POPOCRATIC CONFERENCE!

At the court-house Saturday afternoon assembled a body of men of all political faiths and some without faith or anything else. It was said to be a conference of the free silver voters of Wayne county met in convention for the purpose of agreeing what should be done to bring about a division of the spoils in Wayne county. Many "weighty" speeches were delivered, some of them set and some of them very unsettled, and there was great laughing; while the name of the Lord was used promiscuously, and Mark Hanna was not forgotten. Jake Ziegler was elected Chairman, and P. A. Berry, Secretary.

A committee of nine, three from each of the discordant elements, was selected to agree upon the division of the offices and make a report. Those appointed were: J. M. Pile, Joe Dobbin, and Robert Skiles, democrats; Dave Surber, H. B. Miller, and Ed Wallace, populists; F. W. Burdick, S. D. Relyea, and Henry Evans, free silver republicans; and it took these gentlemen about an hour and a half to decide what the able-bodied voters of the county should do, and when they made their report many of the best democrats and populists bit the dust—yet they have a mind of their own. During the time the committee was out—Rundell, Charde and Tallman orated. Their orations were fiery and God, hell, the Bible and republicans were the principal topics. Charde wanted the conglomeration to become one party, the "common people's party," and by G—, if there was any one present who didn't want to stand up for the people, let him get out." At this juncture the suave (?) and only Rundell arose and said that it had been decreed and the edict had been sent forth by Jim Britton, that the parties should hold their organizations, (applause) for if they did not Mark Hanna would steal the pops' name and put up a bogus ticket to defraud the people; (poor pops so ignorant they wouldn't know what they were doing but Rundell is on to them), and big bellied Grover would usurp the democrat party's name, etc.; but he didn't say who would take in the free silver republicans' name; in fact, they are pretty well taken in, judging from the committee's report; and his lordship sat down as if the world had been conquered and that settled it. About this time Father Tallman believed it was again his put in, and as he arose majestically or some other way, the window glass rattled in the old Wayne county palace-de-jure—a specimen of populism—and as he began talking of the heavens and earth, and the angels therein, republicans included, there was great rejoicing, and had there been bread it would have undoubtedly been broken. As it was only a window or two fell. Then the committee came in and reported that the democrats should have the sheriff, treasurer, commissioner and surveyor; the pops the clerk—you see the clerk business has got down to $1500 annually now—superintendent and coroner, evidently the latter is intended to cut out Coronor Gaertner's salary; while the free silver republicans got the crumb in the form of the county judge. After it was over Fred Volpp was setting up the cigars on his chances for sheriff, and others felt exceedingly delighted. In the meantime republicans are to be buried.

SNAGS IN THE TARIFF

NO AGREEMENT REACHED BY THE CONFEREES

Both Houses of Congress Holding Out for Their Own Bills—Steps Taken to Secure Mrs. Maybrick's Release from an English Prison.

Conferees Hard at Work

A Washington dispatch of July 12 says: The tariff conferees have struck some snags. Minor matters have been easily adjusted, but on all important features there has been no agreement and the outlook today is that several reports will have to be made before an adjustment can be reached.

The senate conferees laid before the house members the condition in the senate where other than Republican votes were necessary to pass the bill or adopt the conference report.

The conferees find trouble outside of sugar, wool, coal and lead. Lumber has been in dispute; also straw matting, bur-laps, cotton ties and other items placed on the free list by the senate.

The house conferees are also insisting upon higher compensatory duties on manufacture of cotton on account of the duty of 20 per cent. on raw cotton.

The noon recess of the conferees was devoted largely to a conference with individual senators in which the members of the house in the conference participated.

CHICAGO'S HOTTEST DAY.

Sixteen Deaths from the Heat and Many Prostrations.

Four people died from the heat in St. Louis Friday. There were thirty-four prostrations. Hundreds of people slept out on Eads bridge Friday night. It was 86 degrees there.

The heat in Kansas City was even more oppressive Friday than Thursday. Two deaths are reported.

Three deaths occurred at Lafayette, Ind., from the effects of heat and another victim is dying.

Friday was the hottest day of the year at Indianapolis, the official thermometer registering 99 at 3 p. m. Two deaths occurred.

New York police report eleven prostrations and in one of the cases, a laborer, who was crazed by the rays of the sun, leaped into the Harlem River and was drowned. Seven deaths were reported.

The number of heat deaths in Cincinnati Friday was six. Thirty prostrations were reported.

At Burlington, Iowa, the mercury reached 102. One death and a dozen prostrations occurred.

At Keokuk one death and several prostrations.

Toledo, Ohio, reports one death and a dozen prostrations. The thermometer registered 95.

To Test Cattle Stealing Statute.

An appeal case comes from Sheridan County to the supreme court which is to test the law passed in 1895 making cattle stealing the same grade of crime as horse stealing. In December of last year Herman F. Granger was tried in the district court of Sheridan County for stealing one cow. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and also found the value of the cow to be $20. The judge sentenced Granger to three years in penitentiary. In the brief filed by R. C. Noleman, attorney for Granger, it is claimed that the act of 1895 is unconstitutional, this claim having also been made in district court, and it is therefore argued that the offense is only petit larceny. While relying principally on this defense, the brief filed also cites error in the fact that the complaint against Granger did not mention the act under which the defendant was to be tried.

BIG STRIKE BEGUN.

Army of Coal Miners Throw Down Their Picks.

FIGHT TO BE BITTER.

Men Are Well Organized and Very Much in Earnest.

Those Directly Concerned Number Nearly 375,000—Coal Shipment Are Threatened in Ohio—Operators Invoke Aid from the United States Court—Miners Say the Strike Will Continue Until They Win—Armed Army of Idle Men.

The great wage struggle of the coal miners has been inaugurated, and it is impossible to tell what the end will be. Nearly 375,000 miners are directly concerned, but with the kindred industries of coal mining and iron and steel manufacturing there is about to be added to the army of unemployed in the United States probably more than half a million men. This is twenty-five times as many men as there are regular soldiers in the United States army.

Carroll D. Wright, chief of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, recently published the statement that about 3,000,000 men were in enforced idleness in this country. This, added to the men just called or locked out, makes the following remarkable showing:

Wright's estimate of the unemployed	3,000,000
Miners called out	375,000
Amalgamated workers, etc.	250,000
Grand total	3,625,000

The following statistics of this big strike, among the miners alone, show an be hard to resist. The scattered threats, however, are deprecated by President Hatchford and the other officials of the organization there, and they say no violence will be permitted.

Must Face the Law.

