It's a regular old fashioned campaign with the chances in favor of the winners and they will come under the head

A few years ago when W. E. Howard was county superintendent, the work of the office was paid for by the day, and the people didn't want too many days put in, and Mr. Howard only did his duty faithfully. If Mr. Howard is elected he will attend to the duties of the office well and faithfully for the entire term for which he is elected and a man should be elected to transact the business of the office.

HE is only half a woman who can re sist the shops now The fall styles are stunning, and be their observer short or long, fat or thin, she cannot fail to see something in which she knows she will look her very prettiest. Be-sides that, the prices are amazing ly reasonable. The fashion of stimulat ing trade by put-ting down prices-at the start of the season seems to have taken hold, and it is for us to profit thereby. In the display new ideas are so many that only a few of the most characteristic ones can be treated here. Among cloths the smooth finished sorts seem most popular, though there is the usual assortment of tweeds and rough Scotch mixtures. Camel's hair, to revive which there was an effort last year, appears in silky softness, but doesn't seem to catch on very hard, for few imported costumes are made of it, and they do not look particularly attractive. Cashmere is really idealized. It was never so per-fect in finish, and not-to have a cashmere gown is to want one very much.

This goods is so attractive that two newly styllsh uses of it are put in the first and second of the accompanting pictures. In the first, a very pretty house dress, taffets was combined with it, and herein is another new wrinkle, for though the recent tendency in silks was toward surahs and soft. lustrous weaves, taffetas have broken out afresh. The skirt here was a beautiful cashmere in a deep, rich green. and the bodice was one of, the new taffetas in the same shade. Draped handsome yoke, including collar and paulettes of jeffed Brussels jiet. The sleeves were wrinkled chiffon over laffeta. In the other cashmere gown the color was nickel gray-a popular one at present—and the trimming was myrtle—green velvet, the two shades composing a highly fashionable com bination. The belt and ornamental bands were of this velvet, and the col-lar was green and gray striped satin. The sleeves were shirred-along the out side to above the elbow... Satins are as stiff as possible, and everything silken must crinkle. Silks are to be used a lot, too, and the old-time corded and gros grain sorts are going to be on hand again because they vill adapt themselves so handsomely to the blouse effects to be worn. Indeed, the popularity of the blouse is directly accountable for the vogue of stiffness in materials. Even when a material is soft, it is stiffened in effect by braiding There is a downright rush for braiding on cloth, and even on velvet. An effect of great weight is given to many gowns

EQUALLY ENHANCED LADIUS CLOTH cord instead of flat braid. Different of cord and different widths of braid are employed in the most elab-orate designs. Great pieces of braiding in the form of hearts, circles, four-leaf clovers, ovals and strips are made entirely of braiding like a sort of heavy lace. These are laid on cloth, the cloth cut away from beneath to the very edge of the design, and a contrasting material made to take its place. The entire front is cut away from blous to admit a heart-shaped piece of braiding, the point of the heart reaching to the belt and perhaps hanging over it, the top curves of the heart making the edge of the cut-out, and through the meshes of the design a chemisette of contrasting color and material shows.

Such effects are almost countless.
Triangles are cut, away on the hips. three-sided designs in braiding being set in, the silk lining of the skirt show-ing through. Whole apron fronts of lace-like braiding are set in the front of gowns, showing contrasting pettleoat underneath, and in all cases the edges of the design are followed by the material and all is cut away under the design. Though these lace and braid designs may be expensive, they have artistic worth and may easily be used on several different garments before their usefulness is over. A distinct feature of the season, they are an outgrowth of the passementerie and applique effects that is worthy of encouragement.

