MILLS, NOT MINTS.

More truth cannot be crowded into an equal number of words than is found in this passage of Major McKinley's speech in reply to a congratulatory address from some of his old comrades in arms:

"I do not know what you think about it, but I believe it is a good deal better to open up the mills of the United States to the labor of America than to open up the mints of the United States to the silver of the world."

This goes hard and straight to the roots of the matter.

Times are not dull in Pittsburg because there is no mint coining silver or gold dollars in that city, but because the great iron-works are not running on full time. There was no mint at work in South Chicago when the rolling mills were at work by day and by night, but there was a wage roll of $6,000,000 a year. It was not because of the activity of the mints that Louisiana nearly doubled its output, but because of the McKinley bounty. It was not because the mints were more active in 1891 than in 1893, that in the first year men were striking because they could not earn more than $3 per day, and in the last year hunting for work at 75 cents, and, for the most part not finding it. The mints were turning out as much money in 1893 as in 1891. But the mills were not turning out so many yards of cloth or tons of iron.

Start the mills and the mints will become active. Return to protection and the currency will settle itself.—Inter Ocean

When Bryan or anyone else states that the republican party favors gold monometallism, he or they intentionally or ignorantly falsify, but Bryan's attempt to deceive the people in his New York speech of acceptance fell flat and instead of continuing east he will be turned toward the west by his bosses where it is hoped his oratorical fallacies will fall on more susceptible ears. The republican party is neither in favor of gold or silver monometallism, but seeks to keep silver dollars worth 100 cents by continuing their present domestic parity with gold; and further by international agreement to give it a universal parity. "Free and unlimited coinage of silver" means silver monometallism in the United States and untold misery. Can you afford it?

The popocrats who are circulating the story that Englishmen come to this country and buy $20 in silver certificates for a little more than $9 in gold with which to buy the farmers wheat, will find that such lies will have a decidedly bad effect on their cause before election. No Englishmen or any other person can buy a silver certificate for one cent less than its face value now but if "free and unlimited coinage" should ever prevail, such a thing as the above will happen. Never in history has there been such a campaign of lies carried on by any party as that of the popocrats. They are getting hopelessly desperate and are resorting to most any and every means to gain a vote.

To day Senators Stewart and Jones want free silver. In 1874 they denounced a free coinage bill as an attempt to reduce the value of the workingman's dollar. Better for their standing in the national history had they stood fast to the honest dollar they advocated at that time.—Times-Herald.

When Henry Clay said that protection was the American policy he meant it. The American people are for the American policy and that's why McKinley and Hobart will be elected.

The Bryan fellows are in hard rows when they are compelled to sign the rolls of from two to three clubs in order to make even a decent showing.

Bourke Cookran's reply to Bryan's New York speech is one of the finest productions it has been the HERALD's good fortune to read. It will be good reading for popocrats. Mr. Cookran is a democrat but his American patriotism reaches far above party lines.

A question has arisen among publishers in regard to the method of counting the squares contained in the constitutional amendments. By straight measurement the notices amount to $392. But some printers claim that each amendment should be counted as a separate legal notice. The second amendment which makes two squares, would count three squares by that method, and it would make a difference of one-half square or more with each of the amendments. If this method of computation is correct, it will add about $50 dollars to the total. It is to be hoped there will be some printers elected to the legislature this fall, and that the newspapers will get every cent legally due them.—Nebraska Editor.

Cards have been received "in Wayne announcing the coming marriage of Miss Katie B. Kegnier, a former teacher in our public schools, to Wm. E. Davis at West Liberty, Iowa, Wednesday, Sept. 2nd. They will be at home to their friends in Omaha after Sept. 20.

The farmers in general throughout the county, and especially those with whom the Herald has conversed on the subject, are of the opinion that the corn crop will average from 40 to 50 bushels per acre, and a few have stated that they would have as high as 60 bushels to the acre.

Sixty people attended the democratic meeting at Plum Creek Saturday night. Twenty-five were from Wayne, ten were boys under 14 years of age, ten were McKinley men, leaving fourteen for Bryan from Plum Creek and one from Brenna. Jas. Britton and W. M. Wright spoke, also a tramp pretending to be from Colorado.

The republican congressional convention of the third district might look to Wayne with profit and select our able townsman Frank M. Northrop for their standard bearer. He has not been making any special effort to secure the nomination and has engendered no ill feeling, therefore would go into the battle with the full force at his back.

Geo. W. Smalley, the famous American editor-author, has been granted a two months' holiday by his paper, the London Times, and has gone abroad on a special mission for The Ladies' Home Journal. He has engaged to prepare a short series of articles for that magazine, and is gathering the material for them in Europe. The work will necessitate his spending part of the summer in England, and the remainder in Germany.

Quite a number of Wayne people attended the harvest picnic at Dixon Saturday. People were present by the hundreds from all over the northeast part of the state. The principal feature was the debate on the silver question between John L. Webster of Omaha, and Mr. Harrington of O'Neill. The friends of each seemed highly pleased with the manner in which they discussed the question. In the twenty minutes allowed Mr. Webster in closing, it was plainly evident that Mr. Harrington was out of his class when he engaged in debate with his opponent.

There are about one hundred teachers in attendance at the institute this week and excellent work is being done by instructors, Prof. Boner, Dan Miller and Miss Herriok. Tuesday evening Judge Norris lectured at the Presbyterian church. The lecture was a good one and thoroughly appreciated by those present. Superintendent Collins of Dodge county lectured at the High school building yesterday afternoon. Next Tuesday night Dan Miller, of Fremont, lectures at the Presbyterian church, and Wednesday afternoon Prof. Boner delivers a lecture to the teachers at the school house. Next Thursday evening State Superintendent Corbett lectures at the M. E. church. H. L. Wells and Prof. Miller of West Point, are in attendance at the institute.

Mrs. R. Utter and Mrs. Weber entertained the ladies of the Acme Club and their husbands Monday evening at the home of the former.

Mrs. E. M. Smith entertained a number of friends at a lawn party Friday evening. Delightful refreshments were served during the evening.

The World-Herald acknowledges that it lied when it published an article said to be copied from the London Financial News. The fake factory has been found out. Can it expect people to believe anything it prints.

Today the Presbyterian Sunday School is pioneering at the Bressler grove eight miles southeast of the city. Conveyances of every description were seen leaving the city about ten o'clock and well-filled baskets were stored away in many of them.

Fred Sebald was given a hearing before Judge Martin Tuesday for a crime said to have been committed about two years ago. The evidence being insufficient to bind the defendant over to the district court he was released. The public in general hope that this will end the matter.

M. N. Conover, who for the past six months has been studying the silver question has decided in favor of sound money and has announced his intentions of voting for McKinley and Hobart. The few republicans who were not satisfied are fast returning to the ranks as they study the matter closely.