An important step was taken at Cincinnati in connection with the strike, which puts the power of the United States against all violence or unlawful acts in at least a portion of the territory of Ohio. An order of the United States Circuit Court, southern district of Ohio, eastern division, was made by Judge Taft, upon a showing made by Myron T. Herrick and Robert Blickensderfer, receivers of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railway Company and of the Wheeling, Lake Erie and Pittsburgh Coal Company, whereby the United States Marshal is directed to protect their miners at work and to prevent unlawful interference with the operations of their railway.

The receivers state that they are engaged in the operation of two coal mines of the Wheeling, Lake Erie and Pittsburgh Coal Company, known as the Dillenville and Long Run coal mines; that there is a strike among the mine workers of Ohio and other States under the direction of the United States workers; that all of the 500 miners at Dillenville and one-half of the 400 at the Long Run mine are desirous of remaining at work, but have refrained from so doing by reason of threats and warnings from other miners who have joined the strike; that it is necessary for the mine to continue in operation and that the miners will continue at work if protected from physical injury to themselves and their property. Judge Taft gave an order to the United States Marshal to consult with the receivers of this court and send to Jefferson County and to other parts of this district a sufficient number of United States marshals to protect the mining and railroad property now being operated by these receivers under order of this court.

President Hatchford, in reviewing the situation, said: "Much has been said as to the amount of coal in stock at the head of the mines and in the general markets, and also that operators in certain fields, through information received, made preparations for the emergency by stocking up coal. Such report is erroneous. The operators, the public and even the miners had no information on this matter, and there is no coal in stock in any great quantities. The enormity of the present mining suspension is attracting the attention of members of Congress and the Senate, as well as members of the Cabinet. At present it seems as if some action looking to national arbitration may twisted and telegraph wires torn down, and part of a mill was carried away.

From Lowry the storm continued in a northeasterly direction to the farm of Robert Peacock, where it made a clean sweep of all the buildings. Mrs. Peacock, her daughter Nettie and a boy named Robert MacGowan were injured, but will probably recover. The next point in the path of the storm was Thomas Andrews' house, where the family took refuge in the cellar and escaped with bruises. All his farm buildings, including a new brick house, are a total wreck. From here the tornado moved about due east to Samuel Morrow's, where it left death in its path. The family were preparing to enter the cellar when the storm struck.

GRAVE OF LINCOLN'S MOTHER.

Nancy Hanks Lincoln, mother of Abraham Lincoln, who is buried in Spencer County, Indiana, and also to provide a fund for keeping the proposed memorial and lot in repair. A national appeal for public subscriptions will be made by an executive committee appointed for that purpose.

The grave has been neglected for many years, and while a nation has been paying homage to the great emancipator, the grave of his mother has been forgotten. John Burt, a citizen of Spencer County, wrote to the President, calling his attention to the neglected condition of Mrs. Lincoln's tomb, and the President at once communicated with Gov. Mount, suggesting that it would be most fitting if the State of Indiana would take some action concerning the matter. The grave is on an eighty-acre farm adjoining the south

GREAT HOST FOR GOD.

TWENTY THOUSAND CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS MEET.

Convention the Most Successful Ever Held—Rev. Francis E. Clark, Father of the Movement—History of the Society—Mighty Growth Shown.

Every Land Represented.

San Francisco correspondence. When Rev. E. B. Dilke tapped with his gavel in Mechanics' Pavilion Thursday morning he called to order the greatest convention California has ever seen. Ten thousand Christian Endeavorers faced the speaker, men and women from every quarter of the land, representing every part of the world. At the same time in Woodward's pavilion an overflowed convention almost as large opened for business. San Francisco was turned over unconditionally to the vigorous young delegates who had journeyed across alkali plains, through deserts, under burning suns and over banks of snow to plant their banner on the Pacific coast. On every side could be seen the colors of the Christian warriors. At every turn were met the earnest faces of the advocates of higher and better lives.

The scenes at the pavilion resembled a national political convention, except that more women were in evidence on this occasion than usually attend great gatherings. In fact, fully two-thirds of the delegates were of the gentler sex. But their presence tended to make the scene beautiful Golden Gate. Each morning the sailors were invited to join with representatives of almost every port they touch in their voyages to sing and to pray.

The complete program for the convention would form a good-sized book. Of special interest were the great choruses of hundreds of voices which sang in the two great meeting places. The first gun was fired Wednesday night, with twelve simultaneous meetings, led by twelve well-known divines from every part of the nation. At the same time Rev. J. Lester Wells of Jersey City, N. J., gave a stereoscopic lecture in Metropolitan Temple on "Christian Endeavor Among the Life Savers."

Long before the hour appointed for the opening of the convention on Thursday every seat in the vast pavilion, which accommodates over 10,000 people, was occupied. Promptly at 9:30 the great gathering was called to order by Rev. E. R. Wilke of San Francisco, and after a musical welcome by the choir, brief devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Philip P. King of Benton, Tex. Then the welcome of the committee of '87 was delivered by Rolla V. Watt, who spoke in part as follows:

"This morning our dreams are realized, our hopes are fulfilled, our prayers are answered; for we witness the assembling of an international Christian Endeavor convention for the first time on the shores of the mighty Pacific. God bless you. We are glad you are here; we welcome you. We welcome you first and above all for the sake of our master, whose banner of love is over all and whose servants you are. He had said if we lift Him up, He will draw all men unto Himself, and just as we represent Him in our thoughts, our words, our deeds, in our daily lives, so men will see Him. He holds in His hands the solution of all our problems—social, political and spiritual. It is part of Christian Endeavor to take these proffered gifts and offer them to mankind. We welcome you, therefore, because you are seeking to present the Savior of Mankind to the world, that the world can be made better."

After the applause which followed the remarks of Mr. Watt had subsided, the welcome of the Golden Gate pastors was given by the Rev. John Hemphill, Lieut. Gov. Jeter, then welcomed the delegates and their friends on behalf of the State of California. An anthem was rendered by the choir, and in behalf of the visiting Endeavorers, the Rev. Ira Landrith of Nashville, Tenn., responded to the various addresses of welcome.

President Clark's Message.

The subject of the annual message of the president, the Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., was "How Shall I Fulfill God's Design?" He said in part:

"I have attended conventions, since I last met you, in the Metropolitan Tabernacle of London and in the Beels of Bengal; in St.

purpose, the prayer of this our coming seventeenth year. To abide in Christ, to surround ourselves to Him, to let Him use of His fullness, to seek a larger building, from above, deeper draughts of His life, more emptiness of self, more fullness of Christ. This only will Christian Endeavor and all for which it has come to stand—Christian citizenship, Christian missions and a thousand forms of benevolence—receive ever fresh life and vigor.

Statistics of the Society.

