at one time served as a private in an independent militia company in Pennsylvania, where he learned to right-about-face and a few other rudiments, was by reason of his experience elected captain. A youth named Rice was elected first lieutenant, and J. L. Botsford, now a resident of Youngstown, was second lieutenant. The company was mustered in by Gen. Fremont, who, with the medical officer, examined each of the boys. This was in June, 1861, and from that time Maj. McKinley's history as a soldier begins.

A Veteran While a Youth.
Aided by nothing save a good constitution, a quick perception, a courteous bearing, a brave heart and the highest conceptions of duty, the young private advanced step by step until at the close of the war he was mustered out as captain and brevet major of the same regiment in which he enlisted (Twenty-third Ohio Volunteer Infantry). During this period he served on the staff of Brigadier General Rutherford B. Hayes, who was afterward President of the United States. He was also honored with a position on the staff of the brave Indian fighter, Gen. Crook, and subsequently on that of Brigadier General Hays.

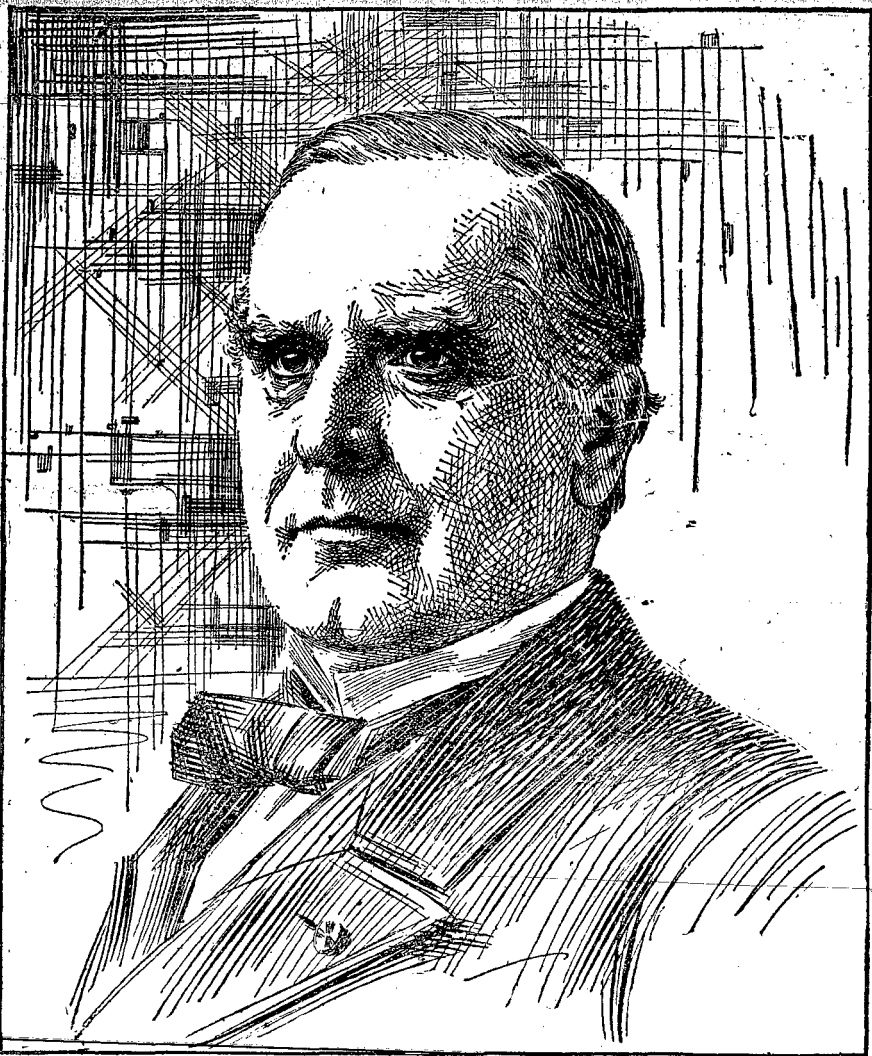

Thus William McKinley, at a period in life when most young men are graduating and preparing to enter their profession, had experienced over four years of active warfare and had contributed as many years of his life to the active military service of his country as any veteran of the civil war. Such a career must, indeed, have fascinations for the youth of the country.