The Ladies Aid to the Presbyterian Hospital, in Omaha will serve lunches for the benefit of the Hospital, at the Y. M. C. A. building, corner 16th and Douglas Sts., for five days during State Fair week. Beginning with Tuesday September 1st, lunch can be had from 11:30 a. m. to 2:00 p. m. and from 5 to 7:30 p. m. for 25 cents per meal. The patronage of those visiting Omaha during the State Fair is most earnestly solicited.

For the benefit of a local free silver advocate who claims that Bryan will carry Wayne we furnish the following figures. That town has 375 voters, and also has a McKinley club. 210 of these voters are members of this club, beside about 60 of McKinley men who are not members of the club, making 260 McKinley men.—Randolph Reporter.

Yes, since the Reporter received the above information however, several new members have joined the McKinley club of this city.

The opera house has been secured by the young mens McKinley and Bryan clubs for a joint debate, which will take place Friday evening, August 28, beginning at eight o'clock. Edward Lundburg and Fred French will represent the McKinley club and Elmer Lundburg and George Wibur the Bryan club. The question for debate is "Resolved, that the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the present legal ratio, disregarding the action of other nations, is for the best interest of the people of the United States." Both the McKinley and Bryan Glee clubs will be in attendance and the meeting will be an interesting one. Everybody invited.

A free silver orator of the Carl Brown type who is touring this portion of the state came up from West Point last Tuesday evening, and proceeded to issue free and unlimited harangues on finance from the street corners. His ideas partook of the nature of their inspiration, being principally froth. He sails under the name of M. D. Gannon, claims to hail from Leadville, Col., and boasts of his Irish blood. He is making a thorough canvass, therefore if our sister towns haven't heard him yet they'll hear him by and by. A hose is said to be the best means of extinguishing him, as he seems to have a great dread of water.—Wisner Chronicle.

The same fellow delivered a speech on the steers here Saturday and proceeded to tell the people all about how to manage their affairs. After which the hat was passed and several nickels and dimes were dropped into the slot. A short time afterward a few popocrats were charged with getting "full" by proxy.

COLLEGE GRADUATES.

The Fifth Annual Commencement of the Nebraska Normal College—The Alumni Banquet.

The exercises of the fifth annual Commencement of the Nebraska Normal College closed with the Alumni banquet last Friday evening. The events of one more year, of College life have passed into history and the large number of graduates from the different departments have passed "From School Life to Life's School." The exercises of the entire week were good. The great majority of the speakers delivered their orations in a clear, strong voice, but as is always the case with so large a class, there were some whose voices were weak and it was difficult to make themselves heard throughout the hall. But taken as a whole the orations were excellent, and Prof. Pile and his corps of teachers have every reason to feel proud of the class of '96.

The opera house was crowded each evening and the people showed their appreciation of the exercises by heartily applauding each speaker.

The orations of the teachers' class were given Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Monday evening the program was opened with prayer by Rev. W. C. Eckhart, followed by a piano solo by Ethel Tucker. Then came American Patriotism, by Wm. H. Graves; Infrimities of Men of Genius, Mary M. Van Lom; The Prime Object, Sarah Marley; Vocal Solo, Spring's Awakening, Mae Cunningham; True Citizenship, J. Milford Paul; The Night Brings Forth the Stars, Josie M. Sundry; Man is Born Free but is Everywhere Bound in Chains, Henriette Schlotfeldt; We Build for Eternity, Ted N. Sundry; To be Rather than to Seem (Elocution), M. Katherine Williams; Only the Dawn, Daisy Woods. The exercises of the evening closed with an excellent quartette by Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Utter, Messrs Keller and Wilbur, and the benediction by Rev. W. C. Eckhart.

Tuesday evening the Divine blessing was invoked by Rev. Jones, followed by a piano solo by Josie Sundry; The Power of Ideals by J. Fred French; International Arbitration, Elizabeth J. Williams; Earth's Benefactors, Rollie W. Ley; Vocal Solo, 'Ava Marie', Mary Van Lom; Liberty and Law, Mary Isabel Beswick; Character and Country, S. Ella Williams; Social Forces in Government, Emma L. Bennett; Shadow of Song (Elocution) M. Katherine Williams; Piano Solo, Myrtle Katerine; The Inspiration of Human Progress, Emma C. Reninger; Loyalty to Principle the Nucleus of Reform, Clarence W. Goodsell; Pantomime, "Jesus Lover of my Son" M. Katherine Williams; Quartette "Yachting Glee" by Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. Utter, Messrs Wilbur and Keller; closing with the benediction by Rev. Jones.

Wednesday evening the exercises were opened with prayer by H. E. Mason. Then came a piano solo by Miss Schlotfeldt, followed by The Nations of the Future, by W. E. Miller; Carry Your Own Umbrella, Nellie P. Miller; The Mainspring of Success, Anna A. Ryan; Vocal Duett, Maude Tucker and Prof. Keller; History and Romance, Celia M. Chase; Phantom Music, Class Poem, John G. Nelhart; Playing the Society Belle (Elocution) M. Katherine Williams; Piano Solo, Miss Jung; Literature of Ancient Greece, Carrie M. Robinson; Old Things Have Passed Away, Maude R. Reynolds; "Wynken, Blynken and Nod" was then sung by the quartette. Miss Anna Byrne made an appropriate address to the class, the Diplomas were presented by Pres. J. M. Pile and the exercises closed with the benediction by Rev. Wight.

Thursday evening "David the Shepherd Boy" was presented to a large audience by the Conservatory department under the directorship of Prof. A. M. Keller. The different solo parts were well rendered, and in fact the entire cantata was excellent. Friday evening the Scientific class delivered their orations and they were good ones too. "They Can Who Think They Can," was the motto of the class. Each oration deserves special mention, but that of O. A. Preston was thought by a great many to be one of the finest orations ever delivered by a graduate in Wayne. The program for the evening was opened with prayer by Rev. Theobald. Then came a piano duett by Prof. Keller and Maude Britton, followed by Self Advertisement by Fannie J. Skiles; "Me Too" James J. Ahern; Patriotism, Orum A. Preston; Song by the Quartett; Perseverance Anna M. Miller; Grit and Gumption, Arthur G. Nettleton; The X in the Equation of Life, Charles L. Culler; Piano Quartette, Myrtle Benson, Ethel Tucker, Lulu Jung and Prudence Bush; Demagogues, C. C. Hurley; Some of the Pleasures of Life, Nellie Spears; Contentment Orrin L. Taylor; Song, Farwell to the Old and Welcome to the New, by the Quartett; Address to the class, Prof. Conn; Presentation of Diplomas, Pres. J. M. Pile, closing with the benediction by Rev. Theobald.

At the close of the program the graduates, the members of the alumni, the faculty and the members of the Board of Trustees of the College marched to the Boyd hotel where an excellent banquet had been prepared. On arriving at the banquet rooms an address of welcome was delivered by E. R. Lundburg, which was responded to by John Nelhart and Miss Fannie Skiles. Then came the banquet which all had been looking forward to with a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction. The different courses were interspersed with toasts, H. E. Mason acting as toastmaster. Little Cecil Lewis Paul and Elsie Belle Thompson, children of two former graduates, were made honorary members of the alumni.