The report of John Willis Baer, general secretary, contained the following: "In 1881 there was one society and fifty-seven members. In 1897 there are 50,750 societies and a total membership of 35,000,000. Of the States having more than 1,000 local societies, Pennsylvania leads, with 3,443; New York has 3,049; Ohio, 2,583; Illinois, 2,013; Ontario, 1,783; Indiana, 1,257; Iowa, 1,330; and Michigan, 1,071. These figures do not include the Junior, Intermediate, Senior and Mothers' societies. Pennsylvania leads the junior societies with 1,397; New York has 1,288; Illinois, 993; Ohio, 870; California, 551; Indiana, 549; Iowa, 518; and Massachusetts, 517. The banner given to the State that has made the largest gains goes this year to Ohio. The second junior banner goes from Mexico to Spain. There are 366 Intermediate societies, Cal-

Twenty-seven senior societies have been organized, California, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania each having three and Connecticut two.

"England has 3,925 societies; Australia, 2,124; Scotland, 438; Wales, 311; India, 250; Ireland, 109; Madagascar, 93; France, 68; Mexico, 100; Japan, 66; West Indies, 63; Turkey, 41; China, 53; Africa, 52; Germany, 32—in all, 7,919 societies in other countries. amazing loss of wealth to the country as follows:

Number of men called out	375,000
Number of men affected	10
Month's loss to 375,000 men, at 90 cents a day each	$10,125,100
Month's loss to operators, at 10 cents profit per ton on 16,000,000 tons	1,600,000
Loss to railroads at 20 cents per ton	4,800,000
Loss to coal companies' stores at the rate of 75 cents a day spent by each miner	8,437,500
Monthly loss	$24,992,500

From estimates prepared on the basis of coal mined in the year 1895, making allowance for the present conditions, it is believed that the expense of maintaining the strike in the State of Ohio alone will aggregate nearly $60,000 a day. Of this amount the miner loses nearly $17,000, the coal operators $10,000 and the railroad companies $27,000. To this must also be added the decreased earnings of the railroad employees, dock and lake vessel employees and the profits of retail and wholesale dealers. The total output in Ohio for the year 1895 was 11,000,000 tons in round numbers, an average of 566 tons a miner, which is equal to 1.6 tons a day. It is estimated that 2,500,000 tons of the total output is not coal, for which the miner receives no pay and is clear profit for the operator.

National President Hatchford said Tuesday that he had received reports showing that the greater part of Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio was idle, and within a day or two a complete suspension is expected. The Ohio miners are practically a unit for higher wages, as 23,000 of the 29,000 miners in the State are already holding out for the scale.

President Patrick Dolan, of the Pittsburgh district, estimated the total number of men out to be nearly 15,000. President Dolan further said the reports from all over the district indicate the strike will be more general than at first supposed. Along the Monongahela River work has practically been suspended and a determined battle is in progress. All the mines, with the exception of a comparatively small number, are idle, and it is thought nearly every miner will come out. The circumstances indicate a strike of some length, and in consequence the distress will be great.

At Glouster, Ohio, the miners indulged in threats of holding up coal trains. But their local officials kept them quiet by telling them this was coal mined before the strike was declared. However, several of the Glouster men said if non-union coal mined after July 4 in West Virginia and the Pittsburgh district were hauled across Ohio to the lakes they would try to prevent it. As the West Virginia district has paid no attention to the strike, coal probably will continue to be hauled across Ohio. The provocation thus afforded the strikers for retaliation will be effected, or the establishment of an eight-hour work day, which is necessary to take the surplus labor off the market, followed by a minimum wage law. That this will be a solution of the question there is no doubt, but to insure action along those lines the movement must be large in its proportions, and every miner must cease work."

A. Brenholz, who manages the home office for the General Hoeking Coal Company, at Columbus, says there is at least 150,000 tons of coal in storage in the Northwest. He estimates that this will supply all demands for at least four months, no matter how general the miners' strike becomes. There is considerable coal on the Ohio docks ready for shipment by lake, but this coal will not be sent West. It will be held for the purpose of supplying transient trade. With respect to a supply for the railroads, it is estimated that the different companies have enough coal on hand to last them about six weeks.

Indiana for Arbitration.

The Indiana labor arbitration commission has taken the initiative in proposing arbitration of the miners' strike. The two commissioners, E. F. Schild, representing employers, and E. P. McCormick, representing organized labor, met in special session Tuesday, and decided to invite the labor arbitration commissioners of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois to meet in Indianapolis, with the view of agreeing upon a proposition of arbitration to be submitted to the operators and miners. Gov. Mount told the commissioners that he would co-operate in any plans agreed upon, and would ask the Governors of the other States interested to join him in furthering the movement.

SWEPT BY A TORNADO.

Two Are Dead at Lowry, Minn., and the Town is Demolished.

Dispatches received at Duluth say that a cyclone obliterated the town of Lowry, Minn., and that possibly ten people were killed and several injured. Lowry is situated on the Soo Line, seven miles from Glenwood, on the Northern Pacific Railroad. The cyclone traveled from southwest to northwest.

The cyclone struck Lowry shortly after 6 o'clock in the evening. Evidence of the cyclonic clouding was seen in Duluth about 7 o'clock. The sky was overcast with clouds that circled as they moved rapidly northeast, and there was a yellow cast that was described to the sun penetrating through them. People looked in wonder on the scene, but nobody ascribed the conditions to a cyclone. The clouds moved high in the air and circled with a perfectly steady motion. Every building in the village was damaged. Seven dwelling houses, the station, a church, an elevator and a butcher-shop were totally destroyed. The railroad tracks were end of the old Lincoln farm. Half a mile south of the burial place of the mother is the grave of the only daughter of Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Sallie Ann Grigsby. Mr. Burt finds that years ago the one-half acre of land about the grave of Nancy Hanks was deeded to the United States to be held in trust. No steps have been taken in all these years to make the grave of Lincoln's mother distinguished from the countryside that surrounds it.

GEN. STEWART L. WOODFORD, Who Has Been Appointed United States Minister to Spain.

The present and prospective relations of the United States with Spain, because of the Cuban trouble, render the post of minister to Spain one of the most delicate and important diplomatic stations. President McKinley has sought for the place several of the most distinguished men of the country, but all have declined it, unofficially yet emphatically. Finally, a few days since, he selected Gen. Stewart L. Woodford of Brooklyn, and that gentleman will go to Madrid.

The man selected for this task was born in New York in 1835, secured his education at Yale and Columbia colleges and began the practice of law in the metropolis in 1857. In 1861 he was made United States assistant district attorney for New York, and after eighteen months he joined the army as a volunteer, serving until 1865. He was rapidly promoted, receiving the brevet of brigadier general. In 1866 he was elected Lieutenant Governor of New York, and in 1870 was defeated for Governor. In 1872 he was elected to Congress, and from 1877 to 1881 was United States attorney for the southern district of New York. Since then he has practiced law.

more striking in color and more animated in spirit. All the streets in the business district of the city and in the neighborhood of the different headquarters were congested with the thousands of visitors.

