We would like to ask the Republicar in all candor, who was back of the "pet-ty spite" two years ago.

The Republicans talk about "boodle" coming from whence it does, is enough to make a horse laugh, if it wasn't too much of a chestnut.

It is indeed unfortunate that the ed itor of the Republican and the board of county commissioners the only people in the county who loing business in a business like man

For supreme gall the Republican takes the cake. When it speaks about prices for county printing and wonders if the paper that received the contract will make the same prices to other patrons, it should remember that the Herald does the work for just a trifle less than the Republican did last year. But why listen to the cant of such a hypocrite. hypocrite.

The scurrilous attack of the Republican against the county commissioners in regard to the county printing was inwarranted and disreputable. It is well known that protests can be flied with the Board and any respectable ditizen he granted a hearing, and in the let before by the old Board, but at this particular time, for reasons which alled, the old Board saw fit to change custom, although Commissione Jacobs had declared emphatically that ie would not have anything to do with letting the contracts, but changed protest? Our readers knowquite well the views of the editor of this paper in regard to the lowest lonestead. We think that nothing like it and its special farmers institute editions were ever offered to the farmers of this county at the low office of $1.500 hours are the farmers of this county at the low office of $1.500 hours are the farmers. one narmers of this county at the low price of $1, and cach successive issue only confirms this view. The January special institute number, which accompanied the regular issue for the last week in 1897, was particularly interesting. It discussed the question whether it is wise under present conditions for young men of limited means to buy farms. Every farmer should read this for the light it throws on the future prospects of farming. Government cator should be on the list of every farmer in this county.