Thus closed the fifth annual Commencement and Alumni banquet of the Nebraska Normal College, and it was a fitting close to one of the most successful years in the history of the College.

WEBSTER AT WAKEFIELD.

The McKinley republican club of Wakefield held a rally at that place Friday night, which was, so to speak, a "stem winder." A large tent had been procured and nearly 1000 people listened to an able political address by Hon. John L. Webster, of Omaha, and it is safe to say that he made a number of republican votes. Prior to the speaking a big torchlight demonstration was made with nearly 500 men in line, the Wakefield and Wayne bands supplying the music. Wayne had 112 men in line carrying torches, including the band, and many others were present who had no torches. It was one of the most successful rallies ever held in northeast Nebraska.

OHIO CAMPAIGN OPEN

REPUBLICANS FIRE THEIR FIRST GUN AT COLUMBUS.

Senator Sherman, Senator-Elect Foraker and S. L. Woodford of New York Discuss the Issues of the Political Battle and Endorse McKinley.

Sherman's Hot Talk.

The Republican campaign in Ohio was formally opened by two monster meetings in Columbus. The orators were Senator John Sherman, Senator-elect J. B. Foraker of Ohio and Stewart L. Woodford of Brooklyn, N. Y. Gov. Bushnell presided at the afternoon meeting, being introduced by Henry C. Taylor, chairman of the Franklin County Republican Executive Committee. The Governor made a brief speech, in which he expressed himself as having too much faith in the people to think they will elect a Republican candidate this fall, of all times. He reminded his hearers that four years ago the Democrats gave Grover Cleveland and promises of tariff reform; now after four years of suffering they ask the people to accept Bryan and unsound money as a cure for all ills to which flesh is heir to. He, for his part, could not imagine such effrontery.

Senator Sherman was frequently interrupted by applause. Gov. Bushnell next introduced Senator-elect Foraker, who said:

We have a new question this year. The Democracy has started a new issue; they made a new issue. I will tell you why it is a new issue. They have run completely out of the old. They were whipped to a standstill before they started on the tariff, and they were defeated before they started into the tariff, because, unlike 1862, we now, all of us, understand the tariff question. You cannot find a laboring man anywhere in the United States who does not understand it without an argument; that if you make a product across the water, in some other country, you do not have to traditional policy of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and the Democratic party. But by far the greater injury resulting from the free coinage of silver will fall upon the workingman. Their wages are now based upon money of the highest value, upon gold of standard value. Under the free coinage of silver the value of the silver dollar will fall to 53 cents in gold, or, as I have already said, the hundred cents of the silver dollar will be worth 53 cents of the silver dollar. The struggle between workingman and employer will then commence, and no one knows better than the workingman how difficult it is to get an advance of pay. We have strikes and strife enough now, when the workingman gets his pay in gold coin, or its equivalent, but what will be the condition when he is paid in cheaper money of the same nominal amount, but of less purchasing power?

The matter of free coinage of silver and the degradation of the standard of value involve not only questions of honor and good faith. When their honor is involved, the people never fail to respond. They have complied with every promise and paid every debt of the national Government as it has become due. They have paid four-fifths of the debts contracted during the civil war, and they were defeated before they started into the tariff, because, unlike 1862, we now, all of us, understand the tariff question. You cannot find a laboring man anywhere in the United States who does not understand it without an argument; that if you make a product across the water, in some other country, you do not have to years; until Mr. Cleveland came into power the second time, you did not hear any complaint about our money. And just when you did not hear of any trouble with the gold reserve, all this trouble has arisen since then. Why? Simply because, as every intelligent man knows, they adopted a policy of free trade as contradistinguished to a protective tariff policy, and the first result was the paralytic and the second result was the decline of revenues to the Government.

Now, my fellow-citizens, the best remedy for this whole trouble is to put the Republican party back in power; restore the policy of a protective tariff; reinaugurate the policy of an economic administration under which the Government would have enough revenues to live and everybody engaged in business in this country and every laborer in the country and something to do.

Lieut. Gov. A. W. Jones presided at the evening meeting, and made a brief speech, in which he characterized the Democratic national platform as one of anarchism and bankruptcy. He said the Democrats stole the Populist platform in order to be admitted to the Populist church, and characterized Watson as one of the horns of the Democratic dilemma. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Stewart L. Woodford, who said:

The honest fulfillment of Populist pledges would put us on a paper basis, redeemable in gold, and in paper alone, and just where no civilized land is to-day. It would be a currency of soap bubbles, redeemable in soap bubbles, affording no basis of soundness for any superstructure of business, farming or labor. Irredeemable paper money always begets and compels speedy and continuous depreciation. As such it is always destined to be in repudiation. The world has had three experiences of Populist finances within the last 200 years.

Gen. Woodford then reviewed John Law as Minister of Finance in France during the reign of the Bourbons in 1720. When the French tried the experiment again in 1789 Talleyrand said: "You can arrange it so that the people shall be forced to take 1,000 francs in paper, instead of 1,000 francs in specie; but you can never arrange it so that a man shall be obliged to give 1,000 francs in specie for 1,000 francs in paper."

Continuing, he said:

Mr. Bryan is the candidate of the Democratic party and of the Populist party. The Democratic party is the party of the fiat money which is made a legal tender shall be issued by the Government. Here the Populist platform is able to find other purpose or willingness on the part of the Populists to redeem such paper in coin. The fiat money is the fiat money of the Democratic party, and therefore, dare not. The fiat money is the fiat money of the Democratic party, and therefore, dare not. The fiat money is the fiat money of the Democratic party, and therefore, dare not.

make it in this country. That if you make it over there, there is an increased demand for labor—over there, and that much less demand for labor over here. That is what the laboring man has learned. The farmer has learned something, too. Times have been pretty hard on him. He is selling his products at the cheapest price ever known since the war, and he has found out that to have a good demand and to get good prices for his product he must have a good home market.

And, then, there is Uncle Sam himself. He has found out something. In the twenty-seven years the Republican party controlled this country, after the close of the war, in 1865, we paid off and canceled forever more than one thousand and seven hundred millions of the public debt. During the three years and a fraction of Democratic rule, they have paid off nothing, but have increased the public debt by more than $292,000,000.

