HAPPENINGS OF THE PAST WEEK.

T. B. Hecker, Dentist, over Miller's. $1,000 GIVEN AWAY! In Wayne this spring for Painting and Papering. Get Bonham's prices. Shop one-half block west of Furchner & Duerig's store. It is the maddest of mad. Do you want a Corn Planter. I have them. Eli Jones.

Attend the cantata at the Y. M. C. A. hall tomorrow night. No. 1 Irish Mackerel, ten pound kits, $1.25 at Sullivan Bros.

Hill & Lewis shipped nine car loads of cattle to Chicago Saturday. Watch Wayne County forge to the front during the ensuing year.

Ask to see "Cresco Corset;" cannot break at the waist line. The Racket. The place to get a cold, warm or hot bath—Ludeke & Jastram's barber shop.

Ran Frazier sold a lot of cattle to Young Bros. near Randolph the first of the week. The robbers and blue birds have arrived. The Jays have been here for a long time.

Many farmers are procuring their seed wheat from districts 150 to 200 miles north of here. Geese and ducks are unusually plenty this spring and hunters are already having fine sport.

The schools at Winside have been closed for a short time owing to the prevalence of measles among the pupils. Ludeke & Jastram have had their bath rooms refitted and if you want to enjoy a good bath call and see them.

Mrs. Philip Benner, residing near Wakefield, died last Thursday morning and was buried in the Wayne cemetery Friday afternoon.

All men who are members of the Presbyterian church or congregation are requested to meet at the church on Thursday evening at 7:30. Geese and ducks are having a difficult time in regulating the spring season. They have been flying back and forth for the past month.

The dance given at the opera house last evening was a pleasant affair. The attendance was large and it is said to have been a decided success.

The Hayes brothers and parents are moving nine miles southeast of Wayne where they will engage extensively in the farming business this year.

Hans Hanson informs us that no more contracts will be made for the raising of sugar beets. The number of acres contracted tributary to Wayne is 312.

The Y. M. C. A. meeting last Sunday was conducted by L. P. Orth. The subject was Chemistry and Mr. Orth gave a very instructive and entertaining talk.

Harrington & Robbins are now located in their new quarters and on Saturday, March 20th, will have their complete line of Mens' and Boys' suits and all other lines open.

The Y. M. C. A. meeting at 3:30 Sunday next will be led by Jas. Wachob. Subject, "What we may expect of young men." An interesting meeting is assured; come and bring a friend.

Chas. and Clara Sloan of Sioux City, have been visiting the past week with the family of S. M. Sloan. The young man was taken with the mumps the next day after his arrival and has been confined to the house ever since.

The Humpty Dumpty aggregation that presented a mess of unsolicited "what is it" at the opera house Saturday night is one of the "swellest" combinations known to Wayne theatre goers. As business was too rushing they disbanded here and left for Sioux City.

Postmaster—Childs received a letter Sunday, from Houston, stating that Geo. D. Patch had been murdered. Mr. Patch formerly lived in Wakefield and worked in Wayne many times at his trade, brick-laying. He left considerable property and a life insurance policy.

The High School will present a cantata Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. hall. The proceeds are to be used in defraying the expenses of a delegate to the oratorical contest to be held at Norfolk. Last year Wayne came out third but this year expects to do better.

J. H. Whipperman, a substantial farmer of Wayne county, was a pleasant caller yesterday, renewing subscription. Mr. Whipperman not long ago visited his old home, near Peoria, Illinois, and expressed the opinion that times are generally better here in Nebraska than in that state.—Wakefield Republican.

A beautiful line of spring wraps and capes just in at Ahern's. J. M. Shorten received a car load of feeders Tuesday evening.

The wearing of the green was very much in evidence yesterday. The "Bachelor Girls" meet with Miss Dottie Brown Friday evening.

See the St. Joseph Lister, walking or riding; warranted to scorn. Eli Jones. Finest line of Embroideries in the city. From 5 to 35 cents. The Racket.

Mrs. C. A. Chace entertained her lady friends last Tuesday evening at a "horror party." Chas. Lund and Perry & Porterfield shipped a car load of cattle each to Omaha yesterday.

Ludeke & Jastram have the finest bath rooms in the city. When in need of a bath call and see them. Elmer Blakesley entertained a number of his young friends Monday evening in honor of his 6th birthday.

The War Eagle Minstrels entertained the people of Wisner Saturday evening with one of their splendid performances. Attend the caucus and put up good men who have the city's interests at heart and not their own personal selfish interests.

C. W. Mosher, the wrecker of the Capital National Bank at Lincoln, was released from the Sioux Falls penitentiary yesterday. WATCHES! Ladies gold-filled Elgin watches from $3.00 up. Gents nickel watches from $3.50 up. All fully warranted. Ingalls, Jeweler.

S. J. Young traded the Hartington Herald for a farm one day last week, but he does not state that he will engage actively in the farming business.

Dr. J. Sidney Goodmans of Pender, charged with poisoning his wife, has been granted a change of venue. His trial will take place at Ponca at the April term of court.

With the advent of spring we are prepared to serve our customers with Fresh Vegetables and everything in the line of Groceries. Goods always fresh. Brookings, opposite the post-office.

Mrs. W. H. McNeal received a telegram Tuesday, announcing the sad news of the death of her sister, Mrs. H. D. Post of Freeport, Illinois, which occurred very suddenly Monday night.

The Monday club prepared a pleasant surprise last Thursday evening on Mrs. H. C. Wright a former member of the club. The men were invited and a delightful supper was served, after which Mrs. Wright was presented with a beautiful present by the members of the club.

The Winside people claim that they are right in it and they are about right. New buildings, new firms and everything indicate it, but it is not surprising when such men as A. T. Chapin, Jno. Elliott, McClusky & Needham, Frank Weible and others are at the helm.

O. E. Chaffee lost a horse Tuesday which he had owned for fourteen years. It dropped to the ground in front of Philico & Sou's office as Mr. Chaffee was hauling in a load of corn. The animal was taken to Dr. Hammond's barn for treatment, but died during the night.

Wm. Frazier, formerly of Wayne Co. but now of Thurston, was in this neighborhood Wednesday buying and selling cattle. We understand he has rented the D. N. Wheeler ranch for the coming season and we welcome him to our midst, as he has the vim and pish such as Thurston county wants. Thayer Cor. in Thurston Republico.

The following letter has been received by the editor of "The Reporter," Leon, Iowa: "Tell Nemo" whoever he is, that he has one appreciative reader at least. Such writings lift the average newspaper out of the rut and are highly valued by the general reader. He has done me good." In this county, "some Rambling Thoughts" will be printed only in this paper, as we have reserved the right to their exclusive publication.

Free For All!—What? The social to be held at the home of Henry Beckenbauer next Tuesday evening by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church is open to all and for all people of the town and especially those of the College. It is requested that each young lady fetch a young man. An invitation has been extended to the "Bachelor Girls" Club. Just think of the fun! Come and enjoy a pleasant evening and help entertain others.

The little eight month's old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fisher, which has been sick for some time, died Tuesday, March 16th, 1897, the cause of death being brain fever. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. H. Millard at the M. E. church at 11:00 o'clock this morning, and the remains of the little one were followed to their last resting place by sorrowing relatives and friends.

FAREWELL RECEPTION.

One of the most pleasant courtesies that one ever receives came to Wm. Miller and family on the eve preceding their departure for Washington. It happened at the Methodist church on Wednesday evening. This is the regular prayer meeting night and Mr. Miller and wife had been urged to attend this, the last prayer-meeting in their old church home. At the usual time Rev. Millard commenced singing one of the old hymns, and for a half hour all united in the services of a usual prayer meeting. Then in a few words the pastor told the large congregation which had by this time gathered, that he believed it appropriate under the circumstances to say a few of the good things now, instead of waiting until those who deserved them had gone, and after singing "Bless'd be the Tie That Binds," Dr. Ivory, was asked to say a few words about Wayne's first M. E. Sunday School and Mr. Miller's relation thereto. Following this J. D. King was asked to say a few words about the "Early History of this Church," and smiles and tears vied with each other for the supremacy as the early scenes were graphically depicted, while amidst all of these was woven the actions and devotion of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller. Again the congregation sang "God be With You 'Till We Meet Again," when Rev. Millard called on L. C. Gilderleeve, who on behalf of Mr. Miller's Sunday School class, in a neat little speech presented Mr. Miller with some tokens of loving remembrance. Then D. C. Main was asked to say a few parting words, which he did and closed by presenting Mr. and Mrs. Miller a silver tea set and Pearl a gold pen in ivory handled pen holder. These were given by the church membership. To all of this Mrs. Miller made a very feeling and appreciative response, and told of some of the hardships encountered in the early days of the church. Then all joined heartily in singing, "We'll Never say Good-bye in Heaven" and the meeting was turned into a handshaking good-bye and God bless you. And let us add that no people ever more richly deserved this mark of appreciation than did Mr. and Mrs. Miller and to none was such a courtesy more heartily and unanimously given.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller and Pearl left on the afternoon train today for the State of Washington, where one daughter now lives and where we hope Mrs. Miller will fully regain her health.