The war ended. The youthful soldier modestly laid aside his regimentals, wasted no time in recounting his exploits and adventures as a soldier, and entered upon the study of the law. He graduated from the Albany (N. Y.) Law School. One year after the close of the war he was a brilliant young lawyer in the then little town of Canton, Ohio, studying early and late, and endeavoring to eke out a somewhat scanty living by the aid of such retainers and fees as would come to one so inexperienced in civil war and yet so inexperienced in the practice of the legal profession. He managed admirably the few cases which came to him, and his brilliancy and ability soon attracted the at-attention of Judge Belden, a leading lawyer in Canton, who took him into a partnership, which lasted until the Judge's death in 1870. That the people of the town where William McKinley had decided to pass his life appreciated him and recognized his ability there can be no possible doubt, for in 1869, three years after his advent, he was elected Prosecuting Attorney of Stark County, and held that position for some years. Maj. McKinley soon developed into an able and successful lawyer. He was an excellent advocate, and made some of the best jury arguments ever made at the Stark County bar. At the time he was first elected to Congress he enjoyed one of the leading places and one of the best general practices in the country. As a lawyer Mr. McKinley was always thorough and careful in the preparation of cases. He had the confidence of everybody, and soon became particularly prominent as an advocate. He prepared himself by thorough courses of reading for his public career. He is much like Garfield in this respect, and possesses elements of strength by reason of his thorough study of political subjects. He seems to have had in view from the beginning the devotion of his life to public service. During all this time he was an active participant in Republican campaigns, and early gave evidence of the power he has since developed as a public speaker and orator. The plan of his political speaking on an occasion never to be forgotten. It demonstrated to the Republicans of the United States that there was unquestionable Presidential material in Maj. McKinley; that he was at least a Presidential possibility who could afford to bide his time; that a mere accidental nomination had no charms for him, but that he was willing to win the place.

MAJOR M'KINLEY'S HOME AT CANTON, OHIO.

has always been the same. He first thoroughly masters the subject in hand and then presents it forcibly. While other members of the Stark County bar have taken more or less interest in politics, none of them have ever given the subject so much study and care before speaking.

In Congress.
Maj. McKinley was but 33 years old when he was elected by the people of his district to represent them in Congress. There he soon made his mark, and was returned at each subsequent election until that of 1880, in which year a gerrymander of his district defeated him by a majority of only 300. This was the culminating one of several efforts on the part of the Democratic Legislature to gerrymander McKinley out of Congress. Three times was Mr. McKinley gerrymandered. In 1878 he was placed in a district consisting of Stark, Wayne, Ashland and Portage Counties, which was naturally Democratic.

While in Congress he served on the Committee of Revision of Laws, the Judiciary Committee, the Committee on Expenditures in the Postoffice Department and the Committee on Rules. When Gen. Garfield received the nomination for the Presidency Mr. McKinley was assigned to the vacancy on the Committee on Ways and Means. He served on the last mentioned committee until the expiration of his last term as Congressman. While chairman of this committee he framed the McKinley bill, which afterward became a law, and which still bears his name.

A delegate favorable to Maj. McKinley exclaimed, during the period of the deadlock of the Chicago convention: "Let the man who wrote the platform be our standard bearer for 1888." Perhaps it is true that Maj. McKinley had hardly reached the point in 1888 where he could have properly been nominated in a convention where the names of so many true and tried veterans had been presented. However, this may be, it is certain that no one would have declared the fact in a more unhesitating and a more earnest manner than he did himself. It was done that which could even be ground for anyone to suspect that I wavered in my loyalty to Ohio or my devotion to the chief of her choice and the chief of mine. I do request—I demand—that no delegate would not cast reflection upon me should I cast a ballot for me."

Mr. McKinley spoke earnestly and with great sincerity. When he had concluded his speech the audience applauded generously. It was a speech thoroughly characteristic of the man.

Honor Over All.
Four years later, at the Republican convention in Minneapolis, Maj. McKinley had again an opportunity to show that he prized honor above personal advantage of any kind, even though it involved the nomination to the highest office in the gift of any people—the Presidency of the United States—and grandly he rose to the occasion. When the State of Ohio was reached in the call on the first ballot for President, the leader of the delegation announced its votes for William McKinley Jr. This was the signal for a spontaneous burst of enthusiasm from the floor and galleries. Harried consultations of the various State delegations were held, and amid the cheers and applause which still continued, one leader after another rose to announce the change of the vote of his State to McKinley. The Major, evidently much affected by the demonstration, but firm and composed, rose in his place as presiding officer of the convention. Immediately the tumult was hushed. All bent eagerly forward to hear what the great leader had to say. All felt that a most critical moment had arrived—a moment which might decide who should be the standard-bearer of the party. In unflinching tones Maj. McKinley demanded a poll of the delegates from Ohio and declared that he was not a candidate and that the delegates should vote as they had been instructed by the people of their State, without regard to personal considerations of any kind. The tide was checked, the ballot proceeded and the result is a matter of history. Twice did Maj. McKinley put from him a nomination which would have been purchased at the expense of broken pledges.