I would rather follow the leadership of the gallant Gov. McKinley, with all these great, grand, noble, and sound money, sound protection, sound patriotism and sound every thing else, supporting him, than to take the "boy orator of the Platte" with all of these people controlling him. I saw the speech made by "the orator of the Platte" when he was in New York, and when I got

Let us contemplate the inevitable result of the free coinage of silver. It would violate every contract for the payment of money made since Jan. 1, 1878. The resumption act, which went into operation on that day, provided for the payment of the principal of all United States notes presented for redemption. All forms of money, whether silver or gold or paper, were then maintained at par with each other, and have been so maintained ever since. During all this period gold and silver coins at par with each other have been the standard of value in all contracts, loans, contracts, purchases, and the faith of the United States was pledged for their maintenance at par with each other. Although silver bullion declined in market value, the coins made from it have been kept at par with gold coins at the legal ratio of 16 to 1.

But if the free coinage of silver is authorized, then the market value of silver bullion becomes the standard for payments on all contracts made in the past, the present and the future; 412 2/3 grains of standard silver bullion, worth 53 cents, can with free coinage be coined into a dollar and have the purchase and sale of property. The Democratic party at its recent convention at Chicago adopted a resolution in favor of the free coinage of silver to the ratio of sixteen parts of silver to one of gold. We know that in the United States and in all countries in the world thirty ounces more of silver can be purchased by one ounce of gold. With the free coinage of silver gold will be demoted. Nothing can be more certain than that the cheaper money will circulate.

The United States has thus far maintained its silver coins at par with gold coins and by limiting the amount, but with free coinage of silver there could be no limitation. Silver would be coined in every mine and upon the mints, and with the mandatory duty of free coinage silver dollars will soon fill the channels of circulation, and the gold dollar will be hoarded, or will be melted and sold as commodity at about 1/4 of its value. Silver will stand as the par value and gold will be quoted at its commercial value.

all you have got to do is to ask for it. That is all you ever had to do under Republican rule.

Gov. my fellow-citizens has it or not please? Haven't you been proud of the currency of the United States during all these past years? Hasn't it been the pride of every patriotic American that as our gold would travel around the globe, so, too, would every dollar of our paper money, being redeemable in gold, travel everywhere and be everywhere honored at its face? We have had a stable currency. There has not been any trouble with it until during the last two or three

The yard is the British and American standard of length. Down to 1824 the original standard of Britain (and from which ours was copied) was a rod, which had been deposited in the court of exchequer, London, in the time of Queen Elizabeth. In those days all measures intended for general use were taken to the court of exchequer to be examined by the proper officer. That official took the proposed measure and placed it parallel with the standard, and if found correct placed certain marks of identification upon it. By an act of Parliament in 1824 the old Elizabethan standard was superseded by another, which had been constructed under the directions of the Royal Society sixty-four years previous. This act provided that "the straight line or distance between the centers of two points in the gold studs in the brass rod now in the custody of the clerk of the House of Commons shall be genuine standard of the yard measure in Great Britain." The act further provided that the measurements of the rod must be made when the temperature of the brass rod was at 62 degrees Fahrenheit.

That standard was destroyed by fire in 1834 and the commission appointed to replace it made the yard measure now in use. The new standard was deposited in the House of Parliament in 1855 and authenticated copies of it are in the possession of our Government officials at Washington.

Duty Before Everything.

How strong the sense of duty is in Japanese officials is shown by the following incident of the great earthquake wave: "The director of the Kamalshai telegraph office saw his family swept away before his eyes. In spite of his sad misfortune he at once went in search of the telegraphic instruments that had been washed away, and as soon as possible restored them to proper order. To his self-sacrificing zeal the public is indebted for the speedy re-establishment of communications."

ALL LEAVE LOUISVILLE.

National Meet of the L. A. W. Was a Success.

Things not originally planned by either the race or entertainment committees in Louisville were plentifully served on Saturday, the closing day of the L. A. W. '96 meet. There was a dramatic touch to the farewell scene, which, although it made the grand stand people uncomfortable, added a lively interest to current events. Rain and Cooper were the elements which sent spectators and hosts into a frenzy. The rain had given evidence for several hours that it was qualifying for a hot campaign, but Cooper's act was a genuine surprise. Not enough water fell to induce the holders of seats to seek safety away from the track, so all remained to see the outcome of the verbal sparring matches. Cooper, was the first man to cross the tape in the five-mile national championship, but met with disqualification by the judges. It was claimed by them that Cooper had dug his elbows into Bald and made faces at him unbecomingly. The crowd saw this and at once set up a cry of disapproval. Cooper was himself called Bald and called for, but Bald did not win. The championship was hung on Becker's belt. Aker received second place and Nat Butler third.

The most popular winning of the meet was done by Walter Sanger ("old Wooden Shoes"). He is a big fellow, the most powerfully built of any man on the circuit, but his weight was a matter of insignificance to his admirers at the close of the two-mile professional handicap, when they carried him up and down on their shoulders in front of the grand stand, while the crowd of men and women stood on their experience of Populist finances within the last 200 years.

Gen. Woodford then reviewed John Law as Minister of Finance in France during the reign of the Bourbons in 1720. When the French tried the experiment again in 1789 Talleyrand said: "You can arrange it so that the people shall be forced to take 1,000 francs in paper, instead of 1,000 francs in specie; but you can never arrange it so that a man shall be obliged to give 1,000 francs in specie for 1,000 francs in paper."

GOVERNMENTS MAPS ISSUED.

Many New Features Brought out in the First Printed Work.

The big general maps of the United States, issued by the general land office for this year, have just been issued. The result of the work of engraving and printing is one of the most complete and finely drawn sets yet issued by the Government. The feature is the division of the country into sections, marking the various cessions and purchases from other Governments. The tracts covered in the original thirteen colonies and the Gadsden purchase, the Texas annexation, the cessions of Louisiana, Alaska, Mexico and Florida are clearly set out for the first time. Commissioner Lamoreux is the originator of the idea. Only a limited number of maps have been issued, and a large saving over previous years is made in the contract price of 62 cents each to the Government.

Kentucky gold men claim that McKinley will have a majority of 20,000 in that State.

The Populists of Missouri have nominated O. D. Jones of Edina for Governor and a Full State ticket.

The Postmaster General has issued an order forbidding railway mail clerks taking an active interest in the campaign.

Missouri Populists have made an arrangement with the Democrats whereby four Bryan and Watson electors will be put on the ticket.

A. L. Mims, who was presented by Tennessee Populists at St. Louis for Vice-President, has been nominated for Governor of his State.

The insurance upon St. Paul's cathedral, London, is said to be about $475,000.

A speed of a mile in fifty-eight seconds is claimed for a motor cycle exhibited at the Imperial institute, London.

Pupils in the German Gymnasium and Real schulen are steadily decreasing in number, preferring to go to the schools where English and French are substituted for Latin.

Of the total of 38,000,000 sheep reported in the United States last year it is computed that one-fourth graze on the mountain slopes and valleys of the West and Southwest.

The four most ancient ecclesiastical communities in the kingdom of Great Britain are Peter house, Cambridge; Merton and Balliol Colleges, Oxford; and St. Katharine's hospital, London.

An idea of the size of the State of Texas can be gleaned from the fact that in Brewster County a herd of the scarcest quadrupeds on the American continent, buffaloes, has just been rediscovered. The last time they were seen was in 1894.