Mrs. Miller was also a member of the Mierya club and before leaving she was presented by the club with a solid silver souvenir spoon as a token of the esteem in which she is held. In Mrs. Miller the club loses one of its most faithful members.

Mr. Rosenbach, a former student visited College Tuesday.

Mrs. Pile went to Norfolk Tuesday leaving Prof. Conn in the chair.

The Philo society gives a program next Friday. All are invited to attend.

Prof. Pile went to Lincoln Sunday on business, intending to return on next Thursday.

INGALLS' GROCERY.

A Careful Hunter

Of bargains in the Grocery Line always reads our advertisements before anything else in this newspaper.

Why?

Because she knows that she is certain to find there something to interest; something which will enable her to save a little money out of the portion devoted to supplying the table.

There is tangible evidence of the correctness of that statement in our prices.

NEBRASKA CONGRESS

DAILY REPORT OF WHAT IS BEING DONE.

Many Measures of More or Less Importance Being Introduced at the Present Session of the Golden Rod Legislature.

Wednesday.

Wednesday was Lincoln's turn to sweat through a legislative session over a disputed charter. The occasion was marked by a large outpouring of the residents of the capital city, the gallery, lobby and all available space on the floor of the senate itself being filled with interested spectators.

Appropriations for the State University and State Normal School met with sturdy opposition Wednesday from the fundamentalists in the house. By a scant majority the two university items of $30,000 for the mechanic school of arts, and $20,000 for the state dairy building, were recommended for passage.

The following tabulated statements show the total appropriations for each board and institution, as agreed to by the house. It will be noticed that one of the largest items of saving has been made in the amount appropriated for the printing of the records of the state penitentiary.

Table with 2 columns: 1897, 1898. Lists various departments like Board of Public Lands and Buildings, Board of Educational Lands and Funds, etc., with corresponding budget amounts.

The senate on Thursday morning, by unanimous consent, advanced the Trans-Mississippi Exposition bill to the head of the general file. It therefore stands third on the list of bills which will be considered in turn.

The Trans-Mississippi Exposition bill passed the senate on the 12th and is ready for its final passage as soon as one or two small amendments are printed.

Friday. The Trans-Mississippi Exposition bill passed the senate on the 12th and is ready for its final passage as soon as one or two small amendments are printed.

school taxes. The new bill provides that only the quarter-section of land on which is located the residence of the parents shall be transferred. Senate file No. 40 was passed by a vote of 28 to 0. It provides for the organization of mutual hail insurance companies. Concurrent resolution No. 25 was passed. It designates the Friday nearest the middle of the month of May in each year as "bird day," to be observed by public schools.

Among the most important bills passed by the house are the following: House roll No. 154, defining what shall be a legal tender for currency in the state of Nebraska, and providing that it shall be gold coin and standard silver dollars of the United States of standard weight and fineness. House roll No. 184, by Rich, providing for the sale upon execution of stock in corporations and interests in companies incorporated, and designating the manner of levy under execution and writs of attachment.

The senate gave itself up to routine matters on the 13th and by dint of close application to work succeeded in accomplishing a great deal of business. The notable features of the forenoon session were the final passage of the bill carrying an appropriation of $100,000 for the Trans-Mississippi Exposition; the final postponement of the new age of consent law which provided for the reduction of the house for so great a length of time, and the spirited debate upon the bill introduced by Mr. Boal of Custer, having for its object the repeal of the deficiency judgment law.

Resolved, That we urge upon our representatives in congress that a provision be made in the twelfth census for ascertaining the amount of real estate, bonds, stocks, machinery, shares, or any other property whatever owned by non-residents, aliens in the United States. The same committee recommended the indefinite postponement of joint resolution No. 20, introduced by Mr. Graham by request, proposing an amendment to the state constitution relating to revenue and finance. The only negative vote on the exposition bill came from the senator from Osborn, Ritchie, Bundas.

When the order of bills on third reading was reached in the house Saturday the committee's substitute for house roll No. 183 was first on the list. It is for an act to authorize the organization of mutual insurance companies to insure city and village property against loss by fire, lightning, tornado, and to regulate their conduct.

The Argentine Government will shortly order the construction of six new torpedo boats, and likewise projects ordering two new cruisers. The total cost of these vessels is estimated at $5,000,000.

A Geneva clockmaker has invented a speaking watch. It is an application of the phonograph to the old-fashioned repeater, whose springs and hammers have been replaced by a disc of vulcanized india rubber. As the point moves over the surface it emits articulate sounds, indicating the hour, being an exact reproduction of those produced on a cylinder by the human voice, and which can be heard in an adjoining room.

D. A. Buck, a resident of Waterbury, Conn., once made a perfect steam engine that was so small that the engine, boiler, governors and pumps all stood on a space only one-fourth of an inch in diameter and less than seven-sixteenths of an inch high. The engine had 148 distinct parts, held together by forty-two screws. The diameter of the cylinder was but 1-25 of an inch, and the whole arrangement, including the base plate, weighed but three grains.

REED IS RE-ELECTED.

AGAIN SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Congress Meets to Modify the Tariff—Opening Ceremonies Are Comparatively Quiet—Many New Faces on the Floor of the Popular Branch.

Extra Session Is Opened.

Congress is again in session. The organization of the House was effected Monday by the re-election of Speaker Reed and the choice of the same old list of general officers, and the Senate got itself in working order without any trouble whatever. The vote for Speaker in the House was as follows:

- Reed (Dem.) of Texas 199
Bailey (Dem.) of Texas 114
Bell (Pop.) of Colorado 21
Newlands (Silverite) of Nevada 1

The election of Mr. Reed to his old position was a formality that occupied less than half an hour, including the nomination and his speech of acknowledgment of the honor. There was nothing strikingly picturesque or suggestive in the remarks of Gen. Grosvenor putting Mr. Reed in nomination or in the Speaker's acceptance. The latter merely said that he would endeavor to discharge the duties of his office.

SPEAKER REED.

Impartially and well; that he could not hope to please all members in all things at all times, but that he would do the best he could and would endeavor to administer the duties in a spirit of absolute fairness.

Galleries Crowded. As is usually the case at the opening of a Congress, the galleries of both House and Senate were crowded to their utmost capacity, and hundreds and thousands who neglected to provide themselves with tickets or were unable to secure one of the coveted pastboards were turned away by the doorkneeps, whose instructions were ironclad to admit only those who were entitled to seats.

As the hands of the clock pointed to 12, Major McDowell, the clerk of the House, rapped the House to order. Rev. J. C. Cadden, the blind chaplain, then delivered the invocation, appealing to the throne for God's blessing on the work of the new Congress and the new administration. The clerk of the House then read the President's proclamation convening Congress, after which the roll was called.

There was an abundance of flowers on the desks of Senators when, promptly at 12 o'clock, Vice-President Hobart called the Senate to order. There was an exceptionally full attendance of Senators. The public galleries were packed and the reserved galleries were well filled. The chaplain's opening prayer invoked divine grace and blessing on the Senate and members, both to take up the work of the extraordinary session and on the President and Vice-President. The roll call disclosed the presence of sixty-eight Senators. Senator Hear and Senator Coker were named a committee to wait on the President and inform him that Congress was in session and ready to receive any communication from him. The Senate then, at 12:30, took a recess until 2 o'clock.

A True Ghost Story. The truth of the following story is vouched for by a London paper: A young lady arrived late at night on a visit to a friend. She awoke in the darkness to find a white figure at the foot of the bed. While she watched, the bedclothes were suddenly whisked off, and the apparition vanished.

After an anxious, hot to say chilly, night, the visitor went down to breakfast. At the table she was introduced to a gentleman, a very old friend of the family, who had, she learned, also been sleeping in the house. He complained of the cold. "I hope you will excuse me," he said to the hostess, "but I found it so cold during the night that, knowing the room next mine was unoccupied, I took the liberty of going in and carrying off the bedclothes to supplement my own." The room, as it happened, was not unoccupied, but he never learned his mistake.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Treasury Situation Reviewed and Prompt Action Urged.

The following is President McKinley's message as read before congress in extra session Monday:

To the Congress of the United States: Regarding the necessity which has required me to call you together I feel that your assembling in extraordinary session is a fitting recognition of the gravity of the situation in which we find the revenues of the government. It is conceded that the current expenditures have exceeded the receipts, and that such a condition has existed for more than three years. While unbroken increases of our revenues have been sententious the remarkable spectacle of increasing our public debt by borrowing money to meet the ordinary outlays, and upon over an extended period, and prudent administration of the government. An examination of the subject discloses that in every respect the receipts are not commensurate with the condition of the revenue which allows it to be unjustified and should be discontinued. The receipts of the treasury for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, from all sources except the proceeds of the sale of public lands for all purposes were $115,533,805.54, leaving an excess of receipts over expenditures of $2,724,000.00. During that fiscal year the receipts of the treasury from all sources except the proceeds of the sale of public lands for all purposes were $115,533,805.54, leaving an excess of receipts over expenditures of $2,724,000.00.

The receipts of the government from all sources during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898, were $115,533,805.54, and the expenditures were $112,810,000.00, leaving an excess of receipts over expenditures of $2,724,000.00. LIKE RED PEPPER.

Slang Should Be Used Very Lightly, and with Discretion.