Like cashmere, ladies' cloth has taken on a surprising new richness. It seems every bit as beautiful in luster paratively simple dress of it, yet with its deep red enhancing the beautiful fin-ish of the goods, it seemed exceedingly rich. Front and sleeves were trimmed with alternate bands of surah-in a lighter red than the goods and black lace insertion. Collar and belt were of the surah. Dark colors are abundant. and most of the lighter ones are mark ed by richness. Among these are bright green—a still brighter and more yellowish shade than the grass green fashionable for the last two seasons-cérise, lavender, turquoise blue, and last and nowest, gray in all shades. The abundance of dark colors means more than the yearly reaction that always takes place against summer gayety. For new goods are in greater warlety in dark rich colors than has been seen for several seasons. The number of new weaves in black is significant of tendency towards rich dark tones no longer the thing to wear silk velvet except for really formal dress. Silk-tion of surface finish and richness of ue, such as electric seals, have won for themselves, and which some of the high grade machine laces now describe Many of these weaves dely water and will not crease as would the royal velvet in which our grandmothers made themselves queenly. Entire costumes are to be of such weaves—there are all sorts of names for them—as well as e onks, coats and capes. In to day's fourth illustration is a pretty blouse of one of these sik-faced velveteens. was striped in two shades of peacock blue and was gathered at heet and waist. Hooking beneath the jahot lof ivory lace, the garment was belted with black velyet and trimmed with blows of it, each bow held with a thy gold buckle.

The hat of this last sketch was poscely blue velyet, trimmed with black

The hat of this last sketch was peacock blue velvet, trimmed with black ostrich feathers and a bow of blue velvet. But more to the point than these details was the arrangement of its plumes. Feathers of this sort are to be even more plentiful than they were last season, and though they lie in lowing fashion instead of towering assertitively as they formerly did, there's iy fashion instead of towering assertively as they formerly did, there's nothing shrinking about the outlay they'll necessitate. By the new arrangement there is room for more plumes, and size and fineness are as desirable and costly as they were. Take the hat of the concluding sketch, which is also typical; its plumes were but two yet their size and quality made them cost a pretty penny. Like the felt they cost a pretty penny. Like the felt, they frimmed, they were gray, and their stems were held by a pleated black velvet rosette and a steel ornament. Copyright, 1897.

for the Insignia of the Red Cross Miss Clara Barton, president of the American Red Cross Society, who has just returned from the international Red Cross conference at Vienna, said that, excepting this country, the leading nations had passed laws prolecting the title and insignia of the Red Cross. On this point Miss Barton said:

It was humiliating to confess before that great assemblage that in our own en-lightened country there are 284 persons corporations and firms who are using the name and sign of the Red Cross as a trade mark for private gain; that there are innumerable bodies of people here who have founded Red Cross societies for local purposes who are in no way connected with the general organization. The Red Cross delegates were amazed to learn that the wealthy men of this great repub lie had not endowed their Red Cross, nor could they understand why our congress had not prohibited, by stringent laws, the prostitution of humanity's sacred emblem.

RAIN FALLS AT LAST.

SHOWERS GIVE ENCOURAGE MENT TO FARMERS.

Nine Parched Western States Are Well Sprinkled - How the Crops Will Be Affected Is Uncertain, but Good Pasturage Is Assured.

Baked Soil Is Soaked.

The first signs of promise in many reeks appeared to the farmers Sunday broughout the Western States. A gen weeks appeared to the language throughout the Western States. A general opening of the clouds moistened the parched earth just enough to awaken the belief that Providence still reigns, and that the end of the almost unprecedented drought is at hand. In nine of the dozen or more States afflicted by the blighting dryness showers fell with a gentle force sufficient to soften the hard crust that has been baking for weeks on the fields and prairies.

has been baking for weeks on the fields and prairies.

A hynn of thanksgiving mingled with the failing of the rain in hundreds of localities. Countless numbers of farmers haited the showers that visited their acres as their salvation from heavy misfortune. For days and days they have been waiting for a favorable time to put in their winter wheat. Such ground as would permit plowing at all was so dry that clouds of dust followed the plows across the fields. The fields that had been planted early in the beginning of the drought with winter wheat promised pothing-forlack of water on the tender sprouts. It is now believed that much of the ground can be put in cultivation in time, taking it for granted that the drought is broken. Reports received from the Government signal service show that rain has failen very generally in Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Munesota, Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and Illinois.