History of the Society.

The story back of this immense gathering in the land of flowers has a romantic interest that lifts it far above the commonplace. But sixteen years ago this world-wide organization had a humble birth in a little, out-of-the-way church in Maine. To-day there are 48,000 societies, with a membership of 7,000,000 young people in every part of the civilized world, from Spain to the Samoan Islands, in the south seas, and from Australia to Alaska.

In this time 10,000,000 meetings have been held by Christian Endeavorers. Copies of the constitution numbering 5,000,000 have been printed in forty languages, and at least 15,000,000 copies of the pledge. More than 1,000,000 associate members have joined the church, and more than $2,000,000 has been given for denominational purposes. Such, in brief, is the remarkable history of one of the most conspicuous religious movements of all times.

The immense meeting on the Pacific slope has eclipsed all previous meetings. The central meeting place was Mechanics' Pavilion, which occupies an entire square in the heart of that western metropolis, and has seating accommodations for 10,000 persons. The second great meeting place was Woodward's Pavilion, which is about ten minutes' walk from the central rendezvous. It is an octagonal building with a seating capacity of 7,000. These two places of meeting were supplemented almost every hour in the day with gatherings in the various churches. Even the Chinese churches and a mariners' church hospitably throwing open their doors.

"This religious siege of San Francisco was nothing if not picturesque. It was a nineteenth century 'diogenes,' which doubtless made the monastic graves of long ago turn unasily in their graves. The Christian Endeavorer goes in for a happy religion, and if he cannot vent his exuberance in a 'yell' and loud-hoanna he resorts to a 'long' in characteristic college boy fashion.

Most interesting of all the meetings were the services in out-of-the-way places. Prayer and song and exhortation were made by wandering bands before the sootier temples in Shattown, in the magnificent gambling saloons, among the sattons on the wharves, in the jails and in the hospitals—in fact, wherever the Christian Endeavorer could plant his two feet and his symbolic flag.

Sunrise Prayer Meetings. One of the features was the sunrise prayer meetings down on the beach of Ander's Hall of Glasgow and in the ancient capital of the Irish among our Irish Endeavorers in Belfast and on the suburban plains of southern India; in crowded Berlin and on the lonely tablelands of the Transalps; among the Alps of Switzerland and on the vast west of the Orange Free State; in sea-girt Stockholm and in the karoo of South Africa; in lordly Paris and in quiet Wellington; in the Cape of Good Hope; and everywhere, amid all these diversities of custom and costume, of manners and methods, of languages and laws, I have found that the Christian Endeavor ideals are substantially the same.

Moreover, the people whom I have seen have been of diverse creeds and views of religious truth. All to be sure, have acknowledged the supremacy of Jesus Christ as the Son of God and the only Savior of lost sinners. All have accepted the Bible as the word of God; and the Holy Spirit as the sanctifier, comforter and guide; in such soil only can Christian Endeavor flourish. But in minor particulars the creeds and forms of church government of these hospitable hosts of our society differ as widely as their complexions. The shade of an on a man's cheek does not make or unmake his manhood; the shade of his creed does not make or unmake his Christianity.

Our society then has these signs of a universal movement. It was born in obscurity and weakness. It has not owed its existence to human advocacy or ecclesiastical authority. It has spread to every land. It has been found adapted to every evangelical creed, to every form of church government and to every race and class and language and color. The principles involved in our covenant pledge have been ignored, or where it has been crushed out by denominational authority.

In answering the question of the subject, he said the movement must be true to its fundamental idea; must necessarily be unifying; must be a pervasive force; must be sacrificial; and must listen to God's voice and continually obey it. Continuing, he said:

"This is a world movement, thank God, away from materialism, formalism, and barren ecclesiasticalism back to God himself. Endeavorers, let this be the motto, the of societies, now held by Scotland, will go to the Endeavorers of the Emerald Isle.

"In the United States the Presbyterians have 5,331 young people's and 2,934 junior societies; the Congregationalists have next, with 4,156 young people's and 1,322 junior; Baptists, 2,640 young people's and 1,080 junior; Cumberland Presbyterian, 867 young people's and 861 junior; Methodist Protestants, 971 young people's and 251 juniors; Lutherans, 860 young people's and 324 juniors, nearly forty denominations being represented.

"A missionary roll of honor contains the names of 10,468 societies that have given nearly $500,000 to missions through their own denominational missionary boards. During the last eleven months 25,234 of the juniors have joined the church, and from the young people's societies, 187,125—in all, 213,363."

Award of Endeavor Honor.

Immediately after the reading of Secretary Baer's report the badge of honor for the greatest increase in number of societies during the last year, which had been held in England, was retained and presented to the same country. The junior banner for the greatest increase in the number of societies, held by Pennsylvania for three years, was wrested from the Keystone State by Ohio. The next incident was the presentation of the banner to the country making the largest proportionate gain in number of societies during the last twelve months, which has been in possession of Scotland during the last year. It was won by Ireland. The junior badge banner given for the greatest proportionate increase in number of societies during the last twelve months was awarded to Spain. It had been in possession of Mexico.

CONFISCATE THE COAL.

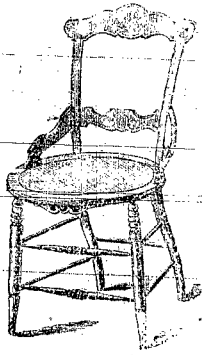

Railroads Head Off a Famine by Gobbling Up All in Transit.

Railroad companies Thursday issued orders to confiscate all coal being carried over their respective lines. It was issued because of the coal miners' strike and impending coal famine. The roads on which the coal has been stopped are the heaviest carriers in the West, and include nearly all lines running out of Chicago. The number of estimated cars confiscated and the roads responsible for the seizure are as follows:

Illinois Central	2,000

Beware Of the Knife.

Mr. Lincoln Nelson, of Marshallfield, Mo., writes: "For six years I have been a sufferer from a scrofulous affection of the glands of my neck, and all efforts of physicians in Washington, D. C., Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis failed to reduce the enlargement. After six months' constant treatment here, my physician urged me to submit to a removal of the gland. At this critical moment a friend recommended S.S.S., and laying aside a deep-rooted prejudice against all patent medicines, I began its use. Before I had used one bottle the enlargement began to disappear, and now it is entirely gone, though I am not through with my second bottle yet. Had I only used your S.S.S. long ago, I would have escaped years of misery and saved over $150."
This experience is like that of all who suffer with deep-seated blood troubles. The doctors can do no good, and even their resorts to the knife prove either fruitless or fatal. S.S.S. is the only real blood remedy; it gets at the root of the disease and forces it out permanently.