There is a fashion in slang, as in everything else, and that used by the youth of to-day is not the same as that employed by their parents when they were young. But, although slang may change, it never goes out of fashion.

And I think I may safely state that among young people it was never more deplorably popular than it is now. It is argued that there is no harm in it; and when used only occasionally, among a select few who know one another well, this may be true. But the harmful thing about it all is that the habit of slangy speech is easily contracted, and that it vitates the speech all unconsciously to the speaker. I have in mind a young girl, bright and well educated, who told me that in a circle of intimate friends she used slang so constantly that when she was talking with people to whom she wished to talk well and twenty she was obliged all the while to be on her guard lest some slangy idiom escape her.

She was at a dinner, and for the first half hour she managed to avoid all rocks and reefs of slang. Then she grew more confident as she became interested in the conversation of the man next her—a brilliant litterateur. He was telling her of a young girl, rich already, to whom had been left a legacy which she was to spend upon just what she most desired for herself. Here he named the sum to be used for that purpose. Our would-be careful heroine forgot her caution in her amazement. "Imagine having all that cash just to blow in!" she exclaimed. And then she remembered, and remembering, flushed scarlet, and was overcome with confusion. She told me of it with tears of mortification in her eyes.

"Just when I wanted to appear at my best!" she lamented. "But I have learned my lesson, and shall stop using slang, if I have to be dumb to do it. Never, even in the heart of my own home, will I allow myself to use the hateful thing!"

It is a pity that more girls have not learned the same lesson. A little slang used judiciously may be expressive. It is never elegant, and should only be utilized in speech as red pepper is employed in cooking—very lightly, and with great discretion.—Harper's Bazar.

LONG DISTANCE RACE.

Louis Gimm, Who Has Ridden 480 Miles in 23 1/2 Hours.

Louis Gimm was born in Germany, but came to this country at an early age, and to all intents and purposes is an American. As such he has done more to popularize long distance cycle racing than any other wheelman in this country. Aug. 14 and 15, 1895, at Cleveland, Ohio, he reduced all American records from nine to twenty-four hours, paced, by riding 452 miles, 1,715 yards in "twice around the clock." Last September at the Coliseum in Chicago, in competition, he created a new American record for one day's riding by covering 486 miles 1,157 yards 1 foot, exceeding his former mark by 33 miles 1,195 yards and 2 feet. He did not ride the full twenty-four hours, thanks to the officials, who, guided by humane sentiments, had him withdrawn from the track at the expiration of twenty-three and one-half hours. Had not that been done it was probable that his half-conscious form would have had to be borne away by his attendants. Gimm's finish in that race was one of the most pitiful sights that was ever beheld on a race track. He seemed to be a physical wreck. His eyes were glassy and his form limp.

There are some things in which our English cousins have the advantage of us.

An American millionaire, accustomed to purchase anything he wanted, tried to obtain from an Oxford gardener the secret of the beautiful lawns which make the pride of England—or a portion of it.

"Tell me, my good man, how you manage it," he said, condescendingly, putting his hand significantly into his pocket.

"It is very simple, sir," replied the gardener, quietly. "You cut it as close as ever you can cut, and you roll it, and cut it for 600 years."

A Change of Venus. He was about as black as the traditional ace of spades, and two dusky dameels, each of whom claimed the right to call him husband, sat bolt upright in the court room and glared at the defendant.

"Yo'r honor," said the prisoner, "I want to apply for a change of venus in this case."

"On what ground?" inquired the court.

"I want a change of venus," repeated the defendant, "because one of dese women is prejudiced ag'in me."—Troy Times.

The Blue Danube. It was the linen cuff and the quick thought of woman who were it that gave us one of the prettiest of the tuneful Strauss waltzes, says the London Mail. Johann Strauss and his wife were one day enjoying a stroll in the park at Schonau, when suddenly the composer exclaimed, "My dear, I have a waltz in my head; give me a scrap of paper or an envelope. I must write it down before I forget it." Alas! After much rummaging of pockets it was found that they had not a letter about them—not even a tradesman's bill.

Strauss music is considered light, but it weighed as heavy as lead on his brain until he could transfer it to paper. His despair was pathetic. At last a happy thought struck Frau Strauss. She held out a snowy cuff.

The composer clutched it eagerly, and in two minutes the cuff was manuscript. Its mate followed; still the inspiration was incomplete. Strauss was frantic, and was about to make a wild dash for home with the third part of the waltz phlegm uncertainly in his head—his own linen was limp, colored calico—when suddenly his frau be thought herself of her collar, and in an instant the remaining bar of "The Blue Danube" decorated its surface.

THAT SPLENDID COFFEE. Mr. Goodman, Williams County, Ill., writes us: "From one package Salzer's Gernah Coffee Berry I grew 300 pounds of better coffee than I can buy in stores at 30 cents a pound."

A package of this and big seed catalogue is sent you by John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., upon receipt of 15 stamps and this notice.

Effects of Severe Cold. Travelers in the Arctic regions say the physical effects of cold there are about as follows: Fifteen degrees above, unpleasantly warm; zero, mild; 10 degrees below, bracing; 20 degrees below, sharp, but not severely cold; 30 degrees below, very cold; 40 degrees below, intensely cold; 50 degrees below, a struggle for life.

President McKinley is perfectly at home in the White House and when taking an evening stroll for his health.

The worst blizzard known for years
occurred in South Dakota last Thursday. Railroads were blocked for three or four days and business was at a stand still. Stock suffered terribly.

The mayoralty contest in Chicago promises to be an unusually interesting one. There are four candidates and the breeze in the windy city will, no doubt, increase to a frightful velocity.

Investigations are a necessary thing
where they do not receive their impetus from a feeling of spite, but the trusts go right along doing business at the old stand, regardless of investigations.

The Trans-Mississippi appropriation bill providing for $100,000 has passed the Senate and will receive the signature of Governor Holcomb. The Exposition is an assured fact and that it will inure to the benefit of the whole state, will be demonstrated.

Spring promises to be unusually late in putting in an appearance which will delay farmers a great deal with their work. No wheat has yet been planted and on the low ground it will be some time before sowing can begin, owing to the immense amount of water. There is certainly no danger or a drouth this year.

The extra session of congress called by President McKinley convened at noon Monday. Speaker Reed and all the old house officials were re-elected.
The President's message was read and the new tariff bill introduced. The message was brief but to the point and deals only with the question of raising more revenue and the President asks for prompt and courageous action by congress. The bill is expected to become a law by July 1.

The press of Nebraska is duly warning the populist party and legislature that Treasurer Meserve needs looking after. If they fail to do anything and the state loses by it they cannot say they did not have due warning. The Kearney Hub says: "The condition of the official bond of the treasurer of the state of Nebraska is something that concerns every citizen. If it is true as believed, that Governor Holcomb has been a party to the approval of what is virtually a straw bond, the fact should be definitely ascertained at an early date. Treasurer Meserve's predecessor gave a bond for two million dollars, where as his own represents only one million if the Hub has been correctly informed, while the greater portion of even this reduced surety is said to be practically valueless. The state has had enough of treasury troubles, hence the administration should, while engaged in the test of setting to rights and enforcing the law against the retiring treasurer, be just as strict in dealing with the new one. This is not a party matter, but is a question of public concern."—York Times.

From McKinley's Message.
The total receipts for the three fiscal years ending June 30, 1896, were insufficient by $137,311,720.46 to meet the total expenditures.
Before other business is transacted
let us first provide sufficient revenue to faithfully administer the government, without the contracting of further debt or the continued disturbance of our finances.
In raising revenue duties should be so levied upon foreign products as to preserve the home market so far as possible to our own producers; to retrieve and increase manufactures; to relieve and encourage agriculture; to increase our domestic and foreign commerce; to aid and develop mining and building and to render to labor in every field of useful occupation the liberal wages and adequate rewards to which skill and industry are justly entitled.

Rambling Thoughts
BY NEMO.
(COPYRIGHTED.)
Among the many things proved by latter-day science, is the effect of surroundings upon living creatures. Go among the Tierra-del-Fuegians and you will find enormous chests and very feeble legs, as a consequence of almost constant paddling in canoes; visit the Esquimaux and they will be found able to stand almost unclothed in the most rigorous weather, because of a layer of fat evenly spread under the skin by Nature as a protection against their climate. In Africa vast regions too utterly malarial for Europeans to live in, support natives in most lively and thriving fashion. To close our proofs regarding the influence of the dwelling place go now to the tropical islands where all things grow in profusion and almost without labor on the part of man, and you find—what? Men and women too lazy to exert themselves and therefore amounting to almost nothing as an influence in the world.
But all this refers to the bodies of men
—as to the mind, tell me what mounds
the stolid, plodding, stupid ways of the Russian Moujik. His surroundings,
the self-reliance of the Englishman's Surroundings.

neither Fuegians nor South Sea Islanders, Moujiks nor Britishers, but just plain Americans, you cannot escape the influence of environment any more than a clam can escape from the sea.
These laws are at work here as well as everywhere else and you admit it in your general conversation. You will say "What a poor chance Tom has; he is being raised among dirt and neglect!"
You think of surroundings being of influence, just as you probably think of death; something that is absolutely certain for everybody else, but only dreadfully certain for you. Herein are we slow of heart; we fail to recognize that we are in the world as a genuine, actual part of it, and that the laws influencing it are the laws influencing us.
It is in this directions I ramble this week, still continuing the thoughts on Education that have gone before.