The visitation in Nebraska is the first rain of any consequence that has failen for six weeks. Suffering Kansas got her first wetting in two months Sunday afternoon. Iowa received her share of rain at the same time.

In its effect upon the future crops the damage wrought by the drought cannot be estimated for many days, in the opinion of experienced observers. On regular cultivated soil, grain men declare, the contracted wheat area merely means a larger corn acreage next year, but this does not apply to the vast acres of prairie ground that have never been touched by a plow. Much of, this virgin prairie sod was to have been turned over this fall in Nebraska and Kansas, but the drought has madelit occasiny for this work to be identified in the farmer has found nothing to compensate him for the loss of his winter whent prospects for abundant and fine grazing on the ranges have not been so good in years. The grass has been to supply their cattle with water sufficient to keep them alive. Now that the rain has begun failing their cup of joy is full, as this been to supply their cattle with water sufficient t

BIG MONEY IN BASE-BALL.

New York and Boston Pocket a Quarter of a Million of Dollars.

"The Boston club will make-fully $150,-000 this serson," said James Mulcahey, who looked after the finances of the St. Louis team during the recent eastern trip. An employe of the Boston management estimated the profits of the club at the above sum in a conversation while the St. Louis team was playing in Beantown. One gatekeeper at Boston said that the average attendance there this senson was the best in the history of the game. Ned Hanlon, the manager of the Baltimores, received $9,000 as his club's share of the gate receipts for three games at Boston. New York will make at least $100,000. Like Boston, the attendance in New York has the best paying grand stand in the league. All the Gotham regulars patronize the best seats at the new Polo Grounds. The visiting clubs get none of this rake-off. New York paid St. Louis $6,500 for six games this season. For one game, on April 29, the St. Louis club received $1,500. Baltimore has made plenty of money, but the home patronage did not keep up consistently. The strong clubs only drew big crowds in Baltimore. They say at Cincinnati that they will clear about $60,-000 on the season. Washlington will also make big money, something like $20,000. Philadelphia started off pretty well in the spring, but the poor work of the Quakers toward the finish cut the attendance down to nothing. St. Louis received $5,000. spring, but the poor work of the Quakers them and the finish cut the attendance down to nothing. St. Louis received $5,000 less than it did in 1896 for its series in Philadelphia. Reach and Rogers will be lucky to break even on the season, so they say in Philadelphia. Cleveland's profits fell off one-half. In '95 and '96, when they off one-half. In '95 and '96, when they were peninant factors, the Spiders made, big money on the road. This season there was a big slump in their playing speed. The attendance in Cleveland, has never amounted to much. The Pittsburg club also fell behind in a money making way. The home attendance of this club fell off. Chigago's stockholders will receive good interest as a result-of the season's pro-fits."

While punctures in it can be repaired with plugs, or semi-liquid injections, as well as in any other single-tube tire, it can be permanently repaired by using the quick-repair strip inside the tire. See cut No. 1.

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, as in cut No. 2, the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement thus closing the puncture, as in cut

The Morgan & Wright single-tube quick-repair tire is guaranteed not porous. This is on account of the way in which it is made. Nearly every rider has heard of tires that "leak like a sieve."

Many tires rot, because water gets into the fabric between the two layers of rubber. The Morgan & Wright fabric is proof against moisture.

Everybody knows how comfortable Morgan & Wright tires are, and yet how seldom they puncture. This is due to the fabric.

Ask any bicycle dealer whether other tires last as long as Morgan & Wright tires. Ask, also, what the Morgan & Wright guarantee means.
Morgan & Wright tires are repaired

Gave Back My Health.