That town had an advantage over most of its neighbors, due to holding the

There was considerable amusement too, and apparently, everyone had a good

the morning and one in the evening;
bicycle, foot and horse races, a ball galore. Most of the Randolph people returned on the evening train, a few remaining to see the evening parade and fireworks and some to dance.

The Fair meeting at Strahan & Frazier's office last Saturday was slimly attended, but it was decided to hold a fair this fall. The old officers were re-elected. The president, Ran Frazier, was authorized to appoint a secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the absence of James Britton, and two directors to fill vacancy. R. C. Osborn was appointed secretary. Right here the Herald desires to say that every man in Wayne county should take hold and work for the fair. It is absolutely impossible for two or three men to do all the work and make a fair a success, and it can be made a success and a success every year if you will do your part, and this means you. Give the president and officers your earnest support and we predict that you will witness a big display of products, agricultural implements, commercial products, etc., and in conclusion let us say, don't oppose liberal purses for horse racing, base ball and balloon ascensions.

The Laurel Advocate is rather inclined to roast the Wayne people in regard to the game of ball here on the Fourth, and speaks of the poor treatment of the Laurel team. As there were only three men in the Laurel club that live in Laurel, much less should be said of the manner in which they were treated, especially when it is well known that all of the Laurel people had a good time, as they had the freedom of the city and seemed to be enjoying themselves. The Herald knows that the Laurel club received the manage without a word from the Band treasurer, the Band boys having the celebration in charge, and it was the desire of the Band to make it pleasant for everybody with what funds they had to do it with, and we heard of no complaints only over the little matter of the ball game, which the Band could not help and were sorry that it occured. But we can, from personal observation, assure the Advocates that there are two sides to that base ball contest but its too small an affair for newspapers to engage in a discussion over.

The Astronomy of Life.
When an astronomer foretells the exact minute at which two planets will cross each other, we know there is no magic about it—The universe is governed by laws. A man who studies these laws of nature carefully and reduces them to a science, can count on exact results every time.
A doctor knows that certain remedies affect certain diseases.
When a disease seems to have no remedy the doctor pronounces it incurable. All the time Nature may have the remedy right at hand, but it will only be discovered by the doctor who has studied longer and deeper than others into this particular disease.
Consumption seemed for a long time without a remedy, until Dr. Pierce made his "Golden Medical Discovery" 30 years ago. It has proved to be a marvellous and almost unfailing specific for consumption and all forms of lung, bronchial and throat difficulties.
Its effects seem almost magical but its operation is based upon simple natural laws. It has the peculiar property of enabling the blood-making glands to manufacture healthy, red blood and pour it abundantly into the circulation. This nourishing, vitalizing effect is rapidly manifested in the lungs and bronchial tubes where it stops the wasting process and builds up healthy tissue. It is readily assimilated by stomachs which are too weak to digest cod liver oil, and it is far superior to malt-extracts as a permanent and scientific flesh-builder in all wasting diseases.
Twenty-five years ago eight different doctors told me that I would live no more time than I had consumption and must die," writes Geo. R. Coops, Esq., of Myers Valley, Pottawatomie Co., Kans. "I finally commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and am still on the land and among the living. I have faith to believe that it has lengthened my life for the last twenty-five years, and I have so much faith in all of your medicines that I want one of your 'Common Sense Medical Advertisers.'"
Dr. Pierce's medicines are recognized as standard remedies throughout the world. This "Pleasant Pellets" cure constipation.

Colorado is nearly a mile higher than Nebraska and Iowa. That is why its summers are so pleasant—why thousands annually exchange the sweltering heat of the plains for the delightful, invigorating, life-giving atmosphere of the mountains.

TARIFF BILL PASSES.

SENATE APPROVES THE DINGLEY MEASURE.

Final Ballot Shows Thirty-eight Ayes and Twenty-eight Nays—It Now Goes to the House for Further Consideration.

Bill Goes Through.

By the decisive vote of 38 to 28 the tariff bill was passed in the United States Senate shortly before 5 o'clock Wednesday.

The main interest centered in the final vote, and aside from this there was little of a dramatic character in the debate.

YEAS.

- Allison, Baker, Cannon, Clark, Cullom, Davis, DeLoach, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Gallinger, Hale, Hanna, Hawley, Jones (Nev.), Jones (Ark.), Kenney, Lacey, McMillan, Mantle, Mason, Merrill, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Platt (N. Y.), Pritchard, Proctor, Quay, Sewell, Spooner, Watson, Wellington, Wetmore, Wilson—38.

NAYS.

- Bacon, Bate, Berry, Caffery, Cannon, Chilton, Clay, Cockrell, Faulkner, Gray, Harris (Kan.), Jones (Ark.), Kenney, Lacey, McMillan, Mantle, Mason, Merrill, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Platt (N. Y.), Pritchard, Proctor, Quay, Sewell, Spooner, Watson, Wellington, Wetmore, Wilson—28.

The following pairs were announced, the first named would vote for the bill and the last named against it:

Aldrich and Murphy, Chandler and McLaughlin, Fry and Gorman, Gehr and Smith, Hansbrough and Daniel, Hoar and Harris (Tenn.), Thurston and Tillman, Wolcott and George.

An analysis of the final vote shows that the affirmative was cast by 35 Republicans, 2 silver Republicans, Jones (Nev.), and Mantle, and 1 Democrat, McHenry.

The negative vote was cast by 25 Democrats, 2 Populists, Harris (Kan.), and Turner, and 1 silver Republican, Cannon. Eight Republicans were paired for the bill and eight Democrats against it.

The tariff debate began May 25, on which day Mr. Aldrich, in behalf of the Finance Committee, made the opening statement.

The Senate met Friday under the depressing influence of the death of Senator Harris of Tennessee, who has been one of the conspicuous figures in the upper house of Congress for over twenty years.

One of the most important new provisions added by the Senate is that placing a stamp tax on bonds, debentures and certificates of stock.

The Senate disposed of two tariff amendments Monday, that placing a stamp tax being agreed to with little or no opposition and without the formality of a vote.

Tuesday the Senate agreed to devote one more day to discussion of the tariff under the five-minute rule, and then proceed to vote.

Wednesday morning by a vote of 38 to 28, the day was spent in amendments of minor importance.

The session of the Senate Thursday was uneventful, the deficiency appropriation bill being considered throughout the day.

Saul's Mistake.

Yet that victorious army of Israel is conquered by sheep and oxen. God, through the prophet Samuel, told Saul to slay all the Amalekites and to slay all the beasts in their possession.

practiced under the garb of religion and sanctity! When, in synods and conferences, ministers of the gospel are about to say something unbrotherly and unkind to any member, they almost always begin by being tremendously pious, the venom of their assent corresponding to the heavenly flavor of the prelude.