Forty years ago a Main genius conceived the idea of the copper-toed shoes, and he made $100,000 out of it. It is almost thirty years since Heaton of Providence invented the metal button fastener now in universal use, and a fortune has been made from that also.

The editor of the Ashland, Me., Headlight makes the following liberal announcement: Trout, tongue, salmon, whitefish or chubs taken in payment for subscriptions at this office. We haven't decided to take any suckers or 'hornpouts,' but may be driven to it later on.

The ladies of one of the Manchester, N. H., churches have set an example. Cutting away from custom, they have "resolved" against church suppers and agreed to tax, themselves to raise money needed, and will no longer seek it through the laborious methods of church entertainments.

The telephone service between London and Paris has been so successful that the postal authorities are about to lay a second cable across the English channel to meet the increasing demands for the use of the wires. The work on the land wires is now being proceeded with on both sides of the channel.

A movement is on foot to erect a suitable monument to General Philip Kearney. For some reason this has never been done, though often proposed. It is said the family of the dead hero objected to it. Kearney Post of New York has offered to raise the entire amount necessary, but the family objections were paramount. At present the body lies in the obscure Watt vault in Trinity church-yard, with not even a slab to mark the spot.

The agricultural returns for Great Britain for the year 1895 were issued recently from the Board of Agriculture. The shrinkage of land under the plow, which has long been notable in Great Britain, has not only continued, but has been accentuated by the unpropitious character of the autumn seed time of 1894 and early spring of 1895. More than 510,000 acres less wheat were grown, and 57,000 acres less appear under the minor grain crops, rye and peas.

The complexion of the men and women in the Puget Sound country is said to be very clear and their skin is moist and smooth. This is due to their cloudy weather and to their humid atmosphere. The dry, dusty weather of the interior of Washington with its abundance of sunshine produces an opposite effect upon the residents. The contrast is striking. A barber in Olympia says that if he were blindfolded he could tell every subject from the interior who should sit in his chair by the dryness and harshness of his hair.

Over a year ago a bright man in New York conceived and put in, execution the idea of putting a lot of American tinklers on an American schooner, then going to sea, catching a lot of turtles, and making and canning a cargo of turtle soup, which he brought to port. Collector Kilbreth spoiled his scheme, however, by deciding that the canned soup was an importation and subject to duty. The general appraisers reversed this decision, and now the treasury department has directed the collector to carry the question into the United States courts.

Last week a gold penny was sold by auction in London for no less than $1,250. This rare and interesting coin was knocked down to Spink, of Piccadilly, who thus became the proud possessor of a coin of which only three other specimens are known. This penny was made by King Henry III, in the year 1257, "of the finest gold, which weighed two sterlings, and which it should be current for twenty pence." The coin was, however, decayed in the same year as it became current, and only four are now known to be left, two of which are in the British museum.

Ho Was Mistaken.

All the passengers in the car noticed that the big man on the left of the rear door was looking fixedly at the small man opposite, and by and by the small man himself noticed the same thing, says the Detroit Free Press. "After an embarrassing interval of three minutes he observed:

"Well, what is it?"

"Excuse me, sir," replied the big man; "but your face seems familiar."

"Yes?"

"Thought I can't place it."

"No?"

"Is your name Rambo?"

"No, sir."

"I thought it was. Didn't you used to live in Sandusky, Ohio?"

"No, sir; never was in Sandusky in my life."

"Wasn't there in 1890, eh?"

"That's queer. Just the minute I got sight of you I was sure you was Rambo of Sandusky. If you are—"

"But I'm not!" Interrupted the small man. "I never heard of Rambo and was never in Sandusky."

"Well, that settles it, I suppose," said the big man, as he looked out of the window and back again; "but if you hadn't said so I should continue to think you were the man."

"And what of it?" retorted the small man, flushing up over it.

"Oh, nothing much. He eloped with my wife from Sandusky in 1890 and I heard they were living in Detroit. If you were Rambo I was going to ask how—"

"If you'll get off the car I'll lick you and Rambo and Bambo and Hoodoo and all the rest of the gang put together!" shouted the small man, as he got up and went out.

"No-oh, no!" replied the big man. "No, there is no call to fight. If you are not Rambo, I beg your pardon. Your face had a familiar look, and I just thought I'd ask it—"

But the small man hopped off the car and went his way and the big man heaved a sigh and looked around and said:

"I'm sorry I offended him, but I thought it was Rambo, and was going to ask if Maria had had her teeth fixed and her eyes straightened."

Innocent Brides.

Occasionally bridal couples visiting Washington amuse listeners by their comments on the "sights" shown them by a local guide. The Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune vouches for the following incidents:

A well-dressed and intelligent young woman, leaning on the arm of a young man whose relation to her no one could mistake, inquired of the guide account panning them, pointing to the picture in the eastern wing of the Senate of Commodore Perry at the battle of Lake Erie.

"This Washington crossing the Delaware?"

"An equally unsophisticated bride, looking at a wretched copy of the well-known picture of "Charlotte Corday in Prison," which hangs in one of the rooms of the White House, remarked:

"I always thought it an outrage for the government to hang that Mrs. Surratt. Doesn't she look too sweet for anything behind those prison bars? How could they ever hang her?"

Still another bride stood musingly before the statue of Hancock in the Capitol, on the pedestal of which are chiseled the words, "He wrote his name where every native should behold it, and time itself should not efface it."

"Ah!" she murmured, as she nestled closer to her protector, "that's the man Garfield beat for the Presidency. I don't wonder—wearing such clothes!"

The Point of View.

A certain eminent physician went to a concert at his wife's earnest request, though he has no knowledge of or interest in music. He was rather listless until one of the singers, a lady, rose and began to sing for the first time. Then he brightened up.

"Who is that alto?" he asked.

"Alto!" exclaimed his wife. "That isn't an alto—she's a high soprano, and her name is Jones."

"Hum!" said the doctor.

"Why? Do you like her voice?"

"Can't say much for the voice, but she has one of the finest breathings that I ever encountered!"

Four years ago many of the farmers voted for promises and what did they get. Are you going to bite again, simply to benefit a few mine owners?
When Bryan went "east" and "entered the enemies country" his picture was turned to the west and he will soon be westward bound. Jones pays the freight. Life is too hot in New York and it's now too late to save Lincoln.
The popocrats tell you that they want bimetallism, and then enter a tirade against republicans because they propose to get at bimetallism by international agreement. If they are in earnest why do they have so much to say against republicans because they want to settle the question by international agreement. Mind you the republican party does not expect that even by international agreement that coinage of silver would be adopted at a ratio of 16 to 1.
Bryan in his New York speech declared in fact that "free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1
will enhance the price of silver bullion bring it to $1.29 per ounce, and make the silver dollar equal to the gold dollar,
and at the same time make that dollar much more easily obtainable by the "debtor class" and simultaneously
raise the price of all farm products, likewise reduce the cost of living to all the people of the United States and make times generally better!" Just think of it. Beautiful consistency.
Yes, Bryan told you to vote for Cleveland four years ago and get $1.25 for your wheat. Did you get it?