By Nature's kind arrangements we are not brought forth hundreds at a time in a hive from one common queen bee, but in small, very small groups whereby each individual in the family may secure the care necessary for a creature so feeble at birth and yet so potent in possibilities. To bring before your vision the lamentable results
where the personal touch is lacking it is only necessary to mention the spirit-less and monotonous lives of asylum children. A few children of varying ages under one authority is the normal condition of things. We must therefore even look upon the teacher of forty or fifty children as occupying an unnatural position that should call for our best sympathy and wisest co-operation. It is absolutely unfair to expect her to counteract all influences, home and street, that work against high motives and moral attempts.

I am not deluding myself with the idea that these words are to enter the homes of ease and refinement. They are to go into thousands where it is not always easy to make both ends meet;
where life has possibly a rasping influence upon the overburdened mother and overworked father; where the "quiver-full" of children is a blessing very thoroughly disguised. And because such homes are after all the recreating place of American life and future American progress, I must be very plain here. I dare to say from a knowledge of both ends of society, that it is quite as possible, if not more so,
to find in such homes the virtues of patience and perseverance, of self-forgetfulness and tenderness, of love and unity developing under hard conditions rather than under the influence of boundless wealth and opportunity. So the poverty of the home where even the lamp is dispensed with so as to save expense, is not left out in these suggestions.

The main thing is the SPIRIT of the home. Even of illiterate and hampered by vices, a parent's real love for the things that are pure and right will outweigh all things else. If unwholesome thoughts and purposes are merely covered with a veneer of book-knowledge and deportment, the parent can never by mere instruction outweigh the unconscious evil pull of his character upon the children summering and wintering with him, I cannot do better than include a portion of a letter just received from a very pure minded and noble young doctor. He says in substance "As I look back at my home life in early childhood, I remember my grandmother always appealed to me by her gentleness and kindness and personal cleanliness and attractiveness.
Still I knew quite well that she was lacking in firmness, letting her desire that everybody should be happy for the moment overcome her best judgment.
My grandfather I respected for his exact integrity and preciseness. I knew he was lacking in geniality, but it was the former quality that influenced me—not the latter. We had a faithful old black cook who had been a slave. I loved her for her happy songs and good cooking, though I disliked her shiftlessness and extravagance. In brief, with each member of the family it was the good qualities and not the bad which has chief influence in moulding my character. As I have been thinking over it to know why it was so, I have become convinced that it was due to the fact that each member of the family was actuated by a desire to do the best he could for all the rest. This was the fashion, if you will, in my little world, and with the spirit of imitation strong within me, as it is in every child, I adopted the rule of the household as my own."

By reason of the memories of childhood religiously over-trained and morally starved, with its errors corrected
by the most drastic sufferings, let me cry out to you parents of the burden-bearers of the next century: "Home influence, more pure, more gentle, more tender, so that the child may ever look back to it, not only without pain but with absolute and positive pleasure.
Home influence, with the motive not alone to give the child pleasant memories, but rather to give it the power to overcome evil around it by the good within."
The Cubans, according to all reports have about won the long looked for victory. Spain is stumbling and the independence of Cuba is in sight.

CHAPTER XVIII. A month later Mr. and Mrs. John Hanington had rather a jaded and brittle look. The anxieties of his position were telling upon him. But as yet he had said nothing of these anxieties to Molly.

"A thundering double knock and a peal at the front door-bell suddenly resounded through the house, and made Hanington start. "I expect that that knock is for us," he said. "Donald Vereker and a friend were to call for me at seven-thirty. I hear them coming up now."

"Mr. Vereker—Captain Rutherford—my wife"—the introduction was effected in very brief fashion by John Hanington, who wanted to make his escape as quickly as possible, but was annoyed to find his friends in no hurry to depart. Mr. Vereker always loved a pretty face, and he had heard enough of Molly's story to be curious about her. While Captain Rutherford—Charlie Rutherford, as his friends usually called him—having never heard of Mrs. John Hanington before, nor being remarkable for his appreciation of woman's beauty, amazed his companions not a little by seeming quite unable to take his eyes off Molly's face, and showing no disposition at all to hasten away. Hanington was half vexed, half flattered by this evident admiration of his wife.

"Well, I don't wish to hurry you," said Hanington at length, doing his best to speak pleasantly, "but I think we had better be off."

"And are we going to leave Mrs. Hanington all by herself?" asked Donald Vereker. "That's hard lines, isn't it?"

"Oh, I shall be quite happy," said Molly, innocently. "I have a novel to read, although I'm afraid that it won't be quite as nice as the 'Lycium.'"

"Did you want to go to the Lycium, then?" said Mr. Vereker.

"Oh, we had tickets for to-night," replied guileless Molly, "but as Jack has a business engagement he cannot go, so I—and she laughed a little—"am left at home lamenting."

"Oh, look here," cried Donald, "we'll give up our engagement, Jack—important as it is," and he bestowed a facetious wink upon Hanington, which annoyed that gentleman very much indeed; and we'll all escort Mrs. Hanington. "What have you got—stalls, a box? If it's a box, we can all go, you know."

"It is not a box, unfortunately," said Jack, coldly. "We had stalls. I am exceedingly sorry, but even if your engagement is not of pressing importance, mine is, and I cannot give it up."

"Can I be of no use?" said Captain Rutherford, eagerly. "Perhaps I might be allowed to escort Mrs. Hanington this evening? I'm looking full at Hanington—"have no engagement of any kind, as Mr. Vereker knows. I was now on my way home, and shall be delighted if I may have the honor."

"Very kind of you, I'm sure, Charlie," said Hanington. "Well, if you don't mind the trouble, my wife will be charmed. It's rather a pity to sacrifice two tickets."

Molly looked anything but charmed. Married woman as she was, and under John Hanher without having made love to her? Molly broke out, jealously. Her breast was heaving; her dilated eyes gleamed through a mist of tears.

"Naturally," said her husband, coolly. He had by this time lost his temper. "I never implied that Stella Ræburn gave me her affection without my asking for it, did I? Of course I made love to her; what else do you expect to hear?"

"You loved her first?" cried Molly. Her face had grown pale, and her hands clinched themselves at her side. There was something tragic in her look.

Hanington laughed scornfully. "Loved her?" he rejoined. "I have only loved one woman in my life—and that was not Stella Ræburn."

"Oh, Jack, Jack!" said that you loved me?" cried Molly, stretching out her arms to him, beseechingly. He looked at her and did not answer. "You have loved one woman," she went on, fearfully, "don't you mean me, Jack? You have always said that you loved me; and I—I am your wife."

"Worse luck for me," growled Hanington, savagely. He said it between his teeth, not exactly meaning her to hear; but when he saw from her stricken look and the shrinking movement of her whole body that she had heard, he did not attempt to amend matters. He cast a guilty glance at her, shrugged his shoulders, and then went straight out of the room. He had come to the conclusion that it was useless to "humbly" Molly any longer. The sooner she found out that he did not care for her more than husbands usually care for their wives—such was the cynical way in which he put it to himself—the better for her—the better for them both.

CHAPTER XX. Molly sank into a chair when her husband left her, and sat like a stone, cold, motionless, and indifferent to all surroundings. It seemed to her that life was at an end, that her happiness was entirely destroyed. She cried her heart out like a hurt child, before she thought a herself of any plan of action or any arrangement for the future, now that she was bereft of her husband's love.

When she was a little calmer, she noticed that she had seen her uncle's letter deep to the floor, where it lay crumpled and half unread. She brought it up, at last to make the effort to read the message. It was a very curious thing to do at that moment; for she was in a keenly susceptible state.

Molly now read on with interest. "Your father is anxious and uneasy concerning some letters that Mrs. Moncrieff once wrote to Jack. If you want to do us a service, my dear, you had better get Jack to send them back. Your father will know no peace until they are destroyed, for he cannot bear the thought of their existence. He will be much more likely to forgive your husband if he gets those letters away from him. I still hope to soften your father's heart toward you. Your affectionate uncle,

"RALPH KINGSCOTT."

Molly rose up from the reading of that letter with her brain on fire. Jack had written to Stella Ræburn, now Stella Moncrieff, her father's wife—and would not she tell them? What did that mean but that he still, in spite of his denial, loved Stella and cherished her memory. Molly set her teeth and pressed her hands closely together as she considered this possibility. And then there came an overwhelming desire to see herself the letters of which her uncle spoke, and she made her way into Han-ington's dressing-room. In the dispatch box, for the most part neatly tied up and docketed in a severely methodical manner. She tossed them over with hot, trembling fingers. Then, at the very bottom of the box, her eyes fell on two slim papers tied together with a bit of black ribbon; one was black-edged, both were covered with the fine and pretty characters that belong to Stella's hand.