Oh, my dear friends, let us cultivate simplicity of Christian character! Jesus Christ said: "Unless you become as this little child, you cannot enter the kingdom of God."

The Futility of Sham.

Going out into the world of delusion and sham, pretend to be no more than you really are. If you have the grace of God, profess it.

I learn further from this subject how natural it is to try to put off our sins on other people.

Short Sermons.

Vandalism.—If the sense of reverence and awe for the treasures of antiquity characterized our fathers, their children are the children of irreverence and vandalism.

The Effect of Sin.—Sin hardens the heart. The intemperate man finds his will growing weaker, the licentious man his moral power waning.

Agnosticism.—Agnostics claim to be opposed to dogmatism. They, therefore, ought not to dogmatize as to what is or is not possible to man.

Reciprocity.—The law of dependence runs through all things. The rivers need the clouds, and the clouds the sea.

Conscience.—Conscience, which Cicero described as God ruling within us, is always on the side of what the soul believes to be right.

TRUMPET CALLS.

Sam's Horn Sounds a Warning Note to the Unredeemed.

DEPEND on this! What God gives us to do, he will help us to do.

The devil scores a point whenever a good man opposes a good cause.

Others see our faults as plainly as we see theirs. Some are active, because they fear to be thought idle.

Only the man who looks away from himself has ideas.

Put the wicked in office, and the devil will rule the town.

We excuse our selfishness by assuming our greater need.

Those who touch each other are sometimes farthest apart.

It takes as close application to be a hypocrite as it does to be a Christian.

Happy the man who finds and removes the particular cause of his misfortune.

The priest who "passed by on the other side" was at the head of a very long procession.

Christ did not meet men on the point of reproach; nobody appreciated the good in men as He.

Love equalizes. So, when we love God, as He cannot be brought down, we must be raised.

The preacher who would hear sinners begin to pray must first get his church on its knees.

You can never tell what a man will do in a horse trade by the length of his prayer on Sunday.

God is the most hidden thing in the world to the proud mind; the most apparent to the simple heart.

Our wisdom is often handicapped by our cumbersome knowledge, like a medieval knight scarcely able to move in his heavy armor.

Sound Reasons for Approval.
There are several sound reasons why the medical profession recommends and the public prefer Hostetter's Stomach Bitters above the ordinary cathartics. It does not drench and weaken the bowels, but assists rather than forces nature to act; it is botanic and safe; its action is never preceded by an internal earthquake like that produced by a drastic purgative. For forty-five years past it has been a household remedy for liver, stomach and kidney trouble.

WOMEN! DON'T WAIT.

If You Have Any of These Symptoms Act at Once.

Do you know the reason why you will go to the hospital, my poor friend? Because you have allowed yourself to go from bad to worse. You did not know that that heat, swelling and tenderness in your left side were all signs of congestion of the ovary.

Any intelligent woman could have told you that congestion is fatal to the uterine system, and that an ovary congested leads to tumor formation, and that you were in awful danger. Now you will have to undergo the operation of ovariectomy, the cutting out of the ovary.

Yes, you will recover, at least I hope you will; but you will never be quite the same woman again. Congestion of the ovaries is fatal to health. If you have any such symptoms be advised in time; take a medicine of specific powers! You can find none better than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, prepared especially to meet the needs of woman's sexual system. You can get it at any good druggist's.

Following we publish a letter from a woman in Milwaukee, which relates how she was cured of ovarian trouble: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—I suffered with congestion of the ovaries and inflammation of the womb. I had been troubled with suppressed and painful menstruation from a girl. The doctors told me the ovaries would have to be removed. I took treatment two years to escape an operation, but still remained in miserable health in both body and mind, expecting to part with my reason each coming month. After using one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash I was very much relieved. I continued to use your remedies until cured. The last nine months have been passed in perfect good health. This, I know, I owe entirely to the Vegetable Compound. My gratitude is great, indeed, to the one to whom so many women owe their health and happiness."—Mrs. F. M. CHAPTER XXXVI.
Two minutes later as Hester and Mrs. Llewellyn stand whispering together at the head of the staircase, Eric suddenly appears and calls to them.
"Mother! Hettie! Come here!"
They find him on his knees beside Muriel, lying white and silent, and helpless as a broken lily, with her bonnet—the widow's bonnet, which Eric has snatched off—flung trailing over a chair, and the uncovered head, with its beautiful clustering curls and its ivory-white rounded throat, fallen limply across his arm.
"She has fainted, Eric, my dear! Lay her flat on her back," Mrs. Llewellyn says, fustily, unfastening Muriel's dress, and refraining, with the prudery of some elderly matrons, from unclasping the corset that imprisons the girl's feebly beating heart.
"Fainted? This isn't a faint!" Eric answers, through his close-shut teeth. "She is dying! Send for the doctor, will you, at once? This is no faint. Look at the cold sweat on her forehead—look at her, thin and wasted—look at her little hands with the bones showing! Oh, Muriel, Muriel, my poor little wife! Oh, Muriel, my poor little wife! Has she been like this before?" he asks his mother, hurriedly, as they try in vain to restore her to consciousness. "She looks dreadfully ill and fragile! And this awful craps dress on her with these craps bands! Pull them off her, mother, it drives me mad to see her! Pull this dress off! Tear it off in pieces! Oh, my poor little Muriel, is this what I have brought you to? The brightest and loveliest girl I ever saw; one little year ago!"

"It is more than a year and a quarter since you were married, my dear," Mrs. Llewellyn says primly, "and she—she has fretted very much after you—I think."
"You think, mother? Don't you know, then, whether she has been happy or miserable?" he asks, gravely.
"Muriel has never been confidential with me, Eric," the dowager says in a complaining tone. "She never has been loving, or confidential with me, though I have always tried to do my duty toward her, and be most careful of her welfare."
"I asked you to do so, mother," he answers, more briefly. "She is recovering a little now. Where is her room? I will carry her to it."
"She—she always has had the same room, she always preferred it," Mrs. Llewellyn says, coughing, and rather stumbling over her words. "Eric, my dear, let her stay here; this is a larger room, and—more comfortable, or, the spare room."