Do not be deceived by democrats or populists referring to Mr. Thurston when speaking of the silver question.
Senator Thurston never advocated the "free coinage of the world's product of silver," neither did he ever advocate the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1. Neither did he ever advocate free coinage of silver except the American product and that only to be coined at a parity with gold, and all garbled reports to the contrary are falshoods. Furthermore the Senator is not running for President. It is Wm. McKinley vs. the silver kings.
"All of the people will not be fooled
all of the time." When Bryan popocrats and democracy will show to the people of this country wherein they kept one single pledge the past three and a half years, the pledges made prior to the election of Cleveland, when they promised greater prosperity, better wages than then existed—and Oh, how many would like to receive the wages of the days five and six years ago—and that farmers would get $1.25
for wheat and then purchase the goods
they are compelled to buy, for a mere nothing, and other promises galore, we say, that when they show that they have kept one single pledge, then and not until then will the American people believe them. The attention of the people will not be withdrawn from the real issue of protection, reciprocity
and sound money, by another promise
with a free silver lying.

BRYAN'S GUESS.
A great deal of the matter included in Mr. Bryan's address of acceptance wholly irrelevant to the issue in this campaign. All his elaborate argumentation and elaboration of bimetallism is surplusage. It has no relevancy whatever in debate. Nobody, unless it be a few extremists on one side who favor the single gold standard as a finality, and the extremists of the other side who favor the single silver standard with deliberate purpose to establish it immediately, has any objection to bimetallism.
The issue is as to method of bimetallism.
The republicans allege that the only safe method for the present is international agreement as to ratio, and that, as we now are on the gold standard, we should remain there, rather than change to the single silver standard, until international agreement can be secured. They say that one nation alone cannot secure bimetallism, at least not at a ratio immensely varying from the commercial value of the two metals. Mr. Bryan says that bimetallism can be secured by operating the mint, free of charge, to all possessors of silver metal, stamping it for them into full legal tender dollars at the ratio of 16 to 1. The republicans say this would result not in bimetallism, but in silver monometallism—that it would bring us to the silver basis.
Mr. Bryan in his elaborate speech ignores the issue, and persistently mis-states it. A large part of his speech is composed of mere assumptions that isolated coinage by the United States at 16 to 1 would be bimetallism, and that those who oppose that assumption are monometallists, whereas in fact they oppose it because it would be silver monometallism.
Here is a fact which everybody knows, which confronts Mr. Bryan and which he does not pretend to deny, viz:
that the amount of silver required for the content of a standard silver dollar coin is worth in the market only about 53 cents; or, to put it another way, an ounce of pure silver is worth in the market only about 65 cents the world over, while an ounce of silver, if both the commercial and the coinage ratios coincided at 16 to 1, would be worth $1.29.

Now, then, unless Mr. Bryan can prove that the opening of the United States mint to free coinage at 16 to 1
would raise silver from 65 cents to $1.29
per ounce, then his plan would be silver monometallism, and not bimetallism at all. Mr. Bryan sees this fact, and he is forced, in the absence of better argument, to assert that this would be the result. "We contend," he says, "that free and unlimited coinage by the United States alone will raise the bullion value of silver to its coinage value,
and thus make silver bullion worth $1.29 per ounce in gold throughout the world."
What becomes of all Mr. Bryan's lofty talk about this nation being great enough and strong enough to adopt a financial policy of its own, in entire disregard of any other nation and all the rest of the world? Here he is admitting that to secure bimetallism
within the United States this country alone must lift the value of all the silver in the world, of the aggregate silver that has been mined and retained since time began—billions of silver—from 65 cents to $1.29 per ounce! And it is true that the whole prodigious bulk of the world's silver must be so lifted, must be doubled in value, by the United States alone, or else his plan would be silver
monometallism.

Mr. Bryan does not explain how the result would be achieved by free coinage. He cannot tell. There is nothing but his guess, the guess of Altgeld, Van Wagoner, Tillman & Co. What is free silver? Simply the offer of the government of the United States to the owners of the total silver to run it through the mint and to stamp each 371 1/4 grains of it a dollar, without charging for the operation, and returning the metal in the form of dollar coins to the owners thereof; making them in addition, legal tender within the limits only of the United States. That is all.
Against Mr. Bryan's assertion and guess is the deliberate judgment of all the great bimetallist authorities of the world—Prof. Walker, of this country;
Dr. Arendt, of Germany; the late M.
Cermuschi, of France; and the late Prof.
Suess, of Austria, and all the other recognized authorities without exception.
Against it is the deliberate judgment
of the business world, the experience,
the wisdom and the practice of all the great civilized nations.
Against it is the fact that every nation on earth which has free coinage has silver monometallism, and not bimetallism; that in every free coinage nation the value of silver bullion is not advanced from 65 cents to $1.29 per ounce, but that the value of the coin is degraded to the commercial value of the silver bullion in it.
Against it, by inference, is Mr. Bryan's own elaborate protest, in this same speech of acceptance, against the right of contract for payment in either metal, against the option of the lender or creditor to convert for repayment in the same money which he lends. If Mr.
Bryan really believes that the value of silver would be raised from 65 cents to $1.29 per ounce, why is he so insistent that the debtor be enabled by law to pay in silver alone? If the value of silver should be so raised, it would be a matter of absolute indifference to either the debtor or the creditor in which metal the debt is paid. Mr. Bryan's very insistence on the right to pay in silver alone indicates a doubt in his own mind whether his plan would work as he is forced, for argumentative purposes, to guess, to assume and to assert that it would.

At this very point Mr. Bryan's whole theory collapses. Yet he asks this country to shoot the rapids of financial experiment and to make this tremendous leap into the dark on nothing better than a guess against the experience and judgment of the world—
Sioux City Journal.

The populist nomination for county commissioner, Levi Diltz of Logan precinct, The HERALD will admit was a good one. Mr. Diltz is a successful farmer and a good business man, and the only fault we have to find with him is his politics. If the republicans put up a good man, and there are plenty of them in the district, there will be no danger of the county's affairs not being properly looked after if either should be elected.
The republican congressional convention which assembles at Columbus
the 27th inst. has a duty to perform and it will be a difficult task unless personal likes or dislikes are cast aside.
To insure success at the polls the majority of republicans in the north part of the district are of the opinion that the nominee should come from that part of the district, the nominees in the past having always been selected from the south part of the district.