Two; were there only two? She turned over the other papers, but could find no more. Only one seemed to be of any length or importance. The first was the letter written by Stella soon after her father's death, begging John Hanington to come to her. The next—ah, this was what froze Molly's heart as she read it—the next was the outpouring of girlish tenderness which Hanington had found so embarrassing, so difficult to answer. Molly worked herself up to a state of indignation and fury, in which it seemed as though every softer feeling had deserted her.

She rose from her seat and began to look for writing materials. She put Stella's letter in her pocket, and addressed it to her uncle at Torrington.

"He may do what he likes with them," she said, with a firm setting of her lips. (To be continued.)

Joan of Arc on the Battlefield. In battle her courage was fearless, and well it was that it was so, for success was dearly bought, her indomitable energy alone inspiring her faint-hearted followers. When her troops threatened retreat, it was by throwing herself into the thickest of the fight, crying, "They are ours!" that she turned defeat to victory. Often wounded, she disdained the palm of her man-gled flesh, and remained on the field as an example to her men. A gracious woman, withal, her pity was even greater than her courage, braving and receiving blows, but never returning them. She had but one weapon, her banner, for her sword never left its scabbard. Later she was to say that she "loved her banner a thousand times more than her sword." At night, when the heat of battle was assuaged, her tears fell at the thought of the wounded and the dead. "I have never seen French blood shed without my hair standing on end," was one of her naive utterances. The enemy commended her pity as well, and she was as often seen assisting the dying English as her own people. Thus she was not only the mind which directed, she was likewise the heart filled with sympathy, the soul solicitous of the welfare of other souls, intuitively understanding that the soldier who fights the best is he whose heart is pure. In the same spirit she lightened the burden of the army by curtailing useless luggage, and she drove away the disreputable women who had followed the camp, and with them the debauchery and disorder which they had brought. On the other hand, she gently admonished her soldiers to clear their conscience, to be virtuous and religious as well as brave.—Century.

THE FLAGS HOISTED.

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES A VIVID AND APPROPRIATE SERMON.

He Says He Hates War—But He Admires the Right Kind of Martial Spirit—Words of Glowing and Picturesque Exhortation.

Our Washington Pulpit. At this time, when our national capital has for ten days been ablaze with our national flag, the imagery of this sermon of Dr. Talmage seems very vivid and appropriate. The text is Psalms xxxv, 5, "In the name of God we will set up our banners."

I hate war. In my boyhood we may have read the biography of Alexander or of some Revolutionary hero until our young heart beat high and we wished we were born over 100 years ago, just for the glory of striking down a Hessian. For rusty swords hung up on the rafters and bullets cut out of log houses in which they were lodged during the great strife we had unbounded admiration, or on some public day, clothed in our grandfather's soldierly accoutrements, we felt as brave as Gorbald or Miltiades. We are wiser now, for we make a vast distinction between the poetry and the prose of war. The roll of drums and the call of bugles and the clamping of steeds foaming and paving for the battle, 100,000 muskets glittering among the dazzling plumes of "Save the King" waving up from claret and trumpets and rums back from deep-dells or the arches of a prostrate city, distant capitals of kingdoms illuminated at the tidings, generals returning home under flaming auburns and showering amaranths and the about of empires—that is poetry.

Chilled and half blanketed, lying on the wet earth; feet sore with the march and bleeding at the slightest touch; hunger piling on every fiber of flesh or attempting to satisfy itself with a scanty and spoiled ration; thirst licking up the dew or drinking out of filthy and trampled pools; thoughts of home and kindred far away, when just at the moment of the deadly strife, when death men have been seen among any one of a hundred bayonets; the closing of two armies, now changed to 100,000 maniacs; the ground slippery with blood and shattered flesh; fallen ones writhing under the hoofs of unbridled chargers maddened with pain; the dreadfulness of night, that comes down when the strife is over; the struggle of the wounded ones crawling out over the corpses; the long, feverish agony of the crowded barracks and hospital, from whose mattresses the fragments of men send up their groans. The only music of carnage and butchery; desolate homes, from which fathers and husbands and brothers and sons went off without giving any dying message or sending a kiss to the dear ones at home, tumbled into the soldiers' grave trench, and broken in which a few weeks before unbroken family circles rejoiced, now plunged into the great sorrows of widowhood and orphanage. That is prose.

But there is now on the earth a kingdom which has set itself up for conflicts without number. In its march it tramples no grainfields, it sacks no cities, it impoverishes no treasuries, it fills no hospitals, it bereaves no families. The courage and victory of Solferino and Magenta without carnage. The kingdom of Christ against the kingdom of Satan. The strife now raging. We will offer no armistices. We will make no treaty. Until all the revolted nations of the earth shall submit again to King Emmanuel "in the name of God we will set up our banners."

Every army has its ensigns. Long before the time when David wrote the text they were in use. The hosts of Israel displayed them, the tribe of Benjamin carried a flag with the inscription of a wolf, the tribe of Dan a representation of cherubim, Judah a lion, and the tribe of Simeon a white, purple and crimson flag. Such flags from their folds shook fire into the hearts of such numbers as were in the field when Abijah fought against Jehoram, and there were 1,200,000 soldiers, and more than 500,000 were left dead on the field. These ensigns gave heroism to such numbers as were assembled when Asa fought against Zerah, and there were 1,500,000 troops in the battle. The Athenians carried an inscription of the owl, which was their emblem of wisdom. The flags of modern nations are familiar to you all, and many of them so appropriate to the character of the nation they represent it would be impotent to enumerate them. These ensigns are streamers borne on the point of a lance and on the top of wooden shafts. They are carried in the front and rear of armies. They unroll from the main top gallant masthead of an admiral's flagship to distinguish it among other ships of the same squadron. They are the objects of national pride. The loss of them on the field is ignominious.

The three banners of the Lord's hosts are the banner of proclamation, the banner of recruit and the banner of victory. When a nation feels its rights infringed or its honor insulted, when its citizens have a grievance, when a wrong has been done, when a wrong has been offered to the inhabitant of the republic or kingdom, a proclamation of war is uttered. "On the top of batteries and arsenals and custom houses and revenue offices flags are immediately swung out. All who look upon them realize the fact that uncompromising war is declared. Thus it is that the church of Jesus Christ, zealous for the honor of its sovereign and determined to get back those who have been carried off captive into the bondage of Satan and intent upon the destruction of those who do wrong, which have so long cursed the earth and bent upon the extension of the Saviour's reign of mercy, in the name of God sets up its banner of proclamation.

The church makes no assault upon the world. I do not believe that God ever made a better world than this. It is magnificent in its ruins. Let us stop talking so much against the world. God pronounced it very good at the beginning. There is a warning of God's will in the great Father's lineaments. Though tossed and driven by the storms of 6,000 years, she sails bravely yet, and as at her launching in the beginning the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, so at last, when coming into the calm harbor of God's mercy, she shall be greeted by the huzzas of glorified kingdoms. It is not the world against which we contend, but its transgressions. Whatever is obstructive to the will, depending in passion, hatred, custom, false friendship, hypocritical profession—against all this—Christ makes onset. From false profession he would tear the mask. From oppression he would snatch the rod. From pride he would rend off the plumes. From revenge he would exercise the dagger. While Christ loved the world so much he died to save it, he has since said, "I will not consume the last trace of its pollution he will utterly consume the continents and the oceans. At the gate of Eden the declaration of perpetual enmity was made against the serpent. The tumult roundabout Mount Sinai was only the roar and flash of God's artillery of wrath against sin. Sodom on fire was only one of God's flaming bulletins announcing hostility. Nineveh's mark Tyre and Jerusalem in awful ruin mark the track of Jehovah's advancement. They show that God was terribly in earnest when he announced himself abhorrent of all iniquity. They make us believe that though nations beligerent and revengeful may sign articles of peace and come to an amicable adjustment, there shall be no cessation of hostilities between the forces of light and the forces of darkness until the kingdoms of our world have become the kingdoms of our Lord. Affrighted by the opposition, discouraged by no temporary defeats, shrinking from no exposure to every man to his position, which from the top of our schools and churches and seminaries and asylums in the name of God we will set up our banners."

A Glorious Standard. Again, it was the custom in ancient times for the purpose of gathering armies to lift an ensign on the top of some high hill so that all who saw it would feel impelled to rally around it. In more modern times the same plan has been employed for the gathering of an army. Thus it is that the church of Christ lifts its flag for recruits. The cross of Jesus is our standard, planted on the hill of Calvary. Other armies demand that persons desiring to enter the lists of war shall be between such and such an age, lest the folly of extreme youth or the infirmity of advanced age be a clog rather than an advantage. But, none is too young for Christ's regiment, and none can be too old. The hand that is strong enough to bound a ball or trundle a hoop is skilful enough to fight for Christ, while many a hand trembling with old age has grasped the arrow of truth, and, with a dim eye close to it, taking aim, has sent its sharp point right through the heart of the King's enemies. Many of you have long ago had your names written on the roll of celestial troops, and you like the service well, although you now bear the scars of multitudinous conflicts and can recount many a long march and tell of siege guns opened up on you that you thought never would be spoken of there. You, being here implies that you are seriously thinking about it, and your attention makes me hope you are only looking for the standard to be hoisted. Will you, not 100 of you, with all the aroused enthusiasm of your nature, come bounding into the ranks, while "in the name of God we set up our banners?"