"No, I will take her to her own room, she will like that best," he answers, with a passing curiosity as to why his mother objects to his doing so.
As soon as he enters it, and lays his poor young wife, half insensible still, down on the mattress of her poor, narrow little bed, he sees why his mother objected to his entering the room, and perceiving, as he cannot fail to do, the glaring inferiority of the dingy, faded, damp-stained old room—perfectly clean and neat as it is—to the elegant comfort of the bedrooms on the first floor—his mother's apartments, and Hester's, of which he has caught sight through the open door as he passed, carrying his hapless girl-wife in his arms. Past those warmly carpeted and curtained chambers—glittering with frelight, and polished woods, and marble slabs, and handsome china fittings, and dainty lace and embroideries, and all manner of small womanly luxuries—up the stairs to the cold, dreary room where Muriel has slept since her childhood, the room which has, so far from sharing in the general adorning and renovating of the other parts of the house, been denuded of every scrap of ornament or luxury; partly demanded by imperious Hester's whim, partly yielded by Muriel in utter disregard of herself, in utter heart-sickness of her life and everything connected with it.
He lays her tenderly down, and puts the one small hard pillow under the drooping, helpless head, and then he looks around the room slowly, and at his mother once more.
"Mother, please send some one up to make a fire in this miserable room," he says, and Mrs. Llewellyn winces at every word—"it is as cold and comfortless as a London garret. And I will stay here with her until the doctor comes," he adds, decisively.

CHAPTER XXXVII.
By Muriel's side, where she lies all unconscious of his presence, Eric stays for an hour, until the doctor arrives, and administers a composing draught after she has had a few spoonfuls of soup and brandy. She has sunk immediately into a deep sleep, not, indeed, recognizing Eric at all, and then, leaving her for awhile in Hannah's care, Eric goes downstairs for the first time for food and refreshment, and finds Mrs. McGrath there, the good creature being "a perfect boon," as Edith had said, for her aplomb and genial conversational qualities at awkward family crises like the present.

It was Edwin Llewellyn, the poor, frivolous young aesthete, Eric's cousin, who had been lost in the Cyprus. He had been gazetted to his majority just at the same date that his cousin had been to the lieutenant colonelcy, and while one had sailed in the Cyprus for Bombay, the other had sailed in the Alexandria to Ceylon, whence, as soon as the news of the death of his cousin and the natural mistake in their baptismal names and military rank reached him, Eric Llewellyn had applied for leave, and came to England via Suez.
But it was in Alexandria that a letter reached him which had followed him half way round the world, a letter from his cousin Edith, a brief, curt, kind, rebuking, sisterly letter, inclosing one from Muriel—a blotted, badly written, long letter, which Edith had briefly said she thought he "ought to have, but that Muriel hesitated to send it, and so Edith sent it without asking her leave." Edith writes bewilderingly. But not more bewilderingly to him than is Muriel's letter—the passionate, unconcealed, incoherent outpouring of her heart, beseeching his forgiveness and "a little love"—beseeching him to send for her "some day soon," and "I will try to be such a good wife, and try so hard to please you, that I must succeed in some degree," the poor child wrote. The pitiful tale of her loneliness and her friendlessness appearing through the phrases with which she tries to conceal it—the pitiful, childlike yearnings for him and his protection and companionship, and the passionate, womanly avowal of her love for him—"since the day we walked through the plantation together, and you kissed me and said you could not live without me," she says in her letter. "But, oh! dear Eric, you have learned to live without me now, but I have not learned to live without you. I could give all the rest of my life for one happy year with you, in the old home, as happy as I was with you for a few days—two and a half, Eric, for you turned against me on our wedding day, you know, and forsook me forever, though—oh, my life, my love! I swear to you, as I am your most loving and faithful wife, that my only fault was that I had promised my brother I would try to love you when you came, and found the task all too easy."

Muriel never dreams that this letter has been received by Eric, as Edith had given her some plausible excuse for its disappearance the night she wrote it, half-blinded by tears and benumbed with cold, up in this very room where she bears in the midnight hours from her husband's lips, as he keeps faithful watch and ward beside her, the words of her sorrowful letter bringing joy into her sad little soul as the night wears away and the morning is coming for her.

"Oh, Eric! I shall thank her to my dying day for sending you that letter!" Muriel says, clinging to him in a passion of thankfulness.

He looks down at the fair young creature, with her clinging arms folded around his neck, her soft, dark-crimson dressing gown setting off the pearly fairness of her complexion and her white satin smooth neck and bosom, her beautiful eyes full of liquid light, her sweet virgin lips upturned to his, as she asks, in all tender humility, for some shreds of his wasted affection to be bestowed on her, who gives him herself in the flower of her fresh, lively womanhood, and all the treasure of her heart's devoted love and wifely duty—he looks down at her, as they two sit there together on the little old red sofa by the fire in Muriel's room; and Eric Llewellyn feels ashamed of himself and his pride, and his early love and his boasts of constancy; he feels ashamed and unworthy before her.

"I want to thank heaven, Eric, for making me so happy!" she says, praying silently with tears trembling on her dark lashes, and her words of thanksgiving quivering on her lips. And the proud man—humbled and contrite, and grateful—kneels beside her, and weeps as he hears her thanking heaven for the gift of his love so tardily bestowed on her.
"Muriel, my darling," Eric says, earnestly. "I am neither deserving of heaven's mercy nor your love; but pray for me that I may obtain the one and grow worthy of the other."
"I have always prayed for you every night of my life since I first met you," she answers, simply, "and now that heaven has answered my prayers, and brought you back to me, and given me your love, I must pray more fervently than ever that we may spend eternity among the blessed, you and I, Eric, together."
And Muriel takes her husband's hand in hers and prays.

Literally.
Eating one's word is a very common saying, but it is not often that one hears of a practical illustration of the proverb.

A quarto volume was published some time ago in St. Petersburg in favor of the liberties of the people, and the author was taken into custody. After being tried in a summary way, the production was pronounced to be a libel, and the writer was condemned to "eat his own words."

A scaffold was erected, the book was separated from its binding, and every leaf rolled up. The author was then served with them leaf by leaf, and he was obliged to swallow them on pain of the knout. When the medical gentlemen were of the opinion that he had had enough, he was conducted back to the prison, and the business resumed the two following days.

After three hearty but unpleasant meals, every leaf of the book was swallowed.

Who Believes in Them?
The bride who dreams of fairies the night before her marriage will be thrice blessed. If the groom carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket he will always have good luck. Marriages at sea are considered anything but lucky. Get married on land, or not at all. No bride or groom should be given a telegram while on the way to church. It is a sign of evil. No bride, to have good luck, should bake her own wedding cake. To do so invites ill fortune. If the wedding ring is dropped during the ceremony the bride may as well wish herself unborn, for she will always have evil luck. Should the bride perchance see a coffin while being driven to the railway station prior to departing on her wedding tour she should order the driver to turn back and start over again, or else she will surely meet with bad luck.

AT AN ILLINOIS HOTEL.

Experience of a Preacher Who Happened There Over Night.