There is no reason for being despondent and considering diseases of the blood incurable, simply because the treatment of physicians and many so-called blood-remedies fail to effect a cure. Though it is naturally disheartening to the sufferer who faithfully takes the prescribed treatment of the physicians, often at the expense of hundreds of dollars, to find himself, no better as time goes by, still a cure will result from the right remedy, S.S.S., no matter what other treatment has failed.

The reason that S.S.S. (Swift's Specific) has so successfully cured even the worst cases after other treatment had

ABOUT PASSES.

Among the eighty people at our state house, there-is-at least one who will not humiliate the populist party by the use of free railroad passes, It is well known that railroads give freely to state officials and their friends all the free pass es they want. But the man referred to has conscientious scruples against ac cepting anything of the kind. He argues that if the railroads carry free all those who receive good salaries and have plenty of means, then when the poor and uninfluential take a ride, they must pay double what it is worth to make up for the loss for hauling the rich free of charge. He says the free pass system is fully as wicked as if the rich and official classes combined and got red postage stamps free of charge and then the poor and uninfluentia pay four cents for every stamp, so as to make up the loss for giving stamps free to a favored crowd. It is well known es as a gift. Corporations are continu ally overreaching and imposing on in dividuals. Free passes are given to the trong, the rich, and those clothed with official power, well knowing it will en list all the power of these classes in a continuation of corporate extortion and imposition.

The gentleman referred to has already paid about $250 for railroad tick ets this year for himself and family when free passes could have been had every trip. It is well known that an nonored member of our House of Rep esentatives paid fare all last winter free as water. One member of the state Senate was heard to say, at the close o the session last April, that he sorely regretted many times during the se sion that he had received a free pas office he would flatly refuse any and all favors from railroads. — There is room in this state for an as sociation that will push for a law plac and making it a penal offense to give or recieve a free pass. Who will take up the fight and carry it to a finish?— Nebraska Independent.

It is the transmitting-of-the-from handcuffs of-earthly interrectation into the diamonded wristlets of a bridal party, or, to use the suggestion of my text, it is only flusking fime. It is the tearing off of the rough sheath of the body that the bright and the beautiful soal may go free. Coming in "like a shock of corn wometh in in his season" Christ broke up a tuneral procession at the gate of Nain by making a resurrection day for a young fram and his mother. And I would that I could break up your sadness and halt the long funeral procession of the world's grief by some chegring and cheerful view of the last transition.

We all know that hasking time was a ting of frost. Frost on the fence, Frost on the stubble. Frost on the ground. Frost on the bare branches of the trees. Frost on the stubble. Frost on the ground. Frost on the bare branches of the trees. Frost in the air. Frost on the hands of the huskers. You remember also that in the time of husking it was a neighborhood, reunion. By the great fireplace in the winter, the fires roaring around the glorified backlogs on an old-fashioned hearth, of which the modern stoves and registers are only the degenerate descendants, the farmers used to gather and spend the evening, and there would be much sociality, but it was not anything like the joy of the husking time; for then all the farmers came, and they for then all the farmers came, and they came in the very best humor, and they came in the very best humor, and they came from beyond the meadow, and they came. From beyond the brook, and they came from regions two and three miles around. Good shirit reigned supreme, and there were great handshakings, and there was carnival, and there was the recital of the brightest experiences in all their lives, and there was a neighborhood reunion the memory of which makes all the nerves of my body tremble, with emotion as the strings of a harp when the fingers of a player have swept the chords.

Heavenly Recognition.—In giving em phasis to the doctrine of heavenly rea-ognition we observe, first, that in the resurrection each person will retain his full identity, and will live hereafter as full identity, and will live hereafter as a distinct existence as truly as he lived here. He will have his own distinct spiritual organism which will follow its own laws of life, and from this almost self-evident postulate may be deduced the ide for mutual recognition. I believe that families long separated will come together and exult in the loy of a bilissful reunion.—Rev. F. R. Morse, Baptist, New York City.

A TRUE BEAR STORY.