What if arsenals and navy yards do not belong to the church? We do not want them. The weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but spiritual and mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds. The world and Satan have no idea of the strength and heroism which God can yet lend to the church in the darkness. As yet they have had only one round from the first regiment. The Lord of Hosts will soon appear in the field at the head of his troops. Depend upon it, that when God inspires the soul with a new life he puts in it the principle of "never give up." In all ages of the church there have been those who have had a faith that was almost equal to sight, looking through persecution and reverses with as much expectation as through palpable achievements. There have been men for Christ who have acted as did the favorite troops of Balaam, attacked by the power of darkness. The wounded soldiers begged that they might enter the light with the others. They said, "Let stakes be stuck in the ground and suffer each of us, tried and supported by one of these stakes, to battle in the ranks by the side of a sound man." It is said that 700 or 800 men, pale and emaciated from former wounds, and thus supported by the stakes, struggled through the combat. Thus has it been that multitudes of the children of God, though feeling themselves weak and wounded, perhaps in body, perhaps in estate, perhaps in soul, supported by the staff of God's promise, have warred it up to the hill in the subjugation of a world of wickedness.

We are mighty in this cause, for we have the head of the pious head, Messengers of salvation from high heaven, to visit the field. They stand behind us to keep us from ignominious retreat. They go before us to encourage us in the strife. The McChynes, the Paysons, and the Martyns, and the Brainerds, an uncounted multitude of the glorified, are our coadjutors. Although we have already much to encourage us in the work of the world's evangelization, yet we must confess that much of our time has been consumed in planting our batteries and getting ready for the conflict. We have not yet begun to preach the gospel, and we have not yet begun to pray. We have not yet begun to work. On the coasts of heavenland are missionary stations. They have scarcely yet begun to accomplish what they propose. It takes some time to dig the trenches and elevate the standard and direct the great guns. From what I hear I think they are about ready now. Let but the great Captain wave the signal and the ringing of celestial weaponry shall quake every dungeon of hell and sound up among the thrones of heaven. Pagodas and temples shall tumble and the altars of heathen gods and nations flying from their idols and superstitious, shouting like the confounded worshippers of Baal: "The Lord, he is the God! The Lord, he is the God!" We go not alone to the field. Aye, God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost are our allies!

Pecious Seed. The Mohammedans, in their struggles to subjugate the world, had passages from the Koran inscribed on the blades of their scimiters, and we have nothing to fear if, approaching the infidelity and malice that oppose the kingdom of Christ, we shall have glittering on our swords the words of David to the Lord, "I will come to thee in the name of the Lord of Hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast despised."

Now the church goes forth bearing precious seed, but after awhile it will be the sheaf binding, and reaper angels shall shout the harvest home. Now it is tents and marching and exposure, but then, in the ranks of prostrate iniquity and on the very walls of heaven, "in the name of God we will set up our banners."

The earth sends up its long, deep groan of pain and clanks the great iron of its bondage and sends up the voice of its longing to the throne of the Almighty. Angel of the Apocalypse, fly, fly! For who will stand in the way of thy might or resist the sweep of thy wing?

War.—History shows war to be useless. The great dynasties built on conquest have gone to ruin. Spain at one time dominated the earth, but its program was conquest, and to-day its last American colony is shaking off its rule. The dominion of the Mohammedans, acquired by force, is at present held together only by the sufferance of Europe. Grant was right when he said there never was a war which could not have been avoided by settlement some other way.—Rev. Frank Crane, Methodist, Chicago, Ill.

Good and Evil.—Evil is born in its good must be acquired. If we cherish a single evil tendency it is sure to become predominant, for man is so constituted that either good or evil must always be uppermost, and where evil has the advantage of hereditary instinct, it must be accorded no other encouragement. Hence there can be no compromise, nothing less than a war of extermination.—Rev. S. S. Seward, Swedenborgian, New York City.

air, and that he wandered for hundreds of miles over river and lake until the arrival of Christianity, and that at the stroke of the first cathedral bell her spirit was freed. Uncounted millions of our race, by the power of sin and Satan, have been transformed into a state of wretchedness, and they wander like the poor daughter of Lir, but they shall after awhile be released. When the great church of Christ shall in those darkened lands from its tower ring out the glad tidings of the gospel, then millions of wandering souls shall find rest in a Saviour's city, and a Saviour's love, transposed from the kingdom of Satan into the kingdom of God's dear Son.

By and by you would hardly know the earth if you saw it. The world as a whole shall be as greatly improved as the individual heart by conversion. Fraud, leaving its trickery, will go to work for an honest living. Knavery shall begin to make righteous bargains. Passion shall answer to the control of reason. Scoffers shall be changed into worshippers and skeptics into Bible lovers. Christ shall begin his reign on earth. Whether he shall establish a Government at Jerusalem, I cannot say. But it will be an era of more than Augustan splendor. That is enough. Knowing this, we can never despair. But as we see the church of Christ putting on her beautiful garments and arising to shine we will say, with the enthusiasm of Oliver Cromwell, who, standing before his sick and famine-stricken soldiers at Dunbar, saw the sun rising out of the morning mist and, pointing to it with his sword, uttered a prayer which hurled his men upon the crushed foe like a sky full of thunderbolts: "Arise, O God! Let thine anger be kindled against the army of the faith I catch the sound of the latter-day glory. Church of Christ, unsheath thy sword—and this moment—into the battle! In the name of Christ, march on! Upon every school and hospital; upon every banker's desk and merchant's counter, upon every chemist's laboratory and astronomer's tower, upon shepherd's hut and woodman's cabin, upon ship's deck and sailor's hammock, far out on the sea and high up in the mountain, before the gaze of nations, under the applauds of heaven, "in the name of God we will set up our banners."

Ensigns and Colors. My subject has taught you that in this contest we are not without ensigns and colors. All we want now is men to carry them. Before I sit down I must propose to each of you this great honor. Becoming a Christian is not so ignoble a thing as many have thought it. "It makes a man stoop," you say. I know it, but it is only the stoop of an heir of royalty, who on his knees is to receive a crown of dominion. We want standard bearers in all pulpits. In all places of business—everywhere. I do not ask you how old you are, nor how young, how weak or how strong, how dull or how sharp, nor what your home, nor who your ancestors. Without any condition, without any reserve, in the name of the God of Israel, I offer you the honor of carrying the church's ensigns. Do not be afraid of the assaults of a world whose weapons are the instruments of death who will oppose you with infernal might. It were more blessed to fall here than stand anywhere else. It were more of an honor, engaged with Christ, to be trampled underfoot with this army of banners, than, opposing Christ, to be buried, like Edward I., in Egyptian pyramids.

The prophecies intimate that there shall before the destruction of the world be one great battle between truth and unrighteousness. We shall not probably see it in our time. God grant that we may see it, leading from the battlements of heaven. On the side of sin shall be arrayed all forms of oppression and cruelty, led on by infamous kings and generals; the votaries of paganism, led on by their priests; the subjects of Mohammedanism, following the command of their sheiks. And givatory and impudence and iniquity of every phase shall be largely represented on the field. All the wealth and splendor and power and glory of wickedness shall be concentrated on that one decisive spot, and maddened by 10,000 previous defeats, shall gadden themselves up for one last terrible assault. We have hated to God for their cause and in blasphemy of the battle of the spread out over the earth in square behind square and legion beyond legion, while in some overhanging cloud of blackness foul spirits of hell watch this last struggle of sin and darkness for dominion.

Scattered by the blasts of Jehovah's nostrils, plunder and sin and satanic force shall quit the field. As the roar of the conflict sounds through the universe all worlds shall listen. The air shall be full of wings of heavenly cohorts. The work is done, and in the presence of God for the crown of Jesus, and amid the crumbling of tyrannies and the defeat of satanic force, and amid the sound of heavenly acclamations, the church shall rise up in the image of our Lord, and with the crown of victory on her head and the scepter of dominion in her hand in the name of God shall set up her banners. Then Hymalaya shall become Mount Zion, and the Pyrenees-Morria, and the oceans the walking place of him who tread the waves crests of Gathie, and the great heavens become a sounding board which shall strain, and the sound of exultation on the earth till it rebound again to the throne of the Almighty. Angel of the Apocalypse, fly, fly! For who will stand in the way of thy might or resist the sweep of thy wing?

A COUNTERFEITER CAUGHT.

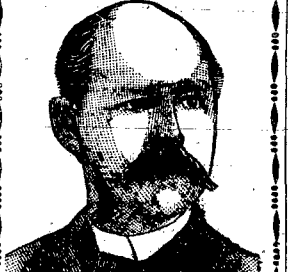

The Police of Syracuse Make an Important Capture.
On Monday, the 15th, Harold Marquise of Utica, N. Y., was arrested in Syracuse on a warrant sworn out by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., charging him with forgery. On the 15th of December Marquise visited a photo-engraver in Syracuse, saying he was the representative of the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., and arranged for the making of a full set of plates for the direction sheets, labels, etc., of the famous Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. News of this reached the home office, and Marquise was lost in arranging for his arrest when he should return for the plates. He was returned on the 15th and was accordingly arrested and is now in jail in Syracuse awaiting examination, which occurs on March 2.