"The liveliest time I ever had in getting hotel accommodations was right here in Illinois," said a clerical looking man, who sat in the smoking compartment of the sleeper while the porter was making up his berth.
"I was going to preach at Dixon, Ill., and I started in good time—if I had not happened to strike a holiday, when trains were running wild—this was twenty years ago, and schedules were not systematized as they are now. On Saturday at midnight I stopped on the last train at a small town nearly eighteen miles from the place where I was expected to fill a popular pulpit.

"Everybody had gone to bed when I walked into the one hotel of the place, but by dint of loud knocking I roused a sleepy clerk, who gave me a kerosene lamp, with a piece of red flannel, which served as a wick, and pointed to a room at the top of a flight of stairs.
"This room had a bed in it, but there was no sign of a lock to the door. A large front window was open—and would not close. It had no curtain, so before disrobing I blew out the lamp. I saw that it would be easy for anyone on the outside to scale the window, so I arranged all the toilet crockery on its sill. Then I went to bed and to sleep.

"When I awakened it was Sunday morning, and a bright sun was shining into my room. I sat up and saw a curious crowd regarding my window and the least work of crockery which I had used as a defense. I learned afterward that they thought it was a new china store that had just been opened.

"When I went downstairs I found the hotel doors had not been unlocked since the night before. I opened up the house, but the only guests to enter were a cat and four kittens. The help appeared later, apologizing by saying they had not worked the day before, but had let things take care of themselves. The landlord looked as if he never had worked and never intended to. I was not able to get even a cup of coffee for my breakfast before the train came which bore me away from the shabbiest town and the worst hotel service I had ever in my life encountered. No, I won't call names, for from what I have heard it is run—both hotel and town—on the same lines—to-day. Good-night."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dr. Jackson in Alaska.

Dr. Sheldon Jackson, whom the members of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Eagle Lake, Ind., chose as moderator, is one of the most forceful and interesting of the men whom the church have employed in the work of home missions. His life has been active and varied, and the greater part of it has been devoted to his missionary work in almost every State and Territory west of the Mississippi. That he is a man also of resources and practical methods is shown by his work while general agent of education in Alaska.

Indeed, it is not too much to say that to Dr. Jackson will belong much of the credit for the influences which are slowly working toward the opening and awakening of that vast territory. On his arrival at his post in Alaska he found that both the natives and the American business interests of the country were suffering from the lack of some easily accessible and inexpensive means of transportation. He organized the work of importing from Siberia large herds of reindeer, which are better for transportation purposes than horses, and can be used where any other means of travel is out of question. In order that the deer thus introduced into the territory might be used immediately and intelligently he succeeded in bringing over a number of Lapps, who are the masters of the reindeer. The result is that Alaska has now over 1,100 head of deer, which are, of course, multiplying every year. Under the direction of the Lapps, who divide their attention between rearing the animals and conducting transportation, the natives' frothing and traveling facilities have increased.

That the new industry of reindeer raising will do much to redeem the Alaskan native from barbarism and sloth seems as probable as that the new method of transportation will do much to open up and develop the vast resources of the territory. When the credit for the pioneer work in the opening of Alaska to civilization comes to be reckoned—much of it will have to be given to the new moderator chosen by the Presbyterians at Eagle Lake.—Chicago Record.

Automobile Vehicles in Warfare.

A writer in the Revue Technique gives some very interesting figures relating to the cost of horses in military service and makes out a strong case for the use of motor wagons for such purposes. He advances arguments to show that electricity as a power is being debarré from such service, owing to the impracticability of properly charging in the field or en route, so that steam and petroleum motors alone remain, and between these steam has the preference for great powers, at least, since the petroleum motors at present have not proved satisfactory above ten horse-power. Iron tires alone meet the requirements of this service. Practically all automobile vehicles for military service must be carefully designed steam traction engines capable of drawing trains wherever horses can go. In the opinion of the writer it is probable that machinery in warfare may soon enter the field service as extensively as it has already entered other departments.

Experiment has shown that petroleum ether can be used to measure, by its contraction, temperatures several hundred degrees below zero on the Fahrenheit scale. At the temperature at which liquid air boils—310 degrees Fahr. below zero—petroleum ether still remains in a viscous or semi-liquid condition, and continues to contract with decrease of temperature.

Elevator Co., that their elevator will be closed the last week of July and remain closed during the month of August, or until the new crop begins to move. COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Wayne County Teachers Meet for a Two Weeks Session in This City.

The fifteenth annual institute for Wayne county is now in session at the school house, with J. A. Collins, Dan Miller, W. W. Boner, W. E. Howard and Co. Supt. Mrs. Fletcher as instructors. The attendance is good and increasing and there seems to be quite a commendable interest in the work. The feeling between teachers and instructors seems cordial, while the spirit of co-operation seems to become more prominent each day. This is as it should be. The instructors can be helpful only as the teachers give them their confidence and support. The increase in professional spirit, in professional courtesy, since last year is highly gratifying to those interested in the upbuilding of the true educational interests of the county and exceedingly complimentary to the teachers who have taught in the county during the last year. There is a healthy growth in the right direction and the schools will surely reap the benefits during the coming year. The teachers of this county have surely never been so progressive or so well prepared for their work as they are at the present time.

NOTES.
The enrollment is considered quite large, being greater at the end of the third day than for the entire session last year. Mr. Collins has the largest class, Civics. Nearly all the teachers take this subject. Only a few teachers are taking First Grade branches. Examinations Thursday and Friday, July 22 and 23. With but few exceptions the teachers seem to be here for work. One would-be-teacher has been heard to say that she liked the lecture plan for institutes better than our pleasant plans—more room for shirks. If the teacher who said that "she did not see any good in institutes, anyhow," would go to work she might find that there are still some things for even her to learn. Visitors have been few so far, waiting no doubt, for us to get a good start. We are promised some lectures next week if the weather is not too warm. State Supt. Jackson will visit us next week, and is expected to talk to the teachers and citizens of Wayne at night. Exact date will be announced later.

An important decision constraining the rights of pension claimants has been rendered by Assistant Secretary of the Interior Webster Davis. The issue is made in the case of Henry Miller, private in Company K, 101st Ohio Infantry. After being relieved from guard duty one day, Miller voluntarily assisted a teamster in watering mules and while so occupied was fired upon and injured. The department heretofore has rejected such cases as not in the line of duty. Assistant Secretary Davis, however, reverses the pension bureau's action, holds that the claimant was not disobeying orders nor violating any army regulations, but was aiding a comrade in protecting government property; was doing something which he not only had a right to do, but was commendable and so was acting in the line of duty. The adoption of this policy will affect many claims. The case is held to be practically similar to that of a soldier hurt by the enemy bring upon him while he was off duty in his tent, in pursuance of any employment at which he had a right to be employed.