The republican state ticket is one of the very best that could have been nominated in the state of Nebraska and voters, while imagining "free silver" flying through the air, should keep this important fact in mind. The state can not afford to support any more Hol-comb's after considering the Norfolk Asylum deal.
As a result of Bryan's great (?) effort
in his speech of acceptance, when notified of his nomination at Madison Square Garden last week, his campaign managers have decided to pull him off the track for awhile. He made too many republican votes by endeavoring to apologize for the popocrat platform.
Pierce has voted $14,000 bonds for the proposed Yankton and Norfolk railroad. This must have been a hard dose for the democrats of Pierce who howl so much against bonds.
The National convention of the gold democrats will be held September 2nd,
at Indianapolis.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a congested condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, then laxatives or other remedies are not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

"AFTER THE TWILIGHT-DARKNESS."

On board Eastern Express just out from San Francisco, Aug. 27. My Dear Mabel: This is a queer place to write from—a shaky, jolty railway car, but I am determined to-day that you shall be neglected no longer. It is really the first time I have been allowed to write at all since I was ill, but for several days they would ask me, each morning, if I had any word to send papa. Poor papa, away off in Russia, having such a splendid time—and now they have cabled him to come home! I can't think why they should have done it, because I am almost well again, and it isn't too late even yet to stop him at London.

I spoke to Uncle John about it this morning, and he only said, "Never mind, my dear, he will be ready to come now, I think; besides, I need him here." What in the world he can need him for is more than I can see, for he and papa have hardly spoken to each other in twenty years.

And, Mabel, just fancy Uncle John—stiff old Uncle John—calling me "my dear"! Why, I think the world must be coming to an end. Oh! that sound of the sea; how I loathe it! Night and day, for nine weeks, it has been in my ears, and now I am flying from it up into the mountains as fast as this train can run.

Uncle John said I was not strong enough to take the trip alone, and insisted on accompanying me, and I never saw anyone more attentive. He introduced a Dr. Farnsworth, of Philadelphia, to me just as we started off, and it seems that he is to be our traveling companion. But uncle has been so kind. I think my widow's cap has appealed to him, for during all my sickness he visited me every day and brought quantities of doctors to see me.

This Dr. Farnsworth is very gentlemanly, but a little too observing at times, I think. For instance, as we passed a little lake this morning and stopped close to the beach the noise of the ripples upon the sand brought back that dreadful sound of the sea, and then a boat glided suddenly by, which put me into almost a terror. I suppose I showed it, for uncle instantly crossed to my seat and put his arm around me, as if to reassure me, while the doctor watched me with the eye of a hawk, and then wrote something in a little notebook—a professional act, no doubt, but not an over-polite one.

It seems as though they could not do enough for me and I am never left alone. On one pretext or another, uncle or the doctor is always with me, and once, when we stopped for luncheon and they both left the car, the Pullman conductor came and seated himself opposite me for a chat which lasted until the others returned. He was not in the least familiar, even refusing, in a most polite way, to raise the windows—which I had been unable to do, because of some peculiar fastening upon them—saying the dust would "make it unbearable." I wish uncle hadn't taken this stateroom for me, one seems so much freer in the outer car. Janet, my maid—uncle engaged her during my illness—is with me, and I can hardly drive her out of my sight.

We are to wait at a pretty, retired little village near the summit of the mountains until papa returns. He will meet us there and go home with us.

I wish you could see the traveling dress I have on. It is dark brown and with such queer figures on it—like little boats about two inches long, with a raised pattern running in bars across it. At first I hated the sight of the little boats, but I am getting used to them now.

Uncle could not see how the figures resembled boats, but I cut one out of my sleeve and made him look closely at it. He put his hand to his eyes a moment as he took it—to conceal a laugh, I suppose—and then I remembered that I had torn off a part of the skirt the day before to show Janet, and this probably is why he went to her at once.

But not to please Janet, nor uncle either, will I change this dress—brown becomes me so. You should see how gracefully the boats sail up and down my arms. My two boys were in a little boat.

How glassy green the water looked as it poured over.

I got ahead of Janet a few minutes ago and ran out on to the platform. Oh it was so cool! One of my shoes as I lunged it away, nearly struck a man standing by a crossing. Janet laughed and gave me some light slippers to put on. The doctor told me some gay stories. He is very amusing. Uncle has not been with me since he carried me in from the platform.

Little Virginia Hofmann brought me a pink conchshell she is carrying home—"to listen to," she said. She used to be with me so much at the beach, and I like her, but she must not torment me by wanting me to listen to that awful sea sound, so I smashed the shell against the steam-heating pipes, and uncle came bounding in. No one said anything, but Virginia cried, so I gathered the pieces into my lap and carried them in my dress to her seat and threw them upon the car floor. Some of the pieces are very pretty, and she and I played with them quite a while.

It frightens me to watch the boats run around on my dress! When they strike that raised pattern they tip so horribly that I can hardly keep from screaming out—and then I push them back where they can sail about with less danger.

Did you ever see a boat capsize and hear the wild cry for help, or watch the stiff fingers raking the water?—and then those dreadful bubbles above the sweet lips. Some of the boats are too heavily loaded. I always knew it, and so I watch them.

Aug. 31.—Our destination at last! Such a time as we had on leaving the train. Janet insisted on my wearing my gray duster, but it was so silly to put it on at the very end of the journey. I tore it in pieces. She slipped a sort of canvas jacket on me that was tight and hurt my arms whenever I moved them, but uncle got me into a carriage at once, and we were soon at our journey's end.

Sept. 5.—I have a funny room here at Dr. Holden's—strange how many doctors I run against! Uncle has rooms across the street. Although we have been here nearly a week, he has not yet been here to see me. No doubt he thinks he has done his duty in getting me safely here, and possibly has gone back to San Francisco. Janet brings my meals to me, for they all say I am not strong enough to go downstairs yet. I have never seen such dishes—plates, cups and saucers, and even the spoons, of paper! My meat is cut in pieces for me. Not a sign of a knife or fork, not even a glass.

Twice Janet has tried to steal my brown dress, but she shall not have it. I push it through one of the windows at night now, and hang it by a fine string to a nail in the sill. It makes me shriek with laughter to see her hunting for it.

My room has no door except the one that leads into hers—a queer arrangement—and mine seems so bare. The bed is simply three mattresses, one upon the other, but quite comfortable. Janet has the rest of the furniture in her room. Whether this lounge—upon which I am sitting for want of a chair—is immensely heavy or is nailed to the floor, I cannot tell—but I miss my table more than anything.

Yesterday, you see, I stood up on a minute to get a look out of these absurdly high, narrow windows—I could not possibly squeeze through them. On the north side is a horizontal slit looking into a narrow hall two stories high and roofed with glass. Well, as I stood there, the table gave way a little and I jumped to the floor, twisted the legs off the crazy thing and dung them into the hall. I laughed till I cried to hear them go crashing through that glass roof.

The boats keep darting around my shoulders! How they rock, and how the faces of the children upon them drip, drip. I have sat here all day long, keeping them away from that raised pattern.

It is wicked to load them so—and no lifebelts.