Public Services.
The States which advanced the war tax the Government are indebted to Mr. McKinley more, probably, than to anyone for the refund of that tax to the

He reported and passed the organizing the time for its consideration, the fact that Ohio got more than a ton and a quarter of dollars, some of which went to supply its depleted treasury largely due to Mr. McKinley's debates on the famous Lodge bill and the bill in the Fifty-first Congress closed by Mr. McKinley. His speech on the Lodge bill was a very forcible one of five minutes' duration. The eloquence of his speech were as follows: "Speaker and gentlemen of the House, remember that God puts no nation in supreme place which will not do supreme duty. God keeps no nation in supreme place which will not perform the supreme duty of the hour, and he will not long prosper that nation which will not protect and defend its weakest citizens. It is our supreme duty to enforce the Constitution and laws of the United States, and dare to be strong for the weak." Gentlemen, on the other side, I appeal to you to obey the laws and Constitution; obey them as we obey and preserve them; for I tell you the people of the North will not continue to permit two votes in the South to count as much as five votes in the North."

Probably most people at all familiar with the work of legislation realize that the most difficult parliamentary work which falls to the lot of a Congressman is the passage to the House of a great revenue bill containing thousands of items and covering every interest in the country. The tariff bill of which Mr. McKinley was the author passed the House, with the exception of only two minor amendments, exactly as it came from the committee. As chairman of the committee Mr. McKinley had to reply to the countless questions that were being asked by Congressmen on both sides of the House. For four weeks while the House was in session he was almost constantly upon his feet, and the tax upon his physical and mental faculties must have been an immense one.

As Governor.
The overwhelming election of Gov. McKinley for a second term as the chief executive officer of Ohio made the manner of his administration of State affairs a matter of general interest. It is indicative of what might be expected of him in a higher position. When he was gerrymandered out of the district which he had represented with distinguished ability in Congress he became, as the leading exponent of the leading Republican principle, the candidate of the Ohio Republicans for Governor of the State. So general was the sentiment that there was no candidate against him. His nomination, at a time when success had been assured by miserable Democratic management of State affairs, and when, under ordinary circumstances, there would have been an array of candidates in the field, was tendered him by a unanimous convention, under conditions that made the tender one of the most notable events of Ohio's political history. The Major's triumphant election is a matter of common history.

Taken in every respect the administrations of Gov. McKinley were phenomenally successful.

His Home Life.
Few statesmen ever underwent a greater nerve strain than did Mr. McKinley when, as Republican leader of the House, he was preparing the famous tariff bill which bears his name. His conscientious desire to do universal justice and the necessity of pleasing all and offending none in the measure was to help his party; the infinite detail of the committee hearings, and the arrangement of the minutiae of the schedules, were surely enough to have sent an ordinary man home from the Capitol at night querulous and weary. But McKinley's strength seems to be to begin where most men's ends. Week after week, month after month, while for many hours every day he was passing through this terrible strain of mind and nerves, McKinley left his place as watcher of the people's interests at the Capitol only to watch by an invalid wife's bedside at night. Always calm, strong and strengthening, never yielding to petty annoyances or weariness, he insisted during all this time on taking himself the place by the one he loved which might very well have been delegated to a trained nurse. A friend who knew of this call it the most beautiful picture of domestic devotion he has ever seen.

An article in the Ladies' Home Journal thus speaks of Mrs. McKinley: For a while after their marriage Maj. and Mrs. McKinley boarded, but finding this mode of life unsatisfactory they betook themselves to housekeeping in a street near Mrs. McKinley's old home. Here on Christmas day, 1871, their first child, a daughter, was born. She lived to be only 3 years of age. A second child, also a daughter, died in infancy.

In her assistance to her husband in his political life Mrs. McKinley's achievements have not in any way been restricted by her ill health. When political honors were first offered Maj. McKinley, his wife did everything in her power to overcome his reluctance to accept them. Believing firmly that his talents and integrity would be of the greatest value to his State, she was able to convince him of his duty, and from that first moment to the present time she has encouraged him by her faith and aided him by her practical advice and assistance.

A Truly Noble Man.
Simple in his tastes, quiet in his manners, firm in his stand for a principle he believes right, McKinley is one of the most courteous men in public life. He makes no enemies, and holds all who know him as friends. His patience is equal to his physical endurance, and he can speak and travel and shake hands all day, and still sit down at night and explain with utmost patience the mysteries of a tariff schedule, or be the most charming companion in a quiet smoke. But in all his sociability there is a purity of speech and thought that makes it as impossible for other men to introduce coarseness or vulgarity as it would be were their mothers, wives, or sisters present. Added to this, the devotion of McKinley to his invalid wife makes him the ideal man in the eyes of women.

noble, true lover, and such McKinley is to-day, as tender and as gallant to his sweetheart wife as he ever was before they were married, a quarter of a century ago.