This arrest proves to be an important one. In addition to various plunder, such as medical books, typewriters, rugs, etc., found in Marquise's trunk when arrested, the police also found counterfeit copies of both in the trunk and on his person; and in a search of his apartments at Utica found a complete outfit for counterfeiting, consisting of cranks, bellows, nickel, lead, bismuth, antimony, a small blacksmith forge, a charcoal furnace, and several plaster-of-paris molds. The United States marshals want him just as soon as the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. are through with him, and, no doubt, he will be sentenced for a long period.
In selecting Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for his counterfeiting operations, he showed his knowledge of the proprietary medicine business, for these pills are of such great demand that they are easily sold at any drug store in the United States. His scheme was to work the country druggists and sell his imitations at a discount of from 2 per cent. to 5 per cent., explaining the reduced price by the fact that he had picked them up in small lots and at a discount from dealers who were overstocked. By working fast and making forty jumps he would have secured many hundreds of dollars in a short time. The proprietors of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are most fortunate to have caught the rogue before he had fairly started, and to have thus kept these spurious goods out of the market.

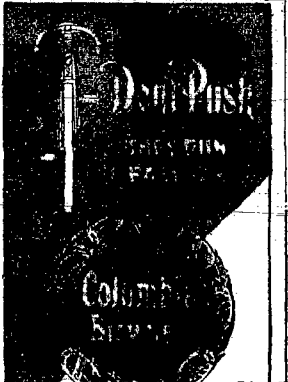

Nerves and Teeth.

Bad nerves and bad teeth will be found to go together in an extraordinary number of cases. The hustle and bustle of our modern life, which is also trying to the nerves, has an equally detrimental effect upon the teeth.

Bubbles or Medals.

"Best sarsaparilla." When you think of it how contradictory that term is. For there can be only one best in anything—one best sarsaparilla, as there is one highest mountain, one longest river, one deepest ocean. And that best sarsaparilla is—
There's the rub! You can measure mountain height and ocean depth, but how test sarsaparilla? You could if you were chemists. But then do you need to test it? The World's Fair Committee tested it—and thoroughly. They went behind the label on the bottle. What did this sarsaparilla test result in? Every make of sarsaparilla shut out of the Fair, except Ayer's. So it was that Ayer's was the only sarsaparilla admitted to the World's Fair. The committee found it the best. They had no room for anything that was not the best. And as the best, Ayer's Sarsaparilla received the medal and awards due its merits. Remember the word "best" is a bubble any breath can blow; but there are pins to prick such bubbles. Those others are blowing more "best sarsaparilla" bubbles since the World's Fair pricked the old ones. True, but Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the medal. The pin that scratches the medal proves it gold. The pin that pricks the bubble proves it wind. We point to medals, not bubbles, when we say: The best sarsaparilla is Ayer's.

A Funny Boat.

Here is the queerest boat afloat. It is the invention of a New York man, and it will doubtless soon become a popular pleasure craft, as it has so many good features to recommend it, compared with the old style craft.
Especially will it prove a boon and blessing to the sportsman who frequents the river and lakes. Unlike the old style rowboat this new boat, made of rubber, can be packed in a small space, and the hunter or fisherman can carry it wherever he chooses to go. It is a much safer boat than the old style, too. It is exceedingly hard to capsize, and when it does, filled with compressed air as it is, it acts as a life preserver, and the occupants can support themselves in the water until assistance arrives.

The inventor, H. D. Layman, describes the boat in detail. He says: "This boat is made of rubberized cloth, with continuous air chambers, made in two separate compartments, extending around the top of the boat, on which our locks are buckled, as shown in the illustration. It also has an air tube running lengthwise under the center of the boat, which serves as a rudder and bumper. The boats are capable of being deflated and packed into a small case or trunk with their seats and jointed oars, and may be carried under the seat of a buggy, or by hand, if needs be, as an outfit. The boat complete, capable of carrying comfortably three or four persons, would not weigh more than fifty pounds. The boats are made in four separate compartments, are simple, durable and absolutely safe against either capsizing or sinking, but if filled with water would then weigh several hundred pounds. They have been thoroughly tested both in rough and calm waters and are entirely seaworthy; at least this is the verdict of experienced boat builders, sea captains, life-savers, and other competent judges."

American Dressmaking.
Felix says American dressmakers make better dresses than the French dressmakers, put better materials into them, fit them just as well, sew them better, and then, he says, spoil them by too much sewing—too much of what I can't translate better than calling it "cut-and-driedness." The French study effects, and let the details take care of themselves. But they pay a great deal of attention to details of one sort, if not those of another. The Frenchwoman doesn't care whether the stuff is cheese-cloth or satin, side-plaited or gathered, so long as it makes her look well, but she dotes on having her lingerie, her gloves, her shoes, her veils, her entire outfit, perfectly an fait.
The French mind adores elegances. It goes into raptures over its own devices in garnitures, French workwomen like to do decorative work in dressmaking, but they hate to finish the inside of a bodice as our American dressmakers feel that they must finish their work. Anybody who has ever tried to make a hat or bonnet knows that she not infrequently secures a good effect in the arrangement, and spoils it all when the sewing is done by making it look stiff and ugly. The French do not believe in much sewing, and by eschewing as much of it as they can they do get graceful, airy effects that are quite their own.

The Lantern Fly.
One of the largest and most curious of the many luminous of lamp-bearing insects is the large lantern fly, a species of the firefly peculiar to Central and Northern South America. The great lantern is hardly as large as the common dragon fly or "snake feeder," but like that creature it has lace-like wings and an elongated abdomen. In Central America, particularly in Costa Rica and Panama, the Indians capture them by thousands, using them as decorations for their headresses, saddles, etc. The Frenchman, Renard, who visited Guatemala in 1802, declared that the Indians used lantern flies and other luminous insects much in the same manner that we do torches and lanterns, and that by the light the insects give out they were able to find their way through dark woods and swamps.

TRUMPET CALLS.

Ram's Horn Sounds a Warning Note to the Unredeemed.
THE devil hates light. The faultfinder is color blind to virtue. A religion that costs little, is worth little. Every man is a giant in the eyes of some boy. Do not be anxious about God's part of your work.

The yoke of Christ will not fit any but the willing neck. Adamant is like wax in comparison with a miser's heart. God will help us to do whatever the Bible says we must do. What does it profit a man to be wise, if he marries like a fool? No man knows his true character who is a stranger to God. Have a constant expectation that God is going to do the right thing.

The poorest man may give as much as the richest, if he will give all he can. A wooden bread-plate will be remembered longer than a souvenir teaspoon. The man most in need of mercy is the one who will have no mercy on himself.

If you would know what it means to be rich, find out that it is blessed to give. If we could see the stars as God sees them, nobody would ever want to sleep. Who knows but that every life may be a look God prepares for angels to read. Nothing but faith in Christ can give a peace that the world cannot take away.

When the heartstrings are rightly touched, divine music will be the sure result. We are most in danger of being engaged by the devil when he is well dressed. In their sermons, too many preachers never have a stopping place. If your situation is bad, you can bet it by helping some one less fortunate than yourself.

Too many people are singing "Scatter sunshine," and waiting for somebody else to do it. Many claim to be praying for the conversion of the world who are not doing anything else. The devil has an iron collar on every man who thinks more of the saloon than he does of his home. A blind man's opinion of the sun is based on what he has learned from the earth with his cane.

"The Master has come, and is calling for thee," whenever you hear of a needy one who needs help. Did you ever know a dying man to find any comfort in thinking that there were hypocrites in church? One reason why Solomon wrote so many proverbs was to give every young man some of the wisdom God had given him.

The devil has a halter around the neck of every man who is trying to get money in an easier way than by honestly earning it. The Iron Duke Reasons. It is told of the Duke of Wellington that he was once out fox hunting, when the hounds on reaching the bank of a small river lost the scent. The master of the hounds apologized to the Duke. "I'm afraid, your Grace, our fun is over. The dog's can't pick up the scent."

"Ten to one," replied the Duke, "the fox has crossed to the other side."
"Not very likely, my Lord. A fox hates water."
"Aye, aye," urged the Duke, "but he may have crossed over by some bridge."
"I don't believe there is a bridge," answered the master of the hounds.
"Well," continued the Duke, "unless you know to the contrary, though I was never here before, I will wager a trifle you will find one within a mile."

The two men, followed by the hunt, pushed on and less than a mile off came upon a rudely constructed bridge. The dogs crossed it, again took up the scent and killed the fox. Asked for his reason for asserting that there was a bridge near he answered: "I saw three or four cottages clustered together on each bank of the river, and I thought the people living in them would be tempted by their social feelings to contrive a means of visiting each other. That same inference of mine gained me one of my battles."—London Telegraph.

The Most Valuable Spots on Earth.
Probably the most valuable spots on the face of the earth (as the burial-sites in Westminster Abbey cannot be bought with gold) are the four corners where Wall street touches Broad, and the two where it meets Broadway. I cannot guess how large a price any one of these might bring in the market now; but a million dollars and half a million more were recently paid for five lots on Broadway opposite Bowling Green. This was the value of the land alone, as the old buildings it bore were at once to be torn down; yet, says Philip Hone, a lot in just this place sold in 1829 for only $18,500. As late as 1840 lots on Cortlandt street could be had for $1,000, or even for $500. But a year or two ago the corner of Liberty street and Nassau, measuring seventy-nine feet along the one, 112 along the other, and about 100 feet in depth, brought $1,250,000, and this, again, for the sake of the land alone.—Century.