I shall soon have all these boats torn off my dress. I pick and pick around each one until it falls out then put them on the floor and get down on my hands and knees to blow them along.

I blow very gently that they may not be driven far from shore; then the children can sail right to the pier without being carried out to drip and dry upon the sand.

Papa came yesterday. I have forgotten what day it is. I was blowing the boats about when he came, and was so afraid one would pitch over that I did not get up to speak to him, but crawled along the floor to where he was standing, holding the boat level as I went, and rested it against his shoe. He did not speak nor move, but kept staring at me as if he saw a ghost. My dress was so torn and ragged!

"See, papa," I said, "My boat, my bonny boat! My boat, you shall not find none fairee afloat. In a river or port."

They have cut my hair quite close to my head.

If they try to tie my hands again to-night, I shall scream, and scream, and scream. * * * And the boats sail on.

Legend of the Strawberry.

Did you ever, being hungry, try to satisfy your appetite with strawberries alone, unaccompanied by sugar, cream or any of the usual adjuncts. If so, you discovered that it was impossible, for there is no nourishment in the strawberry itself.

The Germans explain this by a pious legend which we will give in substance: A little child had strayed off into the fields. He came upon a place where nature's floor was enameled with bright, scarlet berries.

He sat down on the ground and began eating greedily.

The berries were large and juicy and sweet. The child was eating thus when the Virgin Mary called to him.

He ate on and would not stop to make answer. The virgin called out to him again and again, but the greedy child feasted on and answered never a word.

Then the virgin emerged from her hiding place and confronted him.

"What are you doing?" she asked.

"Eating," he answered curly.

"What are you eating?"

"Nothing," he answered, to make the story short.

"So let it be then," replied the irate virgin. "Strawberries shall henceforth be as nothing to him who seeks to satisfy the cravings of his stomach.

That is why you may eat and eat, and strawberries will never satisfy your hunger. Through the greed of a child the luscious strawberry was cursed with emptiness.—Salon.

American Girl Who Surprised Paris.

The fete recently given by the Countess Castellane, formerly Miss Anna Gould, was one of the most elaborate ever seen in Paris. Three thousand invitations were issued, and the cost of the fete was not far from $100,000. The event was planned to reproduce the fifth day of the Fetes celebrated at Versailles on the occasion of the marriage of Louis XIV. with Marie Theresa of Austria. An army of workmen were employed for a week preparing fireworks and transforming the grounds of the residence in the Cercle des Acacias, on the avenue du Bois de Boulogne. The fete opened with a dinner, accompanying which was a series of surprises. On a raised platform 600 coryphees, chorus men and women and the musicians of the opera, reproduced the choruses and dances of the 17th century. After the fireworks there was dancing, and the entertainment closed with a grand supper.

A Handsome Illustrated Book Free.

That the trade of our locality is eagerly sought by the large merchants of the great cities is demonstrated by the advertisement of John M. War Over a Trivial Cause.

In 1654 a Polish nobleman became obnoxious to the laws of the country. He fled to Sweden, whereupon John Cassimir, king of Poland, wrote to Charles Gustavus, king of Sweden, demanding the extradition of the criminal. The King of Sweden, on reading the dispatch, noticed that his own name and title were followed by only two etceteras, while the name of the King of Poland was followed by three. The missing etcetera so enraged the King of Sweden that he at once declared war against Poland. This war was carried on with great bitterness until 1660, when peace was signed at Oliva, near Dantzic.

A Pretty Old Turtle.

The other day a monster land turtle crawled into farm yard near Elkdale, Pa. The farmer's boys, by hard scrubbing, were able to decipher upon the creature's shell the date: "July 4, 1850." A farmer living ten miles distant carved the inscription. The boys have carried a second inscription: "William McKinley, President, March 4, 1897," and set the turtle at liberty again.

If Pestered Day and Night

With nervousness, take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which invigorates and tranquillizes the nervous system. The basis of recovery is a reform in errors of digestion. The sympathetic nerve and brain are united in the closest bond of sympathy, so that dyspeptic symptoms in the gastric region are always accompanied by harmful reflex nervous action. Both are remedied by the Bitters, which also cures malaria, biliousness, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

We spend the second half of life in mowing down in our hearts all that we grew there in the first half; and this we call acquiring experience.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

"Strawberries shall henceforth be as nothing to him who seeks to satisfy the cravings of his stomach. * * * That is why you may eat and eat, and strawberries will never satisfy your hunger. Through the greed of a child the luscious strawberry was cursed with emptiness.—Salon.

American Girl Who Surprised Paris.

The fete recently given by the Countess Castellane, formerly Miss Anna Gould, was one of the most elaborate ever seen in Paris. Three thousand invitations were issued, and the cost of the fete was not far from $100,000. The event was planned to reproduce the fifth day of the fetes celebrated at Versailles on the occasion of the marriage of Louis XIV. with Marie Theresa of Austria. An army of workmen were employed for a week preparing fireworks and transforming the grounds of the residence in the Cercle des Anceles, on the avenue du Bois de Boulogne. The fete opened with a dinner, accompanying which was a series of surprises. On a raised platform 600 corymbs, chorus men and women and the musicians of the opera, reproduced the choruses and dances of the 17th century. After the fireworks there was dancing, and the entertainment closed with a grand supper.

A Handsome Illustrated Book Free.

That the trade of our locality is eagerly sought by the large merchants of the great cities is demonstrated by the advertisement of John M. Smyth Company, Chicago, the largest furniture house in the world, which appears elsewhere in this paper. They announce the issue of their new catalogue of 400 pages on September 1, and ask that our readers send for a copy. The book is beautifully illustrated and quotes wholesale prices to the user on household furniture and kindred wares. The John M. Smyth Company has a record of thirty years and has furnished half a million homes throughout the United States. "If you buy it at Smyth's it is all right," is the motto of the house, and persons looking for genuine bargains should send at once for a free copy of this beautiful catalogue to the John M. Smyth Co., 159 to 165 West Madison Street, Chicago.

War Over a Trivial Cause.

In 1654 a Polish nobleman became obnoxious to the laws of the country. He fled to Sweden, whereupon John Cassimir, king of Poland, wrote to Charles Gustavus, king of Sweden, demanding the extradition of the criminal. The King of Sweden, on reading the dispatch, noticed that his own name and title were followed by only two ecceteras, while the name of the King of Poland was followed by three. The missing eccetera so enraged the King of Sweden that he at once declared war against Poland. This war was carried on with great bitterness until 1660, when a peace was signed at Olivier, near Dantzic.

A Pretty Old Turtle.

The other day a monster land turtle crawled into farm yard near Elkdale, Pa. The farmer's boys, by hard scrubbing, were able to decipher upon the creature's shell the date: "July 4, 1850." A farmer living ten miles distant carved the inscription. The boys have carved a second inscription: "William McKinley, President, March 4, 1897," and set the turtle at liberty again.