A Yellowstone Park Bruin Gives a Great Moral Lesson to Parents. Speaking of law and the enforcement of discipline in Yellowstone Park, I heard the story of a bear there, which I consider exceedingly important not only as a comment on the discipline of the park, but as a moral lesson to parents in domestic obedience. The story shelf for repeat it, for it would have no value. Mr. Kipling says "the law of the jungle is bobey." This also seems to be the law of Yellowstone Pars. There is a funchi station at the upper basin, near Old Faithful, kept by a very intelligent and ingenious man. He got acquainted last year with a she bear, who used to come to his house every day and wark into the kitchen for food for herself and her two cubs. The cubs never came. The keeper got on very intimate terms with the bear, who was always civil and well-behaved, and would take food from his hand (without faking the hand). One day toward sunset the bear came to the kitchen and having received her portion she went out of the back door to carry it to her cubs. To her surprise and anger the cubs were there waiting for her. She laid down the food, and rushed at her inid down the rood, and rushed at her liftants and gave them a rousing spanking. "She did not cuff them; she spanked them," and then drove them back into the woods, cuffing them and knocking them at every step. When she reached the spot where she had told them to wait, she left them there and returned to the house. And there she stayed in the kitchen for two whole hours, making the disobedient children walt for their food, simply to disciplice tnem and teach them obedience. explanation is very natural. When the bear leaves her young in a particular place and goes in search of food for them, if they stray away in her absence she has great difficulty in finding them. The mother knew that the safety of her cubs and her own peace of mind de-pended upon strict discipline in the family. Oh, that we had more such family. Oh, that we had more such mothers in the United States!—Harper's Magazine.

England Growing Impatient. The London Spectator, during the course of a long and temperate article on the "Provocative and unfriendly tone of American politicians of both parties toward England," says: "We are obliged to write as we never dreamed of being forced to write about a country only less dear to us than our own. But we should fall in our public duty if we did not point out in the strongest manner the grave risks which are likely to ensue from this attitude. Unless the United States assumes a very different tone the gravest crisis is certain to ensue.

"Public opinion in England has great-ly changed during the last few months, and even if Lord Salisbury is anxious to politely ignore such indiscretions as Secretary Sherman's, the people would not permit it, and hereafter American demands, if urged in unfriendly language, will be resisted unanimously by the nation, no matter what the risks may be. If America does not keep a better watch over her politicians they will harry her into a conflict with this country whereof no one is able to see the end."

The Champion in Frugality,
Guy, the founder of Guy's Hospit in Loudon, was as parsimonious in private life as he was munificent in public. A good story illustrative of this is told of him in connection with John Hopkins, one of his contemporaries who was nicknamed Vulture Hopkins on account of his rapacious mode of acquiring his immense wealth. On one occasion he paid a visit to Guy, who, on Hopkins entering the room, lighted a farthing candle. Hopkins, on being asked the reason of his visit, said: "I have been told that you, sir, are better versed in the prudent and necessary art of saving than any man living, and I therefore wait on you for a lesson in I therefore wait on you for a lesson in frugality. I have always regarded myself as an adept in this matter, but I am told that you excel me." "Oh," replied Guy, "iif that is all you came to talk about we can discuss the matter in the dark," and thereupon he blewout the candle. Struck with this example of economy, Hopkins, acknowledged that he had met his superior in thirlft. thrift.

It is a curious fact that while the man, Canovas del Castillo, who made Alfonso XII. the ruler of Spain, is now buried, Alfonso himself, though more than eleven years dead, is still awaiting interment. On a rocky slab near a running spring of water in the side of the mountain on which stands the Es-curial lies the body of the King, cloth-ed only in a thin lined garment. It is intended that there he shall be seen. til the body has attained all the pecu-liar properties of a mummy, when it will be placed finally in a jasper vault, under the great doine of the Escurial Church, where lie the Spanish kings and their mothers. It is said that Queen Isabella's father lay on this rock twenty-five years before the body was in fit condition for transferring.