Illuminating Insects.

A widely circulated work on the natural wonders of sea and land, says gravely that there are many insects that furnish a far superior light to our own lamp or firefly, called by children "lightning bug." The great lantern fly of India can supply a light which is quite strong enough to read by. In this instance, the light emanates from the head, instead of from the lower body, as in the firefly.
In the Antilles the coleoptera, the fire bug of that region, is of great use, being employed in place of lamps by the poorer people. In Cuba it is the custom of women to inclose these insects in glass cages, where they emit light enough to work by.

Travelers there also, when passing through the wood by night, affix a fire beetle to each of their feet, by which their way is fairly light. The Creoles are given to the practice of deftly arranging these luminous insects in their hair, where they produce a dazzling effect superior to jewels. The negroes at their national dances scatter them over their airy garments, when, in their limbo movements, their bodies assume the appearance of being robed in flames.

Groan if You Must.
But also appeal to means of relief of the torture—physical—which produces the groan. Rheumatism is a prolific source of agony in its acute inflammatory or chronic form, but it may be annihilated at its birth with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, unlike the poisons in minute doses often prescribed for it, is perfectly safe. In malacia, kidney, bilious, dyspeptic or nervous ailments the Bitters is a certain source of relief.

A Big Grass Seed Order.
John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., the largest grass, clover and farm seed growers in America, recently received an order for twenty-five thousand pounds different kinds of clover, ten thousand pounds Salzer's Superior Timothy Seed and ten thousand pounds of different kinds of grasses from a large Montana stock raiser. Salzer's seeds grow and produce, and it pays to sow them.

On to the Kootenai.
The call of 1897 is "On to the Kootenai" the wonderfully rich mining country Montana, Idaho and British Columbia, where so many mines of gold, silver, copper, lead, iron, etc., have been discovered during the last year or two and new towns and industries established. The town of Rossland grew from 500 people to 6,000 in 20 months. Maps and descriptive matter of the entire territory sent free by W. B. McNider, G. P. A., Sioux City and Northern R. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreadful disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring the nature in its work. The proprietors have no much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"When I Saw your advertisement"

I thought that it was probably like the announcements of many other makers of harvesting machinery—big blow and little show; but I'm ready to surrender go ahead, gentlemen, you're all right; I bought one of your binders last season and it is equal to any claim you ever made for it.
This is the condensed essence of what Mr. Thomas Carney of Washington Court House, Ohio, has to say about the McCormick Right Hand Open Elevator. The claims made for McCormick Machines are strong claims. That's because
MCCORMICK
Machines are so constructed that strong claims for them are justified. The machine you want will cost you more than the other kind, for the simple reason that it is worth more than that—all there's no other reason—and in the end you'll glad you paid the difference, because there's nothing cheaper than the best.

"Cleanliness is Nae Pride, Dirt's Nae Honesty."—Common Sense Dictates the Use of SAPOLIO

A journeyman barber in Cincinnati, a specially intelligent man and a favorite with his patrons, says of RIPANS Tabules
"I want to say that for eight months I have taken three a day, and have not been to see a doctor once since I commenced to take them. Before I would have had a big tube put down my throat and have my stomach flushed (I believe that is what they call it) three times every week by a doctor that charged me 50 cents for every time. Of course, that gave me relief, but the trouble always came back again, and I can tell you it was no fun to be pumped out about every two days. The doctor said I had catarrh of the stomach. Whatever it was, it didn't bother me now. For four years I was troubled, so that I used to see about three days out of every month." When this barber observed that a customer has a feverish breath, he occasionally presents him with a Tabule, and if taken it removes the difficulty forthwith.

"Tears, idle tears, I know what they mean," wrote the poet Tennyson. But tears always mean something. There are tears of melancholy, tears of joy, tears of despair, and those saddest most pathetic tears of the weeping woman who has been bearing up as bravely as she may under a daily burden of weakness and dragging, torturing pain.

No wonder women weep. This world is that they are not often in tears for all they have to bear and suffer, and the saddest thing about it is how little their sufferings are understood. Even the doctor, nine times in ten says: "Oh, a little nervousness, that's all," or "nervousness," or "insomnia," or "dyspepsia." If he suspects the real cause he insists upon examinations and local treatment,—about the very worst thing possible to a nervous, overworked woman. There is no need of these repugnant methods. Any woman may insure health and strength in a womanly way by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures the weakness and disease of the feminine organism absolutely and completely. It was devised for this special purpose by one of the most eminent and experienced physicians in this country; an expert specialist in women's diseases. For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Any woman may consult him by letter, free of charge. Her letter will be answered by a male nurse or uneducated, unscientific person, but by the most competent medical authority anywhere obtainable.

All women should read Dr. Pierce's three-cent paper, "The Ladies' Medical Adviser." It contains more clear and comprehensive advice on medical subjects than any other book ever published. A paper-bound copy sent free for twenty-one one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Or cloth-bound for thirty-one stamps.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FAIRVIEW.

O, Spring, where art thou? Our literary closes for the season on the 19th.

Mrs. John Stewart has gone to Iowa on a visit.

Mr. Jas. Stephens spent two days in Omaha last week.

Mrs. John Stephens has returned from her Iowa visit.

School has been extended still another week for the big boys.

Constable Belford is getting pretty well acquainted with Fairview roads.

Ed. Carroll has returned from Iowa, where he has been visiting sick relatives.

H. Wolf of Carroll took twenty-six head of Mr. Stephens' fat cattle last Tuesday.

James Pratt has moved to Mr. Black's place, which will be his summer resort for the season.

A series of revival meetings was commenced at our school house last Monday. Rev. Booth of Belden, is conducting the meetings.

Grandma Stoltenberg, who fell down stairs about six weeks ago and received slight injuries, fell down again last week and her shaking up may prove fatal.

A married man of this vicinity called on his less fortunate chums at bachelor's hall last Thursday and when asked how they were getting along up there, he replied "I would rather live in the penitentiary." We guess he has forgotten some experience.

The last day of school last Friday was a very enjoyable affair. The program given was good. It consisted of an abundance of instrumental music beside the usual list of declamations and songs. The large girls brought their favorite cakes to school in the morning and closed the program by passing them around.

HUNTER.

Sloan Skiles is sick with the measles.

Miss Wilma Anderson is on the sick list.

Will Jackson of Carroll, was visiting with R. H. Skiles and family last week.

Charley Kellogg has purchased a team and will try farming for himself this year.

The spring term of school in district 19 began on Monday with Miss Preston as teacher. The fact that this is her third term in this district attests her popularity as a teacher.

Found:—On the road east of Wayne, on Monday, one brindle bird dog about seven years old. Owner can have the same by applying to R. H. Skiles, proving property and paying for this notice.

Farmers will do well to examine their seed corn with great care as very little of the corn raised last year will grow. Test all your corn carefully, or better still, go to the cribs of '95 corn and pluck out your seed.

We will take back what we said last week about nine cent corn as Mark J. Frey has purchased 1,000 bushels of James Blair and 1,000 bushels of Vio Sandahl at that figure. Mark is also putting in a pair of scales and is going to feed quite extensively this summer.

COON CREEK.

Jake Hesper is building a fine barn.

J. Longnecker is losing his hogs by cholera.

Farmers have been observing their seed wheat getting ready for sowing.

The road is full of teams moving household goods lately.

Martin Muth of Winside, was on the Creek Sunday visiting friends.

W. A. Hunter's folks are sick and we understand that typhoid fever is their ailment.

Theodore Larson is down with the measles but he will go through them all right as he now has a wife to take care of him.

The dance at Barnett's last Tuesday night was not very well attended, but those present had much fun, enjoying themselves well.

The measles have nearly all gone but chicken-pox has taken its place and the family of Mr. Taylor are afflicted with it at present.

We understand that three Coon Creek boys, Messrs. Longnecker, Taylor and Keenow, will go to Omaha soon to enlist in the army.

CARROLL.

Ray Ellison was seen on our streets yesterday.

Measles, measles, measles, nothing but measles.

H. H. Krebs and three of his children are down with the measles.

Miss Lore is visiting friends this week at Plainview.

Lester Wimmer is wrestling with the measles this week.

Ray Manning is recovering from an attack of the measles.

E. H. Robinson has been quite sick this week but is some better.

A nephew of Mr. Bailes is visiting with him a few days this week.

George Stuckert arrived Thursday from Avoca, Iowa, the old home of B. W. Wineland.

Editor Cunningham of the Wayne Republican, was seen on our streets last Thursday.

Rev. Hodgett, presiding Elder, held quarterly conference at Carroll Sunday, night and Monday morning.

J. H. Beach is erecting a new hog house and corn crib. B. W. Wineland is assisting him in the work.

Doc and Earn Moore went to Randolph the other day to get a load of potatoes for store-keeper Davis.

Formerly of Omaha, is visiting this week at the home of H. H. Krebs and family.
